HERENDEEN'S ORIENTAL FLOUR!

This flour is prepared from the best Pure White Corn by a process patented February 7th 1880, and is beyond a doubt healthier than wheat or any other flour. We aim to feed the masses, not the classes, consequently instead of putting it up in 2 or 3 lb. packages and charging 15 or 20 cents for them and spending the big profit in advertising, we are selling it at about the price of ordinary flour. It can be used to great advantage in bread, pastry, etc., and is unsurpassed for pancakes or Johnny cake. Instructions and recipes in each package. This is also pre-eminently the food for anyone troubled with Dyspepsia or Indigestion. Your grocer has it now. Ask for it Try it.

THE NEWS OF EUROPE.

A CLUE TO CARROTY NELL'S MURDERER DISCOVERED.

The National League of Great Britain Summoned to Meet Owing to the Irish Crisis—The Wrecked Utopia Causes Another Disaster.

LONDON, March 31.—News has come to this city from Zanzibar of the outbreak of a revolution in the Comoro Islands, in the Mozambique Channel, about 350 miles northwest of the Madagascar coast.

On the Island of Anjouan the natives, after the death of Sultan Abdullah, supplied themselves with arms and spread over the country, massacreing 300 people and carrying desolation far and wide.

The war vessels of the French squadron, now in the waters of the Indian Ocean, have been directed to proceed to the islands and put down the insurrection. The Comoro Islands are under French protection, but are nominally ruled by Arab princes.

Their Feet Washed by an Emperor.

VIENNA, March 31.—There is probably no more impressive ceremony in Europe than the "Fusswaschung" gone through with so much solemnity by the Austrian Emperor and his retinue of archdukes, clad in gorgeous white uniforms, in the throne room of the Hofburg the other day. The twelve octogenarian almsmen, in their black XVIIth century garb, the dramatic offer and refusal of food, the dishes borne by stalwart life-guardsmen and the formal ablutions all contribute to its effect, and, when all is over, the proffered dainties are sent to the recipients of the honor in great oval packing-cases bearing the imperial arms. Not only does the Emperor tie a bag of maundy round the neck of each of his guests, but they all receive as a memento the knife, fork, spoon, silver goblet and wine jug put before them. The jugs, of fine green glass glass ornamented with heraldic devices in gold, are highly prized by collectors, but are exceedingly difficult to obtain, as they are regarded as heirlooms by the families into whose possession they fall.

LONDON, March, 31.—William Mowbray, a member of the Norfolk regiment, stationed at Yarmouth, deserted some time ago and was traced to London, where he was arrested and condemned to military trial, which he has been awaiting a week. It is now learned that Mowbray is not a British subject, but an American. It is further ascertained from his own admissions and the testimony of his fellows in the regiment that he enlisted in the British service for the purpose of filling the minds of his comrades with socialistic ideas and desires, with the ultimate purpose of inciting a revolt.

"Carroty Nell's" Murderer.

LONDON, March 31.—A man giving his name as French appeared at the headquarters of the police at Maidstone, Kent, to-day and declared his ability and willingness to give ample evidence to convict George Smith, a professional burglar, of the murder of Frances Coleman, alias "Carroty Nell." French declares that Smith robbed the house in front of which the Coleman woman was found while she kept watch to avoid detection. When Smith emerged from the house with his plunder the woman demanded a larger share of the booty than he was willing to give up, and in the consequent quarrel she threatened to expose him to the police, whereupon he murdered her and fled.

Young English Officers Lost in Persia.

A Wonderful Submarine Gun.

LONDON, March 31.—A very successful experiment was made to-day in the Lake of Como with the submarine gun invented by Signor Iselli. The cannon was sunk to a depth of 350 feet in the lake, but in spite of the pressure of the water the projectile was fired with sufficient force to sink a boat. The authorities have decided to make further trials with a still larger gun.

The National League.

LONDON, March 31.—The annual convention of the National League of Great Britain is summoned to assemble in Newcastle May 10. The convention is called earlier than usual because of the Irish crisis.

A Duellist Punished.

ST. PETERSBURG, March 31.—The military tribunal has sentenced Prince Vadbalsky to three years' detention in a fortress for killing Lieut. Monossoff in a duel.

Labor Reforms in Germany.

BERLIN, March 31.—The Duke of Ratibon President of the Prussian Upper House, has ordered that hereafter all the workingmen employed on his estates shall have three days additional holiday in the year, and shall receive pay for all holidays.

A Crash Threatened in Genoa.

PARIS, March 31.—The Journal des Debats says Genoa is threatened with a financial crash. A large and influential shipping company of that city has already suspended.

Foreign Brevities.

O'Brien and Dillon were taken back to Galway jail to-day.

Mr. Parnell is suffering from a severe cold and is confined to his apartments.

The Pacific steamer Empress of Japan steamed a mile on the Clyde at the rate of 19 knots an hour. She then proceeded on her trial trip of 500 miles.

Timothy Healy, M.P., yesterday started for Sligo to take part in the electoral contest there. His right eye was concealed by a bandage.

Emigration to Canada.

OTTAWA, March 31.—The annual report of Sir Charles Tupper, High Commissioner to England, has been issued. It shows that the emigration from Great Britain to Canada last year was 31,930, as compared with 38,056 in the same period in 1889. Sir Charles says that in order to attract attention to the country money must be spent continually and systematically.

Dangerous Counterfeits.

Counterfeits are always dangerous, more so that they always closely IMITATE THE ORIGINAL IN APPEARANCE AND NAME. The remarkable success achieved by Nasal Balm as a positive cure for Catarrh and Cold in the Head has induced unprincipled parties to imitate it. The public are cautioned not to be deceived by nostrums imitating Nasal Balm in name and appearance, bearing such names as Nasal Cream, Nasal Balsam, etc. Ask for Nasal Balm and do not take any imitation dealers may urge upon you. Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam.

Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam gives prompt relief in coughs, colds, hoarseness, whooping cough, croup, asthma or bronchitis. It is the most pleasant and perfect throat and lung healer in the world for children or adults. Price 25c.

Bickle's Anti Consumptive Syrup is a combination of several medical herbs which exert a most wonderful influence in curing pulmonary consumption and all other diseases of the lungs, chest and throat. It promotes a free and easy expectoration, and gives ease even to the greatest sufferer. Coughs, colds, shortness of breath, and affections of the chest, attended with weakness of the digestive organs, or with general debility, seem to vanish under its use. No other remedy acts so readily in allaying inflammation or breaking up a severe cold, even the most obstinate cough is overcome by its penetrating and healing properties. When children are affected with colds, coughs, inflammation of the lungs, croup, quinsey, and sore throat, this Syrup is of vast importance. The number of deaths among children from these diseases is truly alarming. It is so palatable that a child will not refuse it, and is put at such a price that will not exclude the poor from its benefits.

White broche is in demand for neglige robes.

Mr. J. R. Allen, Upholsterer, Toronto, sends us the following: "For six or seven years my wife suffered from Dyspepsia, Costiveness, Inward Piles and Kidney Complaint. We tried two physicians and any number of medicines without getting any relief, until we got a bottle of Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery. This was the first relief she got, and before one bottle was used the benefit she derived from it was beyond our expectation."

Satins closely resemble India silks in design.

Jacob H. Bloomer, of Virgille, N. Y., writes:—"Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil cured a badly swelled neck and sore throat on my son in forty-eight hours; one application also removed the pain from a very sore toe; my wife's foot was also much inflamed—so much so that she could not walk about the house; she applied the Oil, and in twenty four hours was entirely cured."

Mr. Thomas Ballard, Syracuse, N.Y., writes: "I have been afflicted for nearly a year with that most-to-be-dreaded disease Dyspepsia, and at times worn out with pain and want of sleep, and after trying almost everything recommended, I tried one box of Parmelee's Vegetable Pills. I am now nearly well, and believe they will cure me. I would not be without them for any money

ADVICE TO MOTHERS

MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP has been used by millions of mothers for children teething for over fifty years with perfect success. It relieves the little sufferer at once, produces natural, quiet sleep by freeing the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste, soothes the child, softens the gums, allays pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. Twenty five cents a bottle

DIXON THE WINNER.

The Colored Boy Defeats McCarthy for the Featherweight Championship.

TROY, March 31.—The glove contest between Cal McCarthy and George Dixon for the featherweight championship of the world and $4000 took place at the Bicycle Club to-night. Choice seats sold as high as $20 each. It is estimated that $25,000 has been paid into the Crib Club this afternoon. Both the principals were weighed in. The scales were set at 115 pounds. Neither man tipped the beam at that mark and they jumped off, so that none of those present could ascertain their exact weight. At the headquarters of the Dixon party he was found to weigh a trifle over 113 pounds. Sheriff Tappen was served with an injunction issued by Judge Griffith restraining him from interfering with the fight. The betting was $100 to $75 in favor of Dixon.

The fight began at 10.27. Both men fought fast, but Dixon had the best of the fight from the start, repeatedly knocking down his opponent, whose blows, although landed often, seemed to lack force. In the seventh round McCarthy's nose was broken. Dixon, with the characteristic of his color, ducked his head frequently and saved many blows. In the ninth round McCarthy became groggy. In the twelfth round the fighting became furious. Dixon ran McCarthy to the ropes, and the latter held on to the colored boy all through the round. The referee appeared to be unable to separate the men. Dixon held McCarthy's head and pounded him time after time, while all McCarthy could do was to try to avert the blows. It looked as if McCarthy would be knocked out in this round, but the call of time saved him.

McCarthy did his most effective work in the fifteenth round, having rallied. He began to weaken in the seventeenth, however, and in the twenty-first was as good as defeated.

Round 22—When the boys came together in this round it was evident that they meant to settle matters. They both landed heavily, Mac. going down several times from the tremendous swings of his opponent, but he rallied in time to gain his feet. It was too plain that he couldn't last long. The colored boy never lost his head and took advantage of Mac.'s condition and knocked him down and finally out.

Walking Record Lowered.

MOBILE, Ala., March 31.—The world's half-mile walking record has been broken here by Henry G. Klink, jr., the present champion one-mile walker of the world. Klink did the half mile in 2 mins. and 55 secs. on a sandy track, five laps to the ⅛ mile. The record for a half mile was formerly 3 mins. 12¾ secs.

THE GRIP IN CHICAGO.

There Were 150 Funerals in Chicago Easter Sunday.

CHICAGO, March 31.—Easter Sunday was the first really beautiful spring day that March has given to Chicago. In spite of its balmy pleasantness it had an undue exhibit of sackcloth and ashes, for there were no less than 150 funerals. The funeral processions began to arrive at the cemeteries before noon, and from that time on the processions were filing in and out until nightfall The deaths last week were 934, showing an increase of 225 over the previous week. The past three weeks of March this year show almost double the death rate of the same time in 1890. La grippe is a very insidious disease and a great many deaths result from imprudence and exposure that the victims might avoid by taking care. The Commissioner of Health says that the great increase in the death rate is due solely to the prevalence of influenza, together with the prevalent atmospheric conditions, which are extraordinary and most unusual.

The Villeneuve Story Discredited.

BERLIN, March 31.—The newspapers of this city dismiss the reported interview which the Marquis de Villeneuve says took place in 1865, between the late Prince Napoleon and Prince Bismarck, at which the latter is said to have proposed a combination of France and Prussia against Russia and the rest of Europe, as being a piece of absolute fiction, evident from the fact that Prince Napoleon was not even in Berlin in 1866.

No Need of "Beauty Sleep."

It is all nonsense about "beauty sleep" coming in the hours before midnight, and that the rosy cheek on the country lass is the reward for retiring at the time when the proverbially pale faced city girl's evening commences. The late hours of fashionable life would not necessarily scatter the roses from the cheek if the late hour for retiring could be the same every night without variation. It is irregular hours and meals that cause pale and haggard faces. The handsomest couple I ever saw retired regularly at 11 30, and always indulged in a light lunch just before retiring. They were both pictures of health.

The lady did not look over 25, though she never hesitated to say that she was 38 years old, and the husband looked at least ten years younger than he really was. They were both devotees to the laws of health. For years they had allowed nothing to interfere with the regularity of sleeping and eating hours. Almost the midnight hours was chosen for retiring, because it allowed them evenings at the theatre and an hour or so at even the most fashionable receptions. When alone in their home they never indulged in an earlier hour.—Chicago Herald.

A Monument to Davy Crockett.

A monument is to be erected over the remains of Davy Crockett, the famous Tennessee hunter, who killed 108 bears and performed various other deeds of valor. It is now more than sixty years since this picturesque old character was buried. The shaft will be of Tennessee granite and over twenty-seven feet high. At the front base of the column the emblematic bear keeps faithful watch in front of the bronze medallion of the setting sun; on the right part of the shaft a bronze medallion with the distinctive badge (the rifle and knife crossed) of the pioneer settlers of the state is represented and a corresponding medallion on the left side shows the agricultural implements, early symbols of Tennessee's prosperity. One other medallion represents the grand seal of Tennessee, and on the front of the shaft a bust of Colonel Crockett looks down over the grizzly he loved to hunt so well. The bust will be as true to life as it can be made.

The Best Pork.

The best pork is, however, made from spring pigs farrowed in March or April, and kept continuously fit for the butcher all the summer on a clover pasture, with enough milk, wheat middlings or oat meal to keep them thriftily growing. There is, we believe, more money in caring for a lot of thrifty, young pigs, feeding them most of the grain grown on the farm, than there is in any other way of disposing of it. By the purchase of bran, mill feed and some linseed meal, the capacity of the farm for producing a large amount of wholesome pork can be greatly increased, and land thus managed could not help growing richer, as most of the feed would be returned to it in the manure heap.

Makes the Weak Strong

The marked benefit which people in run down or weakened state of health derive from Hood's Sarsaparilla, conclusively proves the claim that this medicine "makes the weak strong." It does not act like a stimulant, imparting fictitious strength from which there must follow a reaction of greater weakness than before, but in the most natural way Hood's Sarsaparilla overcomes

That Tired Feeling

creates an appetite, purifies the blood, and, in short, gives great bodily, nerve, mental and digestive strength.

"I derived very much benefit from Hood's Sarsaparilla, which I took for general debility. It built me right up, and gave me an excellent appetite." ED. JENKINS, Mt. Savage, Md.

Fagged Out

"Last spring I was completely fagged out. My strength left me and I felt sick and miserable all the time, so that I could hardly attend to my business. I took one bottle of Hood's Sarsaparilla, and it cured me. There is nothing like it." R. C. BEGOLE, Editor Enterprise, Belleville, Mich.

Worn Out

"Hood's Sarsaparilla restored me to good health. Indeed, I might say truthfully it saved my life. To one feeling tired and worn out I would earnestly recommend a trial of Hood's Sarsaparilla." MRS. PHEBE MOSHER, 90 Brooks Street, East Boston, Mass.

RITCHIE EXPOSED.

The following letter shows the unauthorized character of Mr. S. J. Ritchie's interference in the election in West and North Hastings and shows him up in his true light as an annexationist, who opposed the Government because it was hostile to the project which he said before the U. S. Senate Committee was the best means of bringing about the annexation of Canada to the United States:

CLEVELAND, Ohio, March 17, 1891.

DEAR SIR,—Mr. S. J Ritchie, formerly an officer of the Canadian Copper Company, has ceased to have any connection with the Company as a Director, officer or stockholder, and he does not represent the Company in any capacity whatever. It has recently come to the knowledge of the Company that Mr. Ritchie has assumed a position of hostility to it—that he threatens it with malicious lawsuits and interference with its business.

All persons having any business with the Co· will oblige us by paying no attention to any correspondence, or interview of Mr. Ritchie. The Company will through its proper officers attend to its affairs, and the performance of all its contracts.

By order of the President. Yours truly,
THE CANADIAN COPPER CO.
Signed, H. P. MCINTOSH, Sec. and Treas.

THE SAME OLD TACTICS.

The Globe is once more reverting to the same tactics to which it has always resorted in excusing the defeat of its party in a general election. It declares that the Conservative party have been guilty of corruption in its every form; makes the pharisaical declaration that the Grits have been, in comparison, pure as snow; and insults the people by declaring (see its issue of March 30th) that "the fault lies not with bad Ministers who debauch the people so much as "with the people themselves, for it cannot "be denied that rulers chosen under free "institutions are usually fair types of the "community which they represent."

"The proof of the pudding lies in the eating." Tested by the record of the election courts, how does the Grit organ's assertion as to the comparative purity of its party appear? The first election cases with which the election courts had to deal, after their institution, were those arising out of the general election of 1874. The result of the trials was the unseating of 32 Grits and 15 Conservatives, and the disqualification of 4 Grits—one of them an unsuccessful candidate—and no Conservatives. Following the general election of 1879, there were 6 Grits and 4 Conservatives unseated; 2 Grits disqualified and no Conservative. In 1882 there were 3 Grits and 5 Conservatives unseated. We have not the figures for 1887, but they would not materially alter the record of the parties, which stands as follows:

Grits unseated	41
Grits disqualified	6

Thus it appears that the Grits who were unseated as the result of their corruption in 1874 outnumber the Conservatives unseated from that time up to date, and the Globe whines: "Those villainous Tories have "debauched the country. We are pure, "but a few of our friends have been driv"en to fight the devil with fire. Oh! "those rascally Tories! And the people "are as corrupt as they are!"

The brazen effrontery of such a cry in face of the facts is simply astounding. Does the Globe imagine that the record of Grit rascality has been forgotten? The ballot box stuffing in Jacques Cartier; the "Big Push;" the "come along John" episode in London; the red mill transactions in Lincoln; the "unknown" in Niagara; the mysterious stranger, the sheep buyer, the cattle buyer, the dark lantern brigade in Lennox; the $10 gold pieces in Chambly; the calling of a man out of a prayer meeting in Dundas and his purchase by an election agent—all these and other devices too numerous to mention, and which have been sworn to in court, prove that to the Grit party are chargeable the sins against purity of election of which they brazenly assert the Conservatives have been guilty. What inference, then, can be deduced from the facts other than that the people, in time after time relegating that party to the cold shades of opposition, have shown devotion to principle and honesty of no uncommon order in refusing to sacrifice their principles by sharing in the golden flow of Grit corruption funds.

And yet the Globe has no hope of it's party's success by means of its policy of veiled treason or of it's allegations of "Tory" corruption. It knows that the people will pronounce more and more strongly against its "policy" as its true meaning becomes more clearly apparent, that the electors know its allegations to be false. Its hopes turn in quite another direction, as is plainly to be seen by the following extract from its article of March 30th, above referred to:

> The disappearance of Sir John Macdonald will give the country a chance to recover its ancient self-respect. Thousands and tens of thousands of voters who cling to his commanding personality as to a fetich will when he goes pitch Tupper and Langevin to the dogs and try to atone for their support of him by electing good men who come before them with good measures.

The hopes, then, of the organ, expressed with brutal frankness, centre in the death of the great statesman who has so long controlled the destinies of Canada. True, Sir John is well advanced in years; but, like Joey Bagstock, he is "tough, sir, tough," and—the Globe will not deny it—"devilish sly." When, in the course of nature, he passes from the stage, his departure from the scene of unnumbered triumphs, will be a great blow to the Conservative party and an incalculable loss to the country; but the hour of his enemies' triumph will not then have struck. The great leader will commit to capable hands a policy which the people have many times endorsed and which, fathfully carried out, will still command their approval.

"Despise not the day of small things," as the tiny pill (taken from a vial of Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets) said to the 300 pound man, suffering from indigestion. As a gentle, thorough laxative, these Pellets resemble Nature more closely in their action than anything before discovered. Business and professional men, whose habits are sedentary, need something of this kind to ward off sick headache, biliousness and dyspepsia, but which will not strain and rack the digestive organs as did the old-fashioned pill. 25 cents per vial, at all druggists.

THE WAR CLOUD GROWS.

A MEETING OF THE TRIPLE ALLIANCE ANNOUNCED.

Russia's Massing of Troops, Balkan Intrigues and Relations with France Ominous Symptoms—Bulgaria Alive with Preparations for a Fight.

BERLIN, March 30.—An uneasy feeling prevails throughout Germany that the massing of troops on the Austrian frontier, the bestowal of the Order of St. Andrew on President Carnot and the resumption of Russian intrigues in the Balkan peninsula are symptoms which, taken in connection with each other, amount to a Russian demonstration of hostility to the German Empire. The Berlin Bourse is sensibly affected by the prevalence of this feeling.

Prince Ferdinand's commission as Governor of Roumelia expires on April 5, when Turkey can refuse to renominate him, but is not likely to do so while Stambuloff is Premier. This probably explains the attempt on the latter's life, as his death would have enabled Russia to interfere.

BERLIN, March 31.—It is reported that a note has been issued by M. de Giers, the Russian Minister of State for Foreign Affairs, forerunning the intention of Russia to intervene in the Balkans. This circumstance, says The Gazette, combined with the demonstrative massing of Russian troops on the frontier, is looked upon as a sign of the approach of critical days in Eastern Europe.

BUDA PESTH, March 31.—The Pesther Lloyd says: "We stand at the beginning of another great movement on the part of Russia, which will probably open with a protest against the reappointment of Ferdinand as Governor of Roumelia. It is time that the dreibund should consider how long it will continue to allow Russia to make military preparations."

LONDON, March 31.—Berlin advices state that the murder of the Bulgarian Minister of Finance is one of the chief causes of the sudden flurry among officials of the war office and that it is looked upon as a serious indication of the gravest designs on the part of Russia. Dispatches have been busily passing between the foreign offices of Berlin and Vienna, and also Bucharest, and it is now stated that the celebration of the 25th anniversary of the accession of King Charles of Roumania at Bucharest next month will be made the occasion of an informal conference between the powers of the triple alliance. The kaisers of Germany and Austria and the king of Italy have been invited as guests to the celebration. Francis Joseph has promised to be present, but the German kaiser will probaby be represented by one of his leading and confidential officers, although he may conclude to go in person. At any rate the sovereigns of the triple alliance will spare no effort to prove their friendship for the Roumanians and hold that state to their side in the event of war. Roumania is in excellent condition for defence, having nearly completed the series of formidable fortifications along the Russian frontier, and having an army that is far from contemptible.

The Bulgarian reserves have been notified to be ready for service on call and the principality is alive with warlike preparations, as there is a strong apprehension that a hostile movement on the part of Russia may be expected.

The Cologne Gazette says the Bulgarian Government has made a contract for large supplies of war material with which to strengthen the Bulgarian defences.

ELOPEMENT IN QUEBEC.

QUEBEC, March 31.—Quebec is all agog over the elopement of a widower of 50 years with a girl of 19. The girl is the daughter of Mrs. Hill, who keeps the Rosario boarding house in Palace Hill, and her lover is Sissons, manager of Sewell's lumber mill at Lake St. Joseph, on the Lake St. John Railway. Sissons has three daughters, one of whom is as old a Miss Hill. He has been carrying on a clandestine courtship with the latter for some months past, and on the girl's father discovering this he forbade him the house. By some means or other Sissons managed to carry on his suit, and yesterday when the girl's parents went to church they left her alone. On their return she was gone, but believing she was visiting one of the neighbors they suspected nothing until 9 p.m., when they received the following telegram from Montreal:

> To Mrs. Hill:
> Don't be alarmed about your daughter's absence. She is with me and all right. Annie accompanies us. [Signed] SISSONS, Montreal.

The father of the girl became furious when the truth commenced to dawn on him and he immediately sought the advice of Lieut.-Col. Vohl, who in turn telegraphed to Col. Hughes, chief of police, Montreal, asking him to apprehend the couple.

TRENTON, N.J., March 31.—Judge Lanning of the City District Court to-day adjudged Dr. Elmer Rogers guilty of contempt of court for refusing, while on the witness stand, to answer the question: "How many ribs are there in the human body?" The doctor insisted that it was a technical question which he was not obliged to answer, because he had not received a fee for expert evidence.

Tupper Off for Washington.

OTTAWA, March 31.—Sir Charles Tupper, who left for Washington to-day, expects to arrange the preliminaries for the proposed conference with Secretary Blaine on the question of closer trade relations with the United States. He will probably be followed at an early date by Sir John Thompson and Hon. George E. Foster.

Hiccoughs Caused Death.

CHICAGO, Ill., March 31.—Robert Porter of No. 285 42nd-street died at his residence to-day. He began to hiccough and all the doctors could do was to give him opiates to put him to sleep. But the rest was only momentary and the hiccoughing continued to rack his frame. He literally hiccoughed himself to death and died in great agony.

Died Under His Sweetheart's Window.

RACINE, Wis., March 30.—Late last night Henry Hellings, aged 21 years, shot and killed himself under the window of Miss Nettie Zenal, who had repeatedly refused to marry him.

Burned While Playing Circus.

LANCASTER, Pa., March 31.—While some children were playing circus in Columbia, a tent in which Anna Kiehl, four years old, was seated, was set on fire and before she was rescued she was fatally burned.

A Diabolical Outrage.

LIBERTY, Miss., March 31.—A school examination and concert took place last night at the Parson Hill schoolhouse near here. While the pupils were singing a double-barreled shotgun, heavily charged with shot, was fired into the assemblage by some unknown miscreant, wounding 14 persons, some of them seriously.

Five Years in Kingston.

SARNIA, March 31.—The two men Marsterstone and Hart, who cracked Laing's safe at Wyoming and held up an officer who chased them, were to-day sentenced to five years each in the penitentiary.

Ten Orange Trains from California.

SACRAMENTO, Cal., March 31.—Yesterday and last night ten special orange trains passed eastward from the southern part of the State comprising sixty carloads.

MARRIED HIS SISTER.

A Nova Scotia Couple Make an Awful Discovery and Both Commit Suicide.

HALIFAX, March 29.—From the little town of Newport, on Avon River, near Windsor, comes the story of an unusual tragedy. Three days ago the dead body of Mrs. Madeline Duval, the pretty young wife of Lucian Duval, was found drowned in the river. The remains were taken home and a search instituted for her husband, who was found wandering aimlessly in the woods about a mile from his home, evidently half demented. It was immediately suspected that he was responsible for his wife's death and a watch was placed upon him.

During the funeral obsequies he eluded his keepers and fled. The same evening his body was found hanging in the barn dead. A letter was found in his pocket stating that ever since his marriage he had been endeavoring to ascertain who his wife's parents were, she being an adopted child, and about a week before had made the awful discovery that his wife was no less a person than his own sister. It appeared that his mother and father had separated, the latter going to Prince Edward Island, taking the son with him. After the separation the daughter, Madeline, was born. The mother, too proud to ask help of the father, never told him of the birth. The girl was adopted and brought to Newport, where Duval married her. Being religious, they were overcome with horror at the discovery. Mrs. Duval evidently became insane and committed suicide, and remorse drove Duval to the same end. They were buried together to-day.

A PRISONER AS A PEELER.

Windsor's Accommodating Constable is in Sore Trouble.

WINDSOR, March 31.—The Police Committee recently decided upon Policeman Maitre's dismissal. During the month of January Maitre was on duty from 7 p.m. until 4 a.m. One of the charges is he put the best part of one night playing cards with a colored man named Fox, for whose arrest a warrant was out. Maitre, it is said, became on extremely friendly terms with Fox, and assured him that while, when morning came, he would be compelled to arrest him, still, as a persona friend, he would pay his fine and costs. At 11 o'clock that night Maitre became tired at cards and returned to an inner room to sleep, while his prisoner put on the officer's coat and helmet, took his club and paraded through the streets.

ITALIAN MINISTER RECALLED.

The Government Shows Its Disapproval of the New Orleans Massacre.

WASHINGTON, March 31.—In an official note dated to-day Baron Fava, the Italian minister, has declared to the Secretary of State that the U.S. Government not having given assurances that the murderers of the Italian subjects acquitted by the American magistrates and murdered in prison while under the immediate protection of the authorities of New Orleans would be brought to justice, the Italian Government has found itself under the very painful necessity of showing openly its dissatisfaction by recalling the minister of his majesty from a country where the Italian representatve is unable to obtain justice. The baron will soon leave the United States, leaving the secretary of legation in charge only of the current affairs.

This action by the Italian Government has caused much surprise in official circles, as it was generally supposed the Italian Government would await the action of the New Orleans grand jury charged with an investigation of the jail episode. A reason for the recall is found in the fact that when the Italian Minister sought for some assurance that the persons concerned would be punished such assurance was not forthcoming. While a recall under the circumstances of the case is a serious matter, it does not signify that neutral explanation and diplomacy cannot restore the old status.

The reason given for the recall is, "the King of Italy is dissatisfied with the progress of adjustment between the two countries in regard to the New Orleans massacre."

TORONTO GOSSIP.

Mining Convention—Is She Dead or in a Trance?

TORONTO, April 1.—The master in chambers yesterday morning delivered judgment on the motion to unseat Mayor Clarke, dismissing the motion without costs.

A mining convention was opened at the Canadian Institute yesterday morning for the purpose of considering measures for the advancement of the mining industry and the advisability of establishing a Provincial Department of Mines. A resolution was passed in favor of a Department of Mines being established as being far preferable to a Bureau of Mines.

The residents of the West End are all excitement over a supposed case of catalepsy, coma or trance. On Sunday last the death was announced of Mrs. Owen, wife of Frank Owen, a moulder who resides at 9 Brookfield-street. Mrs. Owen had been ill for a number of months and latterly has been failing very fast. On Sunday she was very low and Dr. Woods of King-street west was called in. The woman, no doubt, died on that day and the doctor made no mistake in signing the burial certificate. Her appearance after death, however, was so natural and lifelike, the skin so pliable and the lips so red that several of the women and children in the house became possessed of the idea that Mrs. Owen was not dead, but simply in a trance, and the funeral has been postponed.

The Ontario Legislature was very dull yesterday, the time being principally occupied with a discussion on the Treasurer's budget and the reception of deputations from Toronto and Mimico.

STEAMSHIP DISASTER.

The Steamer City of Detroit Badly Wrecked Near Amherstburg.

DETROIT, March 31.—The steamer City of Detroit struck the "McDougall Rock," a mile above the lime kiln crossing, in the Detroit River, this morning. She had about 75 passengers on board, who were awakened by the crash, and almost immediately the electric light went out. A rush was made for the boats, but the captain succeeded in restoring order and the vessel was steered into the M.C.R. railroad slip at Amherstburg, where the passengers were landed. The vessel is still afloat, but there is a 40-foot rent in her bottom on the starboard side.

Printer Davis Acknowledged His Error and Will be Docked.

HAMILTON, March 31.—The trial of Thomas H. Davis for bigamy at the Police Court this morning was a record-breaker. It was over in three minutes, the prisoner being found guilty on his own confession. Davis is a man about 40 years old, medium size, with dark brown mutton-chop whiskers and sullen expression. He came here from Toronto, where he has lived off and on for a number of years. The wronged women were not in court. When asked to plead Davis replied guilty and was remanded for sentence until to-morrow.

Davis is sore at his second wife, whom he says instituted the proceedings because of insane jealousy. As the story goes his first matrimonial venture occurred at Barrie eight or nine years ago, when he was married by Rev. Mr. Thornton, a Methodist minister, to Annie Foster, daughter of William Foster, a farmer. They lived together at Barrie and Toronto until 1887, when Davis left his wife. He returned to Toronto in 1889 and was taken sick. Jane Sebastien nursed him during his illness, and to show his gratitude he married her on Sugar Imports to the U.S.

WASHINGTON, March 31.—The provision of the McKinley tariff law for the free entry of sugar takes effect to-morrow.

ALBERT COLLEGE.

(From The Christian Guardian.)

We are greatly pleased to know that Albert College is making remarkable progress in the grand and good work which it has been doing for some time. So long as the earnest and successful endeavors of our Methodist educators are thus put forth, so long as the zeal for Christian learning and education is encouraged and fostered by our Church, there need be no fear for the intellectual interests of the youth of Methodism. As regards the work of Albert College, we congratulate the Board and Principal Dyer on the excellent condition and prospects of that institution. Much of the financial difficulty which existed some time ago has been done away with, although there is yet a pressing need for funds to provide additional accommodation for students. This is a need which commends itself to the judgment and beneficence of our wealthier Methodist readers, and we hope it will meet with a generous response from some of them. No one can possibly doubt that a college which has increased the number of its students beyond the capacity of its buildings ought not to be hindered in its work for lack of room. This year there are enrolled over 200 students. There has been a steady growth in the college since Methodist Union. Six years ago the entire enrolment was 125. There are now over forty candidates for matriculation, counting both juniors and seniors. This is double the number prepared by any college in Canada. There are eighteen candidates for Conference preliminary examinations, and these have come from nearly all the Conferences. The classes for second and third-class teachers' certificates are larger than usual, and the attendance in all the departments has increased. Two years ago improvements in the buildings made room for forty additional students, but this winter a great many of them have had to take private rooms. We are sure that such a prosperous state of affairs as regards attendance and work should not be checked by cramped accommodation. We wish all prosperity and success to Albert College.

THE LITERARY DIGEST. New York, Funk & Wagnalls. Weekly: $3 per annum.

This is the beau ideal of a weekly paper for any person who desires to keep himself up to the time in the knowledge of what is going on in the press both of this continent and of Europe, giving articles from the leading journals in politics, sociology, education, literature, art, science, religion, and general news. The size and shape, 4to. 9 in. x 12, is convenient, and it contains 28 pages of reading matter and 4 pages of advertisements; while the price is very moderate, considering the quantity and quality of information it affords.

The Census.

On Monday next the Census enumerators will begin their work, but it is not expected that they will be able finish it before the 1st of May. The questions to be asked are 162, but as they relate to agricultural as well as urban matters, that formidable number of queries will not be propounded to the average householder. In 1663, while the country was in the possession of France, the first census was taken, and the population—presumably exclusive of the large Indian population—was then 2,500. In 1671 the population of Acadia was 441. In 1841 the first regular census was taken, showing Lower Canada 625,000, Upper Canada 455,688. In 1851 the figures were 800,261 for Lower Canada, 952,000 for Upper Canada, Nova Scotia 286,854, New Brunswick 193,800. In 1861 the figures were: Upper Canada, 1,111,566; Lower Canada, 1,396,091; Nova Scotia, 330,857; New Brunswick, 252,047; Prince Edward Island, 80,858; British Columbia, 3,054. In 1881 the figures were: Quebec, 1,359,027; Ontario, 1,923,228; Nova Scotia, 440,572; New Brunswick, 321,233; Prince Edward Island, 108,891; British Columbia, 48,459; Manitoba, 65,954, and Northwest Territories, 56,446. These were the official figures, with the exception of Manitoba, where the census was taken in 1886, showing a population of 108,640.

Conservatism at Deseronto.

The Young Men Organize an Association.

DESERONTO, March 31.—A meeting was called on Friday evening for the purpose of organizing the Deseronto Young Men's Liberal Conservative Association, to which about 100 young men responded. Dr. J. Newton was called upon to preside, and explained the aims and objects of such association, when all present signed the roll and proceeded to the election of officers, the result being as follows: Honorary presidents, W. P. Hudson, M.P.P., W. B. Northrup, and Dr. J. Newton; president, J. D. Monoghan; first vice-president, W. J. Malley; second vice president, W. T. Holdcroft; third vice-president, Neil Walker; recording and corresponding secretary, E. R. Chapman; financial secretary, T. K. Henderson; treasurer, David Brown; committee of mangement, F. Barker, H. Woodhall, W. J. Mellow, T. J. Naylor, J. Symmons.

After the election of officers short addresses were delivered by Dr. Newton, Messrs. Monoghan and Malley. The association have secured a large hall, and as they have exclusive control of it, meetings can be held at their pleasure. The earnestness manifested by all present is an assurance of the ultimate success of the association and of the benefit to be derived from such an organization.

The Bay Bridge.

For the Intelligencer.

On Tuesday forenoon, March 24th, I had the pleasure of nearly crossing the Bay Bridge. On my way down Bridge Street I saw Jas. Brown, Esq., who told me that I could cross over the bridge, as a team had come over. Being desirous of seeing the structure, I got a cabman to drive me over; found the lower bridge in town covered with people looking at the overflow of water and ice. We made our way through the ice to dry land towards Murney's hill, on to the road that leads from the west to Holton's steam mill, until we struck the road or approach to the Bay bridge.

The roadway to the bridge itself requires to be well gravelled in order to complete it, which no doubt will be done, as at present it is very rough.

Entering upon the bridge proper, I noticed as we passed from one span to another that it appeared perfectly solid and secure. I could perceive no trembling as far as we went with the team; found along the line men at work painting. After passing several spans we came to a halt. Mr. Lee came up and expressed his regret that he had not known I was coming, as the men had taken up the plank on the draw. He would have had them put it down, but I would not consent. The delay in putting down the plank, and my crossing and re crossing with the team and the taking up of the plank again would be equal to one day's work of one man, which would have to come out of the pockets of the contractors, and would not be fair, merely to gratify my desire to ride to the south side of the bridge.

I was not exactly in the position of an old lady near Cobourg who, standing on the lake shore, said, "Dear me; this is the first time I was ever out of sight of land." No, I could see across, and may before long have the pleasure of a drive the whole length of the noble structure.

This bridge will be a great benefit to Prince Edward and the city of Belleville, and is just what has been needed for over fifty years. The bridge is a credit to the company who raised the funds to build it; but more so to the Brown Manufacturing Company, who built it under the able management of Mr. Lee. In examining the work I felt glad that Belleville mechanics could turn out such a fine specimen of architecture, and that we were not called on to go abroad for outside contractors to build it.

In May, 1854, I took soundings for a bridge further down and tried to talk it up, but it was of no use. Had I succeeded, it would have been a wooden bridge and more out of the way of the strong current that sets in between Zwick's Island and the point on the other shore. However, we have now got the bridge, and with care it will long continue to unite Prince Edward and the City of the Bay in bonds of wedlock.

What next is to be done to benefit the city? Surely the enterprise of the people, having now begun, will not stop at the completion of the bridge and say that is enough. No, no! BILLA FLINT, Bridgewater, 30th March, 1891.

The Dominon Building and Loan Association,

As organized now in Belleville under its two charters, one for the Grand Trunk and the other for the city proper, has enrolled over 600 names or $60,000 subscribed. The monthly dues for April are due and payable to the Secretary on or before the 1st Monday, 5th April. Mr. Flint is Pres. of Belleville board, with Mr. J. L. Tickell Sec.-Treas., and Mr. Mikel, Solicitor. The G.T.R. is officered by Messrs. Marshall & Taylor, Pres. and Vice-Pres.; W. G. Happer, Sec.; J. L. Tickell, Treas.; and Mr. Porter, Solicitor. The appointment of valuators is always a matter for each board.

Purely Vegetable.

First the bud, then the blossom, then the perfect fruit. These are the several stages of some of the most important ingredients composing the painless and sure corn cure—Putnam's Painless Corn Extractor. The juices of plants greatly concentrated and purified, gums and balsams in harmonious union, all combined give the grand results. Putnam's Extractor makes no sore spot, does not lay a man up for a week, but goes on quietly doing its work until a perfect cure results. Beware of acid substitutes.

For Delicate, Sickly Children

Scott's Emulsion is unequalled. See what Dr. C. A. Black, of Amherst, N. S., says: "I have been acquainted with Scott's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil, with Hypophosphites, for years, and consider it one of the finest preparations now before the public. Its pleasant flavor makes it the great favorite for children, and I do highly recommend it for all wasting diseases of children and adults. Sold by Druggists, 50c, and $1.00.

Another Conservative Elected.

The election of Mr. Barnard, M.P., in British Columbia adds another to the list of Conservatives already returned. The Pacific province returns a solid delegation of six to support the Government, and does not tolerate "independents," however worthy they may be. Mr. Barnard is a useful member, and his re-election is satisfactory.

The Wesleyan Movement and the Church of England.

By the Very Rev. F. M. Farrar, D. D., Archdeacon of Westminster.

The hostility of the Church—of the majority, at least, of those who called themselves Churchmen—showed itself no less decidedly. The clergy tried to put down the Methodists because they "shamed them by their conquests and angered them by their rivalry." Bishop Gibson, of London, wrote charges and pastoral letters against the Methodists, in which he all but denounced it as a heresy to believe in the present work of the Holy Spirit. Waxing more and more angry as time went on, he tried to brand them as Dissenters, though they were doing their utmost to avoid dissent; and after complaining that they went to churches, he adds, "And not content with that, they have had the boldness to preach in the fields and other open places" (as if Christ and the Apostles had never done so!), "and by public advertisements to invite the rabble to be their hearers." There spoke the eighteenth century by the voice of the bishop! The "dearly beloved brethren" of the Church became "the rabble," if, in the intensity of their spiritual hunger, they sought for the only food on which their souls could live.

To seek and save the lost became a crime if it was attempted in an "irregular" way. The Vicar of Battersea, Thomas Church, in his pamphlet, plainly told the Methodists that they were not wanted in the Church of England, and that until they "deluded them," the people "had gone on in a quiet and regular practice of duty"—the duty, as Wesley remarks, of cursing and swearing, of gluttony and drunkenness, of whoredom and adultery. The point of Bishop Lavington's mean and shallow attack was the supposed resemblance between the "enthusiasm" of Methodist and Papist. Bishop Warburton also wielded his bludgeon against the "enthusiasm" which still dared to believe in the gifts of the Spirit. Other attacks were very numerous; but they were scarcely worth mentioning. "The Methodist," says Miss Wedgwood, "had to confront that hatred which is stirred by vigorous conviction, in the face of languid make-believe." The bishops and clergy in general "had put the religious impulse into a straight waistcoat, and imagined that the force thus doomed to inaction could retain sufficient power to be useful without being troublesome."

It was only step by step, and with deep reluctance, that Wesley was driven from his old traditional High Church feelings; for a long time he was horrified at the thought of founding any sect. He constantly exhorted his people to go to church. He said that "the glory of the Methodists" had been "not to be a separate body." He even said "when the Methodists leave the Church of England, God will leave them." Nevertheless, he was compelled—compelled by his duty and his conscience, and by all that he owed to God and to man—to take step after step which led logically and inevitably to the foundation of a separate religious body. Reluctantly, in 1739, he began to preach in the open air; reluctantly he ordained lay preachers; reluctantly he allowed his preachers to administer the sacraments in their places of meeting; reluctantly he ordained "superintendents" who were, practically, bishops for his American communities.

"If we must either dissent or be silent," said Wesley, "'actum est,' Church or no Church, we must attend to the work of saving souls."

"If separation was to ensue," said Dr. Rigg, "he would leave the blame of it entirely on the supineness, or on the contempt and intolerance of the Anglican clergy. His hand at least should not sever the tie. He knew, however, that . . . the very steps he had taken had shown the way to effect such a separation, and he never repented of those steps. . . . Had the Church of England known the day of her visitation, no separation need have ensued. It is undeniable that separation was the necessary result of of Wesley's work, because the Church of England failed to make any attempt whatever for the retention of Methodism, or its incorporation within its own system."

As early as 1740 the clergy closed the churches of Blight against Wesley, and repelled his converts from the Holy Communion, however conspicuous might be their piety. Then, and not till then, did they begin the breaking of bread among themselves.

Surely, then, the church of England should endeavor to learn from the Church of Rome that lesson of the willingness to recognize, to use and to assimilate the irregular, but often divine, sources of enthusiasm, which would have saved her from many a terrible loss. The rise of Methodism was not the first, nor will it be the last occasion, where a little of the meekness of wisdom and the light-heartedness of tolerance displayed in time may heal breaches which after a little neglect, tend to become irreparable. The late Bishop of Winchester, Bishop Samuel Wilberforce, who, all his life, had been a leader of the High Church party, once spoke at Exeter Hall, amid thunders of applause, of "the day in which the Church of England showed a semi-vitality, or rather an anti-vitality, when she expelled from her bosom that saint of God, John Wesley." The expression is not literally accurate, but it is sufficiently near the truth to remind us how necessary it is to learn the lessons of history, and not to repeat the errors of the past. The very year before his death Wesley wrote to a bishop:

"The Methodists in general are members of the Church of England * * Permit me then to ask, for what reasonable end would your lordship drive these people out of the church? Are they not as quiet, as inoffensive, nay, as pious, as any of their neighbors? * * * Do you ask, 'Who drives them out of the church?' Your lordship does, and that in the most cruel manner, yea, and in the most disengenuous manner. They desire a license to worship God after their own conscience. Your lordship refuses it, and then punishes them for not having a license! So your lordship leaves them only this alternative, 'Leave the Church or starve.'"

But God at last shows all things in their true light, and the world has long ago seen how much it owes to the preachers of Methodism.

"The noblest result of this religious revival," says Mr. J. R. Green, in his "History of England," "was the steady attempt, which has never ceased from that day to this, to remedy the guilt, the ignorance, the physicial suffering, the social degradation of the profligate and the poor."

"One community," says Telford, "bears Wesley's name; the Churches have caught his spirit.

THE MASSACRE IN ASSAM.

THE BRITISH COMMISSIONER A CAPTIVE.

The Revolt Threatens to Spread Unless Prompt Punishment is Meted Out to the Guilty Tribe—The Rajah of Manipur Among the Prisoners.

SIMLA, March 31.—Further particulars received from the scene of the Manipur massacre show the insurgent tribes have captured a number of prisoners, including the Rajah of Manipur, whose deposition by a powerful chieftain of Assam was the cause of all the present trouble.

The insurgents have also captured Chief Commissioner Quinton, F. H. G. Grimwood, the political agent at Manipur, and Col. Skene, who commanded the detachments from the 42nd and 43rd and 44th Goorkhas, which defended the camp of the commissioner, may have escaped. Mrs. Grimwood, the wife of the political agent, two assistant-commissioners and one of the officers of the Goorkhas escaped in the direction of Silchar when the insurgents made the final charge upon the camp. The fate of the remaining officers is still unknown. Four regiments have already started for Manipur with the object of effecting the release of the prisoners and punishing the rebellious tribes. These regiments include two native regiments which were in garrison at Assam. The Third Bengal Infantry, several mountain batteries of artillery and a force of cavalry are also being prepared to take the field in Assam immediately. The general opinion seems to be that the military authorities will have to punish the insurgent tribes severely and promptly in order to avert a more serious revolt.

The seat of the Government of Assam is at Shillang, which has a population of only 2000. The population of the province of Assam is estimated at 5,000,000. The hostile tribes are composed of well-armed, brave and cunning fighting men, who are liable to give the British forces considerable trouble before the revolt is entirely ended.

Manipur is in Assam, close to the borders of Burmah, and is the original home of the game of polo.

Four of the regiments of Goorkhas form part of the Bengal native troops in the British service, while the fifth is attached to the Punjab frontier force. The men are of small stature, and are noted for the dexterity with which they handle the short and broad cleaver-like blade which they carry, and with which they rush into the thickest of the fight hacking right and left.

BECOMING RESTLESS.

Unless Prompt Punishment is Meted Out the Revolt Will Spread.

CALCUTTA, March 31.—Fifteen fugitive Goorkhas who have reached Kohima report that Mr. and Mrs. Grimwood, Col. Skene and Mr. Simpson escaped into Cachar, where the natives are becoming restless. The party included 12 Europeans. It is surmised that Mr. Quinton was seized at Mr. Grimwood's house, which was four miles from the cantonment of the main Goorkha guard at Langthabat, and that 10,000 irregular Kuki levies in the service of the Manipur Government were ordered to attack and massacre the troops.

EARL GRANVILLE DEAD.

The Former Leader of the British Liberal Party No More.

LONDON, March 31.—Earl Granville died to-day.

Earl Granville's death was due to exhaustion following an operation for stone. Lord Rosebery succeeds to the leadership of the Liberals in the House of Lords.

The Right Honorable Granville George Leveson-Gower, K.G., the late Earl Granville, was the eldest son of the first earl. He was born May 11, 1815, educated at Eton and Christ Church, Oxford, where he took his degree in 1834. He became attache to the Embassy at Paris in 1835 and was elected to the House of Commons for the borough of Morpeth in 1836, being re-elected in 1837. In 1840 he accepted the Under-Secretaryship for Foreign Affairs, which he held for some months, and shortly afterwards took his seat as member for Lichfield. While in the House of Commons he supported the Liberal party and was an able and consistent advocate of free trade. In 1846 he succeeded to the peerage, in 1848 he was appointed vice-president of the Board of Trade, in 1851 he obtained a seat in the Cabinet and in December of that year succeeded Lord Palmerston in the Foreign Office. He retired with the Russell Ministry in 1852. Lord Granville, who has held the office of Master of the Buckhounds, Paymaster-General of the Forces, Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster and Treasurer of the Government, was appointed President of the Council in 1853, and in 1855 he took the ministerial leadership in the House of Lords. In 1850 Lord Granville acted as Vice-President of the Royal Commission for the Great Exhibition. In 1860 he was Chairman of the Commission for the Great Exhibition of that year. In 1856 he was sent upon an extraordinary mission to the Court of St. Petersburg at the coronation of Alexander II. Lord Granville, who retired with Lord Palmerston's first ministry in 1858, was reappointed President of the Council (having failed after an attempt to form a ministry himself) in Lord Palmerston's second administration in 1859 and retired on the fall of Lord Russell's second administration in 1866. In 1865 the deceased earl was made Lord Warden of the Cinque Ports, in 1868 Colonial Secretary under Mr. Gladstone and he retained that position until 1870, when he was appointed Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs in succession to Lord Clarendon. He occupied that position till the resignation of the Liberal Cabinet in 1874. Next year when Mr. Gladstone retired from the leadership of the Liberal party Earl Granville succeeded him, Lord Hartington acting as leader in the House of Commons. On Mr. Gladstone's return to power in 1880 Lord Granville again became Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs. In Mr. Gladstone's ministry in 1886 the deceased was Secretary of State for the Colonies.

He is succeeded in the title and estates by his son, Lord Leveson, who was born in 1872.

Hydrophobia Feared.

AILSA CRAIG, March 31.—A Newfoundland dog owned by a farmer named H. Bowman living near the town here went mad yesterday and bit two of Mr. Bowman's children. One was bitten in the arm and the other in the back of the head. The parents are anxiously awaiting developments. The dog also bit some three or four other dogs.

Fell Dead From a Bicycle.

ROCHESTER, March 31.—Henry D. Rogers, a local wheelman, fell dead from his bicycle in State-street yesterday. Heart trouble was the cause of death.

Bled to Death from the Nose.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., March 31.—About eight days ago a young man of Union City, Tenn., named Joseph Everett began bleeding from the nose and gums, causing the victim to gradually sink, and after enduring much suffering Everett died to-day.

HELP! HELP! THE LADY FAINTS.

"'Tis the twink of an eye,
'Tis the draught of a breath,
From the blossom of health,
To the paleness of death."

When sudden fainting spells come upon a lady, you may always suspect some uterine disturbances or trouble, or some great disorder in the circulation and nerve centers. A remedy that has always proved successful in warding off and removing the tendency to a recurrence of fainting spells—that removes the cause of them, corrects the circulation of blood, and gives to the system that even running nervous energy so essential, is Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It contains no alcohol to inebriate; no syrup or sugar to ferment in the stomach and derange digestion, is a legitimate medicine, not a beverage.

The "Prescription" is guaranteed to give satisfaction in every case, or money refunded. Nothing else does as much. You only pay for the good you get. Can you ask more?

As a regulator and promoter of functional action, at the critical period of change from girlhood to womanhood, "Favorite Prescription" is a perfectly safe remedial agent, and can produce only good results. It is equally efficacious and valuable in its effects when taken for those disorders and derangements incident to that later and most critical period, known as "The change of Life."

Brimful of confidence in it—the manufacturers of Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy. It's a faith that means business, too—it's backed up by money. This is what they offer: $500 reward for a case of Catarrh which they cannot cure. They mean it. They're willing to take the risk—they know their medicine. By its mild, soothing, cleansing and healing properties, it produces perfect and permanent cures of the worst cases of chronic Catarrh in the Head. It's doing it every day, where everything else has failed. No matter how bad your case, or of how long standing, you can be cured. You're sure of that—or of $500. You can't have both, but you'll have one or the other.

The Cheese Season.

The season is over and are there any dissatisfied ones? We venture to answer in the negative, unless it be those gentlemen of speculative tendencies who are dissatisfied because they made no deal. In fact, the past season has been a strong argument against speculating as illustrating the benefits of a steady regular market. At no time were prices forced up unnaturally, demand was not checked and the result was a steady movement, the supply being kept well in hand throughout, and we have had an 11c market at the time when we should have had one and not before. Of course the greedy ones will say that no big profits were made, but it is undoubted that no money was lost—taking the season as a whole—by traders who were contented with a regular legitimate business, and this ought to be satisfactory, and if there are any grumblers we think that they also will admit they have made something to lay by for a rainy day unless they plunged so deep on the earlier makes as to be entirely unable to recoup themselves. Briefly, the season has been entirely satisfactory; more cheese has been made, more exported, and yet we have had a very strong wind up while everything is in fine condition for the opening of the new season.

As the season is now over as far as the shipments of old cheese are concerned it is opportune to give the figures to date and they are appended. The total shipments to date are some 1,925,000 odd against 1,511,644 in 1889-90, 1,316,928 in 1888-89, a very satisfactory increase on the whole, while there is little or no old make left in Canada in contradistinction to last season when there was considerable.—Montreal Gazette.

TORONTO TRUTH'S New Spring Bible Competition

In these latter days there have arisen many false schemes and many scores of imitations of TRUTH'S Competitions, but one after another have failed and utterly perished, yet TRUTH remains, and makes good all its promises. Its reputation is now too well established to risk damaging it, and as it has cost a very large amount of money and many years of care and labor to build up, the publisher could not afford to fail in carrying out all his agreements to the letter. There are twenty-one divisions of the largest list of bona fide prizes ever offered and ever actually given away by any publisher in the world. The total value of prizes in this Spring list is about $10,000,00. The lists are so large it would cost altogether too much to give them in detail here. There are pianos, gold and silver watches, china tea and dinner sets, ladies' and gentlemen's bicycles, silver tea-sets, silk dresses, books, money, and hundreds of other valuable rewards. You pay nothing for these prizes, as everyone concedes that full value is received for the dollar in securing TRUTH every week for three months. Send one dollar and answers to the five following questions: Where in the Bible are these words found? 1, GRAIN; 2, CORN; 3, WHEAT; 4, BARLEY; 5, RYE. If your answers are correct and your letters arrive in time you are almost sure to get a reward, as there are so many and every one cannot always find correct answers to all these questions. All the five answers must be correct to get any prize. but you will get full value for the dollar in TRUTH if you don't get anything else. If you want to see the list of rewards before sending in your dollar, mail TRUTH ten cents and a copy will be sent you containing the list of prizes. But there have been very few dissatisfied prize-winners in previous competitions, considering that he has given away during the past eight years scores of thousands of prizes. Some people expect a piano for every dallar sent, and are mad if they don't get it. He wishes it were possible to give every subscriber a gold watch or a piano or both, but says it can't be done. Some publishers intimate they will, but nobody can do it for any length of time. Send one dollar and correct answers and you won't repent it; and bear in mind that it is not guaranteed that every body whose answers are correct will get a prize, but that all the prizes in the twenty-one different lists will be given away. The competition remains open only till the last day of June next, inclusive, after which the prizes will be immediately distributed to the successful ones. Ten days will be allowed for letters to reach TRUTH from distant points after the 30th of June. All, however, must be postmarked where mailed not later than the 30th June, or any time between now and that date. Address S. Frank Wilson, "Truth" Office, Toronto, Ont., Canada.

BEATRIX RANDOLPH

BY

JULIAN HAWTHORNE.

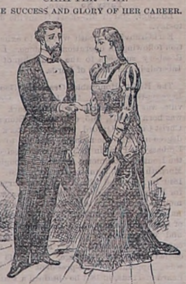
This incident would perhaps have affected her somewhat less poignantly if it had not occurred immediately after her interview with Bellingham, and while her thoughts were full of him. The revulsion was almost unendurable, and made her feel as if the pollution could never be removed. Her bosom heaved, and bitter tears ran down her face. A woman is helpless enough at best, but she more than the rest, because she was fighting under a false name and reputation. Nevertheless, she could not retreat now nor give up the battle. She knew that her father had incurred pecuniary obligations to Inigo which could only be repaid through her. Besides, should she let her career be destroyed at the outset because a creature like Plotowski had insulted her? Should she not rather persevere until she had won such position and such power as should enable her to protect herself against all the world? There was a proud, unconquered spirit in her, which asserted itself in her forlornness and distress more than it had ever done in her security and happiness.

And, after all, she was not without friends. At the worst she could apply to her father; and then there was Hamilton Jocelyn, who, although rather worldly and absurd, was really a good man, with her interests at heart, as was proved by his having obtained for her this splendid engagement, and there was Mr. Dinsmore, who seemed kindly and a gentleman; and Mr. Barclyffe, who had written all that praise of her in the newspaper; and there, too, was Geoffrey Bellingham; whatever his opinion of her might be, she did not believe that he would have stood by and allowed Herr Plotowski to insult her. No; things were not so hopeless, after all.

Mme. Bemax had been out to make a few purchases on Broadway. She now returned, carrying her little bundles by loops in the strings that tied them. She hoped mademoiselle had not been delayed or inconvenienced. Mademoiselle replied that she had not been delayed; but something prevented her from telling Mme. Bemax about the adventure with the director. She feared madame would say something about the benefits of a little social relaxation and about getting used to it; and she did not wish to feel an aversion toward the good lady, who was in many respects agreeable to her. So she held her peace and hid her secrets in her heart; but she could not forget them.

CHAPTER VIII.

THE SUCCESS AND GLORY OF HER CAREER.



"Thank you," she said, "and thank you for these flowers."

On the day appointed for the selling of tickets for the first performance the extent of the popular interest that had been aroused was indicated by the length of the "cue" of buyers, who made a line from the box office all the way round the block, and who began their session, or station rather, upward of twenty-four hours before the office opened. Accounts of their nocturnal experiences, their jokes, and their good humor appeared in the morning papers, together with plans of the interior arrangements of the opera house, the precautions against fire and panic, the unequaled splendor and perfection of the scenery, and the cost of the whole enterprise. The usual safeguards against the imposition of speculators were taken, and met with the usual success. By five in the afternoon the house was sold from ceiling to cellar, and the impresario, leaning in an insouciant attitude against the bar of the hotel, with his hat on one side and his face broader than it was long, treated his numerous friends to drinks and received their congratulations.

This was on a Saturday. On Monday the performance took place "before the most fashionable, cultivated and appreciative audience ever assembled on a similar occasion in the city of New York." So recent and eminent a triumph is not likely to have been forgotten by those who witnessed it. The opera selected was "Faust." It is perhaps the most satisfactory one for a first appearance, not only because of its musical merits, but because everybody is familiar with it, and can estimate the comparative success of the newcomer in "creating" afresh the immortal character of Marguerite. There had been a great number of rehearsals, and Mlle. Marana had grown somewhat weary of the repetitions, and latterly had begun to fear that when the great night came she would, if not unnerved by stage fright, at any rate be unable to go through the part otherwise than mechanically. All spontaneity of action and sentiment would be gone from her.

She staid in her apartment all day on Monday, refusing to see any one, and even dispensing the greater part of the time with the presence of Mme. Bemax. She wished to dismiss the whole subject of the opera from her mind, and to aid herself in doing so she fixed her thoughts upon her brother Ed, and recalled all his ways and escapades and the happy times they had spent together. She pictured him and herself running races, and climbing trees, and finding birds' nests, and tending their red and white roses, and going on hunting expeditions after woodchucks and squirrels, and she brought back to her memory the talks they used to have together, when they would lay out before themselves the course of their future lives—what they would do and what they would be. How different from their anticipation it had turned out! But he was her brother just the same, and she loved him none the less than she had ever done; on the contrary she loved him more, for he had given her an opportunity to show her love by repairing an injury which he had done.

It was pleasant to think that, when he returned home, expecting to meet only distress and reproaches, he would find instead prosperity as great, if not greater than before extravagance began, and all owing to his own sister! If he had done wrong, his sister thought, the discovery that she had worked to repair it would be more certain than anything else to make him henceforward do right. Then she began to speculate as to what sort of wrong he had done—whether it were anything more than thoughtlessness and extravagance. A few weeks ago she would have said that it could be nothing more; but she had been forced to see and hear certain things of late which made her hesitate. She had seen what some young men, possessed of money and freedom, were and did; why might not her brother Ed be like them? She put the thought away from her; she would not believe evil of her own brother. He was a Randolph and a gentleman. He might be selfish and reckless, but he would never do anything wicked or disgraceful. It was more to be feared that he would deem her to have disgraced herself in stealing another woman's name and reputation. It was all very well to plead that she had been persuaded into it half ignorantly, half against her will; the fact that she had done it remained. Well—it was too late to turn back now!

Our Young Ladies.

CHICAGO, Feb. 13th, 1891.

G. A. Swayze, Esq., Principal Belleville Business College, Belleville, Ont.:

MY DEAR SIR—Yours of the 10th inst. received. I am pleased to state that the young ladies who received their tuition in the above-named college, and who are now in my employ, have more than filled their positions and the duties expected of them.

While Miss Francis has not had the opportunity yet of fully demonstrating her capabilities, Miss Moorman has not only done her work to the full satisfaction of the managers, but has surprised those in the office by the manner in which she has taken up a difficult line of business and carefully and correctly performed the same, and to say that I am proud of the institution from which she came is expressing it mildly, although I have always believed that thoroughness was its fundamental principle.

You may rest assured that should I hear or know of any position open I will remember the Belleville Business College.

Seven years ago my cashier came to this office and received $5 a week; to-day she is receiving $125 a month. One of my three stenographers, who came here three years ago, started at $6 a week and is now receiving $15 a week, and this is the smallest wages paid to any female in the office (where there are eight) who have been in the office for over one year.

Yours very truly,

be ungrateful, if we failed to appreciate and neglected to acknowledge the many kind expressions of approval that have greeted us since we opened our new wall paper sales room.

We like to feel that we have honestly earned the good opinions of our customers and in order to merit it, we have aimed to make "shopping" in our particular line, a pleasure rather than an irksome duty.

With that end in view we have spared neither time, money, patience nor continuous hard work and study to accomplish the results which our patrons have so kindly noticed.

To show that we try to keep "in touch" with all that is going on in the large "shopping" centres; we would tell you that of the many trade journals, etc., relating to the different branches of our business, we take a goodly number, and we try to, and do keep posted.

The latest novelty produced has hardly more than materialized before we have it under our roof, for your inspection.

This is particularly true of our wall papers, and we tell you positively that the same papers we are showing to-day, can be seen on view in some of the leading New York decorative houses at this writing.

"1891" is the date upon our journals and illustrated catalogues, and we have papers upon our racks of which the illustrations in our journals and catalogues are fac simile reproductions in minature.

Now isn't this worth knowing?

The latest, greatest and most important invention of the century,

HERENDEEN'S ORIENTAL FLOUR !

This flour is prepared from the best Pure White Corn by a process patented February 7th 1880, and is beyond a doubt healthier than wheat or any other flour. We aim to feed the masses, not the classes, consequently instead of putting it up in 2 or 3 lb. packages and charging 15 or 20 cents for them and spending the big profit in advertising, we are selling it at about the price of ordinary flour. It can be used to great advantage in bread, pastry, etc., and is unsurpassed for pancakes or Johnny cake. Instructions and recipes in each package. This is also pre-eminently the food for anyone troubled with Dyspepsia or Indigestion. Your grocer has it now. Ask for it. Try it.

IRELAND AND ROME.

ARCHBISHOP WALSH VOICES THE VIEWS OF THE POPE.

The Archbishop Speaks Concerning Gladstone and Home Rule and Says Parnell is no Longer a Factor in Irish Politics.

ROME, April 1.—In an interview to-day the Most Rev. Dr. Walsh, Archbishop of Dublin, expressed the liveliest satisfaction that in a long audience with the Pope he found His Holiness perfectly acquainted with the position in Ireland.

"The Pope," he said, "has followed every change in the situation with sympathy. He has recognized that by legal means we will eventually obtain our rights. He has never thought of interfering with Irish affairs while questions were of a purely political character. Those who presumed that the Pope would take any action against Ireland were badly informed. There may exist parties desirous of drawing the Vatican into a line of policy against us, but His Holiness will not lend an ear to these interested voices. He fully approves the attitude of the Irish Episcopate during the present internal crisis and desires union and common tactics on the part of the bishops."

Archbishop Walsh continued, Mr. Gladstone's election is almost sure. He will have at least a majority of 50, and the success of Home Rule cannot be longer delayed. After the coming general election Mr. Parnell will be interred. He has been led astray by some adherents making believe that the whole people marched behind him. He will soon realize the opposite. When defeated at the elections he will understand his error and will seek to repair the wrong which the present rupture has done to the cause of Home Rule.

Recurring to the actual situation Archbishop Walsh said: "There is no conflict between the bishops and priests and the people. Mr. Parnell no longer represents a national force. He has followers here and there, possibly everywhere there are some. This only shows that he still retains some power to weaken the National ranks, and doubtless will have until the end, but the country is against him. We bishops simply gave expression to the sentiments of Catholic Ireland, and had the courage to speak out when courage was needed. Mr. Parnell seemed to be on the point of carrying everything by storm and violence. The country was overawed. Gradually the country, as a whole, emboldened by the strong moral support of the bishops and clergy, has taken courage to speak for itself. The imposture which came so near imposing itself upon Ireland now rapidly melts away. Numbers of over-zealous Parnellites stand by him. Some, possibly, continue to believe themselves standing by the country. The elections will soon open their eyes to their deplorable error. Kilkenny's lead will be followed all over Ireland. The bishops have not dictated; they have only given courage to the country to free itself from the intolerable dictatorship of Parnell."

HIS WIFE WAS A SPY.

And Herr Schladeck, the Socialist, Put Her to Death.

CONSTANCE, Baden, April 1.—The police made an organized descent upon the lodgings in this city of Herr Schladeck and other prominent Socialists, several of whom were arrested and important information was obtained. The wife of Herr Schladeck was mysteriously murdered a short time ago, and the police have since been following up the crime. Evidence came into their hands last night, confirming their suspicions, that the poor woman was the victim of a conspiracy. She had betrayed the secrets of the Socialists, and was murdered by them in consequence. The police have discovered the criminals, and they are among those arrested. Proofs were also obtained of the existence of an Anarchist conspiracy having its ramifications throughout Germany. The prisoners will be brought to Leipzic for trial.

NORTH SLIGO ELECTION.

The Vote to Take Place To-day—McCarthyites Express Confidence.

SLIGO, April 1.—There is a feeling of relief here to-night over the approaching termination of the struggle between the Parnellites and the anti-Parnellites. The campaign strife ended to-night with several meetings, all of which, with the exception of a McCarthyite meeting in the Town Hall, were spoiled by bad weather. Everybody is heartily tired of the struggle. A large section of the Conservatives intend to vote for Dillon the Parnellite. The McCarthyites, however, are still confident that their candidate will have a majority of 1000. The counting of votes will take place Friday.

The Tichborne Case.

LIVERPOOL, April 1.—The death of Vincent Gosforth, aged 74, recalls the excitement that attended the Tichborne trial 18 years ago. Mr. Gosforth was the agent for the estates, and his testimony, which was most important, occupied over three weeks in the taking. He was at one time the holder of the celebrated sealed packet that played a leading part in the case, it having been intrusted to him by the real Sir Roger prior to his departure from England.

The Baccarat House Burned.

LONDON, April 1.—The residence of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Wilson, known as Tranby Croft, near Doncaster, where the famous baccarat scandal took place, and in which Sir William Gordon Cumming was involved while playing in company with the Prince of Wales, has been partially destroyed by fire.

Parnell To Speak In Phœnix Park.

DUBLIN, April 1.—Parnell is advertised to speak in Phœnix Park in this city on Sunday next, when he will probably have something to say about the result at Sligo. He will also protest against "continued holdings" and the inhuman treatment of political prisoners, and demand their release.

Prof. Tyndall Dying.

LONDON, April 1.—Prof. Tyndall, who several weeks ago was reported as suffering from an inflammation of veins, has had a serious relapse and his condition to-night is worse than it has been at any time.

The Pope's Millions.

LONDON, April 1.—Pope Leo has withdrawn sixty millions of francs from English banks to reinvest at a higher rate of interest.

Further Arrests in Sofia.

SOFIA, April 1.—There have been made further arrests in connection with the murder of Baltcheff, the Minister of Finance. These arrests include the majority of the Russophile leaders in Bulgaria.

Dangerous Counterfeits.

Counterfeits are always dangerous, more so that they always closely IMITATE THE ORIGINAL IN APPEARANCE AND NAME. The remarkable success achieved by Nasal Balm as a positive cure for Catarrh and Cold in the Head has induced unprincipled parties to imitate it. The public are cautioned not to be deceived by nostrums imitating Nasal Balm in name and appearance, bearing such names as Nasal Cream, Nasal Balsam, etc. Ask for Nasal Balm and do not take any imitation dealers may urge upon you. Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam.

Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam gives prompt relief in coughs, colds, hoarseness, whooping cough, croup, asthma or bronchitis. It is the most pleasant and perfect throat and lung healer in the world for children or adults. Price 25c.

Bickle's Anti Consumptive Syrup is a combination of several medical herbs which exert a most wonderful influence in curing pulmonary consumption and all other diseases of the lungs, chest and throat. It promotes a free and easy expectoration, and gives ease even to the greatest sufferer. Coughs, colds, shortness of breath, and affections of the chest, attended with weakness of the digestive organs, or with general debility, seem to vanish under its use. No other remedy acts so readily in allaying inflammation or breaking up a severe cold, even the most obstinate cough is overcome by its penetrating and healing properties. When children are affected with colds, coughs, inflammation of the lungs, croup, quinsey, and sore throat, this Syrup is of vast importance. The number of deaths among children from these diseases is truly alarming. It is so palatable that a child will not refuse it, and is put at such a price that will not exclude the poor from its benefits.

White broche is in demand for negligee robes.

Mr. J. R. Allen, Upholsterer, Toronto, sends us the following: "For six or seven years my wife suffered from Dyspepsia, Costiveness, Inward Piles and Kidney Complaint. We tried two physicians and any number of medicines without getting any relief, until we got a bottle of Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery. This was the first relief she got, and before one bottle was used the benefit she derived from it was beyond our expectation."

Satins closely resemble India silks in design.

Jacob H. Bloomer, of Virgille, N. Y., writes:—"Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil cured a badly swelled neck and sore throat on my son in forty-eight hours; one application also removed the pain from a very sore toe; my wife's foot was also much inflamed—so much so that she could not walk about the house; she applied the Oil, and in twenty four hours was entirely cured."

A coronet set with turquoises is a new shape for a bonnet pin.

Mr. Thomas Ballard, Syracuse, N.Y., writes: "I have been afflicted for nearly a year with that most-to-be-dreaded disease Dyspepsia, and at times worn out with pain and want of sleep, and after trying almost everything recommended, I tried one box of Parmelee's Vegetable Pills. I am now nearly well, and believe they will cure me. I would not be without them for any money

ADVICE TO MOTHERS

MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP has been used by millions of mothers for children teething for over fifty years with perfect success. It relieves the little sufferer at once, produces natural, quiet sleep by freeing the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste, soothes the child, softens the gums, allays pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. Twenty five cents a bottle

Mysteries to Girls.

"Girls are queer creatures," remarked one of them. "They're not a bit like men. For instance, you can know a man for years and yet see and be quite sure that there are depths in his nature which you have never fathomed, nor even so much as approached. But you know a girl after you have seen her half a dozen times, and, what is more, you know her thoroughly. You have heard all her stories, you have memorized every one of her phrases and tricks of expression, and you can divine the course she would pursue under any kind of circumstances. If I may use a simile, a girl is like an oil well which flows abundantly for a week and gives promise of keeping it up, but peters out completely at the end of that time and runs quite dry. Or, to vary it a little, a girl is like 'Old Faithful,' that geyser in Yellowstone Park, which spouts every fifty-eight minutes regularly. After you have seen it once you know exactly when the next eruption will take place, you know to an inch how high and how large the column of water will be, and you are perfectly certain that it will never be different in the smallest degree from what it was when you saw it. But men are like those other geysers that sometimes spout a feeble stream and at others rear a tremendous bulk, so that you never know what to expect and always have a feeling that the next eruption will be mighty beyond all previous ones. To be plain, you can never flatter yourself that you really know a man. And then there is always the shadow of his unknown past."

Teeth an Index of Character.

A leading dentist says: "To determine a person's character by the teeth, take the upper front teeth. They are a true index of the nature of a man or woman. Here," he said, "is the tooth of a young lady who has a lovely disposition and is universally beloved; see how regular and dainty the formation is, and yet possessing all the requisite points for a perfect tooth. Here you see the tooth of a man who is cruel, although his cruelty is of the refined kind; notice that the tooth is white and rather sharp and long. Then, this tooth, stumpy and coarse in form, denotes brutality, it is from the jaw of a man of brutal nature. Here is a curious tooth from the mouth of a peevish, fretful woman; the crown has a sharp, fretful turn to it. Now we have the tooth of a sensuous woman; you see it is square, although of good shape, and depressed in the centre; its wearer has caused a great deal of distress in the hearts of neglected wives. Now we come to one that belonged once to the mouth of a lady who is noted for her refinement and intellectual development. It is slender and perfect in shape—one of the kind of teeth going with long, slender fingers. Again, this tooth is from the mouth of a much grosser nature; this woman is selfish, but has, on the whole, a kindly nature and would not willingly hurt another's feelings, but it is her nature to be regardless of others."—New York Ledger.

That Third Party.

The constant presence of a third party at the fireside and table, says Mrs. P. T. Barnum, is especially disastrous in the earlier days of wedlock. The presence of one who is not "of ourselves" may often restrain what is worst in us; but, alas! it always restrains what is best.

There must always be in the most perfect unions and the best ordered lives some little friction which will once in a while find expression. The gentle protest with which, if alone with your husband, you will disarm his fractiousness, dies in your throat because of the third person. The loving caress with which you would close his lips and make him ashamed of himself is as impossible to you as if you were paralyzed. If misunderstood, pride will not let you explain, and you retort indignantly; or, at best, keep silent with an aching heart, and in time you grow to hate that third person who may be an angel of light, but who is none the less eating holes in your marriage garment.

It may not be possible, without neglecting a sacred duty, to have your house entirely to yourself, but I charge you, as you value your mutual love and happiness, be inflexible to your resolution to keep some waiting hours out of every twenty-four when the fireside shall be sacred to you and your husband; when you can tell each other your thoughts, your hopes and your fears, with no stranger intermeddling with your joy.

Individuality of Newspapers.

It is surprising what peculiar views some people take of newspapers. The other day a gentleman living in this city remarked that newspapers were about all alike in his estimation—at least he could discern no difference between them. If the statement were true, the individuality of newspaper men would be deserving of pity, if not contempt. There is really as much difference among newspapers as among men, for newspapers—aside from the local events they record—reflect the individuality, the intelligence, the principles of the men who speak through them to the public. If a newspaper shows no individuality, then it is an editorial nonentity. Who dare have the hardihood to deny that there is as distinct an individuality emanating from such newspapers as the Pall Mall Gazette, London Times, New York Tribune or Detroit Free Press, as was ever revealed in the life and labors of individuals? If a newspaper is not different from its contemporaries, then it is lacking the all-essential elements of power and originality. That these elements are not observable in all papers, must be sorrowfully admitted. There are too many newspaper parrots and pirates in the world; but such never get to the front. They may make money; but they will never make their mark in society. The intelligent reader is not long in discerning the world-wide difference between a newspaper that is original and one that is not—Manistique News.

Boy—"Yessir."

"It's long after 9, and here you are playing."

"That's all right. We had a rather late breakfast, and mamma was 'fraid I'd be late, so she wrote me an excuse, and I've got it in my pocket."

Explaining the Item.

Client—"You have an item in your bill: 'Advice, Jan. 8, $5.' That was a day before I retained you."

Lawyer—"I know it. But don't you remember the 8th I told you you'd better let me take the case for you?"

Client—"Yes."

Lawyer—"Well that's advice."

Good Day for Whales.

A Brazilian bark which arrived in New York the other day reports seeing eighty-four whales in one day. Some of the monsters were two or three miles away, but others came so close to the vessel that the fishy odor made the sailors sick. At this season of the year we see no reason to doubt the story.

Inconsiderate.

Jack—So you proposed and she asked you to wait?

George—Yes.

Jack—Well, what are you moping about? She's beautiful, good tempered and rich—certainly worth waiting for, is she not?

George—Yes, but how am I going to wait? I'm dead broke.

King of Medicines

A Cure "Almost Miraculous."

"When I was 14 years of age I had a severe attack of rheumatism, and after I recovered had to go on crutches. A year later, scrofula, in the form of white swellings, appeared on various parts of my body, and for 11 years I was an invalid, being confined to my bed 6 years. In that time ten or eleven sores appeared and broke, causing me great pain and suffering. I feared I never should get well.

"Early in 1886 I went to Chicago to visit a sister, but was confined to my bed most of the time I was there. In July I read a book, 'A Day with a Circus,' in which were statements of cures by Hood's Sarsaparilla. I was so impressed with the success of this medicine that I decided to try it. To my great gratification the sores soon decreased, and I began to feel better and in a short time I was up and out of doors. I continued to take Hood's Sarsaparilla for about a year, when, having used six bottles, I had become so fully released from the disease that I went to work for the Flint & Walling Mfg. Co., and since then on account of sickness. I believe the disease is expelled from my system, I always feel well, am in good spirits and have a good appetite. I am now 27 years of age and can walk as well as any one, except that one limb is a little shorter than the other, owing to the loss of bone, and the sores formerly on my right leg. To my friends my recovery seems almost miraculous, and I think Hood's Sarsaparilla is the king of medicines." WILLIAM A. LEHR, 9 N. Railroad St., Kendallville, Ind.

HAVE NOT LOST A SINGLE DAY

BELLEVILLE, THURSDAY APRIL 2

A BRIGHTENING PROSPECT.

The completion of the Bay bridge; the placing of Belleville upon the route of the Richelieu Company's "Mail Line" of steamers; and the erection of a first-class modern hotel building in town, cannot fail to lift the clouds of adversity which have lowered for some years upon our fair city, and to prove largely instrumental in restoring to the City of the Bay the reputation, which it long enjoyed, of being one of the most prosperous places in Canada.

The misfortunes of Belleville have been many and great. Chief amongst them was the inevitable decay of the lumber trade and its concentration in the hands of large concerns whose mills were located elsewhere. Following this was the closing of the great Burrell axe factory through inexperienced management and a combination of most unfavorable circumstances. And finally came the ruin of the stove foundry through the dishonesty of its manager. By the loss of these industries alone—and they were by no means the only ones here which went to the wall owing to causes beyond control—not less than five hundred men in Belleville and in mills just beyond the city's limits, were deprived of employment and forced to remove to other places. And yet Belleville has held her own fairly well, and has even progressed in some respects, in spite of her great misfortunes. A look at her business houses will show that pace has been kept with the times, and the statistics of her trade exhibit a steady advancement. In 1868, for example, when Belleville might almost be called a "boom" town, our imports amounted to $150,182 and our exports to $532,129, or a total trade of $682,311, whilst in 1890 the imports were $324,549 and the exports $1,016,094, the total being $1,340,643. The foreign trade of the city has thus virtually doubled during the twenty-two years in spite of all drawbacks. Local progress is shown in these figures from the local records:

Population	7,061	10,128

An increase of about 55 per cent. in assessed value and of over 43 per cent in population. From the foregoing figures these important facts are gathered, namely, that Belleville's foreign trade per head of the population has increased from $96 in 1868 to $132 in 1891 - this, too, in face of the great reduction in our lumber exports—and the assessed valuation per head shows an increase from $366 to $391 during the period named. This is not, we take it, a very discouraging rate of increase, all things being taken into consideration.

That this record will be greatly improved upon during the next twenty years there is not the slightest reason to doubt. The residents of the city have, during the past three years, shown a spirit of liberality and enterprise which forbids any other supposition less cheering. The Bay of Quinte Bridge, is the first fruit of the reawakening of public spirit in Belleville, will draw to the city a much larger share of the trade of Prince Edward than it ever before enjoyed, and the result will be a quickening of the business activities of the place, with a decided impetus to its every interest and of benefit to its inhabitants. From the great stream of travel that annually flows along the line of the "Mail" steamers' route, which will soon be brought through the Bay and to our wharves, much may be diverted to our city with the aid of a first-class hotel, whilst Massassaga Park and others of the beauteous resorts in the neighborhood, which draw their supplies hence, will also claim their share of it. The bridge, by affording communication with Prince Edward at all hours, and opening up pleasant drives to Massassaga Park and elsewhere, will also be an important factor in shaping the determination of wealthy tourists to pass at least a portion of their holidays in this charming locality.

In his latest contribution to these columns, the venerable Senator Flint, who was long one of the most public-spirited citizens of Belleville, after congratulating all concerned on the erection of the Bay Bridge, remarks:

What next is to be done to benefit the city? Surely the enterprise of the people, having now begun, will not stop at the completion of the bridge and say that is enough. No, no!

We appreciate the spirit of the hon. gentleman's remarks, and venture to assure him that our people are making earnest efforts to help themselves. Negotiations with the proprietors of several important manufacturing industries have for a considerable length of time been in progress. These negotiations have been delayed pending the fate of the Government and their policy in the late election; but now that the policy of protection has been sustained, a conclusion in the premises is likely to be reached at an early day—a conclusion satisfactory to Belleville, and making strongly for her future prosperity, we have reason to hope.

There is one project that would conduce greatly to the prosperity of Belleville, but which has not of late received the attention that it deserves, namely the Belleville and Nipissing Railway. Belleville is well served and has been, on the whole, well treated by the Grand Trunk. Our city is a divisional headquarters and is, as well, the eastern outlet of the great and growing Midland system, whilst the North Hastings branch, passing through Huntingdon and Madoc to a connection with the Central Ontario, gives us communication with the northern townships. But more is needed. We require a line up the valley of the Moira, which, giving speedy communication with Tweed and the other villages along the river, will give connection with the C.P.R., and K. & N. W. R., restore to Belleville much of the traffic diverted by those lines to other places, and give an alternative route to manufacturers, importers and exporters. The Dominion Government have granted $3,200 per mile for the 30 miles of this road to Bridgewater, and no doubt further aid will be given to any extension of the line northward that would be deemed necessary in the public interest. We hope, at no distant day, to see this important enterprise taken up and pushed to a successful conclusion.

Taking these encouraging circumstances into account, the reader will see that it is no delusion to say that the prospects of Belleville are now brighter than they have been for several years past.

"Look me in the face! My name is 'Might-have-been!'
I am also called 'No more,' 'Too-late,' 'Farewell!'"

The poet who wrote the above, must have been in the last stages of consumption. Perhaps he had only learned, for the first time, that if he had taken Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery in his earlier illness, he would never have reached his present hopeless condition! What can be more sad than a keen realization of what "might have been"?

Physicians now admit that consumption is simply scrofula in the blood attacking the lung-tissues. It is never safe to allow the blood to remain impure, and it is especially reckless, when such a pleasant, harmless remedy as Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery will drive every taint of scrofula or impurity from the system, causing a current of healthy rejuvenating blood to leap through the veins.

"That tired feeling" is entirely overcome by Hood's Sarsaparilla, which gives a feeling of buoyancy and strength to the whole system.

"Settlers' Effects."

(From the Empire.)

The other day the Winnipeg Commercial reported the passage through Winnipeg of a number of Canadian farmers and their families who had settled in South Dakota eight years ago, but have now got light, and are on their way with six carloads of stock to Yorkton, Assiniboia. This is a phase of the emigration question not much discussed by the Grit organists. These worthies have much to say of the "exodus," the wholesale "depopulation" of the country under "Tory misrule," but they omit to notice any evidence going to show that the agricultural prospects and conditions are so superior to those of the United States that the farmers in the latter country are actually pulling up stakes and coming here. The movement would be larger if we could get delivered all the emigration literature sent from Canada through the United States mails to the persons addressed, or if we could send the Grit organs for a long trip round the world. That there is a movement of population north is undoubted. The chances are that it will increase rapidly, for the United States farmer knows more now about the condition of his Canadian brethren than ever before, and wants to show it. The statistics officially issued by the United States authorities themselves, supply unquestioned evidence of this emigration. In the last report of the Washington Bureau of Statistics, there is a table of exports from the United States, which is founded upon our trade returns, they being thus accepted as authentic and trustworthy by the Washington authorities. This table contains an item of settlers' effects, showing that during the year ending June 30th, 1890, the value of settlers' effects exported to Canada is given at $1,469,268. The figures for the provinces are as follows:

Ontario	$ 622,166
Quebec	535,560
Manitoba	85,040
British Columbia	81,137
New Brunswick	58,459
Nova Scotia	48,455
N. W. Territories	32,032
P. E. Island	6,419
	$1,469,268

That represents a good many settlers, and it indicates that the alleged exodus is not all on the one side. It is true that another table in the returns compiled from United States statistics reports settlers' effects to a slightly greater amount as being imported into the States from Canada in the same period, but as it includes the property of American citizens dying here the figures are vague. Besides our tariff regulations on the subject of what may be entered as "settlers' effects" are much more precise and rigid than those of the republic, so that their figures are not so exactly accurate as ours.

The Population of Belleville.

MASSACRE OF MANIPUR.

CONFIRMATION OF THE NEWS WITH DETAILS OF THE FIGHT.

British Soldiers Slaughtered—Instant Action on the Part of the Governor-General to Punish the Tribesmen—Some Facts Concerning Manipur.

SIMLA, April 1.—A force of 600 Goorkhas and Cowley's missing detachment have arrived at Lakhipur on the direct route from Silchor to Manipur. It is believed all the members of Chief Commissioner Quinton's staff are safe with the exception of Mr. Brackenburg.

The Viceroy, the Marquis of Lansdowne, is hurrying troops into Assam to punish the hostiles. Reinforcements are also being sent into the states located in proximity to Assam, in order to prevent any possible disorder or warlike outbreak which it is thought might follow the spreading of the news of the massacre of the British troops at Manipur.

Only Themselves to Blame.

LONDON, April 1.—The Star, referring to the slaughter of the Goorkha troops in Assam, says the British Commissioners have only themselves to blame for this deplorable catastrophe. They should not have meddled with the question of the deposition of the Rajah of Manipur, which was the result of a quarrel between tribal chiefs.

Lord Lansdowne, Viceroy of India, has cabled to the Government that the Indian forces are abundantly able to deal with the rebellion at Manipur without the aid of additional troops.

During the progress of the mutiny, despite the utmost desperation of the fighting, husbands invariably kept a loaded pistol in reserve to save their wives from dishonor at the hands of their fiendish assailants.

The disaster is recognized by military authorities here as the result of a blunder. Two mistakes of vital consequence characterized the expedition. The fact that the ammunition ran out after a couple of days' fighting only shows that proper provision had not been made for possible exigencies.

The second blunder was the advance of such a small force without support.

CALCUTTA, April 1.—It is officially announced that Mrs. Grimwood, wife of F. S. Grimwood, the British political agent at Manipur, the scene of the recent massacre of the British troops, in company with Lieutenants Gurdon, Boileau, Woods, Butcher, Lugard and Calvert, has arrived safely at Manipur. Crowley's detachment, a number of other British officers who were treacherously captured by the rebels, are held as prisoners at Manipur.

Concerning Manipur.

The slaughter of the Chief Commissioner of Assam and the officers and men of his Goorkha escort in Manipur is almost certain to result in a further addition to the map of British India, bringing the British Empire is closer contact with the Chinese frontier.

Manipur, although adjacent to Assam, in no part of that province; it is an independent state, ruled by a Rajah, who pays no tribute to the British and who exercises absolute power within his borders, except the privilege of making war. The state is as independent as the great native kingdoms of Hyderabad, Gwalior and Indore. It is situated in the corner between the two tea producing districts of Assam and Cachar. The greater part is tableland—no richer soil in the world, as the tea-planters know well.

There is no doubt that this disturbance will give the Viceroy of India the opportunity to annex Manipur, repeating the proceedings of Lord Dalhousie in Oude and Lord Dufferin in Burmah.

The tribe who attacked the commissioner's camp were probably Nagas, who gave so much trouble on that frontier some years ago. It is altogether improbable that the Manipuris themselves were hostile. They live on the plains of the table land, have always been friends of the planters, grow their own cotton and indigo, and breed the finest ponies in the world. Manipur is the birthplace of polo, and their players have always beaten the crack Calcutta teams whenever they have met.

The Highlanders of India.

The 470 Goorkhas probably died hard. The Goorkha is the Highlander of India. His home is in the mountains of Nepaul, and his trade and only joy are fighting. Years ago the English troops had a hard fight with Nepaul, and the worth of the foe was recognized, and Goorkha regiments were raised as soon as the province had submitted. At no time has there been any lack of recruits, the men being only too glad to enlist; and quite lately five new regiments were raised.

The headquarters of the regiments are at Almorai, Northern Bengal, and not long ago there was a curious meeting between the 42nd Highlanders (the Black Watch) and the blacker watch of the Himalayan passes. No fellows got on better together. The men are short, averaging 5 feet 2 inches, thick set, of a deep brown complexion, but with merry faces that, however, show deep determination when the matter in consideration is a fight. Their uniform is of blue serge with red piping for the coat and trousers and a small round cap with a red band and the number of the regiment. They are armed with short rifles and carry the "kookerie," a curved sword peculiar to the tribe, which is always kept as sharp as a razor and with which at close quarters they do terrible work. The Goorkha regiments have always done good service. The 2nd Regiment, that was with General Sir Frederick Roberts' force that held the Sherpur lines outside Cabul in 1879, saved the day in the principal fight that took place in the winter months. The white troops were seized with an unaccountable panic when attempting to drive back the enemy, which had become more aggressive than was pleasant. The Goorkhas stood firm and charged the enemy, checking the advance, and with the aid of the men who had retreated, but advanced again owing to the good example of the 2nd Regiment, soon sent Pathan, Gazi and Dervish scuttling across the snow-covered plain. The Goorkhas had taken no prisoner, but every man's kookerie had received its baptism of blood. No kookerie is thought much of until it has been whetted with the blood of an enemy. Later accounts will probably show that the Goorkhas sold their lives dearly. At Manipur they were fighting against the highlanders of Assam and were certainly greatly outnumbered.

Denying the Soft Impeachments.

WINNIPEG, April 1.—There was an exciting scene in the Legislature to-day during which Attorney-General Martin and Premier Greenway denied they had, as testified in libel suit, called each other "man without conscience or heart" and "colossal liar."

A Conflict Promised.

SANTIAGO DE CHILI, April 1.—The elections just held have resulted in a complete triumph for the Liberals. It is reported the situation in which the insurgents at Iquique find themselves is most desperate. Famine prevails and the supply of coal is exhausted. The Chilian Government flotilla is almost ready to proceed against the rebels' ships. A desperate conflict is inevitable.

Called Back.

HAMILTON, April 1.—Hamilton Young, better known as "Tony" Young, arrived here to-day from New York in charge of an officer. He was formerly connected with the Hamilton Cotton Company and eight years ago he skipped out, leaving a deficit of $30,000, including a number of forged drafts on the cotton company.

INCENSED ITALIANS.

Further Concerning the Recall of Baron Fava.

ROME, April 1.—The general tenor of the note presented to Secretary Blaine by Baron Fava in reply to the secretary's explanatory communication to the Italian Government indicates a firm insistence by the Government upon its original attitude. In it Mr. Blaine is assured that what Italy asked, and still asks, is that the Federal Government guarantee that regular legal proceedings shall be enforced against the culprits who are responsible for the New Orleans outrage. Italy also asks that the United States shall in principle admit its obligation to pay a money indemnity to the families of the victims of the court house mob.

In Italian political circles the vigorous action taken by the Government is generally and fully endorsed without respect to party division. The press reflects the prevailing political and popular feeling and is strong in its denunciation of the Washington Government for its half-hearted efforts to maintain the national authority and exact reparation for crimes committed against Italians on the soil of one of its states.

Perhaps in no better way is the anger of a certain class of Italians illustrated than in the fact that a number of influential persons are now demanding that the Premier shall at once break with the Washington Government, ignore its jurisdiction in the present difficulty and proceed at once directly to call the state of Louisiana to account.

Under Secretary of Foreign Affairs, D'Arco had a conference with United States Minister Porter, who suggested that the Italian Government should wait until to-morrow before taking further action, in the hope that a satisfactory answer might be received from Washington.

During the interview Signor D'Arco said: "Suppose a dozen American citizens were murdered in an Italian city and we pleaded impotence to punish the murderers because the city enjoyed an autonomous form of government; what opinion would you in the United States and what opinion would the civilized world at large have in regard to our plea?"

Mr. Porter thereupon tried to make clear to Signor d'Arco the relations of the Federal Government to the individual states as fixed by the constitution, but Signor d'Arco was not satisfied and replied with some heat:

"We have nothing to do with your constitution. If it is found wanting you must mend it. You know that it is no constitution worthy of a free civilized country if it does not insure punishment for crime and protection for the weak."

Influential Italians advise the Italian Government to send a circular note to the friendly powers denouncing the United States as being confessedly unable to insure justice in the United States and as impotent to fulfil the duties of a civil government.

The pressure brought to bear upon Premier di Rudini and which compelled him to act vigorously was fomented by friends of ex-Premier Crispi. Especially was this pressure brought to bear by Sicilians who dreaded or sympathized with the Mafia Society. Their attitude has been stiffened by the fact that leading opponents of Crispi and his cabinet openly declared that the lynching of the Italians at New Orleans was just, even if illegal. One of these opponents of Crispi is charged with the authorship of a strong editorial in The Fanfuller, which argues that the Italian Government would do well to suppress crime in Italy before meddling with the punishment of murderers in New Orleans.

The Feeling in Washington.

WASHINGTON, April 1.—The impression is deepening in diplomatic circles that there is a decidedly personal aspect to the withdrawal of Baron Fava. Last year Dr. Carroll, U. S. Consul at Palermo, made a report to the Secretary of State upon the subject of brigandage in Italy. He described a number of cases of outrageous treatment of foreign citizens, Americans included, by the Italian banditti and scored the Italian Government deeply for its failure to suppress these criminals and defend foreigners in Italy. This report was published in this country in much diluted form and aroused Baron Fava's indignation. He notified his government of the report and announced a determination to secure the consul's recall, which was effected.

The correspondence between Baron Fava and Secretary Blaine was made public to night. The Italian Minister's communication says the demand for satisfaction for the patent violation of the stipulation of the treaty in force between the two countries having been ignored he had decided to leave Washington.

Secretary Blaine's reply, dated to-day, expresses the regret of the United States Government at the intelligence of Fava's departure from the capital, and says the President believes he has been recalled under a misapprehension of the facts. Mr. Blaine adds that he had repeatedly given to Baron Fava the assurance that under the direction of the President all the facts and incidents connected with the tragedy would be thoroughly investigated.

King Humbert Scared.

BERLIN, April 1.—It is reported here that mysterious warnings sent by the Mafia Society have been conveyed to King Humbert of Italy. In these warnings the Mafia Society is said to have demanded protection from King Humbert and the Italian Government for Italians resident in foreign countries. It is further believed that the recall of Baron Fava was largely owing to fears of the Italian Ministers aroused by the Mafia threats.

A Cowboy Joke.

FORT SCOTT, Kan., April 1.—The following telegram was sent to Secretary Blaine to-day by cowboys:

"A hundred thousand Kansas cowboys would like to spend the summer in Rome. Can you furnish transportation?"

Mafia Prisoners Released.

NEW ORLEANS, La., April 1.—Salvadore Sanzeri, John Caruso, Charles Pietzo, Charles Paterno and Peter Natali, the remaining prisoners confined in the parish prison for complicity in the Hennessey assassination, were released on bail to-day. The release leaves the parish prison free of all but one of those Italians who had been arrested for the crime.

Becoming Scared.

NEW YORK, April 1.—About 300 Italians rushed to the Naturalization Bureau to-day to get their second papers. They appear to be afraid they will be drafted into the service of the Italian Government and are sure war is imminent.

Kicked by a Horse.

BLENHEIM, April 1.—To-day as Arthur Driver of Harwich was getting out his horse he was severely kicked in the face, badly fracturing the upper jaw and cutting the face considerably.

Tupper at Washington.

WASHINGTON, April 1.—Sir Charles Tupper arrived here to-day. He is on his way to England and stops here to informally discuss with the British Minister on the Behring Sea dispute, the Atlantic fisheries trouble and trade relations between the United States and Canada.

A Quarter Million for Missions.

MONTREAL, April 1.—E. E. Shelton, who recently died, has left the bulk of his fortune, amounting to $250,000, to the mission fund of the Church of England.

Immigrants Pouring In.

WINNIPEG, April 1.—According to immigration agents, number of immigrants this year to date 2367, with 240 cars of stock and effects, against 1993 immigrants and 251 cars for same period last year.

The Colborne Express says: "During the past week our local dealers have shipped seventeen cars of potatoes to Cleveland and Philadelphia, paying good prices to our farmers—just the same as if there was no McKinley Bill."

PRINCE EDWARD.

The Grim Reaper—Easter Visitors—General Topics.

PICTON, March 31st.

Mr. David Spafford died on Thursday, March 26th, at his home in North Marysburgh. The funeral service, conducted at his late residence by the Rev. Mr. Mallett on Sunday afternoon, was largely attended by neighbors and acquaintances. The remains were interred in the burial ground of the Methodist chapel here. The deceased was in his eighty fifth year.

Rachael French, wife of Mr. Almonte Reynolds, of Hallowell, died on Saturday, March 28. Although she had recently had several severe sicknesses her death was sudden and unexpected. She leaves a husband, one son and five daughters, all of whom are married excepting the youngest daughter, who was attending college at Whitby and did not reach home until after her mother's death.

Among those who spent Easter in the town and county were: Mr. John Spafford of Chatham: Mr. Clarence Branscombe and Mr. B. Pruyn, of Kingston; Mr. L. A. Osterhout, of Gananoque; Mr. and Mrs. Sid Gearing, Brighton; Mr. and Mrs. Stevenson, Cornwall; and Mr. and Mrs. Hughes, Newmarket.

The snow has disappeared and the ice in the harbor is breaking up.

There is a large staff of workmen preparing the Alexandria for the opening of navigation.

Mr. H. M. Bunbury was married on Wednesday last to Miss Edna S. Stortte, of Demorestville.

The April Magazines.

A feature of Harper's is an article on the "Behring Sea Controversy," by Hon. E. J. Phelps, late Minister to England. General Lewal, the ex-Minister of War for France, writes for the same number of the Magazine an extremely picturesque and entertaining account of the development of "The French Army," which is made still more attractive by a series of illustrations drawn by Thulstrup. The other contents are varied and interesting, as usual.

One of the most famous pictures of the world has been engraved by Mr. Cole for the frontispiece of the April Century, the Mona Lisa of Leonardo da Vinci. This is in the Century's series of old masters, engraved immediately from the originals in galleries in Europe. Two other examples of Leonardo accompany Mr. Stillman's article on this master. The number is, in all respects, up to the usual high standard.

Building Operations.

Front Street is being materially beautified by the rebuilding and alterations which are being made to a number of business places. The Filliter block, recently destroyed by fire, is being rapidly converted into business places, and when completed will be an ornament to the city.

The store formerly occupied by the late Thos. Lockerty, tobacconist, is also being much improved by the placing in of plate-glass window and other alterations. The property is owned by Dr. Eakins.

Mr. S. A. Hyman is also having his fur store remodelled, and when completed it will be one of the finest in Central Ontario.

Other places are also having slight improvements made, which when completed will be particularised.

Workmen are busily engaged in preparing the ground for the erection of Dr. Gibson's office and residence, corner of Campbell and Pinnacle Sts.

The Life Boat Crew.

Whether it was the contrast between the warm cheer inside with the bleak weather outside, the inspiring references to "Old Ireland" by the singer, Mr. McDonald, the stirring recitals by Mr. Mills, or the eloquent picturing by Mrs. McDonald, of the ruins which dot the earth with their sad reminders, the large audience which was entertained and instructed in the City Hall last night seemed to be in happiest touch with the evangelists. The magnificent recitation, "In a Workhouse on Christmas Day," painted all too vividly the selfish tyranny which is often found associated professional charity, "dressed in a little brief authority." To-night comes "Mistakes," "Conjugal Love," "Patent Brown Stout."

Closes April 15th.

The 1, 2, 3, 4, 5. The grand prize competition of the Canadian Fireside Weekly, in which 300 valuable prizes are offered, will close on April 15th. In addition, from now until that date a Special Daily prize will be given for the first correct list received each day. The competition is simply a combination of numbers, and requires no searching in dictionaries or books of any kind. Among the prizes are Bicycles, Tricycles, Watches, $100 cash, Furniture, Silverware, Jewelry, Summer tours—prizes for men, women, boys and girls, 300 in all. Send at once 5 cents for sample copy with full particulars, to 9 Adelaide St. West, Toronto, Ont. Mention this paper.

Election of Officers.

At a meeting last evening of Canton Belleville No. 8 Patriarch Militants I.O.O.F. the following were elected as office bearers for the ensuing term: Capt. F. M. Clarke; Lieut., J. H. Mills; Ensign, W. A. Pringle; Clerk, L. Benmore; Accountant, J. E. Walmsley; Standard Bearer, J. Cornelius; Guard, R. H. Ketcheson; Sentinel, Wm. Brown; Picket, Geo. Atkins.

The Canton has received from the Syracuse Canton an invitation to join with them in a summer outing. This will be considered by the members. The Canton is in a flourishing condition, four members being taken in last night.

Purely Vegetable.

First the bud, then the blossom, then the perfect fruit. These are the several stages of some of the most important ingredients composing the painless and sure corn cure—Putnam's Painless Corn Extractor. The juices of plants greatly concentrated and purified, gums and balsams in harmonious union, all combined give the grand results. Putnam's Extractor makes no sore spot, does not lay a man up for a week, but goes on quietly doing its work until a perfect cure results. Beware of acid substitutes.

Fine Views.

Mr. Robt. McCormick, photographer, has on exhibition at his studio a number of excellent views of the district which was flooded, showing in a clear manner the ice as it was piled up in the various streets and about the houses. In addition to this, he has a well executed photograph of the bay bridge, which was taken at the approach on Ameliasburg shore. It shows the entire length of the structure to great advantage, reflecting very much credit upon Mr. McCormick. These views can be obtained from him at a low price.

Civic Retrenchment.

To the Editor of the Intelligencer.

MR. EDITOR,—The attempted action of a special committee of the City Council to retrench the expenditure of our City government, by cutting down the salaries of some of the city officials, is not, in my opinion, the true plan of proceeding to effect a saving. Leave the officials alone. They are a body of old and tried servants, many of whom have grown grey in the service of the city and discharge their onerous duties efficiently.

The official departments of the city run smoothly, are satisfactory, and we have no deficits as in former years. The true way of retrenchment, it appears to me, is to watch closely the expenditure in the department of public works, water, gas, fire, &c. The paltry saving of $800, contemplated by cutting down these salaries, (which are now barely enough to live upon) could be doubled in each of these branches of the public service if properly looked after, and this will be done, as careful men are at the head of these departments.

If the Council carry out the recommendation of the special committee, verily of a truth it may be said "that corporations have no souls."

Length of valuable services in private life is attended with increase of salary, and not a lessening thereof, and why should gentlemen, because in the Council, deviate from the rule they observe in their own private business? Besides, it will have a bad effect on our attempts to get industries here and boom our city, to have it go abroad that we are so niggardly in our own dealings as to dock old servants of their wages.

Yours truly,
OBSERVER.

To the Editor of the Intelligencer.

Bay of Quinte Bridge and South Belleville.

SIR,—A glance into the future of this young city in some 30 or 40 years hence, may not be uninteresting at the present moment. The name given above seems appropriate, but any other can be adopted. The advantages of this splendid new bridge will be in favor of Belleville proper for the next fifteen years or so; but from that forward, South Belleville will successfully compete with this city in many ways.

As a locality of healthful summer resort, it will be pre eminently ahead of Belleville in five years from this. The land lots over there, which will be quickly picked up, are now at farm prices, even along the water front. The same in some few years, when a number of elegant summer residences, a fine hotel, a block of good stores, four or five, as general groceries, dry goods, boots and shoes, etc., some dozen or more neat cottages for mechanics and their families—all these will form the first outfit for this young and remarkable city of the future. Even now town lots will have taken a jump of fully fifty per cent.

Intelligent, far seeing and enterprising parties will secure their 100, 200 and 300 acre lots around the suburbs and from farmers close by, with good orchards. Such land will, when split up into family building lots, bring at least one hundred per cent more than the present price. Some wise head will see the opportunity and necessity for starting extensive public baths—a want which has been grievously neglected in this city. These will be constructed on the best modern system and in a manner to afford accommodation to all classes of the community. These baths would be a fortune if taken in hand by a competent party. This will be a great inducement to many Belleville families to pass their summers over at South Belleville and to secure the benefits of this healthful luxury. It will also cause many summer cottages to be built. This young future city will need now to have its well devised streets mapped off. A committee with legal instruction and power to act, will purchase vacant lots of land at different points for future city parks, and 200 or 300 acres for a grand park with its picnicing groves, race course, zoological and botanical gardens, exhibition building, etc. Only a few years are past and already it eclipses Belleville as a charming exchange, supplying all the advantages of pure air and hearty enjoyments to the fullest extent. It will be like a seaside scene during all the summer season. The view from the bridge, when the boat and yacht racing season opens, will be indescribably exciting. Americans will now commence to realize the beauties and health-giving surroundings of South Belleville. Many hundreds of them (when its numerous attractions and accommodations are sent broadcast on the wings of the press) will make South Belleville the northern Venice of this continent, one of their objective stopping points when making their round of summer excursions through Canada. Now a grand hotel is called for to provide for the rush of strangers to this enchanting city of the north, for, like Niagara Falls, it has lit on their brains and must also be visited. The merchants and bankers of Belleville will save many doctor bills by having their country houses for the summer with their families over there, so that now it is almost a city and ten times more healthful and pleasant than Belleville ever can be. At a little expense a couple of gondolas with their Venetian sailors might be imported; these skimming and besporting their fairy-decked forms on the bay will be something that even Americans never thought of. The unlimited wealth of the mines north and west of Belleville, with good railroad connections, will soon attract Americans to this district and over to the beatiful city above noted. T. Ritchie, Esq., and Committee built the bridge. Their bridge will yet build a city.

In Spite of William McKinley!

(London Free Press.)

"It just cost me fifty-five cents for eggs for my family this morning," said a motherly matron who presides in the vice chair at the lower end of a table arranged to accommodate a family of eight, to another housekeeper, as they came out of the vestibule of St. Peter's Cathedral at noon yesterday.

"Yes, aren't they dear!" replied Matron No. 2. "I never remember having to pay so much for eggs at Easter before. Twenty cents a dozen—and you couldn't get real fresh ones a cent cheaper. Why, it's outrageous!"

How unceremoniously this little scrap of a conversation deals a deathly blow to Mr. Lighthead, who succeeded in convincing the farmers of Westminster that with a Government at Washington hostile to the Government at Ottawa, they were bound to suffer. "We have only commenced to experience the effect of the McKinley Bill," he used to tell them on the hustings before the 5th of March, "but wait for a week or two longer—wait until Easter, and you will see the price of eggs drop to eight or ten cents a dozen, where you have been accustomed to get twelve or eighteen. Housewives, you who have to depend for your pin money on the product of the nest, will you allow your husbands to vote for a Government which is responsible for this?"

These mellifluous sentences appear very nice in theory, but alas they will not hold in practice. The price which the aforesaid housewives have received for their eggs this season should make Major McKinley turn green with envy, and give an effectual quietus to the specious arguments of Grit stumpers. The fact is, the McKinley tariff will not seriously affect the price of Canadian eggs in the home market, although it will increase their price four or five cents in New York and Boston. Canada is not dependent upon the States for her egg market, and the Canadian farmer cannot be compelled to kill off the feathered inhabitants of his coops at the dictation of a Yankee Senator. No American tariff wall can disable the Canadian hen or prevent her carrying on her business at the old stand as usual.

"It is hard to account for the present high price of eggs," said a dealer on Saturday. "There is no scarcity, although the supply does not exceed the demand to any large extent, as far as I know. I anticipated a drop to fifteen cents or thereabouts; but you see my calculations have not materialized. Arrangements are being completed for the shipment of our surpluss eggs to the Old Country, and you may depend that the price will not fall much below the present one as long as the market remains open to us. The supply has never been equal to the demand in England, and now that it has been demonstrated that our eggs can be marketed in good condition there will be a good demand for them. Why, London alone consumes 1,000,000 dozen a week. Most of these eggs come from Austria, and find a ready market at from 18 to 20 cents a dozen. We can ship them as cheaply as Austria and could easily realize the same price for them. With an all but limitless market for eggs at a net price of 12 to 15 cents per dozen, our farmers have nothing to fear from the operation of the American tariff."

Hints to Dairymen.

It costs just as much to support the carcass of a cow that is running you in debt as it does one that is giving you $50 a year profit. Not one farmer in a hundred ever tested his cows to know which were the ones that were beating him "out of house and home." How is he to act if he don't know, and how is he to know if he does not put forth intelligent effort to know. There is scarcely a dairyman in the land who is not keeping two cows to do the work of one. Ask any of the progressive dairymen you know, and they will tell you about their first step in cutting down useless expense was to get a better cow. Buy her, breed her, get her anyway you choose, but be sure and get her.

Stop the expense of bad handling. You must handle a dairy cow not as if she were a steer, but as a bovine mother. You want to make money out of her motherhood; then handle her, shelter her, feed her and treat her generally as a mother should be handled, sheltered and treated. If you don't know how a mother should be treated ask your wife or your mother.

Build a silo, so that your milk feed shall cost you less. Build it sufficiently large so you can have ensilage enough to feed in Summer and Fall when the pasturage dries up. That will keep your cows up to their best flow, so you can have milk to do business with in late Fall and Winter, when prices of butter are higher. That's good economy.

Stop this expensive Summer dairying—keeping cows on expensive pasture and getting nothing for the milk just because there are thousands of other men just like you who had rather milk a cow in Summer and make nothing, than to get into Winter dairying and make a fair profit. Give up all these cranky old notions about dairying, and proceed to measure the business from the dollar standpoint, just as any other manufacturer does.

Study to increase the fertility and decrease the acreage of your farm. Make one acre furnish as much food for cows as two acres did formerly. Sell or give away the other acres, and thus save the expense of farming it. Remember everything costs.

You must have an albuminoid food, such as bran, oats, linseed meal, cotton seed meal &c. Study how to avoid buying this food, and see if you cannot raise it in the shape of clover nicely cured, and particularly peas. No finer food on earth for a butter cow than a certain portion of pea meal eachday. Look into this pea culture, and see if you cannot learn how to grow peas successfully. There are many other fine points that we have not time nor space in which to enumerate.

In short, make fine, close study of your business, and all its finer economies. Don't think it is a cheap business, requiring but little brains or intelligence. You are dealing with the mysteries of animal life at every turn, and that is one of the biggest problems on earth.—Hoard's Dairyman.

ONTARIO LEGISLATURE.

TWO SESSIONS OF THE HOUSE HELD YESTERDAY.

The Debate on the Treasurer's Statement Continued—An Act to Amend the Insurance Act—General Notes of the Session.

TORONTO, April 2.—The Ontario Legislature held two sessions yesterday afternoon and evening.

Mr. Ross introduced a bill to incorporate the Chartered Stenographers' Association of Ontario. The bill is similar to the acts incorporating the Chartered Accountants and Chartered Architects. Anyone assuming the title C.S.O. without warrant is subject to a penalty of $25 for the first offence and $100 for subsequent offences.

Among other bills introduced was one by Mr. Gibson (Hamilton) to amend the Insurance Act in accordance with the petition of the Underwriters' Association. It provides that companies shall not be liable for loss by fire owing to the use of steam engines within 100 feet of a barn or stack, and also provides for the appointment of Provincial coroners for the investigation of cases of fires of unknown origin.

The debate on the treasurer's statement was resumed. Mr. Ross vigorously repudiated the statement that the public schools are not as good as they used to be.

The report of the Commissioner of Crown Lands was presented to the House. It shows that the total collections of the department were $1,113,052 and the total disbursements $290,953. The area of clergy lands sold during the year was 780 acres, aggregating in value $1229.76. The amount collected on account of these and former sales was $6037.88.

LONDON, April 1.—In a speech at Grimsby to-day Secretary-for-War Stanhope announced that the Government had determined that every new vessel built in England which was big enough for the purpose and the owner of which was willing to accept the Government's conditions should be fitted to receive armament on the shortest notice.

BLOWN TO ATOMS.

Desperate Naval Battle Between Government Troops and Insurgents.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 1.—Advices from Valparaiso state that the ironclad Blanco, belonging to the insurgents, attempted to blow up the armed government tug Florence with a fish torpedo, but the torpedo missed the tug and struck the big floating dry dock, blowing it to pieces. The Florence and a torpedo boat attacked the Blanco, when a heavy shell from the latter struck the Florence, blowing her entirely out of the water and killing or wounding every one of her crew of 17 men, while a broadside from the Blanco's consort, the O'Higgins, knocked the torpedo boat all to pieces. Fire was opened from the forts and a shell went through the O'Higgins, and the gun on the quarter deck exploded, the deck being literally torn out of the vessel and nine men out of the gun's crew of 12 were blown to atoms.

Enthusiastic Celebration of Bismarck's 76th Birthday.

FRIEDRICHSRUHE, April 1.—Prince Bismarck, who is 76 years old to-day, has been receiving deputations all day, with addresses and floral offerings from all parts of Germany. Early this morning the reveille was sounded under the window of the prince's apartments by the Ratzeburg Jaegers. Every train brought large numbers of strangers. Among the visitors were the Duke of Ujost and other persons of title, several Hamburg guilds and a number of Munich artists. Prince Bismarck received many telegrams and gifts from admirers abroad. During the day the prince appeared in public three times and on each occasion was received with fervent cheers and hand-shakings. To-night a torchlight procession was held in which 3000 persons took part.

Bismarck met the torchlight procession at the Castle gate. Herr Woermann in a speech said they had come not as representatives of a political party, but as citizens to give the Prince proof of their gratitude for his services to the Fatherland. Bismarck, who was deeply moved, said he felt as if he was receiving a good school certificate, that when he was a minister he had not always received such recognition, and that he would leave the memory of the demonstration to his children as a precious inheritance. The Prince received 3000 congratulatory despatches.

An Irish M.P. Roughly Treated by a Mob of Women.

DUBLIN, April 1.—Col. John P. Nolan, member of Parliament for North Galway, was set upon by a crowd of women at Sligo to-day and very roughly handled. The women surrounded him, hooted at him, pelted him with stones, mud, etc., tore his clothing and finally crowned him with an old iron pot.

Mining Convention.

TORONTO, April 2.—At the session of the mining convention yesterday, resolutions were passed pronouncing against all provincial taxation in the shape of royalties and ground rents; that the selling of mining lands for arrears of taxes be discontinued; that development work should be required before land is patented; that the explorer should have the right to stake out the ground of his discovery whether in surveyed or unsurveyed territory according to any regulations relating thereto; that the railways should be asked to lower their present excessive rates for carrying ore; and that a free market in the U.S. and Canada for mining products would be to the advantage of both parties and greatly tend to the development of the mineral resources of Ontario.

Strangled to Death By a Clothes Line.

MONCTON, N.B., April 1.—A lad named Long, 13 years old, got his neck entangled in a clothes line in his father's yard at Butternut Ridge and was found sitting on the ground strangled.

Reward for the Murderer.

LONDON, April 1.—The Bulgarian Government has offered a reward of £1000 for the capture of the murderer of M. Baltcheff, the Minister of Finance. The Government has also pensioned the widow of M. Baltcheff.

A Quakeress Dies From Exposure.

ST. THOMAS, April 1.—Mrs. Sarah Highson, aged 80 years, for 50 years a resident of Elgin county, strayed from her home at Sparta Monday night. A search party of 70 villagers found her dead body in a field last midnight. She was a prominent Quakeress.

Foreign Brevities.

Influenza is again raging in Berlin. Many deaths are reported.

Fraulein Herrmann, the unmarried daughter of one of the leading merchants of Berlin, was arrested to-day on a charge of having got rid of her newly-born child by burning it.

Gen. Reitzenstein, commandant of the rifle school at Augsburg, Bavaria, was stricken with apoplexy while directing target practice and died in a few minutes. He was the idol of the Bavarian army.

Franz Lickingen, a count of the Austrian Empire, who has been awaiting trial at Vienna for conducting a bogus matrimonial bureau, has forfeited his sureties and left the country for America.

Prof. Koch has returned to Berlin, bringing with him the finished manuscript of his forthcoming work on tuberculosis. He expects to shortly commence operations in the Government Koch Hospital.

THE COKE MINERS STRIKE.

The Situation Very Grave—An Outbreak Expected at Any Time—What a Day May Bring Forth.

PITTSBURG, April 1.—The situation in the coke regions continues grave. No lawlessness has occurred for 43 hours, but the operators still look for an outbreak at any time. It is claimed that word has been passed around for a general movement at 2 o'clock to-morrow morning. The striking leaders say it is not true that the time for inauguration of the eight-hour movement has been changed from May 1 to April 1. The situation is desperate in the coke regions, and leaders recognizing this have determined to put their money in the coke strike and make the eight-hour movement elsewhere an after consideration. No general strike of miners, they say, will be ordered until after the inter-State conference of mine owners and workers here next Tuesday.

SIX MONTHS FOR BIGAMY.

Jane Sebastien Sticks to Bigamist Davis to the End.

HAMILTON, April 1.—Thomas H. Davis, the Toronto printer, who yesterday pleaded guilty to having two wives, was this morning sentenced to six months in the Central Prison. Before the court opened there was an affecting scene between Davis and Jane Sebastien, wife No. 2. The woman threw her arms around him and wept. Although he deceived her she still loves him.

Stilled Her Voice Forever.

HARRISBURG, Pa., April 1.—Two men entered the house of Michael Strominger at Lewisberry, York county, last night, and compelled the aged farmer to hand over $2000, with which he intended paying a debt on his farm to-day. They bound and gagged Mrs. Strominger, the aged wife of the farmer, and when the cloth was removed from her face it was discovered she had been suffocated.

Sir John's Cousin Dead.

FORT SMITH, Ark., April 1.—John Maitland Macdonald, cousin of Sir John Macdonald, the Canadian Premier, and one of the most remarkable characters in the country, died yesterday. He was a geologist, mineralogist and mining expert and speculator. He squandered three or four fortunes in England, Australia and this country. He inherited the title of Lord Maitland from his mother, Lady Maitland, which he never assumed.

A Trio of Fires.

PORT DALHOUSIE, April 1.—Fire early this morning totally destroyed a two-story frame building owned by J. J. Denton, merchant tailor, and occupied by himself and in the second story by Seymour Lodge No. 277, A.F. and A.M., and also an adjoining two-story frame building owned and occupied by Oscar Sharp as a residence and small grocery.

SIMCOE, April 1.—Early this morning the residence of James Thompson was entirely destroyed by fire, together with all the contents. Loss $400; insured in Norwich Mutual for $200. Cause, defective chimney.

THREE RIVERS, April 1.—The large machine shops and foundry owned by Remillard & Company were burned last night. There is an insurance of $2000 on the building.

Ferrule Embedded in the Brain.

RUTLAND, Vt., April 1.—Thomas Dowling who before his death gave his name as Thomas Williams of Fairnhaven, Vt., who was assaulted by three men in Albany a few nights ago, died last night of his injuries. An autopsy revealed a brass ferrule imbedded in the brain for about five inches. One of his assailants, who has been arrested, has admitted that he had an umbrella at the time of the altercation and at his house the umbrella was found with the ferrule missing.

Death in a Whisky Draught.

PHILADELPHIA, April 1.—After swallowing the contents of six goose eggs on a wager and then to quench his thirst, for bravado drinking the full of the eggshells of whisky at the rooms of the Dauphin Literary Association yesterday, Bernard McKee, aged 25 years, sank into a slumber from which he never woke.

Used in the Hospital,

And endorsed by the medical faculty throughout the states, Clark's Catarrh Cure has come to be regarded as the only real specific for that disease. In every case it works a certain, safe, and speedy cure. Pleasant to taste and smell, it is yet powerful in healing and restoring the natural functions. No other remedy gives such satisfaction, because the results from use are not the same. Sold by all druggists, or sent to any address on receipt of 50 cents by Clark Chemical Co., Toronto New York.

TORONTO TRUTH'S

New Spring Bible Competition

NO. 22.

In these latter days there have arisen many false schemes and many scores of imitations of TRUTH'S Competitions, but one after another have failed and utterly perished, yet TRUTH remains, and makes good all its promises. Its reputation is now too well established to risk damaging it, and as it has cost a very large amount of money and many years of care and labor to build up, the publisher could not afford to fail in carrying out all his agreements to the letter. There are twenty-one divisions of the largest list of bona fide prizes ever offered and ever actually given away by any publisher in the world. The total value of prizes in this Spring list is about $10,000.00. The lists are so large it would cost altogether too much to give them in detail here. There are pianos, gold and silver watches, china tea and dinner sets, ladies' and gentlemen's bicycles, silver tea-sets, silk dresses, books, money, and hundreds of other valuable rewards. You pay nothing for these prizes, as everyone concedes that full value is received for the dollar in securing TRUTH every week for three months. Send one dollar and answers to the five following questions: Where in the Bible are these words found? 1, GRAIN; 2, CORN; 3, WHEAT; 4, BARLEY; 5, RYE. If your answers are correct and your letters arrive in time you are almost sure to get a reward, as there are so many and every one cannot always find correct answers to all these questions. All the five answers must be correct to get any prize, but you will get full value for the dollar in TRUTH if you don't get anything else. If you want to see the list of rewards before sending in your dollar, mail TRUTH ten cents and a copy will be sent you containing the list of prizes. But there have been very few dissatisfied prize-winners in previous competitions, considering that he has given away during the past eight years scores of thousands of prizes. Some people expect a piano for every dollar sent, and are mad if they don't get it. He wishes it were possible to give every subscriber a gold watch or a piano or both, but says it can't be done. Some publishers intimate they will, but nobody can do it for any length of time. Send one dollar and correct answers and you won't repent it; and bear in mind that it is not guaranteed that every body whose answers are correct will get a prize, but that all the prizes in the twenty-one different lists will be given away. The competition remains open only till the last day of June next, inclusive, after which the prizes will be immediately distributed to the successful ones. Ten days will be allowed for letters to reach TRUTH from distant points after the 30th of June. All, however, must be postmarked where mailed not later than the 30th June, or any time between now and that date. Address S. Frank Wilson, "Truth" Office, Toronto, Ont., Canada.

BEATRIX RANDOLPH

BY

JULIAN HAWTHORNE.

COPYRIGHT BY AMERICAN PRESS ASSOCIATION.

The long hours passed on, and as the evening approached she found herself thinking not of El, but of another person, who had come into her mind, not by her own invitation, but involuntarily; or possibly he had been in the background all the while, and advanced as the other receded. She had had no conversation with Bellingham since that day at the theatre, but they had met several times and exchanged a few words, and there had been something in his manner that had strengthened and reassured her, she knew not why—something that seemed to show that intuition was acquiring more weight with him than reason. And yet he had not seemed happy nor at ease; but his uneasiness was of a kind that soothed and inspirited her. It was like the trouble of a cloudy dawn, out of which the sun at last rises clear. He was not treacherous nor intangible, like so many men; his qualities were large and firmly based; he could not play monkey tricks, and talk one thing while he thought another. The process of his feelings was honest and open; he was reserved and reticent precisely because he could not be insincere.

The prima donna longed with all her soul to be as frank and undisguised as he. She felt that could she be so all would be well between them; but that until then all would not be well. And she said to herself, how perverse a mishap it was that this disguise of hers should have become necessary just when they met; had she met him at any other time of her life he would have known her as she really was, and his intuition and his reason would have been at one. But then, again, her pride arose, and she vowed that if he did not care enough about knowing her to discern her real self beneath the false disguise he should never know her at all. But did what she called her real self exist any longer? Had not the disguise destroyed it? And, if so, could she expect him to discover what was no longer there? She pressed her hands over her eyes and breathed heavily.

The time of waiting was now over, however. Mme. Bemax was knocking at the door, and coming in with mademoiselle's cloak and bonnet in her hand, and saying that the carriage was ready and that they must drive to the theatre at once in order that mademoiselle might have time to put on Marguerite's dress before the curtain rose. The prima donna stood up, and, the realization of what lay before her came sweeping over her mind like a storm. She was slightly tremulous and felt cold and feeble. Mme. Bemax made her drink a glass of wine, and conducted her down to the carriage. She seemed hardly to know where she was, she could speak only with an effort; a benumbing preoccupation had got possession of her. At the carriage door a gentleman was waiting, clad in evening dress, with a light overcoat. Her heart beat for an instant, then became oppressed and tremulous again; it was only Jocelyn. He helped her into the carriage, and got in after her and Mme. Bemax. He began to say various things in a caressing, encouraging voice; she exclaimed sharply, "Don't speak to me! I must think my thoughts!"

The rattle of the wheels on the pavement agitated her; she could not keep her hands or her lips still. Sometimes she fancied they had been driving for hours; sometimes that they had scarcely started. When at length they arrived at the theatre everything seemed at once familiar and strange; she had seen it all scores of times before, but never with the eyes she saw it with now. Several persons addressed her, but she walked on to her dressing room without appearing conscious of any one. The room was small, but prettily decorated; there were two full length mirrors in it, and it was fragrant with flowers. On the table was lying a bunch of Marguerites, tied about with a narrow blue ribbon.

The knot by which the ribbon was fastened caught the prima donna's eye; she had seen something like it before. It was not an ordinary knot, but one such as sailors make. She took up the little white and golden cluster and looked them over; there was nothing to show whence they came—nothing but the knot. While she was putting on her dress her mind occupied itself with this little mystery, and the oppression of her heart was relieved. She put the Marguerites in her girdle, feeling kindly disposed toward them, for they had done her good. Then a desire suddenly took possession of her to go out and see the audience. The overture was still in progress, and she might cross the stage and look through a peep hole in the curtain.

Mme. Bemax assented, and accompanied her. The stage was dimly lighted, and a number of people were moving hither and thither upon it; the scene shifters were giving the last touches to the arrangements. Mlle. Marana, with a light shawl over her shoulders, glided unobserved up to the great curtain and looked through.

The spectacle was like nothing else she had ever seen or imagined. The house was brilliant with light and alive with movement and murmur. But the thousands of faces, row after row and tier above tier; the glance of innumerable eyes, all turned toward her; all come there to see her!—it was astounding and terrifying! Those innumerable eyes—nothing could escape them, nothing be invisible to them. They were overpowering, hostile, exterminating! All impression of individual human beings was lost, and the audience seemed to be a sort of monster, without sympathies and responsibilities, immense, incontrollable, omniscient—a merciless, multitudinous inquisition! How could a single girl contend against them? By what miracle could her voice and presence reach and subdue them? Rather her spirit would evaporate from her lips before them and leave her inanimate.

As she stood gazing there some one crossing the stage from the wings passed near her. She knew the step, and turned. Yes, it was Bellingham. He recognized her and paused, apparently surprised to see her there, but his expression could not be discovered in the shadow.

"Does the house satisfy you, mademoiselle?" he said, approaching her. As he did so he glanced at the flowers in her girdle. The glance did not escape her, and then she knew where it was she had seen the knot before. It was that day of their interview in the corridor; his fingers had been busy idly tying and untying a bit of string.

"I didn't know you would be here," she said in a whisper. "I am glad."

"They expect a call for the architect," he replied, "and I must make a bow."

"Will you be in the audience while I sing?"

"Yes. Why?"

"Show me which seat is yours."

He stepped to the peep hole.

"You see that chair half way down the center aisle? That is mine."

"Thank you," she said; "and thank you for these flowers. I feel made over anew! Now I can sing."

She put out her hand and Geoffrey took it in his.

For a moment it seemed to them as if they were alone together. When two persons meet in complete sympathy all other human association seems so trifling in comparison that they cease to be aware of it.

Speaking of Tips.

A TIP is a piece of special or valuable information such as this, that Hagyard's Yellow Oil is a prompt and effectual cure for croup, colds, hoarseness, sore throat, rheumatism, neuralgia, sprains or soreness of any kind. Known as reliable over 30 years.

Important and True.

No better evidence of the fact that Burdock Blood Bitters is a certain remedy for all blood diseases can be asked than that of Mr. Geo. V. Thomas, druggist, of Hull, P. Q., whose wife was cured of cancer by B.B.B. The family doctor is certain that the disease was cancer and that it is now cured.

Silver, blue and leather color are combined in visiting dresses of bengaline and camel's hair.

That latent force of fluid, which permeates all matter, and which bears the conventional name of Electricity, is widely appreciated and recognized as a means of cure in various diseases. Its effects in the form of Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil are shown by the relief of pain, both Neuralgic and Rheumatic, as well as the throat and lungs, and in various other healing ways.

Our Young Ladies.

CHICAGO, Feb. 13th, 1891.

G. A. Swayze, Esq., Principal Belleville Business College, Belleville, Ont.:

MY DEAR SIR—Yours of the 10th inst. received. I am pleased to state that the young ladies who received their tuition in the above-named college, and who are now in my employ, have more than filled their positions and the duties expected of them.

While Miss Francis has not had the opportunity yet of fully demonstrating her capabilities, Miss Moorman has not only done her work to the full satisfaction of the managers, but has surprised those in the office by the manner in which she has taken up a difficult line of business and carefully and correctly performed the same, and to say that I am proud of the institution from which she came is expressing it mildly, although I have always believed that thoroughness was its fundamental principle.

You may rest assured that should I hear or know of any position open I will remember the Belleville Business College.

Seven years ago my cashier came to this office and received $5 a week; to-day she is receiving $125 a month. One of my three stenographers, who came here three years ago, started at $6 a week and is now receiving $15 a week, and this is the smallest wages paid to any female in the office (where there are eight) who have been in the office for over one year.

Yours very truly,
T. S. QUINCEY.

The latest, greatest and most important invention of the century,

HERENDEEN'S ORIENTAL FLOUR !

This flour is prepared from the best Pure White Corn by a process patented February 7th 1880, and is beyond a doubt healthier than wheat or any other flour. We aim to feed the masses, not the classes, consequently instead of putting it up in 2 or 3 lb. packages and charging 15 or 20 cents for them and spending the big profit in advertising, we are selling it at about the price of ordinary flour. It can be used to great advantage in bread, pastry, etc., and is unsurpassed for pancakes or Johnny cake. Instructions and recipes in each package. This is also pre-eminently the food for anyone troubled with Dyspepsia or Indigestion. Your grocer has it now. Ask for it. Try it.

DR. WILLIAMS' PINK PILLS FOR PALE PEOPLE

ARE NOT a Purgative Medicine. They are a BLOOD BUILDER, TONIC and RECONSTRUCTOR, as they supply in a condensed form the substances actually needed to enrich the Blood, curing all diseases coming from POOR and WATERY BLOOD, or from VITIATED HUMORS in the BLOOD, and also invigorate and BUILD UP the BLOOD and SYSTEM, when broken down by overwork, mental worry, disease, excesses and indiscretions. They have a SPECIFIC ACTION on the SEXUAL SYSTEM of both men and women, restoring LOST VIGOR and correcting all IRREGULARITIES and SUPPRESSIONS.

EVERY MAN Who finds his mental faculties dull or failing, or his physical powers flagging, should take these PILLS. They will restore his lost energies, both physical and mental.

EVERY WOMAN should take them. They cure all suppressions and irregularities, which inevitably entail sickness when neglected.

YOUNG MEN should take these PILLS. They will cure the results of youthful bad habits, and strengthen the system.

YOUNG WOMEN should take them. These PILLS will make them regular.

THE NEWS OF EUROPE.

M'CARTHYITES CLAIM A VICTORY IN NORTH SLIGO.

The Queen and the Indian Massacre—"Skin-the-Goat" and Other Phœnix Park Assassins on Parade—Prof. Koch in a Despondent Mood.

LONDON, April 2.—Accounts of the removal of the prisoners from the Downpatrick jail say that there was a great crowd present to see the Phœnix Park murderers as they came up, and when one of the prisoners sang "God Save Ireland" the majority of the crowd joined in the song. The greatest interest was shown in Fitzharris, alias "Skin-the-Goat," who looked remarkably strong and healthy. He was the most joyous of all the prisoners, and as he came from the building he began to repeat a number of verses of his own composition referring to incidents that had occurred in the prison since his incarceration. Mullett looked pale and delicate, in consideration of which he was placed in an outside car. The other prisoners walked two by two, handcuffed together. McCaffray, another Invincible, looked well also, as did Nally, who was convicted for the conspiracy to murder a brother of Scrabb. Nally and all the other Crossmaglen prisoners who had been found guilty of this conspiracy to murder appeared in fairly good health.

THE ITALIAN EMBROGLIO.

Little Trouble Is Anticipated in Connection With Fava's Recall.

ROME, April 2.—Premier Rudini to-day sent another cable message to the United States on the subject of the New Orleans trouble. The message is a reply to Mr. Blaine's last note, and in it the premier says Italy has asked nothing but a prompt institution of regular judicial proceedings against the guilty parties at New Orleans. He adds that it would have been absurd to claim punishment for the offenders without the guarantees afforded by a regular trial. The diplomatic incident, Premier Rudini says, can only be considered closed when the Federal Government has declared in precise terms that the prosecutions will be commenced. In the meantime the Italian Government takes cognizance of the Federal Government's declaration, acknowledging the fact that compensation is due to the families of the victims by virtue of the treaty existing between the two countries.

FURTHER FROM MANIPUR.

CALCUTTA, April 2.—It is not known how the affray at Manipur commenced, but it has been learned that Commissioner Quinlon was treacherously seized while treating with the natives. The Manipurs then shelled the residency. The Ghoorkhas defended the place as long as their ammunition lasted, then they fought their way out and escaped across the hills. They met Cowley, who escorted them to Lakipur. A detachment of troops stationed at Laugthobal were cut up.

In an interview the deposed Rajah of Manipur declared his brother, the present Rajah, would not kill his prisoners, but would merely hold them as hostages. The only fear is from the uncontrolable Kukis. The deposed Rajah offers to send another brother to endeavor to induce the ruling Rajah to release the prisoners.

Koch Cast Down in Spirits.

BERLIN, April 2.—Professor Koch is reported as being very much depressed with the indifferent success of his treatment for tuberculosis. Even his own partisans regard the hoped-for cure as a failure, and say openly that however valuable the discovery may be from a theoretical and scientific point of view the practical results are not likely to amount to much.

French Fishermen Punished.

PARIS, April 2.—M. Barbey, Minister of Marine, has suspended the certificates of several masters of fishing vessels from Focamp and withdrawn the certificates of one master for violent assertion of their rights on the Newfoundland banks by firing upon hinderers. The vessels concerned are still at sea.

The Queen Much Affected.

GRASSE, April 2.—Queen Victoria was greatly affected when the news of the massacre at Manipur was communicated to her. The Queen subsequently forbade the usual military band performance which takes place every evening before the balcony where the Queen is in the habit of sitting.

Head of the Bonaparte Dynasty.

LONDON, April 2.—A despatch from Turin states that the Bonaparte family have decided to accept Prince Victor as the head of the dynasty provided Prince Louis, who was named by his father as the latter's successor, would consent.

To Cross the Ocean in Five Days.

LONDON, April 2.—The Cunard Steamship Company has made a contract for the construction of two steamships, each of 14,000 tonnage, designed to cross the ocean in five days.

General Booth Seriously Ill.

LONDON April 2.—General Booth, the head of the Salvation Army, is seriously ill at Washington.

Foreign Brevities.

German steamship companies will raise steerage rates to America $2.50 to-day.

The cones have disappeared from the Pacific volcano, Halemaumau, which now devotes itself to making slight earthquakes.

Smallpox has broken out in the police barracks at Belfast. Several policemen are down with the pestilence and the barracks are closed and quarantined.

A Madrid dispatch says that the Spanish Government is making preparations on an extensive scale to hold in Madrid an exhibition in honor of the fourth century of the discovery of America.

The Jackson abduction case is to be appealed to the British House of Lords to see if Mrs. Jackson cannot be compelled to live with her husband in spite of the court's adverse decision.

The Lash in Nova Scotia.

HALIFAX, April 2.—D. C. Ferguson, the photographer convicted of attempted criminal assault on little girls, was to-day sentenced in the Supreme Court to two years' imprisonment and to receive 40 lashes.

Dangerous Counterfeits.

Counterfeits are always dangerous, more so that they always closely IMITATE THE ORIGINAL IN APPEARANCE AND NAME. The remarkable success achieved by Nasal Balm as a positive cure for Catarrh and Cold in the Head has induced unprincipled parties to imitate it. The public are cautioned not to be deceived by nostrums imitating Nasal Balm in name and appearance, bearing such names as Nasal Cream, Nasal Balsam, etc. Ask for Nasal Balm and do not take any imitation dealers may urge upon you. For sale by all druggists or sent post-paid on receipt of price (50c and $1,) by addressing Fulford & Co. Brockville, Ont.

Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam.

Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam gives prompt relief in coughs, colds, hoarseness, whooping cough, croup, asthma or bronchitis. It is the most pleasant and perfect throat and lung healer in the world for children or adults. Price 25c.

Bickle's Anti Consumptive Syrup is a combination of several medicinal herbs which exert a most wonderful influence in curing pulmonary consumption and all other diseases of the lungs, chest and throat. It promotes a free and easy expectoration, and gives ease even to the greatest sufferer. Coughs, colds, shortness of breath, and affections of the chest, attended with weakness of the digestive organs, or with general debility, seem to vanish under its use. No other remedy acts so readily in allaying inflammation or breaking up a severe cold, even the most obstinate cough is overcome by its penetrating and healing properties. When children are affected with colds, coughs, inflammation of the lungs, croup, quinsey, and sore throat, this Syrup is of vast importance. The number of deaths among children from these diseases is truly alarming. It is so palatable that a child will not refuse it, and is put at such a price that will not exclude the poor from its benefits.

White broche is in demand for negligee robes.

Mr. J. R Allen, Upholsterer, Toronto, sends us the following: "For six or seven years my wife suffered from Dyspepsia, Costiveness, Inward Piles and Kidney Complaint We tried two physicians and any number of medicines without getting any relief, until we got a bottle of Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery. This was the first relief she got, and before one bottle was used the benefit she derived from it was beyond our expectation."

Satins closely resemble India silks in design.

Jacob H. Bloomer, of Virgille, N. Y., writes:—"Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil cured a badly swelled neck and sore throat on my son in forty-eight hours; one application also removed the pain from a very sore toe; my wife's foot was also much inflamed—so much so that she could not walk about the house; she applied the Oil, and in twenty four hours was entirely cured."

Mr. Thomas Ballard, Syracuse, N.Y., writes: "I have been afflicted for nearly a year with that most-to-be-dreaded disease Dyspepsia, and at times worn out with pain and want of sleep, and after trying almost everything recommended, I tried one box of Parmelee's Vegetable Pills. I am now nearly well, and believe they will cure me. I would not be without them for any money

MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP has been used by millions of mothers for children teething for over fifty years with perfect success. It relieves the little sufferer at once, produces natural, quiet sleep by freeing the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste, soothes the child, softens the gums, allays pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. Twenty five cents a bottle

OBITUARY.

Thomas Charles Baring, M.P. for London, of the Well-Known Banking Firm of Baring Bros.

LONDON, April 2.—Thomas Charles Baring, one of the two members of Parliament representing the city of London, died in Rome to-day of exhaustion resulting from a surgical operation. Mr. Baring was for some years engaged in banking in New York city, and was for more than 20 years a partner in the firm of Baring Bros. & Co., London and Liverpool. Mr. Baring was born at Adderbury, Oxfordshire, in 1831. He was a son of the late Charles Baring, Lord Bishop of Durham. He was the author of "Pindar in English Rhyme," "The System of Epicures" and other works. Mr. Baring was a Conservative.

A Masonic Dignitary Dead.

WASHINGTON, April 2.—Gen. Albert Pike, Grand Commander of the Scottish Rite Masonry of the Southern jurisdiction and the chief of the Royal Order of Scotland for this country, died at 8 o'clock this evening at the home here of the Supreme Council of the order, where he had lived for several years. General Pike was well known to all persons interested in Freemasonry, having held the highest offices in the order. He was the ranking Masonic dignitary of the world. He published several books of poems and law reports, but is most famed for his many books on Masonry.

A French Statesman.

PARIS, April 2.—A. Augustin Thomas Pouyer-Quartier, the distinguished French statesman, died suddenly to-day of congestion of the lungs. He was born Sept. 3, 1820.

THEY ALL HAD ONE.

A Blackthorn Pedlar's Ill-Luck in Sligo—Importing Surgeons.

SLIGO, April 2.—A queer feature of the town for the past few days has been the number of surgeons invited by their professional brethren of the place to assist them in caring for the injured of the various affrays and with an eye to the possibilities of to-day. A pedlar of blackthorn sticks has been doing a lively trade, although nearly everybody seems to be supplied.

The Parnellites have during the campaign made the strongest showing of physical aggressiveness and there are parts of the district where not even Davitt would dare to show himself.

There were scores of priests in Sligo to-day assisting in the canvass for the Healy candidate and Bishop Gilhooly himself made personal appeals and directed the ecclesiastical branch of the campaign.

SLIGO, April 2.—There has been a heavy polling in Sligo town, the most important place in the division, and the result is the anti-Parnellites are jubilant while the Parnellites are despondent. Michael Davitt, after a tour of the polling booths, said he was confident the anti-Parnellite candidate would receive a majority of 2000 votes. A large number of electors in North Sligo are illiterate, and consequently the manner in which they have voted is unknown. It is not expected the final result will be known until to-morrow afternoon. None of the ballot boxes will be opened to-night. There have been no serious disturbances.

COMMONWEALTH OF AUSTRALIA.

Canada's Constitution Approved By the Federated Colonies.

SYDNEY, N.S.W., April 2.—The Australian Federation in convention now in session here has approved of the title, "Commonwealth of Australia," for the federated colonies. The convention also adopted the clause of the constitution providing that the chief executive of the federation shall be known as the Governor-General and that he shall be appointed by the Queen. A proposition that the Governor-General should be elected by a popular vote was rejected 35 to 3.

The First Plowing of the Season.

BRONTIE, April 2.—William Austin of Trafalgar township commenced to plow on April 1. The ground was in first-class order and there is every indication of their being a good early spring this year.

Ready for a Journey.

"I read that a cyclone in Kansas lifted up a large tree and carried it two miles," remarked Mrs. Shattuck.

"The tree was equipped for travelling, I suppose," replied Shattuck.

"I don't know what you mean."

"I mean that it took its trunk with it."

Probably the Case.

Publisher (inspecting poem just handed in)—"You say your sister wrote it, my boy? Um—seems to be in the nature of a madrigal."

Boy (who brought it)—"I reckon so. You never saw a madder gal 'n sis'll be if it ain't printed."

A Yankee Trick.

The King of Siam won't buy shoes which do not squeak, and of course his example is followed by his subjects. A Yankee in business in Singapore has the run of the market, and the way he keeps it is to subject all his stock to a slow heat until the right pitch of squeak is arrived at.

Can't Be Proved.

A lover of the weed says that the man who says that tobacco injures the system can't prove it except in isolated cases. A Boston physician has kept track of seven users and seven non-users, all business men, and in ten years the seven non-users have aged the fastest and called in his services the oftenest.

MORTGAGE SALE

OF a valuable Private Residence in the City of Belleville.

Under and by virtue of the power of sale contained in a certain mortgage (which will be produced at the time of sale) there will be sold by Public Auction at the Anglo-American Hotel in the City of Belleville on at 2 o'clock in the afternoon, the following valuable property, viz: Lots Q. and No, 50 on the south side of Bridge street on Evans & Bolger's plan of the city of Belleville of 1877, having a frontage on Bridge street of 132 feet (the full descriptions of these lots by metes and bounds may be seen on application to the Vendors' Solicitors.) Upon lot No. 50 there is erected a large two story brick dwelling, main about 28x34 ft and brick kitchen of same height, 18x22 with brick summer kitchen attached in rear and which has been for many years, been occupied by John C Keith, Esq., Merchant. The valuable improvements and favorable situation make this property one of the most desirable residences in the city.

Terms—The property will be sold subject to a reserved bid, fixed by the vendors. Ten per cent of the purchase money to be paid at the time of sale and the balance within 30 days thereafter, with interest at the rate of 7 per cent., or arrangements may be made with the vendors to allow a portion of the purchase money to remain on mortgage. For further particulars apply at the office of the Vendors' Solicitors, Bridge street, Belleville.

Dyspepsia

Intense Suffering for 8 years—Restored to Perfect Health.

Few people have suffered more severely from dyspepsia than Mr. E. A. McMahon, a well known grocer of Staunton, Va. He says: "Before 1878 I was in excellent health, weighing over 200 pounds. In that year an ailment developed into acute dyspepsia, and soon I was reduced to 162 pounds, suffering burning sensations in the stomach, palpitation of the heart, nausea, and indigestion. I could not sleep, lost all heart in my work, had fits of melancholia, and for days at a time I would have welcomed death. I became morose, sullen and irritable, and for eight years life was a burden. I tried many physicians and many remedies. One day a workman employed by me suggested that I take Hood's Sarsaparilla, as it had cured his wife of dyspepsia. I did so, and before taking the whole of a bottle I began to feel like a new man. The terrible pains to which I had been subjected, ceased, the palpitation of the heart subsided, my stomach became easier, nausea disappeared, and my entire system began to tone up. With returning strength came activity of mind and body. Before the fifth bottle was taken I had regained my former weight and natural condition. I am today well and I ascribe it to taking Hood's Sarsaparilla."

WHO ENACTED IT?

"The coal oil tariff is another huge swindle on the people," says the Globe. Will our contemporary please say by which party the duty on coal oil, as it at present stands, was enacted?

CRITICISM RAMPANT.

Talking about sentiment in poetry, did it ever occur to you that a great deal of it is rubbish? Take "The Charge of the Light Brigade" for instance. The men are lauded for their heroism. To my way of thinking there was no heroism about it. Had they refused to make the charge it would have been mutiny on the battle-field, and that is sure death for the soldiers. As it was, by obeying orders, they had at least a fighting chance for their lives.

Then take "The Bridge of Sighs" The phrase "really unfortunate" makes a mere rhyme, but it ain't sense. The woman was not unfortunate at all, and if she had been it would not have been rashly but wisely if she wished to live. As it was, she went off quietly and drowned herself, saying nothing to anybody about it.

Another illustration: Shakespeare makes a man speak of the Great Beyond as a country from where no traveller returns, yet the central figure of the piece, and upon whom the whole plot hinges, is a ghost.

But perhaps it is not wise to make poetry too seriously. It is better, maybe, to raise hogs and sell pork.—Montreal Herald.

The writer of the above paragraphs has evidently learned to appreciate himself at his true value. A critic who can discover no heroism in the charge of the six hundred; who recognizes no pathos in the "Bridge of Sighs"; who cannot even quote his author's words correctly; (there is no such phrase as "really unfortunate" in the poem) and who would sneeringly hold Shakespeare personally responsible for the thoughts which he puts into the mouths of his characters, had better lay down his pen and betake himself to the more congenial occupation of raising hogs and selling pork, for which nature has plainly designed him.

PROTECTION AND FREE TRADE.

The following, which we copy from the New York Press, will no doubt prove instructive to those in Canada who have been crying out for a free trade policy for the Dominion on the ground that free trade has been enriching Britain, whilst protection has been impoverishing the United States:

"If under a protective policy our textile and other industries had decayed or remained stationery, what would the free traders say? Would they not point exultingly to the facts and declare it was the result of our fiscal policy, and would they not demand a change of the laws which had brought about this unsatisfactory condition of affairs? And yet this is precisely what has taken place in free trade Great Britain since 1874. In the textile industries there has been no real progress whatever. With an increasing population demanding employment, the number employed in these industries has either decreased, remained stationary or very slightly increased in one or two lines. The statistical abstract for the United Kingdom for 1889 shows the lamentable condition of the textile industries of the free trade country with its world's market attachment, while the eleventh census of the United States will show the wonderful strides the United States has made both agriculturally, industrially and commercially in the decade ending in 1890.

The Press does not believe there is a single textile industry in the United States that has not doubled the number employed since 1874, and in some industries the forthcoming census will show a three fold increase since 1870. How is it with free trade England? Some of her important branches have actually declined. The total number of persons employed in her worsted factories has been reduced from 143,097 in 1874 to 138,230 in 1885; in her flax factories, from 128,459 in 1874 to 111,837 in 1885; in her silk factories, from 48,124 in 1870 to 42,995 in 1885; in her elastic factories, from 5,324 in 1884 to 3,824 in 1885. In cotton factories the number employed has slightly increased, from 479,515 in 1874 to 504,069 in 1885, and in woollen factories the increase has been from 134,605 in 1874 to 139,416 in 1885, not keeping up with the increase in the population. In England and Wales the total number employed in all the textile industries in 1874 was 783,022, and in 1885 only 814,824; in Scotland the total number has actually decreased from 154,919 in 1874 to 152,279 in 1885, and in Ireland it has remained stationary.

"For the United Kingdom we are only able to note an increase for all the textile industries of 28,576 in twelve years, namely, from 1,005,685 in 1874 to 1,034,612 in 1886. Relatively speaking this is a decrease. It shows that the textile industries of the United Kingdom are, in fact, decaying, and this is in spite of the supposed advantages of free raw material and the markets of the world. And while free trade England has to face the gloomy facts of declining industries and lessened employment for labor, protection America can point to an increase of 100 per cent. in the number employed in her textile industries, to improved methods, increased production and a steady lessening of cost to the consumer."

A Pointer

that would guide, unerringly, into the heaven of health, all that are on the troubled sea of impaired womanhood! It is nothing less, nor could be nothing more, than Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription—frail female's faultless friend—time tried and thoroughly tested. Internal inflammation, irregularities, displacements, and all ill-conditions peculiar to woman, controlled, corrected and cured, without publicity, by this safe, sterling specific. Purely vegetable. Only good can come from its use. The only remedy of the kind warranted to give satisfaction, or money refunded.

News Condensed.

—The grip epidemic has struck Dubuque, Ia., and Milwaukee, Wis.

—The ice in the St. Lawrence at Montreal commenced to break up yesterday.

—New bridges are to be built over the Red and Assiniboine Rivers at Winnipeg.

—Nearly half the railway mail service clerks in Ohio are laid up with the grip.

—Whitman & Keith's shoe factory, at Brocton, Mass., was burned yesterday; loss $200,000.

—A committee of the Church of England is in session in Kingston considering the present laws relating to marriage and divorce.

—The sales of Nova Scotia coal this season are 100,000 tons in excess of the sales at this season last year.

—Three trainmen were killed and two freight trains badly smashed up by a collision on the Erie road yesterday.

—The will of the late E. E. Shelton, of Montreal, bequeaths over $200,000 to the mission fund of the Anglican Diocese of Montreal.

—The rumor is revived that Mr. Walter Shanly, ex-M.P., has been asked to take the position of Chief Engineer in the Department of Canals.

—A new departure in cremation is reported. A patent has been taken out in France for an electric furnace for the rapid incineration of human remains.

—The steamer Menominee, of the Goderich Transportation Company, reached Grand Haven, Mich., yesterday morning, being the first boat of the season.

—Thirty more bodies were recovered from the wreck of the steamship Utopia Wednesday, making the total number recovered up to the present time 422.

—The Council of the Equal Rights Association has decided to tender a reception to the Equal Rights members of Parliament and to the unsuccessful candidates for Parliamentary honors.

—Bernard McKee, aged 29, of Philadelphia, swallowed the contents of six goose eggs, then filled the shells with whiskey and drank the liquor, after which he went to sleep and never woke.

—A despatch from Greytown, Nicargaua, reports that Warner Miller, president of the Nicaragua canal, and party were wrecked on Wednesday on Roncado reef. The members of the party were saved.

ONTARIO LEGISLATURE.

A MINING DEPUTATION INTERVIEW THE GOVERNMENT.

Mr. Ross' Amendment to the School Law—Strong Measures to be Adopted to Put Down Truancy—General Notes of the Session.

TORONTO, April 3.—A deputation of Ontario miners waited upon the Government yesterday and presented the resolutions passed at the morning convention the past two days. After Mr. Conmee, the member for Algoma, had introduced the deputation, William Hamilton Merritt read the resolutions adopted by the convention. He said that while the mining interests had not been intentionally slighted they were of such a character as to deserve serious consideration. The convention would like to see a corner stone and foundation upon which to rear the financial interests of the province.

Mr. Mowat replied that he had read the reports of the proceedings of the convention with great interest. They were of a very important nature and covered a good deal of ground, and the Government would give the matter their best consideration before the end of the session.

Mr. Ross' bill respecting truancy and compulsory school education makes a number of important changes. It provides that all children between 8 and 14 years of age shall attend school for the full term during which the school of the section or municipality in which they reside is open each year, unless excused for reasons mentioned. The present law places the age limit at 7 and 13 years and the period of attendance at 100 days. The new bill also provides that the police commissioners, or, in cases where there are no police commissioners, the municipal council of every city, town, incorporated village and township shall appoint one or more persons to act as truant officers for the enforcement of this act. The truant officer shall, for the purposes of this act, be vested with police powers, and shall have authority to enter factories, workshops, stores and all places where children may be employed, and shall perform such services as may be deemed necessary for the enforcement of this act. And it shall also be his duty to institute proceedings for violation of the act. As a penalty, instead of $5 as at present, the bill provides that any person or officer mentioned in this act, and designated as having certain duties to perform in the enforcement of any of its provisions, neglecting to perform any such duties, shall be liable to a fine of not less than $25 nor more than $50 for each and every offence.

The Government supporters held a caucus yesterday afternoon. Dr. McKay and Mr. Dack, the whips, marshaled the forces in room 16 and then held their backs to the door. Some of the members, especially those from the farmers, wanted to know how long the session was going to last. Plowing time would soon be at hand, but there would be no hands to guide the plow. It was decided to rush business hereafter as much as possible and to hold night sittings regularly in order to get through at an early date.

A deputation consisting of C. J. Pusey, president of the Irondale & Bancroft Railway, J. Burnham, M.P., J. R. Stratton, M.L.A., T. Blezard, M.L.A., J. B. McWilliams and E. Pearse of Peterboro, Mayor Walters, H. O'Leary, Col. Deacon and E. H. Hopkins of Lindsay, and W. Ince and G. M. Rose of the Toronto Board of Trade, and J. Lockhart Gordon waited upon the Government to ask a bonus for that railway, representing the great advantages which would result from developing the mineral resources of the region through which the road will run.

The large and influential deputation from London had its interview with Mr. Ross yesterday morning regarding the establishing of the new Normal School in London. The deputation left with the impression that their wishes would be acceded to.

Notices of Motions.

Mr. Whitney—Enquiry. What date do lectures commence in University College, and what date do they end in each year?

Mr. Barr—Return showing what municipalities have passed bylaws under the provisions of the 4th section of the act 53 Vic., Chap. 55, imposing a business tax in lieu of the tax on personal property and what municipalities, after consideration of the question, have decided not to put the provisions of the said section into effect.

Mr. Bishop—Return showing what proceedings have been taken by the government investigating the business carried on by the Lion Provident and Life Association, with copies of any reports or orders in council connected therewith.

Yesterday morning there was found reposing in the water meter of the office building at 10 Wellington-street east, owned by Warwick & Co., a piece of dead fish. It was badly decomposed. All the water which has been consumed by the occupants of the building in the past two weeks has passed over the putrid mass.

John E. Doall of 63 Macdonald-avenue, employed by Chiropodist Davidson as messenger boy, was arrested on a warrant yesterday charged with forgery. The boy was suffering the pangs of hunger, and being without money to secure the desideratum signed his employer's name to an order for a 15c. lunch at Nasmith's. When Mr. Davidson appeared at the police clerk's desk to swear out a warrant one of the clerks offered to reimburse him for his loss, but the professor would not be mollified.

Buried Under a Load of Wood.

QUEBEC, April 2.—A lad named Giroux, aged 10 years, of the parish of Beauport, was found dead beneath a load of green wood. The boy started in the morning with a dog and sleigh to gather wood at some distance. Having loaded, he was on his way home, when the load capsized and imprisoned him under its weight. When found at night the boy had been dead for some hours.

Blood on the Bill.

SPRINGFIELD, April 2.—Dick Frames was indicted for murder in the first degree on microscopical evidence here to-day. He was suspected of murdering William Hambright, a nightwatchman.

A $10-bill he spent soon after the murder was traced and examined with the microscope. Blood was found on it and the indictment followed.

116 Deaths in Chicago Yesterday.

CHICAGO, April 2.—At noon to-day 116 deaths had been reported, of which fully 70 were the direct result of pneumonia and other pulmonary complaints, complicated with the grip.

Bob Harrison is Getting Old.

LONDON, April 2.—John Richardson of Dorchester and R. N. Harrison of Toronto met in the Grand Opera House here to-night in a wrestling match. Richardson won the first fall in catch-as-catch-can in ten minutes, throwing his opponent somewhat heavily. In Græco-Roman Richardson again secured the fall and the contest in four minutes. Harrison's backer disputed this fall, claiming it was not square, but the referee decided otherwise.

Harrison Continues Calm.

WASHINGTON, April 2.—That the President does not believe that the Italian embraglio will take a serious turn is evidenced by the fact that he is making arrangements for a trip to the south and west during the present month.

The Loss of the Lily.

VICTORIA, B.C., April 2.—News was received to-night of the total wreck of the sealing schooner Lily in a storm off Dodges Cove, west coast, on Tuesday. No lives lost.

THEY DIED TOGETHER.

Peculiar History of an Old Colored Couple—A Son's Loyalty.

PITTSBURG, April 2.—Elizabeth and George Parker, a colored mother and son, the last members of a numerous family and old-time residents of Pittsburg, lie in their coffins side by side at No. 20 Logan-street. Mrs. Parker was 80 years old and died Sunday night. The son was 49, and his death occurred Monday. Both had pneumonia, superinduced by la grippe. The son chose to remain unmarried, the better to assist in caring for his mother. The couple were much attached to each other, and as the son looked quite as old as his mother they were often mistaken for husband and wife.

EIGHT HOURS A DAY.

The Movement Inaugurated in Several Cities Yesterday.

CINCINNATI, O., April 2.—The first demand for the eight-hour day in this city was made by 150 plasterers, who went on strike to-day. They had demanded as long ago as last August an eight-hour day and pay at 45 cents an hour. The rule has been 35 cents an hour with a nine-hour day. At a meeting held to-day it was decided to strike and committees were appointed to get all the plasterers to join them.

INDIANAPOLIS, April 2.—The tinners having refused to accept the agreement presented by the bosses were yesterday locked out. About 200 men were affected.

MILFORD, Mass., April 2.—All the Milford granite cutters quit work to-day because the demand for $3 a day, beginning to-day, was not granted.

PHILADELPHIA, April 2.—At a meeting last night of Clay Assembly, K. of L., composed of about 700 brickmakers, it was decided that the men would not go to work to-day, the opening of the brickmaking season. The employers decided some time ago to work under the schedule of 1889, which would lower the wages about 10 per cent. The employers have refused to treat with arbitration committees representing the workmen. The strike will involve about 3000 men.

FALL RIVER, Mass., April 2.—All the mill corporations in this city have posted notices to the effect that after April 6 the day hands will be paid by the hour instead of by the day as heretofore. This is done in anticipation of the passage of one of the short-hour bills now pending in the legislature. If the fifty-four hour bill is passed the mills propose to reduce the wages in the same ratio as the product of mills is reduced, and this means a reduction of 10 per cent. in wages.

ERIE, Pa., April 2.—There is a general movement in Erie to make a demand for a reduction of hours of labor and an advance of 10 per cent. in wages on May 1. The Erie Board of Education, in making appropriations for new buildings, added 20 per cent. for increased cost of labor in anticipation of a reduction of the hours from ten to nine and an increase of 10 per cent. in wages, and have therefore given the keynote for the general movement on May 1.

CHICAGO, April 2.—About 200 plasterers struck this morning for an advance in wages to $4 per working day of eight hours. Most of the boss plasterers had already acceded to the demand.

LYNN, Mass., April 2.—The bricklayers to-day asked an increase to 42 cents per hour from 35 cents. The demand was complied with. The house painters asked an increase from $2.25 per day to $2.50. Most shops acceded and only four struck.

THE COLOR LINE.

A Sanguinary Conflict Ensued, in Which Six People Were Injured.

OMAHA, April 1.—A riot of considerable magnitude was provoked in the Keystone dinner hall by the refusal of the proprietor to serve two negro Pullman porters. A negro policeman interfered in behalf of his brethren, and the proprietor replied that neither he nor his men would serve negroes, and immediately ordered the entire force to throw the three colored men out. They tried to make their way to the door, and as Newman, the colored officer, interfered to protect them, he was hit in the mouth with a catsup bottle, knocking two of his teeth down his throat.

He endeavored to defend himself with his club, but his assailants were too numerous and he was repeatedly knocked down. He finally managed to draw his revolver and fired three times. As the crowd made a break for the door Officer Rose, who was passing, saw what was up, and rushed to the assistance of his brother officer. He knocked down two or three of the belligerents, receiving several blows in return, when one of the "Hashers" made a pass at him with a heavy meat cleaver. The fearful weapon was aimed to cleave the officer's skull, but just as it descended Officer Gadola, who had fought his way in, struck up the arm of the would-be murderer, knocking the weapon from his hand.

As it fell the keen blade struck Rose upon the nose, splitting open that organ from top to bottom. Everybody was covered with blood and the chop house looked like a slaughter pen. Two officers, two waiters and the two colored men were badly hurt.

Remi Lamontagne's Body.

MONTREAL, April 2.—Mr. J. H. Pillet, advocate, has received an acknowledgement from Quebec of the petition from the Lamontagne family for the body of Remi Lamontagne. The whole record of Lela Lamontagne will be sifted out and the certified copy of the whole sent to the Washington authorities to establish that the spirit and letter of the extradition of Lela Lamontagne have been broken by her present imprisonment for an offence for which she was not extradited.

Their Sailboat Upset.

DETROIT, April 2.—The body of a man recovered from the upset sailboat in Lake St. Clair yesterday evening was identified to-day as that of Fred Bedore, son of Joe Bedore, the well-known boat keeper at St. Clair Flats. The other is known to have been Jacob Kehl, son of Henry Kehl, who keeps a place near Bedores. The young men sailed down from the flats Tuesday to sell some ducks and started back early yesterday morning.

They Died "Game."

SOMERSET, Pa., April 2.—The Nicely brothers, who murdered and robbed Herman Umberger, an old farmer, and robbed him of $20,000, were hanged at 1.43 this afternoon. They both died game and protesting their innocence. Death resulted from strangulation. The bodies were cut down about 19 minutes after the trap was sprung.

Killed by a Log.

EXETER, April 2.—While Mr. Cotley of Kirkton was driving through the woods on a load of logs with his 8-year-old son, the latter fell off, and a log following struck him on the head fracturing his skull. He only lived a short time.

Burned to Death.

BRADFORD, April 2.—Mrs. Felgner, living on the 11th con. West Gwillimbury, was standing near the stove, when by some means her clothes caught fire and when her son, John Steven, who had been from the house only a few minutes, came in he found her lying on the floor apparently suffocated and badly burnt. Dr. Stevenson was called and did all he could to relieve the sufferer, who died next day.

30,000 Immigrants in March.

NEW YORK, April 2.—Superintendent of Immigration Weber says the immigration from Italy is rapidly increasing, in fact leading that of all other countries. The figures for March are: Italy, 7869; Germany, 7087; Great Britain and Ireland, 4386; Hungary, 3589; Austria, 3484, and Russia, 2923. Total, 29,338. To-day 1607 Italians landed at the barge office.

This and That.

—"I think," said the editor in a worried tone, "that I will drop journalism and take up astronomy." "Why?" "Well, astronomers almost seem to have more space than they know what to do with."

—"I liked your sermon so much to-day," said the old lady to the clergyman. "Indeed?" said he, evidently pleased. "Yes," she went on, "it reminded me so much of one I read when I was a girl."

—"What's that awful noise in the next room?" asked the early guest at the banquet, "That," replied the newspaper reporter, "must be the table groaning under all the delicacies of the season."

A MAN'S WIFE SHOULD always be the same, especially to her husband, but if she is weak and nervous, and uses Carter's Iron Pills, she cannot be, for they make her "feel like a different person," so they all say, and their husbands say so too!

Purely Vegetable.

First the bud, then the blossom, then the perfect fruit. These are the several stages of some of the most important ingredients composing the painless and sure corn cure—Putnam's Painless Corn Extractor. The juices of plants greatly concentrated and purified, gums and balsams in harmonious union, all combined give the grand results. Putnam's Extractor makes no sore spot, does not lay a man up for a week, but goes on quietly doing its work until a perfect cure results. Beware of acid substitutes.

Great Improvements.

Power Bros. are going into the hotel business in the Queen's with all the vim and energy of young men of enterprise and experience. Ald. Hanley was to-day engaged in measuring the ground for a large addition to the hotel at its south end, on the ground floor of which will be a large new dining room, barber shop, office and bar, billiard and pool room, and sample rooms. The upper floors will be devoted to parlors and dormitories. The whole will be furnished with electric bells and fire escapes. Thus enlarged and improved, and in the hands of its present capable managers, the Queen's has evidently a prosperous future before it.

Into British Columbia Conference—Rev. J. D. P. Knox, of Bay of Quinte, June 3d.

There were 45 applications for transfer that were not granted.

The Life Boat Crew.

To-night, with its rich literary and musical programme, will close the second week of work by these gifted evangelists in Belleville. Affable, earnest, and enthusiastic, always willing to accommodate, they have added another success to that new departure in temperance work which is peculiar to the Royal Templars of Temperance, and known as "Royal Revival work." This system is conducted by trained singers and elocutionists of the order, in addition to earnest Gospel Missioners, all under the supervision of a general superintendent and the executive committee of the Grand Council. Royal Templarism not only works for temperance on a christian basis, but by its system of sick benefits and life assurance at lowest practicable rates is doing a good work in two ways, first by teaching the once shiftless inebriate to invest his savings carefully for the benefit of his family and himself against the inevitable "rainy day," which so often finds the needy most helpless in their time of greatest need, so that the order and its makers is entitled to public recognition in all laudable ways for the genuine missionary work it is doing. It is doing another good work in educating the old line insurance companies to recognize the valuable character of total abstainers as life risks deserving of special rates. The concert tonight in the City Hall will be difficult to surpass in variety and effective interest. All through the meetings every song, every anecdote, every recitation, has had a telling pointedness, and sometimes a local suggestiveness, practical as well as well as amusing.

For Delicate, Sickly Children

Scott's Emulsion is unequalled. See what Dr. C. A. Black, of Amherst, N. S., says: "I have been acquainted with Scott's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil, with Hypophosphites, for years, and consider it one of the finest preparations now before the public. Its pleasant flavor makes it the great favorite for children, and I do highly recommend it for all wasting diseases of children and adults. Sold by Druggists, 50c, and $1.00.

Was He the Inventor?

Belleville, April 3, '91.

Mr. Editor,—I saw in Wednesday's Intelligencer a paragraph honoring S. R. Earle with the invention of a "blower or air injector." It is not very hard to be an inventor when you can go to the water works pump house, as S. R. Earle did, and got his idea from one of my own inventions, which you can see in operation every day, and it has been ever since Aug. 26, 1890. Yours,

Charles Merriam.

A Canadian Emigrant.

His Experience in the States—He will Return to Belleville.

Osceola, Clark Co., Iowa, March 29.

To the Editor of the Intelligencer.

Sir,—Would you be so kind as to give me space in your columns to say a few words to an old friend of mine in Belleville. It seems that he feels very sorry for me—that my house and lot in the good old City of the Bay, is so heavily mortgaged. Well, if he can find one dollar of a mortgage on it I will give him the place. My wife never had to go out washing, nor had I ever to gather old rags and bones or steal goods from boys. My place never had a dollar against it, and I made the money at my trade under the good old John A. Government. About the letter that my brother had put in The Intelligencer, if he likes he can send it to Oscoola and have it put in the papers. I don't go behind the screen to tell the people of Iowa that Ontario is a far better country than Iowa, and now that the "old man" will be in power for 5 years at least, I intend to go back to my beloved native country as soon as I can arrange things. If the farmers, carpenters and others were to take my advice, they would be satisfied with Canada. The people are far better off in Canada than in this part of the United States—in fact I never saw so much poverty in my life there as I have seen in Iowa this winter.

Now, Sir, excuse me for taking so much of your valuable space. I would just add, if others mind their own business and pay for their own houses and lots, they will have all they can do. I remain, Sir,

Yours truly.
F. P. Salter,
Osceola, Iowa.

Distributing the Land.

Mr. Julien Hebert, the gentleman who was named some months ago to distribute the 100 acres of crown land which the provincial Government of Quebec granted to every family possessing 12 or more children, states that up to date no less than 2,000 families have been reported to the department as possessing the required number of boys and girls to entitle them to a slice of the public domain, and that certificates are constantly reaching the office of the commissioner at Quebec. An idea had got abroad that those receiving lands would have to settle in the Lake St. John district, but this does not follow, as the fortunate father of 12 sons and daughters will be permitted to choose the land in question in any part of the province he likes, so it is quite probable that as many of these people will find their way to the upper Ottawa as around Lake St. John. As soon as the snow leaves the ground it will be Mr. Hebert's duty to visit the different localities where the Government lands are to be found, and afterwards make a report to the department as to the quality and quantity that can be placed with advantage at the disposition of the intending settlers.

"In what part of the province do you find the largest families?" asked the Empire, and "the district of Quebec," was the prompt reply. In Lotbiniere there are 70 families with twelve or more children, and the same number is found in the county of Wolfe, where Mr. Laurier met defeat. Mr. Hebert wishes it to be understood, however, that in the work of distribution which he has undertaken, no politics will enter into the undertaking. He loves his own province and desires to see it filled up with an industrious and law-abiding people. It must also be remembered that the English, Irish and Scotch people have likewise come to the front with a great many large families, and a fair number of the applications have been made by the Protestant clergymen of the district. By next fall it is presumed that some 200,000 acres of the public lands of the province will be selected by the parties interested, and that many of our hardy people will make homes for themselves in Quebec, who otherwise might have gone to seek fortune in a strange land and beneath a foreign flag.

Valuable Interest Rules.

[Basis, Commercial year 360 days or 30 days per month]

4 per cent.—Multiply the principal by the required number of days, divide by 9 and point off.

5 per cent.—Multiply by the number of days and divide by 72.

6 per cent.—Multiply by the number of days, divide by 6, and point off three figures from the right.

8 per cent—Multiply by the number of days and divide by 45.

9 per cent.—Multiyly by the number of days, divide by 4, and point off three figures from the right.

10 per cent.—Multiply by the number of days and divide by 36.

12 per cent.—Multiply by the number of days, divide by 3, and point off three figures from the right.

15 per cent.—Multiply by the number of days and divide by 24.

18 per cent.—Multiply by the number of days, divide by 2, and point of three figures from the right.

20 per cent.—Multiply by the number of days and divide by 18.

The interest in each case will be in dollars and cents.

The Question of Fees.

The Mail remarks: "It is said that the Ontario Government intends to take action of some sort in the direction of Mr. A. F. Wood's motion respecting the payment of officials by fees, and is now securing the information upon which to frame a bill for that purpose. If this be true the principle of the measure is likely to meet with little opposition in the Legislature—save, perhaps, from members who may have their eyes fixed upon some of the fatter offices—for through the province there is little difference of opinion as to the advisability of the proposed reform. The fee system may be well adapted to certain special circumstances, but its principle is wrong, and its continuance is justifiable only so long as these circumstances exist, which is no longer the case in Ontario."

—The train from Boston yesterday morning brought into Montreal about 100 French-Canadians, who are returning to their homes in the Quebec and Three Rivers districts from Lowell, Nashua, and other New England points.

—An Indiana farmer walked twenty-two miles to find out what the word "kennel" meant, and he was so disgusted that he went home and smashed his dog-house with an axe. He said they'd be calling a barn door an archway next.

Women's Fancies.

The surplice waist is still a popular model for making up cotton fabrics, and suits admirably those who do not find the ordinary blouse becoming.

Stylish spring costumes of fine cheviot or Venetian cloth have loose waists of folded silk velvet, and worn with three quarter jackets that have open front cut without darts.

Dainty summer dresses are made of corn color, eglantine pink, old rose, or turquoise blue batiste or chambray, with ecru guipure lace trimmings, with large collars and cuffs to match

Moss green is again combined with all the neutral tints, and pink and chamois yellow cloth tailor dresses are made up with skirt and bodice trimming of the darkest woodmoss green velvet.

Elegant Paris waists have superb lattice fringes sewed beneath the crenellated or pointed edges, jet or a glittering rim of gold or iridescent ends showing between the tabs of Vandyked pieces.

A new spring corsage has cross plaits on the front drawn together at the centre of the chest, and losing themselves toward the arm holes. The same effect is repeated at the back, but it is not pretty.

French cloths that are made up for home afternoon dresses will be fashioned very simply, and a good deal of velvet or gros grain will be used in their decoration. Lace ruffles will also be an accessory to them.

Waistcoats of gray, tan, magnolia, white or pale apricot silk, are fashionable as ever, and the most elaborate and expensive waistcoats are trimmed with Venetian embroideries, dotted with fine cut mock gems.

The Louis XIII. coat, with short black and long lapel front, is effective for black silk dresses, when made with sleeves and tops and collar of velvet, brocaded all over with close shell or vermicelli pattern in gold.

New challies show the long stemmed effects that may be noticed in India silks as well as the face and dotted effects. As usual, these are preferred in acorn grounds, with lavender, mouse, pink, turquoise, green or tan effects.

Fine soft Venetian cloths are much used for tea gowns, and pale shades of tan, strawberry, dahlia, English pink and nut browns are made up with suede cloth on fronts that fit very snugly. The skirt part of this union dress and a portion of the bodice are richly embroidered.

Ribbon trimming will be used upon many of the pretty work dresses, which are made with Gretchen skirts, with a very deep hem, a full bodice of tinted or white chambray, and a square or rounded jacket with bishop sleeves, the jackets trimmed with white cotton braid, it the ribbon is not liked.

Short tea gowns for youthful wearers are much in early English fashion, with round waist and with a low rounding neck belted in front and finished with two large rosettes at the back. The full sleeves are made in various ways, but the Angot and the mutton leg—not so high as has been worn, but pushed up full around the armhole—are the models most used.

Panniers will be more seen than during the winter. Spring costumes of wool, combined with bengaline or velvet, are being made with shallow but quite bunchy panniers of deep folds of the trimming materials, starting from the waist line in front and reaching round the hips, to be continued as back drapery, or lost in the development of the back fulness.

The old-time French organdies, as transparent as gauze, with charming designs of tea roses, buds, carnations, violets, pansies, and trailing vines, will be in high favor next summer. They will be called pompadour muslins. The finest qualities imported are rather expensive, but they make most lovely toilets, and a few beautiful dresses already made of the French weaves have trimmings of rich lace arranged as a skirt flounce, fichu, drapery and sleeve jockeys.

The fancy aprons are among the best things for brightening up a sombre toilet of the dirt defying order—the short sleeved, low-necked garments imparting an air of freshness and daintiness to the child; many of them are high necked, and almost take the place of a dress. An apron of black alpaca, feather stitched in a color, will be found just the thing for the schoolroom, as it needs no laundrying, and is always ready for such an emergency as to cover grease spots, a torn width or a rubbed sleeve.

Black materials are always in vogue to a certain extent, but they take quite a prominent place in the present fashions. Black striped silks and satins are made up with full leg o' mutton sleeves of black velvet, or with diagonal bodice trimmings of velvet ribbon. Other black silks and other black fabrics of handsome quality are trimmed with nets, elegant black laces, guipure embroideries, fine gold passementeries and gold buttons, and lastly with costly and beautiful Persian arabesques in applique.

There are not nearly as many secrets in hand treatment as people imagine. A little ammonia or borax in the water you wash your hands with, and that water just lukewarm, will keep the skin clear and soft. A little oatmeal mixed with the water will whiten the hands. Many people use glycerine on their hands when they go to bed, wearing gloves to keep the bedding clean; but glycerine does not agree with everyone. It makes some skins harsh and red. These people should rub their hands with dry oatmeal and wear gloves in bed. The best perparation for the hands at night is white of egg with a grain of alum dissolved in it. Quacks have a fancy name for it; but all can make it and spread it over their hands, and the job is done. They also make the Roman toilet paste. It is merely white of egg, barley flour and honey. They say it was used by the Romans in olden time. Anyway, it is a first-rate thing; but it is a sticky sort of stuff, and does not do the work any better than oatmeal. The roughest and hardest hands can be made soft and white in a month's time by doctoring them at bedtime, and all the tools you need are a nail brush, a bottle of ammonia, a box of powdered borax, and a little fine white sand to rub the stains off, or a cut of lemon, which will do even better, for the acid of the lemon will clean anything.

Some Foolish People

Allow a cough to run until it gets beyond the reach of medicine. They often say "O, it will wear away," but in most cases it wears them away. Could they be induced to try the successful medicine called Kemp's Balsam, which is sold on a positive guarantee to cure, they would immediately see the excellent effect after taking the first dose. Price 50c. and $1. Trial size free. At all druggists.

A Year After.

"Time swiftly flies," quoth she; "to-day
We have been wed a year;
Ah, Frank, you know you used to say
I was than life more dear.
Dost love me now as then?" she cried,
And deep her anguish when
Her husband with a frown replied:
"I love you now and then."

Stand Your Ground.

When you make up your mind to take Hood's Sarsaparilla, do not be induced to buy some other preparation instead. Clerks may claim that "ours is as good as Hood's" and all that, but the peculiar merit of Hood's Sarsaparilla cannot be equalled. Therefore have nothing to do with substitutes and insist upon having Hood's Sarsaparilla, the best blood purifier and building up medicine.

STRIKERS FIRED ON.

TWO VOLLEYS KILL SEVEN OF THE MOB.

And Wound Many Others—A Determined Attack Upon an Armed Guard—The Strikers do the First Shooting—Two Volleys Scatter Them Like Chaff.

Mount Pleasant, Pa., April 2.—At about 2.45 this morning a mob of about 500 men began rioting at the Standard Works. They destroyed some of the company's property and then proceeded to cut the telephone and telegraph lines of the coke company so that no warning could be sent to the people at Morewood. About 3 o'clock a party of rioters between 400 and 500 strong marched to Morewood. The deputy-sheriffs were soon in readiness to receive the attack. After looting the company's store the rioters marched to the barn enclosure and attempted to break down the gates. They succeeded in doing this and as they entered Capt. Laurer called out to them to halt or he would fire upon them. Their answer was to fire a rattling volley in the direction of the deputies, none of whom were seriously injured. Capt. Laurer then gave the order to fire. Two volleys were fired before the mob broke and ran. Seven fell dead in the public road and 27 were found wounded, four of whom died. The rioters then broke into small groups and made their escape in various directions.

The Dead.

CRESZO BINERO, Italian of Tarrs, shot through the heart.

As usual during a raid the strikers were armed with revolvers, stones, iron bars and every conceivable weapon obtainable. The volleys from the Winchesters were well directed and but a few rounds were necessary to drive the frightened rioters back into the hills where hundreds of their fellow-strikers had gathered in anticipation of assisting in the raid but not in a battle with guards. The firing on both sides continued hardly three minutes. The volleys from the guards had terrible effect on the compact mass of strikers, while the latter made an attempt to return the fire with what weapons they possessed, but without effect. The dead were left lying in the road while the wounded, estimated at between 40 and 50, were assisted or bodily carried away into the hills by their fellows. All day the entire coke region has presented scenes of the wildest excitement. The foreign element especially has been driven frantic. Always turbulent, sullen and ready for desperate measures they are not one whit cowed by the death of several of their number, while they have sedulously concealed in their homes those of their number who were wounded, many, no doubt, unto death.

Late to-night word was received here that two more men concerned in the riot had died in strikers' houses near the Morewood works, where they had been dragged by their fellows. Their names could not be learned, but it is known that one was an English-speaking foreigner. These two deaths make nine in all that are known, but there is no doubt others are dead or in a critical conditions. Reports late to-night from all over the region indicate a fearfully dangerous and excited condition of affairs and the word that the military was soon to be on guard was received by the law-abiding labor officials and coke operators alike with the liveliest satisfaction at Leisinring.

At 9 o'clock this morning another attack was attempted by the coke strikers and three more were killed. Twenty-five of the rioters were wounded in this last scuffle. This story has not yet been confirmed from Morewood.

Labor officials deny the men at Morewood were killed for good cause and warrants have been issued for the deputies on the charge of murder, with General Manager Lynch of the Frick Company and Superintendent Ramsey of the Morewood plant charged as accessories before the fact.

HIS LIBERTY FOR HIS LOVE.

Chicago, April 2.—Charges of a highly sensational character are made in a suit for $100,000 damages begun in the Circuit Court this morning. The plaintiff is Eugene Dunnivant, formerly a newsboy, who claims that his life has been wrecked as the result of a conspiracy between Orrin W. Potter, the millionaire president of the Illinois Steel Company, and Tom Fox, James Hutchins and Frank Allen, who are also made defendants. In his declaration young Dunnivant avers that in April, 1885, he was a poor boy sixteen years of age, and was then engaged in selling newspapers in the district in which the Potter mansion is situated. While pursuing this vocation he made the acquaintance of Mr. Potter's daughter, a beautiful and accomplished girl. The acquaintance between the young people was distasteful to the girl's father, and Dunnivant alleges that in November he was induced to accompany Frank Allen to South Chicago. Allen had a confederate who was dressed so as to personate plaintiff. Some clothing was stolen presumably by Allen and his confederate, and Allan was arrested. As a part of the scheme to send plaintiff to the penitentiary it is alleged that Allan accused plaintiff of the theft and caused his arrest. He and Allan were jointly indicted for burglary.

At the trial in January, 1887, the daughter of Mr. Potter, knowing her lover's innocence, is said to have employed counsel to defend him. Dunnivant was convicted and sentenced to four years' imprisonment.

Dunnivant served his term in the penitentiary at hard labor, with the result that his health was broken completely, leaving him a physical wreck; hence this suit.

Brooklin, Ont., April 2.—Last night about 12.30 fire broke out in the two-story brick block in Baldwin-street owned by Bickell & Sonley and occupied by R. C. Warren as a general store, G. N. W. Telegraph office, Bell Telephone Company and by C. H. Wilson as a dwelling. It originated in the store and before any alarm was given had destroyed the entire stock. Total loss about $8000.

Frozen to Death.

Winnipeg, April 2.—A Nova Scotian named Archie McPhail, who has been trapping on Lake of the Woods and who has been missing since early in February, has been found frozen to death. On February 2 he visited Keewatin and sold furs, returning with supplies. It is supposed he became exhausted when within two miles of home, fell to the ice and was unable to rise again.

Who Was He?

A Canadian Found Dead in a Michigan Hotel—Who Can Identify Him?

To the Editor of the Intelligencer.

Dear Sir,—Last Sunday morning, March 22nd, an unknown man was found dead in bed at a hotel here.

We hear that he was from Canada or New York State, and thinking he would have friends who could identify him from following description, thought I would send it to you.

He was about thirty or thirty-five years of age, five feet eight inches high, light complexion, dark brown hair, hazel eyes, sandy beard; had a large scar on right leg from body to knee; a scar on thumb of left hand, one on index finger of left hand, one near large toe on left foot as if cut, and one on small toe of right foot.

His name was thought to be George Popple or Fred Hill.

In his pockets were found some papers, mostly receipts for horse liniment. For further information address,

TORONTO TRUTH'S New Spring Bible Competition

NO. 22.

In these latter days there have arisen many false schemes and many scores of imitations of Truth's Competitions, but one after another have failed and utterly perished, yet Truth remains, and makes good all its promises. Its reputation is now too well established to risk damaging it, and as it has cost a very large amount of money and many years of care and labor to build up, the publisher could not afford to fail in carrying out all his agreements to the letter. There are twenty-one divisions of the largest list of bona fide prizes ever offered and ever actually given away by any publisher in the world. The total value of prizes in this Spring list is about $10,000,00. The lists are so large it would cost altogether too much to give them in detail here. There are pianoes, gold and silver watches, china tea and dinner sets, ladies' and gentlemen's bicycles, silver tea-sets, silk dresses, books, money, and hundreds of other valuable rewards. You pay nothing for these prizes, as everyone concedes that full value is received for the dollar in securing Truth every week for three months. Send one dollar and answers to the five following questions: Where in the Bible are these words found? 1, Grain; 2, Corn; 3, Wheat; 4, Barley; 5, Rye. If your answers are correct and your letters arrive in time you are almost sure to get a reward, as there are so many and every one cannot always find correct answers to all these questions. All the five answers must be correct to get any prize, but you will get full value for the dollar in Truth if you don't get anything else. If you want to see the list of rewards before sending in your dollar, mail Truth ten cents and a copy will be sent you containing the list of prizes. But there have been very few dissatisfied prize-winners in previous competitions, considering that he has given away during the past eight years scores of thousands of prizes. Some people expect a piano for every dollar sent, and are mad if they don't get it. He wishes it were possible to give every subscriber a gold watch or a piano or both, but says it can't be done. Some publishers intimate they will, but nobody can do it for any length of time. Send one dollar and correct answers and you won't repent it; and bear in mind that it is not guaranteed that every body whose answers are correct will get a prize, but that all the prizes in the twenty-one different lists will be given away. The competition remains open only till the last day of June next, inclusive, after which the prizes will be immediately distributed to the successful ones. Ten days will be allowed for letters to reach Truth from distant points after the 30th of June. All, however, must be postmarked where mailed not later than the 30th June, or any time between now and that date. Address S. Frank Wilson, "Truth" Office, Toronto, Ont., Canada.

We Claim the Earth.

We claim the earth is round, and we know it's true. We also claim that Hagyard's Yellow Oil cures sprains, bruises, burns, colds, croup, sore throat, rheumatism, neuralgia, and all painful or inflammatory diseases, and we know this is true. Yellow Oil is a true family remedy for lameness or soreness in man or beast.

Sit Down and Think.

Sit down and think; 1st, that dyspepsia is caused by wrong action of the stomach; 2nd, that Burdock Blood Bitters is designed to correct and regulate the stomach; 3rd, that it always cures dyspepsia and costs less than a cent a dose. Can you afford to be dyspeptic?

Gold chatelaine holders are made in the fleur de lis design.

The Best Pills.—Mr. Wm. Vandervoort, Sydney Crossing, Ont., writes: "We have been using Parmelee's Pills, and find them by far the best Pills we ever used." For Delicate and Debilitated Constitution these Pills act like a charm. Taken in small doses, the effect is both a tonic and a stimulant, mildly exciting the secretions of the body, giving tone and vigor.

COPYRIGHT BY AMERICAN PRESS ASSOCIATION.

At this moment the overture came to an end, and the order was issued for the stage to be cleared. The prima donna found herself again in her dressing room, but not in the same mood as she had left it. She was warm, composed and happy. She looked in the tall mirror, and for the first time saw Marguerite reflected there. Then into her serene and awakened mind entered all the tenderness, simplicity and pathos of Gretchen's lovely story, and she felt the spirit of the German peasant maiden take possession of her. The appurtenances of the stage, the mechanism of the effects, the glare of the footlights, no longer had power to disturb her illusion. They seemed themselves an illusion, and only the story was real. And when the moment came that she stood before the mighty audience they were to her no longer a hostile and opposing presence, with which she must struggle in hopeless contest, but a vast reservoir of human sympathy, aiding her, supporting her, comprehending her, supplying her with life and inspiration, and responding a thousandfold to every chord she touched.

As her voice flowed out and abroad from her lips it seemed to owe its enchanted sweetness and resonance not to her, but to its echo in the hearts of her listeners. Whence, then, had come this marvelous change in the mutual relations between her audience and herself? She was conscious only of the joy of unrestrained expression; the audience, only of the delight of ear and eye; and Geoffrey Bellingham, sitting with folded arms and charmed pulses in the midst of the assemblage, had no suspicion that any part of this triumph of harmony and beauty was due to him. His eyes and all his senses were turned toward her, but how should he imagine that amid the crowd of that great amphitheatre her glances were conscious of no face but his, and that all the stupendous magnetism of their silence and their applause was centered and concentrated in him? He had even forgotten that his Marguerites were in her girdle.

As has already been intimated, however, it would be superfluous to give any account of this memorable performance from the audience's point of view. Competent judges, who attended many repetitions of the opera, have declared that Mlle. Marana never afterward surpassed the standard of excellence she attained on this first occasion. It was the topic of the time, and the fame of it spread all over the United States, and was spoken of next day in London and Paris. The public, which is so inhuman and tyrannical in its apathies and antipathies, is like a child and a slave in its favoritism and its homage. It idolized the incomparable Marana, and would have built her a house of gold, with jeweled windows, if she had demanded it. The unknown girl from the upper reaches of the Hudson was crowned queen of New York for the sake of two or three hours' sweet singing.

It is seldom that Adam, and even diviner Eve, in the days of their youth, are wholly insensible to the worship of their fellow creatures. They may say and believe that flattery cannot make them alter their own estimate of their merit; nevertheless, the eye that sees admiration in all other eyes involuntarily waxes brighter and more assured, and the presence before which others bow down, if it do not bear itself more commandingly, can at least scarcely avoid a graceful condescension. Doubtless it is not the merit but the homage which the merit causes that creates the elation. And by and by the suggestion will insinuate itself that there may, after all, be something exceptional in the nature gifted with such talents, apart from the talents themselves. From this point it is not far to the conclusion that exceptional natures demand exceptional treatment and consideration—should not be made accountable to ordinary rules; should be a law unto themselves. No position is more susceptible than this of being vindicated by plausible arguments, and a poor argument warmed by good will has always been worth a dozen better ones chilled and torpid from the breath of disinclination.

Now Mlle. Marana, though she could not estimate the influence upon others of the personal quality of her voice, could not help knowing that she sung in tune and correctly; but, inasmuch as many other women could do this, she was forced to infer that her being made queen of New York must be due to some personal quality, as aforesaid. This just persuasion gave her pleasure on more accounts than one; but one account was that it seemed to justify in some measure the deception which she was maintaining before the world. Though still chargeable with purloining Marana's name, she might, perhaps, acquit her conscience of damaging that lady in her musical reputation. If she were listened to with as great favor as the genuine Russian diva would have been, surely the latter could not complain of any very great practical injury. On the contrary she would have earned an American renown without being troubled to so much as open her lips. True, renown was all she would earn; but she had voluntarily given up the offer of other emoluments before the false Marana had ever been thought of. Of course a lie is a lie, after every excuse has been made for it; yet there may be cause for congratulation if a lie prove to contain no other mischief than the simple invasion of a truth.

In this opinion she was, it need scarcely be said, cordially supported by Hamilton Jocelyn and Mme. Bemax; nor was her father disinclined to take an optimistic view of the situation. The latter gentleman, by the way, seemed to have taken a fresh start in life since his troubles came to head, therein following the example of many prominent citizens of New York and other places who, when other sources of supply run dry, are accustomed to tap with golden success the unfailing spring of insolvency. Mr. Randolph had taken rooms in a small but elegant flat on Fifth avenue, and was living the life of a rejuvenated bachelor and man about town. The possession of a momentous secret flattered his sense of self importance, and the incumbency of a minor sinecure in the municipal government, which he had obtained through Gen. Inigo's friendly interest with the Democratic mayor, enabled him to assume the air of one who is on confidential terms with statesmen. He had been at considerable pains to devise ambiguous explanations of his possession of ready money and of the singular disappearance of his daughter, and had been somewhat disappointed to discover that no one seemed to be aware that he had ever lacked the former or owned the latter.

The world, Mr. Randolph thought, must be a barbarously large as well as a reprehensibly inattentive place, since it had failed to follow with solicitude the course of his domestic concerns. However, if there was neglect on one side of the account, it was balanced by convenience on the other, and the unsuspected father of the great prima donna made a virtue of impunity.

He visited his daughter twice or thrice a week, besides being present at her performances; but it afforded him a certain gratification to surround their interviews with an elaborate network of secrecy and intrigue, as if he were an enamored Montague seeking to commune at peril of their lives with a lovelorn Capulet. There was evidently a vein of romance in this old gentleman which, had it been properly cultivated in due season, might have considerably enlarged his character.

Speaking of Tips.

A TIP is a piece of special or valuable information such as this, that Hagyard's Yellow Oil is a prompt and effectual cure for croup, colds, hoarseness, sore throat, rheumatism, neuralgia, sprains or soreness of any kind. Known as reliable over 30 years.

Important and True.

No better evidence of the fact that Burdock Blood Bitters is a certain remedy for all blood diseases can be asked than that of Mr. Geo. V. Thomas, druggist, of Hull, P. Q., whose wife was cured of cancer by B.B.B. The family doctor is certain that the disease was cancer and that it is now cured.

Our Young Ladies.

CHICAGO, Feb. 13th, 1891.

G. A. Swayze, Esq., Principal Belleville Business College, Belleville, Ont.:

MY DEAR SIR.—Yours of the 10th inst. received. I am pleased to state that the young ladies who received their tuition in the above-named college, and who are now in my employ, have more than filled their positions and the duties expected of them.

While Miss Francis has not had the opportunity yet of fully demonstrating her capabilities, Miss Moorman has not only done her work to the full satisfaction of the managers, but has surprised those in the office by the manner in which she has taken up a difficult line of business and carefully and correctly performed the same, and to say that I am proud of the institution from which she came is expressing it mildly, although I have always believed that thoroughness was its fundamental principle.

You may rest assured that should I hear or know of any position open I will remember the Belleville Business College.

Seven years ago my cashier came to this office and received $5 a week; to-day she is receiving $125 a month. One of my three stenographers, who came here three years ago, started at $6 a week and is now receiving $15 a week, and this is the smallest wages paid to any female in the office (where there are eight) who have been in the office for over one year.

Yours very truly,
T. S. QUINCEY.

HERENDEEN'S ORIENTAL FLOUR !

This flour is prepared from the best Pure White Corn by a process patented February 7th 1880, and is beyond a doubt healthier than wheat or any other flour. We aim to feed the masses, not the classes, consequently instead of putting it up in 2 or 3 lb. packages and charging 15 or 20 cents for them and spending the big profit in advertising, we are selling it at about the price of ordinary flour. It can be used to great advantage in bread, pastry, etc., and is unsurpassed for pancakes or Johnny cake. Instructions and recipes in each package. This is also pre-eminently the food for anyone troubled with Dyspepsia or Indigestion. Your grocer has it now. Ask for it. Try it.

Dangerous Counterfeits.

Counterfeits are always dangerous, more so that they always closely IMITATE THE ORIGINAL IN APPEARANCE AND NAME. The remarkable success achieved by Nasal Balm as a positive cure for Catarrh and Cold in the Head has induced unprincipled parties to imitate it. The public are cautioned not to be deceived by nostrums imitating Nasal Balm in name and appearance, bearing such names as Nasal Cream, Nasal Balsam, etc. Ask for Nasal Balm and do not take any imitation dealers may urge upon you. Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam.

Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam gives prompt relief in coughs, colds, hoarseness, whooping cough, croup, asthma or bronchitis. It is the most pleasant and perfect throat and lung healer in the world for children or adults. Price 25c.

Bickle's Anti Consumptive Syrup is a combination of several medicinal herbs which exert a most wonderful influence in curing pulmonary consumption and all other diseases of the lungs, chest and throat. It promotes a free and easy expectoration, and gives ease even to the greatest sufferer. Coughs, colds, shortness of breath, and affections of the chest, attended with weakness of the digestive organs, or with general debility, seem to vanish under its use. No other remedy acts so readily in allaying inflammation or breaking up a severe cold, even the most obstinate cough is overcome by its penetrating and healing properties. When children are affected with colds, coughs, inflammation of the lungs, croup, quinsey, and sore throat, this Syrup is of vast importance. The number of deaths among children from these diseases is truly alarming. It is so palatable that a child will not refuse it, and is put at such a price that will not exclude the poor from its benefits.

White broche is in demand for negligee robes.

This was the first relief she got, and before one bottle was used the benefit she derived from it was beyond our expectation."

ADVICE TO MOTHERS

MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP has been used by millions of mothers for children teething for over fifty years with perfect success. It relieves the little sufferer at once, produces natural, quiet sleep by freeing the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste, soothes the child, softens the gums, allays pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. Twenty five cents a bottle

THE SPLIT MAUSOLEUM.

AN EASTER SERMON BY REV. T. DE WITT TALMAGE.

"Come, See the Place Where the Lord Lay"—The Tomb of All the Ages—What the Resurrection Means to the Human Race.

NEW YORK, March 29, 1891.—Dr. Talmage preached an Easter sermon to his two audiences to-day. A selection of music appropriate to the festival was beautifully rendered at each service. The text of the preacher's discourse was Matt. 28; 6, "Come, see the place where the Lord lay."

Visiting any great city, we are not satisfied until we have also looked at its cemetery. We examine all the styles of cenotaph, mausoleum, sarcophagus, crypt, and sculpture. Here lies buried a statesman, yonder an orator, here a poet, out there an inventor, in some other place a great philanthropist. But with how much great interest and with more depth of emotion we look upon our family plot in the cemetery. In the one case, it is a matter of public interest; in the other, it is a matter of private and heartfelt affection. But around the grave at which we halt this morning there are gathered all kinds of stupendous interest. At this sepulchre, I have to tell you, in this sepulchre there was buried a King, a Conqueror, an Emancipator, a Friend, a Brother, a Christ. Monarch of the universe, but bone of our bone, and flesh of our flesh, and sorrow of our sorrow, and heart of our heart. "Come, see the place where the Lord lay."

It has for surroundings, the manor in the suburbs of Jerusalem, a manor owned by a wealthy gentleman by the name of Joseph. He was one of the court of seventy who had condemned Christ, but I think he had voted in the negative, or being a timid man, had been absent at the time of the casting of the vote. He had laid out the parterre at great expense. It was a hot climate, and I suppose there were broad branched trees and winding paths underneath them, while here the waters rippled over the rock into a fishpool, and yonder the vines and the flowers clambered over the wall, and all around there were the beauties of kiosk and arboriculture. After the fatigue of the Jerusalem courtroom, how refreshing to come out in these suburbs botanical and pomological.

I walk a little farther on in the parterre and I come across a cluster of rocks, and I see on them the marks of a sculptor's chisel. I come still closer and I find that there is a subterranean recess, and I walk down the marble stairs, and come to a portico, over the doorway—an architecture of fruits and flowers chiseled by the hand of the sculptor. I go into the portico and on either side there are rooms, two, or four, or six rooms of rock; in the walls, niches, each niche large enough to hold a dead body. One of these rooms of rock is especially wealthy with sculpture. It was a beautiful and charming spot. Why all this? The fact was that Joseph, the owner of the parterre, of that wealthy manor, had recognized the fact that he could not always walk those gardens, and he sought this as his own last own resting-place. What a beautiful plot in which to wait for the resurrection!

Mark well the mausoleum in the rock. It is to be the most celebrated tomb in all the ages: Catacombs of Egypt, tomb of Napoleon, Mahal Taj of India, nothing compared with it. Christ had just been murdered, and His body must be thrown out to the dogs and the ravens, as was customary with crucified bodies, unless there be prompt and effective hindrance. Joseph, the owner of the mausoleum, begs for the body of Christ, and he takes and washes the poor and mutilated frame from the blood and the dust, and shrouds it and perfumes it.

I think embalmment was omitted. When in olden times they wished to embalm a dead body, the priest with some pretension of medical skill would show the point between the ribs where the incision was to be made. Then the operator would come and make the incision, and then run for his life, else he would be slain for violating the dead body. Then the other priests would come with salt of nitre and cassia, and wine of palm tree, and complete the embalmment. But I think in this case embalmment was omitted, lest there be more excitement and another riot. The funeral advances. Present—Joseph, the owner of the mausoleum; Nicodemus, who brought the flowers, and the two Marys. Heavy burden on the shoulders of two men as they carry the body of Christ down the marble stairs and into the portico, and lift the dead weight to the level of the niche in the rock, and push the body of Christ into the only pleasant resting-place it ever had. These men coming forth, close the door of rock against the recess. The government, afraid that the disciples would steal the body of Christ and play resurrection, put upon the door the seal of the Sanhedrim, the violation of that seal, like the violation of the seal of the United States Government, or of the British Government, always followed with severe penalties.

A regiment of soldiers from the Tower of Antonio is detailed to guard that mausoleum. At the door of that tomb a fight took place which decided the question for all graveyards and cemeteries. Sword of lightning against sword of steel. Angel of God against the military. The body in the crypt begins to move in its shroud of fine linen, and slides down upon the pavement, moves through the portico, appears in the doorway, comes up the marble steps. Christ, having left His mortuary attire behind Him, comes forth in the garb of a workman, as I take it, from the fact that the women mistook Him for the gardener.

There and then was shattered the tomb so that it can never be rebuilt. All the trowels of earthly masonry cannot mend it. Forever and forever it is a broken tomb. Death that day, taking the side of a military, received a horrible cut under the angel's spear of flame, and must himself go down at the last—the King of Terrors disappearing before the King of Grace. "The Lord is risen." Hosanna! Hosanna!

O weep no more, your comfort's slain,
The Lord is risen, He lives again.

When one of the old Christians was dying he said he saw on the sky the letter "V," and he said:—"I cannot understand what that is I see against the sky; it is the letter 'V.'" A Christian standing beside him said "I know what it means; that letter 'V' stands for 'victory.'" I gather up all these flowers to-day, and I strew them over the graves of your Christian dead in the letter "V" for "victory." "R" for "resurrection," "T" for "triumph," "H" for "Heaven." "The Lord is risen." Hosanna!

While standing around the place where the Lord lay, I am impressed with the fact that mortuary honors cannot atone for wrongs to the living. If they could have afforded Christ such a costly sepulchre they could have afforded him a decent earthly residence. Will they give a piece of marble to the dead Christ when they might have given a soft pillow to the living Christ. If they had put half the expense of that mausoleum in the making of Christ's life on earth comfortable, the story would not have been so sad. He wanted bread; they gave him a stone. Christ, like every other benefactor of the world, was better appreciated after he was dead. Westminster Abbey and monumental Greenwood are to a certain extent the world's attempts by mortuary honors to atone for neglect to the living. Poet's Corner in Westminster Abbey an attempt to pay for the sufferings of Grub street. I go into that Poets' Corner of Westminster Abbey and there I find the grave of Handel, the musician from whose music we hear to-day, as it goes down reverberating through the ages. While I stand at the costly tomb of Handel I cannot forget the fact that his fellow-musicians tried to destroy him with their discords. I go a little further in the Poets' Corner of Westminster Abbey and I find the grave of John Dryden, the great poet. Costly monument, great mortuary honors, but I cannot forget the fact that at seventy years of age he wrote about the oppressions of misfortune, and that he made a contract for a thousand verses at sixpence a line. I go a little further on in the Poets' Corner and I find the grave of Samuel Butler, the author of "Hudibras." Wonderful monument, costly mortuary honors. Where did he die? In a garret. I move further on in the Poets' Corner and I find the grave of a poet of whom Waller wrote:—An old school master by the name of John Milton has written a tedious volume on the fall of man. If its length be no virtue, it has none." I go a little further on in the Poets' Corner and I find the grave of Sheridan. Alas! for Sheridan. Poor Sheridan! Magnificent mortuary honors. What a pity it was he could not have discounted that monument for a mouthful of something to eat! O, unfilial children, give your old parents less tombstone and more blankets, less funeral and more bedroom. Five per cent. of the money now expended at Burns' banquets would have made the great Scotch poet comfortable and kept him from being almost harried to death by the drudgery of an exciseman.

Do justice to the living. All the justice you do you will have to do this side the gates of the necropolis. The dead cannot wake up to count the number of carriages in the procession, or see the polish on the Aberdeen granite, or to read the words of epitaphal commemoration. Costly mausoleum of the gentleman in the suburbs of Jerusalem cannot atone Bethlehem's manger and Calvarean cross and Pilate's ruffian judiciary.

Again! Standing in this place where the Lord lay, I am impressed with the fact that floral and sculptural ornamentations are appropriate for the places of the dead. We are glad that in the short time of the Saviour's inhumation he lay amid flowers and sculpture. I cannot quite understand what I see in the newspapers where, amid the announcements of obsequies, the friends request "send no flowers." Why, there is no place so appropriate for flowers as the casket of the departed. If your means allow—I repeat, if your means allow—let there be flowers on the casket, flowers on the hearse, flowers on the grave. Put them on the brow; it means coronation. Put them in the hand; it means victory. Christ was buried in a parterre. Christ was buried in a garden. Flowers are types of resurrection. Death is sad enough anyhow. Let conservatory and arboretum do all they can in the way of alleviation. Your little girl loved flowers while she was alive. Put them in her hands, now that she cannot go forth and pluck flowers for herself. On sunshiny days twist a garland for her still heart.

Standing in this place where the Lord lay, I am also impressed with the dignity of unpretending obsequies. Joseph that day was mourner, sexton, liveryman—had the entire charge of all the occasion. Four people only at the burial of the King of the Universe. Let this be consolatory to those who, through small means or lack of large acquaintances, have but little demonstration of grief at the grave of their dead. It is not necessary. Long line of glittering equipages, two rows of silver handles, casket of costly wood, pall-bearers scarfed and gloved are not necessary. Christ looks out from heaven at a burial where there are six in attendance and remembers there are two more than he had at his obsequies. Not recognizing this idea, how many small properties are scattered in the funeral rites, and widowhood and orphanage go out to the cold charity of the world. The departed left enough property to have kept the family together until they could take care of themselves, but it is all absorbed in the funeral rites. That went for crape which ought to have gone for bread. A man of small means can hardly afford to die in one of our great cities! Funeral pageantry is not necessary. No one was ever more lovingly and tenderly put into the grave than Christ, but there were only four in the procession.

Again; standing in this place where the Lord lay, I am impressed with the fact that you cannot keep the dead down. The seal of the Sanhedrim, a regiment of soldiers from the tower of Antonio to stand guard, floor of rock, roof of rock, wall of rock, niche of rock, cannot keep Christ in the crypt. Come out and come up He must. Come out and came up He did. Prefiguration. The first-fruits of them that sleep. Just as certainly as you and I go down into the grave, just so certainly we will come up again.

Wake up, my friends, this day this glorious Easter morning, with all these congratulations. If I understand this day, it means peace toward Heaven and peace toward earth. Great wealth of flowers! Bring more flowers. Wreath them around the brazen throat of the cannon, plant them in the desert until it shall blossom like the rose, braid them into the mane of the war charger as he comes back. No more red dahlias of human blood. Give us white lilies of peace. Strew all the earth with Easter garlands, for the resurrection we celebrate this morning implies all kinds of resurrection, a score of resurrections. Resurrections from death and sin to the life of the Gospel. Resurrection of apostolic faith. Resurrection of commercial integrity. Resurrection of national honor. Resurrection of international goodwill. Resurrection of art. Resurrection of literature. Resurrection of everything that is good and kind and generous and just and holy and beautiful. Nothing to stay down, to stay buried, but sin and darkness and pain and disease and revenge and death. Let those tarry in the grave forever. "Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace, good-will to men."

Christ, the Lord, is risen to-day,
Sons of men and angels say,
Raise your songs and triumphs high.
Sing, ye Heavens, and earth reply.
Love's redeeming work is done,
Fought the fight, the battle won,
Lo! the sun's eclipse is o'er;
Lo! he sets in blood no more.

Rings For the Little Finger.

Rings for the little finger are more or less a fad of the hour. They are often encircled with turquoise, or set with lucky moonstones. There is also a fancy for using the stone corresponding to the birth-month of the wearer in these little rings, which should be especially small and dainty and as exquisite in design as possible.—New York Tribune.

A SIGNIFICANT PLACARD.

THE SOFIA ASSASSINATION CHARGED TO RUSSIA.

Parnell's Candidate Defeated in North Sligo—Tragic Death of An Amateur Actor on the Stage—British Victory Over the Manipuris.

SOFIA, April 3.—This city has been extensively placarded with a poster which conveys a thinly-veiled accusation of Russia as the instigator of the plot which resulted in the death of Minister Baltcheff. It contains this sentence: "Our enemies having despaired of annihilating the country by internal revolutions, knowing they are detested by the army and the nation, now have recourse to the vilest means—attacking statesmen in the dark."

LONDON, April 3.—Foreign Office advices from Berlin and Paris are more hopeful for the continuance of European peace. Nevertheless, the uneasiness in British official circles remains the same. The Government is reported to have received information through the St. Petersburg embassy placing beyond a doubt existence of a formal defensive and offensive alliance between Russia and France, including stipulations that France will support Russia in her plans against India.

THE MANIPUR MASSACRE.

Lieut. Guerdon's Description of the Affair—An Act of Treachery.

CALCUTTA, April 3.—Lieut. Guerdon, one of the officers who escaped from Manipur, has telegraphed as follows: "The British force advanced on March 24 in order to arrest Chief Jubrai, who had deposed the Rajah of Manipur. The Manipuris resisted and a general engagement ensued. We ran short of ammunition and retreated to the presidency at Manipur. The Manipuris then attacked and shelled the presidency. Finding our ammunition exhausted, we offered to arrange terms for a cessation of hostilities. To this the enemy seemed to agree, and consequently the chief commissioner and others went out to meet Chief Jubrai, but the chief commissioner and those with him were seized and held as prisoners. After the capture of the British officers the Manipuris resumed their attack on the presidency. We were obliged to retreat and fought our way across the hills until we met Cowley's detachment." A report has reached here that the treasury at Manipur has been looted.

British Troops on the March.

RANGOON, April 3.—Brigadier-General Graham is in command of the force advancing from Tamu to attack Manipur. Uneasiness is felt regarding the safety of a detachment of 80 Sepoys under Capt. Grant which left Tamu for Manipur before the news of the attack on that place was received.

A British Victory.

CALCUTTA, April 3.—Advices from Manipur say the British have attacked and carried by assault Ft. Taabat, situated 12 miles from Manipur and garrisoned by 1000 Manipuris.

NORTH SLIGO ELECTION.

DUBLIN, April 3.—The Parliamentary contest in North Sligo resulted in the election of the McCarthyite candidate, Ald. Bernard Collery, by a majority of 771. Collery secured 3130 votes to 2359 for Ald. Valentine Dillon, a cousin of John Dillon and a solicitor of Dublin. The seat was made vacant by the sudden death of Peter McDonald (Parnellite), who was returned unopposed at the last general election. The electoral district contains 8635 votes, of which 5489 were polled.

Ald. Dillon's agent has lodged a petition against the return of Ald Collery on the ground that the presiding officer of the grand polling place unlawfully adjourned the polling while he went to refresh himself.

The elections for poor law guardians in Northwest Cork yesterday resulted in majorities for the McCarthyites' candidates of 2 to 1. The ward was supposed to be a Parnellite stronghold.

Parnell in his final utterance before the result of the polling at Sligo was known, declared: "If we are lost it will be such a victory as will show by comparison with the Kilkenny election that our cause is progressing." Davitt, besides blaming the loose system adopted in polling the illiterate vote as losing the Nationalists hundreds of votes, traces the reduction in the expected majority to the Conservative support given to the Parnellites. It is estimated 450 Conservatives voted for Dillon.

Speeches made by the Parnellites after their defeat was known showed unabated pluck. In the contest each side worked with undoubtable energy and skill. The Parnellites tried to dupe Catholic voters by displaying bogus telegrams from Rome to the effect that the Pope disapproved the anti-Parnell policy of the Irish bishops and had detained Archbishop Walsh in that city to prevent him from interfering with Parnell. Archbishop Walsh found it necessary to wire a direct denial. The events in Sligo have so widened the breach between Parnell and his old followers that the gulf will be forever unbridgeable. Parnell's phrases, "Foul-mouthed Healy" and "Maudlin Sexton," and his charge that Sexton was in a speechless condition of drunkenness on his arrival in Sligo intensified the fury of the Nationalists.

Parnell will preside at an amnesty meeting in Dublin Sunday, when there will be opened a vigorous amnesty agitation whereby he hopes to strengthen his ranks.

ANOTHER MINE EXPLOSION.

Causes Terrible Loss of Life in an English Coal Mine.

LONDON, April 3.—A disastrous explosion in a coal mine took place to-day at Apedale, Staffordshire. Ten persons were killed outright and several were severely injured. The bodies of the dead miners have been extricated from the portion of the mine where the explosion took place. The cause of the disaster is supposed to have been the presence of fire damp in the mine and the foolhardiness of one of the miners after the presence of the danger gas was first discovered.

Honorably Acquitted.

MONTREAL, April 3.—Herbert Capewell, who was arrested in Toronto on a charge of obtaining goods under false pretences from the firm of John Watson & Co., was honorably discharged to-day and returned to Toronto.

Will Come to Toronto.

HAMILTON, April 3.—Chairman Blaicher and other members of the Finance Committee, will go to Toronto on Tuesday, when the bill authorizing the city to issue $300,000 debentures will come before the House. The Freeholders' Association will send a deputation to secure a clause inserted so that in the event of a future overdraft the city can't get legislation to enable it to pay it off.

RAVAGES OF THE GRIP.

A Decrease in Chicago's Death List—A Patient Insane from the Disease.

CHICAGO, April 3.—The death list to-day showed a marked decrease, the total being 116, a decrease of 50, as compared with the day previous. City Health Commissioner Wickersham attributes the improvement to the effects of sunshine on the grip sufferers.

A despatch from Council Bluffs, Iowa, says: "The public schools in this city will probably be closed on account of the sickness prevailing. The complaints mostly are the grip and measles, although there are some cases of scarlet fever and diphtheria. One-third of the teachers are unfit for duty."

READING, Penn., April 3.—Judge Ermentrout issued an order this morning for the transfer of John Pelt from the county prison to the State Lunatic Asylum. Van Pelt is the man who made a murderous assault upon Dr. A. M. Hengst of Birdsboro, by whom he had been treated for the grip. The testimony of physicians was to the effect that Van Pelt's reason had left him because of his long and continued illness from the disease.

Mr. Mercier's Mission to France.

PARIS, April 3.—In an interview to-day Mr. Mercier, the Canadian delegate, explained the objects of his mission, which, he said, was intended to counteract the United States tariff law. He aimed to negotiate a loan of $12,000,000 for the conversion of the internal debt and the development of railways and other resources. He would study the beet sugar industry in Belgium and Germany, in order to apply the same system in the Dominion and consult the French Government and French Chambers of Commerce in regard to the exchange of French wines for Canadian timber. He had contracted with the Societe Hippique to export to France horses bred in Canada in exchange for French stallions.

Political Gossip.

OTTAWA, April 3.—The Maritime Province members are almost a unit it is said, on Prof. Weldon as Mr. Ouimet's successor. Ouimet wants Mr. J. F. Wood to succeed him, however. It is stated that Mr. De Boucherville will be the next president of the Senate. Last year there was a French Speaker in the Commons and an English Speaker in the Senate. This year there will be one Englishman and one Frenchman, but the latter will be in the Senate and the former in the Commons if present intentions are not changed.

A leading Cabinet Minister denies the report that Hon. C. C. Colby has resigned as president of the Privy Council.

AWFUL SKIN DISEASE

Child a Mass of Raw, Bleeding Sores. Miraculous Cure by the Cuticura Remedies.

A face, from the hair to the neck on both sides, a raw mass of bleeding sores; two little hands and arms in the same condition; a body around the waist of which was a broad band of bleeding eruptions, and from the hips to the tips of her toes the skin was so raw as to be absolutely sickening to the sight. Said Mrs. H. A. Stout to me: "I have tried everything suggested to me on my little daughter, who has been so afflicted almost from birth. I have had three doctors experiment on her, but she seemed to be getting worse every day. I was almost distracted. Every night I had to bandage her all over, and tie mittens on her hands to prevent her from digging the raw flesh with her fingers. Mr. Faulkner said he believed that CUTICURA REMEDIES would cure her. He offered to bear the expense. At that time she was worse than I had ever seen her, and there seemed no prospect of recovery. CUTICURA, CUTICURA RESOLVENT, and CUTICURA SOAP have wrought a miracle. To-day her skin is smooth and fair, and I believe she has entirely recovered." The above is true in every particular, and I refer to Mr. C. W. Woolever, druggist.

BLLEEVILLE, SATURDAY APRIL 4

A CONTRAST.

Mr. Sol. White has made a telling speech in the Local Legislature on the subject of the Ontario surplus. From the public documents he showed the receipts and expenditures under the Conservative Administration of the late Hon. John Sandfield Macdonald and under his Reform successors. The figures are tabulated thus:

CONSERVATIVE RULE—1867 TO 1871.
Total receipts	$ 9,892,161
Total expenditure	6,081,196
Surplus	$ 3,810,965
REFORM RULE—1871 TO 1889.
Total receipts	$52,627,826
Total expenditure	55,740,526
Deficit	$ 3,112,700
Add deficit for 1890	517,962
Total deficit	$ 3,630,662

THE DELEGATES' REPORTS.

The reports of the tenant farmer delegates who visited Canada last year at the invitation of our Government have been published in England by authority of the Dominion Government. These reports, which are contained in three separate pamphlets of very handy form, are in their nature highly favorable to the Dominion and cannot fail to have a powerful influence in inducing the right class of emigration to this country, namely that of tenant farmers from England and Scotland, whose methods would be of the utmost value in Ontario. We are indebted for the following synopsis of the individual opinions of the delegates to the Woodstock Sentinel-Review:

Mr. W. Edwards, of Ruthin, Wales, has no hesitation in recommending Canada as a field of settlement to the industrious of every nation and especially recommends it to the small farmer and agricultural laborer of Wales.

Mr. George Hutchinson warns the English farmers that in coming to Canada they will meet many hardships and deprivations, but with the caution comes the assurance that there is none of these that pluck and perseverance will not overcome and which will not be amply compensated for after the trials of a few years.

Mr. Wm. Scotson, after a careful investigation extending from Quebec to Victoria, is able to say that between these points there are homes for thousands in three classes, namely, the young of both sexes who are willing to work; the small farmer who has a little money and a little energy, and the man who, having money enough for himself, desire an opening for his family.

Mr. J. T. Wood is of opinion that emigrants should not at once take up land but should work among the farmers for a time in order to gain an insight into Canadian farm work.

Mr. Arthur Daniel points to the particularly good opening Canada offers to the capitalist owing to the richness of its mineral deposits.

Col. Fane recommends Canada as a most desirable country for certain classes, but these claims are not distinctly defined. He pays a tribute to the Canadian regard for the Sabbath day and to Canadian kind heartedness and hospitality.

Mr. Robert Pitt also cautions emigrants against buying farms before becoming acquainted with the Canadian methods of farming.

Mr. Henry Simmons reports that to the capitalist Canada offers great advantages, and the only persons not wanted are the dissolute and the idle.

Mr. George Brown, of Caithness, Scotland, says to the Scotch farmers: "I can only add that no man will regret going to Canada to begin life there, provided he make up his mind to work and exercises ordinary caution."

Mr. John Speir, of Newton, Glasgow, advises all those who are quite contented to remain at home, but to those who are not contented he has no hesitation in recommending Canada.

When you go to buy Hood's Sarsaparilla be sure to get it. Don't be put off with an inferior substitute. Insist upon Hood's.

Farmer's Institute.

An Organization Effected in East Hastings.

A meeting was held in the village of Tweed on Tuesday, March 31st., for the purpose of organizing a Farmers' Institute for East Hastings. The chair was occupied by Wm. White, Esq., of Tweed, who in a few preliminary remarks stated the object of the meeting and called upon A. Hamilton Pettit, Esq., of Grimsby, Secretary of the Central Farmers' Institute, who spoke of the advantages of Institutes to farmers and horticulturists. He was followed by Dr. Cowan, V.S., of Galt, who spoke on the same subject, after which the following officers were elected:

Pres.—Jno. C. Hanley, Read.
Vice Pres.—James Elliott, Tweed.
Sec. Treas.—John Stokes, Hungerford.
Directors for Hungerford—Jas. Clare and Robt. Sayers.
Directors for Tyendinaga—A. McFarlane and P. Shannon.
Directors for Thurlow—Wm. Clazie and Ed. Braddon.
Director for Tweed—George Noble.
Director for Deseronto—Jno. McCullough.

After the election of officers, Mr. A. H. Pettit gave a very instructive address on "fruit growing."

He was followed by Dr. Cowan, who addressed the meeting on the most economical method of producing food for stock.

Mr. Geo. Noble then gave a very interesting talk on the proper aeration of milk. He exhibited his entirely new and novel milk aerator, which for its simplicity and adaptability, must recommend itself to dairymen.

It was then moved by Mr. Jas. Clare and seconded by Mr. Jno. Stokes, and unanimously resolved, that the thanks of the meeting be tendered to Mr. Pettit and Dr. Cowan for their presence and also for the instructive addresses which they delivered.

"Despise not the day of small things," as the tiny pill (taken from a vial of Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets) said to the 300 pound man, suffering from indigestion. As a gentle, thorough laxative, these Pellets resemble Nature more closely in their action than anything before discovered. Business and professional men, whose habits are sedentary, need something of this kind to ward off sick headache, biliousness and dyspepsia, but which will not strain and rack the digestive organs as did the old-fashioned pill. 25 cents per vial, at all druggists.

ONTARIO LEGISLATURE.

EXTENDING THE TORRENS LAND SYSTEM.

What Mr. Mowat Had to Say Thereanent—The Conviction of Farmers' Sons Forms the Subject of a Debate in the House Yesterday.

TORONTO, April 4.—In the Ontario Assembly yesterday Mr. Wood (Hastings) asked whether it was the intention of the Government to take any steps for the purpose of extending the benefits of the Torrens system of land transfer to other counties of Ontario on the same terms as the system was introduced into the city of Toronto and county of York.

Mr. Mowat in reply said the same terms applied to the whole province as to Toronto and York. Although the act applied specially to Toronto, York and a few other places, any county, city or town might adopt the system by passing a bylaw declaring such expedient. The act was imposed upon Toronto and York because it was so important that it was desired to show other municipalities how it worked. Any other municipality may adopt the system by passing the necessary bylaws. The act was passed for Toronto in March, 1885. In that year there was a deficit between receipts and expenditures of about $1000; in 1886 a deficit of about $1600; in 1887 a deficit of $900; in 1888 a deficit of about $1000. But in 1889 there was a surplus of $2000 and in 1890 a surplus of $1200. In all the practical result was that there was a deficit of only $331. He believed the receipts would soon exceed the expenditure.

Among the bills introduced was one by Mr. Tait to amend the Municipal Act by compelling telegraph and telephone companies to put their wires into cable and to allow other companies the use of their poles.

The attention of the House was occupied the greater part of the afternoon in discussing the facilities for education afforded farmers' sons. It came upon a resolution of Mr. McLenaghan that in the opinion of the House greater local facilities should be given to farmers' sons by which they could secure a better education in their own calling than is afforded under the provisions of the law as it now stands.

The attention of the House having been directed to the question the motion was withdrawn.

ENGLISH OPINION

Of the Italian-American Riot Embroglio.

LONDON, April 3.—Current opinion here is setting more steadily against the action of the Marquis di Rudini in trying to force the hands of Mr. Blaine in the matter of the lynching of Italians in New Orleans. Tomorrow's leading high class weeklies devote considerable attention to an analysis of the position and generally discuss the affair from the standpoint of the United States constitution. The Spectator holds that "serious thinking Americans will admit the imperfection of the constitution and that they are bound to remedy the defect all the more because there is a small chance of their being compelled to remedy it."

The Spectator ridicules the notion of Italy declaring war against one of the greatest powers in the world—a power capable within six months of buying and building a fleet that would block every port in Italy American ingenuity would be so stimulated to outdo itself that it would turn every steamer that could float into an improvised ironclad."

The Economist says: The Marquis di Rudini and his Government cannot sit still, cannot fight and cannot obtain the redress they want without fighting Italy's allies, will never permit her to risk a war that would disturb European combinations. The United States holds the exceptional position that it cannot be conquered by any power or probable combination of powers even if all Europeans allied and made the attempt. But the United States also cannot conquer any great power. Yet if the United States continues to claim exemption from pressing international obligations its position will not be supported without new internately laws or a recourse to war to obtain modifications.

The Conservative press apply the difficulty to illustrate the evil that would result from the concession of Home Rule to Ireland and the comparison will have undoubted potency in electoral platforms. If autonomy should be granted to Ireland, it is argued, how could the Irish be compelled except forcibly to observe foreign and impartial obligations. It is argued that "Federal institutions cannot be worked by a nation having wide external interests. They worked with success in the United States because until recently that country had no foreign policy." The Conservatives fling about with delighted surprise these new reasons against home rule. It was reported to-night that Lord Salisbury, on the instigation of the Marquis di Rudini, would offer to mediate for adjustment of the difference between Italy and the United States. A high foreign official said, however, that the question had not been discussed.

O'Malley Surrenders.

NEW ORLEANS, April 3.—Dominick O'Malley, the notorious detective charged with having attempted to pack the jury in the Hennessy case, created a sensation here to-day by surrendering himself. There are three indictments against him, one as accessory to the crime of bribing one of the jurors in the Hennessy case, one for perjury in a suit in the Civic Court several years ago and one for attempting to procure the commission of perjury in 1882 in a criminal suit of the state against himself. O'Malley gave $3000 bail. He looked well though rather pale. He refused to talk, but said he would make a statement. He would not tell whether he had been away from the city or not. His bondsman says he has been here all the time.

To be Extended to Simcoe.

WALKERVILLE, April 3.—The Lake Erie, Essex & Detroit Railway is to be extended as far as Simcoe for the purpose of opening up new territory, from which Walker & Son can readily draw supplies of wheat, barley and oats.

The Poor Italian.

PARKERSBURG, W. Va., April 3.—There is considerable commotion among the railroad lines in this state and there are indications that the Italians are avenging their countrymen by destroying property. Two attempts to wreck the fast express on the B. & O. Railway were detected in time to prevent loss of life. A large depot and store building on the Baltimore & Ohio at Constitution was blown up with dynamite, completely wrecking the building and causing a heavy loss. All the contents were destroyed. All these crimes are charged to the Italians.

All was quiet in the Pennsylvania coal regions last night. There was sudden and unexpected movement of strikers toward Moarewood and the guard at that place has been trebled.

Milton Ownby and Tom Kirby, prominent citizens of Maynard, Ark., settled a dispute with shotguns yesterday. Kirby's head was blown off, while Ownby was seriously wounded.

A fireman and two brakemen were killed by a head collision on the Erie, near Hornellsville, N.Y., last night. Carelessness of a train crew leaving a station without orders was the cause of the wreck.

Dominick C. O'Malley, the detective charged with having attempted to pack the jury in the Hennessey case at New Orleans, surrendered himself to the authorities there yesterday and was released on $3000 bail. He declined to make a statement.

FIGHTING FOR ZION.

Latter-day Saints Engage in Unseemly Wrangles Over Gabriel's Temple Site.

INDEPENDENCE, Mo., April 3.—The two branches of the Mormon Church, known respectively as the Hendrickites and the reorganized church, are fighting for the possession of Mount Zion, a low hill of about four acres in extent, selected by Joseph Smith as the place where all the elect will assemble on judgment day and from there be taken into Heaven. The Mormons believe that the foundations of a magnificent temple laid many years ago by the Angel Gabriel are just under the surface of the ground and the place is pitted with holes dug by zealous believers who have endeavored to discover the walls. Some time, so they believe, the Angel Gabriel and his hosts will descend from heaven and uncover these foundations, and then in a single night erect the most beautiful temple ever beheld by mortal eyes. Hendrickites have a church on Mount Zion, and the title to the property is vested in one of their number as trustee. The reorganized church is contesting the title. Last night the church building was nearly wrecked. All the windows were broken, the furniture was turned upside down and the altar was overturned. The Hendrickites claim the desecration was done by the Reformed Church.

A MISER'S HOARDE.

ST. CATHARINES, April 3.—Mr. John Hainer of this city moved a barn from his deceased father's residence to his own place. This morning as the building was being placed in position Hainer, while examining the partitions, found an old buckskin purse hid away in them. Upon opening it a gold piece rolled to the ground and further examination disclosed a sum amounting to about $700 in gold coin. Some of the coins bore the date of 1820. The money is supposed to have been placed there by the finder's father, John Hainer, sr.

MILTON, April 3.—Mr. and Mrs. James A. Frazer left their house locked up and went to a neighbor's to spend a few hours. Miss Gillespie of Toronto, who was paying a visit at Mr. Frazer's, had gone down town and when she returned saw a light in Mr. Frazer's house and rang the front door bell, but got no response and found that the door was bolted on the inside. She notified the neighbors and on further investigation it was found the house had been entered and a pair of gold bracelets, a gold brooch and a card case belonging to Miss Gillespie, some jewelry belonging to Mrs. Frazer, a gold-mounted hair watch guard with a gold Masonic keystone belonging to Mr. Frazer and $12 in cash had been carried off. The burglars escaped in the meantime.

Off for Washington.

OTTAWA, April 3.—Sir Charles Tupper has left Washington for Ottawa and will reach here to-morrow (Saturday), when he will have a conference with Sir John Macdonald and his colleagues in reference to his recent trip to Washington. He must have met with some encouragement from Mr. Blaine, as it has been determined that after the conference to-morrow he will immediately return to Washington, accompanied by Sir John Thompson and Hon. Mr. Foster, and hold an informal interview with Mr. Blaine in that city early next week. If any headway is then made plenipotentiaries on behalf of England will be appointed for the negotiation of a treaty to settle the various trade and fishery issues before the two governments. Sir Charles Tupper will probably leave for England a week from to-day.

Sealskin Sacks in the Raw.

NORTH SYDNEY, C.B., April 3.—The following additional sealing news was received to-day: The Terranova arrived this morning with 3700 and reports speaking the Eagle Sunday with 21,000 young and old hoods. The Nimrod passed Cape Race at 6 a.m. Loaded steamer, supposed to be the Panter, passed Cape Ray to-day full. The Falcon is in Green's Pond loaded.

Scalded in Boiling Sap.

TILSONBURG, April 3.—James, the 10-year-old son of Mr. Joseph Campbell, was playing around the fireplace where sugar-making was being carried on in Thomas Scott's sugar bush in Dereham, when he slipped and landed on his back in the boiling kettle of sap. Fortunately his heavy clothing saved him from being scalded alive, but as it was his back and hips were severely scalded.

The Note Told the Story.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., April 3.—A special from Bryant Station says: Martin Mayberry was found dead this morning, hanging to a cedar tree a mile from here. A note was left by the lynchers saying: "This is done for the protection of our wives and daughters."

Crushed His Head to a Jelly.

NEWMARKET, April 3.—A young Indian lad named Porte, employed in Dr. Sibbald's bush, was cutting down a tree when it fell upon him, as he was found beneath a newly-felled tree with his face crushed almost beyond description. The dead boy was an orphan, being a son of the late Moses Porte of Georgina Island.

The Babe Never Grew.

MASCOUTAH, Ill., April 3.—Two years ago a girl weighing twelve pounds was born to Mr. and Mrs. Fritz Harback of St. Libory. The child was apparently healthy and was well-formed, but it never grew any after its birth. The 2-year-old mite died yesterday morning weighing precisely what it did when it was born.

Burglarized Again.

STITTSVILLE, April 3.—The Stittsville postoffice has again been burglarized. The thieves drilled the safe in two places at the top and fired two shots but did not succeed in opening it.

A Real Tragedy Enacted in a Manchester Theatre.

MANCHESTER, April 3.—Thomas Whalley fell dead last evening while playing the part of Mercutio in an amateur entertainment here, having been pierced by a lunge of Tybald's sword. A subsequent surgical examination disclosed a wound of seven inches, the sword having penetrated one lung. Ernest Thompson, the young man who played Tybald, was unaware that he had hurt his friend. The jury returned a verdict of "accidental death."

A Dose of Poison.

WINDSOR, April 3.—Patrick Ryan, a tramp, attempted to commit suicide by taking poison at Comber. He was pumped out and brought to Windsor yesterday. He was sent to Sandwich for three months as a vagrant.

The North of England iron masters have given notice of a 12½ per cent. reduction of wages, alleging that the cost of production exceeds the market price five shillings per ton.

A census of the United Kingdom will be taken Sunday. It is estimated the total population of England and Wales is 29,707,649; of Scotland, 4,170,547; of Ireland, 4,770,127.

The King of Greece is about to become a guest of the Prince of Wales at Marlborough House. He proposes to acquire an estate in England and to reside there permanently, abdicating the throne of Greece in favor of his son, the Duke of Sparta.

Secretary Blaine yesterday received the reply of the Italian Government to his note of Wednesday evening. The substance of the note has already been stated in despatches from Rome.

Not in It.

Sanso—Were you ever in a fight, Rodd?

Rodd—Yes-or-no or-that is I once had a fight; but I wasn't in it.

Unnecessary Training.

Mrs. Gazzan (to her daughter)—Annie, I'm thinking of sending you to boarding school.

Annie—Why, mamma, I never intend to keep boarders.

The Fees System.

Mr. Wood's motion relating to the payment of officials by fees was again postponed yesterday at the request of the Government. Official information on the subject, it is said, is being obtained.

The Success of its Graduates

Continues Year In and Year Out.

The success of the graduates of Ontario Business College of this city is one characteristic of the institution to which is due its great prosperity. Under the personal practical training of Messrs. Robinson and Johnson, and their staff of exceptionally able assistants, an equipment is secured by young men and women that fits them at once to enter the business world with confidence. The following is a partial list of positions secured by graduates within the past few weeks:

Harvey Grimnon, with Lake Transit Co., Detroit, Mich.; W. B. Bishop, with McMaster & Co., Toronto; H. C. Leech, with Montgomery, Ward & Co., Chicago; Miss B. Patton, with McArthur, Stevenson & McIver, Kamloops, B.C.; F. W. Colpitts, with E. C. Cole, Moncton, N.B.; C. C. French, with Freehold Loan and Savings Co., Toronto; G. E. Kyle, with R. Chestnut & Son, Fredericton, N.B.; J. H. Macfarlane, with North Pacific Lumber Co., Pt. Moody, B.C; Miss G. Linn, with M. J. Crottie, Toronto; Gordon Hill, with Grosvenor & Richards, Boston; Wm. Watt, with A. McDonald, Peterborough; E. C. Gaynor, with Hill & Greene, Beverley, Mass.; Wm. Maclaren, with Bank of Ottawa, Arnprior; R. C. McDonald, with John Macdonald, Oswego, N.Y.; B. Bell Found Guilty.

Sentence Deferred Until Monday Next.

Benjamin Bell, who on Monday last was arrested on the charge of breaking into a store room in the Anglo American Hotel and stealing some 700 cigars, two coats and other small articles, belonging to Mr. D. Coyle, and also a large valise, the property of a traveller named Hamill, was yesterday afternoon tried before Judge Lazier in interim sessions. Mr. Geo. E. Henderson, Q.C., County Attorney, prosecuted, the prisoner defending himself. It was proved conclusively that the articles found in possession of the prisoner belonged to Mr. Coyle, and he was found guilty. Sentence was, however, reserved until Monday afternoon, when it is expected that Mr. Hamill will be in the city, and will be called upon to identify the valise which was found in Bell's possession.

Since Bell's arrest, Chief Newton has communicated with the Chiefs of Police of Galt and Brockville, where the prisoners said he had once resided, but nothing could be learned of him. He is suspected of being a hardened criminal and an old "penitentiary bird."

Used in the Hospital,

And endorsed by the medical faculty throughout the states, Clark's Catarrh Cure has come to be regarded as the only real specific for that disease. In every case it works a certain, safe, and speedy cure. Pleasant to taste and smell, it is yet powerful in healing and restoring the natural functions. No other remedy gives such satisfaction, because the results from use are not the same. Sold by all druggists, or sent to any address on receipt of 50 cents by Clark Chemical Co., Toronto New York.

Opera House. Tuesday, April 14.

"Aunt Jack" is a farce comedy that is making London laugh, with Miss Paget in the title-role. The plot is based on a number of comic situations growing out of a breach of promise case between Aunt Jack, a country spinster, and a pompous old Colonel Tavenor. There are a number of comic surprises, which set the house in a in a roar, and the dialogue of the piece is bright.—N.Y. World, Oct. 31, 1889.

NUMBERING THE PEOPLE.

The Census Enumerators to Commence on Monday.

Their Work to be Extensive and Complete.

On Monday next a vast army of census enumerators will enter upon the work of numbering the residents of this fair Dominion, their children, servants, cattle, sheep and other animals, in fact a general national stock-taking. To prepare for this important event, the enumerators have been instructed in their duties by the district commissioners, who have likewise furnished them with books of instruction, with which they are now thoroughly familiar. There are in all eight schedules to be filled out, each containing questions of a public or private nature on every topic which has been conceived to be of possible public interest. The enumerators and their superiors, who will forward their information to Ottawa, are all sworn to secrecy. A feeling is prevalent in some localities that the census has something to do with the levying of taxes. This is an error, as it will in no wise interfere with taxation. The information that is given, as above stated, is furnished under secrecy, and the only persons aware of the facts are the enumerators and Government statistical officers. Municipal or other tax officers are not allowed to use the census returns. The work, it is expected, will take about three weeks, the large number of questions requiring considerable labor. The result of the census will be awaited with interest, as every Canadian must wish to learn just how our country and its people are prospering and progressing.

Mr. Arthur McGinnis, of this city, is Commissioner for West Hastings. The Riding has been divided into four divisions, namely, Belleville, div. A; Frankford, div. B; Sidney, div. C; and Trenton, div. D. There are in all 15 enumerators, 8 for the city, 1 for Frankford village, 3 for Sidney township, and 3 for the town of Trenton. The following are the enumerators:

Belleville—Wm. Blaind, Jas. Bonar, Frank Doyle, Jas. D. Clarke, H. Wimperly, Thos. Lynch, H. Phillpot and H. McInlnch.

Frankford—John Consaul.

Trenton—D. McCaulay, C. Weaver and R. J. Gaina.

The third act of "Aunt Jack," which will be produced here on April 14th, in which the judge, jury, and whole court join in the chorus, is one of the jolliest scenes witnessed on the stage for a long time.—N. Y. World.

The Ladies' Whist Club.

"Is it my lead?" asked the first.
"Well, of all hands, I've the worst."
"Dear me! if I only knew
What you had," chirps number two.
"Now I can't say on the whole,
That this play accords with Pole,
But it is the best I have,"
Number three stays mild and suave.
While above this small uproar,
Comes the chorus from all four,
"What's the trump?"

"Miss Brown, is that your ace?
O, say have you seen the lace
Selling now at Brown and Dart's?
I forgot that she trumps hearts,
And the most exquisite shade—
Gracious, haven't you a spade?
Is it my play? What was led?
Do you know you can get thread
Only four cents—John Smith's best?"
Just here chime in all the rest,
"What's the trump?"

"This I think the leading spade,
O, I thought the jack was played,
Well, that makes two points for you.
One for us did you say, Flo?
How can that be? Did you trump?
Have you heard about the bump
Lizzie's boy had on his head?
Isn't that a lovely spread?
Did I take that trick? Dear me!"
Here strike in the other three,
'What's the trump?'

"How much better we all play
Than we did. Well I should say!
Once I couldn't keep my mind
On the game, but now I find
It is as easy as can be.
Is it your deal? Let me see—
No; the cards belong to you,
I remember now that Flo
Led the king and that the nine—
Did you say the lead was mine?
"What's the trump?"

Nickel News.

Mr. James A. Orr, who has been a pioneer in newspaper enterprise in various places in Ontario, has started the Sudbury Journal, the only periodical published in the nickel region, of which so much has been written of late. The news given in the paper principally relates, as might be expected, to the mining interests and development of the region with which the name of name of Sudbury is identified.

For Delicate, Sickly Children

Scott's Emulsion is unequalled. See what Dr. C. A. Black, of Amherst, N. S., says: "I have been acquainted with Scott's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil, with Hypophosphites, for years, and consider it one of the finest preparations now before the public. Its pleasant flavor makes it the great favorite for children, and I do highly recommend it for all wasting diseases of children and adults. Sold by Druggists, 50c, and $1 00.

Juvenile S. O. E.

At a meeting last evening of the members of the Juvenile branch of the Sons of England, the following were elected as first office bearers: Wm. Lowe, Inside Guard; Harry Wannamaker, Outside Guard. Large bottles 50 cents and $1.

Correspondence.

Whilst correspondents will be accorded space for the expression of their ideas on topics of public interest, it must be in all cases understood that the views so expressed are simply those of he correspondents themselves.

To the Editor of the Intelligencer,

Sir,—I see by last evening's issue of the Intelligencer a letter signed by Mr. Charles Merriam and headed "was he the inventor?" In answer I am and have obtained letters patent on three different machines in Canada also United States patent, all carrying out the same idea and each an improvement on the first. The idea is an old one and well known in science and repeated attempts have been unsuccessfully made to utilize it satisfactorily. The difference between Mr. Merriam's machine and mine is so great that if there were any novelty in his he could still obtain letters patent. I am reliably informed that his application for letters patent was refused both in Canada and the United States before my application was sent in. This is of itself I think sufficient to prove that I have not taken my idea from him.

Yours respectfully,
S. R. Earle.

"Civic Retrenchment."

To the Editor of the Intelligencer,

Dear Sir,—I have read "Oberver's" letter in yours of Thursday. He says, "leave the officials alone." Pray why, when a general retrenchment is at hand? The committee in this matter, asked by Ald. Skinner, has done its duty—in the opinion of the writer, not quite as was hoped for, but half a loaf is better than none. If the other committees of the Council act in the same line great good will come about. "Observer" must bear in mind that the officials' salaries are not fixed in the sense of must not be touched. They are and should be liable to change as civic finances and the value of their services justify. Again, there is no intention that they must be sufficient to "live upon," and again that depends on who the "unfortunate" may be. Suppose they are not content with the sums tendered by the committee. They may resign, and there are lots quite as good, ready for their places, and rest assured at much less salary; but because they are "now in the service" they are getting 50% more than if a new lot were appointed, I am sure.

These offices at still much reduced salaries would be nice perquisites to lots of our citizens and the service not one bit less effective.

"Observer" suggests less expenditure in other branches of the service. Well, take the Public Works service—if his wish were carried out, and say nothing expended this season at all—this means say $8,000. Would it not be reducing the wages of the laborers who get work in that branch? And yet this may not be, apparently is not, wrong in the eyes of "Observer"; but it is sacrilege when you touch an official in the higher walks of life. There is no just reason why the officials of the city should not feel the pinch of hard times, as well as others; moreover, the offices (leaving out of the case the gentlemen who fill them) are not worth the salaries set apart for them; quite as good work, as I have said before, can be got for 50 per cent. less. The city would soon get into a worse shape if "Observer" had the sole control, when he thinks "$800 a paltry saving" —but the reduction ought to have been double that, in the opinion of a Taxpayer.

Saturday, April 4th, 1891.

Millbridge, April 3rd, 1891.

Dear Sir,—I was forcibly reminded of the adage, "Truth is stronger than fiction," when I noticed a letter dated at Cleveland, Ohio, March 17th, which appeared in your issue of the 1st inst., over the name of H. M. McIntosh, Manager of the Central Ontario Railway, and Secretary of the Canada Copper Co., Sudbury, and saw that Mr. S. J. Ritchie, the much talked about Railway and nickel-silver king, had been repudiated and Jonah like thrown overboard, by a corporation in which all Mr. Ritchie's letters to the Canadian press for the past 3 years were calculated to make the public believe he held a controlling interest. Ye gods! how have the mighty fallen!

'Twas but the other day we beheld this would be political Warwick forging his literary thunderbolts to be hurled by his factotum at Trenton, on the devoted heads of Messrs. Bowell, Cochrane, Corby and Miller, the Government candidates for the constituencies contiguous to the C. O. Railway, because forsooth the Government could not, consistently with its duty to the country's interests, grant a subsidy for the extension of this road, on the specious promises and representations of a wily Yankee, without first obtaining a satisfactory guarantee that those promises would be fulfilled.

That the Government at Ottawa estimated Mr. Ritchie at his true worth, the recent action of the Canada Copper Company has made abundantly clear, and the 5th of March demonstrated the impotency of those letters which were incubated at the secret cabal held in Toronto and brought to public notice under the auspices of the man "Friday," Supt., etc., to delude the intelligent electors of four ridings into the belief that the Government, under pressure from the C. P. Railway would refuse to subsidize the proposed extension from Coe Hill, an extension which Mr. Ritchie strongly urged on the grounds that it alone would enable him to develop the great nickel, silver and copper deposits at Sudbury that were being worked by a company in which it now appears he had no interest. This contemptible piece of political chicanery met, however, with exactly the fate it deserved, thanks to the true friends of the proposed extension promptly putting themselves into communication with Sir John at Kingston and effectually arresting a movement by which our Reform friends fondly imagined they would carry four constituencies. But the heat and din of the contest are over. Many here who were duped into voting against our honored old representative are now bitterly cursing their folly and we trust, in fact we know, that the Hon. M. Bowell and his victorious colleagues are too magnanimous to allow the Judas-like treachery of Ritchie, "Friday," et al., to stand in the way of giving a fair and patriotic support to the C.O.R. extension, when the question of subsidizing that enterprise comes up for discussion. Yours truly, Berwick.

The Spring Medicine.

The popularity which Hood's Sarsaparilla has gained as a spring medicine is wonderful. It possesses just those elements of health giving, blood-purifying and appetite-restoring which everybody seems to need at this season. Do not continue in a dull, tired, unsatisfactory condition when you may be so much benefitted by Hood's Sarsaparilla. It purifies the blood and makes the weak strong.

Purely Vegetable.

First the bud, then the blossom, then the perfect fruit. These are the several stages of some of the most important ingredients composing the painless and sure corn cure—Putnam's Painless Corn Extractor. The juices of plants greatly concentrated and purified, gums and balsams in harmonious union, all combined give the grand results. Putnam's Extractor makes no sore spot, does not lay a man up for a week, but goes on quietly doing its work until a perfect cure results. Beware of acid substitutes.

UNDER TONS OF SNOW.

AN AVALANCHE OF SNOW SWEEPS DOWN FROM A CLIFF.

Many Persons Killed and Others Injured in Newfoundland—Bodies Mangled Beyond Recognition.

Halifax, N.S., April 3.—At St. Anthony, Nfld., an avalanche of snow swept down from a high cliff and buried under its enormous weight the house of Levy Andrews, about 60 or 70 feet from the foot of the cliff. Nine persons were in the house at the time of the accident, five in the loft and four in the kitchen. Mrs. Andrews was going out in the porch at the time, and six days after her lifeless body was found under 14 feet of snow. The head was smashed in and her neck and arms broken. The eldest daughter was discovered lying across the stove, riged in death and the stove was smashed in atoms. One of the sons died from his injuries. At the time of the terrible affair George Reid was up in the loft fixing a trap and is unable to lift his arms to his head. One of the girls rescued had her leg broken and suffered considerable pain. It was an awful sight to behold the disfigured bodies and the house broken up like so much tinder wood.

OH! THE RARITY.

Newmarket, April 2.—John Hambly, whose wife is in Hamilton asylum, is the father of several young children who live with their parents amid the filth and dirt of an old house in York-street. Although Hambly earns good wages as a laborer and has steady employment his family are in want and misery. For thrashing his eldest daughter with an iron poker Hambly was brought before Police Magistrate Pattullo and the case was adjourned, and in the meantime an effort will be made to have Hambly's neglected offspring sent to an industrial school, where they can be properly taken care of.

More Than Motherless Babes.

Stouffville, April 3.—Living in a log hut in the swamp, along the railway track about 2¼ miles northeast of Stouffville, live two families, Hamiltons and Middletons, in a wretched state. The woman called Mrs. Hamilton is lying in bed sick and miserable. There are about eight small children between the ages of six months and 12 years, some of them nearly naked. One young lad is blind and paralyzed and is an object of pity, his feet being frozen in the house a short time ago. It is next to impossible to describe the appearance of the hovel they are in, dirt and squalor and filth on every side. It is a horrible place for human beings and especially for a sick woman and young children.

Friends She Had None.

Dundalk, April 3.—An old woman, who appears to be a confirmed tramp, was given comfortable lodging at the Connor House. She retired, but not to sleep. About 1 o'clock she began to sing and yell, awaking everyone in the house. Mrs. Connor and other ladies arose and endeavored to quiet her, but in vain. Dr. Greenlaw prepared a soothing dose for her, but she refused it with the advice, "Drink it yourself, dear." Left alone, she jumped out of the side window, barefooted and bareheaded, yelling "Murder!" As it was a very cold night she was caught and brought back, kept until morning and then turned loose.

A Peculiar Mania.

Arnprior, April 3.—Patrick Malia, who is well known throughout the Ottawa district as an expert hunter and bushman, held the delusion that Thomas Havey had for some time past been applying a "magnet," as he termed it, to his (Malia's) head which caused him great torment, and he resolved to shoot Mr. Havey in order to remove the trouble. With loaded rifle he lay in wait for Mr. Havey, but fortunately did not succeed in getting a shot at him. He was arrested and brought to Arnprior.

Fiends Justly Punished.

Walter's Falls, April 3.—Some young men coaxed Mr. Barker's dog into John Seeks' shop, and after pouring turpentine on him set fire to him and let him go. The dog ran some miles trying to escape the fire, but could not, and was burned so badly that he died. James Walters was fined $23,25, including costs, or 40 days in jail; Frank Walters was fined $13.89, including costs, or 30 days in jail, and the three who witnessed the act were each fined $3.89, including costs for breaking the Sabbath. The two former men will serve their time in jail.

A Uniform Monetary System.

Washington, April 3.—The International American Monetary Commission, which organized here last January, closed its sessions to-day by adoption of the following: "Resolved that this commission brings its sessions to a close expressing the wish that before long another commission may meet which shall reach an agreement to bring about the adoption of a uniform monetary system among the nations of America advantageous to one and all."

Fears of a Flood in Montreal.

Montreal, April 3.—Fears of a flood are predominant at Montreal, the immediate cause of the sudden anxiety being the shoves that took place in the ice to-day and the rise of water which followed, the water which is rising steadily being now within 6½ feet of the level of the road. It is thought that while the dyke may withstand the force of the ice it may not be watertight and this is looked upon as an element of danger.

Here's a State of Things.

Winnipeg, April 3.—Watson's majority in Marquette is 46, he gaining 34 on the recount. In some places the total vote was thrown out owing to the illegal manner in which the deputies had marked ballots. Boyd claims he is defeated by blunders of deputies and that he has an actual majority of 37. A protest will probably be entered.

A Fateful Day for Murray.

London, April 3.—The trial of Robert Murray for the murder of William O. Rowe in Metcalfe, was begun to-day at the Assize Court here before Justice Falconbridge. It was shown by the defence that the first blow was struck by Rowe and that Murray had previously borne a good character. The evidence was concluded this evening and the case will go to the jury to-morrow.

Peanut Growers Alarmed.

Richmond, Va., April 3.—Reports received here from several of the principal peanut sections of this State and from Tarboro, N.C., announce that growers of that crop are alarmed at the speck of war between Italy and the United States. A war, it is feared, would mean death to that industry since two-thirds of the crop is handled by Italians.

Reduced Whisky.

Quebec, April 3.—By order of the revenue department $16,000 worth of smuggled whisky was sold at public auction this morning, and adjudged to A. M. A. Charelois, acting for Gooderham & Worts, Toronto.

Resigned His Portfolio.

Winnipeg, April 3.—Attorney-General Martin to-day resigned his portfolio, but says he will remain in the House and give the Government his loyal support. His reasons for resigning are that his private affairs require all his attention.

Died from Fright.

Arnprior, April 3.—Mrs. William J. Armstrong of Fitzroy discovered smoke in the house and concluding that it was on fire was so overcome with fright that she expired within an hour.

"HARVARD" BRONCHIAL SYRUP

Large Bottles, 25c. Extra Large, 50c.

As the name implies, emanates from the Medical Faculty of Harvard University. The highest and best medical skill and knowledge in America were employed in devising this medicine, with a result that has even surpassed the expectations of the compounders, and has proved a wonderful cure for all throat troubles arising from sudden colds. THE GRANDEST MEDICINE OF THE AGE.

TORONTO TRUTH'S New Spring Bible Competition

NO. 22.

In these latter days there have arisen many false schemes and many scores of imitations of Truth's Competitions, but one after another have failed and utterly perished, yet Truth remains, and makes good all its promises. It reputation is now too well established to risk damaging it, and as it has cost a very large amount of money and many years of care and labor to build up, the publisher could not afford to fail in carrying out all his agreements to the letter. There are twenty-one divisions of the largest list of bona fide prizes ever offered and ever actually given away by any publisher in the world. The total value of prizes in this Spring list is about $10,000,00. The lists are so large it would cost altogether too much to give them in detail here. There are pianos, gold and silver watches, china tea and dinner sets, ladies' and gentlemen's bicycles, silver teasets, silk dresses, books, money, and hundreds of other valuable rewards. You pay nothing for these prizes, as everyone concedes that full value is received for the dollar in securing Truth every week for three months. Send one dollar and answers to the five following questions: Where in the Bible are these words found? 1, Grain; 2, Corn; 3, Wheat; 4, Barley; 5, Rye. If your answers are correct and your letters arrive in time you are almost sure to get a reward, as there are so many and every one cannot always find correct answers to all these questions. All the five answers must be correct to get any prize, but you will get full value for the dollar in Truth if you don't get anything else. If you want to see the list of rewards before sending in your dollar, mail Truth ten cents and a copy will be sent you containing the list of prizes. But there have been very few dissatisfied prize-winners in previous competitions, considering that he has given away durig the past eight years scores of thousands of prizes. Some people expect a piano for every dollar sent, and are mad if they don't get it. He wishes it were possible to give every subscriber a gold watch or a piano or both, but says it can't be done. Some publishers intimate they will, but nobody can do it for any length of time. Send one dollar and correct answers and you won't repent it; and bear in mind that it is not guaranteed that every body whose answers are correct will get a prize, but that all the prizes in the twenty one different lists will be given away. The competition remains open only till the last day of June next, inclusive, after which the prizes will be immediately distributed to the successful ones. Ten days will be allowed for letters to reach Truth from distant points after the 30th of June. All, however, must be postmarked where mailed not later than the 30th June, or any time between now and that date. Address S. Frank Wilson, "Truth" Office, Toronto, Ont., Canada.

PRESERVING THE DEAD.

THE FRENCH SYSTEM OF ELECTRO-PLATING BODIES.

How This Method is Carried Out—What Has Been Done in Past Ages—The Trend of Modern Inclination in Favor of Cremation.

The disposition of the dead has been a serious problem among all nations. Respect for the dear departed cried aloud for some method of preservation; questions of health and sanitation urged the quick resolution of the body into its primitive dust. Slow decay amid the dull, cold obstruction of the tomb was the means adopted by our forefathers, who found solemn promise in obituary verse and stately epitaphs. The modern trend has been in favor of cremation and memorial urns, which is a revival on an improved plan of the old Eastern system of burning the dead. Still there are many who find grim solace in the old graveyard, and wish their bones to repose under the shade of weeping willow and drooping yews, while the process of embalming has numerous adherents among the wealthy who want to insure their lineaments against decay.

The art of preserving the body after death was brought to great perfection by the ancient Egyptians. Their methods varied according to circumstances and notions of the operators. Some of the ghostly relics of the catacombs give evidence of having been dried by vegetable and balsamic substances; others have defied the worm and natural corruption by the aid of salt or natron. Aromatic gums or asphaltum were used for the first class of mummies, which have been found in a good state of preservation. Those prepared with salt and natron have a hard, black and smooth appearance; they attract moisture on being exposed to the air and become covered with a saline substance. The bodies were rolled up in bandages of silk and linen, which were sometimes 1,000 yards in length.

The coffins were usually of sycamore, cedar or pasteboard; the case was covered within and without by paintings of funeral scenes and other subjects; the cover was ornamented in the same manner, and bore also the painted and often gilded face of the deceased in relief. Not only were human corpses preserved in this fashion, but all animals held sacred by the Egyptian religion were mummified.

But Egypt was not the only country in which embalming was practiced successfully. It appears to have been a dogma among several other ancient nations, inculcated by their religion, that the soul continued in the body after death. They looked upon it as a duty, therefore, to keep the tabernacle of the soul intact, and hold sacred the resting place of the dead. In some countries corpses were exposed to the air a certain period and became mummies by the operation of natural causes. Peculiar conditions of the soil and atmosphere rapidly dried the animal tissues and prevented putrefaction. A large number of mummies were found in the environs of Durango, Mexico. They were in a sitting posture, but had the same kind of wrappings, bands and ornaments as the Egyptian.

The modern system of embalming follows the general plan of that of the ancients, consisting of filling the place of the intestines with odoriferous and desiccative drugs and spices, but it is not expected that bodies treated nowadays will defy the ravages of time as long as the mummies of Egypt. Thoroughness was a pronounced characteristic of the Egyptians. They embalmed as they built—for all time. The thousands of small bandages which enclosed the body formed part of their system, and the whole treatment must have taken a great deal more time than our undertakers are allowed to prepare a corpse for burial.

Always foremost in grim and fantastic notions, the French are engaged in discussing a new method of preserving the dead which has many marked advantages over that of the Egyptians. Our museums have familiarized us with mummies. They are shrivelled, unsightly cadavers, and emit a sickly, nasty odor. The American clime seems to have a bad effect upon them, for mummies that have braved the worms of Egypt for thousands of years have crumbled into dust upon the removal of their wraps in the United States. All the disagreeable features of the old-time mummy are avoided by the French plan.

No wraps or desiccating drugs are needed; there is no danger of the preserved body dropping to pieces in any climate. On the contrary, the French mummy may be made ornamental, if not useful, and threatens to cause a revolution in the art of sculpture. It will be neither more nor less than electro-plated corpse coated with gold, silver, nickel or brass, according to the taste and fortune of the bereaved.

Dr. Variot, one of the foremost practitioners in the Paris hospitals, is the author of the system, whose result has been termed "L'anthropoplastic galvanique." His mode of procedure is as follows: He places the body in a double frame, with four uprights fastened together, with square trays, and then covers the frame with a pneumatic bell. The body is preforated by a metallic wire, one end going through the roof of the skull, while the other rests in the tray at the feet. This wire not only acts as a support to the corpse but as a conductor of electricity.

The uprights and other portions of the frames are carefully insulated with India rubber, gutta percha or parafine. A small thermo-electric battery furnishes the current. A metallic contact descends from the upper tray and rests lightly upon the surface of the cadaver. The surface of the feet and palms of the hands also rests upon two contacts, and in addition contacts are scheloned on the uprights and frame, and can be applied or disconnected at pleasure.

Before the apparatus is plunged in a galvanic bath the body has to be rendered a perfect electric conductor. For this purpose the operator either paints the corpse with a solution of nitrate of silver or he puts a powdered preparation of the same on the surface of the skin. The caustic penetrates the surface and the skin turns an opaque color. Afterward the nitrate of silver has to be reduced or separated from its oxide, but this presents no great difficulty. The double framework is then placed in a reservoir, from which the air is exhausted by a pump, and vapors of white phosphorus dissolved in sulphur of carbon are introduced.

This is a dangerous operation, as are all operations in which dissolved phosphorus plays any part. After the phosphoric vapors have reduced the nitrate of silver the corpse becomes a grayish white, and is a perfect fac-simile of a plaster of Paris statue. The metallization is then very simple, being effected by a galvanic bath in the usual way.

The French capital is greatly excited over this method of making indestructible mummies. Should it come into favor metallized bodies may soon take the place of wax figures and statuary in museums, galleries, and even private residences. Not only can the last expression of the deceased be preserved, but various poses produced, and by deft manipulation the countenance of the corpse changed to express almost any emotion.

The body of the warrior may be made to assume a martial attitude. The dead preacher could be electro-plated in the act of exhortation. Statesmen and heroes could bequeath their remains to a sorrowing nation, and coated with gold, silver or brass, preside in person over their own monuments. In fact, there is no end of practical or romantic purposes to which our plated bodies might be put, from the pointing of a moral to the adornment of a tale, and even to the portrayal of some striking episode in national life.

In one or two parts of England there are wells whose waters petrify anything placed therein. The most remarkable of these petrifying cisterns are show places in the vales of Derbyshire. Water strongly impregnated with lime springs from the surrounding hills, and is conveyed to the wells in pipes, where scores of jets distribute it in the form of spray. Birds' nests, baskets, eggs, pipes, the skeletons of birds and animals, etc., are slowly coated with limestone by the incessant fall of the spray, and shown for specimens of petrification.

Enterprising showmen once got possession of a well for the manufacture of a petrified body, but public opinion was so great that they were driven in disgrace from the neighborhood. The French people, however, are different to the English. Dr. Variot, the introducer of this last method of perpetuating dead bodies, is hailed by many as a public benefactor, and the gilded cadavers of his unique undertaking establishment create as much admiration as wonder.—Jewelers' Weekly.

A BUCKET OF WHISKY

HOW IT ACCIDENTALLY REFORMED A CONFIRMED DRUNKARD.

'Twas Betsy's Medicine and He Tampered With It—Then She Threw Him Aside and When He Got Up All the Whisky Was Out of Him.

Plenty of business, but it was late in the season, later than we should have been out on the road, with tropical animals, cat beasts and monkeys, exposed to the changes and vigors of a bad October, but the boss had determined to take the chances on playing us back to winter quarters. So we fought along until we got to Troy, which was not very far from home, and by that time nearly half our animals were ailing. A cold rain set in in the morning, and about noon was followed by a keen wind that rightly belonged a month later in the season, so that, by the time we got the canvas up for the afternoon's performance, everything alive about the show, man and beast, was chilled to the bone, and cross and mad all the way through.

Bill Newman, the elephant keeper—and one of the best in the world he is—grabbed up a bucket and started for the nearest saloon, and in Troy he didn't have to go far to find one.

"Gimme a bucket of whisky," says he to the barkeeper.

"For money. D'ye suppose I expected to get it for wind?" answered Bill, with a snarl, for he didn't care much about talk with strangers at any time, least of all when he was cold, mad and in a hurry.

The barkeeper looked offended, but silently drew the bucket full of whisky, and Bill paid his $5 for it and went out. I was in there when he came in, because the rheumatism had laid me off duty in the ring, and I had got a room for the night over the saloon, which was a sort of hotel, where I could keep dry and warm. And I staid there when Bill went out.

"Them circus fellers must be going to have a good time," said a seedy looking stranger grabbing in the cracker bowl on the bar.

"Don't you believe it," chipped in a spy, reporter-looking young chap who had come in for a cigar; "that whisky will probably all be swallowed in one drink, but no man will get any more of it than a smell of the bucket."

The barkeeper's eyes bulged out, and the seedy man asked, "How's that?"

"They no doubt have a chilled elephant, and whisky is their quickest and best remedy. That's one of the few times there is any good in whisky."

He was right. The minute I saw Bill come in I knew what was the matter; but not many persons except showmen—and reporters, of course, for they seem to know a good deal about almost everything—would have guessed what all that liquor was for.

"Gosh! I wish I was a sick elephant!" broke out a voice behind me in a tone of really painful longing.

I turned and looked with some curiosity at the speaker. Well, I've seen a good many bummers, some of them fine specimens of the class, but never one, I think, who looked as far gone as that chap was. He had a dirty, bloated, pimply face, watery eyes, a bulbous red nose, pulpy, tremulous lips and trembling fingers that he pawed over his face with, in a weak, aimless sort of way. And his clothes! They were just a mass of filthy rags and tatters. I asked afterwards who he was, and they told me his real name was believed to be Dan Medill, but everybody around there called him the "worm of the still."

There was a general laugh among the barroom loungers at the earnestness of his wish, and the barkeeper jokingly asked him: "Do you think you could drink a bucket of whisky, Dan?"

"Oh, yes," the poor wretch replied eagerly.

"Give it to him. Let's see him do it. I'll pay for it," ordered a well-dressed man, evidently intoxicated, who leaned against the bar.

"Naw, I won't," rejoined the barkeeper. "D'ye wan't to kill him? He couldn't stand a quart, let alone eight."

"I don't care. I'll pay for it to see him do it," persisted the well-dressed man.

"Oh, it won't kill me. Give it to me. Let me try," pleaded the miserable wretch.

"You get right out of here now," commanded the barkeeper, turning on him with sudden fierceness. "Go somewhere else to put up your job for the coroner," and he hustled the unhappy "worm of the still" into the street.

Between the afternoon and evening performances Bill came over again for another bucket of whisky. He was not so much in a hurry then, and told it was "Prince" who had had a bad chill before, and now "Betsy" gave indications that one was coming on her. When he went back I hobbled over to the tent with him to get a bottle of liniment out of my box. He put the bucket of whisky down before "Betsy," and she drank about half of it. The intelligent brute knew it was medicine, and did not propose to take any more of it than she thought she needed. As we showfolk say "she was no hog, and knew when she had enough." The bucket, still half full of the liquor, was left standing near her, and Bill's attention was called away for a moment.

Hardly was his back turned when a bloated, red face was poked through under the canvas and its pair of watery eyes were fastened greedily upon the bucket. "Betsy" fixed her keen little eyes on the intruder, stopped swaying to and fro, and waited to see what he would do. He did not notice her. The fascination of the whisky blinded him to all else. The bucket was beyond his reach. He drew himself under the tent until he could clutch it. The instant that he did so "Betsy" flung her powerful trunk around his waist and whirled him up into the air. She did not mean him any harm, but he was tampering with her medicine, and she would not stand that. So he had barely time to give one wild shriek of terror when she tossed him thirty feet away, when the poor "worm of the still" struck against one of the ponderous wheels of a lion cage and fell to the earth, with one broken leg and three fractured ribs. She did not attempt to follow and hurt him, for she had no malice. She had just flirted him away as you might, with your toe under the table, a mewing cat that annoyed you. He was laid on a stretcher and carried away to the hospital, and that was the last any of us knew that season about the "worm of the still."

But the next spring, in New York, I chanced to fall in with the Troy doctor who attended me during the three or four weeks I was laid there with the rheumatism that time, and, as he was one of the doctors in the hospital where the bummer was taken, he told me the rest of the story. He said that the yearning of the poor wretch for liquor was so strong that he whined while the doctors were setting his broken bones: "Oh, if she had only let me have one good drink first, I wouldn't have minded it."

The inebriate's recovery from his injuries was very slow. He was so sodden and saturated with liquor that neither his flesh nor his bones seemed able to heal. After nine weeks he could barely put his foot on the ground, and in six weeks more he could only limp a little. But in the long confinement they got all the liquor out of him. A regenerated manhood seemed to rise out of the debased and wretched thing he was. In his early consciousness of his self-abasement he would frequently exclaim: "I'm no good. You had better let me die." But after a time he would say: "I think that if I can get well I will be able to live a new life, and, perhaps, make some amends for the past." And his face changed so when the drink got out of him that nobody could have recognized him as the former "worm of the still."

One day several ladies visited the hospital distributing flowers and reading matter among the patients. Among them was one, the wife of a merchant in Troy, a handsome, gentle but sad-faced young woman, who at sight of this man seemed at first startled and then overpowered with emotion.

"What is your name, sir?" she asked him.

He hesitated a moment, but replied: "Dan Medill."

She hesitated, turned away, and then going back quickly to him, said: "You look very much as Mr. William Haskell once did."

He sank back in the easy chair where he was sitting, pale and trembling, with a low cry of fright.

"And you are William Haskell," she persisted going close to him.

"Yes, yes, I am," he confessed, "but I have long been ashamed to bear that name. And who are you.

"I am your daughter Mary," she answered him.

Then the whole story came out. A dozen years before William Haskell was in business in one of the little cities of Eastern Pennsylvania, well-to-do, respectable and happy, with a family of a wife and two children, Mary and George. An unfortunate indorsement for a friend, followed by serious business reverses at the time when he was least able to bear them, made him a bankrupt and literally swept away everything he had. In the hope of retrieving his fortunes he went West, first to Cincinnati and later to Chicago. For a time he did fairly well, and sent money and loving letters to his family. But the absence of home ties, reckless and dissipated companions whose acquaintance he made in business, loneliness and naturally easy, yielding, social disposition, soon made of him a confirmed drunkard, and he lost employment. His habits of inebriation became known and nobody would give him work. He no longer reminded his family of his existence, but gradually sank, lower and lower, until the obtaining of sufficient alcohol, in any form, to temporarily drown consciousness and conscience was the only object of his miserable life. In summer he was a tramp, and in winter a beggar and bummer in whatever city his wanderings led him to. To his family he was as one dead. Under his daughter's influence, with his new start that his long abstinence had given him, his reformation was complete. Mary's husband gave him employment in his store and a home in his house, where he met again, for the first time since the little fellow was learning his alphabet, his son George, now studying in the office of a prominent civil engineer to fit himself for a life of usefulness. A little later his patient and still loving wife rejoined him, forgiving and trying to forget the pain and misery of the past in the bright hopes of a happier future.—J. H. Connelly, in Pittsburg Bulletin.

Our Young Ladies.

CHICAGO, Feb. 13th, 1891.

G. A. Swayze, Esq., Principal Belleville Business College, Belleville, Ont.:

MY DEAR SIR,—Yours of the 10th inst. received. I am pleased to state that the young ladies who received their tuition in the above-named college, and who are now in my employ, have more than filled their positions and the duties expected of them.

While Miss Francis has not had the opportunity yet of fully demonstrating her capabilities, Miss Moorman has not only done her work to the full satisfaction of the managers, but has surprised those in the office by the manner in which she has taken up a difficult line of business and carefully and correctly performed the same, and to say that I am proud of the institution from which she came is expressing it mildly, although I have always believed that thoroughness was its fundamental principle.

You may rest assured that should I hear or know of any position open I will remember the Belleville Business College.

Seven years ago my cashier came to this office and received $5 a week; to-day she is receiving $125 a month. One of my three stenographers, who came here three years ago, started at $6 a week and is now receiving $15 a week, and this is the smallest wages paid to any female in the office (where there are eight) who have been in the office for over one year.

Yours very truly,
T. S. QUINCEY.

The latest, greatest and most important invention of the century,

HERENDEEN'S ORIENTAL FLOUR!

This flour is prepared from the best Pure White Corn by a process patented February 7th 1880, and is beyond a doubt healthier than wheat or any other flour. We aim to feed the masses, not the classes, consequently instead of putting it up in 2 or 3 lb. packages and charging 15 or 20 cents for them and spending the big profit in advertising. we are selling it at about the price of ordinary flour. It can be used to great advantage in bread, pastry, etc., and is unsurpassed for pancakes or Johnny cake. Instructions and recipes in each package. This is also pre-eminently the food for anyone troubled with Dyspepsia or Indigestion. Your grocer has it now. Ask for it. Try it.

DR. WILLIAMS PINK PILLS FOR PALE PEOPLE

ARE NOT a Purgative Medicine. They are a BLOOD BUILDER, TONIC and RECONSTRUCTOR, as they supply in a condensed form the substances actually needed to enrich the Blood, curing all diseases coming from POOR and WATERY BLOOD, or from VITIATED HUMORS in the BLOOD, and also invigorate and BUILD UP the BLOOD and SYSTEM, when broken down by overwork, mental worry, disease, excesses and indiscretions. They have a SPECIFIC ACTION on the SEXUAL SYSTEM of both men and women, restoring LOST VIGOR and correcting all IRREGULARITIES and SUPPRESSIONS.

EVERY MAN Who finds his mental faculties dull or failing, or his physical powers flagging, should take these PILLS. They will restore his lost energies, both physical and mental.

EVERY WOMAN should take them. They cure all suppressions and irregularities, which inevitably entail sickness when neglected.

YOUNG MEN should take these PILLS. They will cure the results of youthful bad habits, and strengthen the system.

YOUNG WOMEN should take them. These PILLS will make them regular.

BULGARIAN TROUBLES.

PRINCE FERDINAND THREATENED WITH DEATH.

The Campaign of Intrigue and Murder Continues—Arrest of a High Russian Official in Sofia—The Czar Notified of the Circumstance

LONDON, April 4.—Russia stands at the bar of Europe accused of a grave crime. The murder of M. Baltcheff at Sofia has again roused general indignation against the half-barbarous empire of the North. Undoubtedly he was killed by mistake. The bullets were meant for M. Stambuloff. So much is admitted. The Prime Minister of Bulgaria is the one man who stands between Russia and the coveted control of the Principality. She and her agents have tried every means—conspiracy, intrigue, diplomacy and intimidation—every means short of murder, to get rid of him, and have failed. Now she has tried murder, and that too has failed. She has murdered the wrong man.

It was known that something was about to happen. Roumania and Servia, both under Russian influence, have of late been swarming with Russian agents and Bulgarian refugees in Russian pay. The notorious Bendereff was there, the man who for his services in betraying and kidnapping Prince Alexander enjoys a Russian pension. Plots against Prince Ferdinand were known to be on foot, but what the plots were nobody had found out. What Europe saw was that at any price short of war and by any means, no matter how base, the Emperor of Russia was resolved to crush the independence of Bulgaria. Anarchy is his favorite method. To create, by artificial means, a condition of anarchy which might serve him as a pretext for interfering in the interest of order; to kill M. Stambuloff; to create a panic in the country; to establish disorder, and then to intervene to depose Prince Ferdinand and to put some Russian tool on his throne—that seemed an extremely promising program. It might all have been carried out in due sequence but for the fact that the assassins, in the darkness of last Friday evening, mistook their man. The Russian liberator has had, therefore, to postpone his appearance on the scene to some more convenient season. Bendereff, meantime, may concoct some fresh plot. Europe, by her leading papers, rightly holds the Czar responsible for him and his acts, but a Czar is not expected to take account of public opinion.

SOFIA, April 4.—Prince Ferdinand and his mother, Princess Clementine, have received letters threatening them with death if they do not leave the country. M. Greascoff has also been threatened with assassination if he does not resign his position as Minister of Foreign Affairs.

Evidence has been received indicating that these threatening missives emanated from an official connected with the Russian embassy in this city. Diplomatic action has been taken in the matter, pending the result of which the suspected official is being held as a prisoner at the Embassy.

The Russian Government censor has ordered the Russian press not to refer to the movements of the troops who are to take part in the manœuvres on the Polish and German frontier. The manœuvres are of unusual magnitude.

The Feeling in France.

PARIS, April 5.—President Carnot has decided not to attend the Moscow Exhibition. At the Foreign Office here no credit is given to the reports circulated in London and Berlin regarding the Czar's alleged intention to precipitate a war. On the contrary, the fact is recognized in official circles both here and at St. Petersburg that the Russian army is not yet in a position to begin an aggressive war. It is understood that an entente with France has been arranged for purposes of defence at the present time, and for offensive operations in the more remote future. In the meantime the Czar devotes his energies to the remodeling of the internal administration of the empire. Much must be done internally before Russia will be prepared to face a great European conflict.

Said to Have Been Slain During the Fighting at Manipur.

RANGOON, April 5.—Some natives of Manipur who have arrived here report that Chief Commissioner James W. Quinton, who was taken prisoner at the time of the Manipur massacre, was, together with the party of officers who accompanied him, killed on the first day of the fighting at Manipur.

Further details concerning the capture of Fort Shabat, 12 miles from Manipur, have been received. The British force which carried the works by assault numbered only 80 Indian troops under the command of Lieut. Grant. The garrison of the fort was composed of 900 Manipurs, but the onslaught of the British force was so fierce that the Manipurs fled from their fortified positions in wild disorder.

Information reached here this afternoon that Lieut. Grant's light force of Indian troops is now confronted by a large force of Manipurs, who, in addition to being well armed with rifles, have several field guns. It is feared Grant's force will be annihilated unless reinforcements which have been sent to his assistance are hurried forward.

A despatch has been received from Lieut. Grant in which he says he believes that he is the only European who escaped the recent massacre in the Province of Assam. Strong comments are made here on the blunder of the officials in sending such a small force to Assam. It is further pointed out that the residency was provided with Martini rifles while Commissioner Quinton's escort was armed with Snyder rifles. It was on this account that the ammunition gave out, the supply of cartridges at Manipur being of no use for Snyder rifles.

TORONTO TOPICS.

TORONTO, April 6.—Mrs. William Dulmage, wife of a grocer on Queen-street, was fatally kicked by a horse Sunday morning.

The Widow Fitzpatrick, whose lodge at the entrance to Queen's-avenue, in which she has resided for 60 years, is a landmark known to all, died yesterday, aged 84.

E. A. Tosnack, in charge of the Toronto agency of George D. Ross & Co., a Montreal drygoods house, has been absent from the city for over two weeks and is believed to have absconded.

Paul Walkermann, an Alsatian, for four months back cook at the Hub Restraurant, Colborne-street, became enamored of the 20-year-old daughter of a Yonge-street hairdresser and the two are said to have eloped.

Resulted Fatally.

STRATFORD, April 5.—David Culliton, spare conductor on the G.T.R., has died from the effect of injuries received while coupling cars on March 21.

A Great Blessing

SIRS—I have taken three bottles of Burdock Blood Bitters and find it a good medicine for constipation and poor appetite. I will continue taking it as it is a great blessing and I feel a great change in my health since taking it

Dangerous Counterfeits.

Counterfeits are always dangerous, more so that they always closely IMITATE THE ORIGINAL IN APPEARANCE AND NAME. The remarkable success achieved by Nasal Balm as a positive cure for Catarrh and Cold in the Head has induced unprincipled parties to imitate it. The public are cautioned not to be deceived by nostrums imitating Nasal Balm in name and appearance, bearing such names as Nasal Cream, Nasal Balsam, etc. Ask for Nasal Balm and do not take any imitation dealers may urge upon you. For sale by all druggists or sent post-paid on receipt of price (50c and $1,) by addressing Fulford & Co. Brockville. Ont.

Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam.

Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam gives prompt relief in coughs, colds, hoarseness, whooping cough, croup, asthma or bronchitis. It is the most pleasant and perfect throat and lung healer in the world for children or adults. Price 25c.

Bickle's Anti Consumptive Syrup is a combination of several medical herbs which exert a most wonderful influence in curing pulmonary consumption and all other diseases of the lungs, chest and throat. It promotes a free and easy expectoration, and gives ease even to the greatest sufferer. Coughs, colds, shortness of breath, and affections of the chest, attended with weakness of the digestive organs, or with general debility, seem to vanish under its use. No other remedy acts so readily in allaying inflammation or breaking up a severe cold, even the most obstinate cough is overcome by its penetrating and healing properties. When children are affected with colds, coughs, inflammation of the lungs, croup, quinsey, and sore throat, this Syrup is of vast importance. The number of deaths among children from these diseases is truly alarming. It is so palatable that a child will not refuse it, and is put at such a price that will not exclude the poor from its benefits.

White broche is in demand for neglige robes.

Mr. J. R Allen, Upholsterer, Toronto, sends us the following: "For six or seven years my wife suffered from Dyspepsia, Costiveness, Inward Piles and Kidney Complaint We tried two physicians and any number of medicines without getting any relief, until we got a bottle of Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery. This was the first relief she got, and before one bottle was used the benefit she derived from it was beyond our expectation."

Satins closely resemble India silks in design.

Jacob H. Bloomer, of Virgille, N. Y., writes:—"Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil cured a badly swelled neck and sore throat on my son in forty-eight hours; one application also removed the pain from a very sore toe; my wife's foot was also much inflamed—so much so that she could not walk about the house; she applied the Oil, and in twenty four hours was entirely cured."

A coronet set with turquoises is a new shape for a bonnet pin.

Mr. Thomas Ballard, Syracuse, N.Y., writes: "I have been afflicted for nearly a year with that most-to-be-dreaded disease Dyspepsia, and at times worn out with pain and want of sleep, and after trying almost everything recommended, I tried one box of Parmelee's Vegetable Pills. I am now nearly well, and believe they will cure me. I would not be without them for any money

Many of the gay and youthful cotton dresses sent over by French modistes as models are buttoned up the back.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS

MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP has been used by millions of mothers for children teething for over fifty years with perfect success. It relieves the little sufferer at once, produces natural, quiet sleep by freeing the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste, soothes the child, softens the gums, allays pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. Twenty five cents a bottle

Which Side are You On?

Come, children, and listen; I'll tell you in ryhme
A story of something which happened one time;
There was war in the land, and each brave heart beat high,
And many went forth for their country to die:
But words fail to tell of the fear and dismay
Which swept the small village of W—— one day
When the enemy's army marched into the street,
And their own valiant soldiers were forced to retreat;
Such hiding, surrendering, and trembling with fear!
When what in the midst of it all should appear
But Grandmother Gregory, feeble and old,
Coming out from her cottage, courageous and bold!
She faced the intruders who marched through the land,
Shaking at them the poker she held in her hand:
"How foolish!" her friends cried, provoked, it is true;
"Why, grandmother, what did you think you could do?"
"I wanted to show them which side I was on."
Now, children, I've told this queer story to you
To remind you of something the weakest can do—
There is always a fight 'twixt the right and the wrong,
And the heat of the battle is borne by the strong;
But, no matter how small, or unfit for the field,
Or how feeble and graceless the weapon you wield,
O, fail not, until the last enemy's gone,
To stand up and show them which side you are on.

—Selected.

"They Have not a Chance."

(By Rev Dr. Guthrie)

I saw a boy lately, but twelve years of age, who had been seven times in jail. The term of his imprisonment was run out, and so he had doffed the prison garb and resumed his own. It was the depth of winter; and having neither shoes nor stockings, his red, naked feet were upon the frosty ground. Had you seen him shivering in his scanty dress—the misery pictured on an otherwise comely face—the tears that went dropping over his cheeks as the child told his pitiful story—you would have forgotten that he had been a thief, and only seen before you an unhappy creature more worthy of a kind word, a loving look, a helping hand, than the guardianship of a turnkey and the dreary solitude of a jail.

His mother was in the grave. His father had married another woman. They both were drunkards. Their den, which is in the High Street—I know the place—contained one bed, reserved for the father, his wife, and her child. No couch was kindly spread for this poor child and his brother, a mother's son—then also immured in the jail. When they were fortunate enough to be allowed to lie at home, their only bed was the hard, bare floor. I say fortunate enough, because on many a winter night their own father hounded them out. Ruffian that he was, he drove his infants weeping from the door, to break their young hearts and bewail their cruel lot in the corner of some filthy stair, and sleep away the cold, dark hours as best they could—crouching together for warmth, like two houseless dogs. A friend listened with me to that too true tale; and when he saw the woe, the utter woe, in that child's face, the trembling of his lip, the great big tears that came rolling from his eyes and fell on one's heart like red-hot drops of iron, no wonder that he declared, with indignation flashing in his eyes, "They have not a chance, sir; they have not a chance." In circumstances as hopeless, how many are there in every large city of this kingdom!

Ginseng and its Uses.

Mr. Blezard has introduced a bill in the Ontario House to prevent the extermination of the plant called ginseng. Many may not know that a large export trade is done to different parts of the United States and China in this plant for medicinal purposes. The Chinese consider it as a panacea for all the ills that flesh is heir to. In fact in their language "ginseng" means first of plants. The ginseng in Ontario is a perennial herb growing in rich and cool woods and in some of the neighboring townships. It may be seen occasionally growing on the sides of the roads. The stem is a foot high and bears at the summit three large five-fabate leaves, with long-stalked, oblong, pointed, doubly serrate leaves. The flowers are greenish white, which produce globular scarlet red, two-celled and two-seeded berries. It is the root, however, that is the article of commerce. This is externally of a light brownish-yellow color, internally white, breaks with a short and mealy fracture and has a faint sweetish odor, and a sweet, slightly aromatic taste. The Chinese ginseng has a larger root, four to six inches long, darker in color, and near the head usually with two lateral branches, otherwise resembling the American kind. It is unsettled whether or not the American and Chinese species of ginseng are identical. It is, at least, certain that while the former is only agreeable in taste, and perhaps useful as a mild stomachic, the latter enjoys in its native country the reputation of a panacea. The affections for the cure of which it is most esteemed are such as are usually treated by aromatic stimulants, including dyspepsia, vomiting, and nervous disorders. A good many farmers cultivate the plant in different parts of the American Union, and large profits are made from a good crop that is properly harvested. Besides, a great quantity is gathered in a wild state and the land is protected by the land owners. The great bulk of it is exported to China, as very little of it is used in the pharmacopœia in this country—as it is considered a superfluous member—whilst in China with its immense population, large quantities of both the native and the imported is used. It would be advisable that farmers in Ontario should become better acquainted with the plant, and if not inclined to cultivate it as a crop, to at least prevent the total extermination of the plant, as it is an important article of commerce.—Free Press.

—A farm is about to be established in British Columbia to breed horses for the English artillery service. Lord Aberdeen is understood to be the capitalist of the concern, which will be managed by an ex-artillery captain.

—The tendency among English insurance companies is certainly towards amalgamation. The latest is that of two marine companies; the British and Foreign having absorbed the Universal of London. The amalgamated companies have now a capital and reserve of £1,000,000.

—Sir Charles Tupper lays down three cardinal principles upon which the present reciprocity negotiations at Washington will be conducted. They are:—No injury to Canadian industries, no danger to the revenue, and no discrimination against England. At the same time he admitted that the reciprocal arrangements would include much more than natural products only.

Purify Your Blood

The importance of keeping the blood in a pure condition is universally known, and yet there are very few people who have perfectly pure blood. The taint of scrofula, salt rheum, or other foul humor is heredited and transmitted for generations, causing untold suffering, and we also accumulate poison and germs of disease from the air we breathe, the food we eat, or the water we drink. There is nothing more conclusively proven than the positive power of Hood's Sarsaparilla over all diseases of the blood. This medicine, when fairly tried, does expel every trace of scrofula or salt rheum, removes the taint which causes catarrh, neutralizes the acidity and cures rheumatism, drives out the germs of malaria, blood poisoning, etc. It also vitalizes and enriches the blood, thus overcoming that tired feeling, and building up the whole system. In its preparation, its medicinal merit, and the wonderful cures it accomplishes Hood's Sarsaparilla is Peculiar to Itself. Thousands testify to its success, and the best advertising Hood's Sarsaparilla receives is the hearty endorsement of its army of friends. Every testimonial we publish, and every statement we make on behalf of Hood's Sarsaparilla may be relied upon as strictly true in every respect.

If you need a good blood purifier or building up medicine, be sure to take Hood's Sarsaparilla. Further information and statements of cures sent free to all who address us as below.

BELLEVILLE, MONDAY APRIL 6

THE BAY BRIDGE.

We understand that the formal opening of the Bay Bridge will be held the latter part of June, or at such other time as the Governor General will signify his ability to be present. We would suggest that the day be celebrated with "all honors," and that liberal provision be ready for the reception of leading citizens from a distance, who will be invited to join us in celebrating the event.

The matter should be at once taken in hand, so that the details of the day's festivities should be well worked out and the proper provisions ready for making it a "red letter day" in the history of the City of the Bay.

A DINING STATION.

ARE WE TO HAVE THE GRAND TRUNK DINING ROOM HERE?

We have repeatedly directed attention to the necessity which exists for this being a dining station on the G.T. Ry. Since the Company ceased running dining cars on this portion of their road, passengers have suffered on account of the unseasonable hours at which meals are provided at Kingston and Cobourg, whilst, according to the Grand Trunk time table, this is the point at which a dining room should be provided, as affording the greatest accommodation to passengers, which should be the aim of a railway company. On the Grand Trunk a train arrives here at 7 a.m., which is a reasonable time for breakfast for all night passengers or those leaving here. A mixed for the west leaves at noon, and the express at 5:45 p.m. Going east, a train arrives at 11 a.m. and another at 12:40 p.m., both reasonable hours for dinner, rather than two hours later; and again, a mixed leaves at 7 p.m. for the east; whilst over the Midland a train arrives at 11:30 a.m., bringing many passengers who make connection with the Grand Trunk here, to whom the opportunity to secure a meal would be highly appreciated; and again, a train leaves here at 11:50 over the Midland Railway. We understand that the Company find it necessary, for want of room, to remove their dining room at Kingston, and are seriously thinking of doing away with similar accommodation at Cobourg, on account of the unseasonableness of the hours at which trains arrive there; when it will be necessary to provide accommodation at some other point or points. We commend the matter to the attention of the Industrial Committee, in the hope that they will take such action as will decide the company to provide dining room accommodation here.

MUNICIPAL RETRENCHMENT.

The special committee of the City Council to whom was remitted the subject of reducing the salaries of corporation officials, have recommended reductions amounting to $800 per annum, which is equivalent to a lessening of the city's debt by $20,000. They also recommended the Police Commissioners to lessen the number of policemen, by which means a further saving might be effected.

The subject has not, so far, been discussed to any great extent by the public through the press, but a perusal of the opinions of two correspondents who have dealt with the subject from opposite and, in our opinion, extreme, points of view, lead us to the conclusion that the committee have pursued a fair course in the premises. We cannot agree with "A Taxpayer," in the proposition that, because persons could be found to fill the various civic offices at salaries 50 per cent. less than is paid to the present incumbents, their remuneration should be cut down accordingly; but it is not unreasonable, under present circumstances, to reduce the scale of pay to figures which will approach more nearly to those which prevail in other places of similar size for like services, than has heretofore been the case.

As to the police force, there is no apparent reason why two men cannot be dispensed with and a saving of considerably more than $1,000 per annum effected. Stratford, Peterborough and Guelph—all places of about the same population as Belleville—are content with a force of three policemen and a chief, with salary lists running from $1,950 to $2,400, whilst Belleville has a force of (including chief) seven and a salary list of $3,750. There is, then, on the face of these facts, ample room for the reduction above suggested in the local force, and we trust that the Commissioners will not hesitate to act in accordance with the recommendation of the committee, which we can assure them is in agreement with a very strong public sentiment on the subject.

The subject of street lighting did not fall within the purview of the committee, otherwise they would no doubt have made a strong recommendation in that regard. In his admirable inaugural address, however, the Mayor spoke with such force and suggestiveness that we herewith reproduce his remarks:

The introduction of electric light had greatly increased the expenditure in that department. The original intention was to adopt this light only for the streets from the Grand Trunk station to the wharves, but now we have gas lamps and electric lights in the same places, and in many places the gas lamps are unused, whilst in other parts of the city coal oil lamps are provided. "In my opinion," he said, "the electric lights in all portions of the city except the principal streets where there are gas lamps, should be discarded, and the gas lamps used, and electric lamps only erected and used where there is no gas," and to which the Gas company's service could not be extended without great expense. He also recommends the making of a contract with the Company whereby their rights and those of the City shall be defined, as under the present conditions the City, although one of the largest stockholders, is virtually powerless.

There is room, we believe, for a large saving in this department, and as the contract with the Gas Company will shortly expire, we urge the Council to take up the subject in the same spirit as has already been displayed by their Committee on the salary question.

There are other matters of municipal business in connection with which savings may be effected, and we do not ask too much in requesting the Council to turn their attention to them without unreasonable delay.

Lecture on Fools. Admit One.

A gentleman who lectured on fools, printed his tickets as above. Suggestive, certainly, and even sarcastic. What fools are they who suffer the inroads of disease when they might be cured. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is sold under a positive guarantee of its benefiting or curing in every case of Liver, Blood and Lung disease, or money paid for it will be cheerfully refunded. In all blood taints and impurities of whatever name or nature, it is most positive in its curative effects. Pimples, Blotches, Eruptions, and all Skin and Scalp diseases, are radically cured by this wonderful medicine. Scrofulous disease may effect the glands, causing swellings or tumors; the bones, causing "Fever-sores," "White Swellings," "Hip-joint Disease"; or the tissues of the lungs, causing Pulmonary Consumption. Whatever its manifestations may be, "Golden Medical Discovery" cures it.

AUSTRALIAN FEDERATION

MEMBERS SESSIONAL ALLOWANCE TO BE 500 POUNDS.

An Elective Senate—England to Have the Final Authority on All Imperial Questions—What the New Commonwealth Will Be.

LONDON, April 5.—The Commonwealth of Australia is almost ready to be born. The Federation Convention, which has been sitting many weeks at Sydney, seems at last agreed on the main features of the constitution. It has agreed, at any rate, upon a name, which may be said to have a strong republican flavor, with a certain ominous memory attaching to it in English history. At the same time, the Sydney Convention affirms its loyalty by providing that the Governor-General of the new commonwealth shall be appointed by the Queen. The great Australian colonies, though ready for union, are not yet ready for disunion. They mean still to remain an integral part of the British Empire. They do, nevertheless, so far break with the present state of things as to propose that the Governors of each separate colony shall be appointed, not as now by the Crown, but as the Parliament of that colony may see fit. They borrow, moreover, from the United States the suggestion of a Supreme Court, which shall be the final appellate tribunal. It does not clearly appear whether this court will have political or constitutional jurisdiction.

The Australian Commonwealth, like the Federal authority in America, will derive all its powers by delegation and surrender from the separate colonies, and there are many other points in which the Constitution of the United States has served them as a model. The organization and distribution of the executive, legislative and judicial powers are strikingly similar. In the main points of the scheme the great majority of the convention seem practically of one mind.

England has hardly woke up to the fact that her Australian colonies are so near passing into a great commonwealth. She will not regret it, still less resist it; but, if the Imperial principle is worth anything, she will take care that, for Australia as for Canada, the ultimate sovereignty and final authority in all Imperial questions shall remain with England.

SYDNEY, April 5.—The Federation convention, sitting in committee, yesterday, was occupied all day in discussing the question of the powers of the Senate with regard to money bills. The clause, as amended, was then passed in the following form: "The Federal Parliament is to consist of a Senate and a House of Representatives, the former consisting of an equal number of members from each colony, to be selected by a system which shall provide for the periodical retirement of one-third of the members, thereby securing to the body itself a perpetual existence, combined with definite responsibility to the electors. The House of Representatives to be elected by districts formed on a population basis, and to possess the sole power of originating all bills appropriating revenue or imposing taxation.

SYDNEY, N.S.W., April 5.—The Australian Federation convention had adopted the provisions of the constitution regulating the powers of the Parliament and fixing the payment of members at £500 yearly, and also the provision that all appropriation and taxation bills must originate in the House of Representatives.

CURRENT CONDENSATIONS.

It is announced that Baron Fava will sail for Rome on April 11.

During the week ending at noon Saturday there were 1100 deaths in New York, including 56 from grip.

Several fine Mississippi plantations have been flooded by the breaking of the large levee two miles below Greenville.

As the result of a feud George Hoover, editor of The Osage County Times at Kansas City, was fatally shot by James McNales.

There is no truth in the report that the Irish National League of America has been called together for the purpose of endorsing Parnell.

The utmost tranquility prevailed throughout the Pennsylvania coke region yesterday, and work at Morewood will be resumed today.

A despatch from Santiago de Chili says an extra session of Congress will assemble on April 15. The report that President Balmaceda is willing to withdraw is untrue.

In a fight over a dissolute woman in Chicago Saturday night Thomas McAuliffe, brother of the pugilist, and Albert Brady, a clerk, were shot and severely wounded.

The immigrant inspector at Vermont, N.Y., complains that many residents from foreign countries under contract are entering the United States at that port via Canada.

A despatch from Buenos Ayres says it is believed there that the Government of the Argentine Republic will be compelled to introduce forced paper currency in that country.

The public school at Orio, Ind., closed Friday night with an entertainment, the principal feature of which was a fight to a finish between two local pugilists. Blood flowed freely.

A despatch from Chili signed by the revolutionist leaders announces that the Government troops recently defeated in Autofagasta took refuge in Bolivia, where they were compelled to lay down their arms.

Edward Hollinger, a pugilist, brutally murdered his wife yesterday at Jersey City, N.Y., by beating her on the head and face with a hatchet, and tried suicide. When arrested he said, "I deliberately killed her and am willing to hang for it."

The Madame Departed.

GUELPH, April 5.—Madame La Mass, the clairvoyant who struck this city on Thursday, has flown at request of the chief constable. When she was informed she would be prosecuted if she did not leave town, she replied that there was not money enough here to induce her to remain.

From a Three-Story Window.

OTTAWA, April 5.—Esther Dolan, employed as a domestic at the house of Charles Boyce, 179 Slater-street, made a singular attempt at suicide by throwing herself from a three-story window, sustaining severe injuries. She was locked up.

Racing on the English Turf.

LONDON, April 4.—At the second day of the Leicester spring meeting to-day the principal race on the program was for the Portland Stakes, five furlongs straight. It was won by Mr. J. B. Leigh's filly Flyaway, Mr. R. H. Combes' filly Petrova second and the Duke of Portland's filly Katherine third.

Fatally Crushed by a Log.

PORT ARTHUR, April 5.—Joseph Gaynor, a teamster recently from Sherbrooke, had his head injured by a log falling upon it, and he died before medical assistance could be obtained.

Leaped to His Death.

BURK'S FALLS, April 5.—As the midnight train was rolling southward at a lively rate the brakesman called out "Elmsdale," whereupon Dan Sutherland, a passenger on board, arose from his seat, rushed out and jumped from the rapidly moving car. He alighted on his head, fracturing his skull and died in about an hour.

AMID A DOWNPOUR OF RAIN.

2000 People Assemble in Phœnix Park and Listen to Parnell Abuse Gladstone and Other Liberals.

DUBLIN, April 5.—Notwithstanding a steady downpour of rain, fully 2000 persons assembled in Phœnix Park to-day to assist in the demonstration of the Amnesty Association and protest against the continued imprisonment and alleged inhuman treatment of Irish and Irish-American political prisoners by the British Government. After speeches had been made by Mr. Kenny, Mr. Parnell and others resolutions were passed calling upon Irishmen at home and abroad to put forth every effort to secure the release of their friends, and demanding that the Government hasten the unconditional surrender of the prisoners. Mr. Parnell's speech was a tirade against the Liberals, whom he accused of always making political prisoners, while the Conservatives released them. The same thing might occur again and John Daly and others convicted of perjury during the Liberals' tenure of office be liberated by the Conservative Government. "Why," he asked, "did not Mr. Gladstone release these prisoners in 1886? He (Gladstone) did not hesitate to stoop to ascertain the opinion of dynamiters in America as to whether they would accept his Home Rule bill of that year, and even went so far as to receive some of these people at Hawarden. Why did not he release the prisoners at that time?"

Here a voice exclaimed: "Why did not you make conditions," while cries of "Kill him!" "Lynch him!" were heard.

In reply to his question Mr. Parnell declared that the Irish party never made conditions with the Government. The prisoners, he said, would rather rot in jail than accept anything but their unconditional release.

Joseph Chamberlain on Home Rule.

PORTSMOUTH, April 5.—Hon Joseph Chamberlain, speaking at a Unionist meeting last evening, said that many Gladstonians would gladly abandon the policy of Home Rule, but had not the courage to act independently. Home Rule being at present an impracticable policy, electors should consider from which party they could obtain the best performances. Even if Gladstone were returned to power he could do nothing in the way of promoting social reform, and would first endeavor to set up a rival Parliament in Dublin. Unionists, however, were not so hampered, but were free to continue their reforming labors.

For Having Explosives.

CORK, April 5.—At the assizes here yesterday John Foley was sentenced to seven years' penal servitude for having in his possession a quantity of explosives.

At the Tipperary Assizes Michael Hanley was sentenced to 18 months' hard labor and Michael Sanders to a year's hard labor for posting boycotting notices.

A MIDDLESEY MURDER.

A Dispute Over a Dipper Ends in One Disputant Stabbing the Other to the Heart.

LONDON, Ont., April 5.—A stabbing affray, which resulted in the death of Benjamin Hubbard, an employe of Geary's dairy, London township, six or seven miles north of this city, occurred this afternoon about 5 o'clock. Hubbard and another employe named Hodges got into an altercation over a dipper, when Hodges stabbed Hubbard over the heart with a knife, which he happened to have in his hand at the time, inflicting a wound from which the latter died a few minutes after. Both are married men with families.

Guilty of Manslaughter.

LONDON, April 5.—In the Metcalfe murder case of the Queen v. Robert Murray the jury returned a verdict of manslaughter with strong recommendation to mercy. Sentence deferred.

AVENGED HER HONOR.

Fred Bartlett Kills Her Betrayer, Seriously Wounds Two Other Men and Then Blows Out His Brains.

PEMBINA, April 5.—A man named McConnell recently seduced Miss Bartlett, then married another girl. Miss Bartlett's two brothers drove out where McConnell was visiting Saturday, called him out and shot him twice, the bullets entering his body. He ran to the house, and while a man named Hill was attempting to disarm McConnell's assailants he received a ball in the breast and another in the arm. McConnell ran out on the farm and Tom Bartlett started with a friend named Irwin in a buggy after him. Irwin was shot in the groin and afterwards McConnell was hit twice. The Bartlett brothers then returned home and while Tom attended to the horse Fred went to the house and shot himself through the head, dying instantly. Tom has been arrested and it is feared will be lynched. Hill and Irwin are seriously injured and McConnell cannot live.

Cardinal Lavigerie's band of warrior monks will on Monday, at Biskra, Algeria, take vows for a five years' crusade against slavery. Vicomte Bressac, who has abandoned the world of sport, has been appointed superior of the band. All will start for various points in Africa on Tuesday.

The French Government has decided to allow Prince Louis Bonaparte to visit Paris. The Bonaparte family council at San Remo resulted in Prince Louis returning the property left by his father, ex-Empress Eugenie granting Prince Victor a sum sufficient to raise his annual income to $22,500. Ex-Empress Eugenie is still wealthy.

The tug Tempest was caught in a trough of the sea near the entrance to the Cleveland harbor on Saturday afternoon, and was overturned. She sank like a stone to the bottom of Lake Erie, carrying with her Howard Loomis, engineer; William Hughes, fireman, and Harry Hershey, raftsman.

Parnell has issued a circular to his supporters throughout Ireland requesting them to forward to Dublin the number of Parnellite Conservatives and Gladstonians in each district. This action is taken as evidence of his intention to rely on the support of the Conservatives in the coming Parliamentary elections.

The English delegates to the Miners' Congress to-day acceded to the proposal made by the Belgian delegates to support a strike if foreign mine owners sent coal to Belgium. The German and French delegates also concurred in the proposed movement after agreeing upon a committee to draft a constitution for an international federation for the future discussion of matters concerning miners.

Henry Labouchere, at a meeting of the Radical candidates for members of parliament, on Saturday declared that the outlook was hopeful. Parnell, he said, had been beaten in two elections and had sneaked out of his challenge to Healy in the most contemptible manner. Labouchere declared that Parnell would not gain more than six seats in parliament, giving at least 70 to the Nationalists, who would support Mr. Gladstone. The only danger in England was where the squire and the parson drove the laborers to the polls like sheep.

The London Chronicle's Rome correspondent says the Cabinet has telegraphed all Italian consuls in the United States instructing them to act with calmness and prudence. The Times' Rome correspondent says: "The arrival of the text of Baron Fava's first note showed that the misunderstanding was due to Mr. Blaine's interpreting the demands for a trial as a demand for conviction. The ministry is indisposed to push the matter beyond a demand for recognition of the principle of international justice. The excitement has entirely subsided."

Australian Cities.

How They Grow and Expand at the Expense of the Country.

The prevailing state socialism is filling the larger towns with good things—excellent museums, splendid libraries, free reading-rooms, parks, botanical gardens, manifold places of interest and amusement. These are for the multitude, and the multitude in Australia is unquestionably becoming southern in its taste for excitement and amusement. For the rich are music, the theatre and clubs, as expensive and almost as luxurious as those of Pall Mall or Piccadilly. For the children of all, excellent schools and universities. So rich and poor alike crowd into the towns, which become large without becoming crowded, so wide is the room for expansion, so perfect the appliances of tram, rail and boat for the suburban residence. Thus the cities have acquired not only an excess of population, but also a social and political dominance which is neither British nor American, and for which only a continental parallel can be found. To an outside observer the resulting condition of things seems artificial and not without grave dangers, but curiously interesting, as illustrating new forms of national growth, possibly incidental to extreme democratic development. The concentration of population has enabled the artisan class to secure unequalled present advantages, but there is justification for the view entertained by many Australians that it will sap the foundations of permanent prosperity unless a check can be found. The gravest problem before Australia is, apparently, how to get a sufficient agricultural population to stay upon the land. The temper of the country is not favorable to the patient industry of the farm, with its remote results and slow accumulation. Within the last few years the curious phenomenon has occasionally presented itself of a serious dearth of labor in country places, while in the towns masses of unemployed besieging the Government offices with demands for relief works. Sent, sometimes at the Government expense, to the rural districts, the "unemployed" soon drift back to the mingled wants and delights of city life.—Century.

What She Said.

Mrs. R. Peck, E. 15th street, New York City, visited Canada last year, and had the good fortune to pick up something which not only suited her, but her neighbors also. Writing the manufacturer of Nerviline she says:—"I bought three bottles of Nerviline while in Canada and treated my neighbors to some of it and all think it the best medicine for internal or external pain they have ever used. Nerviline deserves such a commendation, for it is a most powerful, penetrating, and certain remedy, for pain of all kinds. Take no substitute.

TOWN TALK.

Yesterday I listened to a sermon by the pastor of Bridge St. Methodist Church, upon "Christian Perfection," in which he dealt with the subjects in a more liberal manner than is the general custom.

The subject is one that has called forth the eloquence of divines, who have dwelt upon the subject in divers ways, and I might say diverse ways. Alas, too often with the object of meeting the views of the fat pocket-book members of the congregation, which certainly was not the case in this instance.

Christian perfection is seldom found, but is often sought after, and its to be regretted that too often those who make the loudest profession of that virtue use it as a cloak to cover the want of christian charity.

There is a wonderful amount of "I am holier than thou" wrapped up in the self assurance of many really good men and women, who should rather "let their light so shine," &c.

The preacher did not say a word that I have so far written, but he said that "Sin is a relative thing;" and that we "never do absolutely right in this world." Many of us said "amen," for we felt that we often did "absolutely wrong;" and some seemed to move uneasily in their seats, as if the assertion was knocking the props of self-righteousness from under them.

The preacher went on to explain, by a homely illustration, that what was "sin in one is not sin in another," which caused many of us to ask our conscience: Have we enough Christian charity?

No one supposes for a moment that our passport to heaven will consist in a self-assumption of Christian perfection, or a belief or unbelief in the efficacy of a surpliced choir, hence, one might better, instead of crucifying the flesh for forty days, be doing something for the Master, by helping to relieve suffering humanity.

Speaking of church matters, reminds me that Christian churches are all glad to see young men present, but there is a duty for the young as well as for the old, and they should not consider it their duty to let the collection plate pass, as many of them do, without contributing according to their means for the supply of the comforts that they enjoy.

I always think that there is something wrong in the way a young man is brought up if he does not contribute something to the gospel, as he should be taught and know that the fact of being in church saves him from many expensive vices.

What "big head" allowed the piers that protected the lower bridge to be demolished. As a result the city came near losing the bridge this spring.

If I remember right, someone said in the Council that they were an impediment in the river. As if piers the width of the bridge piers would be any more of an impediment than the bridge piers themselves.

* * *

As is known, the piers of the lower bridge are not built strong enough to resist the ice in the spring, hence, with this spring's warning, if the piers are not properly protected, the chairman of public works should be held to a strict personal responsibility.

The Assizes.

On Monday next, 13th inst., the Spring assizes will open here before Justice Rose. There will be a large docket, the criminal calendar embracing a number of serious offences, as follows: Queen v. Kane, murder; Queen v. Yourex, 4 charges of forgery; Queen v. Ross and Knight, fraud; Queen v. Lemon, perjury; Queen v. Osborne, embezzlement.

There will probably be other cases which are not at present upon the docket. The following comprise the Grand Jury:

J. G. Vandusen, Belleville; John Hewitt, Hungerford; J. W. Ross, Thurlow; Geo. Morton, Huntingdon; Thos. Ritchie, Belleville; John Huffman, Thurlow; D. R. Leavens, Thurlow; Francis Potts, Rawdon; James McCready, Turlow; Thomas Rupert, Rawdon; James Jarvis, Madoc; Wm. Vanblaricom, Sidney; Florence Donohue, Deseronto; D. M. Waters, Belleville; Reuben Turner, Sidney; John G. Ketcheson, Thurlow; Robert Thompson, Belleville; John Hawkins, Huntingdon; W. McCammon, Thurlow; Robt. A. Weese, Trenton; John H. Preston, Thurlow; Henry Brown, Rawdon; Luke Vanallen, Sidney; Wm. Houston, Hungerford.

Obituary.

Grier—At his residence, 239 Ashland boulevard, Chicago, Ill., on Saturday, April 4, John Allan Grier, general manager Hoosac Tunnel Fast Freight Line, and fifth son of the late Rev. John Grier, M.A., rector of Belleville.

The foregoing announcement, which was published in the Empire to-day, will be read with regret by many old friends of the deceased in this city. Mr. Grier was born in Belleville and resided here until the years of manhood. He was very popular in town. His age was about 48 years.

A Cure for Constipation Headache.

Dr. Silas Lane, while in the Rocky Mountains, discovered a root that when combined with other herbs, makes an easy and certain cure for constipation. It is in the form of dry roots and leaves, and is known as Lane's Family Medicine. It will cure sick-headache and is the best spring Medicine. For the blood, liver and kidneys, and for clearing up the complexion it does wonders. Druggists sell it at 50c and $1 a package.

County Court.

County Court without a jury will be held to-morrow before Judge Lazier. There are but two cases to be disposed of, as follows:

Bullen vs. Elliott—An action for account. E. G. Porter for plff., F. S. Wallbridge for deft.

Police Calls.

The police were called yesterday to disperse a number of young men and boys who were loafing about the overhead bridge and on the corner of Front and Wharf streets. Those who wish to congregate should do so at some other places, where they would not interfere with pedestrians.

One Year in the Central.

Benjamin Bell, who on Friday last was convicted of stealing cigars and other articles from Mr. D. Coyle, was this afternoon sentenced by Judge Lazier to one year in the Central Prison at hard labor.

Congratulations.

Miss Jeannette Murray, of Rossmore, has passed her final examination in medicine at the Royal Medical College in Kingston.

Personal.

Col. Strong, ex-U.S. Consul, is in town.
Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Burrell have returned from their wedding tour.

—The United States warships Chicago, Boston and Atlanta, of the squadron of evolution, have recently been grounded and so badly damaged that they will have to be docked for repairs.

HAWORTH.

Haworth, England, March 20, 1891.

In the entire history of the relation of woman to English literature there cannot be found anything like the same winsome, if somewhat melancholy, interest that will always cling to the irreproachable name, the obscure surroundings and the extraordinary personality of the author of "Jane Eyre."

Because of this, Haworth, though interesting for little else than once having been the home of the Bronte family, is worth going a long way to see. And it is a long and a dreary way one has to come. Perched up here among the bleak hills of the West Riding of Yorkshire alongside the moors and fells of Lancashire, the place is almost as unknown and inaccessible as the grave of Byron at Hucknall Torkard, in Nottinghamshire.

If your impulse is to visit Haworth, come in the summer only. Then there is at least sunshine. Then fleecy clouds straggle over and between the hills as if shadowy hosts were marshalling behind the horizon. Here and there splatches of color lie against old walls and housefronts. The heather blushes from the undulant green of the moors. And one can then easily imagine bits of Apulian pastoral scenery here in the shepherds and their flocks, like cameo reliefs on beds of dazzling emerald, with a perspective of billowy lines and misty clouds, and here and there a savage kite or moor-buzzard, circling above the scene, fierce and endless in its hunger for unwary heath-poults or grouse.

But at any other time, your impressions, all the way from Keighly up the little valley of the Worth river, the stream being nowhere more than a tiny "beck" or moorland rill, will be dismal ones indeed. This entire Yorkshire district, of which Bradford is the trade metropolis, is given over to the manufacture of worsteds. To the right and left of the little branch of the Midland railway, which follows the stream up the valley past Haworth to Oxenhope, are clusters of deserted olden hand-loom mills; rotten wiers; grimy steam power mills with their huge, half smoke-hidden chimneys; decaying arches; rows of factory hand cottages with slatternly women at the door; gnarled, stunted trees springing meagerly from impoverished soil in shadowy gorge and glen; and, in farthest reaches of prospect, beneath a leaden-colored sky, the grim outlines of barren hills, the hollows between showing farther, dimmer outlines of bleak, bare moors, suggesting the wastes of a mountain-waved, measureless sea.

The tiny Haworth railway station stands in the centre of the horse-shoe shaped valley head to which you have come from the north. There could be a no more cheerless sight than that presenting itself in every direction as you alight from your railway carriage. The station-master, the single human in sight, in a sparsely-cut, threadbare uniform, trots around shiveringly for a moment as if feeble, starved and cold; and then snaps himself up in his little den with a sharp click, as if in flight from the surrounding dreariness. Across the track where there has sometime been a little patch of flowers a lonely, almost featherless, altogether bedraggled hen pecks at the dead stalks feebly, querulously. This is all of life there is near the station. Over to the left, a long distance away on the level bed of the valley, are several huge mills. They are prisons in every sense. The black smoke rolls sullenly from their stacks. But no human being is visible. Then there are a half score rows of workmen's houses, little, mean, hard and cramped, huddled in grimy, denuded spaces, or set on the brae side in all manner of angles; as though they had set out to run away from the place, and, too feeble to escape, had stuck fast where they now stand. High above this modern Haworth, Browmore stretches away in interminable swells of savage, treeless hills. These circle around to the south and west, and your eye follows them until it catches a steely-gray line of what at first seems ragged, jagged cubes of rock, cutting in diagonal transverse from the bottom to nearly the top of the bare escarpment of another bolder hillside, terminating in the loftier, drearier Haworth moor. This half defined, ragged line of gray is the ancient village of Haworth.

Slipping and sliding along the sinuous, clayey path, you reach the lower end of the long, climbing, winding, village street. Everything is of stone—the houses, the gutters, the rain troughs, the gargoyle-spouts, and the cobbled way, like an open stone sewer cut along the hillside to carry off the seepy oozings of the moor mosses above. There is but the single street—Main street, it is called. Dank, dark closes sometimes extend for a house length to the right and left. The yard-wide pavements are series of stone stairs and platforms. Beneath the latter are shadowy shops and living rooms. All stand open; but few inhabitants are to be seen. Those of whom glimpses can be caught are little children, still too young to be ground in the mills, and bowed old crones of women already ground by the mills into voicelessness and shapelessness. Up, up, up, for a mile, you plod, and at last reach a tiny open space. The houses are set around it closely. Quaint shops and ancient inns crowd it at all sorts of curious angles. This is the head of the village, topographically, in habitations and aristocracy. Not for its attractiveness, but because it seems an outlet to somewhere, you pass into a little court behind the Black Bull Inn. It is a maze of angles and wynds. Suddenly another tiny open space confronts you. Here are an old, oblong, two-storied stone house, with a few yards of grass-plot at its side; a little stone church, attached to, rather than blended with, a grim Norman tower; a grave-yard cluttered with crumbling stone; the whole covering barely an acre of ground. These were Haworth parsonage, church and church-yard; the earthly, and final, home of the Brontes; and their living eyes ever rested on Haworth moor, which rises immediately above the church yard like a wall of rounded stone.

Here, within the village nest of the moorside eerie, one may fittingly pause and recall the history of the Brontes as a family. The father, the Rev. Patrick Bronte, was a son of a county Down, Ireland, farmer, whose real name was Prunty. He was born Patrickmas day, 1777, his name being changed to Bronte at the suggestion of his benefactor, the Rev. Mr. Tighe, rector of Drumgooland parish, in Down. Fine in physique, handsome and ambitious, he forswore pleasant life, and, much after the manner of the "Poor Scholar" in Carleton's pathetic tale, gained enough learning at sixteen to teach a small private school; soon became a tutor; entered St. John's College, Cambridge, in 1802; obtained his B. A. degree four years later; was ordained to a curacy; and we find him, on his marriage in 1812, to Maria Branwell, a sweet and gentle Cornish maiden of Penzance, the incumbent of the church living at Hartshead, a little village near Huddersfield, about 20 miles across the moors, to the southeast of Haworth. They were five years at Hartshead. Then Mr. Bronte was transferred to Thornton, another Yorkshire West Riding moorland hamlet, "owre the staires," that is, over the stairs, or hills, four miles south of Haworth; the gray old octagonal chapel-tower at Thornton being visible from the heights of Browmoor, just over there across the valley. Mr. Bronte was given the living of Haworth in 1820, and with his family took possession of the old parsonage just as you see it to-day. He remained until his death in 1861, a period of 41 years, the incumbent of St. Michael and All Angels, this now world-famed church, which with the parsonage, the grave yard and these closely-huddled houses of stone made up a grim old village picture.

It will be your fortune to be driven from this parsonage door just as was Miss Thackeray and scores of English literators in the past; as was the Rev. Dr. Theo. F. Clarke of Brooklyn, only last summer; and as I was yesterday yesterday. But you may see the old graves the Brontes saw; wander upon the moors they knew; study the ancient tower that escaped the vandals' hands; and stand beside the memorial tablets to the one family that made all Haworth a shrine. Then, if you will be cautious, and will assure the simple-hearted old creature that you will not betray her confidences to the present precious incumbent of St. Michael's, with old "Susey" Ramsden—half-blind and deaf, quite four-score years of age, but with her love for the Bronte family flaming deeper and brighter as the end approaches—you may go over all the the sad, sweet story: Of the pious yet stern old curate's Haworth ministrations; the loss of the gentle, patient mother; the death of the older sisters; the curse of the wayward brother's life and terrible death; the grim, unshaken sense of duty shown in the surviving sisters holding the sunless home together; and then all the long years of iron-hearted struggling by the three sisters, "Currer, Ellis and Acton Bell," respectively Charlotte, Emily and Anne Bronte, to reach the mighty world heart with their far-away, unknown voices and pens; the final victory and rejoicings; the coming to the gray old village of the famous and great, to do honor to the now wondrous folk of the parsonage; the loss of Charlotte's two sisters within one year; her own brief and happy wedded life and ultimately death; the later death of the sturdy old father; the death, but the other day, in Ireland, of his surviving sister, the last of the Bronte family; and, finally, the crooning gossip about Charlotte's husband, Mr. Nicholls, once the curate here, and now a white-haired English farmer; all in so tender a way that you will more and more love the very earth these perfect women trod.

Official reports show that in the State of Massachusetts there are nearly fifteen hundred abandoned farms.

The farmers of that State have access, under particularly favorable circumstances, to the sixty millions market. The great city of Boston lies at their door. New York, Brooklyn, Philadelphia and other large centres are within comparatively easy distance. There are no taiff walls to obstruct trade. And yet a territory which should be capable of supporting twenty thousand people lies idle.

When this state of affairs is shown to exist in Massachussets; when the United States census returns show that the population of Maine increased by less than two per cent. in the last decade, and that of Vermont decreased by 81, the farmers of Canada can judge of the folly they would be guilty of in sacrificing their market in Great Britain to enter into unlimited partnership with their poverty-stricken fellows in the Republic.—Toronto News.

Closes April 15th.

The 1, 2, 3, 4, 5. The grand prize competition of the Canadian Fireside Weekly, in which 300 valuable prizes are offered, will close on April 15th. In addition, from now until that date a Special Daily prize will be given for the first correct list received each day. The competition is simply a combination of numbers, and requires no searching in dictionaries or books of any kind. Among the prizes are Bicycles, Tricycles, Watches, $100 cash, Furniture, Silverware, Jewelry, Summer tours—prizes for men, women, boys and girls, 300 in all. Send at once 5 cents for sample copy with full particulars, to 9 Adelaide St. West, Toronto, Ont. Mention this paper.

"Tommy Green" Dead.

Mr. Harry Redmond, city editor of the Kingston News, died at l'Hotel Dieu, in that city, yesterday morning, after a short illness. The deceased gentlemen had been a resident of Kingston for a number of years and was quite well and favorably known among the newspaper fraternity of Canada. He was a capable writer and an ardent lover of amateur theatricals, had written some poetry, and seen active military service. Four years ago he came to Kingston and sprang into notoriety as a writer of local poems in the Whig under the sobriquet of "Tommy Green." The title stuck to him. He was about 37 years of age.

The New Hotel.

The new hotel, which will be erected here, will be after the style of the Brozel House, at Buffalo, N.Y., but of smaller dimensions. This hotel was designed by Messrs. Warner & Brockett, of Rochester. It has every possible improvement, in fact being a model house. Plans are now being made by these architects of a similar building, only smaller, which when completed will be submitted to the gentlemen who contemplate erecting the building.

The Best Result.

Every ingredient employed in producing Hood's Sarsaparilla is strictly pure, and is the best of its kind it is possible to buy. All the roots and herbs are carefully selected, personally examined, and only the best retained. So that from the time of purchase until Hood's Sarsaparilla is prepared, everything is carefully watched with a view to attaining the best result. Why don't you try it?

Dehorning Cattle.

At Edinburgh lately it was decided by five Judges on an appeal that the operation of dehorning cattle was necessary in the interests of the animals themselves, and that therefore the perpetrator could not be found guilty of cruelty. The judgment of the Scottish Court on this point is contrary to that pronounced by English Judges.

Piles! Piles!! Itching Piles.

Symptoms—Moisture; intense itching and stinging; most at night; worse by scratching if allowed to continue tumors form, which often bleed and ulcerate, becoming very sore. REMARKABLE TRAGEDY.

ONE OF THE MOST SENSATIONAL CASES ON RECORD.

A Beautiful Woman Lures a Prominent Banker to Death—His Body Packed in a Box and Shipped to the United States.

New York, April 4.—The details of a murder which bears a striking similarity to the celebrated Eyraud case at Paris were received from San Jose, Guatemala, yesterday. The case will probably claim the attention of Inspector Byrnes. Carlos Santibanez, one of the most prominent bankers of Guatemala, mysteriously disappeared on Nov. 29. Mr. Santibanez had a habit of carrying large sums of money, valuable diamonds, jewelry, etc., about with him. Friends attached no importance at first to his sudden disappearance on Nov. 29. About the first of February, however, the mystery was entirely cleared up by the confession of the murderer of Santibanez while under the influence of liquor. On that day Carlos Cardenas, a merchant of San Jose, was accosted on the street by a Spaniard named Gonzales who lived in the outskirts of the town. Gonzales showed a beautiful topaz ring, and asked him to make an offer for it. Mr. Cardenas saw that the ring was a valuable one, and at once suspected foul play. On the pretence of closing a bargain he invited Gonzales to accompany him to a neighboring liquor store. Cardenas and Gonzales seated themselves at a table and drank together several times; Gonzales discoursing on the qualities of his ring, which he seemed extremely anxious to sell. Cardenas examined the ring closely, and recognized it as belonging to his friend Santibanez. Cardenas, who had been an intimate friend of Santibanez, concluded that Gonzales was in possession of facts that might explain the disappearance of Santibanez, and determined to get the Spaniard under the influence of liquor, and, if possible, extort a confession from him. Mr. Cardenas made an offer for the ring, which was accepted. He detained Gonzales and succeeded in getting him intoxicated. Gonzales became confidential after a time and told Mr. Cardenas a story that almost turned the gentleman's blood cold. Gonzales said that he knew that Banker Santibanez continually carried large sums of money about him and he resolved to murder and rob him, and to cover up the crime in such a manner that detection would be absolutely impossible. He resolved to secure more money than the banker usually carried with him, and about Nov. 25 wrote to the banker stating that he had a number of bills of exchange on American banks which he wished to dispose of advantageously and requested the banker to call at his house in the outskirts of San Jose on Nov. 29 for the purpose of inspecting them. He also requested Santibanez to come prepared to pay for them as he was about to leave the country. Santibanez answered the letter in person on the 29th by going to the house of Gonzales "where his knock was answered," said Gonzales, "by my mistress, a most beautiful woman, who asked him to wait a little as her husband was not in at the time." Then the Spaniard described with great enthusiasm how the supposed Mrs. Gonzales entertained the wealthy banker and got him completely under her control. When Mr. Santibanez was kissing the woman Gonzales and another Spaniard rushed into the room and assaulted the banker with knives, Gonzales doing most of the stabbing while his mistress and his companion held the unfortunate man down to the floor. When life was extinct they removed all his valuables. Gonzales then put the horribly mutilated body into an air-tight chest and a few days later shipped the box to the United States.

This startling confession was immediately followed by the arrest of Gonzales, his friend and his mistress. Gonzales and his assistant will undoubtedly be hanged, while the mistress of Gonzales will probably be imprisoned for life.

The affair has created great excitement in San Jose. It is said to be the most brutal murder ever committed in Guatemala.

FOXES AND WOLVES PLENTIFUL.

Reynard Very Numerous this Year—33 1-2 Inches High.

Bobcaygeon, April 5.—Mr. W. Oliver of North Harvey being aware that foxes were in his neighborhood laid out some tempting baits well saturated with an ingredient that is not entirely conducive to longevity. The following morning when he went out he was surprised. The slain were scattered around in all directions, and he gathered in no less than ten foxes. Some of them were very large, and the skins were in good condition. Foxes are quite numerous this year and the farmers are turning in many an odd dollar by catching them.

Brussels, April 5.—Arthur Brook, who resides near Belgrave station, while driving through the bush on Henry Brandon's farm saw a female fox. He went to the house and secured a gun and shot her. While he was absent for the firearms Mother Reynard had gone to her home close by and removed her family of four babies, whose eyes were not yet opened, to a brush pile for greater safety, it is supposed. Their hiding place was found, however, and they were carried to Mr. Brook's house. A female hound in possession of the proprietor, who had had her puppies recently taken from her, adopted the little "chicken hunters" and is caring for them in good style.

Newboro, April 5.—Our champion fox-hunter has ceased from his labors after slaying 11 of the varmints.

Selkirk, April 5.—Mr. Neeson of Ba o Throat shot at his door the other day a wolf weighing 150 pounds. It stood 33½ inches high and measured 5 feet 10½ inches from nose to root of tail, and the tail was 16 inches long. Mr. Neeson says it is the largest wolf he ever saw. Several of these animals have been visiting the neighbors' houses and killing their dogs. Three dogs were eaten up on the river in one day. Mr. Quesnel saw three very large wolves while going to English River. They came within 50 feet of his sleigh, and the oxen were so frightened that they ran away, tearing the sleigh to pieces, and he had to mount an oxback. A report from Sand River says that six wolves attacked Mr. Norbert and followed him two miles. He says they kept within 100 feet of him all the way, and he was so frightened that his hair actually lifted his cap off his head. He said he knew of two hunters being kept up in a balsam tree two days by 16 wolves at the foot of the tree. It appears they dropped their guns in order to get out of the way of the wolves. They managed to kill four some way and the rest ate the dead ones. At Rice River a pack of wolves was seen a few days ago. Two young lads were out getting wood with a dog and sleigh. While going to the house one wolf came along and ate the dog out of the harness. The two boys escaped while his wolfship was engaged at his meal. There have been about 75 seen around here, and they are very large.

Destructive Fire.

Montreal, April 5.—By a fire at Cote St. Paul yesterday, the works of the File & Spring Company, and Clarke's bell factory were destroyed, and Joseph Godin's hat factory and G. Gilmour's auger, bit and tool factory damaged. The losses: File & Spring Company, loss $33,000, insurance $3600; bell factory, loss $14,000, insurance $3500; hat factory, loss $2000.

Dropped Dead on the Stairs.

Bowmanville, April 5.—George Fisher, proprietor of the Station Hotel, dropped dead when coming downstairs about 1 o'clock yesterday morning. Apoplexy is supposed to be the cause.

The Pipkin.

There are no utensils for cooking at once so inexpensive and well suited to their purpose of producing a slow, steady ebullition as pipkins of pottery or stone ware. If they are handled with care they will last a long time. Stowed fruit, acid vegetables, like tomatoes, and grains of various kinds are far more delicious cooked in such a pot than in anything else. The best of these pipkins are made of hard pottery of the same material fire brick are made of, and they last for a long time. We believe there is a manfactory for such kettles near Boston, where they are produced in broad-mouthed form, in the shape of a Scotch broth-kettle. A tin cover is used over them. Such a kettle is invaluable and will last as long as the porcelain lining will last in a kettle of iron. Pipkins of soft, unglazed earthenware, like the Boston bean-pots, are much less expensive than the kettles made of hard stoneware; but they do not last long. They cannot be used on the hottest part of the stove without danger of cracking. They are very nice, however, when used to cook stewed fruits in the oven, and in this way will last a long time. As the two quart size may be purchased for ten cents, one can afford to renew them occasionally.

TORONTO TRUTH'S
New Spring Bible Competition
NO. 22.

In these latter days there have arisen many false schemes and many scores of imitations of Truth's Competitions, but one after another have failed and utterly perished, yet Truth remains, and makes good all its promises. Its reputation is now too well established to risk damaging it, and as it has cost a very large amount of money and many years of care and labor to build up, the publisher could not afford to fail in carrying out all his agreements to the letter. There are twenty-one divisions of the largest list of bona fide prizes ever offered and ever actually given away by any publisher in the world. The total value of prizes in this Spring list is about $10,000.00. The lists are so large it would cost altogether too much to give them in detail here. There are pianos, gold and silver watches, china tea and dinner sets, ladies' and gentlemen's bicycles, silver tea-sets, silk dresses, books, money, and hundreds of other valuable rewards. You pay nothing for these prizes, as everyone concedes that full value is received for the dollar in securing Truth every week for three months. Send one dollar and answers to the five following questions: Where in the Bible are these words found? 1, Grain; 2, Corn; 3, Wheat; 4, Barley; 5, Rye. If your answers are correct and your letters arrive in time you are almost sure to get a reward, as there are so many and every one cannot always find correct answers to all these questions. All the five answers must be correct to get any prize, but you will get full value for the dollar in Truth if you don't get anything else. If you want to see the list of rewards before sending in your dollar, mail Truth ten cents and a copy will be sent you containing the list of prizes. But there have been very few dissatisfied prize-winners in previous competitions, considering that he has given away during the past eight years scores of thousands of prizes. Some people expect a piano for every dollar sent, and are mad if they don't get it. He wishes it were possible to give every subscriber a gold watch or a piano or both, but says it can't be done. Some publishers intimate they will, but nobody can do it for any length of time. Send one dollar and correct answers and you won't repent it; and bear in mind that it is not guaranteed that every body whose answers are correct will get a prize, but that all the prizes in the twenty-one different lists will be given away. The competition remains open only till the last day of June next, inclusive, after which the prizes will be immediately distributed to the successful ones. Ten days will be allowed for letters to reach Truth from distant points after the 30th of June. All, however, must be postmarked where mailed not later than the 30th June, or any time between now and that date. Address S. Frank Wilson, "Truth" Office, Toronto, Ont., Canada.

BEATRIX RANDOLPH

BY

JULIAN HAWTHORNE.

COPYRIGHT BY AMERICAN PRESS ASSOCIATION.

To return, however, to the prima donna's conscience. It would probably have subsided into a condition of comfortable acquiescence in destiny had it not been for the stimulus unconsciously applied to it by a gentleman of her acquaintance. She could never meet Geoffrey Bellingham without wishing that Mlle. Marana had never been born, or at least that she herself might have achieved her fame in some straightforward and unencumbered way. When a certain tender look and smile, very winning in one whose features were naturally severe, came into his face the pleasure it gave her was marred by the reflection, How would he look if he knew what I am? It is true that he believed her to be a woman whose moral character was currently supposed to be less immaculate than a good many aliases would render that of Beatrix Randolph; none the less she felt, when in his presence, that her one actual sin was more burdensome than all the vicarious naughtiness of the unknown Russian.

She told herself that Geoffrey had perhaps made up his mind to condone Marana's delinquencies, taking into account her foreign training, her temptations, and the loose standard of morals that prevailed in Europe, but that he never would forgive Beatrix for having deliberately misled him—she, an American girl, brought up amid all the enlightenment and fastidious rectitude of the great republic. This was the crumpled leaf in her bed of roses, and it chafed her relentlessly.

But persons whose perception of their value—social, artistic or other—is on the way to beguile them into making a golden calf of themselves in the wilderness, may have reason to be grateful for the implicit criticism of some severe eyed young lawgiver, whose exhortations are none the less effective because they happen to be the utterance of the silent voice of character.

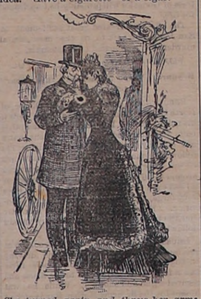
CHAPTER IX.

HOW SHE WAS BETRAYED AND SLANDERED.

One forenoon, as Wallie Dinsmore was seated in his study, with his slippered feet pointed toward the fireplace, the newspaper across his knees and the African lemur munching a lump of sugar on his shoulder, he heard the door bell ring. He rapped his forehead between his eyes and uncrossed and recrossed his extended legs by way of arousing himself, for his serenity during the last half hour had been gradually verging toward the soporific stage. A few moments afterward there was a knock at the study door, and Wallie, resting his chin on the apex of a triangle made by his elbows and joined hands, said, "Come in!"

The visitor entered, and coming up to Wallie's chair took the paw of the lemur in his hand and shook it. The lemur chattered and Wallie looked up.

"Hullo, Geoffrey," he said, "I was just thinking about a cottage at Newport. Sit down and let me tell you my idea. Have a cigarette—or a cigar?"



She turned again and threw her arms about Randolph's neck.

"Have you any smoking tobacco?" returned Geoffrey, taking a pipe from his pocket.

"I guess you'll find some Cavendish in the jar. You know where the matches are."

Geoffrey supplied himself, and then drew a chair to the other side of the fireplace and smoked for several minutes in silence. At length he said, "Were you at the opera last night?"

"No. What was it?"

"'Semiramide.'"

"Good?"

"Yes."

"Your theatre seems to suit her," Wallie remarked. "By the way, there must be a column about last night in the paper. Yes; here it is. 'No such rendering of the music of this part has ever'—and so forth and so on. She's a big success."

"She deserves it, doesn't she?"

"She can sing, sir—she can—sing," replied Wallie, with the quiet slowness that was his only form of emphasis. "She puzzles me!"

"What's the puzzle?"

"If she's been through the wars, where are her scars? She looks fresh as a lily and sweet as new mown hay. Where's the cloven foot?"

"There is none," said Geoffrey, with a laconic conviction.

"So I'm inclined to think, and so I'm puzzled."

"There will be stories about any woman," rejoined Geoffrey; "mostly lies."

"But some of the European stories about Mlle. Marana—well, they would lead one to suppose that she had changed her nature, and everything else except her name, when she landed in this country."

"Well, since her name is the only thing she could change, it follows—And our opinion should be formed on what we see and know, not on hearsay."

"You are only quoting what I said to you when you didn't want to come to the dinner," said Wallie, with a chuckle. "To be sure, I hadn't seen her then."

"I thought you had seen her abroad."

"Well—I mean I hadn't seen her before in New York."

"There has been nothing against her since she came?"

"No; on the contrary I think she has had the opportunity of refusing several eligible offers, and she has done so for all the world like a true American girl."

"Who were the men?"

"That would be telling. Why do you ask?"

As Geoffrey made no reply, but smoked with a good deal of sternness, Wallie continued after a while, "I suppose your wisdom teeth are cut, young man?"

"She's a lady, and I—wish her treated as such, that's all!" said Geoffrey. "What were you saying about a cottage at Newport?"

Before this topic could be gone into the friends were interrupted by the entrance of another caller—Mr. Alexander Randolph.

"Never met him till this autumn. He won't hurt you. Sit still."

"Ah, good morning, Mr. Dinsmore," said Randolph, entering in state with his gray eyebrows and imperial; "I can remain but a moment." Here he caught sight of Bellingham. "Am I in the way?"

"In the way of making the acquaintance of Mr. Bellingham—Mr. Randolph," said Wallie. "Sit down, gentlemen. Have a cigar Mr. Randolph?"

Speaking of Tips.

A TIP is a piece of special or valuable information such as this, that Hagyard's Yellow Oil is a prompt and effectual cure for croup, colds, hoarseness, sore throat, rheumatism, neuralgia, sprains or soreness of any kind. Known as reliable over 30 years.

Important and True.

No better evidence of the fact that Burdock Blood Bitters is a certain remedy for all blood diseases can be asked than that of Mr. Geo. V. Thomas, druggist, of Hull, P. Q., whose wife was cured of cancer by B.B.B. The family doctor is certain that the disease was cancer and that it is now cured.

Silver, blue and leather color are combined in visiting dresses of bengaline and camel's hair.

That latent force of fluid, which permeates all matter, and which bears the conventional name of Electricity, is widely appreciated and recognized as a means of cure in various diseases. Its effects in the form of Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil are shown by the relief of pain, both Neuralgic and Rheumatic, as well as the throat and lungs, and in various other healing ways.

The Lungs, Liver, Kidneys, Bowels, &c., act as so many waste gates for the escape of effete matter and gases from the body. The use of Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery helps them to discharge their duty. Mr. W. H. Lester, H. M. Customs, Toronto, writes: "I have personally tested the health-giving properties of Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery, and can testify as to its great value.

Our Young Ladies.

—)o(—

CHICAGO, Feb. 13th, 1891.

G. A. Swayze, Esq., Principal Belleville Business College, Belleville, Ont.:

MY DEAR SIR—Yours of the 10th inst. received. I am pleased to state that the young ladies who received their tuition in the above-named college, and who are now in my employ, have more than filled their positions and the duties expected of them.

While Miss Francis has not had the opportunity yet of fully demonstrating her capabilities, Miss Moorman has not only done her work to the full satisfaction of the managers, but has surprised those in the office by the manner in which she has taken up a difficult line of business and carefully and correctly performed the same, and to say that I am proud of the institution from which she came is expressing it mildly, although I have always believed that thoroughness was its fundamental principle.

You may rest assured that should I hear or know of any position open I will remember the Belleville Business College.

Seven years ago my cashier came to this office and received $5 a week; to-day she is receiving $125 a month. One of my three stenographers, who came here three years ago, started at $6 a week and is now receiving $15 a week, and this is the smallest wages paid to any female in the office (where there are eight) who have been in the office for over one year.

Yours very truly,
T. S. QUINCEY.

The latest, greatest and most important invention of the century,

HERENDEEN'S ORIENTAL FLOUR!

This flour is prepared from the best Pure White Corn by a process patented February 7th 1880, and is beyond a doubt healthier than wheat or any other flour. We aim to feed the masses, not the classes, consequently instead of putting it up in 2 or 3 lb. packages and charging 15 or 20 cents for them and spending the big profit in advertising, we are selling it at about the price of ordinary flour. It can be used to great advantage in bread, pastry, etc., and is unsurpassed for pancakes or Johnny cake. Instructions and recipes in each package. This is also pre-eminently the food for anyone troubled with Dyspepsia or Indigestion. Your grocer has it now. Ask for it. Try it.

MORE TROUBLE IN INDIA.

SEVERAL OTHER TRIBES OPEN FIRE ON THE BRITISH.

Troopers and Officers Killed—Reinforcements Being Hurried Into the Interior—The Viceroy Hopes to Speedily Crush the Rebellion.

LONDON, April 6.—Sir James Fergusson, Political Secretary of the Foreign Office, in the House of Commons to-day said the recent trouble at Manipur, India, originated in a dispute between the Maharajah of Manipur and the latter's brother, a powerful chieftain. The dispute became so serious that the Maharajah took refuge in the British residency, leaving the state in an extremely disordered condition. Chief Commissioner Quinton met with resistance upon the part of the Maharajah's brother, who commanded the Manipur troops, when Quinton went to Manipur to try to restore order and to reinstate the virtually deposed Maharajah. Sir James said the Viceroy of India, the Marquis of Lansdowne, had telegraphed that he would speedily restore order in the disturbed districts of India.

Further Risings Reported.

CALCUTTA, April 6.—If present indications turn out to be correct, there is very serious trouble brewing in India for the British forces. Emboldened by the success of the Manipurs, who recently crushed the Goorkha escort accompanying Chief Commissioner James W. Quinton in his efforts to settle the disputes which have occurred among the rival chieftains of Assam, the Miranzi in the Kohat territory, a district of the Peshawur division of the Punjab, have risen in arms and are attacking the British troops along the whole length of their lines. It is also known that the Miranzi attack is pushed vigorously and that strong reinforcements have been hurriedly despatched to the frontier. Full details as to this new uprising are withheld by the authorities here.

In addition to this news, telegrams from Rangoon announce that the Haku-Chins laid in ambush in a favorable location awaiting the passage of a small British column on its way from one military post to another. When the British force was well inside the trap the Haku-Chins suddenly opened fire on the soldiers, instantly killing Lieut. Forbes and five men and severely wounding 11 others. This column, however, returned the enemy's fire with such effect that the British force was enabled to retreat from the dangerous position and thus probably escaped annihilation.

Sharp fighting with the rebellious natives continues. The Miranzi rising is extending. Yesterday the 29th Regiment lost nine men killed and four wounded.

KEW AND KENSINGTON.

Close Vote On a Motion in the Commons to Reduce Appropriations for Repairing the Palaces.

LONDON, April 6.—In the House of Commons to-day Henry Labouchere moved a reduction of the item of £10,000 for the maintenance and repair of Kensington Palace, on the ground that the palace was utterly useless and that the country would be the better without that edifice. Labouchere also moved to strike out the item appropriating £425 for the maintenance and repair of Kew Palace, saying that palace was also useless and nobody knew where Kew Palace was or who lived there.

Sir George Otto Trevelyan opposed the motion, saying both Kensington Palace and Kew Palace were historical monuments in which considerable interest was centred.

After further discussion Labouchere's motions were rejected 79 to 51.

Samuel Danks Waddy (Gladstonian) then moved to reduce the item appropriating money for the maintenance and repair of Bushey House, which, he said, was occupied by the Duke of Nemoura, a wealthy man. Mr. Waddy claimed it was a monstrous state of affairs which permitted the Duke of Nemoura to occupy Bushey House at the expense of the English people. The motion was rejected 85 to 55.

IS PARNELL MARRIED?

LONDON, April 6.—A sensation was caused in the lobby of the House of Commons this evening by a rumor that Mr. Parnell has been privately married since the O'Shea divorce proceedings. According to this rumor the lady whom Mr. Parnell married is not Mrs. O'Shea. Several Parnellites in the House of Commons were interviewed on the subject to-night, but they refused to say more than that the "mystery" of their leader's inner life which has often been referred to recently as certain to clear Mr. Parnell's character will shortly be explained.

What the Miners' Congress is Called.

PARIS, April 6.—The Miners' Congress has been the screaming joke of the city for the past week. Each sitting has ended in a disturbance that culminated yesterday in a free fight. Messrs. Pickard and Burt, the English delegates, returned home, saying that they were discouraged and convinced that the Latin strikers would never walk hand in hand with their English and Teutonic brethren. The congress broke up amid cries of "Vive la Republique!" "Vive la Revolution!"

Killed by a Lioness.

PARIS, April 6.—A menagerie proprietor's daughter of Grenoble, who has been training to become a trainer of wild animals, was fatally injured by a lioness yesterday. The girl had entered a lion's cage for the first time and was immediately attacked by the lioness, which sprang at her throat and inflicted terrible injuries before the girl could escape.

Lorne to Be the First Governor-General.

LONDON, April 6.—The general belief in England is that the British Government will ratify the Australian Constitution, when adopted, with the idea of accepting the inevitable. It is rumored that the Marquis of Lorne will be the first Governor-General of Australia, with headquarters at Sydney.

Another Plot Against the Czar.

LONDON, April 6.—A St. Petersburg correspondent says another conspiracy against the life of the Czar has just been discovered there.

A 'Varsity Substitute Drowned.

BOSTON, April 6.—Adelbert Shaw, a special student in the Freshman class at Harvard University and a promising candidate for the 'Varsity crew, was drowned about 8 o'clock this evening in Charles River by the overturning of the lapstreak boat in which he was out practising. He was a substitute in the 'Varsity football team.

Dangerous Counterfeits.

Counterfeits are always dangerous, more so that they always closely IMITATE THE ORIGINAL IN APPEARANCE AND NAME. The remarkable success achieved by Nasal Balm as a positive cure for Catarrh and Cold in the Head has induced unprincipled parties to imitate it. The public are cautioned not to be deceived by nostrums imitating Nasal Balm in name and appearance, bearing such names as Nasal Cream, Nasal Balsam, etc. Ask for Nasal Balm and do not take any imitation dealers may urge upon you. For sale by all druggists or sent post-paid on receipt of price (50c and $1,) by addressing Fulford & Co. Brockville. Ont.

Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam.

Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam gives prompt relief in coughs, colds, hoarseness, whooping cough, croup, asthma or bronchitis. It is the most pleasant and perfect throat and lung healer in the world for children or adults. Price 25c.

Bickle's Anti Consumptive Syrup is a combination of several medical herbs which exert a most wonderful influence in curing pulmonary consumption and all other diseases of the lungs, chest and throat. It promotes a free and easy expectoration, and gives ease even to the greatest sufferer. Coughs, colds, shortness of breath, and affections of the chest, attended with weakness of the digestive organs, or with general debility, seem to vanish under its use. No other remedy acts so readily in allaying inflammation or breaking up a severe cold, even the most obstinate cough is overcome by its penetrating and healing properties. When children are affected with colds, coughs, inflammation of the lungs, croup, quinsey, and sore throat, this Syrup is of vast importance. The number of deaths among children from these diseases is truly alarming. It is so palatable that a child will not refuse it, and is put at such a price that will not exclude the poor from its benefits.

White broche is in demand for neglige robes.

Mr. J. R Allen, Upholsterer, Toronto, sends us the following: "For six or seven years my wife suffered from Dyspepsia, Costiveness, Inward Piles and Kidney Complaint We tried two physicians and any number of medicines without getting any relief, until we got a bottle of Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery. This was the first relief she got, and before one bottle was used the benefit she derived from it was beyond our expectation."

Satins closely resemble India silks in design.

Jacob H. Bloomer, of Virgille, N. Y., writes:—"Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil cured a badly swelled neck and sore throat on my son in forty-eight hours; one application also removed the pain from a very sore toe; my wife's foot was also much inflamed—so much so that she could not walk about the house; she applied the Oil, and in twenty four hours was entirely cured."

A coronet set with turquoises is a new shape for a bonnet pin.

Mr. Thomas Ballard, Syracuse, N.Y., writes: "I have been afflicted for nearly a year with that most-to-be-dreaded disease Dyspepsia, and at times worn out with pain and want of sleep, and after trying almost everything recommended, I tried one box of Parmelee's Vegetable Pills. I am now nearly well, and believe they will cure me. I would not be without them for any money

Hard and soft corns cannot withstand Holloway's Corn Cure; it is effectual every time. Get a bottle at once and be happy.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS

MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP has been used by millions of mothers for children teething for over fifty years with perfect success. It relieves the little sufferer at once, produces natural, quiet sleep by freeing the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste, soothes the child, softens the gums, allays pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. Twenty five cents a bottle

MANY PERISHED.

ROCHESTER, Pa., April 6.—A large frame structure in New York-street, belonging to John F. Smith, in which were located the tea and coffee store of George Edwards, the millinery store of Mrs. Hall and the shoe shop and residence of E. J. Keene, was burned last night. An Italian family lived over the millinery store. There were ten persons in the building, and the only person who escaped was Mary Tecchio, aged 17, who jumped from the second-story window. The dead: C. J. Keene, aged 40; Walter Keene, his son, aged 9; Baptiste Tecchio, aged 40; Annie Tecchio, aged 35, his wife; Yosef Tecchio, aged 13; Rosa Tecchio, aged 8; Annie Tecchio, aged 2; Victoria Tecchio, aged 37, brother of Baptiste; Joseph Raoma, aged 35.

The rescued girl talks incoherently and seems to remember but little of the fearful struggles of her kinsmen. She says that when she awoke the fire was burning below and their rooms were filled with smoke. She slept in the back room, her mother and the children in the middle room and her father and his brother Victoria Tecchio, and Joseph Raema, both visitors, occupied the front room. Mary tried to rouse her people, but they were already asphyxiated. All the bodies have been recovered. Each is burned beyond recognition. Annie, the baby, had one foot and an arm burned completely off. The others are all fearfully mutilated. It is thought the fire was caused by the explosion of a lamp in Mr. Keene's kitchen. The loss is $6000.

SUICIDE AT MILLBROOK.

A Citizen Cuts His Throat in the Office of His Mill.

MILLBROOK, Ont., April 6.—The residents of this community were greatly shocked about noon to-day to learn that one of the leading citizens, Mr. R. S. Lancashire, committed suicide by cutting his throat. A short time after breakfast he left for his mill again and that was the last seen of him until he was discovered by his partner, Mr. H. McCartney, in the office with his throat cut from ear to ear and the door locked on the inside. Mr. Lancashire was one of the leading citizens, a councillor for the past two years and was in easy circumstances and it is as yet impossible to discover any cause for the rash act.

A MOTHER'S DESPAIR.

FREDERICTON, N.B., April 6.—This morning Patrick Murphy, a laborer, having had some words with his wife left the house. Returning shortly after 8 he discovered his wife had twisted a small piece of her child's dress around her neck and fastening it to a hook in the wall had pushed aside the box on which her feet rested. The husband immediately cut her down, but life had departed. It is said Murphy frequently struck his wife and that the deceased made three previous attempts on her life in consequence. She was 21 years of age and leaves one child.

Will Written on the Fly-leaf of a Bible.

WESTMINSTER, Md., April 6.—On the fly leaf of a Bible belonging to the late Miss Mamie McKinstry of this county, who died several months ago, the following, written in lead pencil in her handwriting, has been discovered: "$5000 for the Western Maryland College, $1000 of it to be given to the Theological Seminary; $1000 towards hall; the $3000 to be given to the main college." This was signed and dated July 18, 1883. The paper has been filed by her brother in the Orphans' Court.

That Chess-Board Calculation.

It is related of the inventor of the game of chess that, on being promised by the king whom he first taught the game that he should have any reward he might ask for, meekly replied that he would be content if the king would give him one kernel of wheat on the first square, two on the second, four on the third, eight on the fourth, and so on, doubling up to the sixty-fourth square. The king gladly acceded to this seemingly modest request, and ordered his attendants to bring in the wheat, which they began to do; but, to the astonishment of the monarch, it was found that there was not wheat enough in the whole dominion to pay off the crafty inventor. A mathematician who claims to have been figuring on this chess board curiosity says that to fulfill the king's promise it would take 30,027,097,184,485 bushels of wheat—allowing 600,000 kernels to each bushel. This prodigious amount would cover the States of New York, Pennsylvania, New Jersey and Delaware all over with wheat to the depth of a mile and a quarter. In a few words here is the exact number of wheat kernels the chess inventor asked for—9,627,208,786,934,775,168. Figure it up and prove or disprove it.

Makes the Weak Strong

The marked benefit which people in run down or weakened state of health derive from Hood's Sarsaparilla, conclusively proves the claim that this medicine "makes the weak strong." It does not act like a stimulant, imparting fictitious strength from which there must follow a reaction of greater weakness than before, but in the most natural way Hood's Sarsaparilla overcomes

That Tired Feeling

creates an appetite, purifies the blood, and, in short, gives great bodily, nerve, mental and digestive strength.

"I derived very much benefit from Hood's Sarsaparilla, which I took for general debility. It built me right up, and gave me an excellent appetite." ED. JENKINS, Mt. Savage, Md.

Fagged Out

"Last spring I was completely fagged out. My strength left me and I felt sick and miserable all the time, so that I could hardly attend to my business. I took one bottle of Hood's Sarsaparilla, and it cured me. There is nothing like it." R. C. BEGOLE, Editor Enterprise, Belleville, Mich.

Worn Out

"Hood's Sarsaparilla restored me to good health. Indeed, I might say truthfully it saved my life. To one feeling tired and worn out I would earnestly recommend a trial of Hood's Sarsaparilla." MRS. PHEBE MOSHER, 90 Brooks Street, East Boston, Mass.

SOME INTERESTING FIGURES—THE CENSUS.

On Monday the census officers began, says the Montreal Gazette, the work of numbering the people. The task is a difficult one to perform correctly, and is sometimes made unnecessarily so by an indisposition on the part of persons who do not fully comprehend its meaning and importance to answer the questions the law puts to them. There is no justification for this feeling. The information is not sought as it affects individuals, but as it applies to the whole community. * * Any person who refuses to answer the official questions, or who wilfully answers falsely, may be taken before a justice of the peace and be fined from $5 to $20, according to the gravity of the offence. It will not pay to refuse information under such circumstances.

The present is the third census of the Dominion as it is to-day, and the seventh of Canada as it existed prior to Confederation, the first having been taken in 1831. Before that year enumerations of the people were made at various intervals.

1608. This year was the beginning of the enumeration of the people, when twenty-eight white people spent the winter in Quebec and laid the foundation of permanent settlement. 1605. Port Royal, in the division now called Nova Scotia, was founded, but the population is not known. 1620. The white population of New France had grown to 60 persons. 1629. In the winter of this year, when the English held the city of Quebec, there were 117 Europeans in the country. 1667. Montreal was founded and New France boasted of 3,918 white inhabitants. 1672. The population had increased to 6,705. 1692. To 12,431, 1698, to 13,355. 1713. By the Treaty of Utrecht, Hudson's Bay and adjacent territory, Newfoundland and Acadia were ceded to England, and British settlement began in the latter two. 1720. There were 24,434 white inhabitants in New France. 1739. There 42,701. 1760. The date of the capitulation to Great Britain there were 70,000.

1749. The city of Halifax was founded by Lord Halifax, 2544 English immigrants being brought out by Lord Cornwallis, the first governor of Nova Scotia. 1762. The population in Halifax had grown to 8,104.

1878. The population of Canada was 113,012, and of Nova Scotia, 32,000. These figures, however, took no account of a number of United Empire Loyalists, who had settled in Upper Canada, nor of about 11,000 French Acadians residing in Nova Scotia. In this year, New Brunswick was separated from the latter province, and erected into a distinct colony, with a population of 11,457. From this time out the influx of Loyalists from the United States assumed greater proportions, and in a few years, is is estimated, fully 40,000 persons came into Canada, giving up many of them comforts and even luxury in their former homes in the revolted colonies, that they might live under the British flag and under British institutions, and now, led by the Globe under annexationist Farrer's teachings, renegades of this noble old stock are to be found willing to sell their country to those who drove their forefathers from their homes. Among the leaders of the degenerate is to be found such men as Cartwright.

1791. The population of Upper and Lower Canada was 161,311. 1806. It was 320,718—250,000 being set down to Lower Canada. 1798. The name of St. John's Island was changed to Prince Edward Island, and it had a population of 4,500.

In the first two or three years of the century, therefore, the population of what is now the Dominion of Canada must have been about 450,000 or 460,000.

1814. At the conclusion of the war with the United States, the population of Upper Canada was 95,000, and of Lower Canada 335,000. 1831. The census showed 236,702 and 553,134. 1841. The population of Upper Canada was 465,688.

1844. Lower Canada had 697,084. From this time the population of the western province continued to grow with greatest rapidity, and by 1851 it had outstripped Lower Canada.

1851. The census gave the following result:

Upper Canada	952,004
Lower Canada	890,261
New Brunswick	193,804

giving 2,312,919 for the four provinces, P. E. Island being omitted.

1861. The returns were had from all the provinces, showing as follows:

Upper Canada	1,396,091
Lower Canada	1,111,566
New Brunswick	252,047
Nova Scotia	330,857
Prince Edward Island	80,857
Vancouver Island (white)	3,024
Total	3,174,442

1871. Manitoba had been added to the Dominion and a census taken the previous year, as was also the case in British Columbia. Prince Edward Island also took a census in 1871, so that for purposes of comparison the provinces may be considered as occupying the same position as they did in 1881, the year of the last census. The figures for the two years are as follows:—

	1871.	1881.
P. E. Island	94,021	108 8-1
Nova Scotia	387,800	440,572
New Brunswick	285,594	321 233
Quebec	1,191,516	1,395,027
Ontario	1,620,851	1,923 228
Manitoba	18,995	65,954
British Columbia	36,247	49,459
N. W. Territories		56,446
Totals	3,635,024	4,324,810

1886. A census of Manitoba and the Northwest was taken and the population of the former was found to be 108,640, and the Territories 48,362. The apparent decrease in the latter is due to the fact that in 1881 the population was largely estimated, especially as regards the Indians, while in 1886, the count was actually made. The Territories in 1881 also included a portion of what is now Manitoba.

1891. The population of the present census is variously estimated at 5,000,000 and 5,250,000, and by some much under these figures—that is by those who for party purposes are continually depreciating this country.

Love's Young Dream.

Love's young dream was a very bright one, and its fulfillment will be bright, too, if the bride will remember that she is a woman, and liable to all the ills peculiar to her sex. We remind those who are suffering from any of these, that Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription will renew the hue of youth in pale and sallow cheeks, correct irritating uterine diseases, arrest and cure ulceration and inflammation, and infuse new vitality into a wasting body. "Favorite Prescription" is the only medicine for women, sold by druggists, under a positive guarantee from the manufacturers, that it will give satisfaction in every case, or money will be refunded. This guarantee has been printed on the bottle-wrapper, and faithfully carried out for many years.

A Pleasant Herb Drink—A Spring Medicine.

The druggists tell us that people call daily for the new cure for constipation and sick-headache discovered by Dr. Silas Lane. It is said to be Oregon grape root (a great remedy in the far west for those complaints) combined with simple herbs, and is made ready for use by pouring on boiling water to draw out the strength. It sells at 50c and $1 a package and is called Lane's Family Medicine.

MANITOBA'S SCHOOL ACT.

TO BE ALLOWED BY DOMINION GOVERNMENT.

Separate Schools in Manitoba and the French Language in the Manitoba Legislature to be Abolished—Several Other Acts Disallowed by the Cabinet.

OTTAWA, April 6.—The Dominion Government has decided to allow the Provincial Act abolishing separate schools, and also an act abolishing French in the Legislature and journals and judicial proceedings, to go into operation. In his report Sir John Thompson says; "It is doubtful whether the Legislature had the power to pass these Acts. The constitutionality of them, however, can be easily tested in the courts by anyone who is interested in the use of the French language in legal proceedings or in the journals of the Assembly, and therefore the prerogative of disallowance has not been exercised." The Minister comments very unfavorably on several bills passed by the Manitoba Legislature in 1890, notably the act respecting The Executive Administration of the Lands of the Province, the Game Act and The Municipal Institutions Act, but the objections raised were not sufficient to have them disallowed. Two acts, however, are said to be especially objectionable. The first is one respecting Contagious Diseases Among Animals. This is said to be ultra vires in part, because it conflicts with trade and commerce, as well as with the authority of Parliament to deal with the subject of quarantine. On these and the other grounds the Act has been disallowed. The other is an act respecting Extra Provincial corporations, which authorized companies incorporated, not of the province, to do business therein, and in effect provides that no institution can transact business in the province except with permission of the Provincial Government and upon payment of a license fee, no matter how enormous the amount, or it may be made prohibitory as the executive council may see fit. This act, it is said, would have the effect of confiscating the Hudson Bay property and be a breach of faith with certain land companies who got Dominion lands for building certain roads and carrying out certain other obligations entered into with the Dominion Government. It has therefore been disallowed.

ONTARIO LEGISLATURE.

TORONTO, April 7.—In the Ontario Legislature yesterday Mr. Tait's bill respecting the examination of stationary engineers and the inspection of stationary boilers was referred to a special committee.

Upon Mr. Waters' motion for the second reading of the bill to amend the Ditches and Watercourses Act Mr. Mowat said that a commission would be issued during recess to investigate the whole question of municipal drainage. In the meantime he had drafted a bill to simplify the assessment of costs under an arbitration. Mr. Waters' bill accordingly was dropped.

Among the bills introduced was one by G. B. Smith to amend the Insolvency Act in order to prevent a person about to become insolvent from making over property to anyone to the disadvantage of creditors.

Mr. Meredith introduced a bill to amend the Judicature Act by providing that in the case of anyone suing for compensation for injuries the judge or referee may order that the claimant shall submit to examination by medical or other experts.

Mr. Davis' bill "respecting the use of velocipedes on public highways," which was printed yesterday, is not so formidable as the bicyclists had feared. The first clause provides that in case any difficulty shall arise from any person using bicycles, etc., on any highway in passing any vehicle or mounted horseman, "it shall be the duty of such person to stop and in every reasonable way to assist such mounted horseman or the person in charge of such vehicle to pass him and proceed in safety." The second clause provides that bicycles, etc., running after dark over any highway shall carry a bright red light in a conspicuous place.

What the New Shipping Act Will Require of Exporters.

OTTAWA, April 6.—The Marine Department has made public a draft of the Live Stock Shipping Act, which will be introduced at this session. The governor-in-council may appoint inspectors, who shall issue clearances certifying the number of cattle actually on board, and that such ship is seaworthy, and that all arrangements are satisfactory to ensure the safety of such live stock for the voyage.

The master of any ship which proceeds to sea, or attempts to proceed to sea, with a greater number of live stock on board than is allowed by her certificate for the intended voyage shall incur a penalty of one thousand dollars, and such ship shall be liable for the same, and will be liable for seizure.

American Cattle in Glasgow.

MONTREAL, April 6.—There was consternation among cattle exporters this morning upon learning that cattle were selling a cent a pound dearer in Chicago than in Glasgow to-day. About £3 a head was being lost on each head of American cattle sold in Glasgow. This is an extraordinary state of affairs and is not easy to account for. It is a long time since a similar thing has happened.

Transportation of Bonded Goods.

WASHINGTON, April 6.—The Secretary of the Treasury has determined on a number of important changes in the regulations governing transportation of bonded goods in Canadian cars over United States territory, but will not make them public for several days yet. It was announced to-day, however, that the Secretary has decided that domestic goods taken from ports in the United States by the Canadian Pacific Railway to Revelstoke, B.C., may be transferred from the cars at that point, under supervision of a customs officer, to American vessels for transportation down the Columbia River to Little Falls, Wash., and there be re-loaded on cars of the Canadian Pacific road.

Perished From Exposure.

MONCTON, N.B., April 6.—Mary Francis a squaw, was found frozen to death on the ice near Lennox Island. A bottle found by her side told the story.

Wrecked on the Boston & Albany.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., April 6.—The Owl express train on the Boston & Albany Railway leaving this city at 9.40 to-night was wrecked near Westfield. The locomotive was thrown down the bank, with two mail cars. No passengers were hurt, but Engineer Marshal of Albany, Baggagemaster Murray and Expressman Howard are known to be injured.

PITTSBURG, April 6.—Lucy Fitzsimmons, the 5-year-old daughter of the murderer of Detective Gilkinson, visited her parents yesterday for the first time since the day after they were arrested. The child had been sent to board with a private family and was brought in by her protectors. She is said not to know that her parents are in jail, but to believe her mother is being treated in a hospital for her wounded arm. The matron says the child is wonderfully innocent, although remarkably bright. Among her attainments are a number of gospel hymns. She spent the time passed with her parents yesterday in telling them, particularly her mother, about what she had seen since her separation from them.

The trial of Fitzsimmons will take place in June. His counsel says the stories of a gang of burglars working with Fitzsimmons are all bogus.

INNOCENCE AND CRIME.

Two Children Frightfully Hack a Baby with a Razor.

WASHINGTON, N.J., April 6.—Mrs. James MacNerney of Karrsville left her three children, aged 9, 7 and 2½, the youngest a girl, at home while she went to the store yesterday. When she returned she found the baby lying on the floor in the kitchen covered with blood. A razor was by its side. The child was not dead, though she was very weak from the loss of blood. Her little face was one mass of cuts and on the neck was a huge gash that barely missed the jugular vein. The other children were not to be found for a long while. They were finally discovered in a closet fast asleep, their little hands covered with blood. They explained to their mother that they had been playing barber with the baby, who would not keep still, and so was cut. They became frightened at the blood and hid themselves.

KILLED IN VARIOUS WAYS.

Sat Down on the Track and Was Killed by a Train.

ORILLIA, April 6.—Hector McLean, farmer, was walking home from Orillia to Uptergrove on the track. Before reaching Uptergrove he sat down on the edge of a culvert, where he was struck by the steps of a passing train. Death was instantaneous.

Drowned in an Old Well.

CAMPBELLFORD, April 6.—The 5-year-old daughter of Joseph Sceney was drowned today in an old uncovered well in which there were about 7 feet of water. Two children were out playing and all that is known is that the younger child came running and told her mother that the elder one had fallen in the well. Life was extinct when the body was recovered.

Poison in the Beans.

BUFFALO, April 6.—Mrs. Mary Wayland, who lived at No. 4 Mulberry-street, died from ptomaine poisoning at her home Saturday afternoon. The family had partaken of canned string beans Friday noon and shortly afterward they were all taken violently ill and the mother died before medical aid could be summoned. A post mortem examination showed ptomaine poisoning. Mrs. Wayland recently came to Buffalo with her family from Canada.

Fell from a Trapeze.

ORILLIA, April 6.—Edward Bowes fell from a trapeze in the high school gymnasium Saturday afternoon and fractured his skull.

NORFOLK ASSIZES.

The Death of Mary Colville Still Unavenged—No Evidence Against Corydon Smith at Simcoe.

SIMCOE, April 6.—At the Norfolk Assizes to-day Corydon W. Smith, charged with the murder of Mary Colville, was discharged, the crown not having any evidence to offer in support of the charge.

On June 5, 1885, a young man named William Culver found the dead and terribly decomposed body of a young girl in Townsend swamp. By a shawl and cap found beside the body the remains were recognized as those of Mary Jane Colville, the daughter of a farmer in the neighborhood who had met her Faustus and fallen, and the post mortem on the body showed that she was enciente at the time of her death. She had been missing for about 6 months. A farmer named Lemuel Kitchen has been working on the case for 6 years and claimed to have secured evidence connecting the prisoner Smith, who was known to have kept company with the girl, with being the murderer, but the crown have now concluded that the evidence is insufficient to warrant his being held, and he has therefore been discharged.

Wedded in Spite of La Grippe.

PHILLIPSBURG, Pa., April 6.—Miss Nora Jolly, daughter of D. A. Jolly of this place, was married yesterday to Dr. J. H. Pipes of Wheeling. Although confined to her bed with grip, the bride would hear of no postponement and the ceremony was performed.

Killed Himself at His Daughter's Grave.

SAVANNAH, Ga., April 6.—Thomas Gadsden, the cashier of the Merchants' National Bank of this city, blew his brains out this morning at his daughter's grave in Laurel Grove Cemetery.

TENDERS.

SEALED TENDERS addressed to the undersigned and endorsed "Tender for Indian Supplies," will be received at this office up to noon of SATURDAY, 9th May, 1891, for the delivery of Indian supplies, during the fiscal year ending 30th June, 1892, consisting of Flour, Beef, Bacon, Groceries, Ammunition, Twine, Agricultural Implements, Tools, &c, duty paid, at various points in Manitoba and the North-West Territories.

Forms of tender, containing full particulars relative to the Supplies required, dates of delivery, &c, may be had by applying to the undersigned, or to the Indian Commissioner at Regina, or to the Indian Office, Winnipeg.

Parties may tender for each description of goods (or for any portion of each description of goods) separately or for all the goods called for in the Schedules, and the Department reserves to itself the right to reject the whole or any part of a tender.

Each tender must be accompanied by an accepted Cheque in favor of the Superintendent General of Indian Affairs, on a Canadian Bank, for at least five per cent of the amount of the tender, which will be forfeited if the party tendering declines to enter into a contract based on such tender when called upon to do so, or if he fails to complete the work contracted for. If the tender be not accepted, the cheque will be returned, and if a contract be entered into for a part only of the supplies tendered for, an accepted cheque for five per cent. of the amount of the contract may be substituted for that which accompanied the tender; the contract security cheque will be retained by the Department until the end of the fiscal year.

Each tender must, in addition to the signature of the tenderer, be signed by two sureties acceptable to the Department for the proper performance of the contract based on his tender.

This advertisement is not to be inserted by any newspaper without the authority of the Queen's Printer, and no claim for payment by any newspaper not having had such authority will be admitted.

What She Said.

Mrs. R. Peck, E. 15th street, New York City, visited Canada last year, and had the good fortune to pick up something which not only suited her, but her neighbors also. Writing the manufacturer of Nerviline she says:—"I bought three bottles of Nerviline while in Canada and treated my neighbors to some of it and all think it the best medicine for internal or external pain they have ever used. Nerviline deserves such a commendation, for it is a most powerful, penetrating, and certain remedy, for pain of all kinds. Take no substitute.

Belleville's Centenary.

DEAR SIR,—The suggestions made in one of your editorials in yesterday's issue anent the opening of the Bay Bridge, will doubtless meet with general approbation, and be carried to a successful issue. I write to sugg st that there be incorporated with that celebration the centennial of the first settlement of Belleville—the dates given for that being the fall of 1890 and spring of '91. The Hastings Directory of 1869 70 has the following interesting reference to this date:

"During the American revolutionary war and within a few years after its close, a large number of U. E. Loyalists turned their steps toward what was then the wilderness of Upper Canada. Kingston being a place conveniently reached, it was there that the settlement along the Bay of Quinte commenced. As the number of refugees increased, the settlement was gradually extended up the Bay; and by the year 1790, there might have been seen, here and there, all along its tickly wooded and beautiful shores, the rudely constructed log house, surrounded by a comparatively few acres of cleared land. * * * Amongst those who first settled at the western extremity of the bay, on the northern shore, were Capt. Singleton, Capt. Myers and John Taylor, all of them British soldiers of the Revolutionary war. Capt. Singleton, who had been living a few years in Ernestown, came to Thurlow in 1789, having received from the Government 400 acres of land to the east of and adjacent to an Indian reserve of 200 acres on the east side of the river Moira at its mouth. He erected a log house on what is known as the old Canniff property. The site of the house was on a rise of ground not far from the bay, just at the present easternmost limits of the town, south of the Kingston road. An old half-filled well marks the spot." He was apparently the first settler in the neighborhood of Belleville; while John Taylor—father of the late Sheriff Taylor and grandfather of John Taylor, Esq.—was the first settler on what is now the City of Belleville, and built the first house in it—somewhere in 1790 or 1791. Yours truly,

CITIZEN.

Belleville, 7th April, '90.

They are not Ready.

In the Legislature yesterday, Mr. Wood (Hastings) rose to move his motion regarding payments of officials by fees. He was ready to go on, he said, as he had been for some time, but was informed that the Government were still not ready. Were they ready to have a day fixed?

Mr. Meredith said the day surely ought to be fixed now. There had been a great deal of delay.

Hon. Mr. Fraser said it was now the intention to have the motion discussed on Wednesday of next week, but if anything intervened a full day would be taken for the discussion, even if a Government day had to be used.

NOT READY FOR THE ELECTION FRAUDS.

Mr. Hudson rose to move his resolution regarding alleged frauds in the East Hastings election.

Hon. Mr. Mowat asked that it stand.

Mr. Hudson—Will the hon. gentleman fix a day?

Hon. Mr. Mowat—We will endeavor to take it up next Wednesday.

Prince Edward Assizes.

PICTON, April 6.—The Picton Spring Assizes opened to-day before Mr. Justice Rose, the crown represented by Mr. H. M. Deroche, of Napanee. The business was much larger than for a number of years, there being 13 civil cases, one case of manslaughter and one for fraud, and will it is probable last the greater part of the week. Messrs. B. B. Osler, W. H. Biggar, R. C. Clute, D. H. Preston, Napanee, and John Whiting, Kingston, are in attendance. Four cases are of damage against the Deseronto Navigation Company, consequent upon the burning of their steamer Quinte, running between here and Trenton, three being jury cases, and upon application for their postponement it was agreed to to hear them jointly by the court.

Death of an Esteemed Lady.

After an illness of short duration, Miss Shurreldine, second daughter of Albert Morton, Esq., and sister of police officer Morton, expired this morning. Her death was somewhat sudden, as it was thought yesterday that she was improving. The deceased lady was well and favorably known throughout the city, and her demise will be regretted by a host of friends. Miss Morton was one of the most artistic skaters in the country, and her graceful movements on the glacial surface have been enjoyed by a large number of persons. The immediate cause of her death was fever. The funeral will take place on Thursday afternoon at 3 p.m., from her father's residence, Church street.

Used in the Hospital,

And endorsed by the medical faculty throughout the states, Clark's Catarrh Cure has come to be regarded as the only real specific for that disease. In every case it works a certain, safe, and speedy cure. Pleasant to taste and smell, it is yet powerful in healing and restoring the natural functions. No other remedy gives such satisfaction, because the results from use are not the same. Sold by all druggists, or sent to any address on receipt of 50 cents by Clark Chemical Co., Toronto New York.

Opera House, April 14th, "Aunt Jack."

Miss Ffolliott Paget has never been seen here before, but she will in the future always be welcome. Her conception of Aunt Jack is extremely original, and while there must be an inclination to overdraw the part, she succeeds admirably in just going far enough to make the character original. The scene in which Brue makes love to her and again when she addresses the judge and jury are very rich, and elicited not only hearty but uproarious laughter.—Montreal Herald, Sept. 23, 1890.

County Court

Opened this morning, His Honor, Thos A. Lazier, Esq., senior judge, presiding.

Gibson v. Luffman, et al.—Action to recover amount of a promissory note with a lien on chattels. Defence for Albert Jones, one of the endorsers, that note was not duly presented or protested. Verdict for plaintiff, $227.22 and full costs of action.—H. Parker Thomas, counsel for plaintiff; H. A. Simpson, counsel for defendant, Jones.

The Court adjourned till Saturday next at 2.30 p.m.

Short Measure.

John Phillips, an employee of Mr. Wilmot of Sidney, this morning came to market with some potatoes, which he was offering for sale at $1 per bag. As the bags did not seem to contain the measure they were weighed by Mr. Hyde, Market Inspector, when one of the bags was found to be short 6 lbs and another 9 lbs. One of the bags was also tested with a half-bushel measure and was found wanting. The case will likely be brought up in court.

Fire at Listowel.

LISTOWEL, April 7.—Fire broke out in the Grand Central Hotel here about 3 o'clock this morning. The hotel and contents were completely destroyed. Marter's building, adjoining, was totally destroyed. The inmates of the hotel barely escaped with their lives, losing all their clothes, &c. The hotel and contents were partly insured in various companies.

HAWORTH.

From one's longing loitering about the old parsonage where now the spirit of envy and hate repels all who come pilgriming to the former nest of genius and love; from wandering over the moors to which the father and all the talented sisters were so passionately devoted; from dreaming about the ancient church yard with its dank graves and soughing willows; and from hushed and pensive lingering within the church by the very spot where all these loving and loyal, sad and tempestuous, hearts are resting in the eternal silences; it is a delight, if still a melancholy pleasure, to turn to an humble home not a stone's throw from parsonage, church and graves, where a younger cousin of Charlotte's faithful nurse, Martha Brown, has with dogged fidelity to a generous sentiment gathered together many of the scattered relics of the old Bronte household. With marked contrast to the clerical brute who has repeatedly declared that the name of Bronte was hateful to him; that it was not his duty "to maintain a show-place for strangers, but a house of prayer for the praise of God;" that the memory of this family represented to him merely "a recollection of a predecessor incumbent;" and who has done everything in his little power to destroy the greatest and least vestiges of as noble and tender personalities and influences as ever hallowed English soil; this young man, a poor man besides, Robinson Brown, of 123 Main street, Haworth, has passed a life of sacrifice and almost personal want to secure these precious relics and to generously welcome all strangers who may wish to see them. His home is the only real Bronte shrine in Haworth. The curate rules the village with a spiritual rod of iron, and this local autocracy makes it treason in Haworth to be interested in Bronte relics and memorials. Despite it, now and then the old, old folk, and the humble workmen of the factories, who secretly adore the writings of Charlotte and the memory of the noble family, steal in here by these mute bits from the old home, weep over them, and steal away again, trembling from fear of discovery and proscription. Thus the curate maintains "a house of prayer for the praise of God" in the Haworth of to day.

Mr. Brown's collection comprises a few paintings, many drawings and several specimens of needlework, all done by Charlotte. There is a drawing, in sepia, of a Revenue cutter becalmed at sea in soft and humid moonlight The pencil drawings are numerous. Three of these are remarkably true to nature. Two are of a laughing, and a crying, child. The other, is a river bridge and mountain scene, full of delicacy and feeling. Her skill in needle-work, and what would now be termed art embroidery, was superior. An extraordinary piece of this needle-work is a study of a youthful shepherd and shepherdess tending a flock of moorland sheep, the faces all being partially laid in with water colors. The only painting of Charlotte in oil, done during her lifetime, is also here. There are several of her letters in her wonderfully minute and perfect chirography; and one was particularly interesting to me because written to the "old Susey" I had seen. It is dated Haworth, June 13, 1848. Susey had left Haworth, for a little stay at York. Miss Bronte writes:

> I was afraid that at first you would not feel very comfortable among strangers; persons who have lived most of their lives in a quiet little place like Haworth find a vast difference when they go to a fresh neighborhood, and enter the the society of strangers. If you feel troubled about any thing you will not forgot who is your best help and guide in every difficulty, and, separated as you are for a little while from your earthly friends, you will humbly and faithfully entreat the protection of your Friend and Father who is in heaven.

There is also in the collection a spotted print dress worn by the novelist; her shawl and brooch, and a lock of her hair given by her husband, Mr. Nicholls, to Martha Brown. Several old Reviews containing notices of the Bronte family and their work, which were in her possession are here. One, the Quarterly Review for December, 1849, hurt her deeply. Its review of "Jane Eyre" refers to the author as having "horrid taste." Two of the most interesting articles to be seen are a water color sketch by the novelist's own hand representing her favorite dog, "Floss," chasing a grouse over a reach of drear moorland, and a priceless autograph copy of "Jane Eyre," the latter another gift to the beloved nurse, Martha Brown. A basketwork doll's cradle, belonging to Charlotte, is here—all but the rockers. Those have been chipped off and given as mementos to pilgrims from our own country. There are also a small wooden trinket-box containing cloak and shoe buckles, with one or two pieces of ribbon from the novelist's bonnet; several alabaster vases from her room; and a silk patchwork counterpane, one among countless proofs of the dogged patience and unconquerable pluck of the half-blind authoress. But a single article remains as a reminder of the sad career and miserable ending of Patrick Branwell Bronte, the brilliant and unfortunate brother. The oldest character that perhaps ever lived in Haworth was "old Bill Brown," the crabbed Haworth sexton of the Brontes' time He was almost immortalized by the Haworth poet, Hardaker, whose last stanza upon him runs in this wise:

> But think ye, old case hardened blade,
> Knight of the mattock and the spade,
> Some lustier brother of the trade,
> Perhaps, ere long,
> May lig you where you've thousands laid,
> Nor think it wrong!—

and the capital oil painting of this canny old character, who reminds one forcibly of the old wretch who still officiates at "Scotch marriages," at Gretna Green, was the work of this misdirected and self-destroying genius.

Grim, gaunt, gray Haworth! Perfect as were the lives thy sunless ways once knew; matchless as were the creations hewn out of thy heart of stone; dreary as the skies above thy dank old walls is thy hard, stern face in all its moods to men. One leaves thee with a sad and heavy heart.

For Delicate, Sickly Children

Scott's Emulsion is unequalled. See what Dr. C. A. Black, of Amherst, N. S., says: "I have been acquainted with Scott's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil, with Hypophosphites, for years, and consider it one of the finest preparations now before the public. Its pleasant flavor makes it the great favorite for children, and I do highly recommend it for all wasting diseases of children and adults. Sold by Druggists, 50c, and $1.00.

Census of Montreal.

"Lovell's Historic Report of the Census of Montreal," just published, is a very excellent work, embracing, as it does, a complete enumeration of the population of the city and that of six neighboring towns and villages, with a vast amount of local information of all kinds. Published by John Lovell & Son, Montreal, at 50c per copy.

Piles! Piles! Itching Piles.

SYMPTOMS—Moisture; intense itching and stinging; most at night; worse by scratching if allowed to continue tumors form, which often bleed and ulcerate, becoming very sore. SWAYNE'S OINTMENT stops the itching and bleeding, heals ulceration, and in most cases removes the tumors. At druggists, or by mail, for 50 cents. Dr. Swayne & Son, Philadelphia.

Cost of Great Steamships.

The gross cost of carrying such a vessel as the Majestic across the Atlantic does not fall far short of £4,000. As any one of the old fashioned steamers of the petty measurement of 3,000 tons cost £5,000 for the voyage, or double passage out and home, I am probably not very wide of the mark in making this estimate for a vessel measuring more than three times as much, as the money needed will not increase in a direct ratio with the increased size. But if we are tempted to believe that the profits made in this ocean trade are exceptionally large we must remember the vast capital embarked even in one vessel of 10,000 tons. A first class merchant steamer of the ordinary trade type costs at least £28 per ton weight of the hull and £13 per indicated horse power of engines. Thus the cost of the Teutonic's engines should make a quarter of a million look very small. The Guion steamer Alaska, of about 7,000 tons, is worth about £350,000 Probably the Teutonic could not be bought for half a million. And it does not take a professional accountant to reckon that it needs a great deal of money to pay a reasonable dividend on so much. In this connection I can give some statistics about a first-class passenger steamer, the length of which was 450 feet, whereas the Majestic measures 582. The displacement of this vessel at load-draught amounts to 9,550 tons, and the weight of her hull to to 3,800. Each ton of this cost £32, thus the price given for her hull was £121,600. On the whole, I am inclined to think that these figures give a certain financial amplitude and magnificence to our notions concerning the steamship traffic to the West. without saying anything about our vessels which carry freight and passengers to all points of the compass.—Murray's Magazine.

The Premier's Term of Service.

The Ottawa Citizen gives some interesting statistics connected with the official career of the Prime Minister. It appears that Sir John Macdonald has been Premier, either in the capacity of Attorney-General or Premier for Upper Canada, or as first minister of the whole Dominion, for 29 years, 8 months and (counting to-day) 9 days. The details of the periods when he wielded power as follows:

From 11 September, 1854, to 29th July, 1858, in the Tache-Macdonald and Macdonald-Cartier administrations; defeated on seat of Government question; 3 years, 10 months, 14 days.

From 6th August, 1858, to 23rd May, 1862, in the Cartier-Macdonald administration; defeated on militia bill; 3 years, 9 months, 17 days.

From 30th March, 1864, to 30th June, 1867, in Tache-Macdonald and Belleau-Macdonald administrations; 3 years, 3 months.

From 1st July, 1867, to 5th November, 1873, in the first Conservative administration after Confederation; resigned on account of Pacific railway charges; 6 years, 4 months, 5 days.

From 17th October, 1878, in second Conservative administration; and still remains Premier. Time, to 26th March, 12 years, 5 months, 9 days.

This does not cover the whole period of Sir John's parliamentary, or official service, for he entered the Canadian Legislative Assembly in 1844, forty-seven years ago, and took office first in 1847, forty-four years ago. Such a career caused the London Times to declare the other day:—"This would be anywhere a most remarkable political record, but it is especially striking in a new and a democratic country."

The Coming Glory.

Although Patti has had her hair dyed and Sara Bernhardt's fluffy Titian locks have just floated before us, it is nevertheless announced that black hair is the coming fashionable glory of woman. In that case classic lines will be coiffure a la mode. Black hair should never be banged or crimped, that is, not crimped to the frizzing stage. It gets dangerously near the kinky effect under those conditions. It should shine like satin and wave loosely or curl in soft circles.

It is certainly time the dark-haired sisters had their turn. The long reign of blonde and auburn locks is unjust. However, the owners of raven tresses will find their compensation complete when it arrives, for their hair cannot be successfully imitated. It is possible, though not to be recommended, to produce blonde and "sunny-red" hair from faded and even dark locks, but a head of glossy, permanent black hair that does not carry its falsity in every separate capillus cannot be evolved from artificial means. Worth, it is said, prefers to gown a dark-haired woman above all others, and statistics show that blondes do not marry in so large a proportion as brunettes.

Allan Line Summer Arrangements.

Commencing with the Sardinian, May 6, the steamships, of the Allan Line will sail from Montreal and Quebec every week. Passengers will be allowed to go on board at Montreal same as usual on the Tuesday night. By this arrangement a night on the train to Quebec is avoided and the time between Toronto and the port of embarkation shortened to 11 hours. This will commend itself to families.

The electric light has been placed on the Parisian and Sardinian. The rates of passage are very low and the line will no doubt do a large passenger business this summer.

Do You Cough?

Don't delay. Take Kemp's Balsam, the best cough cure. It will cure coughs and colds. It will cure sore throat or a tickling in the throat. It will cure pains in the chest. It will cure influenza and bronchitis and all diseases pertaining to the lungs, because it is a pure balsam. Hold it to the light and see how thick and clear it is. You see the excellent effect after taking the first dose. Large bottles 50c and $1.

Advice for the Dyspeptic

Chew your food slowly. Have fruit, cracked wheat, soft-boiled eggs for breakfast. For dinner, broiled beefsteak, mutton chops or chicken, roasted potatoes, boiled rice, salad, celery. For the evening meal, toast, tea, a glass of milk, some stewed fruit. Don't indulge in pastry or hot bread and avoid meats after the midday meal.

Oh, What a Cough

Will you heed the warning. The signal perhaps of the sure approach of that more terrible disease Consumption. Ask yourselves if you can afford for the sake of saving 50c., to run the risk and do nothing for it. We know from experience that Shiloh's Cure will cure your cough. It never fails.

Belleville Post Office.

The report of the Postmaster-General shows that the total receipts of Belleville post office during the year ended June 30th, 1890, were $15,797.36; number of money orders issued, 3,957 for $45,903.70; commission $406 64; amount of money orders paid, $55,366.28.

DIED.

MORTON—At Belleville, on the 7th April, 1891, SHURRELDINE, second daughter of Albert Morton, aged 39 years 2 months and 10 days.

The funeral will take place from the family residence, Church Street, Thursday, April 9th at 3 o'clock p.m.

—Cable reports state that the British cattle markets are weak and prices low.

CONFERENCE POSTPONED.

THE PRESIDENT WISHES TO ATTEND RECIPROCITY NEGOTIATIONS

And the Reciprocity Conference is Postponed Until Harrison Returns from His Vacation—The Ministers Leave for New York.

WASHINGTON, April 6.—Sir Charles Tupper, Canadian High Commissioner to England; Hon. George E. Foster, Minister of Finance; Sir John Thompson, Minister of Justice, and C. C. Chipman, Sir Charles Tupper's private secretary, reached Washington at a late hour last night from Ottawa. The object of their visit was to call by appointment on Secretary Blaine and informally discuss with him the propositions embodied in the letter from Lord Stanley, Governor-General of Canada, to Lord Knutsford, Imperial Secretary for the Colonies. The propositions were:

1. The renewal of the reciprocity treaty of 1854 with such modification as will suit the altered circumstances of both countries.
2. The reconsideration of the treaty of 1888 with respect to the Atlantic fisheries, with the aim of securing free admission into the United States markets of Canadian fishery products in return for facilities to be granted the United States fishermen to buy bait and supplies and to tranship cargoes in Canada, all such privileges to be mutual.
3. Protection of mackerel and other fisheries of the Atlantic Ocean and inland waters.
4. The relaxation of the seaboard inland coasting laws of the two countries.
5. Mutual salvage and saving of wrecked vessels, and
6. An arrangement for settling the boundary between Canada and this country.

Accompanied by Sir Julian Pauncefote, the ministers called on Secretary Blaine at his home, just before noon. Their stay lasted but a few minutes. Returning to their hotel they announced that they were to leave Washington in a few hours. As social engagements had been made by members of the party that indicated a purpose to stay in Washington at least a week, the news of their intended sudden departure caused some surprise. This was set at rest, however, by a statement from Sir Charles Tupper, who said he visited Secretary Blaine last Thursday and was cordially received. He explained the desire of the Canadian Government to lay the foundation for negotiations that should broaden the trade relations between the Dominion and the United States. Secretary Blaine met the proposal favorably, and Sir Charles returned to Ottawa to report the result to his Government and to secure the presence in Washington to-day of Messrs. Thompson and Foster, Secretary Blaine having arranged to receive them. Subsequently Secretary Blaine learned that the President desired to be present when negotiations were undertaken, and his projected southern and western trip would not admit of that if the negotiations were to proceed at once. Accordingly Secretary Blaine informed Sir Julian Pauncefote that a postponement would be desirable, and the Minister so telegraphed Sir Charles Tupper at Ottawa, but the party had started for Washington before the telegram was received and was not informed of the change of program until this morning. Sir Charles Tupper says Sir Julian Pauncefote will notify the party when to return to Washington, which will be as soon as the President can conveniently give his attention to the negotiations. After the interview with Secretary Blaine this morning the party called at the White House and left their cards for the President.

Sir Charles Tupper and Messrs. Foster and Thompson left for New York this evening.

LONDON TOWNSHIP MURDER.

It Was the Culmination of a Feud of Long Standing.

LONDON, April 6.—Further particulars of the murder of Benjamin Hubbard, an employe of Geary's dairy farm, 6th concession of London township, by Charles Hodges, the foreman, show that the two men had been on unfriendly terms for a year past, as the result of a previous quarrel. On Sunday afternoon the two men engaged in a dispute in a milk house, but who started it will never be known. The prisoner claims the deceased called him names and caught him by the whiskers, and that in self-defence he struck Hubbard in the breast with his fist and he fell off the landing face downward upon a pile of manure. Hodges denies that he used a knife or that he had one, although when Dr. Hutchinson examined the body he found a knife wound below the heart, which had either entered the heart or cut some of the vessels leading thereto, and a packknife, such as might have been used in inflicting the wound, was found in his possession. Hodges took his arrest coolly. He is a married man, 65 years of age, while the victim, who was also married, was aged 40 years.

HARTFORD, Conn., April 6.—John Gunn, 18 years of age, is lying at the point of death in the Hartford Hospital as the result of his rapacious appetite for metal filings, screws and nails

To Father Leary of St. Patrick's Church young Gunn related that about two years ago he went to New York on a visit, and while there dropped into a dime museum on the Bowery. The curiosity which most attracted his attention was the "Human Ostrich." The sight of a person swallowing nails, bits of old iron, etc., filled him with astonishment. He visited the museum often during his stay, and on his return home he resolved to become a human ostrich, too.

He was at that time employed in the Hartford Machine Screw Co. and began his experiments with small bits of iron filings. No evil effects were felt from the first experiment, and Gunn often repeated the feat in the shop for the edification of the boys.

Dunn broke into a store in this city a few months ago and was sentenced to a year in jail. He got hold of some carpet tacks in prison and swallowed them. Pretty soon the tacks gave out and Dunn fed on nails. The doctors say he cannot live many days.

The Crushed Cabby Will Turn.

LONDON, April 6.—A mass meeting of cabmen was held at Hyde Park this afternoon. John Burns presided, and in referring to the strike of the drivers of the Shrewsbury-Talbot Company said that it might be necessary to have a cab strike all over the country. Resolutions approving the action of the strikers and pledging support, and another calling upon all drivers of other yards to resist any increase in cab hire from Monday next were carried unanimously. There are great fears of a general strike and the feeling is expressed that the cabbies are harshly treated.

A Pin in His Throat.

NEW YORK, April 6.—Peter McCabe was assisting his wife to dress their children preparatory to taking them out. He placed several pins in his mouth. He was taken with a fit of coughing, during which one of the pins went down his throat. The physicians found that the pin had become lodged across the throat channel. The chances for McCabe's recovery are very slim, as the physician will be compelled to force the pin into the lungs and take chances of its passing through without serious injury.

212 Natives Executed.

ROME, April 6.—General Baldissera testified before the commission inquiring into the alleged assassination of natives at Massowah that 212 natives were executed under the Italian Government's instructions during his regime in the Massowah Colony.

This and That.

—Many a wealthy old gentleman succeeds in ruling his relations entirely by will power.

—No man can well excuse excess in the use of egg-nog by claiming he is thereby simply satisfying his appetite for early spring chicken.

—A woman never feels that she is altogether out of society so long as she gets an invitation every year to a fashionable milliner's opening.

—"Dear me!" said old Mr. Boggs, hesitatingly; "I know I've forgotten something, but, for the life of me, I can't remember what it is."

—"I hear your husband has been out shooting. Did he have any luck?" asked Mr. Fitzroy of Mrs. Shiftless. "Oh, yes; he had luck, if you please to call it so. He saved two fingers of his right hand."

—"Its too bad that the Bloffets are moving out of the neighborhood, isn't it?" "Too bad? Why, Bloffet was a terrible nuisance with the cornet." "Yes, but now that he is leaving the rents will go up."

What it Costs.

Must be carefully considered by the great majority of people, in buying every necessities of life. Hood's Sarsaparilla commends itself with special force to the great middle classes, because it combines positive economy with great medicinal power. It is the only medicine of which can truly be said "100 Doses One Dollar," and a bottle taken according to directions will average to last a month.

TORONTO TRUTH'S
New Spring Bible Competition
NO. 22.

In these latter days there have arisen many false schemes and many scores of imitations of TRUTH'S Competitions, but one after another have failed and utterly perished, yet TRUTH remains, and makes good all its promises. Its reputation is now too well established to risk damaging it, and as it has cost a very large amount of money and many years of care and labor to build up, the publisher could not afford to fail in carrying out all his agreements to the letter. There are twenty-one divisions of the largest list of bona fide prizes ever offered and ever actually given away by any publisher in the world. The total value of prizes in this Spring list is about $10,000,00. The lists are so large it would cost altogether too much to give them in detail here. There are pianos, gold and silver watches, china tea and dinner sets, ladies' and gentlemen's bicycles, silver tea-sets, silk dresses, books, money, and hundreds of other valuable rewards. You pay nothing for these prizes, as everyone concedes that full value is received for the dollar in securing TRUTH every week for three months. Send one dollar and answers to the five following questions: Where in the Bible are these words found? 1, GRAIN; 2, CORN; 3, WHEAT; 4, BARLEY; 5, RYE. If your answers are correct and your letters arrive in time you are almost sure to get a reward, as there are so many and every one cannot always find correct answers to all these questions. All the five answers must be correct to get any prize, but you will get full value for the dollar in TRUTH if you don't get anything else. If you want to see the list of rewards before sending in your dollar, mail TRUTH ten cents and a copy will be sent you containing the list of prizes. But there have been very few dissatisfied prize-winners in previous competitions, considering that he has given away during the past eight years scores of thousands of prizes. Some people expect a piano for every dollar sent, and are mad if they don't get it. He wishes it were possible to give every subscriber a gold watch or a piano or both, but says it can't be done. Some publishers intimate they will, but nobody can do it for any length of time. Send one dollar and correct answers and you won't repent it; and bear in mind that it is not guaranteed that every body whose answers are correct will get a prize, but that all the prizes in the twenty-one different lists will be given away. The competition remains open only till the last day of June next, inclusive, after which the prizes will be immediately distributed to the successful ones. Ten days will be allowed for letters to reach TRUTH from distant points after the 30th of June. All, however, must be postmarked where mailed not later than the 30th June, or any time between now and that date. Address S. Frank Wilson, "Truth" Office, Toronto, Ont., Canada.

WHY IS IT?

If you will listen a minute we will tell you why and how it is that we can and do lead in the crockery business. It's over fifty years since this establishment was founded in London, Ont., by the late Nathaniel Reid, who spent his younger days amongst the English potteries and gained a knowledge of the many processes of manufacture until the goods are laid upon the shelves in this country. This knowledge, handed down to the son and others who have been in the house for twenty-five years, has brought about the following results: 1st.—The ware is all made in Staffordshire, England, brought out in the plain and finished in our own decorating kilns in this country. 2nd.—In Tea Sets we can furnish 134 different patterns; Toilet Sets, 89; Dinner Sets, 96 patterns. 3rd.—To give some idea of what has been done in the Belleville branch, we have sold since the first of last August (8 months) of these three items 164 Tea Sets, 110 Toilet Sets and 93 Dinner Sets. Other lines which belong to this business, such as silver plate and lamps, we handle just as extensively and from the leading factories. The goods are all made for the legitimate crockery trade and not for giving away. We study our own trade. We have got to understand the business we follow. We can reproduce old patterns, buy larger and undersell others, and that's why we lead in this trade.

We Claim the Earth.

We claim the earth is round, and we know it's true. We also claim that Hagyard's Yellow Oil cures sprains, bruises, burns, colds, croup, sore throat, rheumatism, neuralgia, and all painful or inflammatory diseases, and we know this is true. Yellow Oil is a true family remedy for lameness or soreness in man or beast.

Sit Down and Think.

Sit down and think; 1st, that dyspepsia is caused by wrong action of the stomach; 2nd, that Burdock Blood Bitters is designed to correct and regulate the stomach; 3rd, that it always cures dyspepsia and costs less than a cent a dose. Can you afford to be dyspeptic?

The Best Pills.—Mr. Wm. Vandervoort, Sydney Crossing, Ont., writes: "We have been using Parmelee's Pills, and find them by far the best Pills we ever used." For Delicate and Debilitated Constitution these Pills act like a charm. Taken in small doses, the effect is both a tonic and a stimulant, mildly exciting the secretions of the body, giving tone and vigor.

BEATRIX RANDOLPH

BY

JULIAN HAWTHORNE.

COPYRIGHT BY AMERICAN PRESS ASSOCIATION.

"I thank you—never before luncheon. To come to the point at once—I am of a committee of gentlemen to extend a complimentary breakfast to Gen. Inigo on the 14th of this month. Can we count upon your attendance?"

"The 14th? Let me see," said Wallie, opening a drawer in his desk and taking out a memorandum book. "Yes, there seems to be nothing on that day. Much obliged to you and the committee, Mr. Randolph."

"The hour is 1 o'clock," said Randolph.

"Gen. Inigo deserves a breakfast," Wallie remarked. "He deserves three meals a day. He has catered very well for us."

"That seems to be the general impression," said Randolph, giving a twist to his eyebrow.

"We were just discussing the prima donna," Wallie continued. "You know her, of course, Mr. Randolph?"

"I—ah—I have—that is, slightly. I have heard her sing; I may have met her socially; one meets so many people it is difficult to say."

He colored while he spoke and seemed a good deal confused.

"She's a very pretty woman, and seems to be as virtuous as she is pretty strange to say," the other went on. "There's a discrepancy between her conduct and her history."

Mr. Randolph colored still more.

"I—I'm an old fashioned man, sir," he said, whisking a silk handkerchief out of his coat tail pocket and passing it over his forehead. "In my day we—we took the virtue of a lady for granted; and I must say I—of course, I have no right to be the champion of this lady, sir, but"——

He stopped, and Bellingham said: "Any man has a right to respect a woman he believes honest, and to make others do so in his presence. If that's old fashioned, Mr. Randolph, count me in!"

"Thank you, sir," returned the other.

He rose and put back his handkerchief in his pocket.

"I must take leave of you, Mr. Dinsmore," he added. "A man like myself has a great many affairs on hand. We shall look for you on the 14th, then. Good morning; good morning, Mr.—ah—Bellingham."

"I am more puzzled than ever," said Wallie, when Randolph was gone.

"What now?"

"In the first place he couldn't quite make up his mind whether he'd met her or not; then he got flurried because I suggested there had been stories about her; and, finally, he took to flight rather than discuss her any more. Now if he doesn't know her, why should he flare up so about her? and if he does know her, why does he pretend he doesn't?"

"He's an old fashioned"—began Geoffrey.

"That's gammon," interrupted Wallie, "and you know it! The fall of man is an older fashion than Mr. Randolph. Did any sane man, young or old, ever get into a state of mind because the correctness of an opera singer he didn't know was called in question? I can't make it out—unless he means to marry her!"

This speculation was received by Geoffrey in dead silence, and for a considerable time neither of the men said anything. At last the question of the cottage at Newport was brought up once more and canvassed until they parted.

Bellingham walked slowly toward Madison square, with Mr. Randolph, among other things, on his mind. Still meditating he turned up Fifth avenue, and before long found himself opposite Mlle. Marana's hotel. It occurred to him that he had never yet called on her in her own apartments, and he resolved to repair that neglect. Accordingly he went to the office and inquired if she were in. The clerk glanced at the keyboard and said "Yes" abstractedly. Bellingham got into the elevator and went up.

The passageway, after the bright sunlight of the street, seemed rather dark. Not knowing which way the numbers ran, he remained for a moment where the elevator left him. Just then a door was opened on the right, a gentleman came out, and advanced along the passage toward him. When about ten paces distant, he stopped, turned back, and departed hastily in the opposite direction. But Bellingham had recognized him; it was Mr. Randolph.

The incident made little impression on him, however. He turned to the left, looking for the number, but finding he was going the wrong way he retraced his steps, and presently found himself standing before the door from which Mr. Randolph had just issued. It bore Mlle. Marana's number. He knocked, and Mme. Bemax opened to him. On his inquiring whether the prima donna were engaged, the lady said she would see. So he walked in, and stood by the window, and in a few minutes Mlle. Marana appeared. She greeted him with such evidently spontaneous pleasure that any slight misgiving he may have felt was immediately dissipated.

"I began to think you were never going to come," she said.

"I'm so much out of the way of making calls that I'm surprised to find myself here. You have a great many callers?"

"Well, a good many come, but I see very few—only old friends. And of course," she added, "as I never was in New York before, that is the same as saying I see hardly any one."

"I met a man lately who knows you, I think—Mr. Randolph."

"Mr. Randolph?" She pronounced the name in a changed tone and blushed.

"Alexander Randolph," he repeated, looking at her.

She dropped her eyes. "I—believe—I have heard his name," she said.

Bellingham said no more; he felt dismayed and bewildered. Undoubtedly there was some unpleasant mystery about this fellow Randolph. "Heard his name," indeed! Had not the man been in her company five minutes ago?

"I saw you at the opera last night," remarked the prima donna, recovering herself. Bellingham merely nodded. "Were you disappointed?" she asked falteringly.

"No, I was like the rest of the audience," he replied in a dry tone.

"You are not like the rest of the audience to me," she said, "ever since the first night I have sung to you. I wouldn't tell you, only—I thought you knew it!"

"I know nothing about you," returned Bellingham roughly.

"You speak as if you didn't care to know anything," she said, holding up her head.

Bellingham controlled his rising temper. A weaker man would have protected himself by irony or sarcasm, but he said exactly what he thought. "I care more about what concerns you," he said, "than about anything else. But I will not look away when I am being deceived. You and this Randolph are both pretending to be strangers to each other. I saw him come out of this room just before I came into it. Do you deny that he was here?"

"He was here," answered she, turning pale.

"There is only one other question. Are you going to marry him?"

This was so unexpected that she laughed. It was a nervous, almost hysterical laugh, it is true, but Bellingham naturally did not understand it. "I am not going to marry Mr. Randolph," said the prima donna, with a heartbroken sense of humor.

"And you will not tell me what your relations are with him?"

"No; they are very peculiar relations," she replied lightly, for she was getting desperate. "You must think what you please—think the worst you can, it makes no difference. I will tell you nothing!"

(To be Continued.)

Speaking of Tips.

A TIP is a piece of special or valuable information such as this, that Hagyard's Yellow Oil is a prompt and effectual cure for croup, colds, hoarseness, sore throat, rheumatism, neuralgia, sprains or soreness of any kind. Known as reliable over 30 years.

Important and True.

No better evidence of the fact that Burdock Blood Bitters is a certain remedy for all blood diseases can be asked than that of Mr. Geo. V. Thomas, druggist, of Hull, P. Q., whose wife was cured of cancer by B.B.B. The family doctor is certain that the disease was cancer and that it is now cured.

Silver, blue and leather color are combined in visiting dresses of bengaline and camel's hair.

That latent force of fluid, which permeates all matter, and which bears the conventional name of Electricity, is widely appreciated and recognized as a means of cure in various diseases. Its effects in the form of Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil are shown by the relief of pain, both Neuralgic and Rheumatic, as well as the throat and lungs, and in various other healing ways.

The Lungs, Liver, Kidneys, Bowels, &c., act as so many waste gates for the escape of effete matter and gases from the body. The use of Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery helps them to discharge their duty. Mr. W. H. Lester, H. M. CHICAGO, Feb. 13th, 1891.

G. A. Swayze, Esq., Principal Belleville Business College, Belleville, Ont.:

MY DEAR SIR—Yours of the 10th inst. received. I am pleased to state that the young ladies who received their tuition in the above-named college, and who are now in my employ, have more than filled their positions and the duties expected of them.

While Miss Francis has not had the opportunity yet of fully demonstrating her capabilities, Miss Moorman has not only done her work to the full satisfaction of the managers, but has surprised those in the office by the manner in which she has taken up a difficult line of business and carefully and correctly performed the same, and to say that I am proud of the institution from which she came is expressing it mildly, although I have always believed that thoroughness was its fundamental principle.

You may rest assured that should I hear or know of any position open I will remember the Belleville Business College.

Seven years ago my cashier came to this office and received $5 a week; to-day she is receiving $125 a month. One of my three stenographers, who came here three years ago, started at $6 a week and is now receiving $15 a week, and this is the smallest wages paid to any female in the office (where there are eight) who have been in the office for over one year.

Yours very truly,
T. S. QUINCEY.

HERENDEEN'S ORIENTAL FLOUR !

This flour is prepared from the best Pure White Corn by a process patented February 7th 1880, and is beyond a doubt healthier than wheat or any other flour. We aim to feed the masses, not the classes, consequently instead of putting it up in 2 or 3 lb. packages and charging 15 or 20 cents for them and spending the big profit in advertising, we are selling it at about the price of ordinary flour. It can be used to great advantage in bread, pastry, etc., and is unsurpassed for pancakes or Johnny cake. Instructions and recipes in each package. This is also pre-eminently the food for anyone troubled with Dyspepsia or Indigestion. Your grocer has it now. Ask for it. Try it.

DR. WILLIAMS' PINK PILLS FOR PALE PEOPLE

ARE NOT a Purgative Medicine. They are a BLOOD BUILDER, TONIC and RECONSTRUCTOR, as they supply in a condensed form the substances actually needed to enrich the Blood, curing all diseases coming from Poor and WATERY BLOOD, or from VITIATED HUMORS in the BLOOD, and also invigorate and BUILD UP the BLOOD and SYSTEM, when broken down by overwork, mental worry, disease, excesses and indiscretions. They have a SPECIFIC ACTION on the SEXUAL SYSTEM of both men and women, restoring LOST VIGOR and correcting all IRREGULARITIES and SUPPRESSIONS.

EVERY MAN Who finds his mental faculties dull or failing, or his physical powers flagging, should take these PILLS. They will restore his lost energies, both physical and mental.

EVERY WOMAN should take them. They cure all suppressions and irregularities, which inevitably entail sickness when neglected.

YOUNG MEN should take these PILLS. They will cure the results of youthful bad habits, and strengthen the system.

YOUNG WOMEN should take them. These PILLS will make them regular.

THE WAR RUMORS.

ALARMING REPORTS CONTINUE, BUT THE BOURSES ARE FIRM.

The Doubling of the Strength of the Russian Forces on the Polish Frontier and the Activity Among the Troops Garrisoning the Principal Fortified Places in France Regarded as Ominous.

LONDON, April 7.—Advices from the principal capitals of Europe show that the political situation is regarded as serious by leading statesmen and diplomats. Several significant moves have been made the past few days. The action of the Russian authorities in doubling the strength of the Russian forces in Volkyma is gravely discussed. The greatest activity prevails among the troops garrisoning the principal fortified places in France. The troops are being continually drilled in military tactics and have been subjected to a series of night alarms. The Pesther Lloyd states that according to semi-official news from Berlin the general European situation is regarded in the German capital as threatening.

The North German Gazette to-day, referring to the rumors current, denies that internal relations are not pacific, adding, "Everything justifies the hope of the permanence of peace. The whole strength of the nations of Europe ought to be devoted to economic developments."

The alarmist reports did not have much effect upon continental bourses to-day. At the opening the feeling was unsettled, but the markets closed firm.

Re-Cementing the Dreibund.

LONDON, April 7.—A Vienna despatch says the report that the Dreibund has been recemented is premature, though negotiations have been concluded for a five-year renewal on the original defensive basis without territorial changes, and the compact will be signed very shortly.

St. Petersburg and Jassy correspondence continue to report activity among the Russian troops, great numbers of which are being massed on the Austro-Hungarian frontier.

Will Not Recognize the Prince.

ST. PETERSBURG, April 7.—The Russian Government will take no diplomatic steps to prevent the reappointment of Prince Ferdinand to the vice-royalty of Eastern Roumania on the expiration of his present term of office, but will decline to recognize Prince Ferdinand in any capacity.

THE SEAL FISHERY.

Newfoundlanders Pleased Over the Best Results in Numbers for Many Years.

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld., April 7.—The steam ship Neptune, the first of the fleet from the ice fields, brought with her 33,000 seals. In seven days she was loaded. The following was her report of the catch:

	Seals.		Seals.
Hector	25,000	Aurora	11,000
Esquimaux	32,000	Terra Nova	35,000
Wolf	26,800	Leopard	16,000
Ranger	12,000	Walrus	5,000
Falcon	15,000	Kite	1,600
Eagle	2,000	Vanguard	20,000
Iceland	12,000	Greenland	25,000

As far as numbers go this will be the largest seal fishery for many years. When over 260,000 were taken at such an early date the chances are the total number will be between 400,000 and 500,000. Arriving so early steamers will make second trips. There is, however, a serious drawback; the seals were taken before they had reached the proper age and were consequently not full grown. Had they been left to grow for another week or 10 days their value would have been increased 25 to 30 per cent. As it is, the average weight of fat yielded by each seal will not exceed 35 lbs., instead of 50 to 55 lbs. The season was very open and the steamers got among the seals by March 13. The young whitecoats are said to pile on fat at the rate of 4 lbs. a day. A number of old mother seals were killed—great injury to the fishery. A few more years like the present would reduce the seal fishery to small dimensions.

PRATED OF MIRACLES.

SALT LAKE, Utah, April 7.—In the Mormon conference to-day President Woodruff told of communing with God and of miracles wrought by elders through the power of God. They laid hands on the sick and they get well, touched the lame and they walked put clay on the eyes of the blind and they saw, etc.

In the afternoon President Woodruff opened by scolding the women who brought squalling babies. George Q. Cannon urged marriage on the young people, altogether too many of whom were living single lives.

A Fairy in Flames.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., April 7.—At Triscaloosa last night an amateur performance closed with a tableau representing the Goddess of Liberty on a throne, surrounded by 30 fairies impersonated by little girls. They were dressed in flimsy white material. A spark fell from a lighted torch held aloft by the goddess and fell on the dress of Irene Hays, who was fatally burned.

Nova Scotia Local Elections.

HALIFAX, N.S., April 7.—The indications are that the Government candidates were elected in all three counties in which local elections were held to-day. Owing to a heavy snowstorm in Cape Breton and Antigonish, a number of places have not been heard from, and in Hants county the contest is very close, but the belief is that the Liberal candidates were all returned.

Imperial Parliament.

LONDON, April 7.—Parliament reconvened to-day. In reply to a question as to the purchase of French rights in Newfoundland, W. H. Smith said that the Government had not received satisfactory communications from France regarding Egyptian occupation; it could not yet make a statement on the Newfoundland question.

Tasted and Died.

MEDICINE HAT, Assa., April 7.—Miss Clara Sanderson tasted the contents of a bottle on a shelf in the pantry. It was strychnine. She lived 15 minutes.

Carling to Remain in the Cabinet.

OTTAWA, April 7.—Cabinet Ministers deny the report that Hon. John Carling is to be made Lieutenant-Governor of Ontario and that Mr. Peter White is to be made Minister of Agriculture. Mr. Carling is to continue in the Cabinet.

Electric Cars for Winnipeg.

WINNIPEG, April 7.—An agreement has been consummated with the Austin Street Car Company to introduce electric cars here.

Dangerous Counterfeits.

Counterfeits are always dangerous, more so that they always closely IMITATE THE ORIGINAL IN APPEARANCE AND NAME. The remarkable success achieved by Nasal Balm as a positive cure for Catarrh and Cold in the Head has induced unprincipled parties to imitate it. The public are cautioned not to be deceived by nostrums imitating Nasal Balm in name and appearance, bearing such names as Nasal Cream, Nasal Balsam, etc. Ask for Nasal Balm and do not take any imitation dealers may urge upon you. For sale by all druggists or sent post-paid on receipt of price (50c and $1.) by addressing Fulford & Co. Brockville. Ont.

Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam.

Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam gives prompt relief in coughs, colds, hoarseness, whooping cough, croup, asthma or bronchitis. It is the most pleasant and perfect throat and lung healer in the world for children or adults. Price 25c.

Bickle's Anti Consumptive Syrup is a combination of several medical herbs which exert a most wonderful influence in curing pulmonary consumption and all other diseases of the lungs, chest and throat. It promotes a free and easy expectoration, and gives ease even to the greatest sufferer. Coughs, colds, shortness of breath, and affections of the chest, attended with weakness of the digestive organs, or with general debility, seem to vanish under its use. No other remedy acts so readily in allaying inflammation or breaking up a severe cold, even the most obstinate cough is overcome by its penetrating and healing properties. When children are affected with colds, coughs, inflammation of the lungs, croup, quinsey, and sore throat, this Syrup is of vast importance. The number of deaths among children from these diseases is truly alarming. It is so palatable that a child will not refuse it, and is put at such a price that will not exclude the poor from its benefits.

White broche is in demand for negligee robes.

Mr. J. R Allen, Upholsterer, Toronto, sends us the following: "For six or seven years my wife suffered from Dyspepsia, Costiveness, Inward Piles and Kidney Complaint. We tried two physicians and any number of medicines without getting any relief, until we got a bottle of Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery. This was the first relief she got, and before one bottle was used the benefit she derived from it was beyond our expectation."

Satins closely resemble India silks in design.

Jacob H. Bloomer, of Virgille, N. Y., writes:—"Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil cured a badly swelled neck and sore throat on my son in forty-eight hours; one application also removed the pain from a very sore toe; my wife's foot was also much inflamed—so much so that she could not walk about the house; she applied the Oil, and in twenty four hours was entirely cured."

A coronet set with turquoises is a new shape for a bonnet pin.

Mr. Thomas Ballard, Syracuse, N.Y., writes: "I have been afflicted for nearly a year with that most-to-be-dreaded disease Dyspepsia, and at times worn out with pain and want of sleep, and after trying almost everything recommended, I tried one box of Parmelee's Vegetable Pills. I am now nearly well, and believe they will cure me. I would not be without them for any money"

Many of the gay and youthful cotton dresses sent over by French modistes as models are buttoned up the back.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS

MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP has been used by millions of mothers for children teething for over fifty years with perfect success. It relieves the little sufferer at once, produces natural, quiet sleep by freeing the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste, soothes the child, softens the gums, allays pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. Twenty five cents a bottle

WHY IS IT ?

If you will listen a minute we will tell you why and how it is that we can and do lead in the crockery business. It's over fifty years since this establishment was founded in London, Ont., by the late Nathaniel Reid, who spent his younger days amongst the English potteries and gained a knowledge of the many processes of manufacture until the goods are laid upon the shelves in this country. This knowledge, handed down to the son and others who have been in the house for twenty-five years, has brought about the following results: 1st.—The ware is all made in Staffordshire, England, brought out in the plain and finished in our own decorating kilns in this country. 2nd.—In Tea Sets we can furnish 134 different patterns; Toilet Sets, 89; Dinner Sets, 96 patterns. 3rd.—To give some idea of what has been done in the Belleville branch, we have sold since the first of last August (8 months) of these three items 164 Tea Sets, 110 Toilet Sets and 93 Dinner Sets. Other lines which belong to this business, such as silver plate and lamps, we handle just as extensively and from the leading factories. The goods are all made for the legitimate crockery trade and not for giving away. We study our own trade. We have got to understand the business we follow. We can reproduce old patterns, buy larger and undersell others, and that's why we lead in this trade.

A CELESTIAL DISPLAY.

WATERLOO, Iowa, April 7.—A wonderful display of solar halos was witnessed here yesterday afternoon. About 4 o'clock a circle of white light, in the plane of which was the sun, appeared, encircling the heavens parallel with the horizon. At two points which, with the sun, divided this circle in three equal parts, were two other representations of suns, except that they had no brilliancy. Another circle surrounded the sun and extended nearly to the zenith. The portion of the circle which was nearest the zenith was a brilliant rainbow, and at its highest point a reverse circle, also displaying the prismatic colors, joined it. Inside the circle was another which was of a fainter light. Brilliant sun dogs were also visible on either side of the sun. This display lasted about an hour. The sky was clear at the time, but the temperature became noticeably cooler during the display, and the mercury registered 30 deg. above.

INDEFINITELY POSTPONED.

NEW YORK, April 7.—The Canadian delegates arrived here last night and confirmed the statement that President Harrison is anxious to be in Washington when the negotiations are in progress. As he is about to take an extended trip west it has been decided to postpone the matter for the present. When the administration at Washington is ready to meet the Canadian delegates and discuss the proposition Secretary Blaine will notify the Dominion Government and negotiations will be resumed.

SOME BEAUTY RECIPES.

Harmless Ways of Bringing Art to Improve Nature.

Perfumes should be indulged in by every-one, for their stimulating and refreshing properties cannot be overestimated. They are health and beauty giving, especially lavender, lemon, rose, violet, sage and benzoin. Those with pale complexions can in time bring color to their cheeks by bathing with benzoin water or lait virginal.

Food powder will not harm the skin; on the contrary, it gives a soft, cool look and comfortable feeling. Rice powder is the best to use. It is a good plan to cleanse the face prior to retiring to rest with a little cream or milk of cucumber. Apply with a soft piece of linen, dabbing it well over the face; then wipe off the superfluous moisture. This cleanses the skin better than water, and encourages a delicate and white complexion. Rain water should be used whenever possible, otherwise distilled or rose water if good.

When wiping the face, always wipe upward, for this saves many a wrinkle and fullness under the chin. The eyes should always be wiped toward the nose, as it presses out the fine lines from the corners.

Lemon, orange and cucumber peels are excellent for the complexion. Let them soak in your water jug, for they not only soften, but tonify and freshen the complexion, keeping the flesh healthy and firm.

Pale lips can be induced to show color by friction with black grapes.

AWFUL SKIN DISEASE

Child a Mass of Raw, Bleeding Sores, Miraculous Cure by the Cuticura Remedies.

A face, from the hair to the neck on both sides, a raw mass of bleeding sores; two little hands and arms in the same condition; a body around the waist of which was a broad band of bleeding eruptions, and from the hips to the tips of her toes the skin was so raw as to be absolutely sickening to the sight. Said Mrs. H. A. Stout to me: "I have tried everything suggested to me on my little daughter, who has been so afflicted almost from birth. I have had three doctors experiment on her, but she seemed to be getting worse every day. I was almost distracted. Every night I had to bandage her all over, and tie mittens on her hands to prevent her from digging the raw flesh with her fingers. Mr. Faulkner said he believed that CUTICURA REMEDIES would cure her. He offered to bear the expense. At that time she was worse than I had ever seen her, and there seemed no prospect of recovery. CUTICURA, CUTICURA RESOLVENT, and CUTICURA SOAP have wrought a miracle. To-day her skin is smooth and fair, and I believe she has entirely recovered." The above is true in every particular, and I refer to Mr. C. W. Woolever, druggist.

King of Medicines

A Cure "Almost Miraculous."

"When I was 14 years of age I had a severe attack of rheumatism, and after I recovered had to go on crutches. A year later, scrofula, in the form of white swellings, appeared on various parts of my body, and for 11 years I was an invalid, being confined to my bed 6 years. In that time ten or eleven sores appeared and broke, causing me great pain and suffering. I feared I never should get well.

"Early in 1886 I went to Chicago to visit a sister, but was confined to my bed most of the time I was there. In July I read a book, 'A Day with a Circus,' in which were statements of cures by Hood's Sarsaparilla. I was so impressed with the success of this medicine that I decided to try it. To my great gratification the sores soon decreased, and I began to feel better and in a short time I was up and out of doors. I continued to take Hood's Sarsaparilla for about a year, when, having used six bottles, I had become so fully released from the disease that I went to work for the Flint & Walling Mfg. Co., and since then on account of sickness. I believe the disease is expelled from my system, I always feel well, am in good spirits and have a good appetite. I am now 27 years of age and can walk as well as any one, except that one limb is a little shorter than the other, owing to the loss of bone, and the sores formerly on my right leg. To my friends my recovery seems almost miraculous, and I think Hood's Sarsaparilla is the king of medicines." WILLIAM A. LEHR, 9 N. Railroad St., Kendallville, Ind.

100 Doses One Dollar

Daily Intelligencer.

BELLEVILLE, WEDNESDAY APRIL 8

CHANGED THE FIGURES.

In an article on the census in yesterday's issue, the "intelligent compositor" set the figures commencing the fifth paragraph 1874, instead of 1784. In the first proof the error was noted and marked, but was not corrected, the figures 1749, commencing the paragraph above, being changed instead. The two errors were marked in the revise, and the "intelligent" improved on his first effort by substituting 1878 for 1784 in the fifth paragraph. Such are some of the woes which writers for newspapers occasionally have to endure.

ENLARGED HOSPITAL ACCOMMODATION.

The number of patients in the Hospital has necessitated the furnishing of the east wing. This cannot be done without money, and the only means to secure the necessary funds is an appeal in the name of humanity to the charitable citizens to assist according to their means. THE INTELLIGENCER will open the list by a subscription of $20. Who will add to the fund? Those who give quickly give twice.

We will acknowledge all sums received for this purpose. It should be remembered that this expenditure is a necessity forced upon the management, hence the public should see that the money is supplied.

PARTY BEFORE COUNTRY.

The recklessness with which the Laurierites persist in pursuing their party objects, regardless of the consequences to the country, is simply astonishing to every citizen of Canada who places country before party. Never, in this country or elsewhere, has partizan madness been more strongly manifested than by the Toronto Globe and its echoes in connection with the effort which has of late been made by our Government to effect an improvement in the trade relations between the Dominion and the United States. Professing to desire unlimited extension of trade with our neighbors, the Globe and its congeners, possessed by the demon of partizanship, have gone to the most unheard-of lengths in their efforts to thwart the negotiation of an arrangement which would be of benefit to our country. Had Canada, indeed, been a hostile rival for the United States market, the opposition of the Laurierite press to the opening of negotiations on behalf of the Dominion could not have been more virulent or unprincipled.

The spirit of these dog-in-the-manger politicians is thus manifested by the Washington correspondent of the Globe, in connection with the return of Canada's representatives from Washington, owing to President Harrison's inability to personally take part in the negotiations, as explained in our despatches. The correspondent telegraphs:

WASHINGTON, April 6.—Jack and Jill went up the hill, and so on. That was the act performed here to-day by Sir Charles Tupper and the representatives of the Dominion Government, who assumed that they came here to negotiate a treaty. They arrived late last night, with a number of trunks—luggage enough for a month—cases containing papers, and a considerable retinue; they left this afternoon after having an interview of possibly three minutes with the Secretary of State, and none at all with the President.

And much more rubbish in a similar strain of rejoicing over the presumed insolent treatment of the representatives of Canada. The correspondent goes on to say:

They were not invited here. They invited themselves. The Secretary of State did not express a desire to see them. He said he was willing that they should come. His attitude was that of tolerant courtesy, not of desire. The Secretary of State some weeks ago did inform Sir Julian Pauncefote, as the result of the most persistent entreaties by the British Minister on behalf of the Macdonald Government, that he would see some of the officials of the Dominion Government in their private capacity and informally talk over the various questions at issue. Last week when Sir Charles Tupper was here and called as a private gentleman with the British Minister at the State Department he was informed by Secretary Blaine that the latter was not unwilling to talk to the gentlemen who came yesterday upon the subject of the commercial relations of the two countries, but it was to be understood that the talk was to partake in no respect whatever of an official character, and that it was to be informal and on no other basis.

Supposing that Mr. Blaine were the insolent boor whom the correspondent of an alleged Canadian newspaper represents him as being—an allegation which has not, we venture to say, one word of truth in it—would such treatment of Canada's representatives be a proper subject for Canadians to rejoice over? Would not such a wanton insult as is alleged arouse a feeling of anger in every man who had a single spark of national spirit in him? And yet we find the Ottawa correspondent of the Globe and the journal which he represents rejoicing over their manufactured "fact" and sneering at the alleged snubbing of three of our most prominent public men, who had done nothing to incur treatment so vile beyond endeavoring to discharge a duty entrusted to them on behalf of their country.

The insensate malice of the Grit organ has caused it to overshoot the mark. Instead of the representatives of Canada having been discourteously treated by Mr. Blaine, it looks rather as if that gentleman had been snubbed by President Harrison for making an appointment for the discussion of so weighty a matter without consulting the convenience of his chief. The fact that the discussion has been postponed at President Harrison's request, on the ground that he wishes to take part in it so soon as engagements made long previously will permit, is an encouraging circumstance and leads to a reasonable hope for a satisfactory result.

At all events the enemies of Canada who live within her borders and their agents in the United States have been premature in their rejoicings over imaginary discomfiture of the Government, in which misfortune to the country would necessarily be involved. They have at the same time, however, shown themselves in their true light as political fanatics to whom country is nothing and party everything.

That they are understood and appreciated by the people has many times been evidenced and will in the future be made still more apparent.

A Dead Shot

right at the seat of difficulty, is accomplished by the sure and steady aim of Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy. Don't fool around with a pop-gun, nor a "Flint-lock," when this reliable "Winchester" is within reach! Dr. Sage's treatment of catarrh is far superior to the ordinary, and when directions are reasonably well followed, results in a permanent cure. Don't longer be indifferent to the verified claims of this unfailing remedy. $500 is offered, in good faith, for an incurable case of Catarrh in the Head, by its proprietors, the World's Dispensary Medical Association, Buffalo, N.Y. At all druggists.

PLOT TO KILL THE CZAR.

THE ASSASSIN SUSPECTED AND CAUGHT.

Caught Within a Few Feet of the Czar Armed With a Revolver and Provided With a Globule Supposed to Contain Poison.

ST. PETERSBURG, April 8.—An attempt was made on the Czar's life Monday, but the attempt was cleverly frustrated. It was a Russian holiday and the Czar and Czarina went to review the Imperial Guards at their quarters opposite the palace of the Grand Duke Nicholas. Invitations to the ceremony had been sent to an extremely select and limited number of persons. A man with a sallow complexion and of a Southern type was among those admitted by ticket. He took a place five paces distant from the place where the Czar was to stand. As the man continued to wear his overcoat he was requested to remove it, but declined on the ground that he was afraid of draughts. His refusal excited suspicion and he was again requested to take his coat off. This time he consented and retired to an ante-room. He was immediately arrested and taken to prison, when a revolver and a globule, supposed to contain poison, were found in his pockets. His name is Shameikin. He declares the globule simply contains medicine. The police effect to have known of a plot connected with Gunsberg's conspiracy and say they were watching for an assassin.

THE COUSIN OF THE CZAR,

CANNES, April 7.—A great sensation has been caused here by the announcement that the Grand Duke Michael Michaelovitch, a cousin of the Czar, has been privately married to the Countess of Werenberg, daughter of the Duke of Nassau, at San Remo. The Duke of Nassau and the young couple left Cannes a few days ago ostensibly for a visit to Genoa.

TRAGEDY AT A WEDDING.

The Bridegroom Accidently Shot Dead by a Friend.

RAHWAY, N.J., March 7.—Auton Henry was married at East Rahway last evening. In the midst of the festivities the bride and groom started for their carriages to take the train for their honeymoon trip. There was cheering, and Henry Mentz, a friend of the groom, fired a salute with a revolver. He shot too low and the ball struck Henry in the head, killing him almost instantly. The bride fainted and the merry-makers stood for an instant stunned. Mentz was arrested.

Rioting in Hamburg.

HAMBURG, April 7.—The police to-day dispersed a Socialist meeting held in a hall at Bergdorf, a town belonging to Hamburg. This action was taken in consequence of the anti-Semitic element in the meeting indulging in rioting. The fighting was continued in the street and a battle with stones took place between the opposing factions. All the windows in the vicinity, including those in the railway station, were broken by the flying missiles. Several rioters were arrested.

Clark Leads in the Bicycle Race.

ROCHESTER, April 7.—The 40-hour bicycle race opened at Washington Rink here to-day. There were five starters: Clark of Toronto, Reading of Omaha, Ashinger of Dayton, Desmond of Toronto and Appel of Rochester. The men are to race eight hours a day for five days and the score to-night stands:

	Miles.	Laps
Clark	126	5
Reading	126	3
Desmond	126	2
Appel	106
Ashinger	101	9

His Life for a Jilt.

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M., April 7.—Nicholas Dignee, a prominent stone contractor, shot and killed himself this afternoon. He was very jealous of Miss Clara Music and was pressing her to marry him. They met at the house of a friend and he again renewed his desire for immediate marriage. She laughingly rejected him, when he fired a ball through his brain and fell dead before her eyes.

Proposed Exhibition of the Genus Homo.

PARIS, April 7.—Government consent is about to be asked to the holding of the Champ De Mars in 1892 of an international colonial exhibition, including specimens of the human race througout the world, with discussion. Several million francs have already been guaranteed to carry out the project.

Expelled From Bulgaria.

SOFIA, April 7.—M. Sochoveikof, the Cavass of the Russian agency here, who was accused of having sent threatening letters to Prince Ferdinand and his mother, Princess Clementine, and to M. Greascoff, Minister of Foreign Affairs, has been expelled from Bulgaria.

For Impersonating One of the Finest.

HAMILTON, April 7.—Yesterday afternoon Detective Reid arrested Alfred Wright, bartender at the Lafayette House, on a charge of impersonation, and was taken to Cayuga. The charge against Wright is that he impersonated a Toronto policeman named Hyde or Haynes at the last Dominion election in Haldimand.

Wants Money for His Monkey.

LONDON, April 7.—A peculiar international question has arisen at a place called Hofen, on the Swiss-German frontier. An Italian who had traversed Switzerland with a performing monkey and a barrel organ crossed the line into Germany. He was arrested for the want of a passport. While he was in prison his monkey, not being properly confined, got loose and injured a child by biting. The monkey was killed. The Italian was released, but now demands compensation for his monkey.

Shouted "Let Her Go Gallagher" and Perished.

SAULT STE. MARIE, April 7.—An unknown Canadian attempted to cross the ice in the channel. There were four men on this side of the open water in the act of putting a boat in the river, and they called to the young man to go back or he would go through. He answered back and said, "Let her go Gallagher." At that instant he went through and was swept under the ice. The body has not been recovered.

Married on a Gallop.

MILAN, Tenn., April 7.—Henry Norton stole Mabel Carr out of the room in which her uncle had locked her at Mortin and, jumping into a carriage, fled before the irate uncle, who was in pursuit. A minister was in the carriage and while the horses were galloping at a 10-mile-an-hour speed the young elopers were joined in holy wedlock.

Shot by a 13-Year Old Boy.

MONTREAL, April 7.—A lad named Lachapelle, 13 years old, shot a playmate named Blais in the thigh. The bullet has not yet been found and Blais is in a serious condition. The boy who did the shooting says it was accidental.

Preference Showed U.S. Fishermen.

HALIFAX, April 7.—The Newfoundland Government has instructed officials to refuse licenses for bait to all Canadian vessels and give them to Americans free. The Legislature was not consulted in the matter. Public sentiment condemns this policy.

Fire at Leamington.

LEAMINGTON, April 7.—A defective chimney to-day caused the destruction of a building owned by A. R. Wierd of Windsor and occupied by J. W. Bomers as a dwelling and barber shop. Loss $1000; insured for $600.

HER LIFE FOR HER LOVE.

A Pretty Actress Was the Victim of Her Jealousy.

BERLIN, April 8.—Royalty played a leading role in the romantic suicide of Anna Hagimann, the most beautiful actress in the Empire, which occurred yesterday in Munich. She had been driven from the Berlin stage by the brutality of her husband and had been wooed and won by a well-known actor named Boun. They lived at the same hotel, were engaged to be married and seemed happy. The other day after dinner Anna walked to her room and, drawing a revolver, sent a bullet through her heart. The facts developed since her death are interesting. A royal duchess, grandmother of the royal princes and princesses was also in love with Boun. She used all her artfulness to draw Boun away from his pretty actress. After awhile he listened to her so faithfully that he grew cold towards Miss Hagimann, and in her remorse she ended her life.

READABLE IRISH NOTES.

Captain O'Shea Denies an Assertion of Parnell About His Family Expenses.

LONDON, April 7.—Letters from Captain O'Shea are published relative to the assertion made by Parnell, in Committee room 15 of the House of Commons, to the effect that Captain O'Shea did not pay the expenses of his family while the latter were residing at Elsham. The captain declares that the late Mrs. Wood, Mrs. O'Shea's aunt, under a family arrangement, paid £3000 yearly.

DUBLIN, April 7.—The tide of Irish emigration is unabated. Six liners during the past week took 1216 emigrants, mostly of the farming class, but including a few mechanics or tradesmen from Munster and Connaught. The prospect is that for the next three months the number of emigrants will fully equal that of 1890.

LONDON, April 7.—The lady to whom Mr. Parnell is said to have been privately married since the O'Shea divorce suit is the eldest daughter of Mrs. O'Shea. The extreme privacy with which the ceremony was performed is attributed to the fact that the young lady is a ward in chancery. Although she is 21 years of age the marriage could not be lawfully solemnized without the assent of the court, and by his action Mr. Parnell lays himself open to prosecution. Captain O'Shea's friends treat the story as a stupid canard.

The Countess of Zetland, wife of the Viceroy of Ireland, and Miss Balfour, sister of the Chief Secretary for Ireland, have started on a tour of the distressed districts of the western part of the country. Both ladies have been very active in the collection and distribution of funds for the relief of the suffering poor.

At a meeting of the Cork leadership committee the Mayor announced that Mr. Parnell had expressed his willingness to resign his seat in Parliament, but that he (the Mayor) had taken the responsibility of dissuading him from doing so.

Mr. Parnell visited Mr. Kenny at the offices of the National League, Dublin, yesterday, and afterwards returned to London. His next speech in Ireland will be delivered April 19.

The first public meeting of the National Federation was held yesterday in Dublin Mr. Sexton, who presided, made a speech in which he dwelt upon the rapid and enormous growth of the federation which, he said would soon embody the political strength of Ireland. Michael Davitt, who was appointed secretary of the council, said they must gird themselves for a hard fight with the Tory-Parnellite alliance. T. M. Healy said Mr. Parnell had been reckless enough to stand amid smouldering ruins of his country in order to satisfy his ambition, and that it was impossible to suppose that the extremists, who had always hated him, could continue to support him now unless he was potent enough to drop the constitutional movement.

DROWNED HER GRIEF INDEED.

A Peculiar Poisoning Case Which Results in Three Deaths.

PARIS, April 8.—A correspondent telegraphs that Rainey, a town in the Department of the Seine-et-Oise, is in a state of great perturbation over a poisoning case. A few days ago a widow died of consumption, and on returning from the funeral to the house some of her neighbors espied a bottle of quinine wine. Some one suggested that the mourning friends might revive their spirits by emptying the bottle, and the proposition was accepted with alacrity. Three persons partook of the wine. The first to suffer was Madame Goualin, the wife of a railway employe, who was also present. A quarter of an hour after she had taken her glass she was seized with violent pains, and expired soon afterwards. Her husband, overcome with emotion, filled a large glass with the wine and drank it off. He was at once taken ill in his turn, and in the meantime a friend—also in the service of the railway company—and rushed upstairs to his room on the upper floor howling with anguish. The doctor, speedily recalled, saw at once that these poor people had taken poison and despatched a messenger to the police station. In spite, however, of all the efforts made to save them the two men died.

Yesterday morning the daughter of the poor woman, who had given her the bottle, was interrogated at Rainey by the judicial authorities, and said that after she had purchased it her husband had tasted its contents and had been taken ill, but her brother remembered that his mother had asked him to empty the powder into it. Where this powder had been procured he could not say. So far it would appear that the powder added to the bottle of quinine wine was the cause of the catastrophe.

AFFECTING SCENE

On Occasion of Retirement of J. F. Stephen From the Bench.

LONDON, April 7.—An affecting scene took place to-day in the Queen's Bench division of the High Court of Justice, when James Fitz James Stephen, the justice of the Queen's Bench, whose health is said to have become seriously impaired, as a result of the worry he was compelled to endure during and after the trial of the Maybrick poisoning case, retired from the bench. All of Justice Stephen's fellow-judges including the lord chief justices of England, were present standing, when Justice Stephen, seated on the bench, replied in a broken voice to the tribute paid to his honor, integrity, ability and past services by the Attorney-General, Sir Richard Everard Webster, Q.C. All present were profoundly impressed by the sad scene, and considerable emotion was displayed, as Justice Stephen, in low tones, thanked his colleagues for the good feeling shown towards him, and the tears welling into his eyes, as well as into the eyes of many other there, wished them good-bye and left the bench for the last time. Justice Stephen's wife and the other members of his family who were present were also overcome with emotion as the veteran judge expressed his thanks for the kindness which cheered his retirement from the high position he had so long held.

A Mother's Joy.

OTTAWA, April 7.—The Minister of Justice has decided to pardon Goodwin and Brock, who, six years ago, were sentenced to life imprisonment for rape and of whose guilt there has always been considerable doubt. When informed of her son's release to-day Mrs. Brock went wild with joy.

Wouldn't Pay Duty on Bears.

NEW YORK, April 7.—Two Italians were arrested here on the steamer Italy to-day with three performing bears. The men refused to pay duty on the bears and decided they would return to their native land.

In advanced age the declining powers are wonderfully refreshed by Hood's Sarsaparilla. It really does "make the weak strong."

—The mayoralty election in Chicago yesterday was a very close contest. The only returns given—at 1 o'clock this morning—show the election of Mr. Cregier by only six votes above Mr. Hempstead Washburn. There were four candidates, namely, Cregier, Hempstead Washburn, Harrison and E. Washburn. Mr. Cregier is a Democrat.

What She Said.

Mrs. R. Peck, E. 15th street, New York City, visited Canada last year, and had the good fortune to pick up something which not only suited her, but her neighbors also. Writing the manufacturer of Nerviline she says:—"I bought three bottles of Nerviline while in Canada and treated my neighbors to some of it and all think it the best medicine for internal or external pain they have ever used. Nerviline deserves such a commendation, for it is a most powerful, penetrating, and certain remedy, for pain of all kinds. Take no substitute.

The Harbor Mastership.

Ald. Collins Chosen—A Tally Clerk Appointed.

Of the (about) thirty applicants for the position of Harbor Master and Clerk to the Harbor Commissioners, Alderman Daniel Collins has been "the minion of fortune and the worm of the hour."

The Commissioners met yesterday afternoon in Mayor Porter's law office, and after a lengthy consultation Ald. Collins was appointed temporarily to fill the office. Of the applicants for the position of Tally Clerk at the boom, Wm. Reeves, son of ex-Ald. Reeves, was chosen.

Mr. Collins is well qualified to discharge the duties of the office to which he has been appointed, he having a good knowledge of the business of the harbor.

Hospital Notes.

The Hospital continues to prosper under the able management of Miss Gordon, who has now been more than a year in the position of Lady Superintendent.

Her skill and tender care of the sick; her kindness to the old people in the "Home," and her efficient administration in every department of housekeeping, training nurses, etc., have given entire satisfaction to the Hospital Board.

During the six months commencing on 1st October, 1890, 95 patients have been treated and only two deaths have occurred. The number of patients in the corresponding six months of the previous year was 61, so there has been an increase of 34.

The amount received from patients for the six months commencing on 1st October, 1890, was $641.50, an increase of $167.70 on the corresponding six months of the previous year.

There are at present 20 patients in the Hospital and 9 inmates of the "Home."

As the number of patients has increased, more accommodation has become necessary, and the wing is now being divided in separate wards for the old people, so that the whole of the main building will be appropriated to hospital purposes.

Improvements will be made in the main building also, especially better sanitary arrangements, and the Hospital Board is confident that the many friends of the Hospital in the city will willingly help to meet the necessary expenses.

Prosperous and Progressive.

A Remarkable Report.

The annual meeting of the Sun Life Assurance Company was held at its head office, St. James Street, Montreal, on Thursday, March 26th, at 2, p. m. There was a large attendance of gentlemen, not only from the city but from all sections of the Dominion. The following report was presented:

DIRECTORS' REPORT.

It is with no little satisfaction that your directors present their annual report covering the transactions of the company for the year ending December 31st, 1890. An examination of the accompanying statements will show that while the progress of the company has always been steady and gratifying, yet in no corresponding period has such a marked advance been made in all the details that count for strength and general prosperity.

Early in the year arrangements were made with the Citizens' Insurance Company of Canada, by which the life business of that company as it stood on March 31, 1890, was assumed by us. It is hoped that the transaction will prove profitable in the ordinary course, while directly aiding our regular business by extending our connections.

During the year we received 2,834 applications for life assurance of $4,536,005.79, and 1,196 applications for accident insurance of $2,114 069, making a total of 4,030 for $6,650,074.79. These figures do not include the policies transferred from the Citizens' Company. After deducting the declined and not completed cases the policies written were as follows:—

	Policies.	Amount.
Our ordinary life business	2,639	$4.046,979 79
Re-assured from the Citizens' Insurance Co.	1,372	1,807,800 23
Total life policies issued during year	4,061	6,854,780 02
Accident policies issued	1,186	2,079,069 00
Total new policies	5,247	$8,933,849 02

The directors have for many years been able to report that the new life business of each twelve months had been in excess of anything previously attained in the company's history, and the same gratifying condition is present this year also. The regular life applications alone, not including the re-assurance contract, were 79 for $433,295 24 in advance of those of 1889, which again were ahead of those of all previous years

The amount in force in the life branch at December 31 was $16,759,355 92 under 11,266 policies, being an increase of $3,421,372 84 in amount and 2,315 in number. There were in force, in addition, exactly 2 000 accident policies, covering $3,939,235.

The financial statements presented herewith are the best possible evidence of the rapidity of the company's growth and the flourishing condition of its affairs. The cash income for premiums and interest reached the large sum of $889,078 87, which is an advance beyond the figures of 1889 of $325,938 35. If we deduct the $187,906 25 received from the Citizens' Company, the increase in the regular business is seen to be $138,032 10. This amount alone is almost equal to the total income of the company ten years ago.

The assets also were increased by $677,691.47, bringing the total up to $2,473,514.19, or, including subscribed capital, to $2,911,014.19. The progress here shown is remarkable and most gratifying. It has, moreover, been accompanied by the satisfactory addition of $75,639.05 to the surplus, which now amounts to $232,175.69 beyond all liabilities and capital. This large sum promises well for the division of profits, which will take place at the close of the current year.

The sum paid for death claims, matured endowments and other payments to policyholders during the year, was $149,132.43. The total amount thus returned to policyholders from the company's formation to the close of the year, was $1.334,815.76. The benefit which the disbursement of this large sum has been to the widows and orphans of the land can hardly be appreciated.

A clear view of the progress made by the Sun Life will be gained by a glance at the following record for the years named:

YEAR.	INCOME.	ASSETS	LIFE ASSUR'CE IN FORCE.
1880	141,402 81	473,632 93	3,881,479 14
1884	278 379 65	837,397 24	6,844,404 04

The progress already made has been very great in every respect, and the company already stands among the most powerful financial institutions of the Dominion. But the indications are that it has but entered upon the tide of prosperity, and that the future will eclipse anything in the past, great as the results already attained are.

More Treason.

Farrer and Fielding Send Letters to Washington.

The Empire of Monday has the following: "The traitors have again been prosecuting their Washington schemes, as appears by a remarkable correspondence, indiscreetly and unexpectedly made public by the Detroit News, and showing to what lengths the Opposition leaders are prepared to go in their blind rage and unpatriotic policy. It seems that in response to enquiries a number of prominent Grits have been posting some of their Washington allies on the prospects of the party scheme, and these allies, delighted to hear good reports of the annexation propaganda, have indiscreetly allowed at least a portion of the correspondence to see the light. The Detroit News publishes two letters, one from the editor of the Opposition organ, and another from the Nova Scotia Premier, which, for malignant opposition to the best interests of their country, for positive indecency, for disgraceful treachery at the time when official communications are passing between the governments of the two countries, and when negtiators are actually at Washington to try and agree on an honorable basis for settlement, have rarely been equalled, even in the previous acts of this dishonorable faction. The Farrer letter reads as follows:

"The cause of reciprocity and cordial relations with the United States never looked better than it does to-day. I mean by reciprocity a full and free exchange of all the natural and manufactured products of the two countries. Sir John Macdonald's reciprocity is one which would limit the exchange to natural products, coal being excluded because he has promised the bituminous coal men in Nova Scotia not to disturb their existing monopoly of the Canadian market, or rather of that portion of it embraced between Halifax and Montreal. The Liberals will have a majority in the new Parliament from the two chief provinces, Ontario and Quebec, whilst Sir Sohn will have to depend on the votes of the minor provinces, which are not a secure prop. Besides, the forces making for the demolition of the customs wall are beyond his control, as much so as the laws of gravitation. He says the commissioners whom he is about to send to Washington will be able to secure his jug-handled form of reciprocity from Mr. Blaine, notwithstanding Mr. Blaine's letter to Congressman Baker. Of that, of course, I am not competent to speak, though, to be candid, I do not think Sir John imagines they can do anything of the sort. His object appears to be to spar for wind—to keep on humbugging the people here in the hope that something may turn up to divert their attention from the pressing question of their empty pockets. (Signed) E. Farrer."

"This precious production, designed to deceive foreigners as to the true condition of affairs, to bring our Government into contempt, and deliberately stigmatising the Canadian policy as jug handled, and therefore, to be rejected—is supplemented by this communication from Mr. Fielding:

"My opinion is that nothing practical will be done, and that the people will speedily awake to the fact that they have been sadly humbugged by Sir John on that question. There is an almost universal desire in the Maritime Provinces for freer trade relations with the States. Conservatives who were most anxious for reciprocity persuaded themselves that Sir John's reciprocity proposals amounted to something. They will speedily discover their mistake. It should have been plain to all that an offer of reciprocity, admittedly less favorable to the Americans than the old treaty, will not be seriously entertained at Washington. Sir John may go through the form of inviting negotiations on that subject, but no such reciprocity scheme can amount to anything. Some thoughtless persons seem to imagine that a reciprocity scheme can be arranged in which Canada will have all the advantages. The cake is to be divided by giving us the plums and Uncle Sam the dough. We need not expect to make a bargain like that. If we are to get reciprocity at all we must offer the Americans something in return for it. Sir John has himself declared that we can never get a reciprocity of the limited kind talked about in the recent election campaign. The Liberals, fully recognizing the fact, have refused to waste further time in seeking that kind of reciprocity, and haye declared their readiness to accept a much larger measure, which they believe the Americans will be willing to grant, and which they are satisfied would be beneficial to both sides. When the people see more clearly than they did on the 5th of March that all the talk of limited reciprocity is a waste of words they will see more clearly the wisdom of the Liberal policy, which is the largest possible measure of free trade with the States that is consistent with the maintenance of our own institutions."

The Empire, in the course of some scathing remarks on the correspondence, concludes as follows: "Who will say that this is not treason to the country, which no political necessities can palliate? Who will say it is not the work of despicable wretches without principle or conscience? Whether they are paid for it, like the contemptible creature who writes the opinions of the party organ, or whether it is due to the spleen and disappointment of defeated politicians like the Cartwrights and the Charltons, it is equally disgraceful. And unless we very greatly mistake the sentiments of Canadians, honest Liberals as well as Conservatives, they are in favor not of hampering our commissioners, not of throwing obstacles in their path at this juncture for the edification of foreigners, not of stirring up dangerous political movements at Washington, not of exciting expectations there of future Canadian action, which can never be realized and should not be encouraged, but of leaving them alone to do what they can to find satisfactory and advantageous solution to the great question at issue. This is the course which has the support of all honorable politicians, and it is gratifying to know that while conscienceless wretches like the Farrers and their kind, who have been proved guilty of the vilest treason, remain in charge of the Opposition machine, their presence there has its compensating advantage, that the tactics to which they are resorting drive reputable men and patriotic Canadians away from a faction plainly lost to all honor and self-respect."

P. T. BARNUM IS DEAD

His End Peaceful and Happy—Scenes at His Bedside—Directions as to the Funeral Arrangements—History of the Originator of the Greatest Show on Earth.

Bridgeport, Ct., April 7.—Phineas T. Barnum, the prince of showmen, died last night. The immediate cause of his death was la grippe, from which he had been suffering for some days past. Mr. Barnum was born at Bethel, Conn., July 5, 1810, his father being an innkeeper. When 19 years of age Barnum became editor of The Herald of Freedom, published in Danbury, Conn. In 1835 he made his first venture in the show line by exhibiting a colored woman named Joyce Heath as the nurse of George Washington. The receipts soon amounted to $1500 a week. He continued in the show business with varying success until 1842, when his discovery and exhibition of Charles S. Stratton, known as "Tom Thumb," brought the great showman into world-wide repute. Barnum was the originator of the far-famed "woolly horse." He brought Jenny Lind to America in 1850 and the receipts for this venture amounted to $700,000. Since then he has been the best known showman in the world. He was a writer of no mean ability and contributed letters to the press as recently as last week. Among his published works are "The Humbugs of the World," among whom, he proudly boasted, he was the greatest. The American nation pointed to Phineas T. as one of the grandest products of the country. He leaves many imitators, but there never was but one Barnum.

Mr. Barnum died at 6.22 o'clock in the presence of his grief-stricken family. During Mr. Barnum's illness, which began 21 weeks ago last Friday, there were frequent fluctuations in his condition from each of which he rallied, although in each instance with slightly lower vitality. He seemed to realize he could not live much longer and spoke of the approaching end with calmness. Barnum wished his funeral to be private and unostentatious. He directed that the interment should be in the Mountain Grove Cemetery, where several years ago he erected a monument.

The doctors attending Mr. Barnum had been careful about administering sedatives through fear they might produce ulterior ill-effects. Last night Mr. Barnum said, when all hope was gone, he wished to be given sedatives, which would allay his pain and make his death as peaceful as possible. The first sedative was given at 10.10 o'clock this morning. It was understood by the patient and his family to mean that the end was near. Mrs. Barnum remained at her husband's side throughout the night. In alternate spells of dozing and in conversation, which showed his brain to be as clear as ever, Mr Barnum passed the hours until about 4 o'clock this morning when he sank into a condition of stupor. To rouse him from this was difficult, a faint gleam of recognition alone indicated that he had knowledge of his surroundings or knew the faces about him. Thus matters went on until 10 o'clock this morning. He was again aroused and his mental faculties appeared brighter than at any time during the several hours previous. Among those in the room were: Mrs. Barnum, Rev. L. B. Fisher, pastor of the Universalist Church, Mrs. D.W.L. Thompson his daughter, Mrs. Clarke of New York, a grand daughter; Miss Ray Ried, his neice; Mrs. W. H. Bushtell of New York and daughter; Clinton H. Seeley, his grandson and principal heir; Benjamin Fish, Mrs. Barnum's brother, and Dr. Hubbard. Mr. Barnum was fully conscious, although his nearly exhausted powers made it impossible for him to talk. The messages he conveyed with his eyes were more expressive than words. With the exception of himself all were in tears.

The funeral will be conducted by the Rev. L. B. Fisher Friday afternoon in the North Congregational Church. Mr. Barnum had an intense horror of embalming or of having his body placed on ice after death. The remains will be therefore kept in a dark, cool room in the house. The body will then be enclosed in a hermetically sealed metallic casket.

Antonio Guerni shot and killed Nichola Dovita in a quarrel at Syracuse last night in front of their peanut stand in Clinton-square. The murder was the result of a feud of long-standing. Guerni was locked up. He is one of the wealthiest Italians in New York State.

At Plattsville, Col., yesterday Myrtle and Lottie Lumry, aged 6 and 4, started a fire with coal oil. Both were soon so badly burned that they died. While enveloped in the flames Myrtle placed a 10-months' old babe between a feather bed and straw tick, smothering the flames and saving the infant's life.

"THE CAT IN GLOVES catches no mice," and so is the business man handicapped who suffers from sick headache, biliousness and dyspepsia, unless he makes use of Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets.

For men or women of sedentary habits, there is nothing equal to them as a gentle laxative to the bowels, and as a regulator of the entire digestive system. No griping, no pain, they are as gentle as Nature herself in their action.

Persons whose business gives them little physical exercise, will do well to always keep a vial in their vest pocket, to ward off all attacks of indigestion.

One little "Pellet" a dose as a laxative; three or four as a cathartic.

Being purely vegetable, they operate without disturbance to the system, diet or occupation. Put up in sealed vials, hence always fresh and reliable, which is not the case with pills put up in wood and pasteboard boxes.

The "Pleasant Pellets" are the only Liver Pill sold, by druggists, under a positive guarantee from their makers, of their giving satisfaction in every case, or price paid for them (25 cents) will be refunded.

Something is lost when you use Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy. It's Catarrh. No matter how bad your case, or of how long standing, you can be cured. Incurable cases are rare. It's worth $500 to you, if you have one. The manufacturers of Dr. Sage's Remedy are looking for them. They'll pay you that amount in cash, if they can't cure you. It's a plain square offer from a responsible business house, and they mean it. It seems too one-sided, too much of a risk. It would be—with any other medicine behind it. But incurable cases are rare—with Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy.

TORONTO TRUTH'S
New Spring Bible Competition
NO. 22.

In these latter days there have arisen many false schemes and many scores of imitations of Truth's Competitions, but one after another have failed and utterly perished, yet Truth remains, and makes good all its promises. Its reputation is now too well established to risk damaging it, and as it has cost a very large amount of money and many years of care and labor to build up, the publisher could not afford to fail in carrying out all his agreements to the letter. There are twenty-one divisions of the largest list of bona fide prizes ever offered and ever actually given away by any publisher in the world. The total value of prizes in this Spring list is about $10,000,00. The lists are so large it would cost altogether too much to give them in detail here. There are pianoes, gold and silver watches, china tea and dinner sets, ladies' and gentlemen's bicycles, silver tea-sets, silk dresses, books, money, and hundreds of other valuable rewards. You pay nothing for these prizes, as everyone concedes that full value is received for the dollar in securing Truth every week for three months. Send one dollar and answers to the five following questions: Where in the Bible are these words found? 1, Grain; 2, Corn; 3, Wheat; 4, Barley; 5, Rye. If your answers are correct and your letters arrive in time you are almost sure to get a reward, as there are so many and every one cannot always find correct answers to all these questions. All the five answers must be correct to get any prize, but you will get full value for the dollar in Truth if you don't get anything else. If you want to see the list of rewards before sending in your dollar, mail Truth ten cents and a copy will be sent you containing the list of prizes. But there have been very few dissatisfied prize-winners in previous competitions, considering that he has given away during the past eight years scores of thousands of prizes. Some people expect a piano for every dollar sent, and are mad it they don't get it. He wishes it were possible to give every subscriber a gold watch or a piano or both, but says it can't be done. Some publishers intimate they will, but nobody can do it for any length of time. Send one dollar and correct answers and you won't repent it; and bear in mind that it is not guaranteed that every body whose answers are correct will get a prize, but that all the prizes in the twenty-one different lists will be given away. The competition remains open only till the last day of June next, inclusive, after which the prizes will be immediately distributed to the successful ones. Ten days will be allowed for letters to reach Truth from distant points after the 30th of June. All, however, must be postmarked where mailed not later than the 30th June, or any time between now and that date. Address S. Frank Wilson, "Truth" Office, Toronto, Ont., Canada.

This matter is changed daily.

BY JULIAN HAWTHORNE.

COPYRIGHT BY AMERICAN PRESS ASSOCIATION.

Bellingham gazed at her fixedly. "I cannot believe that you are a wicked woman," he exclaimed at length. "I don't know how to believe it! Why did you deceive me? I was ready to take it for granted that you were—like other women on the stage. But you made me believe you were pure and innocent. No woman ever acted innocence before as you have done it. You look like innocence incarnate at this moment—at the actual moment you are admitting. What is it you want? I would have asked you to marry me—as soon as I had persuaded myself you loved me. I loved you with all my heart and soul. Did you merely intend to lead me on, and then refuse me, like a common flirt? Or would you have married me and still kept up your relations with—well, I can't talk about it! There is always some motive even in the lightest wickedness, but I can see none in yours—and yours is not light!"

Mlle. Marana was standing erect twisting her lace handkerchief between her hands, her face pale, her eyes wide open, tearless, full of restless light. She never looked at him. It seemed physically impossible for her to do so.

"I have never been spoken to like this," she said, in a faint, panting voice. "Will you leave me, please? Will you leave me?"

Bellingham moved to depart, but he stopped and turned back.

"I have always meant never to be unjust to any human being," said he. "It is possible that the very love I felt for you may have made me unjust to you. If you can tell me that there is nothing disgraceful in this secret of yours—tell me, for God's sake! Are you what you seem or something else?"

"I am not what I seem!" she cried out passionately; and now she looked at him with a blaze of fierceness in her eyes. "You have doubted me, and that is enough. I will never explain—I will never forgive you! If you are a man do not stand there; go out!"

Bellingham was shaken to the bottom of his soul. The voice and manner with which her every word was uttered seemed to contradict the purport of the words themselves. Even yet he could not but believe her innocent. But there was nothing further for him to do or say. He went out.

He descended the stairs slowly and emerged into the street. It was the middle of the day; the avenue was comparatively deserted. A few carriages were taking their occupants home to luncheon. Bellingham stood on the curbstone, looking up and down, and vaguely wondering what he should do next. By and by it struck him that it would not make much difference which way he went. In no place in the world could he find what he had lost. It was nowhere; it had been annihilated. All that had made life delightful was gone from him, and he was left ironically behind. He had never really possessed it, even; it was a mirage—a phantom, which he had tried to grasp, and it had vanished. But the strangest part of the business—almost ludicrous—was that he remained behind, standing here, alive and well, in the sunshine on Fifth avenue!

He sauntered leisurely northward toward the park. Two or three times he passed some one he knew, and returned their greeting with a nod. But all the while he saw that lithe, erect figure, with her pale, lovely face, her eyes bright with pain or anger, her white hands twisting her handkerchief. Could it be that she was depraved, false, heartless? Every stern word he had spoken had been echoed, as it were, by the exquisite sensitiveness of her beauty. If she were false would she not have been true at that last moment, when nothing more was to be gained by deception, when to be sincere was essential to the enjoyment of the triumph her falsehood had gained her.

He reached the park; there was still a vivid greenness in the grass, though the trees were rich with the splendor of autumn. He wandered along the curving paths, feeling no pleasure, but pain, in the quiet beauty that surrounded him. Keeping to the left, where there seemed to be fewer saunterers like himself, he found himself at last near the extreme northern limit. He ascended a little hill, and on its summit, beneath the golden shade of a group of trees, there was a space of leaf strewn turf on which he flung himself down. The rumble of the horse cars on the avenue came faintly to his ears, and now and then the voices of laughter of people passing at a distance; the shadow of passing clouds drifted over him, and ever and anon a golden leaf detached itself from a bough above his head and floated wavering earthward. But no one disturbed him, though he lay there all the afternoon, sometimes with his face buried on his arms, sometimes supporting his head upon his hand. He wondered what she had been doing since they parted. Had she been laughing over his discomfiture and planning fresh enterprises? It was not possible!

The sun went down and the shadows of twilight rose. Bellingham looked toward the east, and saw the disk of the moon mount above the horizon, until the whole round sphere swung aloft, orange against the violet background. The evening was mild and still, but the lethargy which had fallen upon Bellingham began to be dispelled; he became restless and anxious. He could no longer stay where he was; he descended the little hill, crossed over to the avenue, and still going northwestward came to the bank of the Hudson. The bank was high and steep; he clambered down it, and found the remains of a decayed wooden pier jutting out into the water. Upon the end of this he sat down, and the silent current swept and eddied past his feet. The sound of a clock striking somewhere caught his ear. This was the hour for her to arrive at the theatre. A little while longer and she would be upon the stage. Would she look toward his seat, expecting to see him there? No, she would never expect him again! Would she miss him?

More than another hour passed away, and Bellingham sat so still that one might have fancied he was asleep. But he was not asleep—he was thinking, and now his thoughts were becoming clearer and more consecutive than they had heretofore been. The moon had now soared high aloft, and stood silvery bright above the sliding reaches of the river.

All at once Bellingham sprang to his feet. He pulled out his watch; there was yet time. He began hurriedly to climb the bank.

It had been borne in upon him, he knew not how, with a sudden, overwhelming conviction, that she was not guilty, but pure and true; that the mystery was an innocent one, that all would be well, if he could but see her and speak to her. It was possible for him to reach the theatre before she left it, but he must use diligence. He was somewhat faint from lack of nourishment during the day, but he ran on until he came to a station of the elevated railway. He entered a train and was off. His heart was light and hopeful.

The train halted at a station near the rear of the theatre. As he got out he saw that the performance was over, and the audience had dispersed. But she would not have left yet. No; there was her carriage waiting for her at the stage door.

He ran down the iron staircase, but as he reached the bottom he stopped. Mlle. Marana came out of the stage door, leaning upon the arm of a man—of Mr. Randolph. Mrs. Bemax followed, but entered the carriage first. Randolph appeared to exchange a few words with the prima donna; then she turned and put her foot on the carriage step.

Speaking of Tips.

A TIP is a piece of special or valuable information such as this, that Hagyard's Yellow Oil is a prompt and effectual cure for croup, colds, hoarseness, sore throat, rheumatism, neuralgia, sprains or soreness of any kind. Known as reliable over 30 years.

Important and True.

No better evidence of the fact that Burdock Blood Bitters is a certain remedy for all blood diseases can be asked than that of Mr. Geo. V. Thomas, druggist, of Hull, P. Q., whose wife was cured of cancer by B B.B. The family doctor is certain that the disease was cancer and that it is now cured.

CHICAGO, Feb. 13th, 1891.

G. A. Swayze, Esq., Principal Belleville Business College, Belleville, Ont.:

MY DEAR SIR.—Yours of the 10th inst. received. I am pleased to state that the young ladies who received their tuition in the above-named college, and who are now in my employ, have more than filled their positions and the duties expected of them.

While Miss Francis has not had the opportunity yet of fully demonstrating her capabilities, Miss Moorman has not only done her work to the full satisfaction of the managers, but has surprised those in the office by the manner in which she has taken up a difficult line of business and carefully and correctly performed the same, and to say that I am proud of the institution from which she came is expressing it mildly, although I have always believed that thoroughness was its fundamental principle.

You may rest assured that should I hear or know of any position open I will remember the Belleville Business College

Seven years ago my cashier came to this office and received $5 a week; to-day she is receiving $125 a month. One of my three stenographers, who came here three years ago, started at $6 a week and is now receiving $15 a week, and this is the smallest wages paid to any female in the office (where there are eight) who have been in the office for over one year.

Yours very truly,
T. S. QUINCEY.

HERENDEEN'S ORIENTAL FLOUR !

This flour is prepared from the best Pure White Corn by a process patented February 7th 1880, and is beyond a doubt healthier than wheat or any other flour. We aim to feed the masses, not the classes, consequently instead of putting it up in 2 or 3 lb. packages and charging 15 or 20 cents for them and spending the big profit in advertising, we are selling it at about the price of ordinary flour. It can be used to great advantage in bread, pastry, etc., and is unsurpassed for pancakes or Johnny cake. Instructions and recipes in each package. This is also pre-eminently the food for anyone troubled with Dyspepsia or Indigestion. Your grocer has it now. Ask for it. Try it.

CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS.

CURE

Sick Headache and relieve all the troubles incident to a bilious state of the system, such as Dizziness, Nausea, Drowsiness, Distress after eating, Pain in the Side, &c. While their most remarkable success has been shown in curing

SICK

Headache, yet CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS are equally valuable in Constipation, curing and preventing this annoying complaint, while they also correct all disorders of the stomach, stimulate the liver and regulate the bowels. Even if they only cured

HEAD

Ache they would be almost priceless to those who suffer from this distressing complaint; but fortunately their goodness does not end here, and those who once try them will find these little pills valuable in so many ways that they will not be willing to do without them. But after all sick head

ACHE

Is the bane of so many lives that here is where we make our great boast. Our pills cure it while others do not.

DR. WILLIAMS' PINK PILLS FOR PALE PEOPLE

ARE NOT a Purgative Medicine. They are a BLOOD BUILDER, TONIC and RECONSTRUCTOR, as they supply in a condensed form the substances actually needed to enrich the Blood, curing all diseases coming from POOR and WATERY BLOOD, or from VITIATED HUMORS in the BLOOD, and also invigorate and BUILD UP the BLOOD and SYSTEM, when broken down by overwork, mental worry, disease, excesses and indiscretions. They have a SPECIFIC ACTION on the SEXUAL SYSTEM of both men and women, restoring LOST VIGOR and correcting all IRREGULARITIES and SUPPRESSIONS.

EVERY MAN Who finds his mental faculties dull or failing, or his physical powers flagging, should take these PILLS. They will restore his lost energies, both physical and mental.

EVERY WOMAN should take them. They cure all suppressions and irregularities, which inevitably entail sickness when neglected.

YOUNG MEN should take these PILLS. They will cure the results of youthful bad habits, and strengthen the system.

YOUNG WOMEN should take them. These PILLS will make them regular.

FROM OVER THE SEA.

MORE BRITISH OFFICERS KILLED IN INDIA.

A Preacher Insults the Queen at a Banquet—The Italian Press on America's God—Interesting Irish Items—Death of a Hero—General Foreign News.

SIMLA, India, April 8.—A letter has been received here from the leader of the Manipuris, declaring that Chief Commissioner J. W. Quinton and all his colleagues, who were taken prisoners at the time of the attack upon the British residency at Manipur, have been murdered. This news is believed here. There has been further fighting near Manipur, and another British officer has been killed. It is presumed this officer is either Lieutenant Grant, who commanded the British force, which recently captured Fort Thaba, or Captain Presgrave, who commanded the detachment of British troops sent to Grant's relief.

Anxiety in Afghanistan.

CALCUTTA, April 8.—The Miranza disorders are spreading and the Afghans are becoming excited. The conduct of the Ameer of Afghanistan is considered suspicious.

HER MAJESTY'S HEALTH.

Remarkable Scene at an English Banquet—The Queen and the Dissenters.

LONDON, April 8.—At a dinner given last evening by the Devon Congregational Union at Tavistock a sensation was caused by the presiding minister, Mr. R. Davis, who said he could not propose the toast of "The Queen" and that he would, therefore, call upon Rev. Mr. Johnson to perform this task. Mr. Davis added that Johnson might also toast the Prince of Wales and all the gamblers if he chose to do so. Mr. Johnson consequently proposed the toast "The Queen," saying Her Majesty had no more loyal subjects than the dissenters. Thereupon the assemblage, with the exception of the Rev. Mr. Davis and his wife, rose to their feet and sang the National Anthem.

FAVA'S RECALL.

The Reason Italy Proposes to Attack America's Strong Box—King Humbert Approves of Fava's Recall.

ROME, April 8.—In the Chamber of Deputies to-day King Humbert said he entirely approved of the conduct of the Italian Government in the matter of the recall of Baron de Fava, adding at the same time that he hoped and desired that an agreement should be arrived at.

Contrary to the foregoing many well-informed people here declare that the Fava recall incident was precipitated on account of the New Orleans affair, in order to afford the Italian Ministry reasons for its failure to effect the promised reductions in the army, navy and other national expenditures.

The Italia expresses the opinion that Americans have but one god—their strong box. It says further: "In this strong box we must strike them, demanding the largest possible indemnity. On their tongue there is but one word, 'dollars.' Let us take advantage of it."

A Model for the Masses.

LONDON, April 8.—The German Socialists are highly indignant over the fact that their great leader Bebel is living in high luxury in Berlin. It is said that Bebel, not satisfied with a house grandly furnished and a select and abundant larder, has one of the finest wine cellars in Berlin and indulges with his friends in the choicest champagnes, tokay and other beverages; while he makes a business of denouncing the luxury and extravagance of capitalists and holding himself forth as a model for the masses.

NEWFOUNDLAND TRADE.

What the Treaty Between the Colony and the United States Contemplated—Reciprocity in Various Products.

WASHINGTON, April 8.—The full text of the treaty between the United States and Newfoundland for the improvement of commercial relations, which was all ready for signature and ratification when the suspension of negotiations was ordered from Great Britain owing to the protest of Canada, is made public. It gives American fishing vessels the same privileges of purchasing bait, trading and procuring supplies as are enjoyed by Newfoundland vessels, and allows the products of Newfoundland fisheries, with the barrels, boxes and cans, etc., in which they are carried, to be admitted into the United States free of duty: "Green" codfish, however, is not included in these products. Under this treaty the duties levied upon the following merchandise imported into Newfoundland from the United States shall not exceed the following amounts, viz.: Flour, 25c. per bbl.; pork, 1¼c per lb.; bacon and hams, tongues, smoked beef and sausages, 2¼c. per lb. or $2.50 per 112 lbs.; beef, pig's heads, hocks and feet, salted and cured, ¾c. per lb.; Indian meal, 25c. per bbl.; peas, 30c. per bbl.; oatmeal, 30c. per bbl. of 200 lbs.; bran, Indian corn and rice, 12½ p.c. ad valorem; salt in bulk, 20c. per ton of 2240 lbs.; kerosene, 6c. per gallon.

Newfoundland is to admit the following articles imported from the United States free of duty: Agricultural implements and machinery imported by agricultural societies for the promotion of agriculture; crushing mills for mining purposes; raw cotton, corn for the manufacture of brooms, gas engines protected by patent, plows and harrows, reaping, raking, plowing, potato-digging and seed-sowing machines to be used in the colony, printing presses and printing types. The treaty provides that if Newfoundland reduces the rates of duty upon the articles named above as dutiable the reduction shall apply to the United States. The treaty is to take effect as soon as the laws required to carry it into operation have been passed by Congress, the Imperial Parliament and the Legislature of Newfoundland. It is to remain in full force for five years from the date at which it comes into operation, and further until 12 months after either contracting party gives notice of its wish to terminate the same. It is provided that ratifications of treaty shall be exchanged on Feb. 1, 1891, or as soon thereafter as practicable.

Newfoundland has appointed Mr. Francis H. Evans, M.P. for Southampton, special commissioner with unlimited power to negotiate with Her Majesty's Government a settlement of the differences between them in regard to the French fishery claims. Mr. Evans has been advised by the Newfoundland authorities that it is necessary to secure an immediate concession of some kind to

Dangerous Counterfeits.

Counterfeits are always dangerous, more so that they always closely IMITATE THE ORIGINAL IN APPEARANCE AND NAME. The remarkable success achieved by Nasal Balm as a positive cure for Catarrh and Cold in the Head has induced unprincipled parties to imitate it. The public are cautioned not to be deceived by nostrums imitating Nasal Balm in name and appearance, bearing such names as Nasal Cream, Nasal Balsam, etc. Ask for Nasal Balm and do not take any imitation dealers may urge upon you. For sale by all druggists or sent post-paid on receipt of price (50c and $1.) by addressing Fulford & Co. Brockville. Ont.

Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam.

Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam gives prompt relief in coughs, colds, hoarseness, whooping cough, croup, asthma or bronchitis. It is the most pleasant and perfect throat and lung healer in the world for children or adults. Price 25c.

Bickle's Anti Consumptive Syrup is a combination of several medical herbs which exert a most wonderful influence in curing pulmonary consumption and all other diseases of the lungs, chest and throat. It promotes a free and easy expectoration, and gives ease even to the greatest sufferer. Coughs, colds, shortness of breath, and affections of the chest, attended with weakness of the digestive organs, or with general debility, seem to vanish under its use. No other remedy acts so readily in allaying inflammation or breaking up a severe cold, even the most obstinate cough is overcome by its penetrating and healing properties. When children are affected with colds, coughs, inflammation of the lungs, croup, quinsey, and sore throat, this Syrup is of vast importance. The number of deaths among children from these diseases is truly alarming. It is so palatable that a child will not refuse it, and is put at such a price that will not exclude the poor from its benefits.

White broche is in demand for neglige robes.

Mr. J. R. Allen, Upholsterer, Toronto, sends us the following: "For six or seven years my wife suffered from Dyspepsia, Costiveness, Inward Piles and Kidney Complaint. We tried two physicians and any number of medicines without getting any relief, until we got a bottle of Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery. This was the first relief she got, and before one bottle was used the benefit she derived from it was beyond our expectation."

Satins closely resemble India silks in design.

Jacob H. Bloomer, of Virgille, N. Y., writes:—"Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil cured a badly swelled neck and sore throat on my son in forty-eight hours; one application also removed the pain from a very sore toe; my wife's foot was also much inflamed—so much so that she could not walk about the house; she applied the Oil, and in twenty four hours was entirely cured."

A coronet set with turquoises is a new shape for a bonnet pin.

Mr. Thomas Ballard, Syracuse, N.Y., writes: "I have been afflicted for nearly a year with that most-to-be-dreaded disease Dyspepsia, and at times worn out with pain and want of sleep, and after trying almost everything recommended, I tried one box of Parmelee's Vegetable Pills. I am now nearly well, and believe they will cure me. I would not be without them for any money

Many of the gay and youthful cotton dresses sent over by French modistes as models are buttoned up the back.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS

MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP has been used by millions of mothers for children teething for over fifty years with perfect success. It relieves the little sufferer at once, produces natural, quiet sleep by freeing the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste, soothes the child, softens the gums, allays pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. Twenty-five cents a bottle

WHY IS IT ?

If you will listen a minute we will tell you why and how it is that we can and do lead in the crockery business. It's over fifty years since this establishment was founded in London, Ont., by the late Nathaniel Reid, who spent his younger days amongst the English potteries and gained a knowledge of the many processes of manufacture until the goods are laid upon the shelves in this country. This knowledge, handed down to the son and others who have been in the house for twenty-five years, has brought about the following results: 1st.—The ware is all made in Staffordshire, England, brought out in the plain and finished in our own decorating kilns in this country. 2nd.—In Tea Sets we can furnish 134 different patterns; Toilet Sets, 89; Dinner Sets, 96 patterns. 3rd.—To give some idea of what has been done in the Belleville branch, we have sold since the first of last August (8 months) of these three items 164 Tea Sets, 110 Toilet Sets and 93 Dinner Sets. Other lines which belong to this business, such as silver plate and lamps, we handle just as extensively and from the leading factories. The goods are all made for the legitimate crockery trade and not for giving away. We study our own trade. We have got to understand the business we follow. We can reproduce old patterns, buy larger and undersell others, and that's why we lead in this trade.

FOSTER HAD THREE WIVES.

The Son of an Elgin Hotelkeeper Poses as a Professor and Marries Three Wives.

SIOUX FALLS, S.D., April 8.—"Prof." Albert E. Foster was arrested here to-day on a charge of bigamy. Foster during his residence here was counted as one of the "four hundred." His case as developed before Justice Stickney to-day is a marvel. He is the son of George Foster, a hotelkeeper at Fingal, Elgin county, Ont., and a few years ago married Carrie Windom, daughter of a farmer in the township of Delaware. He then left for the States, his wife remaining in Canada with Foster's parents. Foster settled in Peru, Ind., where in 1887 he was married to Florence Day. Two years afterwards, in 1889, he appeared in Newport, Ky., where he gained entrance in the best circles. In September last he induced one of his pupils, the 16-year-old daughter of Cephanus Knight, a prominent and wealthy merchant, to elope with him, and they were married. The elopers went to Canada, and to the home of Foster's parents, actually living in the same house in which wife No. 1 was domiciled, but through a plausible story told by Foster the relationship of the couple was not suspected. Miss Knight's father traced the couple to St. Thomas, Ont., in November last, but word of his intended visit had reached Foster and he fled, coming direct to Sioux Falls. His discarded child-wife was found by her father at Iona and was taken back to Newport. Foster arrived here in December, and has been doing all he can to secure wife No. 4. His arrest was caused by the father of No. 3, who announces his intention of placing the oft-married professor behind the bars. A requisition has been applied for and he will be taken to Newport, Ky., for trial.

FITZSIMMONS ARRAIGNED.

PITTSBURG, April 7.—That accomplished Canadian crook and desperado, Fred C. Fitzsimmons, was out of jail to-day long enough to hear Detective Murphy tell Coroner McDowell's jury how Fitzsimmons had murdered Detective Gilkinson a fortnight ago.

Fitzsimmons' face was pale, but he met the gaze of the crowd unflinchingly. He was dressed in a neat black suit, sack coat, wore a stand-up collar, black tie and black Derby hat wound with a band of crape, an emblem of mourning for his father, who recently died. His wife presented a strange contrast as she limped along on a heavy cane. She wore a dress of very plain faded black, a cheap black sailor hat, with scanty black trimmings, and a faded shawl of uncertain hue. As they were seated Fitzsimmons looked the dapper gentleman, with his well-combed hair slightly tinged with grey, and his closely cropped brown mustache. He is unmistakably intelligent, and after a few moments assumed a pleasant cast of countenance and frequently indulged in faint smiles. His wife was a weary, worn and faded old woman after she had calmed herself, and often leaned her head against the wall with her hands over her eyes as if to shut out the scene and fortify herself against dark misgivings. Near Fitzsimmons stood a neatly-dressed young man with fine face and jet-black mustache, who wore his hair pompadour. This proved to be the prisoner's brother, who had just arrived from Brockville, Canada. He remained during the hearing, and left with his identity known to only three or four persons in the room.

When Fitzsimmons stood up to hear the verdict it was plain that it required a great effort for him to maintain his composure. While the commitments were being made out he was the pleasantest person in the party of five prisoners, and chatted freely.

Dyspepsia

Intense Suffering for 8 years—Restored to Perfect Health.

Few people have suffered more severely from dyspepsia than Mr. E. A. McMahon, a well known grocer of Staunton, Va. He says: "Before 1878 I was in excellent health, weighing over 200 pounds. In that year an ailment developed into acute dyspepsia, and soon I was reduced to 162 pounds, suffering burning sensations in the stomach, palpitation of the heart, nausea, and indigestion. I could not sleep, lost all heart in my work, had fits of melancholia, and for days at a time I would have welcomed death. I became morose, sullen and irritable, and for eight years life was a burden. I tried many physicians and many remedies. One day a workman employed by me suggested that I take Hood's Sarsaparilla, as it had cured his wife of dyspepsia. I did so, and before taking the whole of a bottle I began to feel like a new man. The terrible pains to which I had been subjected, ceased, the palpitation of the heart subsided, my stomach became easier, nausea disappeared, and my entire system began to tone up. With returning strength came activity of mind and body. Before the fifth bottle was taken I had regained my former weight and natural condition. I am today well and I ascribe it to taking Hood's Sarsaparilla."

BELLEVILLE, THURSDAY APRIL 9

MR. BLAINE SNUBBED.

Our supposition that President Harrison had snubbed Mr. Blaine for presuming to negotiate with Canada as to reciprocity without consulting the chief Executive, is confirmed by the Washington correspondent of the Montreal Star, who telegraphed on the 7th:

There is a good deal of gossip going on in the hotel lobbies and clubs about the way in which Secretary Blaine has been turned down by President Harrison in connection with the proposed negotiations with the Dominion of Canada. The reason why Sir Charles Tupper and his fellow-commissioners left for home within a couple of hours of their formal call upon Mr. Blaine yesterday morning, is simply due to the fact that the President sat upon Mr. Blaine in the most forcible manner, and Mr. Blaine discovered that instead of being master of his own department, as he imagined himself to be, he is nothing but a superior clerk, as amenable to the orders of the President as is the most humble messenger on the Government pay rolls.

"THE EXODUS."

The Mail, in a review of Goldwin Smith's pronouncement in form of annexation, assents that the N.P. "occasioned the exodus." If our contemporary possesses no better knowledge of the subject of emigration from Canada to the United States than is indicated in the foregoing statement, it had better refrain from airing its ignorance in that connection.

The largest migration of Canadians across the lines took place whilst the reciprocity treaty was in full force and effect, namely between 1861 and 1865. The main inducements for the very large emigration from the provinces at that time were, let us add, in all fairness, the great demand for labor of all kinds caused by the the raising of an immense army by conscription, and consequent ready employment at high wages for aliens, also the very high bounties for volunteers to fight in the war of the rebellion. The inducements offered, being in largely depreciated currency, were so temptingly high that hundreds of thousands of Canadians were attracted across the lines and not only supplied the demand for labor, but added some 50,000 or more to the "ranks of war." Of these latter, let us add, a large proportion fell in battle or died in hospital, whilst of both classes the great majority settled in the country to which they had thus been attracted. The all but total failure of the crops in 1862-3-4 also also caused a large emigration which would not otherwise have occurred.

From the close of the war, in 1865, until hard times set in under Grit rule in 1875, there was no large flow of our people to the southward; but from that time forward the depression of our industries, owing to the slaughtering of American goods in our markets, caused a very extensive emigration which was not checked until the N. P. was enacted at the command of the people.

Now does the Mail expect people to believe, in face of these facts, that the N. P. has "occasioned the exodus" to the United States?

There has been, it is true, a large movement of population from the old province since 1880, but it has been a migration to Manitoba, the Northwest and British Columbia, not an emigration to the United States. Let the great line of cities, towns and villages which have sprung up along the line of the C.P.R. from Pembroke to Vancouver—let the thousands of prosperous yeomen and ranchers who have made their homes in our great territory west of Lake Superior—be our witnesses that the policy of our Government has been Canada for the Canadians; that it has been a success; and that it has assured for our Dominion a glorious future as the greatest nation of this continent. No, the N. P. has not "occasioned the exodus." In connection with the Pacific Railway, it has prevented the depopulation of the old provinces and has conduced beyond all other means to the National Preservation.

Ontario Legislature.

Synopsis of the New School Bills.

TUESDAY, April 7.

Hon. Mr. Ross, in moving the second reading of the bill to consolidate and revise the High school law, said that for six years he had resisted all attempts at material changes in the High school law, believing that permanency was desirable. The time had now arrived when certain changes might be desirable and might be made. These changes he had incorporated into the consolidation of the various Acts, and he explained them briefly.

By the fourth clause it was provided that a Union Board could be dissolved by the vote of two-thirds of the High school representatives. By section eight the organization of High schools was restricted to municipalities of not less than 1,000 inhabitants. It was proposed that High schools should have a department for a study of commercial subjects. Another proposition was that municipalities which did not contribute to the High school of the district in which it is situate shall not be represented on the board. If a High school refuse to receive country pupils, and thereby surrender its right to county aid, the County Council would not be represented. He had also provided that there should be one representative of the Public School Board on the High School Board. Some years ago the Separate schools were given a representative, and it was now intended to restore the equilibrium. Another amendment was that no member of the municipal council could be a member of the Public School Board. It was also intended to enact that representatives on the High School Board should be appointed at the end of the year instead of the beginning. The reason for this was that it was complained that the appointments made after election were sometimes done as a solace to defeated candidates. By section 29 it is provided that the same facilities as Public School Boards possessed to alienate property should be enjoyed by High School Boards. Section 30 maintained the old practice that county councils should give to High schools an equivalent to the Government grant, but provided that where the cost of maintenance is in excess of that the county should pay a proportionate share based on the attendance of county pupils. It was proposed to allow the county to shift part of its cost to the pupils by collecting a fee not exceeding $10 per annum. Last year $70,000 or $4 per head was collected in fees from High Schools. By section 33 an endeavor was made to clearly state the obligation of districts as to the maintenance of High Schools. In the issue of debentures it was proposed to enact that the municipality in which the school is situate shall raise the money and have power to collect the share from the other municipalities interested. Prior to 1879 the boards had only to issue their fiat and the municipalities must pay them the money demanded for High schools. In that year it was enacted that a two-thirds vote could override the request. It was now proposed to allow the Council, by a majority vote, to refuse the request where it was for permanent improvements and to extend the length of time allowed for debentures from twenty to thirty years. In the case of expenditure for maintenance the board must provide the sum required, and they have the right to levy fees on non-resident pupils. To make the entrance examination more uniform and less cumbrous, it was proposed that instead of examining boards for each school there should be a local board for each county, the expense of which might be met by a fee of $1 from each candidate. It was also enacted that the examinations might be held at various points throughout the county. The holidays at Easter, which are now simply Good Friday and Easter Monday, are to be extended into a week, and to compensate for that, the High school term will commence on January 3rd instead of January 7th. It was also proposed that the summer vacation should commence on June 30th instead of the first Friday in July. These were the principal amendments. He hoped the House would feel he had made no wanton changes, and he believed that for the next five years no further changes would be necessary. Such suggestions as might be offered he would be quite willing to consider.

Mr. Wood (Hastings) said that, though many changes in the High school law had been proposed, there were other changes of a necessary character which had apparently been overlooked. One particular feature of the High school law had created a good deal of discussion throughout the country, viz., with reference to the appointment of trustees. There was a feeling, and a well founded one, that the trustee boards, as at present constituted, were not in touch with the people. They were all appointed, and the practice was that they were hardly ever changed. It looked like a vote of want of confidence for the council to turn out one man and put in another. If the trustees were elected, these things would be different. It might be said that the councils represented the people, but the dislike they evinced to making any change had to be considered. Another point was the fees charged for the attendance of pupils. Some of the schools threw off the fees altogether, with the object of inducing pupils to attend that school. This worked to the extreme detriment of other schools. A uniform fee should be made compulsory, and let the schools depend upon the other advantages they could offer for their drawing powers. He commended the proposed change regarding the entrance examinations.

The bill was read a second time, after some criticism by Mr. Meredith.

Hon. Mr. Ross moved the second reading of his bill to amend and consolidate the Public school laws and in doing so explained the reason for separating the High and Public school boards. As a result of the combination one or other of the schools was starved; the High school got too much and the Public school too little or vice versa. In short, their interests were not identical. Then he defended the appointment of High school trustees by municipal councils, stating that he was somewhat of a Conservative in this matter. Many good men who would not run the gauntlet of an election. Sub section 3 of section 9 was proposed to be amended so as to change the kindergarten age from 3 to 4, experience having shown that a child of 3 was too young for school. The kindergarten age ends at 6. Sub-section 3 of section 33 provided that the secretary-treasurer of a school board might be allowed to receive some compensation for certain services rendered to boards of trustees. As the law now was a member forfeited his seat by accepting pay for any service he might perform. Sub section 2 of section 40 provided that at the request of the annual meeting the trustees would be required to keep the schoolhouse insured. Sub-section 6 of section 40 made it obligatory on the trustees to properly equip the school with maps, globes, etc. Section 82 was designed to impress upon school trustees and municipal authorities the importance of stability in the matter of school section boundaries. This feature of stability ran through all the amendments made in the school bundaries in townships and also in the case of union sections. Under the old Act boundaries might be altered. He had now fixed the time at five years, during which boundaries, after being adopted, could not be changed. Section 96 was to settle more speedily the legality of by-laws passed by municipalities in connection with school matters. The section provided that any by-law of a municipality for altering or dissolving of school sections should not be open to appeal unless notice was filed in the office of the county clerk within one month of the publication of such by-law. In section 105 the duties of trustees in cities, towns and incorporated villages were somewhat more fully defined. There had been a good deal of agitation in cities, towns and villages in favor of free text books and school supplies. The privilege of supplying free books was limited in the bill to cities, towns and villages. The law had been that the trustees could impose a fee not exceeding 20 cents on each pupil with which to provide text books for all the pupils. Section 107 provided for school assessments. The old Act stipulated that the county council should supply for the maintenance of public schools the equivalent of the Government grant. This provision was dropped. It was proposed now to raise in the township $100 for each school section within its limits, giving each section a financial basis of $100, with which to begin its operations. The Government grant would be distributed as heretofore, on the basis of average attendance. In section 115 he had included provisions somewhat similar to those in the High School Act in reference to the issue of school debentures. The old Act provided that no woman under 17, or man under 18 was eligible to teach a public school. He proposed an amendment making 18 the minimum in both cases. It was intended to extend the time over which the third class certificate was valid, from three to five years, and to limit it to the county in which it was issued. He was making no change in the constitution of the county boards of examiners, but the bill provided that in future a county examiner, before being appointed, must have had at least 3 years' experience as a public or separate school teacher. In section 148 he was providing for an annual leaving examination in the Public schools. These examinations would be of a higher grade than the entrance examination. The course would be of a more practical character in the direction of commercial arithmetic, English, penmanship, drawing, and other useful subjects. He was making no material change in the provisions of the Act relating to public school inspectors in counties, but in cities, towns and incorporated villages, the proposal was that a part of the cost of inspection should be met by the Legislature. It would be necessary that inspectors in cities and towns should be in a measure under the control of the House. The more important clauses on this subject were as follows:

Inspectors in cities and in towns separated from the county shall be appointed by the board of Public school trustees, and shall be subject to dismissal by the Lieutenant Governor in council or by a majority of the members of the board, in case of inefficiency or misconduct, or by a vote of two thirds of the board without cause. R. S.O., c. 225, s. 184. (Amended.)

When the teachers engaged by the trustees of any city exceed 300 in number, the board shall appoint two inspectors, and likewise an additional inspector for every 300 teachers on the staff above 600 (New.)

The Lieutenant-Governor in council may direct annually the payment out of the consolidated revenue of a sum not exceeding $5 for every teacher occupying a separate room with a separate register, to the school board of any city or town separated from the county, towards the payment of the salary of the Public school inspector. (New.)

No inspector of schools shall, during his tenure of office, engage in or hold any other employment, office or calling which would interfere with the full discharge of his duties as inspector. R.S.O., c. 225, s. 188.

This would entail an expenditure by the Legislature of from $35,000 to $40,000 a year. He was making no change as far as holidays were concerned, except to assimilate them in cities, towns and villages to those of the High schools.

Mr. Wood (Hastings) called the attention of the House to one amendment that would produce a pretty profound sensation in the country, and that was the amendment regarding the county grant to schools. He expressed approval of the clause authorizing the supply of text books fee. He was satisfied that the bill would meet with no adverse criticism that would not be in the interest of the bill itself, but there were some clauses which might be improved. For instance, it was proposed to increase the term of third class certificates. If after the expiration of the five years the certificate could be continued the country would benefit by the experience gained by the holders of these certificates.

The bill was read a second time after debate, in which Messrs. Waters, Miscampbell, Gibson (Huron), Preston, Reid, Meacham, Clancy, Wood (Brant), Stratton, Meredith, Mackenzie, Dack and White took part. After reply by the Minister, in which he expressed himself as being opposed to Inspectors taking part in political contests, the bill was read a second time.

Lecture on Fools. Admit One.

A gentleman who lectured on fools, printed his tickets as above. Suggestive, certainly, and even sarcastic. What fools are they who suffer the inroads of disease when they might be cured. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is sold under a positive guarantee of its benefiting or curing in every case of Liver, Blood and Lung disease, or money paid for it will be cheerfully refunded. In all blood taints and impurities of whatever name or nature, it is most positive in its curative effects. Pimples, Blotches, Eruptions, and all Skin and Scalp diseases, are radically cured by this wonderful medicine. Scrofulous disease may effect the glands, causing swellings or tumors; the bones, causing "Fever sores," "White Swellings," "Hip-joint Disease"; or the tissues of the lungs, causing Pulmonary Consumption. Whatever its manifestations may be, "Golden Medical Discovery" cures it.

Do You Cough?

Don't delay. Take Kemp's Balsam, the best cough cure. It will cure coughs and colds. It will cure sore throat or a tickling in the throat. It will cure pains in the chest. It will cure influenza and bronchitis and all diseases pertaining to the lungs, because it is a pure balsam. Hold it to the light and see how thick and clear it is. You see the excellent effect after taking the first dose. Large bottles 50c and $1.

THE PLOT ON THE CZAR'S LIFE.

LONDON, April 8.—The St Petersburg correspondent of The Daily Telegraph wires from St. Petersburg the following additional particulars of the attempt on the life of the Czar:

"On this Tuesday morning a fresh attempt on the life of the Czar was frustrated, whether by mere accident or by the cleverness of the police is uncertain. To-day is the 25th of March in the Russian calendar and one of the greatest holidays of the year. It is also a great feast day with the Imperial Horse Guards and the Cavalier Guards, which it is customary for the Czar and Czarina, their respective chiefs, to review in the riding-school opposite the palace of the Grand Duke Nicholas. Except the members of the Imperial family no one is admitted to this review without a special invitation issued personally and by name by an aide-de-camp of either regiment. The number is limited to people known to the aides-de-camp or the officers of the regiment. All the military appear in gala uniform and civilians in evening dress.

"There are two small stands erected on either side of the portal through which the Czar and Czarina enter. They are occupied by the guests in the order of their arrival. Those who stand at the end near the door are in very close proximity to His Majesty as he walks into the riding school, and he approaches this entrance twice during the review.

"At 10.30 o'clock this morning a man of middle height and sallow complexion, of Southern type, presented a ticket and took a seat at the extreme end, where the distance between the Czar and himself would not be more than five paces.

"The fact that this man was the first to arrive, that he took this particular stand and did not divest himself of his greatcoat, aroused suspicion. His card of invitation was examined, and doubts arose as to whether a ticket had been issued to any person of his name.

"He was then requested to remove his greatcoat. At first he begged to be excused on the ground that there were very strong draughts in the riding-school, which was true, but immediately afterwards he consented and retired to an ante-room for the purpose of taking it off.

"Here he was arrested by a detective police officer in plain clothes and conducted quietly to prison, where a Smith & Wesson revolver was found in his pocket, together with a globule containing what was supposed to be some powerful poison which the prisoner, whose name, real or assumed, is Skeameikin, declared to be merely a well-known medicine.

"About three-quarters of an hour after the arrest of Skeameikin the Czar made his appearance walking slowly up the passage between the stands where, had not the would-be assassin been removed in time, His Majesty must surely have been killed."

The correspondent goes on to say: "I have just heard, but do not know whether the statement is worthy of credence or not, that the police expected the arrival of Skeameikin, although his whereabouts was unknown. He is said to have come from some provincial city for the special purpose of attempting the life of the Czar, and the plot is believed to be a continuation of the conspiracy founded by Sophia Gunsberg."

In the foregoing instance history has been almost on the point of repeating itself as to time and place in a Czar's assassination, for it was on March 1 (13), 1881, that the Czar Alexander II., the father of the present Czar of All the Russias, was assassinated near the Manege or riding school. A bomb was thrown, which exploded in the rear of the carriage, injuring several soldiers. The Czar alighted, when a second bomb was thrown, which inflicted frightful and fatal wounds, he living only about two hours after his removal to the palace. One of the assassins was arrested and he and several accomplices were hanged, and the second, who threw the last bomb, was himself wounded by its explosion and died in the hospital without declaring his name.

Sophia Gunsberg, who is credited with being the originator of recent attempts on the present Czar's life, was tried in November, 1889, together with several others, she being charged with being the chief actor in a plot to murder the Czar. She was sentenced to be hanged, but the sentence was not carried out. She is now said to be lingering in a cell in St. Petersburg. It has also been stated that she has died in prison, but of course nothing definite can be known on this head by the outside world.

CAYUGA, April 8.—Joseph Locia, an Italian, will be placed on trial at the assizes here to-morrow under circumstances without a parallel in the annals of crime. Three years ago Locia was in the employ of a farmer near this town, and during the absence of the farmer his house was set on fire and the farmer's wife and two children were burned to death. Locia was arrested, but went violently insane and made several attempts to beat his brains out on the cell walls. Finally he was sent to Hamilton assizes. Under the treatment he has received Locia has improved, until a few weeks ago he was pronounced by the resident surgeon as completely cured. He was brought here today heavily handcuffed, and will be placed on trial to-morrow. The trial of Locia will be an interesting one, because it is seldom that a prisoner who commits a crime and is sent to the asylum because of insanity recovers and is put on trial. Locia does not realize that he is to be tried for a terrible crime. He is about 35 years old, swarthy like all Italians. There are three charges of arson and one of murder against Locia.

HARRISON OPPOSED TO IT.

The Reason Why the Reciprocity Negotiations Were Postponed.

NEW YORK, April 8.—A Washington despatch to The Herald says: There will be no reciprocity with Canada under this administration. That much is certain, and the certainty of it is just as well appreciated by one side as the other. Last Thursday Mr. Blaine told Sir Charles Tupper that he would be ready yesterday to open an informal discussion of the matter with Sir Charles and his colleagues. The three gentlemen promptly appeared at the appointed time, only to hear that the President had laid an interdiction to any present consideration of the subject, either formal or informal. The Canadians thereupon left town as promptly as they came, and in high dudgeon. Their return is neither expected nor desired by the President. The action of the President was based upon the consideration that, as there was not the remotest chance of an agreement, nothing was to be gained by the administration of the country by carrying on the semblance of negotiations. Apart from his own reasons for not letting down the McKinley barrier against the introduction here of Canadian live stock and farm and dairy produce, the President had excellent grounds for believing that the Senate would not ratify any reciprocity treaty made with Canada. As soon, therefore, as he learned that Mr. Blaine had agreed to enter upon the discussion of the basis of a treaty he put a veto on the whole business and left Mr. Blaine to invent whatever explanation he deemed necessary.

BRIDGEWATER.

Damage by Ice—Mining Operations—Public Health.

BRIDGEWATER, April 7.

Spring has opened upon us, and with it the river is gradually clearing of ice, which has been of unprecedented thickness. During the freshet the water did not rise as high as in some former years; but with the aid of the heavy ice did considerable damage to the dams at both mills here. The water has now fallen and no further damage is anticipated this season.

It is expected some mining operations and prospecting will be done this season hereabouts, by some English capitalists and others, who have stated such to be their intention.

In happy contrast to some of our neighboring villages, this place can still lay claim to its former comparative freedom from epidemics, the health of the village being exceedingly good.

A Dainty Red Hussar

Miss Marie Tempest, England's lyric queen, to be honored by the patronage of Col. S. S. Lazier and the officers of the 15th battalion, A.L.I. The play-going public is usually as deeply interested in a successful artist as in a successful piece. It likes to make much of an individual who appeals to its peculiar fancy. Miss Marie Tempest, who comes to the Opera House Wednesday evening as the star of Mr. Duff's opera company, presenting "The Red Hussar," is one of those fortunate persons who creep into the public's soft heart and snuggle down in its warmest corner. The opera is a substantial success. It ran over three hundred nights in London and 125 nights in New York. It is presented by a fine company of singers and comedians, with a chorus of 60 and an orchestra of 30.

Belleville Natural Gas and Oil Company (Limited.)

Mr. C. S. Gayton, of Pennsylvania—six feet three in his stockings—is a fine example of a New Brunswick Boy. He was born and bred a Canadian, and is much interested in the new strides which the infant industry of Natural Gas is taking in Canada. This morning Mr. Henry Corby, President, Mr. Pope, Secretary, Mr. Hunter and Mr. Ritchie, Directors, and Mr. Ponton, Solicitor of the Company, examined different locations and tested the geographical strata both on this and on the Prince Edward Shore, and determined upon the location for the first test well. Leases of lands in Belleville and in the vicinity will now be asked for, and tenders will be invited for sinking a well of at least 1000 feet. Mr. Gayton has given references to several reliable firms of experienced contractors. Mr. Corby has written to Ottawa to ascertain if the machinery necessary will be admitted free, and as soon as preliminaries are settled operations will be at once begun. The notice for incorporation will appear in this week's Ontario Gazette, and all prospects are favorable. No more stock can be subscribed after operations once begin, so those desiring to be represented on the stock list should take at least one share now.

Aunt Jack.

This refined farcical comedy, which was the success of the Madison Square Theatre, New York, last season, comes to the Opera House on Tuesday evening, April 14th, for one night only, under the auspices of Messrs. A.M. Palmer and H. S. Taylor. The company is peculiarly adapted to the interpretation of this class of comedy, and has won golden opinions from all sorts of people. It is headed by Miss Ffolliott Paget, and includes such well known names as Charles Bowser, Charles W. Butler, E. A. Eberle, Geo. Backus, W. B. Murray, Misses Bertha Creighton and Alice Butler. It is seldom that our theatre patrons have an opportunity of seeing such an amusing comedy presented by such an excellent cast. The sale of seats is now open, and there will no doubt be a crowded house to welcome Aunt Jack.

$1,000

Is not a very large sum, but it is what is required to relieve suffering humanity, by affording necessary accommodation for the sick and afflicted at the Hospital. Remember that it is not extravagance, but the increase in suffering that makes the demand. Cannot you afford to contribute at least something for such a worthy cause? The fund is increasing. Let every one feel that it is his or her duty to see that the required funds are forthcoming, and the amount will be soon raised. Subscribed to date:

ONTARIO LEGISLATURE.

DISCUSSION IN THE HOUSE ON MINING REGULATIONS.

An Act Which Provides for the Establishment of a Department of Mines—The Scheme Which It is Proposed to Adopt—The License Question.

TORONTO, April 9.—Mr. Hardy introduced to the Assembly yesterday the amendments to the acts concerning the mining lands. In doing so, he said, he would not go into particulars of the bills but would indicate the general direction of the Government policy. Their principles were:

1. That the Government shall not readily part with the ownership of their public lands without receiving some adequate consideration for the general uses of the Province, and that when sold it shall be for the bona fide purpose of mining rather than for speculative purposes.

2. To secure as early and rapid a development of the lands as may be possible.

3. To secure a revenue to the province, 1st, by the sale or rental of the lands; 2nd, from the actual workings of the mines by way of royalty. It is sought to secure these ends: (a) by fixing a higher price for the land when sold, and (b) by requiring development within a limited time.

4. To introduce the option of leasehold at an annual rent instead of a grant in fee simple, thus retaining the fee in the crown.

5. In making grants of lands for agricultural purposes to retain the ownership of the minerals in the Crown.

6. The establishment of a bureau of mines and the appointment of a director of mines.

With regard to the last point the Government had considered carefully the representations of the mining convention. It was not probable that the Government would at present be increased by an additional member. There might be arguments in favor of it, but the convention had considered less the general question than the single one of developing the mining interests. The question was too serious a one to rush into. But if the bureau is established the officer in charge would have a position similar to that of Mr. Blue of the Bureau of Statistics. There would also be a mining inspector thoroughly conversant with mining matters and who would eventually become a permanent officer. The director and inspector would have salaries equal to that of a deputy head.

The administration of the license laws was thoroughly ventilated upon the motion of Mr. Willoughby for a return giving minute details by license districts of the amounts collected and expended and the proportion of the license fund to which the municipalities were entitled and the amounts which were actually paid them, all for each year from 1876 to 1890.

Mr. Awrey's bill to amend the Municipal Act by allowing cities, towns or villages to place lands actually used for farm purposes, outside of the limits of such municipalities, met with cruel treatment in spite of his three speeches in its favor. First Mr. Meredith opposed it. Then Mr. Fraser said, in his chilling tones, that Mr. Awrey did not know how far-reaching his bill was. Mr. Awrey said he did. Mr. Fraser replied, still more coldly, that Mr. Awrey in that case concealed the importance of the bill from the House. Next Mr. Hardy remarked that the bill required a thorough overhauling. The motion for a second reading was greeted with shouts of "lost," but was declared carried on division.

The Speaker entertained at dinner last night these M.P.P.'s: Hon. C. F. Fraser, Mr. McCleary, Mr. Dack, Mr. Conmee, Dr. McKay, Mr. Glendining, Mr. Kerns, Mr. Carpenter, Mr. Hudson, Mr. Guthrie, Mr. Hammell, Mr. H. Mackenzie, Mr. Tooley, Mr. Blezard, Mr. Mack, Dr. Barr, Mr. O'Connor, and also Mr. Tully, Mr. Cameron, Mr. Christie, Mr. W. F. Maclean and Dr. Chamberlain.

RACING IN CALIFORNIA.

What a Well-Known Authority Has to Say on the Subject.

CHICAGO, April 8.—David Tenny Pulsifer is in the city. He has been putting in about a month in California.

"What about the California horses?"

"Of course I saw a great many. Racine is now a very grand young horse and has grown and improved. If appearances go for anything he will add to his reputation this year. I looked over Baldwin's horses at Santa Anita. He has a very superior lot of 2-year-olds about ready for shipment east, the best probably that he has had for several seasons past.

"I have never seen anything to equal Haggin's Rancho del Paso breeding establishment. He has two, and this one is an estate of something like 47,000 acres. The other is a modest farm of a trifle over 600,000 acres. At Rancho del Paso I saw over 100 thoroughbred yearlings that are to be sold in New York next June, and a better-looking lot were never inspected. It is no use to enter into particulars, for the stallions and brood mares at this place have often been described. I paid a visit to my old friend Salvator. He has put on flesh since retirement from the turf and is now one of the most magnificent looking horses imaginable."

Asked about Tenny, Mr. Pulsifer said that he had received a letter from his trainer within a few days saying that the horse was in good health, but beyond that nothing much could be said. "At Morris Park the track had been unfit for strong work as yet and Tenny has had none. Reports about fast galloping there are all nonsense. Tenny and my other horses have had plenty of shed and walking exercise and will be ready for the races in due time. That is all I can say for them now."

Another Victory for Col. North.

LONDON, April 8.—The great event at the Epsom spring meeting to-day was the City and Suburban Handicap of 20 sovereigns each with £100 added, 1¼ miles. It was won by Col. North's Nunthorpe, Hoare-Smith's Bullion 2nd and Dowther's Workington 3rd. There were 15 starters.

Yesterday was the first day of the Epsom spring meeting. The principal event was the great Metropolitan Stakes (handicap) of 15 sovereigns each with 500 added, 2¼ miles. It was won by Duke of Beaufort's Ragimunde, Lea's Royal Gem 2nd and Deacon's Maypole third.

Death of the Famous Isonomy

LONDON, April 8.—Turfmen all the world over will hear with regret the news of the death of the famous stallion Isonomy. He was bought in 1876 for the small sum of 360 guineas and turned out to be one of the greatest horses of his day. It was in the years 1878 and 1879 that his greatest records were won. In the former year as a 3-year-old, he won the Cambridgeshire, and in the latter he won practically all the great cup races, among them the Ascot cup, the Goodwood cup, the Doncaster cup and the Queen's vase; while in 1880 he was again victorious in the Ascot cup. His performances so increased his value that when he was sold for stud purposes in 1883 he fetched the sum of 9000 guineas.

The International Is Now the Eastern.

ALBANY, April 8.—The International League meeting adjourned at 2 a.m. yesterday to meet at the Kenmore Hotel in this city on Saturday evening. The Schedule Committee remains in session and will report on Saturday. The name of the league was changed to that of Eastern Association. The matter of an eighth club was referred to a special committee.

Board of Trade.

Annual Meeting—Election of Officers—Important Business.

A regular quarterly meeting of the Board of Trade was held in the city hall, Council Chamber, Wednesday evening, 8th April, 1891, the President, L. W. Yeomans, Esq., in the chair. Among the members present were Messrs. T. Ritchie, W. N. Ponton, M.A., C. F. Smith, A. N. Reid, J. P. Thompson, R. E. Lazier, Thos. Wills, Walter Alford, Arthur McGinnis, J. G. Frost, W. W. Lee, A. S. Robertson, T. C. Lazier and J. Parker Thomas.

Minutes of former meeting of the Council and Board were read and approved.

Messrs. D. M. Waters and Allan McFee were proposed for membership.

The next order of business was balloting for new members, when the following were duly elected: Messrs. E. Guss Porter (Mayor) E. L. Palen, D. M. Waters and Allan McFee.

The election of officers for the ensuing year was then proceeded with and resulted as follows: L. W. Yeomans, President, re-elected; W. W. Lee, Vice President; J. Parker Thomas, Secretary, re-elected; J. P. Thompson, Treasurer, re-elected. Councillors—Thomas Ritchie and E. Guss Porter (Mayor) ex-officio, re-elected on ballot, H. Corby, M.P., A. N. Reid, Thos. Wills, Arthur McGinnis, G. H. Pope, Col. S. S. Lazier, Walter Alford, C. F. Smith, W. N. Ponton, M.A., H. Pringle, J. G. Frost.

A discussion on the proposed formal public opening of the Bay of Quinte Bridge to take place some time in the month of June or July, was taken part in by Messrs. Ritchie, Reid, McGinnis, Wills, Lee, Thompson and others, it being proposed to co-operate with committees from the City Council and Bridge Company to get up a public demonstration on the occasion, when it was Moved by J. Parker Thomas, seconded by C. F. Smith, That the Board of Trade of the city of Belleville desire to place on record their appreciation of the public spirited services of those who have so successfully carried to completion the building of the Bay of Quinte bridge, and the Board desire to commend to the citizens of Belleville the importance of and the many advantages which will accrue from the public and formal opening of the bridge proposed to be held during the month of June, and they bespeak the co-operation of the community in making the event pass off with success, and impressing the many distinguished visitors expected with the attractions of the city of Belleville and vicinity. And that a committee consisting of the President, Messrs. W. N. Ponton, J. P. Thompson and Col. S. S. Lazier, with power to add to their numbers, be appointed with power to act and to aid in every way in the proposed celebration as representing this Board of Trade.—Carried.

Some matters relating to the Industrial Committee were then discussed, as well as matters relating to the Harbor, River, and Market.

Moved by T. Wills, seconded by A. N. Reid, that Messrs. W. N. Ponton, W. W. Lee, and the mover, be a committee to work up a scheme for getting control of the flow of waters of rivers, so as to minimise the chances of floods; and to report same to the Council of this Board.—Carried.

Some matters of a financial nature were then gone into, including the payment by members of their annual subscriptions—which the Treasurer, Mr. J. P. Thompson, will be glad to receive as early as possible.

The Board then adjourned.

Closes April 15th.

The 1, 2, 3, 4, 5. The grand prize competition of the Canadian Fireside Weekly, in which 300 valuable prizes are offered, will close on April 15th. In addition, from now until that date a Special Daily prize will be given for the first correct list received each day. The competition is simply a combination of numbers, and requires no searching in dictionaries or books of any kind. Among the prizes are Bicycles, Tricycles, Watches, $100 cash, Furniture, Silverware, Jewelry, Summer tours—prizes for men, women, boys and girls, 300 in all. Send at once 5 cents for sample copy with full particulars, to 9 Adelaide St. West, Toronto, Ont. Mention this paper.

Used in the Hospital,

And endorsed by the medical faculty throughout the states, Clark's Catarrh Cure has come to be regarded as the only real specific for that disease. In every case it works a certain, safe, and speedy cure. Pleasant to taste and smell, it is yet powerful in healing and restoring the natural functions. No other remedy gives such satisfaction, because the results from use are not the same. Sold by all druggists, or sent to any address on receipt of 50 cents by Clark Chemical Co., Toronto New York.

Piles! Piles!! Itching Piles.

SYMPTOMS—Moisture; intense itching and stinging; most at night; worse by scratching if allowed to continue tumors form, which often bleed and ulcerate, becoming very sore. SWAYNE'S OINTMENT stops the itching and bleeding, heals ulceration, and in most cases removes the tumors. At druggists, or by mail, for 50 cents. Dr. Swayne & Son, Philadelphia.

HORROR AT PETROLEA.

A NITRO-GLYCERINE FACTORY BLOWN UP.

All the Workmen Killed and Their Remains Scattered Over a Five-Acre Field—A Hole in the Ground Marks the Site of the Factory.

PETROLIA, April 8.—About 6.15 this evening an explosion occurred in Bradley's glycerine works, which are situated about half a mile from town towards Marthaville. How the explosion occurred will never be known, as the three workmen, named Albert Bradley, James Chambers and D. McDermand, were instantly killed. Sufficient of their remains have been found to positively identify them. The side of the head and part of the legs of one of them were found about 500 yards from the scene of the accident. How many more were in the building at the time is at present unknown. The five acres on which the building is situated is literally covered with small pieces of bones and flesh and the remains of the three killed, already identified, could be put in a bushel basket. Such an accident has never occurred in Petrolia before, and the scene of the accident is covered with people rendering all assistance possible. Where the building stood is marked by a hole about 15 feet deep and 30 feet across, caused by the force of the explosion of 30 quarts of glycerine. Dr. Lougheed, the coroner, was summoned and will hold an inquest on the remains to-morrow morning.

EMBEZZLED I.O.O.F. FUNDS.

G. W. Porter Deserts His Wife, Elopes With a Belle and Makes Oronhyatekha Mourn.

TORONTO, April 9.—The members of the Independent Order of Foresters were pretty well excited yesterday, and all on account of the manœuvres of a gay young man in Kansas City, G. W. Porter by name, who has been a moving spirit in the organization of courts in the Western States. The chief strength of the order is in Canada, the headquarters being in this city, but it has been gradually spreading westward owing greatly to Porter's zeal. He induced a large number of young men to join and was always on the lookout for proselytes. His labors were rewarded by his being elected High Chief Ranger of the court in Missouri, but the tempter came in the person of Pearl Johnson, a veritable belle, who, a few days ago, induced Porter to leave his home and his wife and to follow her to the east. He appropriated considerable of the court's funds, and the pair have not since been heard from. The matter was reported to Dr. Oronhyatekha, supreme chief ranger of the order, whose offices are in the Dominion Bank chambers. A telegram was sent ordering Porter's arrest for embezzlement, and every effort is being made to capture him. Dr. Oronhyatekha was seen yesterday in connection with the affair. He seemed very troubled over the downfall of such a high officer in the order. "You see," said the Doctor, "Porter has been marrying on the European plan, and this is not allowed by the laws of the land, much less by the rules of our order. His defalcations can't amount to very much, for the financial department of the whole order is managed here in my office. We, of course, feel keenly the stigma which results from his action. There is no question about his immorality, and he will be expelled from the order at the first meeting of the executive.'

Mrs. Porter is now seeking to find whether her husband has applied for a divorce from her.

ELECTION OF BENCHERS.

It Was a Strong Fight, and the Result Contains Certain Surprises—Some "Eminents" Shelved.

TORONTO, April 9.—The lawyers' war between Insiders and Outsiders in the Benchers' election is over and the verdict favors the latter. Seventeen outsiders are elected out of thirty. Mr. Charles Moss, Q.C., who holds second place, is the only Toronto man in the first six. In 1886 the Outsiders numbered 12. 1000 barristers throughout the province, of a possible 1260, voted, and with 30 votes per ballot the total was about 30,000. Balloting lasted two weeks and counting six days:

These are the successful candidates:

1. W. R. Meredith, Q.C., London	939
2. C. Moss, Q.C., Toronto	806
3. A. J. Christie, Q.C., Ottawa	778

27. C. H. Ritchie, Q.C., Toronto	422
28. William Douglas, Q.C., Chatham	420
29. W. R. Riddle, Q.C., Cobourg	397
30. J. Idington, Q.C., Stratford	381

All the old board of 30 were candidates at this election and the defeated old members are: James Beaty, Q.C., Toronto; Hector Cameron, Q.C., Toronto; Dr. McMichael, Q.C., Toronto; J. J. Foy, Q.C., Toronto; J. H. Ferguson, Q.C., Toronto; Huson W. M. Murray, Q.C., Toronto; T. H. Purdom, London; Dr. Larratt Smith, Q.C., Toronto; Nicol Kingsmill, Q.C., Toronto.

The new men who take the places of the defeated old members are: James Magee, London; H. H. Strathy, Barrie; J. V. Teetzel, Hamilton; A. B. Aylesworth, G. H. Watson, Walter Barwick, Toronto; William Douglas, Chatham; W. R. Riddle, Cobourg; John Idington, Stratford.

Doctors to Have the Right of Way.

BERLIN, April 8.—The city will soon witness the universal adoption of a white hat for the coachmen who drive the carriages of doctors. This fashion has been adopted in order to prevent the delay of the occupant while going through crowded streets, as the new headgear will be a signal which will demand and obtain the right of way at all times.

The Federal Parliament to Fix and Control the Customs.

SYDNEY, N.S.W., April 8.—The Federation Convention have adopted resolutions that the Federal Parliament shall fix and control the customs and that the present tariffs shall remain unchanged pending adoption of a uniform tariff with free trade throughout the federation. A proposal to define the consolidation of the public debt on the basis of £40 per head of the population was rejected, and it was decided to leave that matter to be dealt with by Parliament. The local powers of the Colonial Parliaments have not been touched, but there is a proviso that in the event of laws clashing the Federal Parliament shall prevail.

The Sayward Case Postponed.

WASHINGTON, April 8.—The argument before the United States Supreme Court in the case of the schooner Sayward, involving the jurisdiction of the United States over Behring Sea, will be postponed until April 25 as the Government will not have its case ready by next Monday.

TORONTO TRUTH'S
New Spring Bible Competition
NO. 22.

In these latter days there have arisen many false schemes and many scores of imitations of TRUTH'S Competitions, but one after another have failed and utterly perished, yet TRUTH remains, and makes good all its promises. Its reputation is now too well established to risk damaging it, and as it has cost a very large amount of money and many years of care and labor to build up, the publisher could not afford to fail in carrying out all his agreements to the letter. There are twenty-one divisions of the largest list of bona fide prizes ever offered and ever actually given away by any publisher in the world. The total value of prizes in this Spring list is about $10,000.00. The lists are so large it would cost altogether too much to give them in detail here. There are pianos, gold and silver watches, china tea and dinner sets, ladies' and gentlemen's bicycles, silver tea-sets, silk dresses, books, money, and hundreds of other valuable rewards. You pay nothing for these prizes, as everyone concedes that full value is received for the dollar in securing TRUTH every week for three months. Send one dollar and answers to the five following questions: Where in the Bible are these words found? 1, GRAIN; 2, CORN; 3, WHEAT; 4, BARLEY; 5, RYE. If your answers are correct and your letters arrive in time you are almost sure to get a reward, as there are so many and every one cannot always find correct answers to all these questions. All the five answers must be correct to get any prize, but you will get full value for the dollar in TRUTH if you don't get anything else. If you want to see the list of rewards before sending in your dollar, mail TRUTH ten cents and a copy will be sent you containing the list of prizes. But there have been very few dissatisfied prize-winners in previous competitions, considering that he has given away during the past eight years scores of thousands of prizes. Some people expect a piano for every dollar sent, and are mad if they don't get it. He wishes it were possible to give every subscriber a gold watch or a piano or both, but says it can't be done. Some publishers intimate they will, but nobody can do it for any length of time. Send one dollar and correct answers and you won't repent it; and bear in mind that it is not guaranteed that every body whose answers are correct will get a prize, but that all the prizes in the twenty-one different lists will be given away. The competition remains open only till the last day of June next, inclusive, after which the prizes will be immediately distributed to the successful ones. Ten days will be allowed for letters to reach TRUTH from distant points after the 30th of June. All, however, must be postmarked where mailed not later than the 30th June, or any time between now and that date. Address S. Frank Wilson, "Truth" Office, Toronto, Ont., Canada.

BEATRIX RANDOLPH

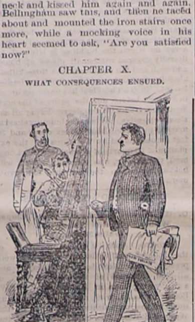
BY JULIAN HAWTHORNE.

COPYRIGHT BY AMERICAN PRESS ASSOCIATION.

But, as if swayed by a sudden and incontrollable impulse, she turned again and threw her arms about Randolph's neck and kissed him again and again. Bellingham saw this, and then he faced about and mounted the iron stairs once more, while a mocking voice in his heart seemed to ask, "Are you satisfied now?"

CHAPTER X.

WHAT CONSEQUENCES ENSUED.



The door was suddenly opened and in came young Mr. Edwardes.

A day or two afterward the architect of the new opera house, discovering that nothing in the way of business required his immediate attention in New York, came to the conclusion that he would do well to go away from it for a while. Since he began to practice his profession he had never had a deliberate vacation. But a man who had just designed and built a new opera house—the best in the world—could afford to take a rest, even were there no other ground for doing so. Bellingham, at all events, packed his trunk and took passage on the Arizona bound for the Old World, and betook himself to an ancient, abandoned, lovely little town on the southern coast of Ireland.

It was one of the loveliest, least known and most secluded retreats in Europe. The gray and ruinous houses were overgrown with soft green moss, the steep and narrow streets were made beautiful with tender rims of grass. The warm breezes brought thither by the Gulf stream gave to December and January the gentle geniality of an English spring. The sparse inhabitants were a far descended race of fishermen, still bearing in their dark complexions and vigorous forms the traces of their handsome Spanish ancestry.

At the inn, in addition to a most engaging landlady and a couple of extremely pretty daughters, Bellingham encountered to his agreeable surprise an American artist, Helwise by name, whom he had known years ago in New York. This lonely man of genius was, it appeared, in the habit of spending the winter months here, transferring to canvas the matchless wealth of color and character which met him at every turn. He was of a grave, kindly, meditative nature, but brimming over in certain moods with wit and philosophy and the fruits of years of penetrating and amused observation of human character and life. Bellingham and he suited each other well and were soon conversing with the frankness and cordiality of a friendship long in abeyance but never forgotten. Bellingham inquired whether there were any other countrymen of theirs in the town.

"It is like the region Irving tells of in 'The Adalantado of the Seven Cities,'" Helwise replied; "it has been lost for ages, and nobody knows were it is except myself. That is, such was the case until about three weeks ago. But last month two mysterious strangers made their appearance, and have betrayed some symptoms of intending to stay. I should have had them expelled, for I consider this place to be my peculiar and inalienable property, had I not found them entertaining as a study, and admirably disposed to keep themselves to themselves. I have never spoken to the lady at all."

"Oh! Husband and wife, are they?"

"Apparently that is just what they are not. No, I don't mean to insinuate—and I don't believe—that they ought to be. I should suppose they might be brother and sister, only they are of different nationalities. The man is evidently an American, and the lady, though she speaks English perfectly well, evidently is not. She is probably four or five years older than he, and has a certain air of experience. She is decidedly handsome, and has what they call distinguished manners; that is, she makes you perceive that they are manners, though very good ones. She has rented that large house on the top of the hill."

"She or they?"

"She. He has his room here, and turns up every night at 10 o'clock. They spend the day together; he is undoubtedly in love with her, and she seems to be anything but indifferent to him. You see it isn't an ordinary affair. Here they are, buried from the world beyond discovery, and they might live as they liked; and yet they—or she at any rate—prefer to conduct themselves in this anomalous fashion. There is some mystery in it, my dear Geoffrey—some deep, dark, inscrutable mystery! They are known respectively as Mr. Edwardes and Mrs. Peters, but I have an idea they call each other something else. One theory of mine about them was that she was a younger sister of his mother; his father, you know, might have married a foreign woman. In that case she would be his aunt and the mystery would be solved; but, as I said before, they are plainly in love, and nephews and aunts neither fall in love nor marry, so far as my experience goes. Come, you are fresh from the States; can you guess?"

"I guess not," said Bellingham; and the conversation took another turn.

Suddenly Helwise, who had been looking toward the southern approach to the terrace on which they were standing, said in a low voice: "There come the mysteries. Now you can judge for yourself."

Bellingham turned [illegible] eyes in the direction indicated and saw a man and woman approaching slowly, side by side. They seemed to be conversing intermittently, and as they walked her shoulder occasionally brushed his arm and their glances constantly met. The man seemed to be under 25 years of age; he was tall and active and of rather slender build, and as he approached Bellingham noticed that his features were of a bold and striking cast, with bright and somewhat intolerant eyes. His expression at the present moment was troubled and gloomy. He frequently looked on the ground and struck the pebbles from his path with a stick. He would speak a few sentences at a time, energetically and rapidly; then relapse into a moody silence, responding by a shake of the head or other brief gesture to the discourse of his companion.

The latter was a woman whose aspect (if the distinction be permissible) was younger than her looks. Her face and figure were youthful, but her bearing and gestures were mature. Her features were of a clear paleness, regular in outline and of remarkable beauty. Something in her aspect enchained Bellingham's regard; she did not resemble any woman he had seen, and yet she reminded him in some intangible, elusive way of a woman whom he wished to forget. She was different—different at every point; and yet if he turned away and glanced at her from the corner of his eye there was an indescribable likeness. Was it the way she had of slowly lifting her chin? Was it the slope of her shoulders? Was it in the way the soft hair grew on the nape of her white neck? Was it in the smile that lighted her eyes before it touched her lips? It was all of these things—it was none of them! After a minute Bellingham forcibly dismissed the question from his mind. Of what earthly consequence was it?

Speaking of Tips.

A TIP is a piece of special or valuable information such as this, that Hagyard's Yellow Oil is a prompt and effectual cure for croup, colds, hoarseness, sore throat, rheumatism, neuralgia, sprains or soreness of any kind. Known as reliable over 30 years.

Important and True.

No better evidence of the fact that Burdock Blood Bitters is a certain remedy for all blood diseases can be asked than that of Mr. Geo. V. Thomas, druggist, of Hull, P. Q., whose wife was cured of cancer by B. B. B. The family doctor is certain that the disease was cancer and that it is now cured.

Silver, blue and leather color are combined in visiting dresses of bengaline and camel's hair.

That latent force of fluid, which permeates all matter, and which bears the conventional name of Electricity, is widely appreciated and recognized as a means of cure in various diseases. Its effects in the form of Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil are shown by the relief of pain, both Neuralgic and Rheumatic, as well as the throat and lungs, and in various other healing ways.

The Lungs, Liver, Kidneys, Bowels, &c., act as so many waste gates for the escape of effete matter and gases from the body. The use of Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery helps them to discharge their duty. Mr. W. H. Lester, H. M. Customs, Toronto, writes: "I have personally tested the health-giving properties of Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery, and can testify as to its great value.

CHICAGO, Feb. 13th, 1891.

G. A. Swayze, Esq., Principal Belleville Business College, Belleville, Ont.:

MY DEAR SIR.—Yours of the 10th inst. received. I am pleased to state that the young ladies who received their tuition in the above-named college, and who are now in my employ, have more than filled their positions and the duties expected of them.

While Miss Francis has not had the opportunity yet of fully demonstrating her capabilities, Miss Moorman has not only done her work to the full satisfaction of the managers, but has surprised those in the office by the manner in which she has taken up a difficult line of business and carefully and correctly performed the same, and to say that I am proud of the institution from which she came is expressing it mildly, although I have always believed that thoroughness was its fundamental principle.

You may rest assured that should I hear or know of any position open I will remember the Belleville Business College

Seven years ago my cashier came to this office and received $5 a week; to-day she is receiving $125 a month. One of my three stenographers, who came here three years ago, started at $6 a week and is now receiving $15 a week, and this is the smallest wages paid to any female in the office (where there are eight) who have been in the office for over one year.

Yours very truly,
T. S. QUINCEY.

The latest, greatest and most important invention of the century,

HERENDEEN'S ORIENTAL FLOUR!

This flour is prepared from the best Pure White Corn by a process patented February 7th 1880, and is beyond a doubt healthier than wheat or any other flour. We aim to feed the masses, not the classes, consequently instead of putting it up in 2 or 3 lb. packages and charging 15 or 20 cents for them and spending the big profit in advertising, we are selling it at about the price of ordinary flour. It can be used to great advantage in bread, pastry, etc., and is unsurpassed for pancakes or Johnny cake. Instructions and recipes in each package. This is also pre-eminently the food for anyone troubled with Dyspepsia or Indigestion. Your grocer has it now. Ask for it. Try it.

IMPERIAL PARLIAMENT.

THE IRISH LAND BILL CALLS FORTH WARM DISCUSSION.

Another Rising at Oporto—Military Called Out to Quell the Outbreak—They Charge the Mob, Injuring Many.

OPORTO, April 9.—This city, recently the scene of a violent Republican outbreak, was to-day disturbed by Republican rioters. The trouble arose from the arrest during a fair of several thieves who were mistaken by the crowd for Republican agitators. A riot followed, which the military were summoned to quell. The soldiers were stoned by the rioters and were forced to charge upon the mob, injuring many. They finally quelled the disturbance, but extra precautions against future disorder are being taken by the authorities, who are cognizant of latent agitation.

Revolutionists Indicted for Murder.

BERNE, April 9.—The Court of Indictment has decided to try Castroni on the charge of murdering Councillor Rossi in the revolution in the canton of Ticino in September last and 21 other Ticinese who took part in the insurrection.

IMPERIAL PARLIAMENT.

The Land Bill up for Discussion—A Lively Debate.

LONDON, April 9.—In the House of Commons this evening in committee on the Irish land bill Henry Fowler (Lib.) moved that the salaries of land commissioners be placed in the estimates and thereby be controlled by Parliament. Mr. Balfour, Chief Secretary for Ireland, contended that the land commission ought, like the judges, to be paid out of the consolidated fund and not be subject to the control of majorities swayed by party influences. If the commission, he said, became the slaves of Government it would be impossible to command the respect of all classes in Ireland.

Mr. Healy held that the proposal was a vital one. The Government had rigged up a commission out of Tory nominees and attaches of the House of Lords, the permanent landlords' barracks. The only chance the tenants had rested in the control of the commission by Parliament.

T. W. Russell (Unionist) declared the Government's attitude would be resented in Ulster.

Mr. Morley said the proposal of the Government was a mischievous blow at the soundest principle of the Constitution and Parliament.

Fowler's motion was rejected, 183 to 142.

The House presented an air of liveliness this evening. There was a goodly muster of members and the galleries were well filled. All the Irish leaders except Parnell were in their places when the House was called to order, an unusual scene lately on Irish benches. Mr. Gladstone occupied his accustomed seat. Mr. Balfour was apparently happy in the thought of the House having at last reached the Irish land bill. The Irish members looked rather solemn, being affected by their knowledge of the difference of opinion existing in their ranks regarding the measure, Parnell and his followers favoring the rapid passage of the bill.

During the proceedings Tim Healy assailed Messrs. Nolan and Thomas W. Russell for supporting the Government against a quibbling amendment offered by Healy. The Speaker finally ended the matter by calling Healy to order for prolixity and Nolan for using unparliamentary language.

Parnell arrived at a late hour. He met Maurice Healy on entering the House, but did not speak to him.

NAMING THE MAN.

When He Stated Gladstone Had Granted Audience to American Dynamiters.

LONDON, April 9.—In connection with the charge made by Mr. Parnell at the meeting in Phœnix Park, Dublin, recently that Mr. Gladstone had received American dynamiters at his residence at Hawarden, The St. James Gazette publishes a story to the effect that Mr. Atkinson of Detroit, Mich., and Dr. O'Reilly visited England in 1889 as emissaries of Alexander Sullivan and as representatives of the Irish-American extremist party, and that while in England upon the occasion the two gentlemen named visited Mr. Gladstone. The St. James Gazette adds that, as Dr. O'Reilly's name was one of the most notorious names in connection with dynamiters, Mr. Gladstone could not have received him or Mr. Atkinson without knowing their true character.

Deplorable Prospects for McCarthyites

DUBLIN, April 9.—Yesterday at the first public meeting of the National Federation, which was presided over by Thomas Sexton, the announcement was made that the account standing in the name of John Dillon had been overdrawn to the amount of $15,000. Other urgent liabilities, amounting to $40,000, were also reported. A resolution was adopted to call upon Parnell and McCarthy to at once release from the fund a sum sufficient to meet present and future liabilities.

PETROLEA EXPLOSION.

An Open Verdict Returned—Burial of the Three Victims.

PETROLIA, April 9.—The terrible explosion which occurred here yesterday has cast a gloom over the town, and all day thousands of people have visited the fatal spot and willing hands have collected all over the field pieces of the remains of the victims Bradley, Chambers and McDermid. In one case the heart of one of the men was found by itself and another party found the eyes of one, also one hand. The remains of the unfortunate fellows have been gathered together, and such pieces as can be identified will be separated and each buried by himself. The funeral of the three men will take place here to-morrow afternoon. Coroner Loughead held an inquest this afternoon in Victoria Hall and the jury returned an open verdict, recommending that none but experienced men be allowed to handle such explosives in future.

The First Engine Through the Tunnel.

SARNIA, April 9.—The first locomotive to pass through the G.T.R. tunnel under the St. Clair River here did so this evening, making the run through the tunnel from the Canadian to the United States side and then returning, having a flat car attached to it. The run back from the United States side was at the rate of 15 miles an hour. The track was in first-class shape and everything worked smoothly.

WASHINGTON, April 9.—President Harrison will start on his tour of the south and west Tuesday morning. Mrs. Harrison and several other ladies will accompany the party.

Dangerous Counterfeits.

Counterfeits are always dangerous, more so that they always closely IMITATE THE ORIGINAL IN APPEARANCE AND NAME. The remarkable success achieved by Nasal Balm as a positive cure for Catarrh and Cold in the Head has induced unprincipled parties to imitate it. The public are cautioned not to be deceived by nostrums imitating Nasal Balm in name and appearance, bearing such names as Nasal Cream, Nasal Balsam, etc. Ask for Nasal Balm and do not take any imitation dealers may urge upon you. For sale by all druggists or sent post-paid on receipt of price (50c and $1.) by addressing Fulford & Co. Brockville. Ont.

Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam.

Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam gives prompt relief in coughs, colds, hoarseness, whooping cough, croup, asthma or bronchitis. It is the most pleasant and perfect throat and lung healer in the world for children or adults. Price 25c.

Bickle's Anti Consumptive Syrup is a combination of several medicinal herbs which exert a most wonderful influence in curing pulmonary consumption and all other diseases of the lungs, chest and throat. It promotes a free and easy expectoration, and gives ease even to the greatest sufferer. Coughs, colds, shortness of breath, and affections of the chest, attended with weakness of the digestive organs, or with general debility, seem to vanish under its use. No other remedy acts so readily in allaying inflammation or breaking up a severe cold, even the most obstinate cough is overcome by its penetrating and healing properties. When children are affected with colds, coughs, inflammation of the lungs, croup, quinsey, and sore throat, this Syrup is of vast importance. The number of deaths among children from these diseases is truly alarming. It is so palatable that a child will not refuse it, and is put at such a price that will not exclude the poor from its benefits.

White broche is in demand for negligee robes.

Mr. J. R Allen, Upholsterer, Toronto, sends us the following: "For six or seven years my wife suffered from Dyspepsia, Costiveness, Inward Piles and Kidney Complaint We tried two physicians and any number of medicines without getting any relief, until we got a bottle of Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery. This was the first relief she got, and before one bottle was used the benefit she derived from it was beyond our expectation."

Satins closely resemble India silks in design.

Jacob H. Bloomer, of Virgille, N. Y., writes:—"Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil cured a badly swelled neck and sore throat on my son in forty-eight hours; one application also removed the pain from a very sore toe; my wife's foot was also much inflamed—so much so that she could not walk about the house; she applied the Oil, and in twenty four hours was entirely cured."

A coronet set with turquoises is a new shape for a bonnet pin.

Mr. Thomas Ballard, Syracuse, N.Y., writes: "I have been afflicted for nearly a year with that most-to-be-dreaded disease Dyspepsia, and at times worn out with pain and want of sleep, and after trying almost everything recommended, I tried one box of Parmelee's Vegetable Pills. I am now nearly well, and believe they will cure me. I would not be without them for any money

ADVICE TO MOTHERS

MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP has been used by millions of mothers for children teething for over fifty years with perfect success. It relieves the little sufferer at once, produces natural, quiet sleep by freeing the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste, soothes the child, softens the gums, allays pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. Twenty five cents a bottle

WHY IS IT?

If you will listen a minute we will tell you why and how it is that we can and do lead in the crockery business. It's over fifty years since this establishment was founded in London, Ont., by the late Nathaniel Reid, who spent his younger days amongst the English potteries and gained a knowledge of the many processes of manufacture until the goods are laid upon the shelves in this country. This knowledge, handed down to the son and others who have been in the house for twenty-five years, has brought about the following results: 1st.—The ware is all made in Staffordshire, England, brought out in the plain and finished in our own decorating kilns in this country. 2nd.—In Tea Sets we can furnish 134 different patterns; Toilet Sets, 89; Dinner Sets, 96 patterns. 3rd.—To give some idea of what has been done in the Belleville branch, we have sold since the first of last August (8 months) of these three items 164 Tea Sets, 110 Toilet Sets and 93 Dinner Sets. Other lines which belong to this business, such as silver plate and lamps, we handle just as extensively and from the leading factories. The goods are all made for the legitimate crockery trade and not for giving away. We study our own trade. We have got to understand the business we follow. We can reproduce old patterns, buy larger and undersell others, and that's why we lead in this trade.

ONTARIO LEGISLATURE.

A PETITION TO THE QUEEN RESPECTING EDUCATION.

Mr. Campbell of Durham Wants Such Change in the B. N. A. Act as Will Place Education Completely Under the Jurisdiction of the Legislature.

TORONTO, April 10.—In the Ontario Legislature yesterday Mr. Campbell (East Durham) introduced this notice of motion: 1, that legislation respecting denominational schools in Upper Canada was adopted by the Parliament of the late Province of Canada at a time when Upper and Lower Canada were joined in a Legislative Union; 2, that this legislation was adopted by the Parliament of Canada against the wishes and opinion of a large majority of the representatives of Upper Canada in the Legislative Assembly; 3, that by the passage of the British North America Act, 1867, the Imperial Parliament imposed on certain Provincial Legislatures restrictions in dealing with education; 4, that in consequence of these restrictions the people of Ontario are not free to make such laws respecting education as they may from time to time deem necessary and prudent; 5, that such restrictions are contrary to the principles of proper responsible government as conferred on the Dominion of Canada and on the several provinces composing it and to the autonomous powers which were in other respects granted to the Provincial Legislatures; 6, that the Provinces of Ontario and Quebec are the only provinces of the Dominion of Canada which are so restricted; 7, that in opinion of this House the interests of the country require such change in the British North America Act, 1867, as will place education under the jurisdiction of the Ontario Legislature as completely as the various subjects assigned to provincial jurisdiction under section 91 of that act; 8, that a humble address be presented by this House to Her Most Gracious Majesty, embodying the foregoing resolutions, and praying that she will be pleased to have them brought to the notice of the Houses of Parliament with a view to securing the change desired.

The High Schools Bill, which occupied the attention of the Assembly all afternoon, contains one clause abolishing preparatory classes after July 1.

SUDDENLY SUMMONED.

Sudden Deaths in Various Sections of Ontario.

ARTHUR, April 9.—Mrs. Hugh McTaggart of Arthur complained to her husband while working around the house of a pain in her heart, then a chill in her back. She sat down by the stove to warm herself, when her head fell forward on her breast, and before a doctor could be secured for her she was dead.

Drowned in a Railway Ditch.

SARNIA, April 9.—Daniel Carter, a resident of Point Edward, was last seen alive Monday evening, and was then considerably under the influence of liquor. It is supposed that he wandered out along the railway track by mistake for the way to his home, and that he stumbled off the track into the ditch and was unable, in his helpless condition, to extricate himself. Mr. Leckie next morning found the dead body of Carter lying face downward in the ditch between the two tracks of the Y, the water at the spot being only two feet deep. Deceased was a man of about 65 years of age, an Englishman and a pensioner of the British army.

Death at the Journey's End.

BROCKVILLE, April 9.—Yesterday afternoon an old man named John Goodin, aged 82 years, was found dead in a boat at Jones Creek by some men who were fishing in that vicinity. After drawing the boat up on land he had taken off his coat and used it for a pillow. Monday afternoon he procured a boat at Lachapelle's boat works to row up the river and probably died on the way.

Burned to Death.

BARRIE, April 9.—Mrs. Feigner, living on the 11th con. West Gwillimbury, was standing near the stove when by some means her clothes caught fire, and when her son John Stephen, who had been from the house only a few minutes, came in he found her lying on the floor, apparently suffocated and badly burned. Dr. Stevenson was called in and did all he could to relieve the sufferer, who died next day.

Died in a Drug Store.

HAMILTON, April 9.—Harvey Crosthwaite, a well-known Bartonville farmer, walked into A. Rutherford's drug store yesterday afternoon about 5 o'clock looking as well as usual, made a purchase and 15 minutes later his body was carried out in a coffin. Death resulted from heart disease.

Only Two Hours' Warning.

MINTO, April 9.—William, son of Robert Scott, reeve of Minto, attended school as usual, came home at night, assisted his father in feeding the stock and took his tea all right. Just before retiring for the night he complained of a pain in the bowels. Two hours later he was dead.

Dropped Dead While Preparing Tea.

WOLFE ISLAND, April 9.—Mrs. John Laughlin was busy preparing the tea when she suddenly gasped and fell to the floor. A doctor was immediately summoned, but before he arrived she was a corpse. Her mother-in-law died suddenly a week ago.

Killed in His Father's Mill.

QUEBEC, April 9.—The young son of Mr. Elloi Martel of St. Augustine, while near a large revolving wheel in his father's flour mill, was struck by the wheel and literally cut into three pieces.

Found Her Daughter a Corpse.

RIDGETOWN, April 9.—Mrs. Gilbert, widow of the late Ira Gilbert, was found dead in her bed by her mother, Mrs. Kilborn, who resided with her. On going to arouse her she found she was dead.

Fatally Hurt by a Horse.

BELLEVILLE, April 9.—Æmilius Lawrence, a Sidney farmer, was so seriously injured by a vicious horse yesterday that his recovery is doubtful.

The New Dominion.

SYDNEY, N.S.W., April 9.—At yesterday's session of the Federation Convention the delegates adopted the constitution bill and the sessions closed amid a scene of great enthusiasm.

BELLEVILLE, FRIDAY, APRIL 10

THE INTERRUPTED NEGOTIATIONS.

Explanations, from American sources, of President Harrison's abrupt stoppage of the conference which was about to be commenced at Washington in regard to the extension of trade relations between the United States and Canada, are forthcoming in plenty. It may pain the Farrers, Longleys and other enemies of Canada who reside in the Dominion to learn that not one of these explanations accords with that over which they rejoiced, with such an exceeding great joy, namely that the Canadian envoy had been insulted by Mr. Secretary Blaine; but such is the fact.

The Herald says "there will be no reciprocity with Canada under the present Administration, as President Harrison is opposed to it in any shape or form."

The World remarks that "Gen Harrison is desirous of feeling the pulse of the country upon the subject of reciprocity with Canada, before entering into any formal negotiations to that end, and that this policy will be shaped by the impressions he receives in his journey."

Another despatch to the World is more circumstantial. We quote:

The reason for the unexpectedly sudden departure of the envoys was that President Harrison had countermanded the engagement which Secretary Blaine had made on Thursday. Whenever any such conference on the trade relations between the United States and Canada should occur, the President wanted to take part in it himself, and as his programme for the next month or two, including his trip south and west, would not permit him to enter into such an engagement at present, he had ordered the conference to be declared off for the present.

He had conveyed his Presidential pleasure in the matter as early as Friday or Saturday, and Mr. Blaine, through Sir Julian Pauncefote, tried to communicate the same to Sir Charles in Canada, but before Sir Julian's telegram could reach its destination in Canada, Sir Charles and his colleagues were on their way to Washington and it was not until they arrived here last night, that they learned how fruitless and disappointing their journey was to be.

President Harrison has recently taken every means in his power to counteract the impression that the commercial reciprocity policy of the Administration was Mr. Blaine's policy, or Mr. Blaine's work. He consented to have himself interviewed a short time ago, and took pains to have it authoritatively mentioned that the reciprocity clause in the McKinley act had been drafted by his own hand. In numerous instances the President has gone to the trouble of demonstrating that the executive power relating to the State Department was not vested in Mr. Blaine, and that no executive feat could be performed without the act or approval of Benjamin Harrison.

This spirit was conspicuously displayed at the time when Blaine had arranged to send a special commission, composed of Beverly Tucker and two others, to Hayti. When the President found out what was going on he revoked the nominations immediately and vetoed the whole commission. Again when Mr. Blaine prepared a bill providing for South American steamship subsidies and inserted in the bill the names of certain steamship lines which were to be benefitted, the President sent the bill to Congress, but before doing so he ran his blue pencil through the names of Mr. Blaine's favorites. The President has openly administered more checks to Secretary Blaine than to all the other members of his Cabinet combined, and more probably than were ever before administered by a President to a Secretary of State.

President Harrison cannot possibly finish his trip and prepare for conference with the Canadians in less than two months. Then the dog days will be so near at hand that there is no possibility of the conferees coming together before the Fall. It is probably President Harrison's purpose to have the subject of trade relations with Canada in full agitation when Congress assembles next December.

These explanations in the World differ, it will be noted, in some respects. There may be foundation for the report that the President wishes to feel the pulse of the country upon the subject; and whilst the story of President Harrison's jealousy of his Secretary of State seems improbable, there can be no doubt that his determination to superintend the negotiations—taken, perhaps, suddenly—resulted in a seeming rebuke to Mr. Blaine, not as the Canadian annexationists joyfully proclaimed, a deliberate insult to the Canadian deputation. That no such rudeness to Sir Charles Tupper and his colleagues was intended by the Government of the United States is conclusively shown by the attempt—unfortunately unsuccessful—of the President to communicate his pleasure to Sir Charles prior to his departure, with Sir John Thompson and Hon. G. E. Foster, for Washington.

The Canadian annexationists have, then, laughed too soon. They laugh best who laugh last. The negotiations will be resumed on the 12th of October next, and will be carried on in, we have no doubt, an amicable spirit. Those disloyalists who have done their best to thwart the negotiations will be execrated by every loyal person in Canada.

Love's Young Dream.

Love's young dream was a very bright one, and its fulfillment will be bright, too, if the bride will remember that she is a woman, and liable to all the ills peculiar to her sex. We remind those who are suffering from any of these, that Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription will renew the hue of youth in pale and sallow cheeks, correct irritating uterine diseases, arrest and cure ulceration and inflammation, and infuse new vitality into a wasting body. "Favorite Prescription" is the only medicine for women, sold by druggists, under a positive guarantee from the manufacturers, that it will give satisfaction in every case, or money will be refunded. This guarantee has been printed on the bottle-wrapper, and faithfully carried out for many years.

The License Law.

Its Iniquities Debated—Speech by Mr. Hudson.

The administration of the license laws was thoroughly ventilated in the Legislation on the 8th, upon the motion of Mr. Willoughby for a return giving minute details by license districts of the amounts collected and expended and the proportion of the license fund to which the municipalities were entitled and the amounts which were actually paid them, all for each year from 1876 to 1890. In moving the resolution Mr. Willoughby said the Government deserved the strongest condemnation for its manipulation of the license department for party purposes. Moreover, it was grasping more from the licensees each year. The suggestion of Mr Harcourt, that the municipalities should also make a grab, could not be adopted because the licensees were already paying as much as the business was worth. None but supporters of the Government were appointed commissioners and the whole system was a party engine. The Attorney General a short time ago delivered a lecture upon "Christian Evidences," and it was to be hoped that the honorable gentleman would desist from using liquor sellers for party purposes. The municipalities should appoint the commissioners and inspectors.

Mr. Hudson had taken the trouble to look through the tavern and license reports and he wanted to know why the accounts were kept so incorrectly and so little information given. If the county councils had control of the licenses, the people would be better served. He found in looking over the public records that there appeared to be a shortage in the accounts. For instance, in the year 1887 88 the amount collected, including fines, under the licence law was $392,675. Of this $156,979 had been paid to the municipalities. Salaries, etc., had taken $24,553, the province had retained $201,542, making a total of $383,075, leaving the sum of $9,599 not accounted for. In 1888 89 the deficiency was $11,635, and in 1888 90 $19,780, or a total for the three years of $31,015. He would like to know from the Government where this money had gone to. In the city of Toronto he found a deficiency of over $14,000 in the last seven years. In his own riding there was a deficiency in four years of $514; in West Hastings it amounted to $839 in two years, and nearly an equal amount in North Hastings. Each member should examine the accounts for his own constituency, and see how they stood. He favored placing the management of the license system in the hands of the county councils. Who are better able to manage it? He would point it out, too, how the municipalities were being handled. In 1889 the municipalities recived $79,440 less than they did ten years before, while the Government received $145,313 more. Was this fair?

Mr. Harcourt said the discrepancy was made up by the costs of prosecution, such as constables, witnesses, advertising, etc., which completely cover the shortage.

Mr. Meredith showed that instead of the municipalities receiving two-thirds of the license fees, as when the Mowat Government came into power, the fees were increased four-fold, and yet only one-third went to the municipalities. He declared the license laws were used openly for party purposes. The claim of the Government that the present license system was continued in the public interest was a farce, which was played out. There was not one constituency from one end of the province to the other in which the inspectors and commissioners had been reprimanded for their part in elections. In the last election in West Toronto subscriptions were taken in aid of the son of the Premier from tavernkeepers.

This last reference apparently stung Mr. Mowat. When he rose to reply he was flushed and angry. Indeed, old members say they never saw him roused or speak so vigorously. He said the fact was the people had created the present system, approved of it and wanted it continued. The laws were administered fairly and the wonder was that there were so few evils to complain of.

Mr. Willoughby made a strong point by reading an editorial from the Port Hope Guide warning hotel keepers against voting for the Conservative candidates and showing that the proprietor of the paper was himself a license commissioner.

The motion was adopted.

What Next? Shall it be the Railroad?

What next is to be started by the enterprise of Belleville people? Shall it be the Belleville & Nipissing railroad? I hope so. I have so often written about it, I shall not go over the ground further than to say that unless the road is built our fair city will be a great loser. It will never do to allow the trade of our vast back country to be diverted from Belleville, which will most assuredly be the case if the road is not built. The K. & N. W. road is diverting the trade from Tweed and even south of Tweed from Belleville, while the Central Ontario is taking it from further north to Trenton.

The question is, shall Belleville have this trade, or shall the road be built and the trade brought to its natural outlet? If a company is formed and stock taken and a start made there will be no difficulty in finding those who will be glad to embark in the enterprise and build it. The future of Belleville's prosperity depends on it. Once started property will begin to rise in value, and when the road is completed the city will grow and flourish and everything will be "booming." Shall the road be built? The schemes for building a hotel, boring for natural gas or for salt, and other minor projects are insignificant in comparison with the railroad. Don't you think so?

The Bay Bridge has now become an accomplished fact, as I notice from Saturday's INTELLIGENCER, and will prove a great boon to both sides of the Bay. I notice a well-written letter, but rather erratic, in yours of the 2d inst.; I think it is too imaginative. I should be pleased to see it, but can hardly expect to live so long. It however puts me in mind of a story I once read, of a mother and daughter on baking day. The bread was being got ready, the wood was in the oven and fire set to it, when the mother said to her daughter, "I am going out a few minutes, so keep watch." On her return, she found the daughter weeping, and asked what was the matter? The answer was, "I thought if I was married and had a baby, and it should crawl into the oven and get burnt up, what should I do? Boo, hoo, hoo!" I leave your readers to draw the contrast.

THE FLOOD.

No doubt Belleville's flood has now passed away. Our business men should better prepare for such calamity. A "stitch taken in time" is the best preventative. We have had our flood. Ice broke and gone and some damage done — piers capsized or torn away, stop-logs broken. Above and at the mill dams, Bradshaw's barn and stable injured, piers washed out and buildings damaged and may fall into the river, and the east side of Hungerford street flooded. A large body of snow and ice is in the woods yet. Should a heavy rain come no doubt another rise will take place, but we will hope for the best.

LANSDOWNE RESIGNS.

INDIA'S VICEROY TO RETURN TO ENGLAND.

A Three Hours' Battle With the Manipuris in Which the Latter Were Put to Flight and Several of Their Leaders Killed.

SIMLA, April 9.—Advices have been received here of a brilliant success for the British forces near Manipur. The Manipuris made a fierce attack upon the slender force of Goorkhas commanded by Lieut. Grant, which recently captured Fort Shabat, driving out an overwhelming force of Manipuris at the point of the bayonet, after playing sad havoc in their ranks by a well-directed rifle fire. The Manipuris' attack was stubborn and determinedly made, and they pushed forward in spite of the destructive fire with which they were received. The enemy fought gallantly for every foot of ground, the attack lasting three hours, during which some superb fighting was witnessed on both sides. Finally the Manipuris were repulsed, the usurping Rajah and two prominent chiefs, all three of whom displayed remarkable bravery in leading the tribesmen to the attack, being killed during the onslaught. The loss of the tribesmen in addition to the killing of their leaders was very heavy.

Captain Persgrave has arrived at Fort Shabat with much-needed reinforcements. This, combined with Lieut. Grant's victory, has so disheartened the Manipuris that they announce they are ready and willing to recognize the authority of the British officials directly the British troops re-enter Manipur. Additional bodies of troops are on the way to Manipur, where the massacre of Goorkhas and the subsequent fate of Chief Commissioner Quinton and his party will be thoroughly investigated.

CALCUTTA, April 9.—In the letter which was yesterday received from the chief of the Manipuris he says: The British attacked my palace, massacred my soldiers and their women and children; they threw living women and children into the flames of their burning houses and desecrated the temples. Therefore, I killed the whole party.

The letter from the Manipur leader also contains the following: "I deeply regret the sad event, which was wholly due to the rashness and indiscretion of the British officers."

A second letter here says the surviving British subjects, with the exception of the clerk and interpreter, were liberated before the demand made by the British Government for their release had been received.

Lord Lansdowne, in forwarding the two letters to England, says he fears it is true that the officers were killed, but that it is evident the story was concocted to shield the Manipur regent.

Lansdowne Resigns.

LONDON, April 9.—The Chronicle says: "The Marquis of Lansdowne has intimated to the Government his desire to resign the viceroyship of India on account of ill-health and for other reasons."

WAR REPORTS CONTINUE.

Austria Concentrating Large Bodies of Troops on the Galician Frontier.

LONDON, April 9.—A Vienna despatch says that the Austrian Government, not being reassured by Russia's denial of unfriendly designs, has already concentrated large bodies of troops at Tarnopol and Brody to watch the Galician frontier. The 10th corps under Reinlander has been reinforced by a portion of the 1st corps and Prince Windisch-Groetz of the 11th is watching the frontier with a large force of cavalry. Count Hartenau, formerly Prince Alexander of Bulgaria, who is now an officer in the Austrian service, has, it is stated, been called into consultation at the war office with the view of utilizing his services in an important command.

The Austrian authorities have great confidence in the abilities of the Prince, which were proven in the war between Servia and Bulgaria. It is said that the Austrian Government has important secret information from Russia which is the basis of its warlike preparations.

The German Kaiser has laid out a personal program which apparently does not take into account an early declaration of hostilities. On the 22nd he is going to Wartburg for some black cock shooting, and after spending a few days there he will proceed on a visit to Count Goerz in Upper Hesse, to shoot on his estates. The Emperor will not, as has been expected, go thence to Alsace-Lorraine. If he pays a visit to those provinces at all this year it will not be before September. It is to be noted, however, that twice as many officials have been detailed as during the Kaiser's shooting trip to Silesia as messengers to carry any information from the Chancellor to the Kaiser during the absence of the latter from the capital, state secrets not being entrusted either to the post or telegraph.

Apparently by some understanding with Austria, Germany has suddenly begun to increase the forces near the Russian frontier and to hasten the completion of works intended to facilitate the transportation of troops. All indications go to show that a Russian invasion would be met by formidable armies of the allies, whether first directed against Austria or Germany or both countries at once. On the French side Germany has a series of fortresses that could not fail to delay invasion long enough to give ample time for the concentration of the army.

Disastrous Fire in Toronto.

TORONTO, April 9.—A destructive fire occurred here to-night in Heintzman's piano warerooms, 117 King-street west. The entire fire brigade was on hand and in time subdued the flames, but not before great damage was done. Heintzman & Co. fix their loss at $20,000, Mr. Quinn, the shirt man, puts his at $16,000, while W. Goldstein's loss is not known, though large. The loss will probably total $50,000. The flames damaged the Rossin House adjoining, but only to a slight extent. This is the worst fire that has visited Toronto since the University went up in smoke.

HISTORY REPEATS ITSELF.

In wall paper as in everything else, once in about every ten years.

It is not ten years ago though since the "fad" of papering ceilings was all the rage, nor was it five years ago! Yet this season there is a very strong demand for ceiling papers and decorations, and we firmly believe that papered ceilings will always be fashionable.

How do we know?

We'll tell you.

Economy and common sense have done it.

The world of fashion produces periodically a "fad" and if it receives "official recognition" from some fashion leader, it is considered "quite the proper thing" by the votaries of fashion and a craze ensues.

Fashion dictates more severely and draws finer lines in the matter of decoration than in anything else under her sway, and it sometimes happens that some of her "whims" become permanencies or "things of beauty and a joy forever." Economy is the great factor that transforms what was once a "fleeting fancy" into a permanent reality and that's where common sense steps in.

Although the craze of papering ceilings died out for awhile, it has returned again, not as a craze, but as a good big morsel of hard common sense, and it has come to stay. It's admitted superiority over every other style of ceiling decoration, both in attractiveness and ECONOMY has forced "fashion" to the wall for once and in spite of herself she "returns to her first love," thus waiving the formality of waiting the allotted decade for "History to repeat itself."

Try and remember that economy and common sense have done this—for where can you find a better field for decoration in your whole house than a ceiling presents?

Please make a note of this.

Massassaga Park.

This delightful summer resort, situated on the shores of the Bay some four miles south-east of the city, will no doubt as usual be largely patronised during the coming hot season. Improvements of an extensive character are being made which, when completed, will make it one of the finest places for abode, and also for recreation, which can be found. Additions are being made to the hotel, cottages are to be erected, the grounds beautified by being boulevarded in places, boating and bathing houses built, and other improvements which will add to its attractiveness and make it a pleasant resort. During the coming season it will be under the able management of Mr. Geo. S. Sterling, late proprietor of the St. George's hotel and restaurant, who will at all times be ready to do all in his power to make it pleasant, not only for the guests but also for visitors. The prospects are that the Park will be more largely patronised this season than ever.

Duff Opera Company—England's New Lyric Queen.

Miss Marie Tempest, the young English prima donna of the Lyric theatre, London, will make her first appearance in Belleville Wednesday evening next, with the J. C. Duff opera company at the Opera House, in Stevens and Solomon's latest comic opera "The Red Hussar," which had a run of 350 nights in London and 125 nights at Palmer's theatre, New York. The opera is in three acts, with all the scenes laid in England. Excellent opportunities are given for elaborate stage settings, beautiful scenery and pretty stage pictures. In addicion to the clever principals, Mr. Duff will offer a well trained chorus of 60 voices and an orchestra of 30.

What She Said.

Mrs. R. Peck, E. 15th street, New York City, visited Canada last year, and had the good fortune to pick up something which not only suited her, but her neighbors also. Writing the manufacturer of Nerviline she says:—"I bought three bottles of Nerviline while in Canada and treated my neighbors to some of it and all think it the best medicine for internal or external pain they have ever used. Nerviline deserves such a commendation, for it is a most powerful, penetrating, and certain remedy, for pain of all kinds. Take no substitute.

Aunt Jack.

Charles W. Butler, who plays "Juffin," the country lawyer, in "Aunt Jack," will be remembered for his amusing performance of the "Private Secretary," when that company visited Belleville some three years ago. Mr. Butler's portrait of the country solicitor is not less entertaining than was his presentation of the timid clergyman wh "doesn't like London." Aunt Jack, accompanied by her little solicitor, should receive a hearty welcome next Tuesday night.

or Delicate, Sickly Children

Scott's Emulsion is unequalled. See what Dr. C. A. Black, of Amherst, N. S., says: "I have been acquainted with Scott's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil, with Hypophosphites, for years, and consider it one of the finest preparations now before the public. Its pleasant flavor makes it the great favorite for children, and I do highly recommend it for all wasting diseases of children and adults. Sold by Druggists, 50c, and $1.00.

Reminders.

The King's Daughters, of St. Thomas' Church, will hold an apron sale to-morrow in the store formerly occupied by Mr. John C. Keith.

The Calisthenic entertainment in the Opera House this evening by the young ladies and children of Miss Price's class, will no doubt be of a choice character, and should be largely patronised.

A Night Sitting.

In order to accommodate those sportsmen who wish to lay their views before the Ontario Game and Fish Commission, the Commissioners will hold a sitting to-night in the Council Chamber. Believing that the result of the inquiry will be of public benefit, we urge all who feel qualified to add to the knowledge of the subject to attend and give their evidence.

The Bay.

The ice is still unbroken west of the bridge on the bay. To the east of the bridge there is a wide space of open water fronting the city, then follows a great sheet of ice, with a channel through it, extending, to Massassaga Park. On Big Bay there is but little open water. It is probable that navigation will open next week.

Ontario Game and Fish Commission.

Messrs. A. D. Stewart, of Hamilton, A. G. Taylor of Ottawa, and H. K. Smith of Belleville, the Game and Fish Commissioners, this morning opened a two days session here, for the purpose of receiving what information they could obtain relating to game and fish.

Should be Remedied.

The crossing on Front street opposite the entrance to the foot bridge is, and has long been, in a disgraceful condition. The contractor who ripped up the street there and blocked the crossing should at once be compelled to restore the pavement and crossing to their former good condition.

P. E. Island Elections.

A Change of Government Probable.

Halifax, N.S., April 10.—Election in the district of Prince Edward Island yesterday for the local Assembly resulted in the return of three opposition members—Dr. Jenkins and Messrs. Robertson and Cumminsby. This gives the opposition a majority of one in the Assembly and will doubtless lead to a change of Government and the probable dissolution of the Legislature.

A Broker Firm Broke.

How a Bucket Shop was Started in the City and Collapsed.

Most of businesses thrive when their customers make money, but this is not the case with bucket shops, as dealers are are principally buyers, hence when a continuous bull market prevails the dealers make money and bucket shop keepers look glum and often act glum as well. At one time this city could boast of two bucket shops, and scores of plucked lambs know the consequence. The collapse of the Cox concern in Toronto, added to which was the fears of the law effecting such institutions, closed for a time such establishments in the city, but lately G. L. Pratt & Co., Brokers, of Buffalo, N. Y., opened a similar concern on Bridge street and afterwards moved it to quieter quarters on Pinnacle Street, where sundry and divers of our citizens were wont to congregate and bet on the rise and fall of grain and stocks. When they guessed right they deemed themselves clever, and bright dreams of an old age surrounded with comforts and luxuries afforded by their superior intelligence, haunted their pillows.

The course of the market has been skyward, and dealers have been made correspondingly happy with the sums placed to their credit in the books of the concern. "The brightest cloud sometimes will break in showers" and the upward tendency of the market was too much for the broker firm, who were being called upon for the winnings of the guessing crowd, so to-day they quietly withdrew what funds they had "in sight" in one of the banks and silently stole away. They were not only satisfied to steal away themselves, but also took away the margins of their customers. Hence there are a number of operators to-day looking for their margins and profits that were and are not.

Civic Committeec.

The various civic committees, with the exception of the Excecutive, met last evening and considerable business was transacted.

PUBLIC WORKS.

The committee recommended that the prayer of the petition re a sidewalk near the Tabernacle church be granted, provided that the right of way be secured free of expense to the corporation.

The committee also recommended that the prayer of the petition for a sewer on George street on the frontage tax system be granted.

MARKET AND CITY PROPERTY.

Three tenders for the market privileges for the ensuing year were received, namely, J. D. Clarke, $2,604; W. H. Carter, $2,200; G. W. Palmer, $2,640.

Mr. Palmer's tender was accepted.

Moved by Ald. Petrie, That in the event of any application being made for the use of the City Hall, requiring an immediate reply, that the chairman of the committee be and is hereby instructed to arrange the letting of the hall at such rate as the circumstances of the case may make advisable, considering the character of the entertainment and the season of the year; but in no case shall such agreement be made at a lower rate than $5 per evening. Any arrangement made must in all cases be reported to the committee at the first subsequent meeting.—Carried.

WATER AND GAS.

This committee recommended the payment of a number of accounts.

FERRY.

The petition of Rathbun Bros., asking for $100 for the loss which they claim they sustained by their ferry boat Alberta being tied up here all winter, was not entertained.

INDUSTRIAL.

The Industrial committee also met, but no new legislation was introduced.

Used in the Hospital,

And endorsed by the medical faculty throughout the states, Clark's Catarrh Cure has come to be regarded as the only real specific for that disease. In every case it works a certain, safe, and speedy cure. Pleasant to taste and smell, it is yet powerful in healing and restoring the natural functions. No other remedy gives such satisfaction, because the results from use are not the same. Sold by all druggists, or sent to any address on receipt of 50 cents by Clark Chemical Co., Toronto New York.

The Reports Exaggerated.

The Tweed News, in referring to the reports which have been published and circulated in reference to typhoid fever in that village, says: "Very exaggerated reports are abroad as to the prevalence of typhoid fever in this village. It is true we have some cases of the fever, but grip claims a large majority of those who are ill. The village authorities are taking every precaution for the preservation of the health of the citizens and to prevent the spread of disease."

They Mean It.

A nice rubber coat is a thing we all need. In this issue the Oak Hall Clothing House advertise a discount sale for 10 days of all their Tweed rubber goods. Think of 25 per cent. off regular prices. It gives a person a chance who thinks he cannot afford a good rubber coat. This firm always carry out to the letter every advertisement, and as this is just the season for selling rubber goods, they expect to clear out every coat in stock. Remember the place—Oak Hall.

Larceny of a Pair of Scissors.

On the 10th of January last a pair of scissors valued at $1.75 were stolen from Mr. C. Diett's barber shop. Yesterday Officer Hayes recovered the same at Mr. Alex. Wardaugh's second hand store, where they were sold by a blacksmith named Jean Baptiste Desjardines in March last. This morning Desjardines was arrested and tried before the P.M. and found guilty. He was remanded until Thursday next for sentence.

Personal.

Mr. A. Matheson, the new Bursar at the D. & D. Institute has arrived and entered upon his duties.

Mr. Roy V. Somerville, late Gen'l. Ad'. Agt. of the C.P.R., was in the city to day.

Judge Rose and Mr. Young, shorthand reporter, put up at the Kyle House last night and went west this morning.

Oh, What's Cough

Will you heed the warning. The signal perhaps of the sure approach of that more terrible disease Consumption. Ask yourselves if you can afford for the sake of saving 50c., to run the risk and do nothing for it. We know from experience that Shiloh's Cure will cure your cough. It never fails.

Suicide at Woodstock.

Woodstock, April 10.—Albert J. Woodward, a butcher, aged about 50 years, committed suicide here last night by hanging himself in his slaughter house. Despondency is supposed to be the cause.

"TRUTH'S" SPRING BIBLE COMPETITION!

NO. 22.

SEND NOW. DON'T DELAY

In these latter days there have arisen many false schemes and many scores of imitations of Truth's Competitions, but one after another have failed and utterly perished, yet Truth prevails, and makes good all its promises. Its reputation is now too well established to risk damaging it, and as it has cost a very large amount of money and many years of care and labor to build up, the publisher could not afford to fail in carrying out all his agreements to the letter. Please note that there are twenty-one divisions, instead of three as formerly, of the largest list of bona fide prizes ever offered and ever actually given away by any publisher in the world. The total value of prizes in this Spring list is about $10,000. Send one dollar and answers to the five following questions: Where in the Bible are these words first found: 1, Grain; 2, Corn; 3, Wheat; 4, Barley; 5, Rye. If your answers are correct, and your letters arrive in time, you are almost sure to get a reward, as there are so many, and every one sending in cannot always find correct answers to all these questions. All the five answers must be correct to get any prize, but you will get full value for the dollar in Truth, if you don't get anything else. There have been very few dissatisfied prize-winners in previous competitions, considering that we have given away during the past eight years scores of thousands of prizes. Some people expect a piano for every dollar sent, and are mad if they don't get it. We wish it were possible to give every subscriber a gold watch or a piano or both, but we can't do it. Some publishers intimate they will, but nobody can do it for any length of time. Send one dollar and correct answers, and you won't regret it; and bear in mind that we do not guarantee that everybody whose answers are correct will get a prize, but this we do say, that all those prizes in the twenty-one different lists will be given away.

The Best Pills.—Mr. Wm. Vandervoort, Sydney Crossing, Ont., writes: "We have been using Parmelee's Pills, and find them by far the best Pills we ever used." For Delicate and Debilitated Constitution these Pills act like a charm. Taken in small doses, the effect is both a tonic and a stimulant, mildly exciting the secretions of the body, giving tone and vigor.

New Scotch ginghams and French zephyrs appear in novel chine and broche design.

BEATRIX RANDOLPH

BY

JULIAN HAWTHORNE.

COPYRIGHT BY AMERICAN PRESS ASSOCIATION.

Here were a good looking woman and an enamored young man, a common sight enough. They seemed to be in love with each other, as Helwise had said; but while the gentleman had evidently lost his head the lady was entirely self possessed. She seemed to be amused superficially at some extravagance or perversity in her companion, but there was an underlying sadness or anxiety perceptible when her face was at rest. She had the air of trying to make him take some step or comprehend something which he refused to do or understand. As they passed the young man glanced for a moment toward Helwise and nodded recognition. The lady did not turn, nor evince consciousness of the presence of any third party. They slowly traversed the length of the terrace and disappeared through the gateway at the farther end.

"She knows how to dress," remarked Bellingham.

"And how to walk," added Helwise. "She must have learned that on the stage."

"An actress, then, you think?"

"Yes; or an opera singer, perhaps. Well, what do you think is the matter?"

"He hasn't money enough, maybe," said Bellingham; "or perhaps she likes him too well to marry him. A woman like that knows that an ounce of imagination is worth a pound of reality—both to her and to him!"

"You have studied women since I knew you last," remarked Helwise with a smile.

"If I have," replied Geoffrey, "they have only taught me to disbelieve the little I ever thought I knew. Come, let us be moving."

That night Bellingham dreamt vividly of Mlle. Marana, and his dream awakened him before dawn in great distress of mind. He imagined that he was walking across the Brooklyn bridge, which on this occasion extended from the roof of the opera house in New York to the parapet of the terrace where he had sat with Helwise that afternoon. The bridge was unfinished, and he was obliged to make the transit on a series of precarious planks irregularly disposed. When midway across the Atlantic, whose angry roar reached his ears from the immeasurable depth beneath, he saw walking before him the figure of a woman, in whom he at once recognized Mlle. Marana. He hastened to overtake her, for she seemed in imminent danger of falling.

Just as he was on the point of reaching her, however, the plank on which he stood gave way, and at the same moment she whom he had meant to save tottered and fell. He closed his eyes for an instant; then he felt his arm seized by some one from behind, and, looking round, he found himself standing on the stage of the opera house, with Marana herself before him in the costume of Marguerite, with a bunch of daisies in her girdle. He heard the applause of the audience, like the roar of the sea, and perceived that the performance was going forward, and that he, instead of being properly attired, was in his every day dress. It came across his mind also that the figure he had mistaken for Marana was Mephistopheles, disguised to mislead him. He looked at Marguerite; her face was deathly pale. She said below her breath, "You did not believe in me; do you know who"— Her voice died away, the lights were suddenly extinguished, and in the silence and darkness Bellingham awoke.

Too much disturbed to sleep again—for the dream, grotesquely extravagant though it was, had seemed absolutely real to him—he got up, lit a pipe, and sat smoking at his window watching the dawn slowly illuminate the eastern sky.

He took an early breakfast and went for a solitary walk along the coast, and from the summit of a lofty headland saw a great ocean steamer pass westward through the gray sea. She was bound for New York. As he watched her diminish and vanish in the distance, till only a faint plume of smoke remained on the far horizon, for the first time since his journey began he was conscious of an urgent longing to return—to return at once. The unfinished question in his dream kept ringing in his ears, it assumed a momentous importance; he must know what it meant. He laughed at his own absurdity, but the longing remained. At last he returned to the inn.

He found Helwise painting in the room he used as a studio; he was in his shirt sleeves, slippers down at the heel were on his feet, and he wore an old straw hat to shade his eyes from the light. He was whistling softly to himself, and would turn his head on one side after putting a touch on the canvas.

"Did you hear any noise last night?" he asked after they had chatted for a while.

"I had a bad dream. What was it?"

"That young fellow who calls himself Edwardes. His room is next to mine. He came in a little later than usual last night, and by and by I fancied I heard him crying. I was debating whether I ought to go in and see what was the matter, when he knocked at my door. He looked badly cut up. I made him sit down and gave him some whisky and a cigarette. He seems to be in a scrape."

"Did he explain the mystery?"

"Well, he talked somewhat. He fell in love with this woman in Moscow. From what he said I judge she is an actress or a singer, as we were saying yesterday. She is a public character of some kind, and has had adventures before this. She took a great fancy to him, so he says, and I believe him. But it seems to have been somewhat as you suggested; she liked him too well to let him have his way. She wouldn't risk a disillusionment; perhaps her heart had never been touched before. She would not marry him, either; for that matter, I suppose the one thing is about the same to her as the other. But she did an odd thing—she offered to suspend her career, whatever it is, and be with him as long as he wished. And she appears to have given up some important pecuniary advantage to do so. He accepted her offer, thinking no doubt that she would capitulate in due time, in the meanwhile taking care that she should lose nothing in the way of money. He represented himself to her as inexhaustibly wealthy, and she took him at his word. But the fact is, after he had spent a hundred thousand or so, and ruined his father and sister, as he tells me, there was no more left. He was ashamed to confess this to her, and it is only within the last few days, when he had got down to his last fifty pound note, that she found it out."

"And now she means to shake him—is that it?" said Bellingham.

"Well, apparently not. She seems to have plenty of money herself, and she has made him a proposition which does her credit. She has proposed to marry him and pay back the money that he has spent on her. I have begun to fall in love with her myself! And I may do it if she'll have me; for Mr. Edwardes' pride, as he calls it, would not allow him to accept her proposal, and hence his misery, which at one time last night assumed quite a suicidal complexion, but I remonstrated with him, and he felt a little better this morning."

While they were sitting there the door was suddenly opened, and in came young Mr. Edwardes himself in a state of great excitement. He had a newspaper in his hand.

"Did you know what was in this paper?" demanded he, striding up to Helwise.

Speaking of Tips.

A TIP is a piece of special or valuable information such as this, that Hagyard's Yellow Oil is a prompt and effectual cure for croup, colds, hoarseness, sore throat, rheumatism, neuralgia, sprains or soreness of any kind. Known as reliable over 30 years.

Important and True.

No better evidence of the fact that Burdock Blood Bitters is a certain remedy for all blood diseases can be asked than that of Mr. Geo. V. Thomas, druggist, of Hull, P. Q., whose wife was cured of cancer by B.B.B. The family doctor is certain that the disease was cancer and that it is now cured.

Silver, blue and leather color are combined in visiting dresses of bengaline and camel's hair.

That latent force of fluid, which permeates all matter, and which bears the conventional name of Electricity, is widely appreciated and recognized as a means of cure in various diseases. Its effects in the form of Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil are shown by the relief of pain, both Neuralgic and Rheumatic, as well as the throat and lungs, and in various other healing ways.

The Lungs, Liver, Kidneys, Bowels, &c., act as so many waste gates for the escape of effete matter and gases from the body. The use of Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery helps them to discharge their duty. Mr. W. H. Lester, H. M. Customs, Toronto, writes: "I have personally tested the health-giving properties of Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery, and can testify as to its great value.

Our Young Ladies.

CHICAGO, Feb. 13th, 1891.

G. A. Swayze, Esq., Principal Belleville Business College, Belleville, Ont.:

MY DEAR SIR.—Yours of the 10th inst. received. I am pleased to state that the young ladies who received their tuition in the above-named college, and who are now in my employ, have more than filled their positions and the duties expected of them.

While Miss Francis has not had the opportunity yet of fully demonstrating her capabilities, Miss Moorman has not only done her work to the full satisfaction of the managers, but has surprised those in the office by the manner in which she has taken up a difficult line of business and carefully and correctly performed the same, and to say that I am proud of the institution from which she came is expressing it mildly, although I have always believed that thoroughness was its fundamental principle.

You may rest assured that should I hear or know of any position open I will remember the Belleville Business College.

Seven years ago my cashier came to this office and received $5 a week; to-day she is receiving $125 a month. One of my three stenographers, who came here three years ago, started at $6 a week and is now receiving $15 a week, and this is the smallest wages paid to any female in the office (where there are eight) who have been in the office for over one year.

Yours very truly,
T. S. QUINCEY.

Dangerous Counterfeits.

Counterfeits are always dangerous, more so that they always closely IMITATE THE ORIGINAL IN APPEARANCE AND NAME. The remarkable success achieved by Nasal Balm as a positive cure for Catarrh and Cold in the Head has induced unprincipled parties to imitate it. The public are cautioned not to be deceived by nostrums imitating Nasal Balm in name and appearance, bearing such names as Nasal Cream, Nasal Balsam, etc. Ask for Nasal Balm and do not take any imitation dealers may urge upon you. For sale by all druggists or sent post-paid on receipt of price (50c and $1,) by addressing Fulford & Co. Brockville, Ont.

Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam.

Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam gives prompt relief in coughs, colds, hoarseness, whooping cough, croup, asthma or bronchitis. It is the most pleasant and perfect throat and lung healer in the world for children or adults. Price 25c.

Bickle's Anti Consumptive Syrup is a combination of several medical herbs which exert a most wonderful influence in curing pulmonary consumption and all other diseases of the lungs, chest and throat. It promotes a free and easy expectoration, and gives ease even to the greatest sufferer. Coughs, colds, shortness of breath, and affections of the chest, attended with weakness of the digestive organs, or with general debility, seem to vanish under its use. No other remedy acts so readily in allaying inflammation or breaking up a severe cold, even the most obstinate cough is overcome by its penetrating and healing properties. When children are affected with colds, coughs, inflammation of the lungs, croup, quinsey, and sore throat, this Syrup is of vast importance. The number of deaths among children from these diseases is truly alarming. It is so palatable that a child will not refuse it, and is put at such a price that will not exclude the poor from its benefits.

White broche is in demand for negligee robes.

Mr. J. R Allen, Upholsterer, Toronto, sends us the following: "For six or seven years my wife suffered from Dyspepsia, Costiveness, Inward Piles and Kidney Complaint. We tried two physicians and any number of medicines without getting any relief, until we got a bottle of Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery. This was the first relief she got, and before one bottle was used the benefit she derived from it was beyond our expectation."

Satins closely resemble India silks in design.

Jacob H. Bloomer, of Virgille, N. Y., writes:—"Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil cured a badly swelled neck and sore throat on my son in forty-eight hours; one application also removed the pain from a very sore toe; my wife's foot was also much inflamed—so much so that she could not walk about the house; she applied the Oil, and in twenty four hours was entirely cured."

A coronet set with turquoises is a new shape for a bonnet pin.

Mr. Thomas Ballard, Syracuse, N.Y., writes: "I have been afflicted for nearly a year with that most-to-be-dreaded disease Dyspepsia, and at times worn out with pain and want of sleep, and after trying almost everything recommended, I tried one box of Parmelee's Vegetable Pills. I am now nearly well, and believe they will cure me. I would not be without them for any money.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS

MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP has been used by millions of mothers for children teething for over fifty years with perfect success. It relieves the little sufferer at once, produces natural, quiet sleep by freeing the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste, soothes the child, softens the gums, allays pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhoea, whether arising from teething or other causes. Twenty-five cents a bottle

HERENDEEN'S ORIENTAL FLOUR !

This flour is prepared from the best Pure White Corn by a process patented February 7th 1880, and is beyond a doubt healthier than wheat or any other flour. We aim to feed the masses, not the classes, consequently instead of putting it up in 2 or 3 lb. packages and charging 15 or 20 cents for them and spending the big profit in advertising, we are selling it at about the price of ordinary flour. It can be used to great advantage in bread, pastry, etc., and is unsurpassed for pancakes or Johnny cake. Instructions and recipes in each package. This is also pre-eminently the food for anyone troubled with Dyspepsia or Indigestion. Your grocer has it now. Ask for it. Try it.

"LET GOD BE TRUE!"

REV. DR. TALMAGE'S SERMONS ON THE TEN PLAGUES.

"The Plague of Infidelity" the Subject, and "Let God Be True, but Every Man a Liar" the Text, of His Sermon on April 5, 1891.

NEW YORK, April 5, 1891.—Continuing his course of sermons on "Ten Plagues of the Cities," Rev. Dr. Talmage to-day took for his subject "The Plague of Infidelity." The text was, Romans 3: 4: "Let God be true, but every man a liar.

That is, if God says one thing and the whole human race says the opposite, Paul would accept the Divine veracity. But there are many in our time who have dared arraign the Almighty for falsehood. Infidelity is not only a plague, but is the Mother of Plagues.

It seems from what we hear on all sides, that the Christian religion is a huge blunder; that the Mosaic account of the creation is an absurdity large enough to throw all nations into rollicking guffaw; that Adam and Eve never existed; that the ancient flood and Noah's Ark were impossibilities; that there never was a miracle that the Bible is the friend of cruelty, of murder, of polygamy, of all forms of base crime, that the Christian religion is woman's tyrant and man's stultification; that the Bible from lid to lid is a fable, a cruelty, a humbug, a sham, a lie; that the martyrs who died for its truth were miserable dupes; that the Church of Jesus Christ is properly gazetted as a fool; that when Thomas Carlyle, the sceptic, said: "The Bible is a noble book," he was droping into imbecility; that when Theodore Parker declared in Music Hall, Boston, "Never a boy or girl in all Christendom but was profited by that great book," he was becoming very weak minded; that it is something to bring a blush to the cheek of every patriot, that John Adams, the father of American independence, declared, "The Bible is the best book in all the world;" and that lion-hearted Andrew Jackson turned into a snivelling coward when he said, "That book, sir, is the rock on which our Republic rests;" and that Daniel Webster abdicated the throne of his intellectual power and resigned his logic, and from being the great expounder of the Constitution and the great lawyer of his age, turned into an idiot, when he said, "My heart assures and reassures me that the Gospel of Jesus Christ must be a divine reality. From the time that at my mother's feet, or on my father's knee, I first learned to lisp verses from the sacred writing, they have been my daily study and vigilant contemplation, and if there is anything in my style or thought to be commended, the credit is due to my kind parents in instilling into my mind an early love of the scriptures;" and that William H. Seward, the diplomatist of the century, only showed his puerility when he declared, "The whole hope of human progress is suspended on the ever-growing influences of the Bible;" and that it is wisest for us to take that book from the throne in the affections of uncounted multitudes, and put it under our feet to be trampled upon by hatred and hissing contempt; and that your old father was hoodwinked, and cajoled, and cheated, and befooled, when he leaned on this as a staff after his hair grew gray, and his hands were tremulous, and his steps shortened as he came up to the verge of the grave; and that your mother sat with a pack of lies on her lap while reading of the better country, and of the ending of all her aches and pains and reunion not only with those of you who stood around her, but with the children she had buried with infinite heart-ache, so that she could read no more until she took off her spectacles, and wiped from them the heavy mist of many tears. Alas! that for forty and fifty years they should have walked under this delusion and had it under their pillow when they lay a-dying in the back room, and asked that some words from the old book might be cut upon the tombstone under the shadow of the old country meeting-house where they sleep to-day waiting for a resurrection that will never come. This book, having deceived them, and having deceived the mighty intellects of the past, must not be allowed to deceive our larger, mightier, vaster, more stupendous intellects. And so out with the book from the court-room, where it is used in the solemnization of testimony. Out with it from under the foundation of Church and asylum. Out with it from the domestic circle. Gather together all the Bibles—the children's Bibles, the family Bibles, those newly bound, and those with lid nearly worn out and pages almost obliterated by the fingers long ago turned to dust—bring them all together, and let us make a bonfire of them, and by it warm our cold criticism, and after that turn under with the ploughshare of public indignation the polluted ashes of that loathsome, adulterous, obscene, cruel and deathful book which is so antagonistic to man's liberty and woman's honor, and the world's happiness.

Now that is the substance of what infidelity proposes and declares, and the attack on the Bible is accompanied by great jocosity and there is hardly any subject about which more mirth is kindled than about the Bible. I like fun; no man was ever built with a keener appreciation of it. But there is a laughter which is deathful, there is a laughter which has the rebound of despair. It is not healthy to giggle about God, or chuckle about eternity, or smirk about the things of the immortal soul.

First, I cannot be an infidel because infidelity has no good substitute for the consolation it proposes to take away. You know there are millions of people who get their chief consolation from this book. What would you think of a crusade of this sort? Suppose a man should resolve that he would organize a conspiracy to destroy all the medicines from all the apothecaries and from all the hospitals of the earth. The work is done. The medicines are taken and they are thrown into the river, or the lake or the sea. A patient wakes up at midnight in a paroxysm of distress, and wants an anodyne. "Oh," says the nurse, the anodynes are all destroyed; we have no drops to give you, but instead of that I'll read you a book on the absurdities of morphine, and on the absurdities of all remedies." But the man continues to writhe in pain, and the nurse says:—"I'll continue to read you some discourses on anodynes, the cruelties of anodynes, the indecencies of anodynes, the absurdities of anodynes. For your groan, I'll give you a laugh." Here in the hospital is a patient having a gangrened limb amputated. He says: "Oh, for ether Oh, for chloroform." The doctors say, "Why, they are all destroyed; we don't have any more chloroform, or ether; but I have got something a great deal better. I'll read you a pamphlet against James Y. Simpson, the discoverer of chloroform as an anesthetic, and against Doctors Agnew, and Hamilton, and Hosack, and Mott, and Harvey, and Abernethy." "But," says the man, "I must have some anæsthetics." "No," say the doctors, "they are all destroyed, but we have something a great deal better." "What is that?" "Fun." Fun about medicines. Lie down, all ye patients in Bellevue Hospital, and stop your groaning—all ye broken-hearted of all the cities, and quit your crying; we have the Catholicon at last! Here is a dose of wit, here is a strengthening plaster of sarcasm, here is a bottle of ribaldry that you are to keep well shaken up and take a spoonful of it after each meal, and if that does not cure you, here is a solution of blasphemy in which you may bathe, and here is a tincture of derision. Tickle the skeleton of death with a repartee! Make the King of Terrors cackle! For all the agonies of all the ages, a joke! Millions of people willing with uplifted hand toward heaven to affirm that the Gospel of Jesus Christ is full of consolation for them, and yet infidelity proposes to take it away, giving nothing, absolutely nothing, except fun. Is there any greater height, or depth, or length, or breadth or immensity of meanness in all God's universe!

Infidelity is a religion of "Don't know." Is there a God? Don't know! Is the soul immortal? Don't know! If we should meet each other in the future world will we recognize each other? Don't know. A religion of "don't know" for the religion of "I know." "I know in Whom I have believed." "I know that my Redeemer liveth." Infidelity proposes to substitute a religion of awful negatives for our religion of glorious positives, showing right before us a world of reunion and ecstacy, and high companionship, and glorious worship, and stupendous victory, the mightiest joy of earth not high enough to reach to the base of the Himalaya of uplifted splendor awaiting all those who on wing of Christian faith will soar toward it.

Futhermore, I cannot be an infidel, because of the false charges infidelity is all the time making against the Bible. Perhaps the slander that has made the most impression and that some Christians have not been intelligent enough to deny is that the Bible favors polygamy. Does the God of the Bible uphold polygamy, or did He? How many wives did God make for Adam? He made one wife. Does not your common sense tell you when God started the marriage institution He started as he wanted it to continue? If God had favored polygamy He could have created for Adam five wives, or ten wives, or twenty wives, just as easily as He made one. At the very first of the Bible God shows Himself in favor of monogamy and antagonistic to polygamy. Genesis, 2: 24. "Therefore shall a man leave his father and mother, and shall cleave unto his wife." Not his wives, but his wife. How many wives did God spare for Noah in the ark? Two and two the birds; two and two the cattle; two and two the lions; two and two the human race. If the God of the Bible had favored a multiplicity of wives, He would have spared a plurality of wives. When God first launched the human race He gave Adam one wife. At the second launching of the human race He spares for Noah one wife, for Ham one wife, for Shem one wife, for Japhet one wife. Does that look as though God favored polygamy? In Leviticus, 18: 18, God thunders his prohibition of more than one wife.

God permitted polygamy. Yes; just as He permits to-day murder and theft and arson and all kinds of crime. He permits these things as you well know, but He does not sanction them. Who would dare to say He sanctions them? Because the Presidents of the United States have permitted polygamy in Utah, you are not, therefore, to conclude that they patronized it, that they approved it when, on the contrary, they denounced it. All of God's Ancient Israel knew that the God of the Bible was against polygamy, for in the four hundred and thirty years of their stay in Egypt there is only one case of polygamy, recorded—only one. All the mighty of the Bible stood aloof from polygamy except those who, falling into crime, were chastised within an inch of their lives. Adam, Aceron, Noah, Joseph, Joshua, Samuel, monogamists. But you say:—Didn't David and Solomon favor polygamy?" yes, and did they not get well punished for it? Read the lives of those two men, and you will come to the conclusion that all the attributes of God's nature were against their behavior. David suffered for his crimes in the caverns of Adullam and Messada, in the wilderness of Mahanaim, in the bereavements of Ziklag. The Bedouins after him, sickness after him, Absalom after him, Ahithopel after him, Adonijah after him, the Edomites after him, the Syrians after him, the Moabites after him, death after him, the Lord God Almighty after him. The poorest peasant in all the empire married to the plainest Jewess was happier than the king in his marital misbehavior. How did Solomon get along with polygamy. Read his warnings, in Proverbs, read his self-disgust in Ecclesiastes. He throws up his hands in loathing, and cries out: "Vanity of Vanities, all is vanity." His seven hundred wives nearly pestered the life out of him, Solomon got well paid for his crimes—well paid. I repeat that all the mighty men of the Scriptures were aloof from pologamy, save as they were pounded and flailed, and cut to pieces for their insult to holy marriage. If the Bible is the friend of polygamy why is it that in all the lands where the Bible predominates, polygamy is forbidden, and in the land where there is no Bible, it is favored? Polygamy all over China, all over India, all over Africa, all over Persia, all over heathendom, save as the missionaries have done their work; while polygamy does not exist in England and the United States, except in defiance of law. The Bible abroad, God honored monogamy. The Bible not abroad, God abhorred polygamy.

Another false charge which infidelity has made against the Bible is that it is antagonistic to woman, that is enjoins her degradation and belittles her mission. Under this impression many women have been overcome of this Plague of Infidelity. Is the Bible the enemy of woman? Come into the picture gallery, the Louvre, the Luxembourg of the Bible, and see which pictures are the more honored. Here is Eve, a perfect woman, as perfect a woman as could be made by a perfect God. Here is Deborah, with her womanly arm hurling a host into the battle. Here is Miriam, leading the Israelitish orchestra on the banks of the Red Sea. Here is motherly Hannah, with her own loving hand replenishing the wardrobe of her son Samuel, the prophet. Here is Abigail, kneeling at the foot of the mountain until the four hundred wrathful men, at the sight of her beauty and prowess, halt, halt—a hurricane stopped at the sight of a water lily, a dewdrop dashing back Niagara. Here is Ruth, putting to shame all the modern slang about mothers-in-law as she turns her back on her home and her country, and faces wild beasts and exile and death, that she may be with Naomi, her husband's mother. Ruth, the queen of the harvest fields. Ruth, the grandmother of David. Ruth, the ancestress of Jesus Christ. The story of her virtues and her life-sacrifice the most beautiful pastoral ever written. Here is Vashti, defying the bacchanal of a thousand drunken lords, and Esther, willing to throw her life away that she may deliver her people. And here is Dorcas, the sunlight of eternal fame gilding her philanthropic needle, and the woman with perfume in a box made from the hills of Alabastron, pouring the holy chrism on the head of Christ, the aroma lingering all down the corridor of the centuries. Here is Lydia, the merchantess of Tyrian purple, memorialized for her Christian behavior. Here is the widow with two mites, more famous than the Peabodys and the Lenoxes of all the ages, while here comes in slow of gait and with careful attendants and with especial honor and high favor, leaning on the arm of inspiration, one who is the joy and pride of any home so rarely fortunate as to have one, an old Christian grandmother, Grandmother Lois. Who has more worshippers to-day than any being that ever lived on earth, except Jesus Christ? Mary. For what purpose did Christ perform his first miracle upon earth? To relieve the embarrassment of a womanly housekeeper at the falling short of a beverage. Why did Christ break up the silence of the tomb, and tear off the shroud and rip up the rocks? It was to stop the bereavement of the two Bethany sisters. For whose comfort was Christ most anxious in the hour of dying excruciation? For a woman, an old woman, a wrinkled-faced woman, a woman who in other days had held him in her arms, his first friend, his last friend, as it was very apt to be, his mother. All the pathos of the ages compressed into one utterance, "Behold thy mother." Does the Bible antagonize woman?

Furthermore: rather than invite I resist this Plague of Infidelity because it has wrought no positive good for the world, and is always a hindrance. I ask you to mention the names of the merciful and the educational institutions which infidelity founded and is supporting, and has supported all the way through; institutions pronounced against God and the Christian religion, and yet pronounced in behalf of suffering humanity. What are the names of them?

There stands Christianity. There stands Infidelity. Compare what they have done. Compare their resources. There is Christianity, a prayer on her lip, a benediction on her brow, both hands full of help for all who want help; the mother of thousands of colleges; the mother of thousands of asylums for the oppressed, the blind, the sick, the lame, the imbecile; the mother of missions for the bringing back of the outcast; the mother of thousands of reformatory institutions for the saving of the lost; the mother of innumerable Sabbath Schools bringing millions of children under a drill to prepare them for respectability and usefulness to say nothing of the great future. That is Christianity.

Here is Infidelity; no prayer on her lips, no benediction on her brow, both hands clenched—what for? To fight Christianity. That is the entire business. The complete mission of Infidelity to fight Christianity. Where are her schools, her colleges, her asylums of mercy?

Is Infidelity so poor, so starving, so mean, so useless? Get out, you miserable pauper of the universe! Crawl into some rat hole of everlasting nothingness. Infidelity standing to-day amid the suffering, groaning, dying nations and yet doing absolutely nothing, save trying to impede those who are toiling until they fall exhausted into their graves in trying to make the world better. Gather up all the merciful work that infidelity has ever done, add it all together, and there is not so much nobility in it as in the smallest head of that sister of charity who last night went up the dark alley of the town, put a jar of jelly for an invalid appetite on a broken stand, and then knelt on the bare floor, praying the mercy of Christ upon the dying soul.

Infidelity scrapes no lint for the wounded, bakes no bread for the hungry, shakes up no pillow for the sick, rouses no comfort for the bereft, gilds no grave for the dead. While Christ, our Christ, our wounded Christ, our risen Christ, the Christ of this old-fashioned Bible—blessed be his glorious name forever! our Christ stands this hour pointing to the hospital, or to the asylum, saying, "I was sick and ye gave Me a couch, I was lame and ye gave Me a crutch, I was blind and ye physicianed My eye-sight, I was orphaned and ye mothered My soul, I was lost on the mountains and ye brought Me home; inasmuch as ye did it to one of the least of these, ye did it to Me."

AWFUL SKIN DISEASE

Child a Mass of Raw, Bleeding Sores. Miraculous Cure by the Cuticura Remedies.

A face, from the hair to the neck on both sides, a raw mass of bleeding sores; two little hands and arms in the same condition; a body around the waist of which was a broad band of bleeding eruptions, and from the hips to the tips of her toes the skin was so raw as to be absolutely sickening to the sight. Said Mrs. H. A. Stout to me: "I have tried everything suggested to me on my little daughter, who has been so afflicted almost from birth. I have had three doctors experiment on her, but she seemed to be getting worse every day. I was almost distracted. Every night I had to bandage her all over, and tie mittens on her hands to prevent her from digging the raw flesh with her fingers. Mr. Faulkner said he believed that CUTICURA REMEDIES would cure her. He offered to bear the expense. At that time she was worse than I had ever seen her, and there seemed no prospect of recovery. CUTICURA, CUTICURA RESOLVENT, and CUTICURA SOAP have wrought a miracle. To-day her skin is smooth and fair, and I believe she has entirely recovered." The above is true in every particular, and I refer to Mr. C. W. Woclever, druggist.

ONTARIO LEGISLATURE.

ALLEGED IRREGULARITIES IN CONNECTION WITH AN ELECTION.

End of the Lion Provident Association—Its Corporate Powers Revoked by Order-in-Council—Recognition of the Volunteers of 1837.

TORONTO, April 11.—In the Assembly yesterday Mr. Hudson, member for Hastings, moved a resolution charging D. R. Leavens, returning officer, and James McCready, one of the deputy returning officers in the last election for East Hastings, with gross irregularities and frauds in connection with the election and asking that the whole matter be referred to the Committee on Privileges and Elections for investigation. In doing so he charged that these officials made public the way in which the electors voted, comparing the names with the numbers on the ballots and thus intimidated electors; that Leavens purposely appointed himself a deputy returning officer in order to carry out his purpose better; that when counting the ballots at his poll Leavens refused to place the ballot box on the table where all could see it, but placed it under the table where none could see it but himself in order to take advantage of Mr. Hudson; that when the ballots at Leavens' poll were counted Mr. Hudson had only 71 although 74 electors have since sworn they voted for him, and the scrutineers counted on 85 votes which were clearly promised them. Turning to McCready, he claimed this official also put his ballot box under the table to the disadvantage of Mr. Hudson; that when the ballots at McCready's poll were counted there were only 95 for Mr. Hudson although 106 electors have since sworn they voted for Mr. Hudson. In another poll, the deputy returning officer, one Caviler, permitted two men to vote although their names were not on the list and refused to administer the oath although requested. On a recount a number of ballots, marked on polling day for Mr. Hudson and accepted as correct in the evening, were found to be marked with a second small cross and were rejected, thus nearly counting him out. He mentioned a number of other irregularities which were done with the deliberate purpose of defeating him.

Mr. Fraser refused to discuss the grave charges made, but declared that it was not proper to refer the matter to the committee. Mr. Hudson, who spoke so warmly, was himself on the committee and his friends who were also on the committee applauded the charges as if they were already proved. This was unseemly conduct on the part of those who would be judges if a reference were made. Was a reference to the committee necessary? Mr. Hudson has his seat, and even if the charges are proved the seat would not be affected. Moreover, a petition was filed in the courts against Mr. Hudson, who filed a cross petition. But the petitions were dismissed by the judge. Besides, the law provided that a charge of malfeasance could be made before a police magistrate, who could investigate the case free from the prejudice which would characterize the judgment of the committee. What necessity was there, then, for a reference to a committee, members of which cheered the charges made as if they were already proved?

Mr. Metcalfe and Mr. Wood (Hastings) repudiated the insinuation that they were biassed and not fit to pronounce an opinion upon the case in committee.

Mr. Meredith said the returning officer was an officer of the House, and it was the duty of the House to see that he performed his duties properly and, if necessary, punish him for wrongdoing, apart altogether from a criminal prosecution in the courts. A cross petition can contain no charges except personal ones against the opposing candidate, and therefore a cross petition cannot reach the wrongdoing of an official. A returning officer could not even be joined as a party in a cross petition. There was therefore no reason for refusing to refer the case to the committee. The charges included what is known as "stuffing" the ballot boxes. Was this not a charge which ought to be investigated by the House?

Mr. Mowat said there was no desire on the part of the Government to screen any officials if they were guilty. But the resolution did not specify the charges. It had therefore been impossible to obtain from the parties implicated their version of the case, although Mr. Mowat said he had tried to do so. Overzealous or unscrupulous men are found everywhere. Before the matter went to the committee the parties charged, having heard to-day the specific charges made, ought to have a chance to make a reply. All the precedents which he had looked up indicated that the charges must be specific before a reference could be made. The resolution also alleged irregularities. But irregularities might be unintentional or without influence on the election. There was no need therefore to refer mere irregularities to a committee when the one who was injured by these irregularities already had the seat. If the charges of fraud are true, these officials are subject to a criminal prosecution. The only punishment the House could inflict was imprisonment during the session. The session, however, will end in a couple of weeks, perhaps before the prosecution on the part of the House would be finished. A judicial investigation was always more satisfactory than one by a committee more or less prejudiced. Moreover, there was no time for such an investigation by a committee of the House because the members were fully occupied by other business. Mr. Mowat in conclusion said he was there to see that no bad precedent was formed. Without actually refusing to allow a reference to a committee he moved the adjournment of the debate in order to consider what would be done, now that the charges were specified. The debate accordingly was adjourned until Monday.

Mr. H. E. Clarke moved his resolution asking for particulars of the fees charged and collected in the Toronto registry offices and the number of days the registrars worked full time (6) hours, half time and where absent altogether. Mr. Mowat consented to allow the resolution with certain amendments. For example, there was no record of the attendance in the office and therefore that part of it could not be supplied.

Notice is given of an order-in-council, dated April 3, revoking the corporate powers of the Lion Provident Life & Live Stock Association upon consideration of the report of the commissioner who investigated the concern. The World called attention to the peculiarities of this company last summer.

Among the notices of motion is one by Mr. Willoughby declaring it expedient that the Government should make some recognition of the services of the volunteers in 1837, and another by Mr. Balfour for a return of the minutes of Toronto University Senate since July, 1887.

WHY IS IT ?

If you will listen a minute we will tell you why and how it is that we can and do lead in the crockery business. It's over fifty years since this establishment was founded in London, Ont., by the late Nathaniel Reid, who spent his younger days amongst the English potteries and gained a knowledge of the many processes of manufacture until the goods are laid upon the shelves in this country. This knowledge, handed down to the son and others who have been in the house for twenty-five years, has brought about the following results: 1st.—The ware is all made in Staffordshire, England, brought out in the plain and finished in our own decorating kilns in this country. 2nd.—In Tea Sets we can furnish 134 different patterns; Toilet Sets, 89; Dinner Sets, 96 patterns. 3rd.—To give some idea of what has been done in the Belleville branch, we have sold since the first of last August (8 months) of these three items 164 Tea Sets, 110 Toilet Sets and 93 Dinner Sets. Other lines which belong to this business, such as silver plate and lamps, we handle just as extensively and from the leading factories. The goods are all made for the legitimate crockery trade and not for giving away. We study our own trade. We have got to understand the business we follow. We can reproduce old patterns, buy larger and undersell others, and that's why we lead in this trade.

Purify The importance of keeping the blood in a pure condition is universally known, and yet there are very few people who have perfectly pure blood. The taint of scrofula, salt rheum, or other foul humor is hereditled and transmitted for generations, causing untold suffering, and we also accumulate poison and germs of disease from the air we breathe, the food we eat, or the water we drink. There is nothing more conclusively proven than the positive power of Hood's Sarsaparilla over all diseases of the blood. This medicine, when fairly tried, does expel every trace of scrofula or salt rheum, removes the taint Your which causes catarrh, neutralizes the acidity and cures rheumatism, drives out the germs of malaria, blood poisoning, etc. It also vitalizes and enriches the blood, thus overcoming that tired feeling, and building up the whole system. BELLEVILLE, SATURDAY, APRIL 11

ARE THEY AFRAID?

Mr. Hudson has, on his responsibility as a member of the Legislature, laid before that body certain charges of wrong-doing against some officials who conducted the proceedings at the last election in his constituency, and has moved that those charges be investigated by the Committee on Privileges and Elections. The Government seem determined to refuse the inquiry on technical grounds. Mr. Mowat and his colleagues must remember, however, that they cannot thus prevent the public from reaching a conclusion in the premises. On the contrary, refusal of investigation is tantamount to admission of the charges.

WE LAUGH LAST.

When it was announced that the proposed conference at Washington with regard to reciprocity had been postponed, great was the joy of the Canadian annexationists. Their organ, the Toronto Globe, which had been paving the way to such an end by advising our neighbors to hold fast to the McKinley tariff, and pointing out to them the best means of squeezing the Dominion into annexation, imagined that it had succeeded; that President Harrison and Mr. Secretary Blaine had driven away the Canadian representatives with contumely; and that the proposed conference had been, as it were, nipped in the bud.

Loud laughed the Globe over the imaginary success of its treason. It depicted the representatives of this great Dominion as fawning spaniels whose advances had been met with a vigorous kicking, and who were sneaking homeward in pain and dismay, whining over a deserved thrashing. "The conference with Secretary Blaine of the United States Cabinet lasted three minutes," said the rejoicing organ of treason. "Strong feelings against the tactics of the Macdonald Administration are held at Washington; the negotiation of a treaty by Sir Charles Tupper and his associates is a hopeless expectation," exultingly exclaimed the mouthpiece of Farrer the annexationist.

"The result is a humiliating failure," it shouted. "The last hope of access to the market of the United States through a Tory Government seems to have disappeared, and Canadians must reap the consequences of the folly, virulence and bungling of their rulers, and of the recent endorsation of a Government which dare not move beyond the limits fixed by the restrictionists."

"The long-promised reciprocity commission has visited Washington and arrived home again. Such a humiliating spectacle was never before witnessed in the capital of any country. Consider the futurity of our Government resolving to open negotiations with the Government of a country which they had been misrepresenting and maligning in every way possible during the past two months, holding them up to ridicule and scorn by means of low caricatures, which still disfigure the walls of our cities, towns and country highways. And, as if the object was to make the insult more marked, choosing as its representatives men whose lips are still foul with the unclean abuse hurled at the American people and Government. While nothing but failure could reasonably be expected as the result of the visit of such a commission sent by such a Government, it is a serious matter for this country. The door was opened by the Americans for the discussion of wider trade relations with us. The Government by its attitude and conduct during the late election, and by the stupidity of its choice of envoys to Washington, has evidently succeeded in closing the door again. That Canada is to blame for retaining the Government of Sir John Macdonald and risking all the consequences that necessarily flow from such an act of folly, is doubtless true. But the Conservative believers in reciprocity had confidence in Sir John Macdonald when he promised to try and obtain a measure of reciprocity with the United States, and they did not expect he would either ask something the United States Government had told him before they would not give, or send men to ask it, who would not receive a hearing. That nothing short of unrestricted reciprocity would fully meet the wants of Canada, or perhaps be acceptable to the United States, is doubtless true. Still it is a matter of deep regret to every Canadian that any proposal pointing in that direction should be discredited by the character and conduct of our Government to such an extent that courteous reception and discussion seems impossible."

Unhappily for the internal enemies of Canada, they laughed too soon, they emptied the vials of their malice prematurely. Their wit and wisdom have been wasted. Their would-be wise counsels have been sown on barren ground. Their sage conclusions have been shown to be mere insensate partizan folly. Mr. Blaine says all this in effect, in announcing that the conference will be commenced on the 12th of October. His action is the most scathing rebuke possible to the men who have been representing him as being, in his official capacity, an insolent boor. Their guns have been turned upon themselves. Their discomfiture is complete; but the full measure of their punishment is yet to be meted out to them. Meantime loyal Canadians have their turn to laugh, and they are now doing so.

A Dead Shot

right at the seat of difficulty, is accomplished by the sure and steady aim of Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy. Don't fool around with a pop-gun, nor a "Flint-lock," when this reliable "Winchester" is within reach! Dr. Sage's treatment of catarrh is far superior to the ordinary, and when directions are reasonably well followed, results in a permanent cure. Don't longer be indifferent to the verified claims of this unfailing remedy. $500 is offered, in good faith, for an incurable case of Catarrh in the Head, by its proprietors, the World's Dispensary Medical Association, Buffalo, N.Y. At all druggists.

SENSATION AT ST. THOMAS

CALAMITY CITY'S LATEST SPICY SCANDAL.

A Woman's Tongue Responsible for the Resignation of the Respected Pastor of the First Baptist Church—As Usual There Are Two Sides to the Question.

St. Thomas, April 10.—For some weeks past the scandal-mongers of this city have been busy tearing to tatters the good name of Rev. A. H. Munro, pastor of the Centre-street Baptist Church, of which Rev. Elmore Harris of your city some years ago had charge. So fine a subject for attack has not been before them for a long time and they are making the most of it. All sorts of stories are afloat about him, with plenty of what is made to appear as strong circumstantial evidence back of them; and if half are true he is morally ruined beyond recovery. But there is no reason to believe that they are any of them true. The busiest tattlers have been one or two other clergymen who have long been jealous of the erratic parson's popularity, and it is found that wearers of the cloth are the quickest to accept as true and keep agoing the most extravagant tales of his immorality. They are like virtuous, seldom-tempted women, who have no mercy for the sister under suspicion, and condemn her, without a hearing, as fallen. Mr. Munro, it may be true, has acted indiscreetly, but it will require the strongest testimony direct and unanswerable to satisfy his staunch friends here that he has been guilty of the grave offences with which a female member of his congregation charged him and which a joint committee appointed by himself and the congregation pronounced not true. He has, however, so conducted himself as to invite criticism, and he cannot complain if the worldly who have followed him think they have good reason to look with suspicion upon his course. Unmindful of the fact that ministers are very generally regarded as open to the same temptations and subject to the same weaknesses as other men, while they are held up to a strict accountability, even if they are not watched, he seems to have lost sight of the admonition of St. Paul to the Thessalonians, that it was essential for the Christian disciple to "abstain from even an appearance of evil." Although a married man he had often been seen walking with pretty women who are members of his congregation. There was nothing wrong in all this, but those people who do not affect the ancient and superstitious reverence which formerly went far to save a member of the sacred calling from even a suspicion of evil, commenced to talk, and what otherwise might have remained hidden or reserved for ephemeral gossip is now public property.

The Woman in the Case.

The slough of despond in which the pastor now flounders had, as has been said, its genesis in a friendship with a well-preserved member of his congregation, a Mrs. John White, widow of a former merchant tailor, and during his lifetime one of the prominent officials of the church. While visiting some relatives Mrs. White told a circumstantial story to the effect that she had met her Faustus in her preacher, that although he had grown bald in the service of the Master his holy office had not whipped the offending Adam out of him, that in fact he frequently visited her home and instead of the time being occupied in meditation, prayer and the ministry of the Word according to St. Paul's injunction to Timothy, he rehabilitated "the kiss of peace," as practised by the early Christiansat their agapes or love feasts.

Demanding an Investigation.

The story was not long in spreading. From whisperings in the closet it spread until it was heralded from the housestops, and finally reached the ears of the pastor. He promptly demanded an investigation. A committee was appointed selected from prominent members of the congregation and evidence was taken behind closed doors. It is understood that the preacher admitted that he had kissed the widow, but only in a spirit of platonic friendship. Mrs. White stuck to her story, supplementing her confession by explaining that her love for the pastor, like Aaron's rod, had a most consuming tendency. Numerous friends and relatives, however, testified that if not insane Mrs. White was given to strange imaginings and was laboring under an hallucination. The upshot was that the committee of investigation fully exonerated the pastor, who forthwith went gunning for his deacons, whom he said had been trying to undermine him.

But the report of the examining committee did not end matters. The congregation was not a unit in accepting the report of the committee as clearing the pastor of, shall we say, indiscretion, and the pew-holders became less numerous. The congregation became divided, and to add to the preacher's discomfort he received a letter from a son of Mrs. White intimating that upon a certain date he would arrive from British Columbia to shoot the destroyer of his mother's peace of mind, she having written to him making him acquainted with the "facts of the case."

The Pastor Resigns.

Finally, realizing that a house divided against itself was sure to fall, Mr. Munro sent in his resignation, which was to take effect on June 15 The majority of the congregation, however, felt that the usefulness of their pastor, so far as Centre-street Church was concerned, was at an end, and that to delay his departure until June would be to work unnecessary harm to the church. Accordingly the salary which would be due to Mr. Munro up to June 1 was Thursday tendered him, and in accepting the same he signed the following document:

$350. St. Thomas, April 8, 1891.

Received from the Centre-street Baptist Church three hundred and fifty dollars, in full of all claims and services as pastor of said church, in consideration of which I hereby and now give up charge of said church, with the privilege, however, of preaching there on next Sabbath.

As originally written, the agreement contained the words, "give up charge of said church and congregation." The words "and congregation" were objected to by the pastor and afterwards erased, a fact which confirms the statement made by a member of the congregation that a second Baptist congregation will be formed of those loyal to the preacher and will worship in the Congregational church.

A Clever Preacher.

Mr. Munro is perhaps 55 years of age. He is a man of talents—three of which he possesses in an unusual degree: He has intellectual ability, he has the gift of felicitous rhetoric and he has the very magnetism of quiet yet commanding eloquence. But it should be added that his judgment might be greatly improved—if, indeed, that is not almost wholly the gift of nature rather than the addition of grace. He appears equally indifferent to praise or censure, and sympathy for him would be thrown away. What the upshot of the affair will be cannot be predicted at present. Mr. Munro's mistake seems to have consisted in being too careless of his own reputation, unmindful of the fact that scandalous stories might easily be set afloat which it would be awkward to meet and perhaps impossible to wholly explain before a suspicious public. Conscious that he was "square," that he tried to live his life purely and clearly, "free from all breath of scandal," he failed to abstain "from an appearance of evil." His friends believed in him before the scandal; they believe in him yet, and if the result of the trouble shall lead him henceforth to consecrate his unquestioned abilities to the duties of his calling, and to that exclusively, putting platonic affection behind him, the lesson, severe as its cost has been, will not be learned wholly in vain, while the gain to the Christian pulpit will not be insignificant. A preacher cannot serve both the Lord and Plato, even if, arithmetically expressed, Plato gets only about one-tenth of one per cent. of his services. The moral is obvious. Let the minister stick to his pulpit as the cobbler to his last, and, even as Luther threw the ink-bottle at the devil, fight against the suggestion of the flesh for a display of spiritual love during pastoral visits.

The church will doubtless be crowded to the doors on Sabbath next, when Mr. Munro will deliver his farewell sermon, and that it will score sundry members who have set their faces steadfastly against him in this his hour of trouble goes without saying.

HER LIFE FOR HER SIN.

The Mother of the Murdered Bond-street Babe Dying.

Orangeville, April 10.—The mother of the infant found dead in a shed in rear of 18 Bond-street, Toronto, recently, belongs to this town and is now ill at the home of her parents in the neighboring township of Mono. She is being attended by Dr. Smith and is at present in a very critical condition. Her companion, who boarded with her at the house, is also in the vicinity. The unfortunate woman, who lies ill at her home, was at one time employed in a private residence in Mill-street, and later on at the Gordon House. About seven months ago she removed to Toronto and secured employment in some factory. Before leaving here she kept company with a young man of the East Ward who does not bear the highest reputation and who is believed to have been her seducer. This young man is also at present ill at one of the hotels, but whether his sickness is due to the prevailing la grippe or to remorse of conscience over his base treatment of the woman who trusted him, cannot be stated. It is believed the woman made away with the infant in the vain hope of hiding her shame. She is respectably connected.

BRITISH AND FOREIGN.

The Opium Traffic in India Under Consideration.

London, April 10.—In the House of Commons to-night the annual motion against allowing opium traffic in India was made by Mr. Pease. The motion was carried by a vote of 160 to 130. The Government was thus defeated, and the members of the Opposition greeted the result with loud cheers.

THE FIGHTING IN MANIPUR.

The British Loss was 14 Killed and 27 Wounded.

London, April 10.—A despatch from the Viceroy of India confirms the news that Lt. Grant on April 6 repulsed 4000 Manipuris natives armed with guns. Reinforcements are rapidly pushing forward. The Miranzais continue to resist the authorities and are erecting stone breastworks. In the Miranzai rising 14 of the British were killed and 27 wounded.

Simla, April 10.—It was the Sonaputty, or commander-in-chief of the Manipuri forces, who was killed in the engagement between Lt. Grant's forces and a force of Manipuris referred to in yesterday's despatches, and not the usurping rajah. The latter, according to a letter received by the Viceroy of India, was executed by the loyalists after the massacre of the British forces at Manipur.

Troops Arriving From India.

Plymouth, April 10.—The troopship Himalaya has arrived from India, having on board a large number of soldiers. There were 200 cases of influenza among the troops during the last fortnight, but none of them had a fatal termination.

A Hypnotist Expires After a Performance.

London, April 10.—Prof. Lowell Young, who met with much success recently in giving public exhibitions of hypnotism, died at Portsmouth Wednesday night within a few hours after publicly operating upon a number of soldiers of the garrison at that place. The cause of his death was cerebral and nervous exhaustion. The symptoms and circumstances were similar to those which accompanied the death of Bishop, the mind reader, in New York.

The Secretary Suing for Libel.

Cork, April 10.—Henry Campbell, M.P. for South Fermanagh and private secretary to Mr. Parnell, has entered an action for libel against Mrs. Nagle, the proprietor of The Cork Herald, and Ald. John Hooper of this city, lately editor of that paper, charging them with imputing through the columns of The Cork Herald that he (Campbell) procured houses for the meeting of Parnell and Mrs. O'Shea.

Italy Evidently Means Business.

Rome, April 10.—It is reported that if the United States Government does not answer the Marquis Imperiali's note by to-morrow, Mr. Porter, the American Minister here, will be ordered to leave Italy, and the whole Italian legation at Washington will be recalled and the Italian interests left in charge of the British Minister.

Many Killed at Zanzibar.

Zanzibar, April 10.—An explosion occurred to-day in the powder magazine adjoining the Sultan's palace. Thirteen persons were killed and 20 wounded.

Foreign Brevities.

The British Government are rushing the Irish land bill through committee.

Lord Randolph Churchill in the City and Suburban Handicap Thursday backed Col. North's horse Nunthorpe 25 to 1 against, and netted £35,000.

Massowah advices say inhabitants of the interior of Abyssinia have risen in rebellion and that plague and famine are rife in that country.

The court at Sunderland has granted a summons against Mr. Storey, M.P. for that division, on a charge of perjury. The perjury is alleged to have been committed in his charge against the police of assault in connection with the Silkworth strike.

The Accommodating Stranger Again.

Smith's Falls, April 10.—John Hughes of Dacre, Renfrew county, bailiff of the fifth division court, when on his way to Springtown passed a stranger walking on the road. Mr. Hughes spoke to him and the stranger said he would ride with him a piece and got into the rig. After a short time Hughes asked the stranger to hold the lines while he filled his pipe. While Hughes was engaged in filling his pipe the stranger gave him a sudden shove, upsetting him out of the sleigh and drove rapidly away. Horse and man are still missing.

Chinamen Sent Back.

Detroit, April 10.—Long Ginn and Long Goon who a few days ago crossed from Windsor to Detroit were sent across the river with admonition not to return. They took the train this afternoon for Toronto. There is a suspicion that one of these men is engaged in the business of smuggling. Eight Chinamen have attempted to cross from Windsor during the past three days but have been prevented by the federal authorities.

Still in the Land of the Living.

Fort Wayne, Mich., April 10.—The report telegraphed to Berlin, Ont., that the man Dunbrook, wanted for burglarizing a store at Berlin, had committed suicide at the Infantry barracks here by hanging himself in his cell is without foundation, as Dunbrook is still alive and as well and happy as his quarters in the guardhouse will allow.

The Imperial Authorities Consulted.

Halifax, April 10.—Hon. C. H. Tupper, Minister of Marine and Fisheries, telegraphs that the refusal of the Newfoundland Government to suspend the operation of the Bait Act against Canadian fishermen has been placed before the Imperial authorities.

THE DATE NAMED.

President Harrison Fixes the Date for the Discussion of Trade Relations.

Ottawa, April 10.—Monday, Oct. 12, has been fixed by President Harrison as the date he and Secretary Blaine will meet the Canadian delegates in Washington to discuss closer trade relations.

No delay will be caused by the postponement, inasmuch as any treaty agreed upon will be required to be ratified by the Senate and that body does not meet until next December. There is not the slightest foundation for the statement that the Ministers were treated in a discourteous manner either by Mr. Blaine or the President.

SHOT DEAD BY A FISH.

A Canadian Youth's Peculiar and Fatal Accident.

Windsor, N.B., April 10.—James Harman, a pupil at the collegiate institute, was out fishing in company with some other youths. He had a gun with him, and it is said in the excitement of a heavy tug at the end of the line the gun fell and went off, the shot entering the leg of the boy, who died six hours later from the pain, and loss of blood. The remains were taken to Halifax by the Windsor and Annapolis train last night en route to Boston, where his family reside.

A Passenger Deliberately Shoots a Railway Station Agent.

Halifax, N.S., April 10.—Stationmaster McKeen of Oxford Junction, I.C.R., was shot to-day by a passenger named Murray on the Quebec express train bound east. Murray stepped off the train at Oxford Junction, drew a revolver and fired at McKeen while he was passing him on the platform. The ball entered his breast and Murray attempted to fire again, but missed owing to McKeen holding his hand. It is thought McKeen will recover. Murray was arrested and taken to Truro. He has been living in Missouri for five years and was returning to his home in Pictou. He is thought to be insane through some family trouble in Missouri.

If you decide, from what you have heard or read, that you will take Hood's sarsaparilla, do not be induced to buy any substitute instead.

He was looking at a typo
  Piling letters in his stick,
And each one seemed to fall in line
  So gracefully and slick.
"That's easy work," he muttered,
  "I e'en could do it well
If I only had a half a chance,
  And could the boxes tell.
The typo bade him try his hand.
  O'erjoyed the stick he took,
He set one line—it's standing yet—

HISTORY REPEATS ITSELF.

in wall paper as in everything else, once in about every ten years.

It is not ten years ago though since the "fad" of papering ceilings was all the rage, nor was it five years ago! Yet this season there is a very strong demand for ceiling papers and decorations, and we firmly believe that papered ceilings will always be fashionable.

* * *

How do we know?

We'll tell you.

Economy and common sense have done it.

The world of fashion produces periodically a "fad" and if it receives "official recognition" from some fashion leader, it is considered "quite the proper thing" by the votaries of fashion and a craze ensues.

Fashion dictates more severely and draws finer lines in the matter of decoration than in anything else under her sway, and it sometimes happens that some of her "whims" become permanencies or "things of beauty and a joy forever." Economy is the great factor that transforms what was once a "fleeting fancy" into a permanent reality and that's where common sense steps in.

Although the craze of papering ceilings died out for awhile, it has returned again, not as a craze, but as a good big morsel of hard common sense, and it has come to stay. It's admitted superiority over every other style of ceiling decoration, both in attractiveness and ECONOMY has forced 'fashion' to the wall for once and in spite of herself she "returns to her first love," thus waiving the formality of waiting the allotted decade for "History to repeat itself."

Try and remember that economy and common sense have done this—for where can you find a better field for decoration in your whole house than a ceiling presents?

Please make a note of this.

The Spring Medicine.

The popularity which Hood's Sarsaparilla has gained as a spring medicine is wonderful. It possesses just these elements of health giving, blood-purifying and appetite-restoring which everybody seems to need at this season. Do not continue in a dull, tired, unsatisfactory condition when you may be so much benefitted by Hood's Sarsaparilla. It purifies the blood and makes the weak strong.

The Bridge Tested.

The Structure Satisfactory in all of its Details.

The Bay Bridge was tested yesterday afternoon, and, as was anticipated, was not found wanting. The test was made in the presence of Mr. C. H. Keefer, engineer of the structure, Mr. Aylmer, assistant engineer, and the contractors. A number of the citizens were also present and all were well pleased with the result. Before the test was made the various spans were minutely inspected by the engineer and their level taken, after which nine waggons, each laden with a cubic yard of gravel and one waggon load of scrap iron—the combined weight of which was about 43 tons—were placed in position upon each span, and notwithstanding this enormous weight the structure proved its substantial character by not moving to any perceptible extent. This heavy weight was moved from one span to another, the waggons being placed close together in order to get them upon each span separately. The test occupied some four hours and was most thorough in its character. The contractors, the Bridge Company, and in fact all citizens who are interested in the undertaking must feel proud of this great work, which has been accomplished by local mechanics.

Prof. Shepard's Entertainment.

"The fireside evening of mirth and pathos from modern authors" given at Albert College by Prof. Shepard's elocution class was one of the most excellent literary entertainments ever given in this city. Prof. Shepard is to be congratulated on the success of his class, which is one of the largest in the history of the college. Several of the performers gave evidence of superior ability and showed that they had been very carefully and skilfully trained. Many of the citizens were so delighted that they expressed a desire to have a rehearsal in some other part of the city, so that others might have an opportunity of spending such a pleasant evening. The programme consisted of twenty-one pieces. Those who took part were: Misses Lloyd, Foster, Taylor, Phillips, Bowers, I. Brignall, Dempsey, Vandewater, Dafoe, Spafford, J. Brignall, Lambly, Robinson, Cryan, Service, Profs. Shepard and Stanistreet, and Messrs. E. Latta, Sanderson, C. J. Wright, M. Chapman, Summers, Watts and Marks.

The Red Hussar.

The J. C. Duff Comic Opera Company of nearly 100 people will appear at the opera house on Wednesday evening next, April 15. At the head of the company is Miss Marie Tempest, from the Lyric theatre, London, who has created a very favorable impression in every city in which she has appeared. She will be seen here in Stevens and Solomon's military comedy opera, "The Red Hussar," which had a run of 350 nights at the Lyric theatre and 125 nights at Palmer's theatre, New York. The company comprises, in addition to Miss Tempest, Miss Irving, Miss Maud Hollins, Miss Lenora Snyder, Miss Hilda Hollins, Fanny Edwards, C. O. Bassett, Wm. McLaughlin, Clement Bambridge and other artists, with a chorus of 60 and the J. C. Duff orchestra. All of the original scenery, costumes and accessories as used in the original London production will be brought to Belleville, and a decided treat is in store for all lovers of comic opera.

Aunt Jack.

Charles Bowser, who sustains the character of Berkley Brue, the barrister, employed as counsel in the breach of promise, finds himself in a peculiar dilemma at the end of the second act of Aunt Jack. He has proposed to, and has been accepted by the lady whom he knows to be the aunt of his friend and partner, Caleb Cornish, supposing her name to be the same as that of her nephew. The action of the play suddenly reveals that the supposed Miss Cornish is in reality Miss Joan Bryson, the plaintiff in the breach of promise case. Mr. Barrister Brue's feelings at making this discovery may be more easily imagined than described. Tuesday night at the Opera House.

A Pleasing Event.

An impromptu assembly, which was one of the most enjoyable of its kind held this season, took place in the Oddfellows' Hall, under the chaperonage of Mrs. Alexander, Mrs. Fred. Lingham, and Mrs. Malcolm Wilson, last evening. Mr. Harry Simpson was one of the moving spirits in getting up the entertainment, and it was mainly due to his efforts that the assembly was conducted to so successful an issue. The refreshments, which were served at midnight, were furnished by the young ladies. It is thought that a club will be formed and similar affairs held, probably about once a month.

What She Said.

Mrs. R. Peck, E. 15th street, New York City, visited Canada last year, and had the good fortune to pick up something which not only suited her, but her neighbors also. Writing the manufacturer of Nerviline she says:—"I bought three bottles of Nerviline while in Canada and treated my neighbors to some of it and all think it the best medicine for internal or external pain they have ever used. Nerviline deserves such a commendation, for it is a most powerful, penetrating, and certain remedy, for pain of all kinds. Take no substitute.

Grand Entertainment.

The entertainment given last evening in the Opera House, by the young ladies and children, pupils of Miss Price's calisthenic class, was well patronized. Where each of the performers executed their parts to a degree of perfection it would be difficult to particularize, hence we re-produce the programme as it was presented, to the delight of all present. The proceedings reflected much credit upon Miss Price as an instructor. The selections of Misses Price and Lazier on the piano and violin were much appreciated, and these young ladies were forced to respond to encores. The following constituted the entertainment:

Would Have Swept Them Out of Existence.

(The Canadian Churchman.)

English interest in Canadian elections is very pleasant to note in the columns of our English exchanges. A sigh of relief seems wafted across the Atlantic at the evidence lately afforded that we do not want to desert the dear old Mother for the society of our free and easy Cousin Jonathan. Much as we like him, we love her first and best. We can assure our English friends that if the Reform party here had openly and clearly advocated Annexation, they would have been swept out of existence at the recent election.

Clark's Lightning

Liniment will relieve the painful torture of rheumatism in the joints or muscles. It should be well rubbed in with the hand, and the part covered with a piece of flannel. The pain will cease with the first application, and its continued use will effect a marvellous cure. This remedy needs but a trial to convince the most skeptical that it is a wonderful preparation. Sold by all druggists: price fifty cents. Clark Chemical Co., Toronto, New York.

Presentation.

Mrs Fanny Murdoff, organist of the Centenary church, Sidney, having determined to remove to Napanee, some seventy of her friends assembled at her home, in Sidney, on the evening of the 1st inst, and presented her with an address expressive of their esteem, together with a beautiful hanging lamp and a handsome album. Mr. W. Wilson presided and Mrs. Peter Goldsmith made the presentation. Rev. S. Duprau, the pastor, and several other friends also spoke in the most feeling terms.

A Pleasant Herb Drink—A Spring Medicine.

The druggists tell us that people call daily for the new cure for constipation and sick-headache discovered by Dr. Silas Lane. It is said to be Oregon grape root (a great remedy in the far west for those complaints) combined with simple herbs, and is made ready for use by pouring on boiling water to draw out the strength. It sells at 50c and $1 a package and is called Lane's Family Medicine.

An Unfortunate Young Man.

A. Vanblaricom, son of Mr. Wm. Vanblaricom, of the 3rd con. of Sidney, is a young man of unsound mind and at times is exceedingly violent. Yesterday he left the house and no trace of him has been found, although High County Constable Johnston and others have searched continuously. It is feared that he will do harm.

Assaulted and Threatened.

Mr. Samuel Dunning and his sister were yesterday driving through Latta's Mills, when the horse was seized by two men and Dunning was assaulted and threatened by Mr. Jas. Latta. This morning Latta was arrested by constable Seay and was bound over to keep the peace, after which he was allowed his liberty.

—Secretary Noble has ordered all intruders out of the Sac and Fox, Cheyenne and Arapahoe and Iowa and Pottawattomie Indian reservations, and has instructed the soldiers to clear the entire country.

—The engagement of Mr. Ogden Armour, eldest son of Philip D. Armour, the multi-millionaire dressed beef packer, to Miss Sheldon, a member of a prominent New York family, is announced in Chicago.

"MAX'S" MIXTURE

Of a Local and General Interest.

There is one matter which should receive the attention of the proper authorities, that is the sprinkling of South Front street, from the Commercial house to the wharf. During the past few summers the dust there has been something dreadful. It has been impossible for pedestrians to traverse that thoroughfare without being made to run the gauntlet of a miniature cyclone of dust. Surely this inconvenience could be remedied by a small outlay, and the result gained would more than repay the expenditure.

There has been considerable discussion re the report of the special committee appointed to lighten the city's running expenses. I cannot see why it is that the civic officials, although they may be worthy and faithful servants, should not slightly feel the financial pinch that harasses their fellow citizens.

Did you ever notice, on a sunny day, the number of "wall flowers" that congregate on the sidewalk in front of the Dominion House—most of them young men who have been living on "de old woman" all winter, and some who will continue to do so all summer?

I see Manager Tammadge has two good attractions booked for this month, "Aunt Jack" on the 14th, and "The Red Hussar" on the 15th. Both of these companies are of the highest class in their respective lines, and will accordingly be greeted with good houses.

Eugene A. McDowell, a well-known favorite among theatre goers in Belleville, together with his talented wife, Fanny Reeves, and company are at present playing a successful engagement in Kingston, Jamaica. Fortune has not been kind to "Mac" within the last few years, but I don't think he ought to be a loser on his present venture, as it is about the only dramatic attraction in Jamaica, during the present exposition.

Harry Lindlay has been revelling in red fire, ghost dances, &c., in his new play "Sitting Bull." He was at Kelly's Front St. Theatre, Baltimore, last week and, according to the press, the irrepressible Harry is as volatile as ever.

A Little Information for "Town Talk."

To the Editor of the Intelligencer:

"Town Talk's" article of 12 divisions in Daiyl Intelligencer of 6th inst. might have passed without notice if it had not contained so much unjust censure and uncharitable insinuation. For instance, in the 7th division where he or she infers that some people believe a passport to heaven consists in a belief in assumed Christian perfection and surpliced choirs and fasting for 40 days, etc., instead of doing something for the Master in relieving suffering humanity. It is very evident that "Town Talk" is not acquainted with what a surpliced choir in Belleville and elsewhere did in past years and are still doing for suffering humanity. The records of our hospital and home for the destitute, and the ladies' benevolent society will show a large excess of surpliced choir churches over the non-surpliced choir churches and in the world at large. Take for instance, the city of London, England, where the Church of England spends yearly over $25,000,000 for the Master and suffering humanity. More than all the other non-surpliced churches, and the Salvation Army thrown in as a makeweight. Two eminent statistical non-conformist ministers bearing testimony to these facts, read Church Guardian of 4th of March, 1891, where the $25,000,000 is accounted for in detail. But the surpliced choir churches remember the Master's caution, "Let not thy left hand know what thy right hand doeth." If "Town Talk" could only shew a record like this, then it could with some face of sincerity give charitable advice to other churches. There is no "self-assumption of christian perfection" here, "Town Talk," but merely carrying out the Master's injunctions and example to relieve the distressed and suffering humanity without invidious comparisons with other christian peoples. "Town Talk" is again out of place in condemning home discipline, in his 9th division, because some young men neglect to throw something on the plate when the collection is taken up in church. This is a very slender cause for condemnation of the home government. A little more of that christian charity that "thinketh no evil," would have saved "Town Talk" this exposure of his ignorance and want of that charity that always looks on the bright features of his neighbor's conduct, and shrinks from exposing his imperfections to a censorious world. Read and think more, talk less and write lesser, and you will be much happier. This from old Uncle Toby.

The Date Fixed.

The important despatch of our Ottawa correspondent this morning is a complete and crushing answer to the absurd and extravagant fictions of the Opposition organ regarding the negotiations at Washington. It is announced officially that a definite date has been fixed for the beginning of the discussion between the representatives of Canada and the United States, and that October 12 has been chosen as the time for the meeting. Thus dissolves the whole structure of Opposition invention; the foolish falsehoods; the inventions of difficulties that never arose; the talk of discourteous treatment; the charge that there would be no negotiations; the pretence that when the delegates left Washington, to return to the call of the President, they would never be summoned back—the whole bundle of untruths goes down at one stroke, to the intense discomfiture of any faithful Grits who took the least stock in the productions of over-clever, and therefore clumsy, falsifiers.

It is clear from the straightforward statements of our Ministers that they were not treated with any discourtesy, that the journey to Washington was the result of perfectly natural and easily explained circumstances, and that there is no unwillingness on the part of the Washington Administration to discuss in a friendly manner with our Government the relations between the two countries and the possibilities of adjusting them by means of a treaty. The date selected by the President and Mr. Blaine for the resumption of negotiations, October 12, will, it is understood, be satisfactory to our Government. It seems a reasonable choice, seeing that the President's tour to the west will probably last until the early summer, and official conferences could not comfortably be carried on immediately after that. In fact, it is exceedingly doubtful whether Sir Richard Cartwright and the other Opposition worthies ever make pilgrimages to the American capital in the hot season. The early part of October also provides ample time for discussion before the meeting of the Senate, without the sanction of which body no agreement arrived at could go into effect.

This definite announcement disposes of the utterly untruthful assertions of the Globe inventors, whose malicious, persistent and impudent concoctions have disgusted all fair-minded people and made the leaders of the party ridiculous.—Empire.

A SUICIDAL WAVE.

MANY MEN TOOK THEIR LIVES IN ONTARIO YESTERDAY.

Poison Carries off Some But the Rope is the Favorite Means—A Prominent St. Catharines Freemason Among the Number—Accidents and Sudden Deaths.

St. Catharines, April 10.—Richard Ratcliffe, of the firm of Ratcliffe & Parnell, committed suicide this afternoon. When Parnell went to the premises at 2.15 he found the door locked. He unlocked it and went inside and half-an-hour later on going upstairs to the workshop found Ratcliffe suspended by the neck from the ventilator over the door, his feet just touching the floor. The body was cut down but life was extinct. Dr. Goodman did not consider an inquest necessary. Deceased was suffering from an acute attack of grippe, which brought on temporary insanity. A letter was found in deceased's pocket unsigned, but in Ratcliffe's handwriting, in which he clearly made manifest his intention to commit suicide. The religious allusions contained in the letter, together with its peculiar style and the unwarranted depression manifested, showed conclusively that deceased's mind was unbalanced. Ratcliffe, who was in comfortable circumstances, was about 63 years of age and leaves a wife and four young children. He was one of the best known Freemasons in the district. P. G. tyler of the Grand Lodge, tyler of the three city lodges, and guard of the Plantagenet Preceptory, K.T.

Leaped From the Ferry to Death.

Detroit, April 10.—As the transfer Lansdowne was returning from the Canadian shore and neared the dock at the foot of 24th-street this afternoon, a middle-aged man wearing a dark suit of clothes and grey beard and mustach deliberately jumped into the river and sank. Life preservers were thrown, but he was drowned. The body was recovered. No one knew who he was and there was nothing to identify him.

The Knife and Carbolic Acid.

Gladstone, Man., April 10—Shore Woodside, living alone on a farm near here tried to take his life by cutting his throat. Not accomplishing this he swallowed carbolic acid. Neighbors who called to see him said he had his throat tightly bound up to prevent bleeding. He kept holding the bandages tightly in his hand and wouldn't allow any one to examine his wound. His clothing was covered with blood. He is still alive.

A Boy Hangs Himself.

Morrisburg, Ont., April 10.—John Leach, a boy from the Orphans' Home, was sent to clean a stable while his employer, Mr. Beckstead of Dunbar, went to a neighbor's to get his mail. When he returned he noticed the stable door open and went to see what was wrong, when he found the boy suspended from the upper floor by a rope that was used to hold a pole between the horses. He cut him down, but life was extinct.

Out of Work, He Sought Oblivion.

Montreal, April 10.—Thomas Davis, a young Englishman out of work and money, attempted to commit suicide. He appeared before the police court and was let off with a warning.

Drowned in a Mill Dam.

Mille Roches, Ont., April 10.—An accident happened this afternoon at Hutchinson & Co.'s works on the Cornwall canal enlargement at this place by which one man was killed and another injured. They were working in an excavation when the bank gave way, burying one man named Portras and breaking the arm of John Cummings. The body of Portras was recovered in about half an hour, but life was extinct.

A Wife's Terrible Find.

Halifax, N.S., April 10.—At Laugille's sawmill, Mahone Bay, yesterday, Mrs. Joseph Ernest found her husband's body in a standing position in the dam when she went to give him his dinner. His head was only a few inches under the water. The supposition is he was on a small raft getting a log to haul up and the raft parted and he went down feet first.

Caused by a Telephone Wire.

Woodville, Ont., April 10.—James Wilson of this village, a conductor on a train running from Niagara to Rochester, when entering Rochester was thrown from his train by coming in contact with a telephone wire. A switch engine backing down at the same time ran over him and he died immediately after. The body arrived here Wednesday evening.

A Toronto Doctor's Widow.

Orangeville, April 10.—Mrs. Margaret Henry was well in the morning, ate a hearty breakfast, and was engaged in some work upstairs when stricken down and only lived a few minutes. The deceased was the relict of the late Dr. Henry of Toronto, was a native of Sligo, Ireland, and was 73 years of age.

Belonged to St. Thomas.

St. Thomas, April 10.—Daniel McMullen, engineer, son of Engineer John McMullen of this city, was killed on the Wisconsin Central by the overturning of his engine at Verdon, Wis., yesterday.

Had Relatives in London.

St. Paul, Minn., April 10.—Thomas Price, bridge carpenter, was killed yesterday in Montana. He has relatives in London, Ont.

Killed in Chicago.

Hamilton, April 10.—The remains of Maurice Devine arrived here to-day. He was killed while coupling in the Illinois Central yard at Chicago.

Foot Amputated From a Peculiar Cause.

Moncton, N.B., April 10.—Mrs. George Everett of Tobique had one of her feet amputated just above the ankle yesterday. It appears that the foot was bruised and cut some time since by a nail in the sole of her shoe, and from this blood poisoning set in. The operation was performed too late, however, and the woman is dying.

Result of a Burglar's Visit.

Vancouver, B.C., April 10.—A day or so ago a shooting accident occurred at Wellington, which was all but fatal in its results. A resident who had been disturbed the previous night by an attempted burglary, borrowed a 45-calibre bulldog revolver from a fellow-workman for use in the event of a second visit. While showing the weapon to a friend, a cartridge—the only one he had—exploded, the bullet entering his wife's arm and inflicting a painful wound. The lady was passing at the time, and had she been a few inches nearer the weapon the missile would have passed through her body.

Swallowed Half His Mustach.

London, April 10.—Mrs. Langtry produced "Linda Grey" to-night, at the Princess's Theatre. During the performance, at the moment when Victor Broughton (Mr. Bernard Gould, Mrs. Langtry's leading man), rushes to embrace his wife, Linda Grey, (Mrs. Langtry), the actor swallowed one side of his drooping mustach, the other half still adorning his upper lip. He at last managed to splutter it out of his mouth amid the merriment of the audience, and quietly put it in his pocket. He then tore off the other half of his mustach and played the rest of the part as a smooth-faced man.

Taps from the Telegraph.

Patrick Sexton, aged 22, was cut in two by a circular saw in a Stone Mills, N.Y., lumber mill yesterday.

Disguised men took William Bates, the murderer of Policeman Harper, from Kenton, Ohio, jail yesterday and hanged him to a tree.

The Spring.

Of all the seasons in the year, is the one for making radical changes in regard to health. During the winter, the system becomes to a certain extent clogged with waste, and the blood loaded with impurities, owing to lack of exercise, close confinement in poorly ventilated shops and homes, and other causes. This is the cause of the dull, sluggish, tired feeling so general at this season, and which must be overcome, or the health may be entirely broken down. Hood's Sarsaparilla has attained the greatest popularity all over the country as the favorite Spring Medicine. It expels the accumulation of impurities through the bowels, kidneys, liver, lungs and skin, gives to the blood the purity and quality necessary to good health and overcomes that tired feeling.

—A cable from London says the French Government, on representations made by Sir Charles Tupper, has consented to admit Canadian hog products, and some consignments have been already made.

—Glove-making by machinery is a new industry in New York; machinery and workmen have been imported from France, and a customer ordering a pair of gloves in the morning may get them in the afternoon. The article is said to be fully equal to any foreign importation.

Robert Bogle, Esq., Belleville Business College, Belleville, Ont.:

Dear Friend,—Your very welcome letter of the 13th ult. was duly received.

You asked in your letter if I had any difficulty in performing my work as stenographer. I am glad to tell you that I have not had any difficulty in the least, as you assured me I would not, before leaving your college. I have to write from 30 to 40 letters a day, and there is enough other office work to keep me busy, but it is not hard.

Tell the students never to be afraid, after they have received as careful training as I got.

In conclusion I have to say that any young gentleman or young lady wishing to improve his or her time, may rest assured that they will never regret the time and money spent while attending the above named institution.

Yours very truly,
J. W. ANDERSON,

TORONTO TRUTH'S New Spring Bible Competition

NO. 22.

In these latter days there have arisen many false schemes and many scores of imitations of Truth's Competitions, but one after another have failed and utterly perished, yet Truth remains, and makes good all its promises. Its reputation is now too well established to risk damaging it, and as it has cost a very large amount of money and many years of care and labor to build up, the publisher could not afford to fail in carrying out all his agreements to the letter. There are twenty-one divisions of the largest list of bona fide prizes ever offered and ever actually given away by any publisher in the world. The total value of prizes in this Spring list is about $10,000,00. The lists are so large it would cost altogether too much to give them in detail here. There are pianoes, gold and silver watches, china tea and dinner sets, ladies' and gentlemen's bicycles, silver tea-sets, silk dresses, books, money, and hundreds of other valuable rewards. You pay nothing for these prizes, as everyone concedes that full value is received for the dollar in securing Truth every week for three months. Send one dollar and answers to the five following questions: Where in the Bible are these words found? 1, Grain; 2, Corn; 3, Wheat; 4, Barley; 5, Rye. If your answers are correct and your letters arrive in time you are almost sure to get a reward, as there are so many and every one cannot always find correct answers to all these questions. All the five answers must be correct to get any prize, but you will get full value for the dollar in Truth if you don't get anything else. If you want to see the list of rewards before sending in your dollar, mail Truth ten cents and a copy will be sent you containing the list of prizes. But there have been very few dissatisfied prize-winners in previous competitions, considering that he has given away during the past eight years scores of thousands of prizes. Some people expect a piano for every dollar sent, and are mad if they don't get it. He wishes it were possible to give every subscriber a gold watch or a piano or both, but says it can't be done. Some publishers intimate they will, but nobody can do it for any length of time. Send one dollar and correct answers and you won't repent it; and bear in mind that it is not guaranteed that every body whose answers are correct will get a prize, but that all the prizes in the twenty-one different lists will be given away. The competition remains open only till the last day of June next, inclusive, after which the prizes will be immediately distributed to the successful ones. Ten days will be allowed for letters to reach Truth from distant points after the 30th of June. All, however, must be postmarked where mailed not later than the 30th June, or any time between now and that date. Address S. Frank Wilson, "Truth" Office, Toronto, Ont., Canada.

We Claim the Earth.

We claim the earth is round, and we know it's true. We also claim that Hagyard's Yellow Oil cures sprains, bruises, burns, colds, croup, sore throat, rheumatism, neuralgia, and all painful or inflammatory diseases, and we know this is true. Yellow Oil is a true family remedy for lameness or soreness in man or beast.

Sit Down and Think.

Sit down and think; 1st, that dyspepsia is caused by wrong action of the stomach; 2nd, that Burdock Blood Bitters is designed to correct and regulate the stomach; 3rd, that it always cures dyspepsia and costs less than a cent a dose. Can you afford to be dyspeptic?

POISONS IN SUICIDE.

RELATIVE POPULARITY OF DRUGS AS A MEANS TO THIS END.

The Indescribable Agony Produced by Arsenical Poison—Morphine the Favorite Dose of Recent Suicides—Strychnine Comes Next in Point of Popularity.

"The agony produced by arsenical poison is indescribable," said a successful young physician as the subject of violent deaths was broached. "There is no form of suffering as severe as that caused by this deadly mineral poison.

"This fact is so well known," he continued, "that it is very singular so many persons use this poison as a means of self-destruction, when there are other methods of terminating an existence with no suffering whatever."

"What is the favorite poison used by suicides, Doctor?" queried a listener.

"At present morphine is more frequently used, both by those desirous of terminating their existence and also for murderous purposes by thugs and assassins. The morphine habit is so prevalent in America that the drug can be purchased with very little trouble at any drug store. This makes it easy for those who lack the self-confidence to put on a bold look when the druggist must be "bluffed." Then again, morphine is much cheaper than any other deadly drug, so the poor are not obliged to hoard their savings for any great length of time to make the purchase, and most important of all is the raptuous and ecstatic state of bliss you are in just before death stops the pulsations of your heart.

"Next to morphine in point of popularity come strychnine and arsenic in some one of the many forms, rat poison, Paris green, etc. The various acids, such as prussic, carbolic, nitric, muriatic and others are quite frequently taken by accident, just as belladonna, corrosive sublimate, aconite, vitriol and the other mineral poisons are taken."

"Is it hard to distinguish a case of poisoning from drunken stupors, cholera morbus cases and others?"

"A case of mineral or narcotic poisoning is easily known, as the patient is undergoing the greatest agony, which is shown by convulsions, spasmodic movements and violent retchings. A morphine or opium case is much harder to detect, as there are thirteen comatose conditions known to the medical profession and it often takes considerable time to distinguish one from the other.

"There was a man brought to the Cook County Hospital, where I am engaged, a short time ago, about 2 o'clock in the morning. He was about 35 years of age and bore the appearance of a successful business man. His breath smelled strongly of alcohol, and we were on the point of sending him to the alcoholic ward, when one of the officers said he was picked up on South Halsted street, in one of the hardest neighborhoods, and that foul play was suspected. Acting on the advice, we took the man to the operating room, and, upon arriving there, found the eyes starting from the head and the face assuming a dark appearance. Concluding that it was a case of morphine poisoning, we began work on him and in a few hours the man was awake. Such errors of judgment are of necessity quite frequent."

"When the cause of the comatose condition is discovered to be morphine or opium the patient is stripped, laid upon the back and a siphon (which takes the place of the stomach-pump) is forced into the stomach. Water is then poured in through the siphon, and all of the contents of the stomach are brought out. The patient is then severely flagellated with wet towels while being rapidly walked up and down the room. After several hours, of whipping, walking, pinching, and any other rough treatment that can safely be given, the patient arouses from the deadly stupor and soon is able to know something of what is going on about him.

"The method of resuscitating patients who were poisoned with narcotic or mineral poisons is very different. Each poison has its own peculiar antidote, and what will counteract the effect of one poison will have no effect whatever upon another. Take, for instance, a case which recently occurred at the hospital. A woman was brought in by the police patrol with violent convulsions and retching. We started upon it as a case of arsenical poisoning, and after thoroughly cleansing the stomach forced a large dose of sulphate of zinc down her throat. At the end of the treatment the woman was no better than at first. Indeed, she seemed to be growing worse each moment. The paroxysms were more frequent, the heart was more irregular in its beating and she breathed with great difficulty. We then gave a powerful emetic and followed that with an antidote for strychnine, and its action showed in a very short time that we were correct in our later surmise. It was a case of strychnine poisoning."

"Are there many cases of asphyxiation brought to the County Hospital?"

"No, there are not many. Poisoning by gas is more often accidental than preconcerted, and in the former case a physician is immediately called in, and the patient is removed to a room where there is pure air and plenty of it. Almost every one knows how to care for an asphyxiated person, and it is only necessary for a physician to give the proper medicine to enable the patient to regain strength.

"When a person attempts to commit suicide with gas he or she almost invariably takes such precautions that help cannot possibly arrive until the action of the heart has entirely stopped. That case in an Eastern city but a short time ago is a very good example of that. A young business man upon making an unfortunate investment, repaired to one of the hotels, where he engaged a room for two days. Before retiring he told the clerk to let him sleep as long as he wanted to, as he had been awake for several nights and needed much rest.

"The man's appearance gave credence to his statement, and the clerk gave orders to the chambermaid to pass room—while making her usual rounds. The young man retired, and nothing more was thought about it until late that afternoon, when a messenger hurriedly entered and told the clerk that the young business man had come there with the intention of committing suicide. As a note from the young man to a brother was shown to corroborate the statement, the clerk went to the room. Finding the door locked and hearing nothing from within, the glass in the transom was broken. A perfect flow of stupefying gas rushed out of the room. The door was broken open and the man was found scarcely breathing.

In making preparations the suicide had taken the bed clothing and stopped up every crevice. He had hung a heavy quilt over the transom and securely fastened the windows, after which he had deliberately undressed and, turning on the gas as widely as possibly, had laid down on the bare mattress. Of course, aid arrived too late, for death came but a few minutes afterward. But if the message had arrived an hour earlier the man's life could have been saved."—Chicago Herald.

Gagadig Gigadab.

There is a quaint old man in Manchester, England, who goes by the unique name of Gagadig Gigadab. His original name, so the story goes, was John Smith, but many years ago he began to brood over the possibilities of mistaken identity involved in such a common name. The name figured frequently in the criminal records, and he became abnormally apprehensive lest he might be confused with some of these bad John Smiths. At last what he feared so much actually happened. One morning the papers recorded the capture of an accountant in a bank embezzlement, and through some blunder of the reporter the identity of the embezzler was confused with the subject of this paragraph, who was also a bank accountant. Then and there he determined to assume a name like unto no other ever borne by mortal man. And in Gagadig Gigadab most people will agree that he has done so.

OWLS.

They Are the Farmer's Best Friends and He Doesn't Know It.

Of all birds, from the farmers' standpoint, owls are the most useful. They hunt silently and in the night, and are nothing short of lynx-eyed cats with wings. The benefit they confer upon agriculturists is most incalculable, and is susceptible of proof. It is well known that owls hunt by night; but it may be less a matter of common knowledge that, like other birds of prey, they return by the mouth the hard indigestible parts of the food in the form of elongated pellets. These are found in considerable quantities about the birds' haunts, and an examination of them reveals the fact that owls prey upon a number of predaceous creatures, the destruction of which is directly beneficial to man.

Of course, the evidence gained in this way is infallible, and to show to what extent owls assist in preserving the balance of nature, it may be mentioned that 700 pellets examined yielded the remains of 6 bats, 13 rats, 237 mice, 693 voles, 1,590 shrews and 22 birds. These truly remarkable results were obtained from the common barn owl, and the remains of the 22 bird. were those of 19 sparrows, 1 greenfinch and 2 swifts. The tawny and long-eared owls of our woodlands are also mighty hunters, and an examination of their pellets shows equally interesting evidence.

It must be remembered in this connection that Britain is essentially an agricultural country, and that if its fauna is a diminutive one it is none the less formidable. We have ten tiny field creatures, constituting an army in themselves, that if not kept under would quickly devastate our fields. These ten species consist of four mice, three voles, and three shrews. Individually so tiny are these that any one species could comfortably curl itself up in the divided shell of a horse chestnut.

But farmers well know that if these things are small they are by no means to be despised. Now that the corn crops are cut and the hay housed, the field vole and the meadow mouse are deprived of their summer shelter. Of this the barn owl is perfectly aware, and at evening he may be seen sweeping low over the meadows, seeking whom he may devour. And with what results we already know.

Much unnatural history has been written of the owls, and unfortunately most people have their ideas of them from the poets. The owl is not moping, nor mourning, nor melancholy, neither is he dolorous nor mournful. He is neither grave monk, nor anchorite, nor pillared saint. Poets write by day, and owls fly by night, and, doubtless, Mr. Gray and his school have their opinion of owls from staring at stuffed specimens in glass cases, or at the birds of wisdom surprised in the full light of day, when they will be seen blinking, ogling, nodding and hissing at each other, very unlike representatives of Minerva.

"Christopher North" is the only author who has done justice to the owls, or justice to the poets, for the matter of that, by his denunciation of their epithets and false images. He knew well that the white owl never mopes, but holds its revels through the livelong night, when all else is hushed and still.

Most birds are stoics compared to owls, and those who cultivate their acquaintance know that they have no time wherein to make their poetical complaints to the moon. Poets should not meddle with owls. Shakespeare and Wordsworth alone have understood them—by all others they have been scandalously libelled, from Virgil to Poet Close.

The barn owl, when she has young, brings to her nest a mouse every twelve minutes, and, as she is actively employed both at evening and dawn, as both male and female hunt, forty mice a day is the lowest computation we can make. How soft is the plumage of the owl, how noiseless her flight! Watch her as she floats past the ivy tod, down by the ricks, and silently over the old wood. Then away over the meadows, through the open door and out of the loop-hole of the barn, round the lichened tower, and along the course of the brook.

Presently she returns to her four downy young, with a mouse in one claw and a mole in the other, soon to be ripped up, torn, and eaten by the greedy, snapping imps. The young are produced from April to December, and not unfrequently both young and eggs are found in the same nest. If you would see the midday siesta of the owls, climb up into some hay-mow. Therein is an angle of the beam you will see their owlship, snoring and blinking wide their great round eyes. Their duet is the most unearthly, ridiculous, grave like-nothing-else noise you ever heard.—Cornhill Magazine.

Luck and the Emperor.

A gentleman who has traveled in Russia relates the following:

"I remember once when playing ecarte at a ball given by the empress to the late emperor, the latter who was wandering about, came behind me to watch the game. My adversary and I were both at four, and it was my deal.

"'Now,' said the emperor, 'let us see whether you can turn up a king.'

"I dealt and then held up the turn-up card, observing, 'Your orders, sire, have been obeyed.'

"The emperor was greatly astonished, and a dozen times afterwards asked me how I managed it, and he never would believe that it was a mere hazard, that I had taken the chance of the card being a king."

There are upwards of 50,000 earthworms, in every acre of ordinary agricultural land.

The saltest piece of water on earth is the Lake of Urumia in Persia, situated more than 4000 feet above the sea level. It is much salter than the Dead Sea, the water having been found to contain, on analysis nearly 22 per cent. of salts.

The brain of Cuvier, the famous French naturalist, weighed 64½ ounces, and his, it is said, was the largest and heaviest normal brain on record. That of the genial and sagacious Dr. Abercrombie weighed 63 ounces; that of Lord Byron, 58 ounces; and that of the illustrious Dr. Chalmers, of Edinburgh, who had a very thick skull, 53 ounces.

Speaking of Tips.

A TIP is a piece of special or valuable information such as this, that Hagyard's Yellow Oil is a prompt and effectual cure for croup, colds, hoarseness, sore throat, rheumatism, neuralgia, sprains or soreness of any kind. Known as reliable over 30 years.

Important and True.

No better evidence of the fact that Burdock Blood Bitters is a certain remedy for all blood diseases can be asked than that of Mr. Geo. V. Thomas, druggist, of Hull, P. Q., whose wife was cured of cancer by B.B.B. The family doctor is certain that the disease was cancer and that it is now cured.

DR. WILLIAMS' PINK PILLS FOR PALE PEOPLE

ARE NOT a Purgative Medicine. They are a BLOOD BUILDER, TONIC and RECONSTRUCTOR, as they supply in a condensed form the substances actually needed to enrich the Blood, curing all diseases coming from POOR and WATERY BLOOD, or from VITIATED HUMORS in the BLOOD, and also invigorate and BUILD UP the BLOOD and SYSTEM, when broken down by overwork, mental worry, disease, excesses and indiscretions. They have a SPECIFIC ACTION on the SEXUAL SYSTEM of both men and women, restoring LOST VIGOR and correcting all IRREGULARITIES and SUPPRESSIONS.

EVERY MAN Who finds his mental faculties dull or failing, or his physical powers flagging, should take these PILLS. They will restore his lost energies, both physical and mental.

EVERY WOMAN should take them. They cure all suppressions and irregularities, which inevitably entail sickness when neglected.

YOUNG MEN should take these PILLS. They will cure the results of youthful bad habits, and strengthen the system.

YOUNG WOMEN should take them. These PILLS will make them regular.

TENDERS.

SEALED TENDERS addressed to the undersigned and endorsed "Tender for Indian Supplies," will be received at this office up to noon of SATURDAY, 9th May, 1891, for the delivery of Indian supplies, during the fiscal year ending 30th June, 1892, consisting of Flour, Beef, Bacon, Groceries, Ammunition, Twine, Agricultural Implements, Tools, &c., duty paid, at various points in Manitoba and the North-West Territories.

Forms of tender, containing full particulars relative to the Supplies required, dates of delivery, &c., may be had by applying to the undersigned, or to the Indian Commissioner at Regina, or to the Indian Office, Winnipeg.

Parties may tender for each description of goods (or for any portion of each description of goods) separately or for all the goods called for in the Schedules, and the Department reserves to itself the right to reject the whole or any part of a tender.

Each tender must be accompanied by an accepted Cheque in favor of the Superintendent General of Indian Affairs, on a Canadian Bank, for at least five per cent. of the amount of the tender, which will be forfeited if the party tendering declines to enter into a contract based on such tender when called upon to do so, or if he fails to complete the work contracted for. If the tender be not accepted, the cheque will be returned, and if a contract be entered into for a part only of the supplies tendered for, an accepted cheque for five per cent. of the amount of the contract may be substituted for that which accompanied the tender; the contract security cheque will be retained by the Department until the end of the fiscal year.

Each tender must, in addition to the signature of the tenderer, be signed by two sureties acceptable to the Department for the proper performance of the contract based on his tender.

This advertisement is not to be inserted by any newspaper without the authority of the Queen's Printer, and no claim for payment by any newspaper not having had such authority will be admitted.

COLLIERY EXPLOSION.

ALL BUT TWO OF THE MINERS WERE KILLED.

A Staffordshire Horror—The Man who was Responsible for the Disaster Found with a Coil of Fuse in His Hand—Particulars of the Disaster.

LONDON, April 13.—A terrible explosion took place about 9.45 o'clock last night at the Gladderhill Mine, belonging to the Midland Coal, Coke and Iron Company at Chesterton. The disastrous character of the explosion may be judged by the fact that out of twelve men in the workings at the time only two have escaped with their lives. The Gladderhill Pit is an old mine, one or two of the seams of which are worked out. The explosion itself occurred in the lowest seam, viz., the Bullhurst. This seam is of an exceedingly fiery nature, and most of the great explosions which have taken place in North Staffordshire have originated in this particular stratum. The mine is connected with the famous Burley Pit, where many serious explosions have taken place in years gone by. The mouth of the latter mine is only about 100 yards away and on the same embankment. Work at the Gladderhill Pit, as in many other pits throughout North Staffordshire, has been very slack. Had the disaster occurred when work was in full swing the death-roll would in all probability have been very heavy indeed. In ordinary times fully 250 men are engaged beneath the surface in coal getting and the necessary collateral labor. Very few men were about the colliery. It appears the scene of the explosion is in the top heading, and in a down thirling, which is about four yards down. This thirling was being driven down by a man named Sampson Knight, who, it appears, had done his cutting, and it is thought his shot must have caused the explosion. The shot had not got the coal, but it blew out the ramming. The fireman, Warburton, was found with a coil of fuse in his hand. All the persons killed would have been out of the pit in a very few minutes, as some had done, and were already dressed. The number killed is ten.

THEY WILL BE HEARD.

Newfoundland Delegates to Appeal in Person to Parliament.

LONDON, April 13.—The Times believes the Newfoundland delegates will be allowed to appeal at the bar in Parliament, but it is hardly likely they will be able to change the Government's intentions in regard to the alleged grievances in connection with the convention with the United States. The Times thinks it would be wise for Newfoundland to make friends with Canada and amalgamate the interests of the provinces. It says possibly a convention between Canada and the United States, for the conclusion of which there seems a fair chance next autumn, will contain clauses of sufficient value to Newfoundland to be a balm for all wounds.

Indignant Liquor Dealers.

LONDON, April 12.—The last week in Parliament has been made notable in a special degree by a succession of blows which have been dealt the English liquor dealers and the traffic in opium in India. Never before have these two trades been so assiduously scored by the House of Commons. Deputations of spirit and beer traders have waited on Mr. Goschen demanding that the Chancellor of the Exchequer rescind the sur tax which he imposed upon them for local purposes in his last preceding budget, when the money thus raised and now recommended for educational purposes was deviated from that end for whatever he regarded as more immediate necessities. The delegates have urged upon Mr. Goschen's attention the fact that the liquor trade has always stood by the Conservative Government, and that, therefore, it has a right to claim to be treated as a friend. Mr. Goschen, with unaccustomed and really impudent frankness, replied that he could not hold out any hope that the duty on their trade will be removed. Is not, he said, their trade prospering? The tax, he declared, has not decreased the consumption of spirits and beer. This tone was so novel and unexpected that the liquor men were astounded and held an indignation meeting, at which they vowed vengeance against the Government for its desertion of their interests. The importance of Mr. Gosshen's action in the effect on the electoral chances of Tories can scarcely be overestimated. It will certainly be tremendous. His colleagues are furious. They hotly denounce his response to the liquor dealers as a blunder of the grossest kind and utterly indefensible.

Another M.P. in Disgrace.

LONDON, April 13.—A sensation has been caused in political circles throughout England by the fact that a warrant has been issued for the arrest of Capt. Edmund Hope Verney, member of Parliament for North Buckingham. Capt. Virney is charged with procuring a girl for immoral purposes. The offence was committed last autumn, Capt. Verney giving the name of Wilson.

Verney is a magistrate and a member of the London County Council. It is believed that Capt. Verney, hearing of the application for the warrant, escaped from England and that he is hiding on the Continent. Capt. Verney is the eldest son of the Right Hon. Sir Harry Verney, bart. He was born in 1838. Capt. Verney was married in 1868 to Margaret, eldest daughter of the late Sir John Hay Williams. He is a retired captain in the navy and served in the Crimea and in the Indian mutiny. Capt. Verney is the author of "The Shannon's Brigade in India" and "Four Years of Protest in the Transvaal," "Village Sketches," "Last Four Days of the Eurydice." He is a member of the Travelers' Club, the United Service Club and the National Liberal Club. His estate at Rhianva, Anglesea, is a most enviable residence.

Committed Suicide at the Instigation of the Devil.

NEWCASTLE, April 13.—A youth, apprenticed to a tailor, at Warboys, Huntingdonshire, visited the athletic sports at the neighboring town of Ramsey, and on returning at night in a state of intoxication committed a serious assault on a woman. In avoiding the husband, who pursued, he fell into a reservoir, but escaped. He afterwards threw himself in front of a train on the Great Eastern Railway, and was cut to pieces. At the inquest yesterday the jury returned a verdict that deceased "Committed suicide at the instigation of the devil." He had previously borne an irreproachable character.

Barry Sullivan Dying.

LONDON, April 13.—Barry Sullivan, the well-known actor, is dying. He was born in Birmingham in 1824, and made his appearance at Cork in 1840.

Dangerous Counterfeits.

Counterfeits are always dangerous, more so that they always closely IMITATE THE ORIGINAL IN APPEARANCE AND NAME. The remarkable success achieved by Nasal Balm as a positive cure for Catarrh and Cold in the Head has induced unprincipled parties to imitate it. The public are cautioned not to be deceived by nostrums imitating Nasal Balm in name and appearance, bearing such names as Nasal Cream, Nasal Balsam, etc. Ask for Nasal Balm and do not take any imitation dealers may urge upon you. For sale by all druggists or sent post-paid on receipt of price (50c and $1.) by addressing Fulford & Co. Brockville, Ont.

Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam.

Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam gives prompt relief in coughs, colds, hoarseness, whooping cough, croup, asthma or bronchitis. It is the most pleasant and perfect throat and lung healer in the world for children or adults. Price 25c.

Bickle's Anti Consumptive Syrup is a combination of several medical herbs which exert a most wonderful influence in curing pulmonary consumption and all other diseases of the lungs, chest and throat. It promotes a free and easy expectoration, and gives ease even to the greatest sufferer. Coughs, colds, shortness of breath, and affections of the chest, attended with weakness of the digestive organs, or with general debility, seem to vanish under its use. No other remedy acts so readily in allaying inflammation or breaking up a severe cold, even the most obstinate cough is overcome by its penetrating and healing properties. When children are affected with colds, coughs, inflammation of the lungs, croup, quinsey, and sore throat, this Syrup is of vast importance. The number of deaths among children from these diseases is truly alarming. It is so palatable that a child will not refuse it, and is put at such a price that will not exclude the poor from its benefits.

White broche is in demand for neglige robes.

Mr. J. R. Allen, Upholsterer, Toronto, sends us the following: "For six or seven years my wife suffered from Dyspepsia, Costiveness, Inward Piles and Kidney Complaint. We tried two physicians and any number of medicines without getting any relief, until we got a bottle of Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery. This was the first relief she got, and before one bottle was used the benefit she derived from it was beyond our expectation."

Satins closely resemble India silks in design.

Jacob H. Bloomer, of Virgille, N.Y., writes:—"Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil cured a badly swelled neck and sore throat on my son in forty-eight hours; one application also removed the pain from a very sore toe; my wife's foot was also much inflamed—so much so that she could not walk about the house; she applied the Oil, and in twenty four hours was entirely cured."

A coronet set with turquoises is a new shape for a bonnet pin.

Mr. Thomas Ballard, Syracuse, N.Y., writes: "I have been afflicted for nearly a year with that most-to-be-dreaded disease Dyspepsia, and at times worn out with pain and want of sleep, and after trying almost everything recommended, I tried one box of Parmelee's Vegetable Pills. I am now nearly well, and believe they will cure me. I would not be without them for any money

Many of the gay and youthful cotton dresses sent over by French modistes as models are buttoned up the back.

Hard and soft corns cannot withstand Holloway's Corn Cure; it is effectual every time. Get a bottle at once and be happy.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS

MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP has been used by millions of mothers for children teething for over fifty years with perfect success. It relieves the little sufferer at once, produces natural, quiet sleep by freeing the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste, soothes the child, softens the gums, allays pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. Twenty five cents a bottle

HASTINGS O. K.

CHICAGO, 6th April, 1891.

Robert Bogle, Esq., Belleville Business College, Belleville, Ont.:

DEAR FRIEND,—Your very welcome letter of the 13th ult. was duly received.

You asked in your letter if I had any difficulty in performing my work as stenographer. I am glad to tell you that I have not had any difficulty in the least, as you assured me I would not, before leaving your college. I have to write from 30 to 40 letters a day, and there is enough other office work to keep me busy, but it is not hard.

Tell the students never to be afraid, after they have received as careful training as I got.

In conclusion I have to say that any young gentleman or young lady wishing to improve his or her time, may rest assured that they will never regret the time and money spent while attending the above named institution.

Yours very truly,
J. W. ANDERSON,
Stenographer for Messrs. W. H. McNaughton & Co., Real Estate and Investments.

Big G is acknowledged the leading remedy for Gonorrhœa & Gleet. The only safe remedy for Leucorrhœa or Whites. I prescribe it and feel safe in recommending it to all sufferers.

RIOTING IN BRADFORD.

MINERS INJURED BY POLICE AND MILITARY

In a Fight in Which 10,000 Yorkshire Weavers Took Part—Many Seriously Wounded by Batons and Stones—Large Number of Arrests.

LONDON, April 13.—Ten thousand of the striking weavers at Bradford assembled there to-day for the purpose of protesting against the action of the municipal authorities in forbidding the meeting which the strikers had arranged for yesterday. The police tried to disperse the gathering, but their repeated charges on the crowd proved futile. Finally the authorities determined to take decisive action and after the strikers had for the last time been ordered to disperse and had refused, the riot act was read and the military were summoned. The soldiers joined the police and a combined charge was made upon the strikers. A fierce struggle ensued, but the strikers were compelled to retreat before the bayonets and batons. The police used their batons freely and many strikers were injured. Several of the police were also hurt. The authorities arrested seven ringleaders.

The streets of Bradford were in a ferment throughout the afternoon. At 6 o'clock the crowd grew rapidly despite the police efforts to disperse it. The police were met with showers of stones, which, however, inflicted only slight injuries. The constables' summoning of the military was the signal for a regular riot. Windows were smashed, lamps were extinguished and an organized rush was made to break the police ranks and capture the place of meeting. This effort, however, was ineffectual. The throwing of stones continued and the military, provided with blank and ball cartridges appeared at 9 o'clock. A score of arrests were made. All the prisoners had gashes on their heads from stones or police batons and many police were injured, but no one had bayonet wounds. The rioters were dispersed with difficulty by incessant marching and counter-marching on the roads converging at Town Hall-square. Detective Martindale received six cuts on the head and his horse was killed under him by a stab. Local opinion in regard to the dispute is divided. Citizens admit the square is a dangerous place for public meetings, but think the action of the authorities was injudicious and that the question ought to be tested in the courts.

Strike at Sheffield.

SHEFFIELD, April 13.—The employes of Wostenholm's cutlery works have struck against a reduction of 5 per cent. in wages. The reduction is due to the loss of American trade in consequence of the operation of the new American tariff law. This is regarded as a test case for the whole trade.

SHOT IN THE CELLS.

Two Convicted Murderers Riddled with Bullets By Forty Masked Avengers.

SEALAND, Wash., April 13.—Forty masked men broke into the jail here at 1 o'clock this morning and shot to death John Rose and John Edwards, who were convicted of the murder of Hans Fredericksen and his wife, about a year ago. The men were confined in jail awaiting a new trial. The murder was committed in cold blood and was for the purpose of obtaining possession of a piece of land on which Frederiksen was living. Edward Gibbon and George Rose were also charged with assisting in the murder. Gibbon was acquitted. George Rose was convicted of murder in the first degree, but afterwards escaped jail. The mob overpowered the jailor, and going to the cell where the prisoners were confined riddled their bodies with bullets. The mob then quietly dispersed.

Death of an Australian Statesman.

SYDNEY, N.S.W., April 13.—The Hon. John Murtagh Macrossan, M.P., formerly Colonial Secretary for Queensland, and one of the delegates for that colony at the Australasia Federation Convention, is dead. The deceased, who was born in 1832, was one of the many Australian statesmen who originally came from Ireland, his father having been a farmer in Donegal. Mr. Macrossan emigrated to Australia in 1853. He was chosen in 1873 by the miners of Charters' Towers to represent the Kennedy electorate in that assembly. The new member at first linked his political fortunes with those of the Liberal party, but a few years later removed to the Conservative crossbenches, and co-operated heartily with Mr. McIlwraith, who, on forming his Ministry in 1879, gave Mr. Macrossan the office of Secretary for Public Works.

They Prefer Canada.

LONDON, April 13.—It is asserted that the best class of British emigrants show an increasing disposition to go to Canada in preference to the United States. The Australasian colonies' movement is due to the persistent propaganda carried on from the High Commissioner's office in London, and in connection therewith to the admirable plan of sending to Canada every year a delegation of tenant farmers to see the country and report upon its resources and capabilities. The various reports made by last year's delegates have been embodied in a pamphlet of which no fewer than 600,000 have been printed and are being circulated throughout the United Kingdom. It is thought the full effect of this missionary work will not be felt until next season, but every one concerned seems confident that 1892 will witness a great boom in Canadian emigration from this country.

It was Tough.

"Say," said a man to the butcher of whom he purchased his daily supply of meat, "that last piece of steak I bought of you must have been from a steer old enough to vote."

"Was it tough?" inquired the man of meat.

"Tough! Well I should say it was. I could hardly cut it."

"Oh, is that all! Well you ought to have heard another man kicking a day or two ago. He bought a piece that he said was so tough he couldn't get his fork in the gravy."

Dissolution of Partnership.

THE co-partnership heretofore existing between John C. Lake and John Jenkins, under the name and style of Lake & Jenkins, has this day by mutual consent been dissolved.

All parties owing the said firm shall pay the same to the said John C. Lake, who will satisfy and discharge all claims against the said firm.

John C. Lake will hereafter continue at the old stand, the omnibus, hack and baggage waggon business and John Jenkins will hereafter, at the stable on Pinnacle street immediately opposite the Post Office, carry on a general livery stable

WHY IS IT ?

If you will listen a minute we will tell you why and how it is that we can and do lead in the crockery business. It's over fifty years since this establishment was founded in London, Ont., by the late Nathaniel Reid, who spent his younger days amongst the English potteries and gained a knowledge of the many processes of manufacture until the goods are laid upon the shelves in this country. This knowledge, handed down to the son and others who have been in the house for twenty-five years, has brought about the following results: 1st.—The ware is all made in Staffordshire, England, brought out in the plain and finished in our own decorating kilns in this country. 2nd.—In Tea Sets we can furnish 134 different patterns; Toilet Sets, 89; Dinner Sets, 96 patterns. 3rd.—To give some idea of what has been done in the Belleville branch, we have sold since the first of last August (8 months) of these three items 164 Tea Sets, 110 Toilet Sets and 93 Dinner Sets. Other lines which belong to this business, such as silver plate and lamps, we handle just as extensively and from the leading factories. The goods are all made for the legitimate crockery trade and not for giving away. We study our own trade. We have got to understand the business we follow. We can reproduce old patterns, buy larger and undersell others, and that's why we lead in this trade.

King of Medicines

A Cure "Almost Miraculous."

"When I was 14 years of age I had a severe attack of rheumatism, and after I recovered had to go on crutches. A year later, scrofula, in the form of white swellings, appeared on various parts of my body, and for 11 years I was an invalid, being confined to my bed 6 years. In that time ten or eleven sores appeared and broke, causing me great pain and suffering. I feared I never should get well.

"Early in 1886 I went to Chicago to visit a sister, but was confined to my bed most of the time I was there. In July I read a book, 'A Day with a Circus,' in which were statements of cures by Hood's Sarsaparilla. I was so impressed with the success of this medicine that I decided to try it. To my great gratification the sores soon decreased, and I began to feel better and in a short time I was up and out of doors. I continued to take Hood's Sarsaparilla for about a year, when, having used six bottles, I had become so fully released from the disease that I went to work for the Flint & Walling Mfg. Co., and since then on account of sickness. I believe the disease is expelled from my system, I always feel well, am in good spirits and have a good appetite. I am now 27 years of age and can walk as well as any one, except that one limb is a little shorter than the other, owing to the loss of bone, and the sores formerly on my right leg. To my friends my recovery seems almost miraculous, and I think Hood's Sarsaparilla is the king of medicines." WILLIAM A. LEHR, 9 N. Railroad St., Kendallville, Ind.

THE EAST HASTINGS FRAUDS.

Mr. Mowat's reference, in Monday's discussion, to the assizes at Belleville makes it tolerably clear that he will refuse investigation before the Committee and leave Mr. Hudson to seek a remedy before the courts.

Can Mr. Mowat be ignorant of the fact that Mr. D. R. Leavens, against whom Mr. Hudson has made serious charges, is foreman of the grand jury at the present assizes?

Our local contemporary professes a strong desire for the investigation of Mr. Hudson's charges, and the punishment of the guilty parties; but it declares, in the same breath, that the accused are innocent and much-maligned individuals!

We will not follow the bad example of trying these cases out of court. Certain of the charges made by Mr. Hudson have, however, been sworn to by unimpeachable witnesses; and Mr. Hudson, who is a man of well-known honor and standing in the community, has stated his ability to prove his accusations. If the accused are as anxious for an investigation as the Grit organ here alleges, let them ask their friends who control the Legislature to grant Mr. Hudson's request.

OUR CENTENARIAN ADMIRAL.

On Sunday, the 14th inst., Admiral Sir William Provo Wallis, of the British navy, completed his one hundredth year. From that very excellent publication, "Canadians in the Imperial Service," by Mr. J. Hampden Burnham, of Peterborough, Ont., the Ottawa Citizen condenses the following particulars of the life of the veteran and honored son of Nova Scotia:

Sir William Provo Wallis is the son of Provo Featherstone Wallis, who was Chief Clerk in the office of the Commissioner of the Navy Yard at Halifax, where Sir Provo was born. As was the custom in those days he was entered for the Navy almost before he was out of the nursery, and, after being educated in England, joined the "Cleopatra" 32, as midshipman in 1804, he then being only 18 years old. From that time to 1858 he was almost constantly in active service, being, practically, at sea nearly the whole time. He has seen service in almost every quarter of the globe, and has been through many hard fights; but the one by which he is best known, and which is one of the most celebrated fights in British naval history, is the engagement between the British frigate "Shannon," commanded by Captain Broke, and the American frigate "Chesapeake" outside of Boston horbor on the first of June, 1812, which did much to restore British prestige on the sea, which had suffered much and unjustly through the success of the few ships of the American Navy, which were much larger, of heavier scantling, more powerfully armed and more numerously manned than the British ships which they defeated. The "Chesapeake" and "Shannon" were, however, very fairly matched, there being a slight superiority of force in favor of the United States vessel. This deed has become historical and is too well known to need description. Wallis was second lieutenant at the commencement of the fight, but owing to the wounding of Capain Broke and the death of Lieutenant Falkner, he was in command of the "Shannon" at the conclusion of the engagement. This was one of the hardest fights on record. It only lasted thirteen minutes, but two hundred and fifty men were placed hors de combat in that short time.

By Laying-on of Hands.

Woman restored to perfect health! Just faith and confidence enough required to lay hold of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, administer it with a little patience and a little perseverance, and complete restoration to health and vitality is insured. Not far, indeed, from the miraculous, are many of the wonderful cures of lost womanhood it has effected. There are few cases, indeed, within the requirements of sick and suffering woman, outside or beyond its helpful influence. So confident are the makers of of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription of its power to heal all female diseases, that they warrant satisfaction in every instance, or refund money. Large bottles $1.00 (6 for $5.00); at druggists.

BANCROFT.

Deer Butchers Convicted—Heavy Fines Imposed.

BANCROFT, April 13th.

On Saturday last Thomas Stanyer, John Stanyer, Christopher Lake, William Lake and Norman Lake were charged before Police Magistrate Cleak, at Bancroft, with violation of the Game Law, in killing deer out of season. Reports had been circulated that a great slaughter had been made on the deer by the settlers, but nothing definite could be learned for a few weeks. At last the truth began to leak out as to the actual offenders, and the case was taken in hand by Constable Sweet, and worked up to the arraignment of the above parties. On trial the charges against Thomas and John Stanyer were dismissed, evidence not being forthcoming that they had any hand in it; but the offence was fully proved against the three Lakes, above named, and a fine of $16.20, including costs, imposed in each case.

The above is a very important case, as it is stated that about fifteen deer, forming a drove, or as it is termed a "yard," associating together for the winter, were all destroyed, and the majority being does and heavy with young, neither the venison nor skins were of any value at this season to the butchers.

This instance of the wanton destruction of game, as well as the great slaughter continually going on in the Nipissing district, in the six townships contiguous to the county of Hastings, extending twenty miles further north, ought to commend itself to the consideration of the commission now dealing with the game laws. Some Inspector or Inspectors should be appointed who would be compelled to take an active interest in suppressing these violations and bringing offenders to justice, and the Police Magistrate should be sustained in his endeavors to enforce the law, and not prosecuted for carrying out his duty.

Hood's Sarsaparilla has the largest sale of any medicine before the public. And honest druggists will confirm this statement.

The Grand Jury System

Justice Rose Opposed to its Abolition.

Judge Rose yesterday at some length addressed the Grand jury upon the subject of the abolition of the Grand Jury. The following is a synopsis of his remarks:

I am entirely opposed to the abolition of the Grand Jury system, until something better is suggested, and up to this time nothing by way of improvement, as far as I can judge, has been suggested. From whatever experience I have had I am not favorably impressed with the suggestion of leaving to any one person the question of whether an accused is to be put on his trial.

The Grand Jury are drawn from the body of the County, from the more substantial citizens not inclined to allow flagrant guilt to go unpunished or to visit too severely technical offences not accompanied by moral guilt. Untrammelled by technical training or learning, they are prepared to administer natural justice and, guided and directed by a careful charge from the judge, to administer the law so as to make their findings conduce to the interest of the public.

They often stand between officious officialism instigated by sentimental moralism and the victim and prevent prosecution where strict interpretation of the law creates offences not aimed at by the legislature and where the interest of the accused and of society are the better served by preventing any further public enquiry or the disseminating of noxious facts, the knowledge of which tends rather to stimulate than to prevent vice.

I have a very high opinion of the ability and honesty of the jurors, grand and petit, who have been engaged in courts over which I have presided during the past seven years. I have never known a jury refuse to respond to a call to duty in a case of morals or good government.

Then through them the body of the people can be reached and a healthy public tone created whenever in the public interest the judges feel called upon to direct attention to new legislation or evils requiring redress or legislative interference, or when dangers threaten our system by the combination of forces, political or otherwise, a wise deliverance on the subject in charges to the Grand Jury does much to awaken interest, remedy abuses, explain fallacies, and generally assist in the proper administration of public affairs. Through the Grand Juries we are able to press upon the public the necessity for various reforms, such as prison reform, care of the non criminal poor, improvements in court houses, gaols, etc., and to receive from them many suggestions indicating the trend of outside thought and opinion. It seems to me highly important to lead the people to believe that our courts are institutions of the country in which they are permitted to have a part.

The question of expense is too trifling to give weight to the argument for the abolition of the functions of Grand Juries. If they are beneficial let them remain; the country can well afford to pay for what it requires, and it may well be doubted if any other system could be worked efficiently at much less expense.

Closes April 15th.

The 1, 2, 3, 4, 5. The grand prize competition of the Canadian Fireside Weekly, in which 300 valuable prizes are offered, will close on April 15th. In addition, from now until that date a Special Daily prize will be given for the first correct list received each day. The competition is simply a combination of numbers, and requires no searching in dictionaries or books of any kind. Among the prizes are Bicycles, Tricycles, Watches, $100 cash, Furniture, Silverware, Jewelry, Summer tours—prizes for men, women, boys and girls, 300 in all. Archbishop Cleary.

KINGSTON, Ont., April 13.—Archbishop Cleary hopes to return cured from Richmond, Va., where he has been under an oculist's care for two months. He writes, "I have experienced a steady improvement in the condition of my eye since public prayers were ordered for me by Monsignor Farrelly. The inflammation, which seemed to render a painful operation necessary, and the hope of preserving the power of vision almost presumptuous, has gradually diminished, and, through the prayers of my flock, I have been saved from very grave and imminent danger." He has not been a sufferer to any marked degree since Holy Thursday.

A Pleasant Herb Drink—A Spring Medicine.

The druggists tell us that people call daily for the new cure for constipation and sick-headache discovered by Dr. Silas Lane. It is said to be Oregon grape root (a great remedy in the far west for those complaints) combined with simple herbs, and is made ready for use by pouring on boiling water to draw out the strength. It sells at 50c and $1 a package and is called Lane's Family Medicine.

ONTARIO LEGISLATURE.

THE NEW MINING REGULATIONS DEFINED.

Nickel Lands Will Cost $5 an Acre and Mines Will Have to Pay 3 Per Cent. Royalty—Prospectors Given a Chance.

TORONTO, April 14.—Mr. Marter's motion in the Assembly yesterday for a return of particulars of the Parry Sound election brought out a fact which is not generally known regarding these unorganized districts. They have no voters' lists. As Mr. Marter pointed out the only man entitled to say who shall vote and who shall not is the deputy returning-officer. This gives an opportunity for fraud.

Mr. Mowat agreed that these unorganized districts should have a voters' list if it could be done without entailing greater evils than at present. As for the irregularities complained of, Mr. Mowat treated them lightly, remarking some irregularities were inevitable.

The bills respecting the new mining regulations, of which Mr. Hardy gave a general explanation a few days ago, have been printed. The bill to amend the General Mining Act provides that after the passing of the act the price of all Crown lands sold as mining lands in Algoma, Thunder Bay, Rainy River and that part of the district of Nipissing north of French River, Lake Nipissing and Mattawa River shall be $5 an acre. The price of other Crown lands sold as mining lands shall be $3 an acre. Any locality shown to be rich in minerals the Lieutenant-Governor-in-Council may set apart and fix the price at any greater sum than that before mentioned or he may temporarily withdraw from sale. The grantee and owner of any mining location shall expend in actual mining operations $3 an acre during the first 10 years after the issue of the patent if the grant exceeds 160 acres, or $5 an acre during the first 10 years if the grant is 160 acres or less. In default of such expenditure the lands revert to the crown. All ores and minerals mined shall be subject to a royalty for the use of the Province of 3 per cent. on silver, nickel or nickel and copper and 2 per cent. on iron. All royalties shall be calculated upon the value of the ores at the pit's mouth. Ores taken for experimental purposes shall be free from royalty. Instead of granting any mining lands in fee simple they may be leased for a term of 10 years with the right of renewal. The rental for the first year shall be $1 an acre and thereafter 25 cents an acre per annum. The bill respecting mining claims is much the same as the one introduced last year. Any person having discovered a mineral deposit may obtain a mining claim for 80 or 40 acres by marking out the land and filing an affidavit before the local agent. The certificate of the agent shall authorize the claimant to enter into possession for 6 months, and during that term or within 30 days after to become possessor or lessee, provided that $150 or $200 worth of work has been done. If the work of development is not commenced within a month and continued the rights of the claimant shall cease. No person shall be entitled to hold more than one staked-off claim, or a joint stock company more than two staked-off claims.

ITALY AND THE DREIBUND.

How the Powers Will Stand in the Event of War.

ROME, April 13.—Premier di Rudini, in an interview to-day in regard to the Dreibund, held that the renewal of the triple alliance was of secondary importance as compared with a constant agreement with England. On many occasions he said the policy of the Dreibund harmonized perfectly with British ideas, yet Lord Salisbury, for special reasons, had never adhered to the Dreibund treaty. Italy's renewal of her contract with the alliance depended on the general situation in Europe, which was now changing every day. It was difficult to imagine that England and Italy would remain passive while war was being waged by Russia and France against Germany and Austria. Even if the Dreibund did not exist Italy might find it entirely to her interest to range herself on the side of Great Britain. Should Russia refrain from interfering in the affairs of the other powers, thus securing the absolute neutrality of Great Britain, Italy would not act except under the contingencies provided for in the Dreibund convention. If Austria attacked Russia or Germany declared war with France that action would not imply that Italy was to join in the movement. By the terms of the contract she was entitled to act as a neutral nation and to remain so. The case was different if any one of the contracting powers was made the object of the attack. Premier di Rudini declared he was convinced that France, despite her excessive armaments, would never alone wage a war of aggression while the Dreibund continued to act as the safeguard of Europe. In view of the prevailing temper in France it was perfectly idle to discuss the question of a dissolution of the Dreibund. Neither Austria nor Germany dreamed of making an attack.

Still Regarded as Absurd.

NEW YORK, April 13.—A Washington special to The Post says: "The letter from Secretary Blaine to Premier Rudini has not yet been sent, according to the best advices from the Department of State. The appearance of things at the Department is somewhat less tranquil than on Saturday, though the idea of hostilities is still pooh-poohed as absurd."

Foreign Brevities.

Sheffield is suffering from a severe epidemic of influenza.

An agitation for a reconsideration of the sentence of Mrs. Maybrick is being started in England.

Of the three parliamentary seats now vacant in the City of London two will not be contested by the Liberals.

Appropriate to the war spirit of the times is the proposition to hold in Leipsic an international Red Cross exhibition.

The McCarthyite members of Parliament yesterday decided upon a prompt renewal of the measures for the relief of evicted tenants.

The almost universal impression prevails in Germany that war is near at hand and no official assurances can remove the impression.

The manufacture of arms in France for the Russian army is being hastened and the Russian forces will soon be completely equipped.

Liquor Dealers' Vengeance.

BURLINGTON, Ia., April 13.—An open revolt against the prohibitory law occurred here to-day. Constable Green with three deputies began to search the place of one Herschberg. Before he had finished reading his warrant he was surrounded by 40 well-known liquor dealers, who gave him a terrible beating. Green's skull was fractured, his nose broken and one eye nearly destroyed.

Indians Murdering Settlers.

BLACKFOOT, Idaho, April 13.—Great excitement was caused here to-day by the discovery that Indians had killed two unknown white immigrants camped at a water tank one mile from here. Nothing could be learned as to the cause of the tragedy. The men were found dead and a number of Indians were seen taking to the hills. An uprising is feared.

DYING BY HUNDREDS.

Frightful Stories from Chili—No Equal in the History of War—High Officials Killed by Scores.

PANAMA, April 13.—Advices from Chili state that at Iquique vagabonds are robbing, plundering and murdering, violating women and committing all classes of atrocities, while incendiaries also are at work. The distress along the south coast, due to the revolution, is appalling. Gen. Urrutia, who commands in Iquique, has been selling flour at 22 cents per pound. Hundreds of men have abandoned the nitrate works, only carrying bottles of water, and accompanied by their families have trudged across the desert to Iquique. Many have died on the way. The scene hardly finds an equal in the history of war and revolt. The rebel forces, which fought around Pozo, Almonte and near Iquique last month, numbered 4000 men, while the Government troops reached barely 3000. The dead in the different actions numbered 700 and include many high officials. The rebels finally won and captured 36 cannons and gatling guns.

Guilermo Matta, Chilian Minister in the Argentine Republic, and Senor Anteunz, Italian Minister in France, have been declared traitors by President Balmaceda. Anteunz placed Government funds at the disposal of the rebels.

A Wounded Man Eaten by Wolves.

DETROIT, April 13.—James Brophy, who arrived here to-day from Mullet Lake, Cheboygan County, tells a horrible story of a man being eaten by wolves. He says that James and John Gillespie were chopping wood about 3 miles from Mullet yesterday, when James, the older, cut a big gash in his leg. John attempted to carry him to the settlement, but could not on account of the deep snow. He made James as comfortable as he could and came to Mullet Lake alone to get him.

A party started out to bring James in, but on reaching the spot where he had been left, found a pack of wolves fighting over a lot of bones, all that remained of him. They chased the wolves away with axes and brought the few bones back to Mullet Lake.

A Postmaster's $400 Well Cooked.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., April 13.—Several months ago the postoffice at Seward, Oklahoma, was robbed. There being no safe convenient, the postmaster after that put his stamps and money in the oven of his cook stove. Yesterday he built a fire in a hurry and forgot to take the treasure out. When he thought of them the oven was red-hot and stamps and paper money were all gone. His loss was over $400.

Negotiated the Loan.

MONTREAL, April 13.—The news comes today by way of Quebec that Premier Mercier and Mr. Shehyn have succeeded in making the preliminary arrangements for the new provincial loan of $10,000,000. The bankers are said to be French, German and Dutch houses.

Ned Hanlan's Shell with the Long Nam

TORONTO, April 13.—It begins to appear that American scullers are uniformly afraid to meet Champion William O'Connor. His broad challenge has been left unanswered and several were hurled at him in return. These were scarcely serious documents. Now Gaudaur and McKay declare that they want to row O'Connor and his partner a double scull race. It is just likely that Hanlan will step in the boat and the ambitious pair will be accommodated.

Warin has just completed a new shell for Hanlan, which is warranted to be one of the fastest boats in Toronto. There is nothing unusual about its appearance except the name painted on its bow. Notwithstanding its ponderosity Ned decided on christening it "Woolloomoolo," after a Sydney bay, and does not expect a loss of speed.

Five Boys Drowned.

ST. LOUIS, April 13.—This afternoon a boat with 12 young men started from the Missouri side of the river to cross to East St. Louis. When about three-quarters of the way across the boat ran into an eddy and was capsized. Five of the boys were drowned.

Incendiary Fire at Strathroy.

STRATHROY, April 13.—This morning a destructive fire caused by an incendiary occurred here. The losses and insurances: Mrs. B. F. Stevens' fancygoods stock $8000, insured for $5000; F. W. Meek, druggist and stationer, stock considerably damaged, insured for $4500; W. C. Moore, owner of building, insured for $3000; B. A. Case, tailor, total loss, no insurance; Misses McCandless, dressmakers, total loss, no insurance; John Barry, grocer, damage by water, covered by insurance; J. G. Raymond, damage by water, covered by insurance.

Took the Church Funds With Him.

ST. CATHARINES, April 13.—Palmer Stevenson, the Caistor township councillor, who recently deserted his wife and family and eloped with the widow Merritt, owes $7000. Before leaving he mortgaged his farm for its full value—$7000—and quietly sold off as much of the stock and implements as possible. Palmer was treasurer of the Methodist Church of the township. The congregation now mourns the loss of $70 of the church funds, which went with the treasurer and the widow.

ENDED HER LIFE.

A Crazy Girl Rises From Her Bed and Walks Into the Thames.

THAMESVILLE, April 13.—Miss Christie Simington, aged 30, of unsound mind, being with her aged mother about 5 miles from here, left her bed, dressed herself and unnoticed left the house about 2 o'clock Sunday morning. Her tracks were found leading into the River Thames. The river is being dragged for the body.

The Newfoundland Bait Question.

HALIFAX, April 13.—In the House of Assembly to-day a motion was passed embodying the hope that, pending a settlement of the questions in dispute between Newfoundland and the Mother Country, the Government of Newfoundland may be willing to relax its present regulations and permit the procuring of bait by the fishermen of this country on fair and reasonable terms.

Lost a Limb.

HAMILTON, April 13.—A train hand named Martin Foley, belonging to Hamilton, had his left leg badly mangled while working on the Grand Trunk Railway at Port Credit today. He was brought here and taken to the city hospital, where the injured limb was amputated.

Husband and Wife Killed.

LANCASTER, Pa., April 13.—A terrible affair occurred in Cecil county, Md., near the Lancaster county line. Early this morning Granville Richards and wife were aroused by the presence of two men in their room. On Mrs. Richards arising she was shot in the neck and the husband going to her rescue was shot twice in the stomach. Both will die. The murderers escaped.

Drowned in a Pond.

HALIFAX, April 13.—A 7-year-old son of J. Moore, an employe of the Nova Scotia sugar refinery, was drowned in a pond in Mulgrave Park, Richmond, this evening. A companion with whom he had been playing picked up his hat near the pond and gave the alarm when his dead body was found in the water.

Maid, Countess, Widow in a Fortnight.

WILMINGTON, Del., April 13.—Count Lewenhaupt, who was married to Miss Bayard on the 2nd inst., died to-day of malignant typhoid fever. He had been indisposed for the last two or three week.

G. S. TICKELL & SONS

in wall paper as in everything else, once in about every ten years.

It is not ten years ago though since the "fad" of papering ceilings was all the rage, nor was it five years ago! Yet this season there is a very strong demand for ceiling papers and decorations, and we firmly believe that papered ceilings will always be fashionable.

* * *

How do we know?

We'll tell you.

Economy and common sense have done it.

The world of fashion produces periodically a "fad" and if it receives "official recognition" from some fashion leader, it is considered "quite the proper thing" by the votaries of fashion and a craze ensues.

Fashion dictates more severely and draws finer lines in the matter of decoration than in anything else under her sway, and it sometimes happens that some of her "whims" become permanencies or "things of beauty and a joy forever." Economy is the great factor that transforms what was once a "fleeting fancy" into a permanent reality and that's where common sense steps in.

Although the craze of papering ceilings died out for awhile, it has returned again, not as a craze, but as a good big morsel of hard common sense, and it has come to stay. It's admitted superiority over every other style of ceiling decoration, both in attractiveness and ECONOMY has forced "fashion" to the wall for once and in spite of herself she "returns to her first love," thus waiving the formality of waiting the allotted decade for "History to repeat itself."

Try and remember that economy and common sense have done this—for where can you find a better field for decoration in your whole house than a ceiling presents?

Please make a note of this.

SYMPTOMS—Moisture; intense itching and stinging; most at night; worse by scratching if allowed to continue tumors form, which often bleed and ulcerate, becoming very sore. SWAYNE'S OINTMENT stops the itching and bleeding, heals ulceration, and in most cases removes the tumors. At druggists, or by mail, for 50 cents. Dr. Swayne & Son, Philadelphia.

A Shooting Accident.

COLBORNE, April 13.—As Miss Emily Spilsbury, daughter of F. B. Spilsbury, an old and respected resident of the township of Cramahe, was driving from this place to her home, her horse was shot by some party unknown. A quantity of shot was lodged in the head and neck of the animal. The affair has created quite a sensation. The general opinion is that the shooting was accidental. The fact of its occurrence at 11.30 goes to disprove any malicious intent on the part of the person firing the shot.

New Firm.

Messrs. Lewis and Sills Embark in the Hardware Business.

On the west side of Front street, directly opposite the INTELLIGENCER office, a new hardware store has been opened by two young men of this city, namely, Messrs. Frank Lewis and R. S. Sills. Both of these young gentlemen have had considerable experience in the business in which they have branched out, and, no doubt, will be able to furnish to the public all that is necessary in that branch of trade. The store is large and commodious and has been especially fitted up for their requirements. In it will be found a complete assortment of shelf and heavy hardware, saddlery and carriage goods, also an extensive line of cutlery and mechanics' tools of the finest quality. They have also made a specialty of house furnishings and builders' supplies. These goods have been purchased direct from the manufacturers and are therefore of first-class quality. On the south side of the store a large portion of the wall has been encased and also lined, and inside there is on exhibition a beautiful display of cutlery of all descriptions and of the finest quality. The new firm should, and no doubt will, receive a liberal patronage from the citizens and the farming community.

Successful and Pleasing.

The Y. P. A. of John St. Church had a crowded house at their entertainment last night, and a highly pleasing performance was given. The choir rendered a selection, the audience gave a "Scotch tea chorus," and the following performers took part: Mrs. Smith, Mrs. Brignall, Mrs. Caverly-Nash, Miss Brignall, Miss Eva Clute; Messrs. Yeomans, J. J. B. Flint, Marks, Fax, Campbell, Coleman, Brignall, and Master Arthur Clute.

Personal.

Mr. Jos. Craig, of the Inland Revenue Dept. at Brockville, is in the city.

Mr. J. S. Page and Mr. Morrice Hyman, of Montreal, are in the city, the guests of Mr. S. A. Hyman.

Mr. John C. Watson, formerly of this city, and now of the State Institution for the deaf, Vancouver, Washington, U.S., is in the city, the guest of Mrs. Terrill.

Mr. Culver, gaoler at Cobourg, is in town.

Ask Your Friends About It.

Your distressing cough can be cured. We know it because Kemp's Balsam within the past few years has cured so many coughs and colds in this community. Its remarkable sale has been won entirely by its genuine merit. Ask some friend who has used it what he thinks of Kemp's Balsam. There is no medicine so pure, none so effective. Large bottles 50c and $1 at all druggists.

Court Notes.

The following legal gentlemen from a distance are in attendance at the court: Mr. Hood, of Hood, Jacks & Fraser, Barrie; Mr. McCrimmon, of McDonald, McIntosh & McCrimmon, Toronto; Mr. T. Reid, of Leys, Reid & Owens, Toronto; W. Carnew, A. A. McDonald, and D.E.K. Stewart, of Madoc; D. Lynch, Campbellford; G. W. Ostrom, Trenton.

The Murder Case.

This morning Kane was arraigned on the charge of murder and pleaded not guilty. His counsel, Messrs. W. Y. Mikel and C. E. Lyons, applied to the Judge to have the case laid over until the Fall Assizes, as witnesses were wanted. The crown objected and the judge refused the application. The trial will take place to-morrow, commencing at 10 a.m.

What it Costs.

Must be carefully considered by the great majority of people, in buying every necessities of life. Hood's Sarsaparilla commends itself with special force to the great middle classes, because it combines positive economy with great medicinal power. It is the only medicine of which can truly be said "100 Doses One Dollar," and a bottle taken according to directions will average to last a month.

Oh, What's Cough

Will you heed the warning. The signal perhaps of the sure approach of that more terrible disease Consumption. Ask yourselves if you can afford for the sake of saving 50c., to run the risk and do nothing for it. We know from experience that Shiloh's Cure will cure your cough. It never fails.

Do You Cough?

Don't delay. Take Kemp's Balsam, the best cough cure. It will cure coughs and colds. It will cure sore throat or a tickling in the throat. It will cure pains in the chest. It will cure influenza and bronchitis and all diseases pertaining to the lungs, because it is a pure balsam. Hold it to the light and see how thick and clear it is. You see the excellent effect after taking the first dose. Large bottles 50c and $1.

CITY COUNCIL.

A Lengthy Session of the Municipal Legislature.

Considerable Discussion as to Repairing the Lower Bridge—Important Legislation Introduced.

A regular session of the City Council was held last evening.

PRESENT,—His Worship Mayor Porter, Ald. Doyle, Johnson, Wensley, Taylor, Collins, Skinner, Slater, Bogart, Foster, Green, Walmsley, Hanley, Yeomans, Luscombe, Ponton, Fowell, Wallbridge, Graham and Petrie.

The minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed.

COMMUNICATIONS.

From Geo. H. Pope calling attention to the loss incurred through watering the streets, and asking the Council to give orders to persons doing same.

A petition was presented from a number of ratepayers, asking that the salary of Mr. J. M. Hyde, Sanitary Inspector, be increased.

From W. R. Aylsworth, re Administration of Justice, stating that cost of same had increased, and also that time for the present arrangement had expired.

A number of accounts were presented.

The auditors' report was also laid upon the table.

REPORTS.

Reports were presented from the Executive recommending the payment of a number of accounts. The Public Works Committee's report, as already published, was read.

Reports were presented from the Harbor and Ferry Committee, and also Market and City Property and Industrial Committee.

On motion the Council went into Committee on Reports, Ald. Slater in the chair.

The Executive Committee's report, recommending the payment of a number of accounts, was passed without discussion.

The Public Works Committee report was next taken up. The recommendation re a sewer on George street caused some discussion.

Ald. Hanley said the drain proposed would be a permanent one and would form a part of the general sewerage of the city.

Ald. Ponton, Bogart and the Mayor spoke in favor of the drain being made.

The committee also recommended that a sidewalk be erected from Rear street to Church street, near the Tabernacle church.

Ald. Hanley stated that the City Solicitor had secured the right of way and that the walk could be built. The recommendation was carried.

The Committee also recommended that the western pier at the lower bridge be repaired.

Ald. Wallbridge moved that the matter be referred to the Street Surveyor, and the Chairman of the Public Works Committee with reference to removing the piers and the bridge being suspended by arches.

Ald. Collins was in favor of having the piers removed and it would effect a saving. Arches could be erected in their stead.

Ad. Ponton was in favor of guard piers.

Ald. Luscombe said the piers needed repairing before the logs came down.

Ald. Petrie thought there was no immediate necessity of repairing the piers.

Ald. Hanley was in favor of having the bridge suspended by arches. Piers were an obstruction in the river. It could be so constructed at present, the only matter to be considered being the cost.

Ald. Skinner was of the opinion that the logs would not damage the pier. He suggested that the matter be laid over a while. He was in favor of the arch plan. A pier was not of a substantial character. The cost of making it a suspension bridge could be ascertained.

Ald. Yeomans said it was impracticable to make it a suspension bridge. He was in favor of adopting the committee's report.

Ald. Bogart was in favor of the piers. They had answered the purpose for which they had been constructed. He was in favor of the report being adopted.

Ald. Wensley said there was iron enough in the bridge to make it a suspension bridge, but the character of its construction was such that it would have to be remodelled. The change would cost considerable.

Ald. Doyle inquired what it would cost to make the repairs contemplated.

Ald. Hanley said that it would not cost more than from $50 to $75.

Ald. Fowell was in favor of referring the matter to some competent person, or practical engineer.

Ald. Petrie moved an amendment to the amendment, that the last clause in the Public Works Committee re repairing the piers of the bridge, be laid over until the next meeting of the Council.

The Committee's report was adopted.

The Market and City Property Committee report recommended that the tender of G. W. Palmer for the market be accepted. —Carried.

The Committee also recommended that in the event of any application being made for the use of the City Hall, requiring an immediate reply, that the chairman of the committee be and is hereby instructed to arrange the letting of the hall at such rate as the circumstances of the case may make advisable, considering the coaracter of the entertainment and the season of the year; but in no case shall such agreement be made at a lower rate than $5 per evening. Any arrangement made must in all cases be reported to the committee at the first subsequent meeting.

Ald. Yeomans said the recommendation did not conflict with the motion of Ald. Ponton, which was carried at the last meeting of the Council. The committee should have the power to deputize one of its members as to the leasing of the hall.

Ald. Ponton said it was in opposition to his motion, which was carried two weeks ago. The city property cost a large sum and the benefits derived therefrom should be larger than it had been in the past.

Ald. Bogart could not support the recommendation of the committee. $10 per night was not too much for the use of the hall.

Ald. Luscombe was not in favor of the report.

Ald. Walmsley was in favor of the committee's report, as was also Ald. Petrie.

The report was adopted.

The Harbor and Ferry committee recommended that the petition of Mr. J. Rathbun asking for $100 for loss sustained by his ferry being frozen up here, be not entertained.

Ald. Petrie moved that Mr. Rathbun be heard, which was granted.

Mr. Jacob Rathbun said he came here last fall with his boat and expected that he could return to Deseronto before the bay froze up. Ald. Vandusen told him (the speaker) not to take the boat away until he had seen the Council about it. His boat was, however, frozen in here in the meantime, whereas if he had been able to have taken it home he could have run it on March 18th last. The boat was still here, as the bay was frozen up in some parts.

On motion the matter was referred to the Executive Committee.

The Industrial and Railway Committee recommended that $100 be placed to the credit of the Committee for their use.

The report was adopted.

The Committee rose and reported.—Report received and adopted.

INQUIRIES.

Ald. Walmsley inquired what steps had been taken towards consolidating the by-laws.

Ald. Bogart said he would lay the matter before the Executive Committee at its next meeting.

Ald. Slater asked if some of the street crossings were going to be raised, as some were lower than the street.

Ald. Hanley promised to attend to the matter.

Ald. Taylor asked whose duty it was to see that the Health Act was enforced. He referred to having houses placarded where infectious diseases existed.

Mr. J. M. Hyde, who was present, gave assurance that he would call the attention of the Board to the subject.

Ald. Yeomans inquired of Ald. Hanley if he had done anything to the road leading to the city from the township of Sidney.

Ald. Hanley said the Public Works Committee intended to inspect the streets shortly and see what repairs are necessary to be made.

Ald. Graham said a well had been dug some time ago near the sidewalk on the Canifton Road, and as the water was unfit for use, the well should be filled up.

Ald. Hanley said the Street Surveyor would attend to it.

Ald. Ponton inquired of the Mayor if the Police Commissioners had done anything in reference to the special committee's report re reduction of the expenses of the Police force.

The Mayor said the Executive Committee had not yet reported upon the matter.

Ald. Ponton asked if any acknowledgement had been received from the Springhill authorities for the $200 which was sent them from the city.

The Mayor stated that none other had been received except through the press.

BY LAWS.

Ald. Bogart introduced a by-law authorizing the borrowing of $40,000 for current expenses. The by-law passed through its various stages and was numbered 700.

MOTIONS.

Ald. Yeomans moved, seconded by Ald. Wallbridge, That in view of the steam fire engine No. 1 notbeing needed for the use of the city, and that the desirability of making sale of said engine has been expressed by the City Council and the Fire Committee, therefore that the chairman of the Fire Committee be requested to get up and have printed a description of the engine and offering same for sale. That this printed circular be mailed by our City Clerk to all the smaller towns and villages in Ontario.—Carried.

Ald. Bogart moved, seconded by Ald. Collins, That Ald. Ponton, Yeomans, Hanley, the Mayor, City Solicitor and the mover be a committee of this Council to meet a committee of the County Council for the purpose of arranging and adjusting the amount to be paid by the City to the County for the next five years, for the expenses of the administration of justice and for the use of the court house and gaol and other ordinary expenses within the meaning of the statute.—Carried.

Ald. Bogart moved, seconded by Ald. Fowell, That Ald. Walmsley, LaRoche, Slater and the mover and seconder be a committee to meet the committee appointed by the Bay of Quinte Bridge Co. and the Board of Trade, to consider the propriety of and arranging for, in case it is thought advisable, a demonstration to be held here at the formal opening of the Bay of Quinte Bridge, and to arrange other details. Such committee to report at this Council.—Carried.

Moved by Ald. Ponton, seconded by Ald. Hanley, That the Assessor of the city be instructed to co-operate with the engineer to be employed in the preparation of the general plan of the city for registration purposes, in order that the map or plan may be of practical service for assessment purposes also, and that the assessment of the city may be thoroughly revised and investigated during the preparation of such plan, and that the Street Surveyor do ascertain before the acceptance of said plan that all city streets are of the proper width and not encroached upon and are laid down by actual measurement of said plan.—Carried.

Ald. Bogart moved, seconded by Ald. Walmsley, that a grant equal to one half of her taxes be paid to Mrs. White for the use of a well for the citizens in the neighborhood of West Belleville, south of Bridge street west.—Carried.

Ald. Ponton moved, seconded by Ald. Yeomans,

That from and after 1st July, 1891, all scavengers in the city be licensed at a nominal annual fee, and that they be under the direct control and supervision of the City Health Inspector; and further, as recommended by the Board of Health, that no closets be hereafter permitted to be erected directly over or in immediate connection with the waters of the River Moira; and that this Council do hereby express its approval of the action of the Board of Health in advocating the universal introduction of sanitary and dry earth closets throughout the city, and that the City Solicitor be instructed to prepare By-laws accordingly, in so far as the power of this Council may extend.—Carried.

Ald. Doyle moved, seconded by Ald. Petrie, that the City Clerk be instructed to get a duplicate map of the water works system from Mr. Geo. H. Pope, and also to get a map of the gas lamps and electric lights from the Gas Company if obtainable.

Ald Hanley stated that a light or two should be placed near the bay bridge.

The motion was carried.

Ald. Skinner moved, seconded by Ald. Wallbridge, that a committee composed of Ald. Yeomans, Bogart, Hanley Graham, Green and the mover and seconder be appointed to take into consideration the advisability of reducing the number of Wards of the city and in what manner, and the advisability of the reduction of the number of Aldermen.

Ald. Petrie and Collins were opposed to the motion.

The motion was carried.

NOTICE OF MOTION.

Ald. Wallbridge gave notice that in view of proposed amendments to the Canadian Banking Act, at the coming session of the Dominion Parliament, this Council would respectfully memorialize the Dominion Government to provide that chartered banks be kept open till three o'clock on Saturdays, the same as on other days, as in the smaller cities and all the towns, it is very important to the business people and the farmers that such provision should be made for their convenience; and that a copy of this resolution be handed to our Member, to bring before the notice of the House.

The Council adjourned at 11:15.

Have You Thought o It?

For four thousand years or more the world groaned, suffered, and fumed about its corns, for there was no positive relief—no certain and painless cure until Dr. Scott Putnam gave to the world his great Corn Extractor. If there is suffering now it is the result of carelessness, for the remedy is at hand. Try Putnam's Corn Extractor. It is sure, painless, and prompt. Beware of substitutes. N. C. Two True Bills.

The Grand Jury yesterday evening brought in true bills against Jas. Kane for murder and Chester W. Yourex for forgery. The latter was arraigned and pleaded guilty to four charges of forgery. Sentence was deferred.

The Egg Trade.

The British market has been depressed of late, but the last advices an increased demand at 6s. 6d. to 7s. 10d. We note that in their circulars for the first time they have made a special quotation for Canadian eggs.

Adjourned Vestry Meetings.

EMMANUEL R. E. CHURCH.

The adjourned vestry meeting was held last night, when the Auditors presented their report, showing that the Church is prospering, the expenses, including rector's stipend, being paid in full to Easter. The building committee are taking active measures to provide a suitable church during the summer.

ST. THOMAS' CHURCH.

The adjourned vestry meeting of St. Thomas' church was held last evening in the church hall, the Rector, Rev. Canon Burke, presiding. The financial statement for the past year, together with the auditor's report, were presented and showed the church to be in a satisfactory condition as far as finances were concerned. These reports were adopted.

The Rector appointed Mr. J. P. C. Phillips as his Church Warden and Mr. Jos. D. Clarke was appointed by the congregation. Auditors, Messrs. C. M. Stork and W. Hamilton. Sidesmen were also appointed.

Votes of thanks were passed to the ladies, gentlemen and others who have assisted in the choir and Sunday school. Votes of thanks were also extended to the Church Wardens for their services during the year.

It was decided to adopt the envelope system for the weekly collections, the pew rents to remain as usual.

The contemplated improvements to the church were discussed at some length. It was found that St. Andrew's church had secured a chime of bells from a firm who had entered into an agreement with them not to supply any other church on the east side of the river with another chime. It was decided, however, to obtain a chime elsewhere, if possible. The Rector and Church Wardens were appointed a committee and empowered to take what steps they deemed necessary to carry out the improvements. The meeting then adjourned for three weeks.

East Hastings Frauds.

A Postponement until Wednesday.

The first order on the paper in the Legislature on Monday was the resumption of the debate on the motion of Mr. Hudson for a reference to the privileges and elections committee of his charges against the returning officer of East Hastings and a deputy returning officer.

Mr. Meredith said that, as Mr. Hudson was unable to be present, it would be desirable to allow the matter to stand until Wednesday, making it the first order on that day.

Hon. Mr. Mowat said the Government had no objections to its standing until Wednesday, but he wished it to be understood that it was not at their instance that the delay took place.

Mr. Meredith—I don't think the hon. gentleman should make that statement.

Hon. Mr. Mowat said that, as the assizes were now sitting in Belleville, it was desirable that there should be as little delay as possible.

Mr. Meredith said that several of the members desired to go home on Friday last and before going they made an arrangement with the Government that the matter should not come up on Monday, otherwise they would not have gone. He therefore thought that Hon. Mr. Mowat should not have made that statement.

Hon. Mr. Fraser said that Mr. Hudson had spoken to him about the matter, asking to have it made the first order for Tuesday. He (Hon. Mr. Fraser) had explained that it could not be brought up on a Government day, but that it might be made the first order for Wednesday.

Mr. Meredith—It went over on Friday at the Government's instance.

It was agreed to make it the first order for Wednesday.

TORONTO TRUTH'S
New Spring Bible Competition
NO. 22.

In these latter days there have arisen many false schemes and many scores of imitations of TRUTH'S Competitions, but one after another have failed and utterly perished, yet TRUTH remains, and makes good all its promises. It reputation is now too well established to risk damaging it, and as it has cost a very large amount of money and many years of care and labor to build up, the publisher could not afford to fail in carrying out all his agreements to the letter. There are twenty-one divisions of the largest list of bona fide prizes ever offered and ever actually given away by any publisher in the world. The total value of prizes in this Spring list is about $10,000,00. The lists are so large it would cost altogether too much to give them in detail here. There are pianos, gold and silver watches, china tea and dinner sets, ladies' and gentlemen's bicycles, silver tea-sets, silk dresses, books, money, and hundreds of other valuable rewards. You pay nothing for these prizes, as everyone concedes that full value is received for the dollar in securing TRUTH every week for three months. Send one dollar and answers to the five following questions: Where in the Bible are these words found? 1, GRAIN; 2, CORN; 3, WHEAT; 4, BARLEY; 5, RYE. If your answers are correct and your letters arrive in time you are almost sure to get a reward, as there are so many and every one cannot always find correct answers to all these questions. All the five answers must be correct to get any prize, but you will get full value for the dollar in TRUTH if you don't get anything else. If you want to see the list of rewards before sending in your dollar, mail TRUTH ten cents and a copy will be sent you containing the list of prizes. But there have been very few dissatisfied prize-winners in previous competitions, considering that he has given away durig the past eight years scores of thousands of prizes. Some people expect a piano for every dallar sent, and are mad if they don't get it. He wishes it were possible to give every subscriber a gold watch or a piano or both, but says it can't be done. Some publishers intimate they will, but nobody can do it for any length of time. Send one dollar and correct answers and you won't repent it; and bear in mind that it is not guaranteed that every body whose answers are correct will get a prize, but that all the prizes in the twenty-one different lists will be given away. The competition remains open only till the last day of June next, inclusive, after which the prizes will be immediately distributed to the successful ones. Ten days will be allowed for letters to reach TRUTH from distant points after the 20th of June. All, however, must be postmarked where mailed not later than the 30th June, or any time between now and that date. Address S. Frank Wilson, "Truth" Office, Toronto, Ont., Canada.

BEATRIX RANDOLPH

BY

JULIAN HAWTHORNE.

COPYRIGHT BY AMERICAN PRESS ASSOCIATION.

The prima donna withdrew her hand as unobtrusively as she could, and asked her mentor what objection there was to marriage if people loved each other? He replied that if they loved each other what was the use of marriage? She rejoined that for two persons to love each other was for them to feel that they must belong to each other forever, and that marriage was simply their open declaration before God and man of the existence of this feeling in their hearts. To make such a declaration was, she conceived, a natural and inevitable impulse, and it was natural and expedient that it should be made according to certain forms, the gradual outcome of tradition and custom. Therefore she thought marriage was not so much an injustice of society to the individual, as a demand made by the individual that society be the witness and a voucher of his covenant.

But Jocelyn hereupon pointed out that a covenant always implied a binding promise, involving penalties if it were broken; that this again implied distrust in the power of pure love to hold its own, and that any outside pressure brought to bear upon a passion essentially so free as love must tend to promote the very reaction and revolt which it professed to guard against. She made answer that the covenant of marriage was not a bondage, and had not that effect upon the parties to it, but that to make one's happiness known to others endowed it with a reality and substance which were else wanting to it. That every person one met tacitly or explicitly confirmed it, reechoed it and assured it, and that the wedded state would consequently lose half its delight and security if it existed, for example, between two persons on a desert island, debarred from ever communicating the fact of their mutual relation to others.

Jocelyn here changed his ground, the better to convey his meaning, and put it to his interlocutor whether a large percentage of marriages were not notoriously unhappy, and this being admitted, whether it were not thereby demonstrated that a great many marriages were a mistake? She answered that even if all marriages which had ever occurred were mistakes, that would not prove that marriage itself was a mistake, but only that the wedded partners had been mistaken in each other. Upon his maintaining that every institution must be judged by its practical application, she rejoined that if there were no such thing as love, there was an end to all argument about it.

He said that love did unquestionably exist, and that it was the strongest and most enduring passion of the human heart, but that it by no means followed that we could always love the same person with equal fervor. Life was growth, and love, which was the essence of life, must therefore be subject to growth likewise. As we developed, as our minds and capacities expanded, we put aside the things of our less mature time, and embraced the interests and the loves corresponding to our larger sphere. There was one love for childhood, another for youth, another for the prime of life. The greater a person's inherent scope and energy, the finer his organization, the more often would he find it necessary to change the object of his affections. To do so was not in opposition to true morality, but in obedience to it; but society, consulting solely its own selfish convenience, had artificially and arbitrarily made such acts criminal, and had thereby bewildered and mortally injured myriads of innocent human beings.

To this the prima donna replied that love could grow illimitably without danger of ever outgrowing its object. The need was not of more to love, but to love more. God, who was love itself, loved the meanest of his creatures, and what God loved that, surely, is not unworthy the affection of the most richly endowed of mankind. As Jocelyn did not immediately confute this argument the prima donna arose and gently intimated that it was necessary for her to be alone in order to prepare for the evening's performance.

Jocelyn ought to have known the futility of argument with a woman about a subject in which the emotions are mainly involved. Even if he had demonstrated his proposition and obtained her assent to it, he would not have been a bit nearer his goal. A woman overpowered by passion will act in direct opposition to the most elementary dictates of reason; and the same woman will not swerve a hair's breadth from the path of rectitude if the most unanswerable logical demonstration do not tally with her emotional prepossession. The fatal flaw in Jocelyn's syllogism was Jocelyn himself. Man may sometimes be led by the intellect, but woman only by the heart—and by curiosity.

After the above discussion it became vaguely apparent to Jocelyn that the prima donna was drifting away from him. She parried his attempts at familiar intercourse gently but effectively. He had in fact done her a service against his own interests. He had assisted her to formulate her instinctive recoil from the view which he sought to inculcate. It was incumbent upon him, therefore, to take some practical step. The close of the season was at hand.

While he was racking his brains as to what he should do, accident came opportunely to his aid. As he was walking about one evening behind the scenes, while the opera was in progress, a carpenter, who was tinkering a defective joint in the scenery up somewhere in the wings, let fall a chisel, which struck Jocelyn on the head, inflicting a superficial but alarming looking wound along the right side of his forehead. He staggered and fell, and blood streamed down his face. A surgeon was sent for, and meanwhile Jocelyn was removed into the prima donna's dressing room. Just then the prima donna, warm and palpitating from her scene, came in with glowing cheeks and sparkling eyes, the thunder of applause still sounding in her ears.

Jocelyn's ghastly aspect filled her with compassion and tenderness. She knelt down beside him where he lay upon the sofa, dipped her handkerchief in water, and with soft murmurs of sympathy and ruth washed the blood away from his wound. He recognized his good luck and lay still for a time, apparently in the dead faint that precedes dissolution. But watching his opportunity when they were left alone for a few minutes he faltered out an entreaty to be lifted to a sitting position, and when she clasped her strong young arms about him to accomplish his desire she found herself unawares entangled in his embrace, and before she could extricate herself she felt his lips on her cheek.

She placed him in the attitude he wished, and then got slowly and wearily to her feet, her face pale and her eyes dark.

"So," she said, with a perceptible intonation of contempt, "I was not mistaken!"

"Forgive me, Beatrix," he sighed out, still affecting to be overcome by weakness. "I could not help it. Darling girl, I love you so! I can fight against it no longer."

"I might have known that you were like the others—or worse," said she, "but I could not believe it till now. I shall never be mistaken again."

"Oh, Beatrix! have you no pity—no consideration for—for my condition? Heaven knows how I have struggled! Take off this bandage," he continued querulously, snatching away the handkerchief from his forehead. "Let me bleed to death—I will not live without you!"

Speaking of Tips.

A TIP is a piece of special or valuable information such as this, that Hagyard's Yellow Oil is a prompt and effectual cure for croup, colds, hoarseness, sore throat, rheumatism, neuralgia, sprains or soreness of any kind. Known as reliable over 30 years.

Important and True.

No better evidence of the fact that Burdock Blood Bitters is a certain remedy for all blood diseases can be asked than that of Mr. Geo. V. Thomas, druggist, of Hull, P. Q., whose wife was cured of cancer by B.B.B. The family doctor is certain that the disease was cancer and that it is now cured.

Silver, blue and leather color are combined in visiting dresses of bengaline and camel's hair.

That latent force of fluid, which permeates all matter, and which bears the conventional name of Electricity, is widely appreciated and recognized as a means of cure in various diseases. Its effects in the form of Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil are shown by the relief of pain, both Neuralgic and Rheumatic, as well as the throat and lungs, and in various other healing ways.

Robert Bogle, Esq., Belleville Business College, Belleville, Ont.:

DEAR FRIEND,—Your very welcome letter of the 13th ult. was duly received.

You asked in your letter if I had any difficulty in performing my work as stenographer. I am glad to tell you that I have not had any difficulty in the least, as you assured me I would not, before leaving your college. I have to write from 30 to 40 letters a day, and there is enough other office work to keep me busy, but it is not hard.

Tell the students never to be afraid, after they have received as careful training as I got.

In conclusion I have to say that any young gentleman or young lady wishing to improve his or her time, may rest assured that they will never regret the time and money spent while attending the above named institution.

Yours very truly,

THREE ROMANTIC LOVE TRAGEDIES IN RUSSIA.

The Indian Opium Trade Again Discussed in the Imperial Parliament—Interesting Irish Items—Prompt Renewal of Assistance to Tenants.

LONDON, April 14.—In the House of Commons this evening William Henry Smith, the Government leader, announced that the Home Government would not advise the Indian Vice-Regal Government of the vote in the House on Friday, whereby a motion against allowing the opium traffic in India was defeated. Mr. Smith also stated that the Government would decline to appoint a commission to investigate and report upon the subject. The paucity of the vote which carried with it the action referred to was such, he said, as not to carry with it the weight of a division of the full house.

The motion to suppress the East India trade in opium was made by Mr. Pease, Gladstone Liberal member of Parliament for the Cleveland division of Yorkshire, and was carried by a vote of 160 ayes to 130 nays out of a total membership in the House of Commons of 670.

TWO STRANGE TRAGEDIES.

In Both Cases Wounded Honor Seeks Relief in Death.

ST. PETERSBURG, April 14.—The Princess Olga Feodorowna, nee Princess Cecile of Baden, daughter of Leopold, Grand Duke of Baden, committed suicide, caused by chagrin at the Czar's refusal to restore her son, Grand Duke Michael, to the honors that he forfeited through his recent marriage with Comtesse de Merenberg.

A young officer named Amenkoff, belonging to the regiment of the Grand Duke Nicholas, the younger, now stationed at Gatschina, committed suicide under very mysterious circumstances. A note was found on his table explaining that no other course was open to him, as he had been grossly insulted by a personage of such exalted position that it was impossible for him to demand satisfaction. It is reported that the Grand Duke Nicholas, the younger, was the cause of the tragedy.

PARIS, April 13.—Drowned in the Seine, tied together by the hands, were found the bodies yesterday of aged Lieutenant Armigoff and Madame Katrina de Fisher. They were members of families in the Russian colony here and loved each other in youth, but could not wed owing to the opposition from Katrina's father. In old age the lovers were reunited and committed suicide because they were to be forced apart.

Italy's Diplomatic Troubles.

ROME, April 14.—There is a serious misunderstanding between Italy and Abyssinia regarding the interpretation of Article 17 of the treaty between the countries. Italy contends that it means all the diplomatic relations of Abyssinia should be made through Italy, thus virtually constituting Abyssinia a protectorate of Italy. The mission of Count Antonel to endeavor to reconcile the Abyssinians to this interpretation has been a failure.

In the Chamber of Deputies to-day Signor Marmuzzi gave notice of his intention to ask the Government what satisfaction had been asked for or obtained in the case of the Italians lynched in New Orleans.

Governor of the Congo State.

BRUSSELS, April 14.—The Etoile Belge says Henry M. Stanley has been appointed governor of the Congo State.

The Freeman's Journal asserts that Mr. Justin Huntly McCarthy will shortly announce his conversion to the tenets of Buddhism.

It is announced that the German Government has decided to conclude commercial treaties with Belgium, Switzerland and Italy.

Gen. Rocca, Minister of the Interior at Buenos Ayres, who was shot at by a boy and slightly wounded in the streets on Feb. 20, has resigned his portfolio.

Fritz, the insane bartender who brutally assaulted Miss Eggleston, daughter of his employer, cutting her skull open with a hatchet, has not yet been captured. The young lady is improving, the operation of trepanning having been performed with good effects.

Trustworthy advices from Aleppo state that the cholera is prevalent there. The news causes much apprehension throughout the East, and precautions are being urged upon the various governments with a view to preventing the spread of the dreaded disease.

Lambert's extensive felt works in Augsburg were burned yesterday. The loss is about $500,000 and 500 hands are thrown out of employment. The Hullersen paper works were also destroyed. They were valued at $300,000.

No Tariff Changes This Session.

OTTAWA, April 14.—It is officially stated that the Government, broadly speaking, has decided not to amend the tariff at the coming session. Possibly something may be done with sugar duties, but the change, if any, cannot be determined until the Customs Department determines the working of the sugar clauses of the McKinley bill and their effect upon Canada.

The Commissioner of Customs informed a correspondent to-day that he discredits reports about American sugar being smuggled across the boundary.

Ald. Ryckman Resigns.

HAMILTON, April 14.—At the City Council meeting last night Ald. Ryckman, M.P., put in his resignation, which was accepted with many expressions of regret by the members of both shades of politics.

Opening of the Canal.

ST. CATHARINES, April 14.—The Welland Canal will be opened for navigation on April 20.

The Ossified Man Fractured.

NEW YORK, April 13.—The ossified man, Lucius Monroe, colored, whose bone body weighs 57 pounds, has a broken thigh bone or a broken left leg, all due to a fall down stairs, because the men who carried him on a cot let it tip so that he rolled off at the top of a flight of stairs.

Dangerous Counterfeits.

Counterfeits are always dangerous, more so that they always closely IMITATE THE ORIGINAL IN APPEARANCE AND NAME. The remarkable success achieved by Nasal Balm as a positive cure for Catarrh and Cold in the Head has induced unprincipled parties to imitate it. The public are cautioned not to be deceived by nostrums imitating Nasal Balm in name and appearance, bearing such names as Nasal Cream, Nasal Balsam, etc. Ask for Nasal Balm and do not take any imitation dealers may urge upon you. Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam.

Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam gives prompt relief in coughs, colds, hoarseness, whooping cough, croup, asthma or bronchitis. It is the most pleasant and perfect throat and lung healer in the world for children or adults. Price 25c.

Bickle's Anti Consumptive Syrup is a combination of several medical herbs which exert a most wonderful influence in curing pulmonary consumption and all other diseases of the lungs, chest and throat. It promotes a free and easy expectoration, and gives ease even to the greatest sufferer. Coughs, colds, shortness of breath, and affections of the chest, attended with weakness of the digestive organs, or with general debility, seem to vanish under its use. No other remedy acts so readily in allaying inflammation or breaking up a severe cold, even the most obstinate cough is overcome by its penetrating and healing properties. When children are affected with colds, coughs, inflammation of the lungs, croup, quinsey, and sore throat, this Syrup is of vast importance. The number of deaths among children from these diseases is truly alarming. It is so palatable that a child will not refuse it, and is put at such a price that will not exclude the poor from its benefits.

White broche is in demand for neglige robes.

Mr. J. R Allen, Upholsterer, Toronto, sends us the following: "For six or seven years my wife suffered from Dyspepsia, Costiveness, Inward Piles and Kidney Complaint. We tried two physicians and any number of medicines without getting any relief, until we got a bottle of Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery. This was the first relief she got, and before one bottle was used the benefit she derived from it was beyond our expectation."

Jacob H. Bloomer, of Virgille, N. Y., writes:—"Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil cured a badly swelled neck and sore throat on my son in forty-eight hours; one application also removed the pain from a very sore toe; my wife's foot was also much inflamed—so much so that she could not walk about the house; she applied the Oil, and in twenty four hours was entirely cured."

A coronet set with turquoises is a new shape for a bonnet pin.

Mr. Thomas Ballard, Syracuse, N.Y., writes: "I have been afflicted for nearly a year with that most-to-be-dreaded disease Dyspepsia, and at times worn out with pain and want of sleep, and after trying almost everything recommended, I tried one box of Parmelee's Vegetable Pills. I am now nearly well, and believe they will cure me. I would not be without them for any money

ADVICE TO MOTHERS

MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP has been used by millions of mothers for children teething for over fifty years with perfect success. It relieves the little sufferer at once, produces natural, quiet sleep by freeing the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste, soothes the child, softens the gums, allays pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhoea, whether arising from teething or other causes. Twenty-five cents a bottle

A Husband Sells His Wife for $50.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., April 14.—Henry W. Miller, a prominent young man of this city, married Miss Annie Stull three years ago. The marriage was a failure. Three months ago Miller sold his wife to a friend, John Roberts. Roberts and Miller were rivals before the latter's marriage. Roberts paid $50 down and the balance he was to pay in monthly instalments. Miller left for the west and Roberts took up his residence in the Miller home. Roberts defaulted, however, in his monthly payments. Miller threatened to return and reclaim his wife. Roberts then left for parts unknown. Mrs. Miller, being deserted by both men, laid her case before Justice Donohue, who issued a warrant for Miller.

La Grippe Causes the Greatest Mortality Ever Known in Brooklyn.

NEW YORK, April 14.—The number of deaths from the grip last week and its indirect influence in producing fatal results with other diseases swelled the number of funerals in Brooklyn to-day far beyond the usual average, and there was a greater demand for hearses than could be supplied. Few could be secured from this city owing to the demand here from the same causes, and those owned in the Long Island towns were sent for. Even then some funerals had to be postponed until to-morrow. The streets of Brooklyn were filled with processions passing to the various cemeteries, and so many coaches were hired that in some cases the prices were increased. Extra forces of men were employed at grave digging in the cemeteries in spite of the storm, and many bodies had to be placed in receiving vaults on account of the lack of time to make graves ready. The number of deaths last week in Brooklyn was 630 and the largest number in one day was 114 on Friday. The number of deaths last week, which was 138 more than in the week before was the largest ever known in Brooklyn.

Nearly Asphyxiated.

BRANTFORD, April 14.—Last night John Hunter, who boards at the Commercial Hotel, retired to bed about 10 o'clock. This morning about 11 o'clock the chambermaid noticed a strong smell of gas. It was found that the occupant of the room was nearly suffocated. Dr. Henwood was summoned and did all he could to relieve the sufferer, who was unconscious. He is a man of exceedingly strong constitution, and it is thought he will pull through.

A Love-Sick Widow's Suicide.

LANSING, Mich., April 14.—The infatuation of Mrs. Ruth McCreedy for a man 16 years her junior led to her death by morphine yesterday. Mrs. McCreedy was a widow with four children and was 46 years of age. Last fall she became acquainted with George Ford of Sanilac, a fascinating fruit tree agent. Their wedding was fixed for April 20, but recently the love of the fruit tree knight has cooled, and last week he went away. Mrs. McCreedy at once sent her young daughter for morphine and with this drug she ended her life.

He Wasn't Poisoned.

LONDON, April 14.—An investigation into the cause of the death of Herbert Lake, who was believed to have either poisoned himself or been the victim of foul play, was held at the residence of his brother, William, 130 Egerton-street, East London, yesterday. The evidence showed that the deceased was leading a life which an iron constitution could not withstand, having been drinking heavily of late and sleeping in an old C.P.R. shanty at night. The post mortem showed that death had been caused by congestion of the lungs, and a verdict was rendered accordingly.

An Old Crime Recalled.

COBOURG, April 14.—The death of Clinton Lawson is announced. He was a brother-in-law of the notorious Dr. King, who died on the scaffold at Cobourg jail on June 9, 1859, for the crime of poisoning his wife. Clinton Lawson, brother of the murdered woman, with great patience and admirable skill, for which he won popular admiration at the time, traced the murderer to his hiding-place in the United States, brought him to account at the point of a pistol and escorted him back to Canada, where he handed him over to the authorities.

AWFUL SKIN DISEASE

Child a Mass of Raw, Bleeding Sores. Miraculous Cure by the Cuticura Remedies.

A face, from the hair to the neck on both sides, a raw mass of bleeding sores; two little hands and arms in the same condition; a body around the waist of which was a broad band of bleeding eruptions, and from the hips to the tips of her toes the skin was so raw as to be absolutely sickening to the sight. Said Mrs. H. A. Stout to me: "I have tried everything suggested to me on my little daughter, who has been so afflicted almost from birth. I have had three doctors experiment on her, but she seemed to be getting worse every day. I was almost distracted. Every night I had to bandage her all over, and tie mittens on her hands to prevent her from digging the raw flesh with her fingers. Mr. Faulkner said he believed that CUTICURA REMEDIES would cure her. He offered to bear the expense. At that time she was worse than I had ever seen her, and there seemed no prospect of recovery. CUTICURA, CUTICURA RESOLVENT, and CUTICURA SOAP have wrought a miracle. To-day her skin is smooth and fair, and I believe she has entirely recovered." The above is true in every particular, and I refer to Mr. C. W. Woolever, druggist.

WHY IS IT ?

If you will listen a minute we will tell you why and how it is that we can and do lead in the crockery business. It's over fifty years since this establishment was founded in London, Ont., by the late Nathaniel Reid, who spent his younger days amongst the English potteries and gained a knowledge of the many processes of manufacture until the goods are laid upon the shelves in this country. This knowledge, handed down to the son and others who have been in the house for twenty-five years, has brought about the following results: 1st.—The ware is all made in Staffordshire, England, brought out in the plain and finished in our own decorating kilns in this country. 2nd.—In Tea Sets we can furnish 134 different patterns; Toilet Sets, 89; Dinner Sets, 96 patterns. 3rd.—To give some idea of what has been done in the Belleville branch, we have sold since the first of last August (8 months) of these three items 164 Tea Sets, 110 Toilet Sets and 93 Dinner Sets. Other lines which belong to this business, such as silver plate and lamps, we handle just as extensively and from the leading factories. The goods are all made for the legitimate crockery trade and not for giving away. We study our own trade. We have got to understand the business we follow. We can reproduce old patterns, buy larger and undersell others, and that's why we lead in this trade.

Dyspepsia

Intense Suffering for 8 years—Restored to Perfect Health.

Few people have suffered more severely from dyspepsia than Mr. E. A. McMahon, a well known grocer of Staunton, Va. He says: "Before 1878 I was in excellent health, weighing over 200 pounds. In that year an ailment developed into acute dyspepsia, and soon I was reduced to 162 pounds, suffering burning Intense sensations in the stomach, palpitation of the heart, nausea, and indigestion. I could not sleep, lost all heart in my work, had fits of melancholia, and for days at a time I would have welcomed death. I became morose, sullen and irritable, and for eight years life was a burden. I tried many physicians and many remedies. One day a workman employed by me suggested that I take Hood's Sarsaparilla, as it had cured his wife of dyspepsia. Suffering I did so, and before taking the whole of a bottle I began to feel like a new man. The terrible pains to which I had been subjected, ceased, the palpitation of the heart subsided, my stomach became easier, nausea disappeared, and my entire system began to tone up. With returning strength came activity of mind and body. 8 Years Before the fifth bottle was taken I had regained my former weight and natural condition. I am today well and I ascribe it to taking Hood's Sarsaparilla."

N. B. If you decide to take Hood's Sarsaparilla do not be induced to buy any other.

BELLEVILLE, WEDNESDAY APRIL 15

THE MANITOBA SCHOOL ACT.

This is the way in which the Quebec allies of Cartwright and the Ontario Grits speak of the refusal of the Dominion Government to disallow the Manitoba School Act:

"L'Etendard is of the opinion that the non-disallowance of the Manitoba School Act will shake Confederation. It says that now the French Canadians and Catholics, who have ever been most loyal, will realize how their most sacred rights are protected since a fanatical majority is allowed to trample on them with impunity. 'In event of favorable circumstances the people's wrath might explode, and then beware!'"

We might with fear and trembling ask what the result would be if these Rouge-Grits were to "explode"? Laurier's "musket," no doubt is meant. It would be interesting to see the Grit Equal Righters marching to the cry of "beware," in defence of the claim for disallowance. Much stranger things than that have happened in the past with Gritism in Canada.

A PICAYUNE GOVERNMENT.

It is known to all who take an interest in the proper working of the Public School Law that Mr. James L. Hughes, School Inspector in Toronto, has taken an active part in opposition to the administration of the Educational Department of the Ontario Government. That he has proved a thorn in the side of Minister Ross, is proven by the fact that that man of great mind has taken the power in a bill now before Parliament to dismiss Inspectors of schools although appointed and paid by the people, if they dare to dissent from the policy of the great Grit Mogul in School matters. "Surely," says the Toronto Telegram, "the assumption that a great Government had thought it worth while to "shunt him off the political track by a legislative amendment is flattering. He can "retire gracefully on such a tribute to his "prowess, and escape the short joys and "long heartaches that are the portion of "politicians."

THE CHEESE INDUSTY.

It is well known that there was a time when Canadian cheese had difficulty in finding a market in England, as better than a good second to the American make. With careful management that has all been since changed, and American cheese is being exported as Canadian whenever that is possible, on account os the high reputation of the Canadian article, and consequent increased demand. There is a chance that the vantage ground may be lost to factorymen by over-greed and carelessness. Upon this point the Secretary of the Produce Exchange, of London, has sounded a much needed note of warning, in the form of a circular, which we reproduce herewith, and which should appeal to the management of every cheese factory, who should take warning that the produce of their factories should improve in quality and not retrograde:

HOME AND FOREIGN PRODUCE EXCHAGE, (LIMITED) HIBERNIA CHAMBERS, LONDON BRIDGE.

March, 1891.

The Cheese Committee of the Home and Foreign Produce Exchange, (Limited), London, have had under consideration the betterment of trade with Canada, and for mutual advantage of all concerned, have decided to address a few suggestions as to improvements which are desirable.

Whilst being able to congratulate the factorymen on the advance made during the past fifteen years, we cannot fail to recognize the fact that they have arrived at a stationary period, if not actually having entered on a retrograde movement.

The season's (1890) make has, as a rule, shown a tight, hard, unkind curd, and a dryness which has in some cases created a suspicion of skimming.

Also, it appears to importers, that throughout this season nearly all factories have marketed their make unripe: whilst we cannot exonerate shippers from all blame in taking an uncured article, still the factorymen are primarily at fault, as, though a temporary advantage may be gained by selling an extra quantity on a rising market, the consumers here have an article foisted on them which creates a lasting prejudice in their minds against foreign cheese. Whilst on the subject, we may point out that it is the exception for an English cheesemaker to "let go" until the cheese are, as they term it "ready."

Of course the weather and the pasturage, producing a greater or lesser quantity and quality of milk is an important factor which practical (and not automatic) cheese makers best know how to deal with.

Coloring has been most erratic, in many cases too high and red, whereas the outlet for such is more contracted every year.

The boxing in most cases shows a decided deterioration. We would strongly urge upon factorymen the necessity on their part of making this point a particular study; a valuable article like cheese is at least worth a good package. A well seasoned wood made to fit the cheese more accurately is desirable. This complaint is especially applicable to sections east of Toronto.

Also, there is the serious matter of weights. Most of the leading houses here have been making (this season) a test in this matter. Immediately on arrival averages have been taken, and the discrepancy arising totally impossible to comprehend.

In submitting the above remarks, our sole object is the permanent improvement of our mutual interests.

By order of the Committee,

EDITORIAL BREVITIES.

The glee of Canadian protectionists over the failure of the recent Washington convention, and the supposed snub administered to the Canadian delegates by President Harrison and Mr. Blaine, turns out to have been premature. —Montreal Witness.

This is rough on the Globe party, including Farrer, Cartwright, Laurier & Co., who were the only jubilators. That they should be dubbed "protectionists" and rebuked by a free trade journal for their premature rejoicing over the imagined failure of the negotiations, is adding insult to injury.

"A Methodist Minister" writes to the Globe:

I saw in the Globe lately that our Tory friends, including some ministers, have been making a great ado because the Hon. Wilfrid Laurier, being a Roman Catholic, was called to be the leader of the Reform party. Now what has Mr. Laurier's religion to do with Mr. Hobbs or any other man?

If this Reverend gentleman is no better informed upon the subjects which he discusses in his pulpit than he is in regard to this matter, his congregation are to be pitied. The only man who has objected to Mr. Laurier's leadership on account of his religion is John Charlton, M.P., who was not, at last advices, a Tory.

The Globe tries to comfort its sadly disappointed party with the declaration that "the future is theirs." This is the sort of comfort administered to all concerned by the Parisian barber, on whose sign was the announcement that shaving and hair cutting in his establishment would be free of charge "to-morrow." The present was the barber's; the future was his customers'.

It is a comparatively easy thing, remarks the Toronto World, for a rich and learned gentleman like Goldwin Smith, who is responsible to no one but himself, to set up and advocate the most surprising doctrines in regard to Canada, doctrines saturated with pessimism and despair, and to swear by the decrees of nature. He can abandon them all when he sees fit. He can take a trip to England and drop his fads like a squirrel drops his nutshells. But a political party with an ambition to govern the country cannot afford to declare that it has no hope in that country, that it has no future, and the sooner such a country commits national suicide the better for all.

In the recent bye-elections to the Legislature in Nova Scotia the Grit majorities were cut down in Antigonish from 360 to 13, in Cape Breton by 50 per cent. and in Hants to 4. And the Grit papers call this heavy reduction of their old-time majorities "a great triumph for Liberal principles."

"Certain hard words, made into pills, Simply to swell the doctor bills," are not what constitute Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets. They are tiny, sugar-coated, purely vegetable pills, as pleasant as confectionery to the taste, and acting upon the stomach and liver gently but effectually, and as naturally as Nature herself. For sick headache, indigestion, biliousness, constipation, and all the resulting diseases, no laxative equal to them has ever been discovered.

G.T.R. ANNUAL MEETING.

SIR HENRY TYLER REPLIES TO SIR CHARLES TUPPER.

Considerable Excitement Occassioned by the Interruptions of Shareholders Opposed to the Present Board of Directors —The Position of the G.T.R.

LONDON, April 14.—The recent discussion in the press between Sir Henry Tyler, president of the Grand Trunk Railway of Canada, and Sir Charles Tupper, Canadian High Commissioner, was probably one of the causes of the exceptionally large attendance at the meeting of shareholders of the company this afternoon. The room was crowded. Sir Henry Tyler delivered a lengthy speech, the chief characteristic of which was its hopeful tone.

He believed, he said, that the United States Congress would again legalize the old divisions of traffic, a matter of great importance. He had also good reason to hope that the Canadian Government will remove the duty on coal, thus saving the Grand Trunk £100,000 sterling annually. Regarding Sir Charles Tupper's charges against the company, Sir Henry remarked: "Before the elections we were deserving of every favor from the Government of Canada. Since the elections no language is too bad, no misrepresentation is too monstrous, to be hurled at us by the High Commissioner." Sir Henry Tyler then proceeded to read to the meeting the private report of Mr. Seargent, the general manager of the company, of the interview he held with Sir Charles Tupper.

Several shareholders, however, promptly interrupted the reading of the report and some confusion ensued. "This is a private affair," said one. "Sir Charles Tupper is not here to reply," said another. "It is a one-sided statement," said a third, amid cheers. However, Sir Henry persevered and declared that the board entirely believed Mr. Seargeant as an honorable man. The report declared that Sir Charles Tupper plainly bid for the Grand Trunk vote. Mr. Seargeant, however, declined to swerve from the position of complete independence. At this point Sir Henry was interrupted by a shareholder calling out, "This is all ancient history."

Sir Henry having requested silence said that Sir Charles Tupper had sent a late Grand Trunk stationmaster to Chicago as a special detective to endeavor to discover damaging facts against the Grand Trunk management. That gentlemen was now in jail for debt. The laughter which greeted this statement having subsided Sir Henry proceeded to review Sir Charles Tupper's charges. He remarked that in details they were very strong but absurd. As to the manager of the Chicago and Grand Trunk whose openly expressed annexationist sentiments had been drawn attention to by Sir Charles Tupper, Sir Henry said that Mr. Reeves was a very valuable officer, but the company regretted his statements as to the necessity to Canada of annexation to the United States and apologized to the Government for them. It was untrue, Sir Henry said, that a single pass had been given over the whole system to enable an elector to cast his vote for the Liberals. Sir Charles Tupper had said that the Grand Trunk had never forgiven the Dominion Government for building the Canadian Pacific Railway. "True," Sir Henry remarked, "the Canadian Pacific received six times as much subsidy as the Grand Trunk, but this company only complains at the subsidies to lines uselessly competing with the Grand Trunk. [Cheers. Sir Charles Tupper then charged the board of this company with extravagance, corruption and jobbery. It is hardly necessary to reply seriously to such general charges, but that came from the High Commissioner. Those who knew Sir Charles Tupper better than most of the gentlemen present thought the charge recalled the spectacle of 'Satan Reproving Sin.'"

After considerable laughter and cheering Sir Henry continued. He said: "If the Grand Trunk was so guilty, why was I, as Sir Charles Tupper wrongly alleged, offered facilities by the Canadian Government to build the Canadian Pacific? Why was our late general manager, Sir Joseph Hickson, knighted? Why was the Grand Trunk before the elections such an excellent body, so well deserving of Government favor?

"Sir Charles Tupper having made charges now means to find something to prove them. Let him do so. I challenge the High Commissioner to bring any single charge of corruption or jobbery against us or Sir Joseph Hickson. I will meet him face to face, because I maintain that no line is more honestly worked than the Grand Trunk. No officials tried more than ours to do their best for the company." [Loud cheers.]

A noisy debate followed, during which hot words were used both by the friends of the management and their opponents. The report was finally adopted, with only five dissenting votes.

Mr. Hill moved and Mr. Cain seconded a motion that these gentlemen be not reelected. The amendment was put amid breathless excitement and was carried by a vote of about 60 to 10.

After the excitement had been somewhat allayed Sir Henry Tyler demanded a poll and it will take place to-morrow.

Amid much excitement a motion was carried to adjourn for a fortnight.

An Innocent Man Released.

OTTAWA, April 14.—His Excellency the Governor-General has remitted the sentence of George Scott, now in Welland jail on a charge of larceny. Scott, who was a Pullman car conductor, was convicted of stealing money and sentenced to two years' imprisonment. This happened last month. Scott pleaded that he was innocent of the crime and later developments substantiate the plea.

Newfoundland Bait Privileges.

OTTAWA, April 14.—It is reported that if the Newfoundland Government persists in its refusal to grant Canadian fishermen bait privileges in Newfoundland waters the Imperial Parliament will pass a bill restricting the bait bill in so far as it affects British subjects.

The Woes of Wage Earners.

The disturbances of the peace at Bradford, Eng., continue, and the military are kept confined to their barracks under arms. A number of men have been arrested charged with intimidating the weavers who are on strike. The directors of the mills refuse to settle disputes by arbitration and declare the weavers are perfectly willing to go back to work, but the men are terrorized by labor agitators. In the evening rioting was resumed. The mob numbered at least 20,000 persons. The street lamps were extinguished by the rioters. The military, police and special constables charged and dispersed the mob. Many persons were injured.

The Welsh tin platers will close their works for one month from July 1, being forced to restrict their output in consequence of the new American tariff law.

Interesting Irish Items.

The Dublin National Press (McCarthyite organ), referring to the suggestion of the American National League for arbitration as a means of settling disputes in the Irish parliamentary party, says: "The time for negotiations is past. The fight must now go on. It will be bitter but it is not likely to be long."

The McCarthyites have decided on the prompt renewal of relief to the evicted tenants.

Making a Face for a Woman.

ELLIAM, Ga., April 14.—Dr. A. S. J. Stovell is making a false face to cover a defect in a colored woman's face, which was horribly disfigured by a gunshot. The novel experiment is expected to be a success.

ONTARIO LEGISLATURE.

THE REMOVAL OF CENTRAL PRISON BURSAR WHELER.

Mr. Gibson Explains the Reason Why a Change Was Made—Dr. Cascaden Was a Disappointed Man—The Central Prison Expenditures.

TORONTO, April 15.—Mr. Tait's bill respecting undertaking, embalming and organic chemistry came before the Special Committee yesterday. J. B. McIntyre of St. Catharines, W. H. Hoyle of Cannington and others mentioned as the first council of the proposed college were in attendance and supported the bill. Albert Ogden, representing Humphreys and others who are opposed to the bill, urged that as the Undertakers' Association, which is to have charge of the college, was incorporated under the Benevolent and Provident Societies' Act it cannot engage in business; that by its act of incorporation the association cannot hold property worth more than $5000 annual rental and that the bill was simply to increase its power of holding land; that the association sought to be erected into a "combine" to the injury of the public; that the association was really a secret society and it would be against the public interest to allow a secret society to control the college, examinations, granting of diplomas, etc.; that the college should be under the control not of the Undertakers' Association but of the Provincial Board of Health. Further discussion was postponed until to-day.

Among the items of the estimates passed by the House was that for the expenditure required in connection with the Central Prison. Mr. Meredith asked for an explanation of the resignation of the bursar. Mr. Gibson said that his resignation was asked because of irregularities in connection with his treatment of money received from outside jails which received supplies from the Central. The checks were cashed by him and afterwards set off against what was coming in. His course was irregular and improper and there was no excuse for using the money even temporarily. At the investigation which followed, although no fraudulent intent was established, the irregularities were shown to be such that they could not continue to allow him to occupy such an important position.

Mr. Meredith: "How long was this going on?"

Mr. Gibson: "For some years."

Mr. Meredith: "Was there any shortage?"

Mr. Gibson: "All the checks used in that way were accounted for. There was a small balance of $200, which was in dispute between the late bursar and his predecessor."

The estimated expenditure in connection with the Mimico branch asylum led Mr. Wood (Hastings) to inquire into the resignation of Dr. Cascaden. Mr. Gibson explained that he found his duties were not as congenial as he had anticipated. He had expected that he would be independent and fill the position of an ordinary superintendent but he was disappointed. There were other reasons. His relations with the superintendent were not as agreeable as they ought to be. He resigned because there was no appearance of the improvement in his condition which he had anticipated.

Drank Twenty-five Glasses of Beer.

ALTOONA, Pa., April 14.—Alphonso Sitler, a middle-aged Frenchman, who came to this city from Philadelphia to work in the machine shops, drank 25 glasses of beer and several pints of whisky. He was taken sick and to-night died of hemorrhage of the stomach. The coroner's jury rendered a verdict of death from alcoholism.

A Child Drowned—Body Found in the Bay—Miners Protest.

TORONTO, April 15.—At a meeting of mining men held at the Rossin yesterday resolutions were passed protesting against the new mining act of the Legislature imposing royalties.

The 3-year-old son of Private Edwards of "C" School was playing on the embankment at the New Fort yesterday, and on a search being made his body was found in the lake near where he had been playing. The bank s high and steep at this point and it is supposed the child fell over unnoticed and was drowned.

The body of Michael Roch, an expressman, who has been missing since Feb. 9, was found yesterday floating in the Bay opposite the foot of Simcoe-street.

WISHED TO DIE IN THE TEMPLE.

So that He Would Be Certain to Be Buried With Full Masonic Rites.

ST. CATHARINES, April 14.—Richard Ratcliffe, the prominent Mason who committed suicide last week, it now appears attempted suicide in the Masonic Temple. He appears to have visited the rooms, put everything in order for his funeral, laying the paraphernalia out as was his custom when there was to be a Masonic funeral. He then took a piece of rope which he found in the ante room and fastened it over the transom of the door leading into the paraphernalia room His whole weight must have been allowed to rest on this, either to test the rope or in an attempt to hang himself, as the marks of the rope are plainly visible on the wood. He took the rope away with him and with it successfully finished the awful deed in the store The careful manner in which everything was arranged for the Masonic service shows that the suicide was coolly premeditated, no thought entering his mind that he would not be buried with full Masonic rites.

KINGSTON, April 14.—Robert J. Gowdy, a clerk in the postoffice, was arrested this morning for tampering with Her Majesty's mail. For some time past, it is said, money letters have been disappearing and the postoffice authorities have been trying to solve the mystery. A decoy letter addressed to a citizen of Belleville was posted and a watch was set on Gowdy, who was seen to enter an outbuilding. He was watched through auger-holes by the inspectors, and it is claimed pulled letters out of his pocket and proceeded to investigate their contents. After he had torn the corner of one letter the inspector shouted from above, "Ah, there, I have caught you at last." He then jumped into the building and seized Gowdy. Three letters were found in his possession. Gowdy was then handed over to the police. Gowdy denies being guilty and says the letters that were in his pockets were addressed to himself. He said his arrest was due to spite.

Read Her Husband's New Wedding Notice

BRIDGETON, N.J., April 14.—The advertisement of the marriage of Leonard R. Jones to Maggie M. Husted by Rev. A. S. Flock of Cedarvillecaught the eye of Jones first wife Emma, and she had him arrested. The constable found him living with his new wife. He was brought over to Justice Wells' court, in this city, and sent to jail in default of bail.

Penitentiary Guards' Pay.

KINGSTON, April 14.—A large and representative number of penitentiary guards waited on Warden Lavell to have the warden's sanction for the guards to apply to Parliament for an increase of salaries. The men claim that the money now paid is not sufficient to keep them in a respectable way. The warden received the deputation courteously, and promised to do what he could to get the guards the increase asked for.

The Bonding Privilege.

"The Government has not received any official notice of the withdrawal by the United States of the bonding privilege from Canadian railways," said Hon. Mackenzie Bowell to-day. "So far as the newspaper statements on this subject are concerned, I think they only refer to a stricter enforcement by the treasury department of the regulations as they have existed for some time past. There may have been laxity of administration in the past in reference to this matter; in fact, the more rigid enforcement of the regulations now would lead me to suppose that such has been the case."—*Ottawa Corr. HISTORY REPEATS ITSELF.

It is not ten years ago though since the "fad" of papering ceilings was all the rage, nor was it five years ago! Yet this season there is a very strong demand for ceiling papers and decorations, and we firmly believe that papered ceilings will always be fashionable.

* * *

How do we know?

We'll tell you.

Economy and common sense have done it.

The world of fashion produces periodically a "fad" and if it receives "official recognition" from some fashion leader, it is considered "quite the proper thing" by the votaries of fashion and a craze ensues.

* * *

Fashion dictates more severely and draws finer lines in the matter of decoration than in anything else under her sway, and it sometimes happens that some of her "whims" become permanencies or "things of beauty and a joy forever." Economy is the great factor that transforms what was once a "fleeting fancy" into a permanent reality and that's where common sense steps in.

Although the craze of papering ceilings died out for awhile, it has returned again, not as a craze, but as a good big morsel of hard common sense, and it has come to stay. It's admitted superiority over every other style of ceiling decoration, both in attractiveness and ECONOMY has forced "fashion" to the wall for once and in spite of herself she "returns to her first love," thus waiving the formality of waiting the allotted decade for "History to repeat itself."

Try and remember that economy and common sense have done this—for where can you find a better field for decoration in your whole house than a ceiling presents?

Please make a note of this.

"MAX'S" MIXTURE

Of a Local and General Interest.

A well known local barber had the following notice displayed in his shop recently: "Hair cut and whiskers trimmed 25c. Children 15c!" He has taken it down.

I have noticed, in perusing the local journals, the lack of taste and attention many of the merchants give to their advertisements. An advertisement in the newspapers, to be read by the masses, must be written in a catchy manner, and advertisers should remember that it is not the quantity of reading matter that gives the best results. Invariably a small, pithy advertisement with a blank margin surrounding it will catch the eye quicker than double the same space filled with stereotyped advertising phrases. Cuts are also being used to a great extent by the merchants in the larger cities, and many seem to think this will attract the eye quicker than anything else. Some of our merchants evidently know how to make advertising pay.

I wonder if we are to enjoy the band concerts on the Hospital lot this summer. This is a very great privilege, which we have enjoyed in times past and I hope Prof. Riggs and his excellent musical organization will continue to supply this boon to Belleville's music-loving citizens.

I would like to offer a suggestion to Manager Tammadge and other managers, which I think, if followed out, would inure to their own benefit and give local theatre-goers the privilege of witnessing many of the first-class attractions which at present is not afforded them. As the matter now stands, there are very few of the first class companies stop at Belleville unless to fill in time between Toronto and Montreal or vice versa. So that practically Canada has only two solid weeks for companies—Toronto and Montreal—unless they take chances on getting into the "one night stands," Belleville included. What I would suggest would be for the managers of the opera houses in, say, Ottawa, Brockville, Kingston, Belleville, Trenton and Peterborough, to amalgamate and place their booking in the hands of some New York firm who make a specialty of this business, for instance Klaw & Erlanger or H. S. Taylor. By this means some of the best companies would be booked over the circuit, which with Montreal and Toronto and other theatres in western Canada would make four or five weeks good time in Canada which could be booked solidly in New York. By the above, I do not mean to intimate that we do not have good attractions at the opera house, but by the foregoing plan we would have a greater number and the house would thus become more profitable to the management.

Board of Education.

A regular meeting of the Board was held last evening presided over by the Chairman, Mr. Wm. Tennant. The minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed.

Three communications of no importance were read.

REPORTS.

Reports were presented from the Finance, School Management and Sites, Building and Repairs Committees, which were adopted.

Finance Committee recommending payments of accounts,

The School Management Committee recommended the purchase of readers of different series from those now in use for the special purpose of teachers giving special reading lessons to pupils.

The Sites, Building and Repairs Committee recommended the payment of $230 for repairs for different schools.

On motion of Mr. Doyle a special committee composed of Mr. Tennant, chairman, H. Walker, Rev. M. W. MacLean, the mover and John Martin was appointed to consider the granting of prizes to graduates of the High School.

Inspector Seath, reported on his recent inspection of the High School. He says the school continues to do good work generally. The addition to the library and the provision of a properly furnished laboratory will increase its efficiency.

Dr. Wright, Head Master, presented his report for the month.

On motion of Mr. Walker, the resolution passed at the last regular meeting in regard to the reports made of certain teachers was re-considered.

On motion of Mr. Johnson, the letter read at the last regular meeting from Rev. Mr. Daw and Rev. Mr. Pole, complaining of statements made by certain teachers, were referred to the School Management Committee for investigation.

The Board then adjourned.

"Aunt Jack."

A large audience witnessed the production of the farce-comedy "Aunt Jack" by A. M. Palmer's travelling company at the opera house last night. The performance was in every respect well sustained. Miss Ffolliott Paget, who enacted the title role, was an ideal "Aunt Jack;" handsome and imposing in person, with a fine voice and dashing manner, she seemed admirably fitted to "walk into the affections" of elderly bachelors. Her singing was also excellent. In Messrs. Bowser, Backus, Butler and Eberle she had highly efficient support, whilst the minor parts were cleverly enacted.

Only a Scare.

At a few minutes before 11 o'clock last night, two suspicious looking characters were noticed to enter the gangway between Messrs. Hyman's and Conger Bro's. stores, and not returning the police were informed of the circumstance. Chief Newton, Sergt. McCrudden and Officer Stoneberg searched the yards in rear of these places, also the premises, but no trace of the men could be found. A number of persons were upon Front street at the time, and the report being circulated that a burglary had been committed caused considerable excitement.

Not Correct.

There have been some reports upon the streets to the effect that Mr. L. W. Yeomans was intending to sell out his business and leave the city. We have Mr. Yeomans' authority for saying he has no such intention, nor has he any desire to dispose of his business. Although a very handsome offer has been made him with a residence in Europe, Mr. Yeomans has declined it, preferring his native place with its pleasant and healthful surroundings.

Don't Feel Well,

And yet you are not sick enough to consult a doctor, or you refrain from so doing for fear you will alarm yourself and friends—we will tell you just what you need. It is Hood's Sarsaparilla, which will lift you out of that uncertain, uncomfortable, dangerous condition, into a state of good health, confidence and cheerfulness. You've no idea how potent this peculiar medicine is in cases like yours.

Oh, What a Cough

Will you heed the warning. The signal perhaps of the sure approach of that more terrible disease Consumption. Ask yourselves if you can afford for the sake of saving 50c., to run the risk and do nothing for it. We know from experience that Shiloh's Cure will cure your cough. It never fails.

HILLIER

(From our own Correspondent.)

Hillier, April 13, 1891.

A sugar social was held recently in the Town Hall. After the sugar was served, a programme consisting of vocal and instrumental music, recitations, and speeches by several talented gentlemen, was given. Mr. C. Palmer, of Trenton, gave an excellent song, while Mr. Geo. Bell ably filled the chair. Proceeds for sidewalk. The lumber was drawn from Trenton on Thursday.—Mr. W. H. Titus' new waggon house is nearly completed.—Mr. Frank Graydon has taken a contract to build a house for Mr. N. Gordon, and was busy hauling lumber from the station on Saturday.—Lumber for a new station is on hand, and it will be put up in a few days.—Persons are busily engaged repairing the cheese factory, putting on new siding and otherwise improving it.—Several ladies and gentlemen were invited to Mr. G. Hubbs' sugar bush on Saturday, to partake of an excellent feast of sugar. Mr. Hubbs has the name of making the best sugar and syrup of any one around here.—Several of our farmers have begun sowing.—Mr. F. Crandell intends buying eggs for a firm in Trenton, and will probably be around in a few days.—Mr. Jos. Conkey, one of our young men, is learning the blacksmith's trade with Mr. B. Johnson, of Consecon. Joseph is missed, as he was quite a favorite.—Mr. Plumkin and sons, of near Codrington, have moved to the farm near here known as the Samuel Jones farm.—Mr. Leslie Jones is home for a few days from Kingston College.

DESERONTO.

Navigation Notes—The Big Mill—Amateur Minstrels—Death from Pneumonia.

(From our own Correspondent.)

T. J. Butler, jr., a popular young man of this town, will be purser on the Ella Ross this season.

Dr. Dulmadge spent last Sunday at Brighton under the parental roof.

Navigation will open on the 20th.

Next Monday, April 20th, Rathbun's big saw mill will start.

The "Life Boat Crew" of the R.T. of T. are holding successful services in the Methodist church this week.

Rev. R. J. Craig, pastor of the church of the Redeemer here, preached in St. Andrew's, Nassau, Bahamas, last Sunday.

A juvenile court of the Canadian Order of Foresters will be organized here in a few days.

The Deseronto Amateur Minstrels will give concerts in Union Hall Wednesday and Thursday evenings, April 15th and 16th.

Last night Mr. C. E. Groves, of the Big Store, died after a few days' illness with pneumonia. He was a member of the I.O.F. and was much respected. This is the first death that has occurred in Court Deseronto since its organization, about eight years ago.

Parmelee in Trouble.

The Case Likely to be Settled.

From the Toronto papers we learn that on Monday, Mr. Herbert S Parmelee, a contractor residing at No. 644 Church street, in that city, was arrested on a warrant charging him with fraud. The prisoner, when taken to Police headquarters, had four tickets for New York in his pocket, and he was about to leave on the noon train for that city when arrested.

The News says, in its issue of Tuesday: "The charge of fraud against H. S. Parmelee will probably be settled without serious consequences to the accused. He appeared before Magistrate Denison this morning and was remanded for a week to settle. Bail was granted.

"The particulars are that he owed Charles Newman, grocer, 789 Yonge street, a bill of $7, in payment of which he gave a check for $27, dated December 20, on the Standard Bank, receiving $20 in return. There had been no funds at the bank since March, 1890. Parmelee was manager of the Parmelee Roofing and Paving Company, which had an office in the Toronto arcade."

Mr. Parmelee is well known in Belleville, having resided here for several years.

For a Spiritual Song.

A Christmas story.—A poor country congregation found itself badly in want of hymn-books. The clergyman applied to a London firm, and asked to be supplied at the lowest (Church) rates. The firm replied that on condition the hymn-books contained certain advertisements, the congregation should have them for nothing. Necessity needs no law, and the minister sorrowfully complied, thinking to himself that when the advertisements came they could be removed from the leaves. The hymn-books arrived, and—joy of joys—they contained no interleaved advertisements. At the thanksgiving service the good parson joyously gave out the Christmas hymn, and the congregation sang the first verse with fervor. When they reached the last line they found that this was what they had been singing:

"Hark! the herald angels sing,
Beecham's Pills are just the thing;
Peace on earth and mercy mild,
Two for man and one for child."

"My Own Canadian Home."

To the Editor of the Intelligencer.

Sir,—The band score of "My Own Canadian Home" has been received by the M. and I.O.O.F. Band. The complete score has been presented to all the bands in Canada, and our national anthem will now be played from the Atlantic to the Pacific. The presentation was made through the generosity of the manufacturers of the celebrated Surprise Soap, the St. Croix Soap Mfg. Co., St. Stephen, N.B. Veterans of 1837 and '38.

To the Editor of the Intelligencer:

Dear Sir,—The final roll of the names of 1100 old vets and 100 widows of old vets is now being published, and will be for sale in the course of about two weeks. Some have delayed sending in their names for registration. Every veteran in Canada and in the U. S. should send in his name (accompanied by 25cts. in postage stamps), to ensure the registration of his name and secure one of the pamphlets. The majority of the old vets, like myself, seem to have, through life, strictly obeyed Christ's injunction, not to "lay up treasures on earth."

Old veterans, your claims will be first laid before the Ottawa Government, then before the House of Commons in England.

Mr. Hudson's Alleged Charges—No. 6 Poll, Foxboro.

To the Editor of the Intelligencer.

Dear Sir,—Enclosed please find declaration giving some facts respecting the alleged charges made by the member for East Hastings, Mr. Hudson, in the Legislature at Toronto,—which facts will be borne out fully by nearly every person present at the time, if not all of them—which I will feel obliged if you will kindly insert in your Daily of to-morrow and Weekly of this week.

Yours respectfully,
Harford Ashley.

In the Matter of the Provincial Election, holden for East Hastings on June 5, 1890.

I, Harford Ashley, of the Township of Thurlow, County of Hastings, hereby solemnly declare:

1. That I acted as deputy returning officer at poll 6, Thurlow, at above election.
2. That the ballot box was not put upon the floor in the morning, as alleged by Mr. Hudson in the House, but upon a box two feet high, and in open view to every voter.
3. There were not two ballots folded together, as charged by Mr. Hudson.
4. When the ballots were counted there was one short, and it was found in the hole in the lid of the ballot box. It was marked for Mr. Hudson and was so counted and credited to him in my return for said poll.
5. Both of Mr. Hudson's agents at said poll complimented me at the close of the poll on the impartial manner in which I had conducted it.

And I make this solemn declaration conscientiously believing the same to be true and by virtue of the act respecting extra-judicial oaths.

Declared before me at the city of Belleville, in the County of Hastings, this 14th day of April, A.D., 1891. } Harford Ashley.
W. J. Diamond,
A Commissioner in B.R. &c.

Belleville, 15th Aug., 1890.

I was agent at Vermilyea's election at No. 6 Poll, Thurlow, until noon. Assisted in placing ballot box on wooden box about two feet high. It was not placed on floor as alleged by Mr. Hudson. Sat farthest away. Could see what went into the ballot box from where I sat. Will make declaration, if required, to above. Not present at the court. Lewis Bradshaw.

Get After the Rascals.

W. P. Hudson's speech in the Legislature on Friday disclosed, if not evidence, at least strong symptoms of a conspiracy to count him out of his seat for East Hastings.

In the presence of an attempt by individuals to unsurp the powers of constituency, the Government should not stand upon the order of its attack. It should start legislative authority in pursuit of the alleged evil-doers with the celerity that could speak a sincere desire to uphold the sanctity of the ballot box.

If Mr. Hudson is allowing his voice to run wild the Government can supply powder to explode his charges. If truth is on his side there will still remain with the Ministry the credit of having aided an opponent to punish its own political friends. Finally the Government should act because the crime of trifling with the ballots is becoming too common in Ontario, and it is time that some returning officer or deputy went to gaol for it.—Toronto Telegram.

Clark's Lightning

Liniment will relieve the painful torture of rheumatism in the joints or muscles. It should be well rubbed in with the hand, and the part covered with a piece of flannel. The pain will cease with the first application, and its continued use will effect a marvellous cure. This remedy needs but a trial to convince the most skeptical that it is a wonderful preparation. Sold by all druggists: price fifty cents. Clark Chemical Co., Toronto, New York.

Modus Vivendi Licenses.

It is understood that, in consequence of the arrangement for a conference between the United States and Canada on trade matters next October, the Government will ask Parliament to renew the modus vivendi arrangement as applicable to the Atlantic fisheries for the present season of navigation only. The department will assume the responsibility of issuing licenses right along should any application be received before the Act passes.

Sidney Council.

Town Hall, Sidney, 6th April.

Council met agreeably to adjournment, members all present. Minutes of last meeting read and adopted. A communication was read from S. B. Burdett in reference to ditch in 2nd concession of Sidney.—Received and filed. A communication was read from the County Clerk in reference to poor houses in the county. Clerk of the Council to get all the information he can and report at next meeting. Mr. Holgate presented the petition of Leonard Smith and others asking the Council to assist in building a culvert.—Petition granted. Mr. Brooks presented the petition of John Brooks and others, asking the Council to assist in covering the Marsh Creek bridge.—Petition granted. Mr. Dench presented the petition of David Clark and others asking for division in road beat.—Received and filed. Mr. Dench presented the petition of W. A. Ketcheson and others, asking aid for Mrs. Innes.—Temporary aid granted, Clerk to correspond with Stephen Innes and the Clerk of Seymour.

The Road Surveyor was instructed to examine the road allowance between the 6th and 7th concessions running west from Marsh Hill school house, and report at the next meeting. He was also instructed to open road across lots Nos. 13 and 14, in the 5th concession, under By-law No. 328.

A communication was read from Mrs. McCambridge in reference to damage done by water in the village of Frankford. The Reeve and Mr. Nicholson to be a committee to arrange about a ditch, and report at next meeting.

Mr. Dench introduced an amendment to By-law No. 160, in reference to commutation of statute labor. The amendment was read a third time, and is as follows: 60 cents per day if paid in to Pathmaster at the time of doing the statute labor, and 75 cents per day if not done and returned to the Clerk before the 15th August.

Mr. Holgate introduced a by-law, to appoint Pathmasters, Poundkeepers and Fence Viewers, which was read a third time and No. 342.

The Clerk was instructed to advertise the Court of Revision for Monday, the 1st day of June, at 10 o'clock a.m. Council to meet at 9 o'clock a.m. sharp.

A Cure for Constipation Headache.

Dr. Silas Lane, while in the Rocky Mountains, discovered a root that when combined with other herbs, makes an easy and certain cure for constipation. It is in the form of dry roots and leaves, and is known as Lane's Family Medicine. It will cure sick-headache and is the best spring Medicine. For the blood, liver and kidneys, and for clearing up the complexion it does wonders. Druggists sell it at 50c and $1 a package.

Canada Still Lives.

What could Sir John do to gain for Canada the blessings of reciprocity that he has not done?

A deputation of brainy, unobjectionable and able envoys respectfully attempts to talk business to the government at Washington.

That they failed is not the fault of themselves, their country, the old leader, the old flag, or the old policy.

Perhaps failure is in this case not even a misfortune. But blessing or curse, the failure is not a fault that the Government should be taunted with, and the Grit press should not glory in an event that according to their showing is a national calamity.

Meantime Canada is doing its spring ploughing and trusting in Providence.—Toronto Telegram.

Two doctors of an Eastern town,
To learning much inclined,
Were called to see a gentleman,
Whose health was undermined.

The first one used his stethoscope
Upon the patient meek.
"I find," quoth he, "one lung is gone;
You cannot live a week."

To this the other wise M. D.
Vehemently objected.
"I see," quoth he, "as all may see,
Your kidneys are affected."

These wise men argued loud and long,
Yet the patient owes recovery
(Not to those doctors, but to—Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery).

There are some patent medicines that are more marvelous than a dozen doctors' prescriptions, but they're not those that profess to cure everything.

Everybody, now and then, feels "run-down," "played out." They've the will, but no power to generate vitality. They're not sick enough to call a doctor, but just too sick to be well. That's where the right kind of a patent medicine comes in, and does for a dollar what the doctor wouldn't do for less than five or ten.

We put in our claim for Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery.

We claim it to be an unequaled remedy to purify the blood and invigorate the liver. We claim it to be lasting in its effects, creating an appetite, purifying the blood, and preventing Bilious, Typhoid and Malarial Fevers, if taken in time. The time to take it is when you first feel the signs of weariness and weakness. The time to take it, on general principles, is NOW.

It's the cheapest blood-purifier, sold through druggists, no matter how many doses are offered for a dollar.

Why? Because it's sold on a peculiar plan, and you only pay for the good you get.

Can you ask more?

TORONTO TRUTH'S
New Spring Bible Competition
NO. 22.

In these latter days there have arisen many false schemes and many scores of imitations of Truth's Competitions, but one after another have failed and utterly perished, yet Truth remains, and makes good all its promises. Its reputation is now too well established to risk damaging it, and as it has cost a very large amount of money and many years of care and labor to build up, the publisher could not afford to fail in carrying out all his agreements to the letter. There are twenty-one divisions of the largest list of bona fide prizes ever offered and ever actually given away by any publisher in the world. The total value of prizes in this Spring list is about $10,000,00. The lists are so large it would cost altogether too much to give them in detail here. There are pianoes, gold and silver watches, china tea and dinner sets, ladies' and gentlemen's bicycles, silver tea-sets, silk dresses, books, money, and hundreds of other valuable rewards. You pay nothing for these prizes, as everyone concedes that full value is received for the dollar in securing Truth every week for three months. Send one dollar and answers to the five following questions: Where in the Bible are these words found? 1, Grain; 2, Corn; 3, Wheat; 4, Barley; 5, Rye. If your answers are correct and your letters arrive in time you are almost sure to get a reward, as there are so many and every one cannot always find correct answers to all these questions. All the five answers must be correct to get any prize, but you will get full value for the dollar in Truth if you don't get anything else. If you want to see the list of rewards before sending in your dollar, mail Truth ten cents and a copy will be sent you containing the list of prizes. But there have been very few dissatisfied prize-winners in previous competitions, considering that he has given away during the past eight years scores of thousands of prizes. Some people expect a piano for every dollar sent, and are mad if they don't get it. He wishes it were possible to give every subscriber a gold watch or a piano or both, but says it can't be done. Some publishers intimate they will, but nobody can do it for any length of time. Send one dollar and correct answers and you won't repent it; and bear in mind that it is not guaranteed that every body whose answers are correct will get a prize, but that all the prizes in the twenty-one different lists will be given away. The competition remains open only till the last day of June next, inclusive, after which the prizes will be immediately distributed to the successful ones. Ten days will be allowed for letters to reach Truth from distant points after the 30th of June. All, however, must be postmarked where mailed not later than the 30th June, or any time between now and that date. Address S. Frank Wilson, "Truth" Office, Toronto, Ont., Canada.

Threatening to Kill.

This serious offence might well be charged against that prevalent disease Constipation, which threatens to destroy many valuable lives if not stopped. It arises from wrong action of the Stomach, Liver and Bowels, and causes Dyspepsia, Biliousness, Bad Blood, Boils, Pimples, Rashes, Eruptions, Sores and Foul Tumors. It can only be cured by the prompt use of the right remedy, Burdock Blood Bitters, which never fails to cure even the most obstinate cases and is a specific for all diseases of the Stomach, Liver, Bowels and Blood. Thousands testify. Read and learn.

MRS. G. McKAY.

Cases in Point.

Sure to Cure.

DEAR SIRS,—I suffered with constipation and headache, and having taken a bottle of B. B. B. on trial, found it doing so much good that I sent for several more and it proved a sure cure. I use it in my family and feel safe in recommending it to my friends.

MRS. GORDON McKAY,
Jordan Falls, N. S.

A Prompt Effect.

DEAR SIRS,—I was very bad with costiveness and one bottle of your Burdock Blood Bitters cured me. I would not be without it.

We Claim the Earth.

We claim the earth is round, and we know it's true. We also claim that Hagyard's Yellow Oil cures sprains, bruises, burns, colds, croup, sore throat, rheumatism, neuralgia, and all painful or inflammatory diseases, and we know this is true. Yellow Oil is a true family remedy for lameness or soreness in man or beast.

Sit Down and Think.

Sit down and think; 1st, that dyspepsia is caused by wrong action of the stomach; 2nd, that Burdock Blood Bitters is designed to correct and regulate the stomach; 3rd, that it always cures dyspepsia and costs less than a cent a dose. Can you afford to be dyspeptic?

BEATRIX RANDOLPH

BY JULIAN HAWTHORNE.

COPYRIGHT BY AMERICAN PRESS ASSOCIATION.

"It will take you a long time to bleed to death, Mr. Jocelyn," returned she quietly. "I shall not be able to wait for you. Perhaps Madame Benax will. Shall I call her?"

"You shall not speak to me in that tone!" exclaimed Jocelyn, raising himself on his couch in real or feigned passion. "I have not deserved it! Have I not done everything for you? Have you forgotten what you owe me?"

"You cannot have forgotten that I long since told you I could never marry you, so how could you expect that I would pay you what I owe with myself?"

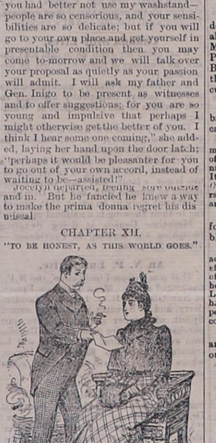
"I am not a man to make cold blooded calculations!" said he, getting impulsively on his legs. "If you had any heart you would understand, Beatrix," he went on, suddenly changing his tone and attempting to seize her hands; "I do not ask an irrevocable compact—I do not hope that you can love me always. You will go on, I know, and leave me behind. But, oh! my dearest one, would you regret in the future that is before you, and which my poor aid will have helped you to enjoy—will you regret, then, having made a man who loves you insanely—having made him, for a little while only, the happiest of human beings? You may be loved by younger men than I, and handsomer and richer, but never"—

"Mr. Jocelyn," she interposed, with a manner that indicated a lamentable hardening of her once sweet and gracious nature, "if you would look at yourself in the glass you would understand why I appear so unsympathetic. Even a prima donna, who holds herself at the beck and call of every good looking fellow who happens to take a fancy to her—even I cannot listen to you until you have washed your face. Perhaps you had better not use my washstand—people are so censorious, and your sensibilities are so delicate; but if you will go to your own place and get yourself in presentable condition then you may come to-morrow and we will talk over your proposal as quietly as your passion will admit. I will ask my father and Gen. Inigo to be present as witnesses and to offer suggestions; for you are so young and impulsive that perhaps I might otherwise get the better of you. I think I hear some one coming," she added, laying her hand upon the door latch; "perhaps it would be pleasanter for you to go out of your own accord, instead of waiting to be—assisted!"

Jocelyn departed, feeling sore outside and in. But he fancied he knew a way to make the prima donna regret his dismissal.

CHAPTER XII.

"TO BE HONEST, AS THIS WORLD GOES."



"There's nothing in it that you may not see; will you read it?"

Mr. Wallie Dinsmore had been indulging in a good deal of casuistry of late, owing to a desire to reconcile his theory that human beings ought to help one another with his temperamental aversion to being mixed up in other people's affairs. He might have evaded the difficulty by handing over the matter which troubled him to Mrs. Cadwalader; but that would only have been an indirect way of forcing his own hand. He smoked a great number of cigars, seated in his study chair, and incidentally tried to stare his great white owl out of countenance; but he hesitated still.

One morning while thus occupied he heard a carriage stop at the door and a card was brought up to him. Contrary to his usual custom in such cases, he jumped up, tossed his cigar into the fire, gave a pull to his collar and a jerk to his coat, and bade the servant conduct Mlle. Marana upstairs.

By the time she appeared he had recovered his genial serenity. He shook hands with her with the quiet cordiality of a man constantly in the habit of receiving famous prime donne in his private sitting room, and at the same time gave the servant a look which intimated that he would be not at home while this visitor remained.

"You come in good season," said he; "the owl and I have just been talking about you."

"I did not ask for Mrs. Dinsmore," began the prima donna.

"Well, I know," interposed Wallie. "I have often tried to persuade her that the morning is the proper time to receive calls, but she is still wedded to her superstitions. You must try to put up with me. I believe I should make a pretty good aunt."

The lady felt the kindness with which he endeavored to put her at her ease, and a faint color dawned in her cheeks. He went on:

"I see by the papers that you are soon to leave us. It must be pleasant to you to feel how much respect and regard, as well as renown, you have won since you came here. I hope it may soon bring you back to us?"

"Do you respect me, Mr. Dinsmore?" demanded she, fixing her eyes on him.

"You were an enigma to me at first," he replied immediately, "but I respected you involuntarily, even before I knew that I was right in doing so."

He met her look as he spoke, and she felt that he spoke what he meant.

"I came to ask you to help me respect myself," she said, with a pause between. "Did you know that I was an actress as well as a singer?"

"I knew what you refer to the first moment we met," answered he, with a friendly smile. "I had seen Mlle. Marana abroad."

She did not need to ask him whether he had kept her secret. Between persons of a certain order of integrity assurances of such a kind are superfluous. She breathed a sigh of relief. He had known, and yet had not withheld his respect, the respect of a gentleman. Her sad heart began to take a little courage.

"I think I know your father, Mr. Randolph," he resumed, with the slightest accent of interrogation. "You must not think me a Paul Pry, but Mr. Randolph is a gentleman of the old school, not a good dissimulator, and he accidentally betrayed himself to me one day without knowing it. Perhaps I ought to have confessed to him, but I am a wretchedly undecided mortal about such things and I have been debating for the last month what I had better do. More than a month; in fact, ever since Geoffrey Bellingham went away."

As he carelessly uttered the last words his glance passed over her. She did not move an eyelid. Her breath stopped for a few moments, but that could not be seen.

"She has already learned some things, poor girl!" thought Wallie to himself. "Your main object in entering the profession must be nearly achieved," he presently continued, as she remained silent.

(To be Continued.)

Speaking of Tips.

A TIP is a piece of special or valuable information such as this, that Hagyard's Yellow Oil is a prompt and effectual cure for croup, colds, hoarseness, sore throat, rheumatism, neuralgia, sprains or soreness of any kind. Known as reliable over 30 years.

Important and True.

No better evidence of the fact that Burdock Blood Bitters is a certain remedy for all blood diseases can be asked than that of Mr. Geo. V. Thomas, druggist, of Hull, P. Q., whose wife was cured of cancer by B.B.B. The family doctor is certain that the disease was cancer and that it is now cured.

That latent force of fluid, which permeates all matter, and which bears the conventional name of Electricity, is widely appreciated and recognized as a means of cure in various diseases. Its effects in the form of Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil are shown by the relief of pain, both Neuralgic and Rheumatic, as well as the throat and lungs, and in various other healing ways.

A black real Chantilly lace shawl will form a valuable assistant in remodelling a black velvet gown.

The Lungs, Liver, Kidneys, Bowels, &c., act as so many waste gates for the escape of effete matter and gases from the body. The use of Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery helps them to discharge their duty. Mr. W. H. Lester, H. M. Customs, Toronto, writes: "I have personally tested the health-giving properties of Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery, and can testify as to its great value.

HASTINGS O. K.

CHICAGO, 6th April, 1891.

Robert Bogle, Esq., Belleville Business College, Belleville, Ont.:

DEAR FRIEND,—Your very welcome letter of the 13th ult. was duly received.

You asked in your letter if I had any difficulty in performing my work as stenographer. I am glad to tell you that I have not had any difficulty in the least, as you assured me I would not, before leaving your college. I have to write from 30 to 40 letters a day, and there is enough other office work to keep me busy, but it is not hard.

Tell the students never to be afraid, after they have received as careful training as I got.

In conclusion I have to say that any young gentleman or young lady wishing to improve his or her time, may rest assured that they will never regret the time and money spent while attending the above named institution.

Yours very truly,
J. W. ANDERSON,
Stenographer for Messrs. W. H. McNaughton & Co., Real Estate and Investments.

BISMARCK IS BEATEN.

THE IRON CHANCELLOR WILL NOT SIT IN THE REICHSTAG.

Maurice Healy Taunts Parnell in the Commons with Reference to His Backdown—The Newfoundland Delegates Arrive in London.

BERLIN, April 16.—Returns from Geestemunde are still incomplete, but show that Bismarck must submit to a supplementary ballot unless, as is not improbable, he retires from the contest.

Schmalfeldt, the Socialist, seems to have been a much stronger man than was anticipated.

The O'Sheas Bringing Libel Suits.

LONDON, April 16.—Mrs. O'Shea has taken steps to sue The Liverpool Post and several other provincial dailies for libel. The alleged libelous matter was contained in a circular letter sent out from a London press agency, in which the lady's name was most grossly used. Capt. O'Shea also has a libel suit on hand. He has brought proceedings against John Deasy, M.P. for West Mayo, for asserting that the Captain allowed Mr. Parnell to defray his household expenses as the price of his wife's dishonor.

LONDON, April 16.—In the House of Commons yesterday the bill making permanent the closing of public houses in Ireland on Sunday, and including in its scope the cities of Dublin, Cork, Belfast, Waterford and Limerick, passed its second reading by a vote of 248 to 98. During the debate preceding the vote Parnell protested against applying the measures set forth in it to the city of Cork or other Irish cities. He said Balfour, Chief Secretary for Ireland, was not inconsistent in supporting the measure against Irish opinion, because he (Balfour) always maintained that the Imperial Parliament ought to decide such questions. This, however, was not the case with the Liberals. The latter had been urging for years that Irish members should decide Irish matters upon the elementary question as to how Irishmen ought to eat and drink. The Liberals might have shown a greater attachment to the principles they had proclaimed on English platforms.

Maurice Healy, one of the members for Cork city, assured the House that Parnell did not upon this or other questions represent the city of Cork, adding that if he wanted to test the truth of his (Healy's) words let him keep his promise made to his constituents and face him in a contest for re-election. [Cheers and laughter.]

The Feeling in Newfoundland.

LONDON, April 16.—The delegates from Newfoundland who are here with the object of impressing the Newfoundland side of the lobster fisheries question upon the British Parliament, during the course of a joint interview to-day, said there was no doubt that circumstances of comparatively recent occurrence had created a very friendly feeling in Newfoundland toward the United States, whose action had been an attraction to the colony. Newfoundland would deeply regret estranging the Mother Country, but nevertheless the existing impatience would, if followed by our failure to successfully present Newfoundland's views to the Imperial Parliament, deepen the alienation, the effect of which it would be difficult to foresee. Anyhow there would never be the same friendly feelings toward England as there had hitherto been.

Capt. Verney Will Return From Italy to Meet the Charges Against Him.

LONDON, April 16.—Henry Matthews, Secretary of State for the Home Department, in the House of Commons to-day said criminal warrants had been issued against two members of Parliament, both of whom had left the country. One of them, Capt. Edmund H. Verney, representing North Buckinghamshire, had telegraphed from Italy that he had started for London to meet the charge against him. The other member referred to is Edward De Cobain, representing East Belfast, who is charged with a heinous offence.

The Italian Question.

ROME, April 16.—In referring to the New Orleans question in the Chamber of Deputies, Premier di Rudini said if it was proved to be impossible to obtain a favorable solution of the problem grave complications would not arise, but he would deem it a matter of profound regret that the people of the United States, so advanced in civilization, should show themselves far removed from the principles of right and justice universally proclaimed and scrupulously observed in Europe.

The sentiments of the Premier were loudly cheered by all the deputies. At the conclusion of the address the interpolators expressed approval of the conduct of the Italian Government and said they were satisfied with the Premier's explanation.

Deaths from Starvation.

BELFAST, April 16.—A report reached Belfast yesterday of the death by starvation last week of an aged fisherman named MacManus and his sister at Kearney on the County Down coast. They had lived in an isolated cottage and the severe weather of the past few weeks prevented the old woman from following her usual vocation.

Grace Hawthorne's Bankruptcy.

LONDON, April 16.—The liabilities of Miss Grace Hawthorne, the American actress, who was recently declared bankrupt, amount, according to the official report, to $78,915, with no assets. Miss Hawthorne was forced into bankruptcy by two actors whose plays she produced at a great loss.

Mary Anderson's Infant.

Dangerous Counterfeits.

Counterfeits are always dangerous, more so that they always closely IMITATE THE ORIGINAL IN APPEARANCE AND NAME. The remarkable success achieved by Nasal Balm as a positive cure for Catarrh and Cold in the Head has induced unprincipled parties to imitate it. The public are cautioned not to be deceived by nostrums imitating Nasal Balm in name and appearance, bearing such names as Nasal Cream, Nasal Balsam, etc. Ask for Nasal Balm and do not take any imitation dealers may urge upon you. Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam.

Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam gives prompt relief in coughs, colds, hoarseness, whooping cough, croup, asthma or bronchitis. It is the most pleasant and perfect throat and lung healer in the world for children or adults. Price 25c.

Bickle's Anti Consumptive Syrup is a combination of several medical herbs which exert a most wonderful influence in curing pulmonary consumption and all other diseases of the lungs, chest and throat. It promotes a free and easy expectoration, and gives ease even to the greatest sufferer. Coughs, colds, shortness of breath, and affections of the chest, attended with weakness of the digestive organs, or with general debility, seem to vanish under its use. No other remedy acts so readily in allaying inflammation or breaking up a severe cold, even the most obstinate cough is overcome by its penetrating and healing properties. When children are affected with colds, coughs, inflammation of the lungs, croup, quinsey, and sore throat, this Syrup is of vast importance. The number of deaths among children from these diseases is truly alarming. It is so palatable that a child will not refuse it, and is put at such a price that will not exclude the poor from its benefits.

White broche is in demand for negligee robes.

Mr. J. R. Allen, Upholsterer, Toronto, sends us the following: "For six or seven years my wife suffered from Dyspepsia, Costiveness, Inward Piles and Kidney Complaint. We tried two physicians and any number of medicines without getting any relief, until we got a bottle of Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery. This was the first relief she got, and before one bottle was used the benefit she derived from it was beyond our expectation."

Satins closely resemble India silks in design.

Jacob H. Bloomer, of Virgille, N. Y., writes:—"Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil cured a badly swelled neck and sore throat on my son in forty-eight hours; one application also removed the pain from a very sore toe; my wife's foot was also much inflamed—so much so that she could not walk about the house; she applied the Oil, and in twenty four hours was entirely cured."

A coronet set with turquoises is a new shape for a bonnet pin.

Mr. Thomas Ballard, Syracuse, N.Y., writes: "I have been afflicted for nearly a year with that most-to-be-dreaded disease Dyspepsia, and at times worn out with pain and want of sleep, and after trying almost everything recommended, I tried one box of Parmelee's Vegetable Pills. I am now nearly well, and believe they will cure me. I would not be without them for any money"

Many of the gay and youthful cotton dresses sent over by French modistes as models are buttoned up the back.

Hard and soft corns cannot withstand Holloway's Corn Cure; it is effectual every time. Get a bottle at once and be happy.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS

MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP has been used by millions of mothers for children teething for over fifty years with perfect success. It relieves the little sufferer at once, produces natural, quiet sleep by freeing the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste, soothes the child, softens the gums, allays pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. Twenty five cents a bottle

Our Home Market.

One of the greatest factors in the progress and prosperity of Canada during recent years, has been the development of a home market for our farmers, by the building up of industrial and commercial centres. Taking the growth of a few of our principal cities, this improvement will be distinctly noticeable, and will deserve the careful consideration of those who have hitherto been of opinion that this country is going rapidly towards financial and commercial disaster. The following table illustrates the position of affairs in this respect:

POPULATION.

Cities.	1881.	1889.
Montreal	140,747	202 000
Toronto	77,034	172,463
Hamilton	35,359	44,299
Ottawa	25 600	44,000
Halifax	36,100	42,000
London	19,725	26,786
Victoria	5,925	20,000
Vancouver	(not existent)	14,000
Winnipeg	6,249	21,328

Now, it is obvious that if the tariff promotes the growth of cities and towns, as it most evidently has done; if it enables the farmer to hold and supply a much greater market than he could otherwise possess, then the benefit of our National Policy must be granted. The secretary of the Ontario Bureau of Agriculture in 1886 estimated the value of everything produced on Ontario farms as $160,000,000. If to this be added the moderate figure of $140,000,000 for the rest of the provinces, we have, according to the calculation made by Hon. James Young, a total production of $300,000,000 for the Dominion. Estimating half of that amount as being consumed at home by the farmer and his household, we find a total surplus farm production disposed of as follows:

Surplus (1890)		$150,000,000
Exported to Great Britain	$22,240,548
Exported to United States	13,485,727
Exported elsewhere	1,288,750	37,015,025
		$112,984,975

The importance of these figures is so great as to justify us in asserting that the first care of the farmer of this Dominion should be the maintenance of a policy and of fiscal principles which will conduce to the prosperity of our national industries and manufacturing centres.—Empire.

The Speech from the Throne.

OTTAWA, April 16.—It is reported that Hugh John Macdonald, M.P., of Winnipeg, and J. D. Hazen, M.P., of St. John County, will respectively move and second the address in reply to the speech from the throne in the Commons.

The Date Satisfactory.

OTTAWA, April 16.—The Government replied to-day to Sir Julian Pauncefote's note of yesterday stating that Oct. 12, the date fixed by President Harrison for the trade conference, was satisfactory.

To Inspect Canadian Mines.

MONTREAL, April 16.—Professor J. D. Frossard, the well-known English mining expert, is on his way to Canada for the purpose of inspecting Canadian mining properties on behalf of English syndicates.

Dead On His Daughter's Grave.

NEW YORK, April 16.—Crazed with grief at the death of a daughter, Joseph Zuckerman of No. 168 West Sixty-fifth-street, this city, a broker doing business at No. 20 Broad-street, shot himself at the grave of his child in the Salem Fields Cemetery, East New York, yesterday.

Cremated in a Train Wreck.

BALTIMORE, April 16.—A freight train of 18 cars and 3 engines on the Maryland Central Railroad broke through a trestle to-day at Fallston, near this city. Nine were in the train, of whom 3 were killed and 2 badly injured. The others had time to jump and escaped. The cars were quickly ablaze and burned. Two of the killed were cremated.

Live Stock Cremated.

BRADFORD, Ont., April 16.—About 12 o'clock last night the barns, stables and out buildings belonging to Mr. James Lawson of West Gwillimbury were destroyed by fire. A large quantity of hay, seed grain, three horses, ten pigs and all his farming implements were destroyed. The fire was the work of an incendiary. Insured for $2500.

Cut His Heart in Two.

STRATFORD, April 16.—Joseph Welden, a sawyer in P. Seibert's sawmill, Logan, three miles from Mitchell, slipped and fell against a circular saw. One leg was cut off and the upper part of the body was mangled in a horrible manner, the heart being cut completely in two. Deceased had only been employed in the mill for a short time.

—Dr. John Hall, of New York, is reported as saying that he finds it a means of grace to stand before one of the great store windows in Broadway and thank the Lord for the large number of things in that window he can do without.

—Three tramps went to sleep under a side tracked freight car near Pittsburg the other night. The next morning an engine pulled the car out, killing John Mooney and an unknown man, and cutting off both feet of John Kearns, of Philadelphia.

—Mr. J. Johnson, Dominion Commissioner of Customs, denies the reports that large quantities of American sugar are being smuggled into Canada since the sugar clause of the McKinley Act came into force.

WHY IS IT?

If you will listen a minute we will tell you why and how it is that we can and do lead in the crockery business. It's over fifty years since this establishment was founded in London, Ont., by the late Nathaniel Reid, who spent his younger days amongst the English potteries and gained a knowledge of the many processes of manufacture until the goods are laid upon the shelves in this country. This knowledge, handed down to the son and others who have been in the house for twenty-five years, has brought about the following results: 1st.—The ware is all made in Staffordshire, England, brought out in the plain and finished in our own decorating kilns in this country. 2nd.—In Tea Sets we can furnish 134 different patterns; Toilet Sets, 89; Dinner Sets, 96 patterns. 3rd.—To give some idea of what has been done in the Belleville branch, we have sold since the first of last August (8 months) of these three items 164 Tea Sets, 110 Toilet Sets and 93 Dinner Sets. Other lines which belong to this business, such as silver plate and lamps, we handle just as extensively and from the leading factories. The goods are all made for the legitimate crockery trade and not for giving away. We study our own trade. We have got to understand the business we follow. We can reproduce old patterns, buy larger and undersell others, and that's why we lead in this trade.

Purify Your Blood

The importance of keeping the blood in a pure condition is universally known, and yet there are very few people who have perfectly pure blood. The taint of scrofula, salt rheum, or other foul humor is heredited and transmitted for generations, causing untold suffering, and we also accumulate poison and germs of disease from the air we breathe, the food we eat, or the water we drink. There is nothing more conclusively proven than the positive power of Hood's Sarsaparilla over all diseases of the blood. This medicine, when fairly tried, does expel every trace of scrofula or salt rheum, removes the taint which causes catarrh, neutralizes the acidity and cures rheumatism, drives out the germs of malaria, blood poisoning, etc. It also vitalizes and enriches the blood, thus overcoming that tired feeling, and building up the whole system. In its preparation, its medicinal merit, and the wonderful cures it accomplishes Hood's Sarsaparilla is Peculiar to Itself. Thousands testify to its success, and the best advertising Hood's Sarsaparilla receives is the hearty endorsement of its army of friends. Every testimonial we publish, and every statement we make on behalf of Hood's Sarsaparilla may be relied upon as strictly true in every respect.

If you need a good blood purifier or building up medicine, be sure to take Hood's Sarsaparilla. Further information and statements of cures sent free to all who address us as below.

BELLEVILLE, FRIDAY, APRIL 17

THE "FAT FEEDERS."

Mr. Mowat has, after his usual hesitancy, decided against the abolition of the fees system. By yielding to the public desire for this reform, as expressed in the press of both sides of politics, he might not only have established some claims to being a genuine reformer and economist, but he might have either added to the revenue of the province or have lightened the burdens of the municipal taxpayers by turning the excess of fees, after paying salaries, into the provincial treasury or awarding them to the counties. Injustice there would have been none to any one. A few officials who are now paid out of all proportion to the work which they do would have been given a fair, even liberal, remuneration, that is all. The question was not a party one in any sense; but although Mr. Wood made out a clear case, Mr. Mowat called on his faithful followers, including the member for West Hastings, and voted down the proposition. The reason is obvious. Mr. Mowat is tenacious of power. He has seized much and has never given away anything. He evidently wishes to retain the control of extraordinary rewards, in order to induce extraordinary exertions in his behalf by his friends.

From a party point of view we could desire nothing better; but in the public interest we regret that this most desirable reform should be delayed. It is only a delay, however. The reform will come, for the people have decreed it.

By Laying-on of Hands.

Woman restored to perfect health! Just faith and confidence enough required to lay hold of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, administer it with a little patience and a little perseverance, and complete restoration to health and vitality is insured. Not far, indeed, from the miraculous, are many of the wonderful cures of lost womanhood it has effected. There are few cases, indeed, within the requirements of sick and suffering woman, outside or beyond its helpful influence. So confident are the makers of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription of its power to heal all female diseases, that they warrant satisfaction in every instance, or refund money. Large bottles $1.00 (6 for $5.00); at druggists.

"A stitch in time saves nine," and if you take Hood's Sarsaparilla now it may save months of future possible sickness.

A Good Starter.

"What are you going to do with your boy?"

"I think of getting him on the police force."

"Has he any special qualifications?"

"Well, he is never around when he is wanted."

Fashion Hints for Women.

Shoes are still worn on the feet.

The new evening waists lean toward black sleeves.

Those dainty, filmy French gossamers are no longer worn at evening parties. They will hereafter be au fait only at funerals.

Bonnets are still worn by women. An attempt was recently made to relegate them to the ranks of the National Guard, but it was not a pronounced success.

A new powder puff which has been recently placed upon the market contains a penknife, crowbar, set of manicure implements, book of common prayer and a little gem gas stove.

It is now considered mauvais gout to use lamp-black on the eyelashes. The new Parisian shoe dressing has been demonstrated to be much more effectual in destroying the sight.

It is not likely that the new London Bloomer skirt will meet with favor. Invalids are unequal to the exertion of getting into it, and no other class of women is willing to be found drowned in it.

A Cure for Constipation Headache

Dr. Silas Lane, while in the Rocky Mountains, discovered a root that when combined with other herbs, makes an easy and certain cure for constipation. It is in the form of dry roots and leaves, and is known as Lane's Family Medicine. It will cure sick-headache and is the best spring Medicine. For the blood, liver and kidneys, and for clearing up the complexion it does wonders. Druggists sell it at 50c and $1 a package.

Piles! Piles! Itching Piles.

SYMPTOMS—Moisture; intense itching and stinging; most at night; worse by scratching if allowed to continue tumors form, which often bleed and ulcerate, becoming very sore. SWAYNE'S OINTMENT stops the itching and bleeding, heals ulceration, and in most cases removes the tumors. At druggists, or by mail, for 50 cents. Dr. Swayne & Son, Philadelphia.

ONTARIO LEGISLATURE.

THE EAST HASTINGS ALLEGED IRREGULAPITIES.

The Government Decides That the Case Does Not Warrant an Investigation—The Telegraph and Telephone Bill Defeated.

TORONTO, April 17.—In the Ontario Legislature yesterday Mr. Mowat refused to allow Mr. Hudson's motion to refer the matter to the Committee on Privileges and Elections and moved in amendment that the legitimate purposes of investigation would be better accomplished by the ordinary tribunals provided by law, or by a commission under the authority of the act respecting enquiries concerning public matters, if a case for that purpose be made out hereafter, and that the House recommend that in case of a commission being issued any report that may be made be laid before the House at its next session. The amendment was carried by a vote of 51 to 31. Mr. Campbell of East Durham, Equal Righter, declined to vote as he did not hear the question put. But when Mr. Hudson's motion, as amended, was put to the House, Mr. Campbell voted for it, thus casting his first vote in the House with the Government.

The bill respecting the inspection of stationary engines and the granting of certificates to those in charge was discussed by a special committee yesterday. It is probable that the Stationary Engineers' Association will adopt the suggestion of Mr. Gibson, that instead of having the bill passed making examinations compulsory the engineers get a charter similar to that of the architects' association, giving diplomas, which secured a recognized standing for the holder.

The Municipal Committee knocked out Joe Tait's bill to amend the Municipal Act by compelling telegraph and telephone companies to place their wires in cables, and also by compelling telegraph, telephone and electric companies owning a line of poles on any street to permit any other such company to place its wires upon such lines of poles on paying reasonable compensation.

HURRYING TROOPS FORWARD

Anticipations of Further Fighting on the Assam Frontier.

CALCUTTA, April 16.—The Thirteenth Bengal Infantry from Barrackpore, the First and Second Goorkhas, the Eighth Bengal Mountain Battery, the Thirty sixth Bengal Infantry (Sikhs) from here and other troops from Burmah are on their way to the front. The troops from Burmah are under the command of General Graham and includes half a battalion of the King's Royal Rifles, the second battalion of the Fourth Goorkhas, two guns from No. 2 Mountain Battery of the Royal Artillery and a regiment of Madras infantry. General Graham was last reported as advancing via Tamu.

General Collett was reported as advancing from Nigriting, on the Brahmaputra, with No. 8 Bengal mounted battery, the Second Goorkhas and other troops which have been despatched to Kohima. The sending to the front of such a force of British troops, of which the corps mentioned are only a part of the army now advancing, shows how serious the situation is.

Lieut. A. Grant, who has so distinguished himself, is attracting attention in England, as, doubtless in reply to an enquiry on the part of the authorities, the Viceroy of India telegraphed to London on the 5th inst.: "Grant belongs to second battalion of Fourth Goorkhas." The Victoria Cross will probably be his reward.

The Government has concentrated the civil and military authority in the hands of Gen. Collett by appointing him Acting Chief Commissioner of Assam.

No Intention to Injure Canada Roads.

NEW YORK, April 16.—In discussing the order of the Treasury Department forbidding the transit of goods from Canada to the United States under the consular bonding system, Secretary Foster said: "We simply propose to treat all goods coming into this country on the same basis, no matter where they enter our borders. The same system will be followed on the Canadian border as is in operation at the seaports—New York, say. When a European steamer lands goods here destined for Chicago they are permitted to be sent forward to the West in bond under Treasury lock. The packages are not opened by the Customs officers, nor the duties appraised and paid until the goods reach the consignees in Chicago. The adoption of the same system on the Canadian border does not mean that there will have to be a reshipment or a change of cars.

"There is no politics in this matter—only a determination to treat all goods coming into the country on the same basis and to see that the revenue is duly collected. Nor is the new measure aimed at the Canadian railroads, or at anybody or any interest in particular. I cannot say just when the orders will be issued—just as soon as they are duly formulated. We shall enforce them with as little friction and as little trouble to the railroads as possible."

Mr. Foster added that there was no intention on the part of the Treasury Department to tax foreign cars.

Four Die on the Friesland and Five on the Garrick.

NEW YORK, April 16.—The Red Star steamship Friesland, from Antwerp, which reached here yesterday, had a most unfortunate voyage. While en route two female immigrant passengers died and were buried at sea. When the vessel got in sight of the Jersey coast a male passenger in the steerage dropped dead on deck, and scarcely had the steerage passengers been landed in Hoboken when another passenger died.

The steamship Garrick, Captain Grant, from Santos and Rio de Janeiro, was detained at quarantine yesterday as a "Yellow Jack" vessel. The steamer sailed from Rio de Janeiro March 17. Two days later yellow fever broke out among the crew, two of whom were stricken with the disease but soon recovered. When the deputy health officer heard of it he ordered the Garrick to be quarantined. The steamer will be detained for five days.

Collision in the Channel Between the Glamorgan and the P. Caland.

LONDON, April 16.—The Dutch steamer P. Caland, Capt. DeVries, from New York April 1 for Amsterdam, was in collision in the channel at 9 o'clock last night with the British steamer Glamorgan, bound from Antwerp to Cardiff. The Glamorgan was so badly damaged that she soon filled and sank. The accident was due to a heavy fog which prevailed at the time of the collision. The crew of the Glamorgan took to the small boats and all hands were picked up by the P. Caland. The P. Caland arrived in Dover Roads with her bows badly stove. She was unable to come to anchor, owing to the fact that her anchoring gear was so badly damaged that it was impossible to use it. She was also damaged below the water line.

Smallpox on Vanderbilt's Yacht.

NEW YORK, April 16.—A despatch from quarantine states that the steam yacht Alva, belonging to William K. Vanderbilt, which has just arrived at quarantine, was detained there on account of smallpox on board. Mr. Vanderbilt and a party of friends have just returned from a cruise. All communication with shore is prohibited. Hugh Halpin, an oiler on the yacht, is suffering from the disease. He has been sent to the smallpox hospital.

A Fiery Visitor from Space.

QUEBEC, April 16.—A blazing meteor as large as a flour barrel fell at Levis about midnight. As it flew rapidly through the air it left a fiery streak behind. No trace of it has yet been found on the ground.

SUICIDE FROM GRIEF.

Funeral of One More Victim of the White Czar's Harshness.

ST. PETERSBURG, April 16.—The funeral of the Princess Olga Feodorowna, mother of the Grand Duke Michael, cousin of the Czar, took place to-day. The Princess is said to have committed suicide owing to the Czar's refusal to restore her son to his post in the army, from which he was dismissed because of his private marriage to the Countess of Meremberg. The funeral was a gorgeous pageant and attracted an immense concourse. The Czarina rode in a carriage and the Czar and the grand duke followed the cortege on foot. Fifty generals were in line. The whole route from the railway station to the cathedral, four miles, was lined with troops. Interment will take place to-morrow.

A HORRIBLE SUICIDE.

A Quarryman Places a Cartridge in His Hat and Lights the Fuse.

NEWCASTLE, April 16.—About 20 minutes past 5 o'clock the dwellers in the pretty little workmen's cottages, just a little below Addycombe, were alarmed by a loud report and violent concussion and found the body of William Ramsay, a quarryman, lying immediately in front of his door. He was lying on his back, his face rigid and his eyes staring. The wall and ground around were bespattered with brains, blood and bits of bone. Portions of what turned out to be deceased's hat were also found. On raising the body the constable found that the whole of the top and back of the head had been blown away. Ramsay, who was 61 years of age, after spending a somewhat restless night, got up and deliberately committed suicide. He had used an ordinary dynamite blasting cartridge to accomplish this end. He had in all probability lighted the fuse and placed the cartridge in a fold on the top of his soft felt hat and patiently stood awaiting the fearful result. Death must have been instantaneous.

DEATH IN A CIRCUS RING.

The Audience Loudly Cheered While a Woman Was Slowly Killed.

ST. PETERSBURG, April 16.—News of a most remarkable and horrible tragedy which has just occurred in the town of Polotsk in Russian Poland has reached here. A day or two ago a traveling circus gave a representation in that town. The manageress of the circus, a woman of remarkable beauty and popularity, who was herself an excellent horsewoman, was just on the point of leaving the ring after performing some daring feats with a spirited horse, when the animal suddenly attacked her in a furious manner. For a few minutes the audience, in spite of the woman's shrieks, did not appear to realize anything unusual occurring, but applauded and cheered the actions of the horse, thinking them a part of the performance. Not until the animal kicked her with such force that she fell to the ground did the people realize that something was wrong. The brute then trampled upon her with such fury that none of the public or the grooms in attendance had the courage to approach the spot. At last, by some means, the unfortunate woman managed to extricate herself from beneath the animal's hoofs, half stunned, with her dress all torn and her face and body streaming with blood. She had sufficient fortitude to salute the audience and stagger from the ring without any assistance. She, however, had hardly reached the dressing-room before she commenced to utter piercing shrieks, which were heard by the audience in the circus. After lingering several hours in great agony she succumbed to the terrible agonies she had received.

Electric Wirelets.

Twenty thousand K. of L. employed in the Charleroi coal basin have decided to strike on May day.

There were 227 deaths in New York yesterday for the 24 hours ending at noon. This is the largest number for any one day this year. Twenty-five of these were caused by the grip.

A special from Pine Ridge states that Boss Farmer Smoot arrived at the agency yesterday from Medicine Root bringing intelligence that a band of Cheyenne River Indians are now camped on Wounded Knee near the Big Foot battle ground. No further trouble is feared, however.

Rev. James McMahon, pastor of St. Andrew's Church, New York, yesterday gave the Roman Catholic University at Washington real estate valued at over half a million dollars. The property is situated at Long Branch. The gift is made for the purpose of founding a school of philosophy, erecting suitable buildings for the department and beautifying the grounds surrounding the university.

Did Not Kill His Wife.

GODERICH, April 16.—At the assizes today the case of Donald McKinnon, charged with murdering his wife, was taken from the jury and the prisoner acquitted on that charge, the evidence having shown that the woman herself must have inflicted the wound which caused her death. At the time of the alleged crime McKinnon attempted to commit suicide, and on this charge he was committed to jail for four months.

To Be Electrocuted Next Week.

SING SING, N.Y., April 16. — Warden Brush is preparing to electrocute murderers McElvaine and Trezza some time next week. The apparatus has been satisfactorily tested.

£250 For a Stamp.

LONDON, April 16.—Probably the rarest stamp in existence has just been sold by Mr. W. A. Palmer of 281 Strand for £250. It is an American five-cent stamp, issued at Brattleboro, Vt., in 1840.

A NAKED LAMP AND DEATH.

Another Frightful Colliery Disaster in Pennsylvania—Some of the Victims Burned to a Crisp.

TAMAQUA, Pa., April 16.—A terrible explosion of gas and fire damp occurred at No. 10 colliery, owned and operated by the Lehigh Valley Coal and Navigation Co., a few miles east of this place to-day. James Haggerty of Lansford was instantly killed and was burned to a crisp. William Recus of Tamaqua was fatally injured; John Davis, Frederick O'Donnel, Charles F. Lilly, all of Coaldale; Daniel Reese of Lansford and James Gallagher of Gearytown were seriously injured. The explosion was caused by a naked lamp.

MANITOBA'S RAILWAYS.

Both Bills Pass the Legislature—Work to Be Vigorously Pushed.

WINNIPEG, April 16.—The second reading of the bill to give $150,000 bonus to the C.P.R. for an extension to Souris coal fields passed the Legislature last night, but not until the Opposition unmercifully scored the Government for being compelled to seek assistance of a road they had denounced for years to carry out the principal object for which the Northern Pacific had been at a heavy cost introduced into Manitoba by them.

The bill granting $1,500,000 to the Hudson Bay Road was introduced and will likely pass to-night. One hundred and forty miles are to be completed by the end of 1892 on penalty of forfeiture of bonus.

Unknown Man Killed.

OTTAWA, April 16.—The Canada Atlantic express, due here at 12.30 from Montreal, struck an unknown man at Ste. Annes this morning, killing him instantly.

To Marry Lady Geraldine.

OTTAWA, April 16.—Captain Streatfeild, A.D.C. to General Herbert, is, according to The London Morning Post, to be married to Geraldine, second daughter of the late Lord Fitzgerald of Kilmarnock.

TORONTO TRUTH'S New Spring Bible Competition

NO. 22.

In these latter days there have arisen many false schemes and many scores of imitations of TRUTH's Competitions, but one after another have failed and utterly perished, yet TRUTH remains, and makes good all its promises. Its reputation is now too well established to risk damaging it, and as it has cost a very large amount of money and many years of care and labor to build up, the publisher could not afford to fail in carrying out all his agreements to the letter. There are twenty-one divisions of the largest list of bona fide prizes ever offered and ever actually given away by any publisher in the world. The total value of prizes in this Spring list is about $10,000,00. The lists are so large it would cost altogether too much to give them in detail here. There are pianos, gold and silver watches, china tea and dinner sets, ladies' and gentlemen's bicycles, silver tea-sets, silk dresses, books, money, and hundreds of other valuable rewards. You pay nothing for these prizes, as everyone concedes that full value is received for the dollar in securing TRUTH every week for three months. Send one dollar and answers to the five following questions: Where in the Bible are these words found? 1, GRAIN; 2, CORN; 3, WHEAT; 4, BARLEY; 5, RYE. If your answers are correct and your letters arrive in time you are almost sure to get a reward, as there are so many and every one cannot always find correct answers to all these questions. All the five answers must be correct to get any prize, but you will get full value for the dollar in TRUTH if you don't get anything else. If you want to see the list of rewards before sending in your dollar, mail TRUTH ten cents and a copy will be sent you containing the list of prizes. But there have been very few dissatisfied prize winners in previous competitions, considering that he has given away during the past eight years scores of thousands of prizes. Some people expect a piano for every dollar sent, and are mad if they don't get it. He wishes it were possible to give every subscriber a gold watch or a piano or both, but says it can't be done. Some publishers intimate they will, but nobody can do it for any length of time. Send one dollar and correct answers and you won't repent it; and bear in mind that it is not guaranteed that every body whose answers are correct will get a prize, but that all the prizes in the twenty-one different lists will be given away. The competition remains open only till the last day of June next, inclusive, after which the prizes will be immediately distributed to the successful ones. Ten days will be allowed for letters to reach TRUTH from distant points after the 30th of June. All, however, must be postmarked when mailed not later than the 30th June, or any time between now and that date. Address S. Frank Wilson, "Truth" Office, Toronto, Ont., Canada.

HISTORY REPEATS ITSELF.

in wall paper as in everything else, once in about every ten years.

It is not ten years ago though since the "fad" of papering ceilings was all the rage, nor was it five years ago! Yet this season there is a very strong demand for ceiling papers and decorations, and we firmly believe that papered ceilings will always be fashionable.

* * *

How do we know?

We'll tell you.

Economy and common sense have done it.

The world of fashion produces periodically a "fad" and if it receives "official recognition" from some fashion leader, it is considered "quite the proper thing" by the votaries of fashion and a craze ensues.

* * *

Fashion dictates more severely and draws finer lines in the matter of decoration than in anything else under her sway, and it sometimes happens that some of her "whims" become permanencies or "things of beauty and a joy forever." Economy is the great factor that transforms what was once a "fleeting fancy" into a permanent reality and that's where common sense steps in.

Although the craze of papering ceilings died out for awhile, it has returned again, not as a craze, but as a good big morsel of hard common sense, and it has come to stay. It's admitted superiority over every other style of ceiling decoration, both in attractiveness and ECONOMY has forced "fashion" to the wall for once and in spite of herself she "returns to her first love," thus waiving the formality of waiting the allotted decade for "History to repeat itself."

Try and remember that economy and common sense have done this - for where can you find a better field for decoration in your whole house than a ceiling presents?

Please make a note of this.

SENTENCED TO DIE!

On Thursday, the 21st Day of May!

THE MURDERER'S NERVE!

Able Addresses to the Jury by the Counsel.

A CONCISE CHARGE BY THE JUDGE.

At a few minutes before three o'clock yesterday afternoon, the evidence in the case had all been submitted, and Mr. W. C. Mikel, one of the counsel for the prisoner, arose to address the jury in his behalf. He commenced by saying that the case in question was a peculiar one. On the 26th day of March last, the prisoner was committed for trial by the Coroner's jury on the serious charge of murder. Only 20 days had elapsed since the offence was committed, and the prisoner had been brought down to trial. This, he considered, was the first time in the history of the county that a prisoner charged with such a serious offence was placed upon trial on such a short notice. There had not been ample time to procure evidence. The prisoner was an old soldier, and the counsel spoke in a feeling manner of the services which he had rendered to his Queen and country. In referring to the evidence which had been given, he stated that six witnesses had testified that they had seen the prisoner before the deed was committed, but none had seen him in possession of the knife which had been produced, and with which it was alleged the deed was committed. There was a reasonable doubt that the prisoner had committed the deed, and, such being the case, it was their duty to give him the benefit of that doubt. No person saw the deed committed. It was left for them to say whether the prisoner should suffer death or whether he would be allowed his liberty. In conclusion the counsel appealed most feelingly to the jury to return a verdict of not guilty. The delivery of the address occupied some 40 minutes.

Mr. W. R. Riddell, crown prosecutor, followed. The duty of the jury, he stated, was a plain one. They must find a verdict in accordance with the evidence which had been adduced. A murder had been committed. The prisoner at the bar was alone with the deceased Mrs. Kane when the offence was committed. A knife was missed from the Queen's Hotel on Monday afternoon, March 23rd, the day of the murder, and it has not been seen there since. The one produced at the trial resembled the missing article. It was found in Kane's possession by his step-son, who takes it from him. The prisoner, in his position as hostler at the hotel, had every opportunity to take the instrument. The prisoner, in the presence of a number of persons, admitted that he had committed the deed, and stated that he was proud of what he had done. He would leave the case with them, resting assured that they would return a verdict in accordance with the facts which had been presented. The address was a brief one, lasting but ten minutes.

His Lordship Judge Rose then charged the jury. The prisoner at the bar was charged with a most serious offence, namely, that of murdering his wife, intentionally and without excuse. Their duty was to find a verdict in accordance with the facts as presented to them through the evidence. It is not doubted that the woman came to her death by a wound which was inflicted by some pointed instrument. The doctor states that the knife produced was capable of making such a wound. Who inflicted this wound? Some one struck the fatal blow. Some other hand than hers inflicted the wounds. The prisoner is seen in a room of the house alone with the woman. If he struck the blow which caused the death of the deceased, why did he do it? If what he stated to several witnesses was true, then he did commit the deed, and it showed evil motives on his part. If his confessions are accepted, then there are no reasons to doubt. If the deceased for a certainty came to her death by the wound which was produced, wherein was there any room for a doubt? They were held responsible for finding a verdict in accordance with what had been presented to them. Whether the prisoner was intoxicated at the time or not, it made no difference, unless it could be shown that he was in a state of frenzy, and that he had no ill-will in his mind at the time. If he took liquor to nerve him to do the deed, it was no excuse. If he became possessed of the knife at the hotel for an evil design, he had premeditation in his heart, and they must find accordingly. The charge lasted for some time, and was listened to with marked attention by the very large number present.

The jury retired at 3:55, and at 4:20 sent in a request to the Judge to be allowed to come out and have the evidence of James Skinner and Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Skinner read to them. This request was complied with, and they came into court and were kept there until 4:55, when they again retired. At 5:23 they again returned into court, and the excitement of the spectators, although subdued, was still very apparent.

They were asked by the clerk of the court if they had arrived at a verdict, when one of the jurors arose and stated that they had. When asked if guilty or not guilty, the reply was "GUILTY."

The prisoner heard the verdict rendered, but it did not appear to move him. When asked by His Lordship if he had anything to say why the sentence of the court should not be passed upon him, he replied, "Nothing to say, Your Honor."

His Lordship, in a tremulous voice, stated that the verdict was in accordance with the evidence. He could hold out no ray of hope, and advised the prisoner to prepare himself for the change which must inevitably follow. He advised him to spend his time in preparing to appease the God whom he had offended. The sentence of the court was that he be taken to the place from whence he came and there confined until THURSDAY, MAY 21ST, when he be taken out into the precincts of the gaol yard and hanged by the neck until dead; and might God have mercy on his soul.

The prisoner did not appear to be affected by the sentence, and was immediately led out of court to the prison below, walking with a firm step.

Forest and Stream Club.

Annual Meeting—Election of Officers—Programme for the Season.

The annual meeting of the Forest and Stream Club was held last night in their club room.

Messrs. W. W. Lee, C. E. Pringle and E. W. Meyers were elected members.

The following officers were then elected for the ensuing year:

President—Henry Corby, M.P.
1st Vice Pres.—W. H. Biggar, M.P.P.
2nd Vice Pres.—Jas. Lowrie.
Secretary—T. W. R. McRae.
Treasurer—Richard A. Davis.
Directors—R. S. Bell, Geo. A. Frost, W. P. Clarke, Henry Pretty, Jas. H. Mills, John Brasier, Wm. Ormond.

The Auditors presented their report, showing a balance on hand of $20 above all liabilities, despite some unusual expenditure last year, and assets of the value of $45.

Some amendments to the constitution were passed, after which the programme for the season was adopted. In trap shooting, Mr. Corby offers a prize of $10 for the Senior class, and Mr. W. H. Biggar donates a like amount in the Junior class. The Club gives second and third prizes of $5 and $2 respectively in each class. In rifle shooting Mr. Corby also offers $10, divided into prizes of $5, $3 and $2 in the match, and the Club gives like figures for aggregate. Trap shooting matches begin on Thursday, May 28th, and will be held fortnightly. Rifle matches commence on Tuesday, May 26th, and will be held weekly.

In angling and trolling, Mr. A. H. Crosby offers a handsome rod case for largest black bass, Mr. Brasier offers a felt hat for largest maskinonge, and Mr. T. Ritchie will give a prize for fly fishing. Season from June 15th to Oct'r 1st. Competitions for money prizes will be held on August 14th and August 22nd, the awards being for largest black bass and largest catch of black bass on those days.

The membership of the Club numbers 172.

The Accident to Mrs. Price.

She is Semi-Conscious.—Some Slight Hopes of Her Recovery.—Miss Lee not Seriously Injured.

The accident which occurred to Mrs. David Price in Toronto on Wednesday was the theme of general conversation in the city last evening, and the large circle of friends who esteem Mr. and Mrs. Price were shocked by the sad news. Letters were received this morning by Miss Price from her father, which corroborate the newspaper accounts of the accident, and hold out but little hope of Mrs. Price living. A despatch, however, sent at 7 50 last night, states: "Doctors say mother is doing as well as can be expected. Not yet fully conscious, but partially so at times. For the first time, I have now a little hope of her recovery."

Mr. Harry Price came in from Madoc yesterday afternoon and went to Toronto on the evening express. Miss Lee, Mr. Price's niece, who was driving Mrs. Price, has sufficiently recovered to go to her home, but suffers severely from her wounds and shock to her system.

LATEST.

A despatch was received from Mr. Harry Price this afternoon stating that there was no change in the condition of his mother.

A Pleasant Evening.

The young ladies of the Jubilee Mission Band of Bridge St. Church gave an "At Home" in their Sunday school rooms last night, which was well attended. After what seemed a short time, but which was nearly two hours, spent in conversation, &c., the genial pastor of the church took the chair and gave a brief address. Miss Emmons, the Secretary of the Band, read the annual report, showing an increased membership, and money received from various sources amounting to $120. Mr. Emberson and Mr. Godbold, of the Albert College Missionary Club, gave addresses. Miss G. Richardson rendered a solo and Miss Lingham a reading; after which refreshments were served.

A Strange Proceeding.

About a week ago Front st. was scraped and the mud taken from its surface was shovelled into heaps. These heaps, instead of being carted away, were left standing and are rapidly being levelled by the traffic on the street and the mud spread once more over the pavement. It is a strange proceeding. What explanation have Ald. Hanley, chairman of the Public Works Committtee, and the Street Surveyor to offer for this throwing away of public money?

Native "Shillalies."

Who that ever read of an Irish "ruction" or "shindig," where the "byes" were having a bit of a "diversion," but knows of the part that the blackthorn shillalies take in the fun? The North Hastings Review is responsible for the statement that Mr. Neil Todd, of Madoc, has imported some roots of Irish blackthorn, which he will endeavor to grow. Even if Mr. Todd should succeed in raising some native shillalies, we fear they will lack the prestige of the Irish ones.

A GREAT REFORM.

Mr. A. F. Wood on the Fees System.

The Grits Vote Down a Proposal to Abolish It.

The following is a full report of Mr. A. F. Wood's speech on the fees system in the Legislature on the 15th inst. His motion was voted down, as our readers are aware, by the Grit majority:

Mr. Wood (Hastings) said: I rise to move the following resolution:

That, in the opinion of this House, the system of paying provincial officers by fees is objectionable in principle, and that the law ought to be so amended as to provide for remuneration of sheriffs, registrars of deeds, clerks of the peace and county attorneys by salaries instead of by fees, and a like change should be made in the mode of remunerating all other provincial officers now paid by fees to whom the same could be satisfactorily applied.

In submitting this resolution for the consideration of the House it would hardly seem necessary for lengthened explanations. Weeks have elapsed since notice of the resolution was given, and, though not discussed in the House, it has been discussed very fully elsewhere and through the press. The system of payment by fees is as old as the offices to which it is applied, and carries with it all the weight of long practice and the natural popularity of "use and wont." We are very apt to accept as right that which has been the practice all our lives. This does not apply alone to minor matters, but equally to important social, economic, educational and political practices and institutions. Every day the radical reformer is finding that old and cherished formulas—cherished because they are old often—lack the sound principles of practice that best conduce to the interests of a progressive people and a progressive country; and such are the elements of change that what yesterday was looked upon almost as desecration because it touched some cherished and ancient practice to-day is being seriously considered and it may be to-morrow the same practice will be a thing of the past. Getting used to things while tending to delay progress and often a submission to what is wrong, yet at the same time seems always like a providential dispensation as applied to our humanity. The living from day to day on a daily pittance, strange social relationships, the uncertain tenure of life and its bereavements often have no other balm than getting used to it. But this does not necessarily apply to a wrong that can be remedied or a state of things that can be changed. Hence the question in connection with this resolution is not, is the practice it condemns old? but, is it as set forth objectionable and is a change necessary and desirable, and if a change is necessary, then what system shall take its place? For some months, arising out of an agitation led by some of the Toronto press, and for which the World deserves a large amount of credit, the press from one end of the country to the other have been freely expressing opinions on this subject, and almost unanimously against the present system. The notice I placed on the journals of the House a few weeks ago has revived the discussion, and I find several papers most pronounced in support of hon. gentlemen opposite condemning in no measured terms the policy of paying provincial officers by fees. I shall take occasion later on in the course of my remarks to allude more particularly to these opinions of the Reform press. There is beyond doubt, Mr. Speaker, a widespread and very strong feeling against the present system. Since notice was given I have received many communications from men in different parts of the country calling my attention to the unfairness of the system as applied to certain localicies in which they are personally interested, and almost unstintingly endorsing the change proposed in this resolution. Very bitter complaints come from some sections, where it is claimed great injustice prevails. Extracts from some of these communications would show the practice of collecting fees that would appear to be higher than allowed by law, or rather higher than the interpretation put upon the allowance by law as practiced in other localities, but I do not think this is desirable on my part: it would be more suitable in the hands of inspectors of these offices. Again, Mr. Speaker, the feeling of dissatisfaction is not confined to a few months or a year. It is of many years standing. Resolutions from this side of the House have shown this during the last Parliament, and as far back as 1882 the present provincial Treasurer, then a private member, but supporting the present Government, introduced the following resolution:

Mr. Harcourt moved, seconded by Mr. Murray: That, in the opinion of this House, the system of remunerating sheriffs by fees is undesirable and unjust, and that it would be in the public interest to substitute therefor a system of payment by salary.

And while the present Government are not responsible for the introduction of the fee system—for it dates, as I said, from the creation of such offices in Canada—they have by Act already condemned it. It is within the knowledge of many members of the House, particularly those of the legal profession, that not so many years ago a change was made in the mode of paying the official guardian of infants in the Court of Chancery. He was formerly paid by fees; these, I am informed, amounting in some years from $12,000 to $20,000. He now receives, I understand, $5,000 per annum for similar services, and it is considered ample remuneration. Masters of titles, inspectors of Division Courts, inspectors of legal offices, registrars of courts all receive salaries, and there has been a commutation of the fees and change into salaries of 21 of the surrogate judges; while nine local masters have had their fee system changed into salaries ranging from $577 per annum to $3,500 per annum. Are the official positions of the officers to which my resolution refers more sacred than these? Surely not. So it will be seen that from every standpoint public sentiment and practice is against the retention of the fee system. And here let me ask, are there any reasonable grounds why the change should not be made? If they exist I have failed to discover them. What does the press say? The Conservative press is largely in favor of a change, and, so far as I know, the Reform press are equally strong in condemning the present system. The following Reform papers have been outspoken in connection with it. Mr. Wood here read lengthy extracts the Hamilton Times, the London Advertiser, the Brantford Expositor, the Kingston Whig, the St. Thomas Journal, the Dundas Banner, the Lindsay Post, the Seaforth Expositor, the Paris Transcript, the Woodstock Standard and the Berlin Telegraph, all Reform papers and all condemning unequivocally the system of payment by fees. Proceeding he said: And I refer to this class of the press in any extracts I make, so as to avoid the semblance of trying to torture what this resolution asks into a personal or political attack. The system of salaries has worked well in the customs. It is being applied to the larger post-offices. There was a time when in municipal matters treasurers were paid by commissions or fees, but this was done away with long ago. I am aware there is an impression in some minds that in arguing for a change it means a sort of demagogism to reduce salaries generally without reference to the work performed, strike down, but offer no remedy. This resolution points in no such direction. What is wanted in lieu of the present system is (1) that the officials referred to should be fairly and amply paid for the work done and the responsibilities that devolve upon them; (2) that there should be no distinction or difference in the salaries, except in so far as there is a distinction or difference in the value of the service rendered; (3) that in estimating the value of such service the previous social or political standing of the official should not be a factor in determining it, but should be based entirely on service performed and responsibilities of the office; and (4) that only persons capable of discharging such duties themselves should be appointed to office. I have never been and I am not now, an advocate for paying any man less than full value for service rendered, whether it be in my private business or in the public interest. The laborer is worthy of his hire, whether he labors on the farm, in the office, behind the desk or in the public service, and wherever he is he should be fairly and amply paid for the service rendered. Does the fee system secure this on fair and equitable terms? I think not. I believe the duties of county attorneys, registrars and sheriffs require educated and competent men to discharge them, and subject always to the rules that I have laid down, such officials should be liberally and fairly paid. I do not think the duties of registrar are as responsible as those of the sheriff. The one is very much routine duty with the responsibilities naturally attached to the office, while the other has executive duties of a more important and responsible character. In the case of registrars, deputies of fair business ability can be found to discharge all the duties at a moderate salary, and to this you must add whatever general responsibility the office brings. As to sheriffs, while they have deputies that can also discharge the duties connected with the routine of office, yet there are additional duties that can only be performed by the sheriff, and the general responsibility is very much greater. Now, what this resolution proposes is, that any one filling these offices or any other office paid by fees in the service of the Government, that can be reasonably so treated, shall be paid by salary. That this salary shall be graduated according to the general rules, I have indicated, which is according to services rendered. I think all will agree in the principal embodied in this proposition. Does the system of paying by fees comply with these principles? Let us see by reference to the latest returns submitted to the House, which are for 1889, made in 1890, for by the results of the practice we must either commend or condemn it. We will first take the country attorneys and clerks of the peace, and then follow with a glance at salaries derived by fees of sheriffs and registrars, and before doing so I wish again to repeat that I fully recognize the difference in work performed, but I also must remind the House that all the offices are supposed to require a supervision of time and attention that lessens very much the difference of work between the offices of lesser receipts as compared with the greater. There are 32 districts or divisions in which there are county attorneys and clerks of the peace. Take eight of the lowest, including both offices, and they show:

Middlesex, both offices, only net	3,531
Lambton, both offices, only net	2 493
	$24,062
Average over	$3,000

There are some anomalies in these offices. In Leeds and Grenville I find one person holding four offices—local master, deputy registrar, county attorney and clerk of the peace—all only netting him $1,367; while in Essex is another party holding the same offices, which nets him $2,364—nearly double. In Algoma the county attorney clerk of the peace gets directly net fees $687, but this is supplemented by a salary of $800, making a total of $1,437. One is inclined to enquire why this was singled out for additional salary. Looking back over these figures and statements, we find that the office of county attorney in the city of Toronto yields to the occupant nearly as much as is received altogether for both county attorneys and clerks of the peace in the districts of Dufferin, Thunder Bay, Prince Edward, Muskoka, Lennox and Addington, Prescott and Russell, Renfrew and Perth; and the clerk of the peace for the same county gets as much from the fees of his office as is received by all the county attorneys and clerks of the peace in the districts of Lennox and Addington, Prince Edward, Thunder Bay, Dufferin and Muskoka. Surely there is nothing like an equality as regards remuneration in such a state of things; and, while the average of the 32 offices would be about $1,770, we find eight averaging $720; eight, $1,250; eight, $2,120, and others over $3,000; and the offices yielding to the occupants from $539 for both offices in one district up to $4,737 for one of these offices in another; and that while, for the reason, it is to be supposed, of inadequate remuneration, the Algoma officer has his fees supplemented by $800, giving him $1,437 in all, three other officers get a little over $500, two others $600, and three others from $800 to $900, with eight additional averaging $1,250, and no additions to equalize. Now, let us glance at the sheriffs. The number of shrievalties is 43. The figures show:

Gross receipts	$158,306
Total disbursements	69,505
Net receipts	$ 88,801

Divided among 43 shrievalties, this gives $2,060 each. This does not appear too much, but let us again glance at the facts. Take sheriff's offices, as shown by the returns of 1890, and we have as follows:

Shrievalties.	Gross Am't	Net Am't.
Dufferin	$2,978	$1,411
Lanark	1,683	1,168
Lennox and Addington	2,002	1,108
Ontario	2,405	1,076
Peel	2,350	1,068
Muskoka	1,852	992
Halton	1,579	977
Prince Edward	1,565	652

In all $8,442

An average of $1,055 each.

Take other sheriffs' offices, and you find as follows for 1889:

Shrievalties.	Gross Am't	Net Am't.
Toronto	$18,445	$8 805
York	8,369	4,877
Carleton	6 082	3,255
Leeds and Grenville	4,600	3,220
Simcoe	7,006	3,202
Elgin	4,622	2,945
London	5,091	2,584
Essex	4 344	2,883
		$31,871

Being an average of about $4,000 each.

This shows eight officers averaging nearly $4,000 each over and above all expenses, and eight other officers averaging a little over $1,000, or the sheriff of the city of Toronto receives $383 more than the united incomes of the sheriffs of Dufferin, Lanark, Lennox and Addington, Ontario, Peel, Muskoka, Halton and Prince Edward. Then look at the registrars. The number of registration divisions, calling Toronto two, is 63. In 1889, as shown by returns of 1890, we find:

Total gross receipts (about)	$258 000
Total disbursements (about)	158,000
Net proceeds	$100,000

Divided among 63 divisions, this makes an average of (about) $1,600 per registration division. To this should be added the sum paid for a deputy, which work could be performed by the registrar. Apparently this would not be largely out of the way, but let us go further and look into the actual facts. Registry offices, by the return of 1890, show as follows for 1880:

Reg. Div.	Gross Am't.	Expenses.	Net Am't
Durham, E. R	$1,468	$650	$818
Kingston city	1,948	976	972
Glengary	1,851	362	1,487
Lanark, N. R	1,172	432	740
Northumberland, W. R.	1,472	500	972
Grenville	2,013	900	1,113

Perth, S. R	1,808	519	1,279
	$13,433	$5,244	$8,109

Average of net receipts, $1,013.

Registry offices show as follows for 1889:

Reg. Div.	Gross Am't.	Expenses.	Net Am't
Toronto City	$51,894	$31,380	$17,514

Bay of Quinte Yacht Club.

A meeting of the Bay of Quinte Yacht Club was held at the Hub Hotel last evening and was fairly attended. Acting Commodore C. Hostage presided. The first business transacted was the election of officers, and resulted as follows:

Commodore—Mr. W. H. Biggar, M.P.P.
Vice Commodore—Mr. Alex. Forbes, of Trenton.
Captain—R. J Bell.
Sec'y-Treas.—Geo. N. Leavens.

It was decided to send three delegates to the Lake Yachting Racing Association meeting, which will be held at Oswego on Saturday, May 2nd. The delegates appointed were: Messrs. W. H. Biggar, A. Forbes and J. V. Jenkins.

Good Advertising Scheme.

The latest in advertising is that by the Oak-Hall Clothing House. They are going to give free, with every suit sold for boys and children, a handsome bat and ball. Old customers as well as new buying a suit for their boys from now until June 1st will all fare alike. This is something new in the advertising line, but we think it a good scheme and have no doubt but it will please the small boy, and no doubt when he needs his suit he will take good care to direct the parents to the Oak-Hall.

Have You Thought of It?

For four thousand years or more the world groaned, suffered, and fumed about its corns, for there was no positive relief—no certain and painless cure until Dr. Scott Putnam gave to the world his great Corn Extractor. If there is suffering now it is the result of carelessness, for the remedy is at hand. Try Putnam's Corn Extractor. It is sure, painless, and prompt. Beware of substitutes. N. C. Marine Notes.

The first vessel to pass through the swing at the Bay bridge was the tug Day, of Trenton, owned by the Weddell Dredging company, which last night brought down one of the Company's dredges. The first schooner to pass through was the D. Freeman, Capt. N. Allen, which went up this morning in tow of the tug E. Bonar.

Sugar Social.

The sugar social held last evening under the auspices of the Epworth League of the Tabernacle, in the spacious and cheery lecture room of the church, was a great success. The audience was large, the programme choice and the sugar sweetly enjoyed. The music by the I.O.O.F. orchestra, the singing by Mr. Fax and the recitations of Miss Robinson and Mr. Summers were highly appreciated and pleased everybody. Mr. W. H. YOUREX SENTENCED.

Ten Years in Penitentiary for Forgery.

THE PRISONER'S PLEA FOR MERCY

Judge Rose's Severe Remarks in Passing Sentence.

In the assizes this morning Chester Wilbur Yourex, who pleaded guilty to four indictments charging him with forgery, was brought before Judge Rose for sentence.

For the following verbatim report of the proceedings we are indebted to Misses Flora Green and W. Everett, students at the Belleville Business College:

JUDGE ROSE.—What have you to say, Chester Wilmot Yourex, that you should not be sentenced for the following offence, for which you have pleaded guilty?

PRISONER.—Well, I am willing to confess my wrong in this transaction, for which I am sorry; if it hadn't been, of course, for being in this state of despair, getting into company which I had ought not to, which I admit, I would not have done what I have. I have placed all I have in the hands of the court to make the wrong right. I reserve nothing. It is just and right that I should be punished. For one thing I feel to plead, for this is my first offence and that is this: I have experienced sufficient to lead a proper life. It is my desire that the Judge should have compassion on me and not make my sentence severe in consideration of these things.

JUDGE ROSE,—My first duty is to society. If consistent in the charge of that duty, I have the right, and in me is vested the discretion of mitigating sentences, but the crime to which you have pleaded guilty is a serious one, a very serious one. A maximum punishment would keep you in prison in confinement the rest of your life. I have to act upon some principle if to lessen your punishment. The facts that have been brought to my notice show that you were engaged in dishonest work—not suddenly, or through the weakness of a temptation which you had not time to resist. But the moral forces within you were sufficient to keep you aright and from pursuing a wrong course. You came into trouble and in order to free yourself from the pressure of the difficulties you were willing to commit a grievous crime, not a crime upon the moment, but a crime which required premeditation, thought and plan, and so you forged; forged, having had the paper prepared under your instructions for the purpose of committing forgery. After the paper was prepared you had planned for the purpose of raising money upon it. The proceeds of your forgeries you applied partly in paying off prior liabilities. With the rest you left the country, escaping from justice. Now it is utterly impossible for the commercial affairs of the country to be carried on without confidence—confidence in those who present papers to the banks, in the names and signatures upon papers that must pass from hand to hand, and so the Government in olden days punished forgery with death, in order that commerce and commercial transactions might not be interfered with. I don't know how I can consider you alone. I think I must not consider you alone; I must not pass a sentence upon you which will lead others to whom your crime has become known, widely known, to conclude that this is a light offence. On the contrary, I must pass a sentence which must teach others that it is no light thing to commit forgery. I have, in the exercise of the discretion which is vested in me in other cases where the offence was the first one, where it is the result of immediate temptation to the person, been lenient. I find the element which would enable me to act thus, lacking in your case. If by contrition and a proper life hereafter, you convince the executive that it was in the interest of the public that your sentence be lessened, upon formal application the papers will be sent to me, and I will pass such an opinion as my judgment will lead me to do. In the mean time I must give you a substantial sentence, not by any means a full sentence, but a much lighter sentence than perhaps I ought to pass, if I looked alone at society. I am not sure whether I am right in giving a lenient sentence. One can hardly tell how much they are influenced by surroundings. I think, however, I will be doing substantial justice to the public if I pronounce upon you the sentence I am about to pass. The sentence on you, Chester Wilbur Yourex, is "that you be confined in the Provincial Penitentiary for the term of ten years on each of the charges to which you plead guilty, the sentences to run concurrently."

Clark's Lightning

Liniment will relieve the painful torture of rheumatism in the joints or muscles. It should be well rubbed in with the hand, and the part covered with a piece of flannel. The pain will cease with the first application, and its continued use will effect a marvellous cure. This remedy needs but a trial to convince the most skeptical that it is a wonderful preparation. Sold by all druggists: price fifty cents. Clark Chemical Co., Toronto, New York.

Madoc Oddfellows.

Madoc Lodge No. 179 I.O.O.F. will celebrate the coming anniversary of Oddfellowship by attending the Methodist church on Sunday evening, the 26th inst., when a sermon will be preached to them by the Rev. J. P. Wilson; and then on the following day taking part with their brethren of this district in the demonstration to be held in Trenton.

Ask Your Friends About It.

Your distressing cough can be cured. We know it because Kemp's Balsam within the past few years has cured so many coughs and colds in this community. Its remarkable sale has been won entirely by its genuine merit. Ask some friend who has used it what he thinks of Kemp's Balsam. There is no medicine so pure, none so effective. Large bottles 50c and $1 at all druggists.

Oh, What a Cough

Will you heed the warning. The signal perhaps of the sure approach of that more terrible disease Consumption. Ask yourselves if you can afford for the sake of saving 50c., to run the risk and do nothing for it. We know from experience that Shiloh's Cure will cure your cough. It never fails.

Pleaded Guilty.

Mr. Robert A. Barber, of Trenton was arraigned this afternoon and pleaded guilty to the charge of voting twice at the late election. Judgment was reserved until to-morrow morning.

Not Guilty.

Donald Lemon, against whom the Grand Jury returned a true bill for perjury, was this afternoon placed on trial but acquitted, the case not being submitted to the Jury. Macdonald & Wright for the prisoner, Riddell, Q.C., for the Crown.

BEATRIX RANDOLPH

BY

JULIAN HAWTHORNE.

COPYRIGHT BY AMERICAN PRESS ASSOCIATION.

"It was three thousand the first month, and thirty-three hundred afterward," put in the prima donna.

"Inigo certainly told me when he returned from Europe last June that he got Marana for four thousand a night," Wallie affirmed. "But probably he took advantage of your being a debutante to cut it down."

"Mr. Jocelyn—that is, I think not; I was told that I received the same that she was to have had."

"Hamilton Jocelyn? Is he mixed up in this affair?" inquired Wallie, with an air of dissatisfaction.

She had intended not to bring Jocelyn's name into the conversation, but as it had slipped out she now thought it best to say, "It was he who introduced me to Gen. Inigo, and he has been acting as my agent—paying me the money. And he said," she added, wishing to do her enemy justice, "that it was by his exertions that Gen. Inigo was persuaded to raise my salary after the first month."

Wallie threw away his cigarette and rubbed his nose. "Well," he said presently, "I dare say Jocelyn knew what he was about. I should like to hear what he has to say in Inigo's presence. Impresarios and agents are human, and need looking after occasionally."

"What I thought was," she resumed, "that if it should turn out I had no legal right to the money, I should really have to make some more, whether I liked it or not. It would have to be made in some way, you know, and papa—and there seems to be no other way but for me to go on singing, if I can get an engagement."

"As to that," said Wallie smiling, "if I wanted to make a fortune I would turn impresario and make you my single investment. Let us assume, for argument's sake, that from the pecuniary standpoint you are perfectly free either to go on or not. Now, of course there are ways in which you might cultivate music without keeping in opera. You could sing at a church, or, when you felt in the mood, at a private or public concert. But there is something else in the profession besides the singing—there is the audience. Do you know what I mean?"

"Yes," said she, in a low voice.

"It is a magnificent stimulant," he continued. "There is no other to compare with it in the world. They say when you have once felt the delight of it nothing is so difficult as to give it up. There is nothing that you would exchange for it."

"That is not true!" said she, lifting her head. In a moment she added: "But I have felt that it would be a great consolation." Wallie glanced up, and she blushed.

He rose again from his chair and took another cigarette from the box on the low bookcase. Then he went to another place for a match, which he scratched underneath the mantelpiece. Then he lit the cigarette and threw the burnt end of the match in the fire, after having shaken it rapidly to and fro to extinguish it. She watched him half absently, thinking what a good fellow he was, how quiet, how honest, how kind, how quick of apprehension. But through him, beyond him, in his place she was seeing another figure, which she never hoped to behold again in reality. Oh, the perversity of human affairs! The goodness that we meet with is not the goodness that we want; the evil that happens to us is not the punishment of our evil!

Wallie glanced at her through the smoke of his cigarette with a sympathetic interest, half sad, half humorous. The heavy fur lined cloak that she wore was thrown back on the chair; her head leaned backward, showing the white throat; her richly made, close fitting black dress revealed the lithe beauty of her figure; there was a soft dimness about her eyes; a little strand of bright hair had strayed across her forehead. How mournful she looked! How easily she might be happy! How gladly he would make her so! But those who have the good will have not the power, and those who have the power— "I hope to gracious!" exclaimed Wallie to himself, "that he is suffering the torments of the damned! I may have been a fool in my time, but nothing should ever have made me turn my back on a woman like that!" And he reseated himself with a resentful vehemence that drew a creaking remonstrance from his armchair.

"Do you think, Miss Randolph," he asked, "that the time would ever come when you would prefer the consolation to the—thing it consoled you for?"

"A consolation is only—a consolation," she replied, with a little smile. "But you must not think that I am—was meaning anything except in a general way. I should only find it more tiresome than usual to have nothing to do now that I know what it is to do something."

"Speaking in a general way, however, don't you think it would be unwise to seek consolation as such until one was quite certain, beyond the possibility of a doubt, that consolation was the thing one needed?"

"Oh, of course there can be no doubt!" she answered. But there was in her tone, and in the sudden, inquiring expansion of her eyes, a feeling less of conviction than of misgiving and suspense, as if the earnest emphasis with which he had spoken had led her to suspect that he might know something of great moment to her. He had no such knowledge, but he had a strong persuasion that she was the victim of a misfortune that might be set right; and he perceived that the time was now come when he might speak to her openly on the subject which had all along been in both their minds. But as he opened his mouth to do so there was a knock at the door, and the servant came in with a letter.

"The messenger boy's waiting, sir," he said, "and wants to know if there's an answer."

"Tell him," said Wallie sternly, "to go to"— He stopped. The handwriting on the envelope had caught his eye. "If you will excuse me?" he said, glancing at his visitor, while he tore the letter open. He took in its contents with a look. "No answer—I'll answer it in person," he said to the servant, who withdrew.

"Miss Randolph," said Wallie, standing in front of her with the letter in his hand, and a peculiar smile on his face, "this is from a friend of mine whom you know. There's nothing in it that you may not see; will you read it?"

She took the letter, saw the signature, let her hand fall to her lap for a moment, then lifted it again and read as follows:

> DEAR WALLIE—I returned this morning. In Ireland I met a young fellow named Randolph, with a lady, who turned out to be Mlle. Marana. I didn't know what to think, but came on at once in order to warn her namesake here. At the hotel I found Randolph and his father. It appears that the former and Marana had arrived a few hours before me on another steamer. Our Marana went out this morning, no one knows where. From something I happened to hear old Randolph say to his son I begin to suspect I have made an astonishing and wicked blunder. I will explain when I see you, which must be at once. The two ladies must not meet at present, if we can help it. If you get this in time meet me here at 1 o'clock.
> G. BELLINGHAM.

"Shall we go to the hotel together?" said Wallie, when she had read the letter.

"No. I cannot see him. Oh, my brother!" she pressed her hands over her face, and bent her head down on the arm of the chair.

"I think," said Wallie gently, after a pause, "that Mrs. Dinsmore has just come in. I know she'll want you to stay to lunch. Shall I tell her you're here?"

"Let me go to her," said Beatrix, rising suddenly and moving blindly toward the door. Wallie drew her arm beneath his and led her out. Ten minutes later he was on his way up town.

Speaking of Tips.

A TIP is a piece of special or valuable information such as this, that Hagyard's Yellow Oil is a prompt and effectual cure for croup, colds, hoarseness, sore throat, rheumatism, neuralgia, sprains or soreness of any kind. Known as reliable over 30 years.

Important and True.

No better evidence of the fact that Burdock Blood Bitters is a certain remedy for all blood diseases can be asked than that of Mr. Geo. V. Thomas, druggist, of Hull, P. Q., whose wife was cured of cancer by B.B.B. The family doctor is certain that the disease was cancer and that it is now cured.

Silver, blue and leather color are combined in visiting dresses of bengaline and camel's hair.

That latent force of fluid, which permeates all matter, and which bears the conventional name of Electricity, is widely appreciated and recognized as a means of cure in various diseases. Its effects in the form of Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil are shown by the relief of pain, both Neuralgic and Rheumatic, as well as the throat and lungs, and in various other healing ways.

A black real Chantilly lace shawl will form a valuable assistant in remodelling a black velvet gown.

The Lungs, Liver, Kidneys, Bowels, &c., act as so many waste gates for the escape of effete matter and gases from the body. The use of Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery helps them to discharge their duty. Mr. W. H. Lester, H. M. Customs, Toronto, writes: "I have personally tested the health-giving properties of Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery, and can testify as to its great value.

Dangerous Counterfeits.

Counterfeits are always dangerous, more so that they always closely IMITATE THE ORIGINAL IN APPEARANCE AND NAME. The remarkable success achieved by Nasal Balm as a positive cure for Catarrh and Cold in the Head has induced unprincipled parties to imitate it. The public are cautioned not to be deceived by nostrums imitating Nasal Balm in name and appearance, bearing such names as Nasal Cream, Nasal Balsam, etc. Ask for Nasal Balm and do not take any imitation dealers may urge upon you. Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam.

Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam gives prompt relief in coughs, colds, hoarseness, whooping cough, croup, asthma or bronchitis. It is the most pleasant and perfect throat and lung healer in the world for children or adults. Price 25c.

Bickle's Anti Consumptive Syrup is a combination of several medicinal herbs which exert a most wonderful influence in curing pulmonary consumption and all other diseases of the lungs, chest and throat. It promotes a free and easy expectoration, and gives ease even to the greatest sufferer. Coughs, colds, shortness of breath, and affections of the chest, attended with weakness of the digestive organs, or with general debility, seem to vanish under its use. No other remedy acts so readily in allaying inflammation or breaking up a severe cold, even the most obstinate cough is overcome by its penetrating and healing properties. When children are affected with colds, coughs, inflammation of the lungs, croup, quinsey, and sore throat, this Syrup is of vast importance. The number of deaths among children from these diseases is truly alarming. It is so palatable that a child will not refuse it, and is put at such a price that will not exclude the poor from its benefits.

White broche is in demand for negligee robes.

Mr. J. R Allen, Upholsterer, Toronto, sends us the following: "For six or seven years my wife suffered from Dyspepsia, Costiveness, Inward Piles and Kidney Complaint. We tried two physicians and any number of medicines without getting any relief, until we got a bottle of Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery. This was the first relief she got, and before one bottle was used the benefit she derived from it was beyond our expectation."

Satins closely resemble India silks in design.

Jacob H. Bloomer, of Virgille, N.Y., writes:—"Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil cured a badly swelled neck and sore throat on my son in forty-eight hours; one application also removed the pain from a very sore toe; my wife's foot was also much inflamed—so much so that she could not walk about the house; she applied the Oil, and in twenty four hours was entirely cured."

A coronet set with turquoises is a new shape for a bonnet pin.

Mr. Thomas Ballard, Syracuse, N.Y., writes: "I have been afflicted for nearly a year with that most-to-be-dreaded disease Dyspepsia, and at times worn out with pain and want of sleep, and after trying almost everything recommended, I tried one box of Parmelee's Vegetable Pills. I am now nearly well, and believe they will cure me. I would not be without them for any money

ADVICE TO MOTHERS

MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP has been used by millions of mothers for children teething for over fifty years with perfect success. It relieves the little sufferer at once, produces natural, quiet sleep by freeing the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste, soothes the child, softens the gums, allays pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. Twenty-five cents a bottle

NASAL BALM

Robert Bogle, Esq., Belleville Business College, Belleville, Ont.:

DEAR FRIEND,—Your very welcome letter of the 13th ult. was duly received.

You asked in your letter if I had any difficulty in performing my work as stenographer. I am glad to tell you that I have not had any difficulty in the least, as you assured me I would not, before leaving your college. I have to write from 30 to 40 letters a day, and there is enough other office work to keep me busy, but it is not hard.

Tell the students never to be afraid, after they have received as careful training as I got.

In conclusion I have to say that any young gentleman or young lady wishing to improve his or her time, may rest assured that they will never regret the time and money spent while attending the above named institution.

Yours very truly,

THE PLAGUE OF CRIME.

GRAPHIC WORD PICTURE OF NEW YORK VICE AND POVERTY.

Rev. Dr. Talmage Continues His Sermons on the Plagues of the Cities of New York, Brooklyn and Jersey—His Sermon on Sunday.

NEW YORK, April 12.—Dr. Talmage, in continuance of the course of sermons on "The Ten Plagues of the Cities," to-day preached to large audiences on "The Plague of Crime." He took for his text Exodus 7, 20—"All the waters that were in the river were turned to blood."

Among all the Egyptian plagues none could have been worse than this. The Nile is the wealth of Egypt. Its fish the food. Its waters the irrigation of garden and fields. Its condition decides the prosperity or the doom of the empire. What happens to the Nile happens to all Egypt. And now in the text that great river is incarnadined. It is a red gash across an empire. In poetic license we speak of wars which turn the rivers into blood. But my text is not a poetic license. It was a fact, a great crimson, appalling condition described. The Nile rolling deep of blood. Can you imagine a more awful plague?

The modern plague which nearest corresponds with that is the plague of crime in all our cities. It halts not for blood-shed. It shrinks from no carnage. It bruises, and cuts, and strikes down, and destroys. It revels in the blood of body and soul, this plague of crime rampant for ages, and never bolder or more rampant than now.

The annual police reports of these cities as I examine them are to me more suggestive than Dante's Inferno, and all Christian people, as well as reformers, need to waken to a present and tremendous duty. If you want this "Plague of Crime" to stop there are several kinds of persons you need to consider. First, the public criminals. You ought not to be surprised that these people make up a large portion in many communities. The vast majority of the criminals who take ship from Europe come into our own port. In 1869 of the forty-nine thousand people who were incarcerated in the prisons of the country thirty-two thousand were of foreign birth. Many of them were the very desperadoes of society, oozing into the slums of our cities, waiting for an opportunity to riot and steal and debauch, joining the large gang of American thugs and cut-throats.

It is their business to commit crime, and I do not suppose that once in a year the thought of the immorality strikes them. Added to these professional criminals, American and foreign, there is a large class of men who are more or less industrious in crime. In one year the police in this cluster of cities arrested ten thousand people for theft, and ten thousand for assault and battery, and fifty thousand for intoxication. Drunkenness is responsible for much of the theft, since it confuses a man's ideas of property, and he gets his hands on things that do not belong to him.

Ten million dollars worth of property stolen in this cluster of cities in one year. You cannot, as good citizens, be independent of that fact. You might as well think to stand in a closely confined room where there are fifty people and yet not breathe the vitiated air as to stand in a community where there is such a great multitude of the depraved without being somewhat contaminated. What is the fire that burns your store down compared with the conflagration that consumes your morals? What is the theft of the gold and silver from your money safe compared with the theft of your children's virtue?

We are all ready to arraign criminals. We shout at the top of our voice, "Stop, thief!" and when the police get on the track we come out, hatless and in our slippers, and assist in the arrest. We come around the bawling ruffian and hustle him off to justice, and when he gets in prison, what do we do for him? With great gusto we put on the handcuffs and the hopples; but what preparation are we making for the day when the handcuffs and the hopples come off? Society seems to say to these criminals. "Villain, go in there and rot," when it ought to say, "You are an offender against the law, but we mean to give you an opportunity to repent, we mean to help you. Here are Bibles and tracts and Christian influences. Christ died for you. Look, and live."

Vast improvements have been made by introducing industries into the prison; but we want something more than hammers and shoe lasts to reclaim these people. Aye, we want more than sermons on the Sabbath day. Society must impress these men with the fact that it does not enjoy their suffering, and that it is attempting to reform and elevate them. The majority of criminals suppose that society has a grudge against them, and they in turn have a grudge against society.

They are harder in heart and more infuriate when they come out of jail than when they went in. Many of the people who go to prison go again and again and again. Some years ago of fifteen hundred prisoners who during the year had been in Sing Sing, four hundred had been there before. In a house of correction in the country, where during a certain reach of time there had been five thousand people, more than three thousand had been there before. So, in one case the prison, and in the other case the house of correction, left them just as bad as they were before.

In some of the city prisons the air is like that of the Black Hole of Calcutta. I have visited prisons where, as the air swept through the wicket, it almost knocked me down. No sunlight. Young men who had committed their first crime crowded in among old offenders. I saw in one prison a woman, with a child almost blind, who had been arrested for the crime of poverty, who was waiting until the slow law could take her to the almshouse, where she rightfully belonged; but she was thrust in there with her child mid the most abandoned wretches of the town. Many of the offenders in that prison sleeping on the floor, with nothing but a vermin-covered blanket over them. Those people crowded and wan and wasted and half suffocated and infuriated. I said to the men, "How do you stand it here?" "God knows," said one man, "we have to stand it." Oh, they will pay you when they get out. Where they burned down one house they will burn down three. They will strike deeper the assassin's knife. They are this minute plotting worse burglaries. Some of the city jails are the best places I know of to manufacture foot-pads, vagabonds and cut-throats.

We want men like John Howard and Sir William Blackstone, and women like Elizabeth Fry, to do for the prisons of the United States what those people did in other days for the prisons of England. Again, in your effort to arrest this plague of crime you need to consider untrustworthy officials. "Woe unto thee, O land, when thy king is a child and thy princes drink in the morning." It is a great calamity to a city when bad men get into public authority. Why was it that in New York there was such unparalleled crime between 1866 and 1871? It was because the judges of police in that city, at that time, for the most part, were as corrupt as the vagabonds that came before them for trial. Those were the days of high carnival for election frauds, assassination and forgery. We had all kinds of rings. There was one man during those years that got one hundred and twenty eight thousand dollars in one year for serving the public. In a few years it was estimated that there were fifty millions of public treasure squandered. In those times the criminal had only to wink at the judge, or his lawyer would wink for him, and the question was decided for the defendant. Of the eight thousand people arrested in that city in one year, only three thousand were punished. These little matters were "fixed up," while the interests of society were "fixed down." You know as well as I do that one villain who escapes only opens the door for other criminalities. When the two pick-pockets snatched the diamond pin from the Brooklyn gentleman, in a Broadway stage, and the villains were arrested, and the trial was set down for the General Sessions, and then the trial never came, and never anything more was heard of the case, the public officials were only bidding higher for more crime. It is no compliment to public authority, when we have in all the cities of the country, walking abroad, men and women notorious for criminality, unwhipped of justice. They are pointed out to you in the street day by day. There you find what are called the "fences," the men who stand between the thief and the honest man, sheltering the thief, and at a great price handing over the goods to the owner to whom they belong. There you will find those who are called the "skinners," the men who hover around Wall street, with great sleight-of-hand in bonds and stocks. There you find the funeral thieves, the people who go and sit down and morn with families and pick their pockets. And there you find the "confidence men," who borrow money of you because they have a dead child in the house and want to bury it, when they never have a house or a family; or they want to go to England and get a large property there, and they want you to pay their way, and they will send the money back by the very next mail. There are the "harbor thieves," the "shoplifters," the "pickpockets," famous all over the cities. Hundreds of them with their faces in the "Rogues' Gallery," yet doing nothing for the last five or ten years but defraud society and escape justice. When these people go unarrested and unpunished, it is putting a high premium upon vice, and saying to the young criminals of this country, "What a safe thing it is to be a great criminal."

The police stations of this cluster of cities furnish annually between two and three hundred thousand lodgings. For the most part, these two and three hundred thousand lodgings are furnished to able-bodied men and women—people as able to work as you and I are. When they are received no longer at one police station, because they are "repeaters," they go to some other station, and so they keep moving around. They get their food at house doors, stealing what they can lay their hands on in the front basement while the servant is spreading the bread in the back basement. They will not work. Time and again, in the country districts, they have wanted hundreds of thousands of laborers. These men will not go. They do not want to work.

I like for that class of people the scant bill of fare that Paul wrote out for the Thessalonian loafers—"If any work not, neither should he eat." By what law of God or man is it right that you and I should toil day in and day out, until our hands are blistered and our arms ache and our brain gets numb, and then be called upon to support what in the United States are about two million loafers. They are a very dangerous class. Let the public authorities keep their eyes on them.

Again: Among the uprooting classes I place the oppressed poor. Poverty to a certain extent is chastening; but after that, when it drives a man to the wall, and he hears his children cry in vain for bread, it sometimes makes him desperate. I think that there are thousands of honest men lacerated into vagabondism. There are men crushed under burdens for which they are not half paid. While there is no excuse for criminality, even in oppression, I state it as a simple fact that much of the scoundrelism of the community is consequent upon ill treatment. There are many men and women battered and bruised and stung until the hour of despair has come, and they stand with the ferocity of a wild beast which, pursued until it can run no longer, turns round, foaming and bleeding, to fight the hounds.

There is a vast underground New York and Brooklyn life that is appalling and shameful. It wallows and steams with putrefaction. You go down the stairs, which are wet and decayed with filth, and at the bottom you find the poor victims on the floor, cold, sick, three-fourths dead, slinking into a darker corner under the gleam of the lantern of the police. There has not been a breath of fresh air in that room for five years, literally. The broken sewer empties its contents upon them, and they lie at night in the swimming filth. There they are, men, women, children; blacks, whites; Mary Magdalen without her repentance, and Lazarus without his God. These are "the dives" into which the pickpockets and the thieves go, as well as a great many who would like a different life but cannot get it. These places are the sores of the city, which bleed perpetual corruption. They are the underlying volcano that threatens up with a Cafaccas earthquake.

There is another layer of poverity and destitution, not so squalid, but almost as helpless. You hear the incessant wailing for bread and clothes and fire. Their eyes are sunken. Their cheek bones stand out. Their hands are damp with slow consumption. Their flesh is puffed up with dropsies. Their breath is like that of the charnel-house. They hear the roar of the wheels of fashion overhead, and the gay laughter of men and maidens, and wonder why God gave to others so much and to them so little. Some of them thrust into an infidelity like that of the poor German girl who, when told in the midst of her wretchedness that God was good, said:—"No, no good God. Just look at me. No good God."

In this cluster of cities, whose cry of want I interpret, there are said to be, as far as I can figure it up from the reports, about three hundred thousand honest poor who are dependent upon individual, city, and State charities. If all their voices could come up at once, it would be a groan that would shake the foundations of the city, and bring all earth and Heaven to the rescue. But, for the most part, it suffers unexpressed. It sits in silence, gnashing its teeth, and sucking the blood of its own arteries, waiting for the judgment day. Oh, I should not wonder if on that day it would be found out that some of us had some thing that belonged to them; some extra garment which might have made them comfortable in cold days; some bread thrust into the ash barrel that might have appeased their hunger for a little while; some wasted candle or gas-jet that might have kindled up their darkness; some fresco on the ceiling that would have given them a roof, some jewel which, brought to that orphan girl in time, might have kept her from being crowded off the precipices of an unclean life; some New Testament that would have told them of Him who "came to seek and save that which was lost." Oh, this wave of vagrancy and hunger and nakedness that dashes against our front door step! If the roofs of all the houses of destitution could be lifted so we could look down into them just as God looks, whose nerves would be strong enough to stand it? And yet here they are. The 50,000 sewing-women in these three cities, some of them in hunger and cold, working night after night, until sometimes the blood spurts from nostril and lips.

I have preached this sermon for four or five practical reasons:—Because I want you to know who are the uprooting classes of society. Because I want you to be more discriminating in your charities. Because I want your hearts open with generosity, and your hands open with charity. Because I want you to be made the sworn friends of all city evangelization, and all newsboys' lodging houses, and all Children's Aid Societies, and Dorcas Societies under the skillful manipulation of wives and mothers and sisters and daughters; let the spare garments of your wardrobes be fitted to the limbs of the wan and shivering. I should not wonder if that hat that you give should come back a jeweled coronet, or if that garment that you hand out from your wardrobe should mysteriously be whitened, and somehow wrought into the Saviour's own robe, so in the last day he would run his hand over it and say:—"I was naked, and ye clothed Me." That would be putting your garments to glorious uses.

TROUBLE IN HOLY CITY.

The Excitement in Benares Gradually Cooling Down.

BENARES, April 17.—The excitement in this city, originating from the demolition of a temple in order to provide a site for the new waterworks, has taken a change for the better in the aspect of affairs here, though the change was preceded by a serious riot. The mobs which filled the streets during the morning became more violent. In spite of the efforts of the local officials, the police and the military, the natives, who were in a state of semi-revolt, cut the telegraph wires, looted the railway station and plundered the railway treasury sheet of 3000 rupees. The local authorities summoned a large number of volunteers to their assistance, and succeeded in arresting a hundred of the most violent of the rioters. These arrests have resulted in quieting the disturbance for the present at least.

New South Wales to Give the Ladies Votes.

SYDNEY, N.S.W., April 17.—The Premier of New South Wales, Sir Henry Parkes, announced to-day that the Government would introduce a bill providing for the enfranchisement of women.

Gen. Booth's Farm Colony.

LONDON, April 17.—Gen. Booth, Commander-in-Chief of the Salvation Army, has agreed to pay £10,000 for 600 acres of land near Southend, upon which he will establish his farm colony—one of the agencies by which he expects to redeem "Darkest England." He will from time to time buy additional land, and will spend from £15,000 to £20,000 in buildings, drainage and other improvements. The taxes on the property will average 42d. per acre. The land is badly situated, and in the judgment of experts the price paid is absurdly high.

Wives Cannot Be Imprisoned.

LONDON, April 17.—In the House of Lords to-day the Lord High Chancellor, referring to the Clitheroe abduction case, in which Mr. E. H. Jackson was by the Court of Appeal found to have no right to compel his own wife to live with him, stated that the Government would not introduce a bill giving men power to imprison their wives for refusing to comply with a magistrate's order restoring the man to his conjugal rights. Parliament, said Lord Halsbury, had abolished the power to imprison a wife for refusing to live with her husband, and the judges could not alter the law.

Further Fighting in Assam.

CALCUTTA, April 17.—A despatch from Rangoon states that Capt. Presgrave, who was reported to have reinforced Lieut. Grant at Fort Thabat, has met and defeated 300 Manipuris. Presgrave's mounted infantry pursued the Manipuris and killed 50. There was no loss of life on the British side.

King Humbert's Practical Sympathy.

ROME, April 17.—King Humbert has sent $100 to each child left an orphan by the steamer Utopia disaster.

Shooting Affray at Honey Harbor.

MIDLAND, April 17.—Walter Simons went to a shanty he had built in the woods near Honey Harbor, 12 miles from here, and ordered out two men belonging to Penetanguishene, who had taken possession during his absence. Instead of going away as directed, one of the men shot Simmons, the ball entering the fleshy part of the thigh, striking the bone and coming out just above the knee.

A Blow That May Prove Fatal.

MILTON, April 17.—William McKenzie's 7-year-old son, Kenneth, is dangerously ill from the results of a blow in the stomach from the fist of a schoolmate named Armstrong. His recovery is problematical.

Dropped Dead After Leaving Church.

LONDON, April 17.—Miss Jessie Fletcher, after attending evening service in the Presbyterian Church at Melbourne, was returning to her home and fell dead when within a few yards of the door.

Wiped Out by a Cyclone.

LIBERAL, Kansas, April 17.—The Court House at Hansford, Texas, in course of construction and nearly completed was destroyed by a cyclone Wednesday. A brick mason and another man were killed. Every house in the small town was more or less damaged. The cyclone also destroyed Paludora, a little town in Oklahoma.

Stricken Down on the Road.

MILTON, April 17.—Peter Campbell of Trafalgar was stricken down with paralysis while walking to Milton. He lay senseless for several hours and then crawled to town on his hands and knees. Next day he died. Deceased was 63 years of age and was a brother of Col. D. Campbell, County Registrar.

PARNELL ON HEALY.

Parnell Now Sends Out a Manifesto to the English Electors.

LONDON, April 18.—Parnell has issued a manifesto to the members of the National League of Great Britain. The manifesto declares the McCarthyites are under English influence and he calls upon his countrymen in Great Britain to ignore the convention summoned by Irish whips under the shadow of English influence and calls on them to assert the principle of national independence and to declare that Irishmen alone shall regulate the conduct of Irish business.

PACKED IN A TIN BOX.

A Postmaster's Shocking Discovery Near A Small Village in Wellington

GRAND VALLEY, Ont., April 17.—An inquest was held last night on the body of a child found on the side of the railway track about three miles west of the station here. Robert Dickson, postmaster at Peepabun, was walking along the track, and observed a parcel lying at one side of the track, about six feet from the rails, which at once aroused his curiosity. The parcel was done up with a sheet of grey paper on the outside and tied on by a cord. Mr. Dickson thinking that the package to be goods of some kind and probably dropped off the train at once began to investigate. He unfastened the cord, took off the paper wrapping and found a woman's garment surrounding a tin tobacco box, the box being about one foot in length. He then opened the tin, which was fastened with small nails, and a black woollen scarf or shawl appeared, and on lifting the scarf he was horror-stricken to behold the remains of a female infant, which was crushed into the box.

The evidence of the doctors showed that the child had been murdered. Whether the box was thrown from the train or was placed there is a mystery.

DROVE A WIRE IN HIS BREAST.

Donald McKinnon Desired to Die—Suicides in Other Towns.

GODERICH, April 17.—Donald McKinnon, who was acquitted at the assizes on a charge of murdering his wife, and was sent to jail for four months for attempted suicide, made another attempt to end his life yesterday. This time his implement was a small piece of wire, which he succeeded in forcing about an inch into his body two inches below the heart. His effort at self-destruction was discovered by Jailer Dickson and the wire taken away.

Two Months Married and Tired of Life.

NORTH BAY, Ont., April 17.—A man named Gagnon, a cook in a shanty at Nipissing village, was found hanging to a beam in the shanty yesterday morning. He left a note in his pocket saying no one was to blame, that he had been sick for four months and was tired of life. He was married about two months ago.

AWFUL SKIN DISEASE

Child a Mass of Raw, Bleeding Sores. Miraculous Cure by the Cuticura Remedies.

A face, from the hair to the neck on both sides, a raw mass of bleeding sores; two little hands and arms in the same condition; a body around the waist of which was a broad band of bleeding eruptions, and from the hips to the tips of her toes the skin was so raw as to be absolutely sickening to the sight. Said Mrs. H. A. Stout to me: "I have tried everything suggested to me on my little daughter, who has been so afflicted almost from birth. I have had three doctors experiment on her, but she seemed to be getting worse every day. I was almost distracted. Every night I had to bandage her all over, and tie mittens on her hands to prevent her from digging the raw flesh with her fingers. Mr. Faulkner said he believed that CUTICURA REMEDIES would cure her. He offered to bear the expense. At that time she was worse than I had ever seen her, and there seemed no prospect of recovery. CUTICURA, CUTICURA RESOLVENT, and CUTICURA SOAP have wrought a miracle. To-day her skin is smooth and fair, and I believe she has entirely recovered." The above is true in every particular, and I refer to Mr. C. W. Woolever, druggist.

WHY IS IT ?

If you will listen a minute we will tell you why and how it is that we can and do lead in the crockery business. It's over fifty years since this establishment was founded in London, Ont., by the late Nathaniel Reid, who spent his younger days amongst the English potteries and gained a knowledge of the many processes of manufacture until the goods are laid upon the shelves in this country. This knowledge, handed down to the son and others who have been in the house for twenty-five years, has brought about the following results: 1st.—The ware is all made in Staffordshire, England, brought out in the plain and finished in our own decorating kilns in this country. 2nd.—In Tea Sets we can furnish 134 different patterns; Toilet Sets, 89; Dinner Sets, 96 patterns. 3rd.—To give some idea of what has been done in the Belleville branch, we have sold since the first of last August (8 months) of these three items 164 Tea Sets, 110 Toilet Sets and 93 Dinner Sets. Other lines which belong to this business, such as silver plate and lamps, we handle just as extensively and from the leading factories. The goods are all made for the legitimate crockery trade and not for giving away. We study our own trade. We have got to understand the business we follow. We can reproduce old patterns, buy larger and undersell others, and that's why we lead in this trade.

Makes the Weak Strong

The marked benefit which people in run down or weakened state of health derive from Hood's Sarsaparilla, conclusively proves the claim that this medicine "makes the weak strong." It does not act like a stimulant, imparting fictitious strength from which there must follow a reaction of greater weakness than before, but in the most natural way Hood's Sarsaparilla overcomes creates an appetite, purifies the blood, and, in short, gives great bodily, nerve, mental and digestive strength.

"I derived very much benefit from Hood's Sarsaparilla, which I took for general debility. It built me right up, and gave me an excellent appetite." ED. JENKINS, Mt. Savage, Md.

Fagged Out

"Last spring I was completely fagged out. My strength left me and I felt sick and miserable all the time, so that I could hardly attend to my business. I took one bottle of Hood's Sarsaparilla, and it cured me. There is nothing like it." R. C. BEGOLE, Editor Enterprise, Belleville, Mich.

Worn Out

"Hood's Sarsaparilla restored me to good health. Indeed, I might say truthfully it saved my life. To one feeling tired and worn out I would earnestly recommend a trial of Hood's Sarsaparilla." MRS. PHEBE MOSHER, 20 Brooks Street, East Boston, Mass.

DARE NOT FACE THE MUSIC.

The election officials who were accused by Mr. W. P. Hudson, M.P.P., of fraudulent practices in connection with the last election in his constituency, will not be put on trial before the Committee on Privileges and Elections. The Mowat Government have refused to grant Mr. Hudson's request or to issue a commission for the hearing of the charges. This action can bear only one interpretation, namely that the Grit Government are determined to prevent, so far as they may, the exposure of wrong done in the interest of their party. Of this there has been abundant evidence previously—notably in the Algoma election case, when they relieved the convicted rascals of the punishment which they had incurred, and whitewashed the others who were "on the ragged edge."

We trust that the charges in question—the truth of which it is but fair to add, the accused have denied in affidavits—may yet be tried before an impartial tribunal.

THE McKINLEY BILL AND THE HORSE MARKET.

The following, which we copy from the Toronto World of the 15th inst., shows that the McKinley tariff has not materially injured the horse market: "Mr. Grand expressed himself last night as more than satisfied with the results of the first day of his annual sale of high class Canadian horses. It is now well known that Mr. Grand spends each winter in visiting all the little centres throughout the province where good horses are to be picked up, brings them here and gets them into condition for his spring sale. His efforts for the past year have been more successful than ever before, and the result is the best collection of Canadian horses ever offered to the public. The sale was conducted at the Shaw-street Rink under the most favorable circumstances. A first-class tan-bark ring enabled the horses to be shown to advantage. The presence of a large number of American buyers, who came from the leading cities of the United States, showed that high-class Canadian horses are thoroughly appreciated over there. Many of the best horses will cross the frontier, and Mr. Grand told the audience in opening that the American tariff was no hindrance to the sale of good Canadian horses. Furthermore he told the farmers present that they might take a lesson from the result of the sale, and instead of using inferior sires it would be hundreds in their pockets to employ thoroughbred horses. The animals were exhibited either under saddle, hitched up to dog carts or carriages, and were in the pink of condition and well handled in the ring. The highest price paid for a single horse was $1050 for Marlboro, a 6-year-old gelding. He goes to Detroit.

"Certain hard words, made into pills,

are not what constitute Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets. They are tiny, sugar-coated, purely vegetable pills, as pleasant as confectionery to the taste, and acting upon the stomach and liver gently but effectually, and as naturally as Nature herself. For four thousand years or more the world groaned, suffered, and fumed about its corns, for there was no positive relief—no certain and painless cure until Dr. Scott Putnam gave to the world his great Corn Extractor. IMPERIAL PARLIAMENT.

INTERESTING DEBATE ON THE IRISH LAND BILL.

Morley, Balfour and Parnell Participate—An Amendment by Morley Voted Down—Parnell Does Not Wish for Local Government.

LONDON, April 17.—The debate on the Irish Land Bill was resumed in the House of Commons last evening. Mr. Morley moved an amendment to the effect that an advance of money should not be granted under the bill except with the approval of the County Council in the districts in which the holding for which the advance was asked might be situated. Tenants excluded from the benefits of the bill, he said, were required to make good the default of favored tenants without having any voice in the matter. The provision was so indefensible that he understood that Mr. Balfour now consented to modify it. The objection to delay, pending the creation of the councils, confirmed his belief that the Government had no real intention to introduce a local government bill. If they had such an intention, the Ashbourne Act would fulfil all purposes until a local government bill was passed.

Mr. Balfour insinuated that Mr. Morley's speech was for electioneering purposes. He contended that the exceptional position of Ireland justified exceptional treatment. He referred vaguely to his suggested modification as tending to maim, though not to destroy, the bill, and said that it would therefore be only applicable in acute cases of difference.

Mr. Parnell agreed with the principal which Mr. Morley advocated, but he objected to waiting for local government. If the Liberals were victorious in the general election, as he supposed they intended to be—(laughter)—they would not be in a hurry to promote local government, which they had always promised for the last 25 years. He proposed to amend Mr. Morley's amendment by a clause making it operative whenever a Local Government Bill was passed.

In the House of Commons to-day Thomas Sexton, one of the members for Belfast who was loudly cheered by the McCarthyites and by the Liberals during the debate on the Irish land bill, strongly condemned Parnell's attitude last night when the latter attacked the Liberal policy. Sexton said the Liberal position was not changed, but it was Parnell's attitude which had undergone a change. Mr. Parnell's proposed amendment to Mr. Morley's motion making it operative whenever a local government bill was passed would prevent Morley's object from being attained, which object was to compel the Conservatives to give Ireland local self-government. Morley's amendment was to the effect that an advance of money should not be granted under the bill except with the approval of the County Council in the district in which the holding for which advance was asked might be situated. After further discussion Morley's amendment was rejected 247 to 170. Parnell's amendment to Morley's motion was also defeated.

Although Morley's amendment, introducing in the Irish land bill the principle of local control, was a point on which the Irish sections were expected to sink all differences the spirit of faction got the upper hand. Parnell's amendment to the Morley amendment, followed by Sexton's amending the Parnell amendment, produced a feeling of irritation in the ranks of the Opposition, inducing many members to leave the House without voting on the most important attempt to alter the bill in committee. After this defeat the battle against the measure will be guerilla warfare. No leader of the Liberals will make any further effort to alter the character of the Government proposals. The bill has virtually passed the committee stage in the form which the Government projected. An announcement of the most striking kind was Mr. Balfour's statement that the bill which he was preparing to give Ireland local government would be circumscribed in character. His allusions to the operation of the land bill under local elected bodies clearly point to a scheme of county councils similar in structure to the English county councils.

IT KEEPS HIM BUSY.

Parnell Replies to Tim Healy's Bitter Attacks Upon Him.

LONEON, April 7.—In the House of Commons to-night Tim Healy made a bitter attack on Parnell and his followers for there innonsistency spiced with references to the fox had lost its tail, etc., Parnell turned on Healy and Sexton. They were, he said, trying in an underhand way to destroy the bill. He taunted them upon days when they were under his protection and direction and regarded with contempt to pose as land reformers.

Scalped by a Limb.

MOUNT FOREST, April 17.—George Langdon of Normanby was at work cutting down trees in Ryan's Bush near Pike Lake. He had cut through a tree which in falling knocked a heavy limb off, striking his head with such force that the whole top of the skull above the ears was literally swept off. Some fellow-workmen saw the accident and gave the alarm, but death must have been instantaneous.

A Pleasant Herb Drink—A Spring Medicine.

The druggists tell us that people call daily for the new cure for constipation and sick-headache discovered by Dr. Silas Lane. It is said to be Oregon grape root (a great remedy in the far west for those complaints) combined with simple herbs, and is made ready for use by pouring on boiling water to draw out the strength. It sells at 50c and $1 a package and is called Lane's Family Medicine.

TEXT OF THE PETITION.

PRESENTED TO THE QUEEN BY THE NEWFOUNDLANDERS.

Plea for the Rights of Settlers Against Arbitrary Restrictions Imposed by Naval Officers Employed to Protect French Fishery Claims.

LONDON, April 17.—Mr. William Henry Smith, the Government leader in the House of Commons, stated in that body to-day that the Government was not aware that the Newfoundland delegates who are now in London in order to present Newfoundland's side of the lobster fisheries dispute to the Imperial Parliament desired to be heard at the bar of the House of Commons, but in accordance with invariable precedent the delegates could not be heard at the bar of the House until after the second reading of the bill providing for the maintenance of the modus vivendi between France and Great Britain relative to the Newfoundland fisheries.

The delegation is composed of Premier Whiteway, an Englishman, who has spent most of his lifetime in the country and who has been successful in amassing from $100,000 to $150,000 by law and politics; Hon. A. W. Harvey, a colleague of Premier Whiteway in the Executive, is a Bermudian and is one of the most enterprising business men in the colony; Hon. Moses Monroe is a member of the Legislative Council and does an extensive business in general trade in fishery supplies and manufacturing; George H. Emerson is a native of Newfoundland and is Speaker of the House of Assembly. He is a lawyer of high legal attainments and an orator of great ability. The other member of the delegation, Mr. Alfred B. Morine, is a remarkable gentleman. Without means, without friends, he has forced himself to the front by industry, perseverance and natural gifts of tongue and pen.

The following is the joint address which has been presented to the House of Lords and Commons:

To the Right Honorable the Lords Spiritual and Temporal in Parliament assembled:

We, the Legislative Council and House of Assembly of Newfoundland, in session convened, beg leave to approach your honorable House, to appeal to you for protection and support under circumstances which have filled the minds of all classes in this country with profound anxiety and dismay.

Your honorable House is aware that the old-time difficulties consequent upon the treaties between Great Britain and France on the subject of the Newfoundland fisheries have of late years assumed even unaccustomed gravity, producing painful and ceaseless agitation among our people. Two delegations proceeded from here during last season to represent to Her Majesty's Government the exorbitant growth of the claims of the French under alleged sanction of treaties and the further injustice wrought to the community of Newfoundland. Their efforts for redress have been so far unsuccessful, and we are now confronted with a new evil essentially more intolerable than any of those with which experience has rendered us but too familiar.

We refer to the proposal of Her Majesty's Government by a bill now before Pearliament to re-enact the act of George IV., chapter 51, for the better conduct of the treaties between Great Britain and France respecting the Newfoundland fisheries, which act expired in the year 1834.

This act embodied provisions of an arbitrary and oppressive character, wholly repugnant to those principles of liberty and justice which are held to be the basis of modern British legislation. They conferred upon the officers of Her Majesty's ships engaged in fisheries protective service, who were intrusted with the settlement of treaty disputes, powers of summary adjudication independent of all the restrictions and safeguards which British law has devised for the defence of the inherent rights of British subjects. These powers extended to most severe penal inflictions and were beyond all appeal, and when it is remembered that they were exercised by persons unacquainted with legal procedure and whose peculiar training and habits of thought and action dictated unquestioning submission to their decrees, it must be manifest that extreme hardship and injustice were the frequent and inevitable results.

It may be alleged that while yet the act of Parliament in question was on the statute book it had been allowed to lapse into comparative desuetude, so incompatible with modern civilization would have been the application of this barbarous law. But, unhappily, the record of the years 1887, 1888 and 1889 gives instances of its enforcement under assumed authority with disastrous consequences to the property and industry of some of Her Majesty's subjects engaged in the fisheries of Newfoundland.

We submit that this law could not possibly be rendered applicable to the circumstances which it is designed to meet. All social and general conditions in Newfoundland, and particularly on those parts of the coast affected by the treaties, have undergone a radical and complete change in the many years that have elapsed since the law under consideration was enacted. There was then no resident population in those localities. Population has long since settled there in considerable numbers, and trade and various sources of employment have become developed and yield their contributions to our customs revenue. Several years ago Her Majesty's Government confirmed the occupation of the coast by acceding to the desire of the residents for representation in the House of Assembly and for the appointment of magistrates and police. They are periodically visited by the Supreme Court on circuit; they have regular communication with the rest of the country and with Canada by mail and passenger steamers—in a word, all the ordinary institutions of civil life to the extent to which the means of the colony enable it to provide them. The permanence of their position being thus conclusively assured and recognized, it can hardly be necessary to point out with what cruel severity, with what destructive effect, the proposed law would operate upon the trade, the industries and every appreciable interest of this section of our people. It must be clear, beyond reach of doubt, that to recall this instrument of coercion in their case would be to outrage the feelings and the rights of the law-abiding and loyal inhabitants of this whole dependency of the British Crown.

We would, therefore, most earnestly implore your honorable House, by all your honored and revered traditions, to desist from inflicting upon the people of this country the calamity of such an enactment as that which is now in contemplation.

We would remind your honorable House that Her Majesty's Government and that of France have lately agreed on arbitration respecting the Newfoundland [illegible] such tribunal, however, proposing to deal with one question only, and this the recent question of the lobster fishery. This partial proceeding has been decided, not only without reference to the Newfoundland Government, but against their emphatic protest.

We, too, on the part of this colony, beg to present an equally emphatic protest against a course adopted in direct violation of the principles of that constitutional form of government which it is our privilege to possess.

We would, in conclusion, respectfully invoke the aid of your honorable House for the protection of the treaty rights of Newfoundland against the demand of the French for an exclusive fishery, including lobster fishing, on those portions of the coast where they hold acknowledged privileges. The rights of British subjects have on several occasions been declared and the pretensions of the French disallowed by some of the ablest of the statesmen of Britain, notably by Lord Palmerston, and only last year by the Marquis of Salisbury. We feel that your honorable House will recognize the justice of our prayer that the definitions of these high authorities shall not continue to be more theoretic pronouncements which France is permitted to contravene, but shall be carried out in their true significance and to their full practical effect.

We beg to inform your honorable House that we have appointed the Hons. Sir William V. Whiteway, Augustus W. Harvey, Moses Monroe, George H. Emerson and Alfred B. Morine, Esq., as a delegation to present this remonstrance, and we pray that they be heard at the bar of your honorable House.

Newfoundland's Claims.

LONDON, April 17.—Mr. Morine, one of the Newfoundland delegates, in an interview yesterday declared that if France declined to submit the whole Newfoundland question to arbitration England would be justified in enforcing a proper interpretation of the treaties. "Why," he asks, "should France alone choose the points for arbitration? There is no real fear of war. If Lord Salisbury had treated France as he treated America in the Behring Sea question all this trouble would have been saved." Both Mr. Morine and Mr. Emerson admitted that the present position in Newfoundland was bound to lead to annexation to America.

IMPROVED TRADE.

Crop Reports Hopeful and Business in All Lines Brisker.

NEW YORK, April 17.—Telegrams to Bradstreet's indicate that more seasonable weather and improving country roadways have had favorable effect on general trade. Crop reports from the Northwest are very favorable, as are those affecting winter wheat, and merchants in the spring wheat region are discounting their bills to a noticeable extent. Exports of wheat from San-Francisco have been very heavy this week at high prices, spot commanding 99c per bushel, with Europe a ready taker. Wool sales have been slow with prices tending downward. Telegrams from Ontario report the wheat crop doing well with an encouraging influence on general trade. In Quebec the outlook for spring trade is fairly good. Navigation at Montreal will soon be open. The Dominion reports 39 business failures this week against 37 last week and 29 this week last year. The total number, January 1 to date, is 672 against 637 last year.

ONTARIO LEGISLATURE.

A Bill to Enable Public School Boards to Assist Industrial Schools—A Scarcity of Subjects.

TORONTO, April 18.—The Assembly was occupied yesterday with the motion of Mr. McColl, that in the opinion of this House, sheriffs, registrars of deeds, county attorneys, clerks of the peace, clerks of the County Court, Division Court clerks and bailiffs and other county officials now appointed by the Lieutenant-Governor in Council ought hereafter to be chosen by popular election.

The motion was opposed by the Government. Mr. Fraser was particularly strong, speaking of the change as a most pernicious one. If those officers were elected, why should not also the judges, police magistrates, justices of the peace, etc.? He hoped the day would be far distant when the House would vote for any such resolution.

In the course of the debate Mr. Awrey quoted from newspaper statements attributed to Mr. Sol White favoring annexation. Mr. White said he was not a revolutionist but a loyal citizen. He preferred political union on fair terms to unrestricted reciprocity. If any political change was inevitable he preferred to make it now when the country could make fair terms. He denied that he had ever said anything against the interests of Canada in any way. The motion was withdrawn after a long discussion.

Mr. Ross has introduced a bill to amend the Industrial Schools Act by providing that Public School boards may aid Industrial Schools even if they are without their jurisdiction.

Dr. W. T. Aikins, dean of the medical faculty of Toronto University, and Dr. Geikie, dean of Trinity Medical School, interviewed the Minister of Education with reference to securing subjects for dissection of which there is a scarcity at present.

BRANT'S NEW SHERIFF.

William Watt, Jr., of Brantford Secures the Appointment.

BRANTFORD, April 17.—Mr. William Watt, jr., B.A., secretary of the Brantford Reform Association, has been appointed sheriff of Brant county in succession to the late William J. Scarfe. Sheriff Watt will enter upon his new duties within the next few weeks.

The new Sheriff was born in Brantford in September, 1845, and is the son of William Watt, merchant. He studied for the bar, but after practising his profession for a few years entered journalism, purchasing The Expositor in 1874. Early in 1890 he sold out to the present proprietor and again resumed the practice of his profession.

SAVED BY A BUCKLE.

It Was Lucky For William Miller That He Wore Suspenders.

WINGHAM, April 17.—Peter Miller, son of James Miller, was fooling with a revolver when it discharged, the ball entering the breast of his brother William, penetrating the skin just below the nipple and taking a downward course for about two inches. The revolver was an old one, and it is thought the bullet that entered the young man's side must have come from the breach instead of the muzzle, as there were three chambers emptied and there were only two reports. The ball struck the buckle of his suspender, which broke its force, and thus the young man's life was saved, no doubt. Peter Miller's hand was also injured.

This Boy Will Die.

GODERICH, April 17.—At Kintail, William Murphy, aged 13, was playing with a loaded revolver when the contents were accidentally discharged in his right side immediately over the region of the liver, and caused a very severe wound. Peritonitis having already set in the case may prove fatal if the bullet cannot be extracted.

The Little Boy and His Gun.

BOWMANVILLE, April 17.—Fred. Burden, while loading the chamber of his revolver, exploded the cartridge. The ball entered his left hand at the base of the thumb, passing upwards toward the wrist and lodgin there.

Horrible Story of Juvenile Ferocity from Cape Breton.

HALIFAX, April 17.—A revolting story of youthful ferocity comes from Little Narrows, C.B.: A number of boys on their way home from school called in at the blacksmith's forge where the smithy's apprentice, whose name is Logan, was at work. The boys began playing and Logan becoming offended drew a red hot and sharp iron out of the fire and taking hold of a boy by the name of Matheson drove the iron into his abdomen. The victim, who is 12 years old, is not expected to recover. Logan after committing this act skipped at once and is supposed to be hiding in the fastness of Logan 's glen between Little Narrows and Lake Ainslie.

Mistress Murphy's Husbands.

HALIFAX, April 17.—A case of bigamy is attracting attention at Pictou. George Prentice of this town married a Mrs. Murphy, nee Mag. McLennan, about five years ago. They have been living together since that time. A few days ago husband No. 1, Thomas Murphy, made his appearance from Boston and had his wife arrested on a warrant.

HISTORY REPEATS ITSELF.

in wall paper as in everything else, once in about every ten years.

It is not ten years ago though since the "fad" of papering ceilings was all the rage, nor was it five years ago! Yet this season there is a very strong demand for ceiling papers and decorations, and we firmly believe that papered ceilings will always be fashionable.

How do we know?

We'll tell you.

Economy and common sense have done it.

The world of fashion produces periodically a "fad" and if it receives "official recognition" from some fashion leader, it is considered "quite the proper thing" by the votaries of fashion and a craze ensues.

Fashion dictates more severely and draws finer lines in the matter of decoration than in anything else under her sway, and it sometimes happens that some of her "whims" become permanencies or "things of beauty and a joy forever." Economy is the great factor that transforms what was once a "fleeting fancy" into a permanent reality and that's where common sense steps in.

Although the craze of papering ceilings died out for awhile, it has returned again, not as a craze, but as a good big morsel of hard common sense, and it has come to stay. It's admitted superiority over every other style of ceiling decoration, both in attractiveness and ECONOMY has forced 'fashion" to the wall for once and in spite of herself she "returns to her first love," thus waiving the formality of waiting the allotted decade for "History to repeat itself."

Try and remember that economy and common sense have done this—for where can you find a better field for decoration in your whole house than a ceiling presents?

Please make a note of this.

Refined Minstrelsy.

There are many of the fair sex who would like to attend minstrel performances, but hesitate from doing so because some companies are coarse and offensive in different ways. Gorton's Minstrels, who appear at the Opera House on Monday evening next, April 20th, bear an unblemished reputation for refinement, and ladies can attend these entertainments without the least fear. The St. John, N. B., Daily Telegraph says of them: "There has never been a minstrel troupe in this city which created so favorable an impression, in the character of the performance, the ability of the band, and the personality of the individual members."

Sale of Church Property.

The property of the Congregational church of this city, including the church edifice and parsonage, has been sold to the Reformed Episcopal Church. The organ, carpets, etc. have been donated to former members of the Congregational Church now connected with the Reformed Episcopal, who in turn will give them to the latter body; so that the building will be entered already furnished. A number of historical relics will be carefully preserved by several of the oldest members of the Church now about to disband, and the proceeds will be handed over to the Canada Congregational Missionary Society.

C.P.R Excursions.

The Canadian Pacific Railway have, by special request, decided to run another extra party to the Pacific coast, in connection with our "People's Popular Parties" series, and will do so on May 15th. As this will be the last of the season and the accommodation will be limited, all who purpose going had better make early application for berths, which will, with tickets and all information, be furnished by S. Burrows, C. P. R. agent, Belleville.

P.S.—As per previous instruction the C. P.R. excursion will be run on May 1st as well as above on May 15th.

Improvements.

Mr. Daniel Stroud, Montreal, of the firm of Stroud Bros., Tea merchants, is in the city on business with the above firm. Anticipating the wants of their customers, they intend making some alterations and improvements in their store preparatory to receiving a large importation of new seasons India, China and Japan teas. They are also expecting a large consignment of English and foreign goods on arrival of early Spring vessels.

Do You Cough?

Don't delay. Take Kemp's Balsam, the best cough cure. It will cure coughs and colds. It will cure sore throat or a tickling in the throat. It will cure pains in the chest. It will cure influenza and bronchitis and all diseases pertaining to the lungs, because it is a pure balsam. Hold it to the light and see how thick and clear it is. You see the excellent effect after taking the first dose. Large bottles 50c and $1.

Contractors' Rights.

In future the contractors for the Sault St. Marie Canal will, it is estimated on good authority, send their estimates of work, made by their own engineer, direct to Ottawa, to be acted upon by the department instead of submitting them to the inspection of Mr. Thompson, the present resident departmental engineer, with whom it appears they have had some difficulty.

Royal Templars of Temperance.

A large "carry-all" loaded with Royal Templars of Belleville Council No. 297 went down to Shannonville last night to a Sugar Social and Entertainment given by Prof. Mills of the "Life Boat Crew." Mrs. Gill and Mrs. Dulmage of this city also gave short addresses. Mr. Mills returned to Toronto this morning to rejoin his family.

Oh, What a Cough

Will you heed the warning. The signal perhaps of the sure approach of that more terrible disease Consumption. Ask yourselves if you can afford for the sake of saving 50c., to run the risk and do nothing for it. We know from experience that Shiloh's Cure will cure your cough. It never fails.

Election Cases

The election cases against E. G. Palen, Geo. Colby and E. Guss Porter were called in court this morning. The cases against Palen and Colby were traversed. In Porter's case, Mr. John Bell, Q.C., pleaded specially a former conviction, and the Judge reserved a case for argument before the full court.

Mr. Hudson's Illness.

We regret exceedingly to learn that the illness from which Mr. W. P. Hudson, M. P.P., has been suffering for a week past, is an attack of erysipelas in the arms and head. He is confined to his bed and it is feared that he will not be able to resume his seat in the Legislature during the present session.

Fish for the Bay.

Mr. Charles Wilmot, of the Newcastle Fish hatchery, brought down to-day 300,000 whitefish fry, which were liberated in the bay.

The Island

The dredge and derrick are now working on the island improvement.

Spring Assizes.

Monday, April 17.

James Tulloch v. Traders' Bank.—Plff. is a farmer residing in Huntingdon. In 1888 and '89 he and Dr. Faulkner of Stirling, became engaged together in buying grain, etc. In 1889 Dr. Faulkner was indebted to deft in a large sum, about $4,500, and plaintiff was endorser on his notes. Bank seeking security, got from Dr. Faulkner an assignment of certain mortgages he held against parties to whom he had loaned money, and also, as plff. alleges—induced plff. to mortgage his farm for $4,500 as collateral security for Dr. Faulkner as deft. Bank to call on plff only for what could not be realized on mortgages Faulkner had assigned. Plff. alleges the deft., contrary to their agreement and without his consent, returned to Dr. Faulkner, a portion of the mortgages he assigned, calling on plff. to make good the whole sum, viz: $4,500, amount of his mortgage. Action is brought to compel defts. to account for the Faulkner securities assigned to them. Verdict for the defendant.

Burdett Q.C., Clute Q.C. and F. E. Redick for plff.; Blake Q C. and Lefroy for deft.

Saturday 18th.

Robert A. Barber case—When Crown Counsel moved for the judgment of the court, the Judge said he would not sentence the defendant. He would direct the defendant to pay costs of prosecution, and enter into recognizance to appear when called on to hear judgment. Bail—himself in $1,000; R. Weddell, $500; Alex. Forbes, $500.

Election of Officers and Teachers.

The annual meeting of the Sunday School management of the Tabernacle was held last evening, when the election of officers and teachers for the ensuing year took place. The following were elected: Superintendent, W.H. Gordon; Ass't do., D. A. Weese; Sec.-Treas., J. E. Walmsley; Ass't officer, Burton Lake; Librarian, Wm. Bininger; Recorder, Frank Pyman; Organist, Prof. J. Smith; Assistant do., Miss E. Smith; Teachers—Dr. Geo. Wright, Miss Gould, Mrs. (Rev.) G. H. Copeland, Miss Annie Boseley, S. A. Not a "Fake" Journal.

"Is it another fake?" is a question the friends of the Dominion Illustrated have frequently to answer with regard to the prize competition inaugurated by the publishers of that journal for the current six months. The publishers have themselves given the best answer to that by publishing the list of prizes. There are 100, aggregating in value over $3,000. The first is $750 in gold and the smallest is valued at $5. The competition consists in finding in current numbers of the Journal the answer to thirty-six questions, six of which are published each month. On receipt of 12 cents in stamps, the publishers (the Sabiston Litho. & Pub. Co., Montreal) will send sample copy with full particulars.

Lawn Bowling.

The members of the Belleville Bowling Club held their annual meeting yesterday afternoon and organized for the season. There was a good attendance and plenty of enthusiasm. The Secretary's report for 1890 was adopted and showed a small increase in the membership. The retiring officers were all re-elected, viz, President, Chas. Lavis; Vice-President, W. H. Biggar, M.P.P.; Sec-Treas., James Lowrie; Lawn Committee, Messrs. Webster, Pope and Gordon. The Lawn Committee were asked to have the green leveled and put in good playing order for the coming season's matches, as they intend as soon as possible to play the annual contest match of President v. Vice-President.

or Delicate, Sickly Children

Scott's Emulsion is unequalled. See what Dr. C. A. Black, of Amherst, N. S., says: "I have been acquainted with Scott's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil, with Hypophosphites, for years, and consider it one of the finest preparations now before the public. Its pleasant flavor makes it the great favorite for children, and I do highly recommend it for all wasting diseases of children and adults. Sold by Druggists, 50c, and $1 00.

Clark's Lightning

Liniment will relieve the painful torture of rheumatism in the joints or muscles. It should be well rubbed in with the hand, and the part covered with a piece of flannel. The pain will cease with the first application, and its continued use will effect a marvellous cure. This remedy needs but a trial to convince the most skeptical that it is a wonderful preparation. Sold by all druggists: price fifty cents. Clark Chemical Co., Toronto, New York.

Mrs. D. Price's Condition.

Letters received from Mr. Price this morning state that there is apparently no change in Mrs. Price. If at all conscious it is only for a moment or two occasionally. The Doctors fear inflammation of the brain.

Good Music.

Admirers of strictly first class music should not fail to hear the open air concert by Gorton's Gold Band on Monday, April 20. The concert will commence about 11 45, corner of Front and Bridge Sts.

Fine Native Tobacco

Mr. Thomas Martin, 7th con. Thurlow, is a grower of tobacco, which he himself cures. His last year's crop, of which we have sampled a specimen, is fine in leaf and of excellent quality.

The Explanation.

The Street Surveyor explains that the mud heaps could not be removed from Front St. because of the wetness of the material and the frequent rains, which prevented it from drying.

"Credit to Whom," &c

Miss Belle Aunger is entitled to credit, equally with the other young lady students of Belleville Business College, for reporting Judge Rose's remark in sentencing Yourex.

"How to Cure All Skin Diseases,'

Simply apply "Swayne's Ointment." No internal medicine required. Cures tetter, eczema, itch, all eruptions on the face, hands, nose, &c, leaving the skin clear, white and healthy. Its great healing and curative powers are possessed by no other remedy. Ask your druggist for Swayne's Ointment.

How to Live 100 Years.

NOTES FROM THE GALLERY.

(From our own Correspondent.)

Toronto, April 13th.

I have not had time to get into the "gallery" as on former occasions, but the desire and practice of the past was too strong to resist, and so I have looked in upon our Legislators once more. I was attracted by the knowledge that one of our members, Mr. Hudson, was to move his resolution on the "frauds in East Hastings." But before I go into this special matter let us take a look at "the House," as it looms up to the denizens in the gallery. Decided changes have taken place since last Parliament. Instead of the kindly face of Dr. Baxter beaming from the Speaker's chair, we have the burly form and marked manly face of Speaker Ballantyne greeting us. Speaker Ballantyne is not an ordinary man. He has made his mark as an intelligent and active agriculturist and business man, and has had much to do with the dairy interests of Western Ontario. Is a man of high character and will, I have no doubt, secure the confidence of both sides of the House as Speaker. The ex-Speaker takes a seat on the front row of Ministerial benches. This row of seats is something as follows: First, Hon. Mr. Mowat; next, Hon. Mr. Fraser; then Hon. Mr. Hardy and Hon. Mr. Ross; then follow in order named, Clarke, formerly Speaker; Gibson (Huron) a Scotchman of the old school with a marked Highland face; Baxter, ex-Speaker; Balfour, Davis and your member, W. H. Biggar, the last on the row. I should judge from present indications that your member for the West Riding will be personally popular. He is pleasant in manner and is not likely by any aggressive act to "run against" anyone. There seems to be an impression that he is "Grand Trunk." That is not an unnatural suspicion, as he is a partner of the Solicitor of that road. As yet, I am told, he gives no indication of being what is called a "working member." Your member for North Hastings is on the front benches. The occupants are as follows: Meredith, Clancy, Clancy, Clarke, E. F., Whitney, Willoughby. The first four named are something like an Opposition cabinet, supposed to be always ready to "have a hand in."

H. E. Clarke's health is not good, hence more labor will devolve on Meredith and his immediate lieutenant. Wood and Clancy are both looked upon as good workers and able men. They are unlike, and yet alike. Both genial and popular and hard workers, but different in their styles. Wood, while practical generally, is often abstract in his criticism. Clancy is thoroughly practical. Wood is inclined to be convinced by the logical conclusions of friends or opponents; while Clancy always agrees with his friends and never with his opponents, and criticises unmercifully. No doubt both styles are necessary. Whitney used to be on the back benches, but now, and deservedly so, down to the front. He takes an efficient part in the debates. Dr. Willoughby has made great progress. He is assistant Opposition whip, and they say an excellent one. There are a large number of new men in the House and the improvement in the debating power on the opposition side is very marked, while on the Ministerial side there is a marked falling off. On the Opposition side the marked debating gains are: Campbell, of Algoma, Miscampbell, of East Simcoe, McCleary, of Welland, White, of Essex, and McLenaghan, of South Lanark.

I understand the new Minister of Agriculture is looked upon as a failure. A good deal was hoped for from Dryden, but like Drury he is evidently weak—putty in the hands of the other members of the Government. His defence of his Department expenditure was very weak, and he was badly roasted by the Opposition, especially Clancy; he was kept on the "tenter-hooks" for hours. He seemed to know nothing about his office, and other Ministers had to come to his rescue.

And now to turn to the resolution of East Hastings—Mr. Hudson is not known in the House as a ready speaker, indeed I am told he speaks but seldom; but in the presentation of his case to day he certainly did himself very great credit. He got the attention of the House and held it, and it was clear that his friends about him were delighted. He certainly made out a strong case, whatever the merits may be. When he sat down Fraser replied, denying the right to go to the Committee of Privileges and Elections, principally on the ground that it would be a partizan tribunal and if sent anywhere, which he seemed to think doubtful, should go to the courts. In the course of his remarks he spoke of the applause given by the Opposition members to Hudson during his remarks as "partizanship," and quite plainly indicated what was to be expected in consequence. He stigmatized the applause as "unseemly," "in bad taste," "unjudicial," etc. On his sitting down, Metcalfe, of Kingston, wished the charge to be withdrawn as against him, as he had not applauded—"he knew better." This brought the member for North Hastings to his feet, who in bitter and scathing words, amid the applause of the Opposition, gave the Minister of Public Works to understand that his insinuations and "lecturing" the Opposition, was not appreciated, even though the member for Kingston saw fit to join him. That he (Fraser) was in the habit of this sort of thing, but they would not submit to it any longer. He told him "to lecture his own followers, who generally had to take what he saw fit to give"—but he had no right to insult the intelligence of members of the Opposition. This made the House very quiet, and business was proceeded with in rather a subdued manner.

There is no doubt that Fraser is an able man and a good departmental head, but he is arrogant and over-bearing at times. Ill health, they say, has something to do with this, but it is a bad place to show it.

It is quite clear the Government are going to prevent an investigation if possible.

"The Gallery," April 15th.

Having learned that Mr. Wood's motion for abolition of the fees system was coming up to-day, I again was present. I learned that the member for East Hastings was very ill at his home, Roslin. The esteem in which he is held was shown by the anxious enquiry on all hands as to how serious his sickness was, and the universal regrets expressed. After routine proceedings were through Mr. Wood moved his resolution. He spoke for about an hour and a half, and was listened to with marked interest. I will not attempt a digest of his speech, as the papers will no doubt have full reports. It was calmly delivered—logical and argumentative. His figures were admirably arranged, and on concluding his remarks the hearty applause conceded him marked the appreciation of his friends.

His arguments were of such a character as to draw a direct reply from the Attorney-General, who complimented him highly on the fair and practical manner in which he presented his case. The debate was well sustained. Meredith, Clancy, Whitney, Campbell, of Algoma, Miscampbell making excellent speeches in support of the resolution. A vote was reached at between 12 and 1 o'clock in the morning, and it was a strict party vote.

So far the Opposition have shown fine debating power; but this is accorded the best debate of the session. It is always amusing to note the characters of the House, and they developed during this debate—but of this another time. X.X.X.

Albert College has over two hundred students now in attendance.

A GREAT REFORM.

Mr. A. F. Wood on the Fees System.

The Grits Vote Down a Proposal to Abolish It.

(Concluded from Yesterday)

In other words, eight offices average nearly $6,000 over and above all expenses, and eight other offices average a little over $1,000; or giving each of the city of Toronto offices one half of $17,514, each would have $8,757, which would be to each registrar of the city of Toronto $648 more than the total net amount received by the eight offices I first referred to, their total net receipts being $8,109, as against $8,757 net receipts to each of the registrars of Toronto. Take the total registration districts as 63; include the sums paid to deputies for duties that can be performed by the registrar, and which in the returns are included in expenses, and you have an average to each registrar of about $2,500. But of these 63, as a matter of fact, 30 districts on the same calculation get an average of not less than $4,000, while the remaining 33 have an average of about $1,130. Clearly the fee system does not work equitably. This presents a somewhat startling view of the matter—the difference of county attorneys and clerks of the peace ranging from $539 up to $4,737,—nearly $5,000; the difference in sheriffs ranging from $652 up to $8,805,—nearly $9,000; the difference in registrars ranging from $726 up to $8 752, nearly $9,000, and the above, it must not be forgotten, is the net proceeds over and above all assistance and under officials paid for; and more than that, some of the larger offices do not require the presence of the chief officer. An enquiry into the practical working of the offices goes to show that a number of these officials are never found in their offices, and the work is entirely performed by subordinates at low salaries. From communications received from practical men engaged in subordinate but highly responsible positions in some of these offices I have gathered the following, as, in their opinion, the results that would follow from changing fees to salaries:

1. The public would be better served, time and money both being saved.
2. Greater care would be taken in details of work, as cheapness is now one of the main features.
3. The men doing the work will be fairly paid, which, it is claimed, is not now the case.
4. The present system often leads to corrupt practices on the ignorant, by excess of fees and fees which no one should be charged.
5. A payment by salary would make the office strictly in the interests of the public and not in the interests of the individual.

And here, as to the danger of abuses, let me illustrate by a case that has come under my own observation, and to which my attention has been called. A former county attorney in a certain county considered the office worth from $1,000 to $1,200, and this was considered the maximum of the net emoluments of the office. His successor has worked up the office, as I see by the returns, to $2,200. I am by no means alone in questioning this somewhat extraordinary increase, and I am informed by many persons—without distinction of political bias—who know all the facts of both cases that there are no good reasons why there should be this additional cost which is based on increased fees. The former county attorney used to advise justices of the peace without charge. The present occupant only advises on application by letter and then charges the county from $2 to $5. Cases of the following kind have taken place, magistrates have dismissed cases coming before them, believing it in the interest of justice to do so, and this county attorney has ordered all the papers to be sent him and instituted proceedings himself, I know a notable case of this kind before a J.P. I have full confidence in his judgment. I fully concurred in his action of dismissing the case, and yet it was taken in hand by the county attorney, and a large amount of costs made with no particular advantage gained in justice. It would be difficult to persuade those who know the facts that this would have been done under a salary. A comparison of amounts received by some of these officials with the salaries of members of the Cabinet will show how absurd are the relative sums received. A registrar paid nearly $9,000, while the Premier is paid $5,000. A country attorney paid nearly $5,000, the Minister of Public Works $4,000. A sheriff paid $8,000 and the Commissioner of Crown Lands, Minister of Education and the other members of the Cabinet $4,000 each. Five registrars and two sheriffs—seven in all—receive net incomes amounting to $47,000; while the united salaries of the seven cabinet ministers receiving salaries amounts to only $29,000. I have confined myself to the offices of registrars, sheriffs, county attorneys and clerks of the peace, as they are the more important so far as amounts are concerned, but the same arguments apply, and investigation would show similar results in most of the offices paid by fees. Do these tests show a satisfactory state of things? On the contrary, do they not show a highly objectionable system that can bring about and perpetuate such irregularities in payments for public service? For whom are these offices established? For the convenience and benefit of the people. How should they be conducted? In that way and manner that will best serve the interests for which these offices are created. In most of the States these officials are paid by salary, and in many examinations of the books for information as to titles or necessary information in other directions are without charge to those interested. I am informed by those who are intimately acquainted with the practice in such offices, that it is highly satisfactory, and comparatively (with our system) at much less cost. Of course there is great variety in the different States, but largely the practice prevails of payment by salary for officials who perform similar duties to those to whom I have referred. In New York county, which corresponds somewhat to the county of York with us, the county clerk and city registrar—two distinct offices—are paid by salaries in lieu of fees. The fees are charged and collected, but turned into the public treasury. In the city of New York any citizen is free to search the records embodied in written volumes, which are public property. It is only where something is required to be done by the official on request that fees are charged. Massachusetts the same; Connecticut the same. In Illinois there is free inspection, but fees for work done. Pennsylvania courts have decided that "records are constructive notice to all mankind," and hence should be free. The fees generally are lower than ours, and while I am not prepared to say that enquiry has satisfied me that their work is as well done as ours, at the same time the system of free enquiry gives very great satisfaction. I think I can safely say that I have established the following as facts: (1) That the system of payment by fees in the offices referred to is objectionable in principle, as fully established in the results of practice; (2) that there is a demand throughout the country for a change, and this is emphasized by the press of all shades of politics; (3) that under this system, not only unjust inequalities in payments for the same services present themselves, but it can be so utilized as to contribute large salaries to parties who render no service whatever for the same; (4) that the remedy is, as set forth in the resolution now before the House, viz., to amend the law so as to provide for the remuneration by salary. I have endeavored to treat the question fairly and judicially. I believe a change in the system of paying provincial officials is needed. I am satisfied the country is strongly in favor of a more equitable system. The press has spoken with no uncertain sound. The Government are not responsible for the system as it is—for they did not create it—but they will be responsible if it is allowed to continue, and, that this system may be sooner ended, I trust this resolution will meet with the unanimous approval of the House. (Loud applause.)

Police Court

Saturday, April 18.

CONSPIRING TO ASSAULT.

Samuel Dunning charged Anson, Joseph, William and Miles Latta with conspiring to assault him on the the 14th day of March. Case adjourned for one week for judgment, and in the meantime the counsel for the parties are to argue the points.

FISHING CASE.

T. McDonald was charged with unlawfully fishing in Mud Creek, on the Mohawk Reserve. The complainants contend that it belongs to the Reserve, and that no one can fish upon the Reserve because it is not a part of the waters of the Bay of Quinte, which the license covers. The license, put in by deft., which he received from the Inspector, gives him the right to fish with hoop-nets and other appliances, in the waters of the Bay of Quinte. Case laid over until Friday next for further evidence, to allow deft. to show that license covers more than the waters of the Bay. Mr. W. J. Diamond for plt'ff, J. E. Halliwell for deft.

Five Hundred Dollars

Will be given for a case of Catarrh which cannot be permanently cured by Clark's Catarrh Cure. Step right up to the office and prove your case and get the reward. TORONTO TRUTH'S
New Spring Bible Competition
NO. 22.

In these latter days there have arisen many false schemes and many scores of imitations of Truth's Competitions, but one after another have failed and utterly perished, yet Truth remains, and makes good all its promises. Its reputation is now too well established to risk damaging it, and as it has cost a very large amount of money and many years of care and labor to build up, the publisher could not afford to fail in carrying out all his agreements to the letter. There are twenty-one divisions of the largest list of bona fide prizes ever offered and ever actually given away by any publisher in the world. The total value of prizes in this Spring list is about $10,000,00. The lists are so large it would cost altogether too much to give them in detail here. There are pianoes, gold and silver watches, china tea and dinner sets, ladies' and gentlemen's bicycles, silver tea-sets, silk dresses, books, money, and hundreds of other valuable rewards. You pay nothing for these prizes, as everyone concedes that full value is received for the dollar in securing Truth every week for three months. Send one dollar and answers to the five following questions: Where in the Bible are these words found? 1, Grain; 2, Corn; 3, Wheat; 4, Barley; 5, Rye. If your answers are correct and your letters arrive in time you are almost sure to get a reward, as there are so many and every one cannot always find correct answers to all these questions. All the five answers must be correct to get any prize, but you will get full value for the dollar in Truth if you don't get anything else. If you want to see the list of rewards before sending in your dollar, mail Truth ten cents and a copy will be sent you containing the list of prizes. But there have been very few dissatisfied prize-winners in previous competitions, considering that he has given away during the past eight years scores of thousands of prizes. Some people expect a piano for every dollar sent, and are mad if they don't get it. He wishes it were possible to give every subscriber a gold watch or a piano or both, but says it can't be done. Some publishers intimate they will, but nobody can do it for any length of time. Send one dollar and correct answers and you won't repent it; and bear in mind that it is not guaranteed that every body whose answers are correct will get a prize, but that all the prizes in the twenty-one different lists will be given away. The competition remains open only till the last day of June next, inclusive, after which the prizes will be immediately distributed to the successful ones. Ten days will be allowed for letters to reach Truth from distant points after the 30th of June. All, however, must be postmarked where mailed not later than the 30th June, or any time between now and that date. Address S. Frank Wilson, "Truth" Office, Toronto, Ont., Canada.

Threatening to Kill.

This serious offence might well be charged against that prevalent disease Constipation, which threatens to destroy many valuable lives if not stopped. It arises from wrong action of the Stomach, Liver and Bowels, and causes Dyspepsia, Biliousness, Bad Blood, Boils, Pimples, Rashes, Eruptions, Sores and Foul Tumors. It can only be cured by the prompt use of the right remedy, Burdock Blood Bitters, which never fails to cure even the most obstinate cases and is a specific for all diseases of the Stomach, Liver, Bowels and Blood. Thousands testify. Read and learn.

We Claim the Earth.

We claim the earth is round, and we know it's true. We also claim that Hagyard's Yellow Oil cures sprains, bruises, burns, colds, croup, sore throat, rheumatism, neuralgia, and all painful or inflammatory diseases, and we know this is true. Yellow Oil is a true family remedy for lameness or soreness in man or beast.

Sit Down and Think.

Sit down and think; 1st, that dyspepsia is caused by wrong action of the stomach; 2nd, that Burdock Blood Bitters is designed to correct and regulate the stomach; 3rd, that it always cures dyspepsia and costs less than a cent a dose. Can you afford to be dyspeptic?

THE QUEEN OF ENGLAND

AS SEEN BY AN AMERICAN WHILE SHE WAS VARIOUSLY ENGAGED.

Her Majesty's Quiet Afternoon Drives—Her Gracious Recognition of the Salutes Tendered Her—The Princess Beatrice's Pure Type of Beauty a Triumph for the Guelphs.

A brilliant correspondent of the New York Sun writes from London: There was an American sparkle in the London atmosphere. The afternoon was so fine that I took a dash through Hyde Park. I was skirting along the path immediately outside the Kensington Gardens, which adjoins the Park, when my attention was attracted by a mounted policeman who seemed in great distress. He had galloped up alongside of a watering cart that was leisurely sprinkling the drive, and was shouting to the driver to shut off the water and draw to one side. Naturally enough the driver was slow to understand why he was interfered with in this summary manner, and he neither stopped the water of his cart nor pulled his horse to one side.

"H'out of the road," cried the policeman "'er Majesty comes be'ind," and with these words he caught the sprinkling cart horse by the bridle and pulled him as well as he could out of the way.

Then a large landau drawn by four horses, on which rode postillions, rolled swiftly along the road. On the box of the carriage sat two men, two more sat behind, while in front, on both sides, and in the rear rode a dozen grooms on horseback. On either side of the equipage was an equerry, a gentleman of distinguished appearance, who kept very close to the wheels and exactly opposite to the occupants of the vehicle.

This was the way Victoria, Queen of the English, took a quiet afternoon's drive. She was by the side of her daughter, Princess Beatrice, while two ladies-in-waiting sat on the seat in front of her. The confusion caused by the obstruction of the watering cart was noticed by her Majesty, and she sat upright for an instant, while a swift look of apprehension passed over her features. One of the equerries leaned forward, and, removing his hat, informed her that there was nothing to fear, whereat her Majesty settled back among her cushions and became her placid self again.

As the cavalcade swept round into The Drive, the fashionable carriage way of the Park, the great throng of equipages melted to the sides of the road, leaving a clear path for the Queen's company to pass through. Hats were raised, and her Majesty slightly inclined her head to the right and left. At Hyde Park Corner a large crowd was collected, and as the royal party dashed under the arch a cheer went up. Traffic stood still in Piccadilly as the potential one was whirled across the great thoroughfare, and then the carriage and its guard sped alone under the drooping branches of the Queen's Drive—where several attempts have been made on her Majesty's life—curving grandly round through the gateways of Buckingham Palace, which then shut out from public view.

This was the day preceding the first Drawing Room of the season. The Queen had come down from Windsor to receive the girl debutantes and the matrons hitherto unpresented at Buckingham Palace. On the day of the Drawing Room she met less than half of the company, giving way to the Princess of Wales, and going out for her regular drive, which she is not willing to miss, even to comply with the usual royal functions. It was certainly somewhat paradoxical that, while a long line of splendidly attired women was going through the torturous ordeal of being presented to the Queen, the Queen herself was spinning round Hyde Park, her mind occupied by the picture of springtime promise spread about her, and oblivious, no doubt, of the uncomfortable throng that her obliging daughter-in-law was welcoming by proxy.

Her daughter, the Princess Beatrice, does great honor to the purity of blood that is supposed to flow in royal veins, and the august mother may point to her with pride and say that it was not necessary for her (the Queen) to have granddaughters to show that the line of beauty was by no means obsolete in the family of Guelph. Princess Beatrice possesses one of the purest, best-modeled and sweetest faces I have seen in England. The poise of the head, the fineness of the features, the soft expression of the eyes, and the tender smile combine to create an effect that can only be associated with women of queenly character. She is highbred to her finger tips, that is evident at a glance, and, unless all indications are deceptive, she is as pure and modest in heart as she is lovely of mien.

Beatrice is the Queen's youngest daughter, and is 33 years old. Like all the younger children of monarchs, she has been kept in the background during the greater part of her life, and it was not until she married Prince Henry of Battenberg, six years ago, that the public became acquainted with her. Her marriage with Battenberg has not brought any prestige to her. For some reason that young man is not regarded with much respect by the English people and is generally ridiculed in all the public prints whenever he performs an official act in his capacity as son-in-law-in-waiting to her Majesty. The Queen being especially attached to her youngest daughter, has her with her a great part of the time, and, Battenberg, as husband, is permitted to linger near. This German prince who is in such public disfavor is a slender young man, with a delicate, and not altogether happy countenance, that is adorned by a pretty little pointed beard. In appearance he is distinctly the inferior of his handsome wife, and, as I saw him this week with the royal party at the horse show he seemed quite destitute of that perfect grace of manner, that savoir faire, without which royalty misses its first characteristic. He is thought very handsome, but his beauty is that of a provincial cotilion leader, or the unpleasant prettiness of a fascinating dry goods clerk.

The condition of great grandmothership is such an old story to the Queen that the anticipation now agitating the House of Fife has not very much excitement in it for her. Her enterprising young grandson, the Emperor of Germany, conferred the additional title upon his serene grandmother some years ago and has strengthened it with great regularity on several subsequent occasions. There is no sentiment, however, existing in England for the little German great-grandchildren, and the Duchess of Fife will have the gratification that she deserves—of delighting the nation with a royal child of the fourth generation.

It is rather startling to find the opinion openly expressed in some of the disrespectful London publications that it would be a rather pleasant change if the good old Queen could be comfortably disposed of and the gay Prince allowed to ascend the throne. With Victoria in power the English court has become the dullest in all Europe. Her Majesty is decidedly a "home body," and cordially dislikes the effort of formal entertainment. She loves to withdraw to Osborne, Balmoral, or Windsor, call to her presence some fine old congenial Duchess, and with her, one or two younger ladies in waiting, and her daughters Beatrice or Louise, idle away the peaceful days in gentle converse, casual drives, and occasional music. The contemplation of a large function oppresses her, and she consents to take part only in those events from which it would be inexcusable negligence to absent herself. Her manner of shirking all but a few moments of a Drawing Room is an example of her exceeding apathy toward all social formalities. In consequence of this the palaces of the Queen are never made the scenes of such brilliant festivities as dazzle and delight other nations, but are ever gloomy, solemn, and silent. The most her Majesty will do in the way of pleasurable indulgence is to command a leading actor to bring his company to her palace and give a private performance to the household. Like all her children, she is fond of the drama, and proudly boasts that her daughter Beatrice is an actress of great gifts, that charming Princess having shown herself such in many theatrical performances given in the presence of her mother.

In view of this habit of isolation practised by the Queen, the enthusiastic younger portion of the nobility, as well as the big middle classes, would like to see the Prince crowned, in order that the court should be smartened up to something like the gayety of the rest of Europe. The beautiful Princess of Wales is herself getting old, and it will not be many years more that she can show a strong personal interest in festal entertainment. Therefore, it is quite essential, if England is to have any fashionable sport of an imperial character, that the present incumbent make room for the fresh generation before it, too, grows too antique to enjoy the fun.

It was a rather remarkable sight at the Horse Show to see the Prince of Wales receiving his mother and the royal party in his capacity as President of the Hackney Society. He showed toward his mother all the formal politeness that he would had he indeed been nothing more than an official delegated to the ceremony of welcoming the Queen and attending to her comfort. As the royal party sat in a group during the parade of the horses, the Princess of Wales and Princess Beatrice were undoubtedly the only members upon whose features was impressed the unmistakable seal of royal breeding. The Prince was the gentleman to the tips of his varnished shoes, and would have lent dignity to the chair of a bank president; the Queen was a large and comfortable dowager of the stage pattern; the Empress Frederick of Germany was a natural replica of the mother; the Duchess of Connaught was entirely elegant; but only in the faces and bearings of the Princess of Wales and Beatrice was the final touch of nobility that would have marked them royal in a desert island. It was not anything of pomposity or pride that distinguished them from the others, but an air that was supremely feminine, and therefore supremely great.

DR. RAINSFORD AND THE BULLY.

How the Popular Preacher Gained a Warm Admirer.

The Rev. Dr. W. S. Rainsford, the liberal and aggressive rector of St. George's Church, New York, who recently called forth a protest from his brethren of the Episcopal Church by inviting a Unitarian clergyman to preach from his pulpit, is pleasantly remembered in Toronto and Canada.

A New York correspondent, who had been writing about the protest against Dr. Rainsford's action regarding the Unitarian minister, added a story about him which, while amusing, illustrates the power and influence which he has gained over the rougher elements from which much of his congregation has been obtained. It was at an evening mission service where frequently loafers and bullies enter in the spirit of mischief.

Dr. Rainsford believes in force when it is necessary. One of the acts of Christ which it especially charms him to read was the expulsion of the money-changers from the temple by the Savior with violence. He has frequently had to eject bullies and disorderly persons from his meetings. At the mission meeting mentioned above, a muscular strapping fellow appeared and took a seat by the door, evidently bent on mischief. As soon as Dr. Rainsford saw him, he knew that an ejectment would occur before the meeting was over.

The fellow began his pranks and Dr. Rainsford went to him and cautioned him to act in a seemly manner, or else to leave the room. The bully was insolent and the doctor was courageous. The ministerial fist grasped the bully's collar, and after a momentary tug the power of the Church Militant was demonstrated to the entire satisfaction of the bully, as he found himself landed upon the outer steps.

A few minutes later he returned, and following him was another strapping big fellow, whom Dr. Rainsford supposed was a companion. The rector said to himself, "Now, I shall have a circus; I shall have to put them both out." The second bully began to make trouble at once, and Dr. Rainsford went to him and commanded him to behave himself or leave. He, too, was insolent, and the doctor was about to attack him, keeping one eye fixed on the other man, when, of a sudden, the second one, said: "Soy, look a' here, me and Rainsford can clean out a half a dozen toughs like you, and if you don't look we'll fire yer out head first. D'ye hear me?"

The second bully collapsed immediately, and Dr. Rainsford held out his hand to the first man, who grasped it warmly and expressed his respect for a man who could collar him and put him out of doors. He has, since then, become one of the doctor's warmest admirers, and bids fair to become a useful citizen.

Current Notes.

Figures won't lie, but give the figures to one who knows how to use them to advantage and he'll do the rest.

A boy whose leg was repaired in New York by grafting some skin from a dog complains now that his shin barks easily.

Biggars—"Your wife—she—ah—is a woman of pretty positive opinions, is she not?" N. Peck—"No; they are generally negative to any opinions I may advance."

Customer—"Why did you take your boy away from school?" Grocer—"They were ruining him. Why, they were trying to teach him that sixteen ounces make a pound!"

If every one knew what every one thought about every one else the only real friend a man would have would be the little worthless yellow dog that never dies and refuses to be given away.

Speaking of Tips.

A TIP is a piece of special or valuable information such as this, that Hagyard's Yellow Oil is a prompt and effectual cure for croup, colds, hoarseness, sore throat, rheumatism, neuralgia, sprains or soreness of any kind. Known as reliable over 30 years.

Important and True.

No better evidence of the fact that Burdock Blood Bitters is a certain remedy for all blood diseases can be asked than that of Mr. Geo. V. Thomas, druggist, of Hull, P. Q., whose wife was cured of cancer by B.B.B. The family doctor is certain that the disease was cancer and that it is now cured.

Silver, blue and leather color are combined in visiting dresses of bengaline and camel's hair.

That latent force of fluid, which permeates all matter, and which bears the conventional name of Electricity, is widely appreciated and recognized as a means of cure in various diseases. Its effects in the form of Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil are shown by the relief of pain, both Neuralgic and Rheumatic, as well as the throat and lungs, and in various other healing ways.

The Lungs, Liver, Kidneys, Bowels, &c., act as so many waste gates for the escape of effete matter and gases from the body. The use of Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery helps them to discharge their duty. Mr. W. H. Lester, H. M. Robert Bogle, Esq., Belleville Business College, Belleville, Ont.:

DEAR FRIEND,—Your very welcome letter of the 13th ult. was duly received.

You asked in your letter if I had any difficulty in performing my work as stenographer. I am glad to tell you that I have not had any difficulty in the least, as you assured me I would not, before leaving your college. I have to write from 30 to 40 letters a day, and there is enough other office work to keep me busy, but it is not hard.

Tell the students never to be afraid, after they have received as careful training as I got.

In conclusion I have to say that any young gentleman or young lady wishing to improve his or her time, may rest assured that they will never regret the time and money spent while attending the above named institution.

BRITISH AND FOREIGN.

Continued Reports of Wars and Rumors of Wars.

LONDON, April 20.—It is stated in military circles in Russia that the Government intends to increase the forces on the south-western frontier by 50,000 men. There is a growing belief that the period of armed reserve in Russia is about to end.

SIMLA, April 18.—The British forces have engaged and defeated a large body of Miranzais. The victory was not obtained until after a stubbornly contested engagement had been fought and until in the heat of the fight the British troops, making a dashing advance, carried everything before them and completely routed the Miranzais. Several English soldiers and two English officers were severely wounded. A general advance of the British troops will be made to-day, the object of this movement being to break the enemy's lines and clear the Samana range of hills, which the Miranzais occupy by force. The enemy's loss in the engagement which has just taken place is unknown, but it is believed to have been heavy.

LONDON, April 20.—A telegram from Pretoria, South African Republic, announces that a Boer expedition, with the consent of Portugal, will establish a republic in either Mashonaland or Manicaland. This project, if carried out, will affect Manica territory claimed by England and will result in further trouble between England and Portugal.

PARIS, April 19.—The French are said to be in a bad way in Tonquin, their occupation being almost entirely confined to the military posts, and it being dangerous for Frenchmen to venture on a journey except with a strong military guard. The rebels are everywhere active.

LONDON, April 19.—The members of an artillery battery at Portsmouth mutinied. They complained of excessive drill and other onerous duties. The leaders of the mutiny were arrested and will be tried by court martial.

WILL GET THERE YET.

The Flea of Fate Has Bitten Bismarck But the Wound is Not a Serious One.

BERLIN, April 19.—Prince Bismarck's failure to secure a majority in the Geestemunde election for the Reichstag on Wednesday gives equal pleasure to those who hate him and to those who hate Germany. The French, or at least the Parisian press, the German Socialists and the German Emperor all rejoice together. The best opinion seems to be that Prince Bismarck will be chosen on the second ballot. He polled nearly twice as many votes as his chief competitor, who is a Socialist [in Germany a majority vote is necessary], and can only be beaten by a coalition between the Socialists, Radicals and Guelphs, which will not be easy to bring about.

Prince Bismarck has tacitly consented to stand a reballot in Geestemunde, but he also consents to become a candidate in the Lehe district, where he is certain of return, the electorate being almost purely Conservative.

The Geestemunde district is situated in the province of Hanover, which formerly was a kingdom and was annexed to Prussia 25 years ago. The province is as loyal to German unity as any other portion of the empire, but has still a large element of people that entertain a sentimental attachment for the fallen dynasty and cherish the memories of the time when Hanover was an independent German state. This sentiment in favor of a lost cause has little practical importance, but it gives the name of Guelphs to a conservative opposition party confined to this single province.

The supplementary ballot in the Geestemunde district will be held on April 30.

PRIMROSE DAY.

The Anniversary of Dizzy's Death Celebrated in the Metropolis.

LONDON, April 19.—To-day is Primrose Day, the anniversary of the death of Disraeli, and the city of London is fairly yellow with the profusion of emblems brought out by the occasion. Hundreds of meetings of the Primrose League are being held all over the country, and a wave of Conservatism and anti-Gladstonianism is sweeping over the land. The statue of Lord Beaconsfield in Parliament-square is almost buried in primroses. Street vendors of flowers have done a rushing business in the genuine article, and having sold out are earning an honest penny by peddling artificial substitutes so deftly made as to be hardly distinguishable from the real primroses.

Foreign Money Markets.

LONDON, April 19.—There was a fair demand for discount during the past week at 3¼ for 3 months and 3 for short. Further orders for gold for the Continent, combined with the bullion requirements of Scotch banks and the usual May term payments will probably cause another increase of the Bank of England's rate within a fortnight. On stock exchange during the week business was active, yet values generally tend to recede. The uneasiness in the foreign department affects all other departments.

At Paris there was a general shrinkage of values on the Bourse, many weak speculators trying to unload on falling prices. Yesterday heavy parcels, chiefly foreigners, were offered and everything closed at a decline.

At Berlin business on the Bourse was irregular. Foreign securities were depressed.

The Fool Policeman Again.

WINDSOR, April 19.—J. F. King, the young man sent to Sandwich Jail Thursday charged with drunkenness, but who it seems had not been drinking at all but was very sick, is dead. Saturday noon King's brother called on U.S. Consul Joslyn, and while they were discussing what to do with the sick man information came from the jail that the young man died at 12.30. King was a native of Hamilton, where his father now lives. The cause of death was typhoid pneumonia.

A 20-lb. Pike.

PICTON, April 19.—In Little Creek yesterday, M. E. Graham speared a pike that weighed 20½ lbs., and measured 3 feet 6¼ inches in length, 4¾ inches across the back, and 4¼ inches across the top of the head.

Three Men Killed.

WINNIPEG, April 19.—Details of a terrible accident, which happened on the Columbia and Kootenay branch of the C.P.R., have just been learned. While blasting, a heavy blast being slow in discharging, employes returned from their place of safety and proceeded to work again. Seeing smoke issuing from the crevices in a rock they started to run, but the cliff beneath them heaved and split and a terrible explosion occurred, big rocks fall on some of the party. James Ryan, Justus Matheson and Henry Martin were killed and Augustus Johnson terribly lacerated. Mr. McLennan and Foreman Smith were injured.

A Winnipegger's Opinion.

The following is taken from a letter from Mr. D. Davis, Winnipeg, Man.: "Being persuaded to use Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam for a troublesome cold, I was entirely cured by the use of two bottles."

Dangerous Counterfeits.

Counterfeits are always dangerous, more so that they always closely IMITATE THE ORIGINAL IN APPEARANCE AND NAME. The remarkable success achieved by Nasal Balm as a positive cure for Catarrh and Cold in the Head has induced unprincipled parties to imitate it. The public are cautioned not to be deceived by nostrums imitating Nasal Balm in name and appearance, bearing such names as Nasal Cream, Nasal Balsam, etc. Ask for Nasal Balm and do not take any imitation dealers may urge upon you. For sale by all druggists or sent post-paid on receipt of price (50c and $1,) by addressing lford & Co. Brockville, Ont.

Why Not Treat.

WHY not treat such troubles as boils, pimples, blotches, sores, humors, eruptions, rashes, skin irritations, etc., with Burdock Blood Bitters. It is filled with virtue as a blood purifier and goes right to the right spot. It makes the skin bright and clear, while also invigorating the entire system.

Da gerous Delay.

If we were allowed to look into the future and see the fatal consequences that follow a neglected cold, how different would our course be; could we realize our danger, how speedily we would seek a cure; but with many it is only when the monster disease has fastened its fangs upon our lungs that we awaken to our folly. What follows a neglected cold? Is it not diseases of the throat and lungs, bronchitis, asthma, consumption, and many other diseases of like nature. It is worse than madness to neglect a cold, and it is folly not to have some good remedy available for this complaint. One of the most efficacious medicines for all diseases of the throat and lungs, is Bickle's Anti-Consumptive Syrup. This medicine is composed of several medicinal herbs, which exert a most wonderful influence in curing consumption and other diseases of the lungs and chest. It promotes a free and easy expectoration, soothes irritation and drives the disease from the system.

—It is suspected that some of the spring lamb is really of winter lineage.

Chronic Derangements of the Stomach, Liver and Blood, are speedily removed by the active principle of the ingredients entering into the composition of Parmelee's Vegetable Pills. These Pills act specifically on the deranged organs, stimulating to action the dormant energies of the system, thereby removing disease and renewing life and vitality to the afflicted. In this lies the great secret of the popularity of Parmelee's Vegetable Pills.

—The dentist may not be a man of ancestry, but he is one of prominent extractions.

Inflammation of the Eyes Cured.

Mr. Jacob D. Miller, Newburg, writes,— I was troubled with inflammation in one of my eyes, so that during nearly the whole of the summer of 1882 I could not work; I took several bottles of Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery and it gives me great pleasure to inform you that it cured me of my affliction. It is an excellent remedy for Costiveness."

—The Better Way—She—Please hold my wrap. He—Certainly. Shall I put it around you first?

M. Sheeyan, of Oscoda, Mich, writes: I have used Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil for horses for differet diseases and found it just as you recommended. It has done justice to me every time, and is the best oil for horses I ever used.

—The young man who can write "a good hand" hasn't half a chance in life with the youth who can hold one.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS

MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP has been used by millions of mothers for children teething for over fifty years with perfect success. It relieves the little sufferer at once, produces natural, quiet sleep by freeing the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste, soothes the child, softens the gums, allays pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. Twenty-five cents a bottle

Another Temperance Hospital for London.

It is proposed to found a temperance hospital in the populous districts of South London. Dr. James Edmunds, senior physician to the original London Temperance Hospital, said at the recent annual meeting of that institution, that during the sixteen years he had been practicing there, he had never once prescribed alcohol in any form or for any purpose. The experiment of treating cases of any kind without alcohol has proved an incontrovertible success in this famous institution.

R. C. Temperance Work

Recently in England a pastoral was read on Sunday in some thousands of Roman Catholic churches from Cardinal Manning, in which he dwelt upon the evils of drunkenness, to stem which efforts and self-sacrifice were enjoyed. Particular forms of self sacrifice were suggested, among them being absolutely abstaining from the use of ardent spirits, taking the total abstinence pledge, either for a stated period or for life; the constant inculcation of temperance principles amongst their children, families, and dependents, and the firm pupose, by God's help, to lead upright and sober lives, and steadfastly to keep their temperance resolutions.

Testimony from 200 Drunkards.

HOW THEY BEGAN.

Recently, when 200 or more drunkards were gathered in a meeting by the Breakfast Association, a speaker asked that all who had begun to drink after the age of twenty-one would raise their hands; six responded. He then asked that all who had begun to drink before twenty-one would raise their hands; a sea of hands were raised. By saving the boys from the saloon, we can go far to saving the next generation. It is not the drunkards who sustain the saloons. The real drunkard earns nothing, and has nothing to spend. The saloon is sustained by the moderate drinker, the man who works one day that he may drink the next, who works six days that between Saturday night and Monday he may pour his earnings into the gorged till of the saloon. It is sustained by the young man, just beginning to drink, who in his new-found enjoyment is eager to treat all his friends, and to be in turn treated by them. It is these that sustain the saloons.

A telling example of the evil of intoxicating liquors is that offered by the dismissal of Post Chaplain John Vaughan Lewis, formerly a popular minister of St. John's Church, the most fashionable church in Washington city, who was appointed to a chaplaincy in the army in 1883. He was compelled to leave his church by his unfortunate, and, we must add, criminal habit of drinking. The habit pursued him after he left the church and while a chaplain in the army. A year ago he was confined in an insane asylum for treatment, after having been recommended for retirement by a retired board. It was hoped that the treatment would result in a partial cure, so that he might be restored to duty; but such has not been the case, and an order has been issued directing his retirement with a year's pay. Mr. Lewis was a very able man, a clear, sharp writer, and our readers may remember him as one who wrote for the Independent fifteen years ago, a very readable article on "The church with a Capital C," which made a vigorous claim for the church in which he was a priest of the sole right to use the capital "C," as against the right of the "sects." We very deeply regret that the law does not find some way to protect such men who are too weak to protect themselves, or at least their families.—N. Y. Independent.

RIOTOUS COKE STRIKERS.

More Fighting in the Connellsville Region—Sheriff's Deputies Attacked and One Probably Fatally Hurt.

SCOTTDALE, Penn., April 19.—The coke region is again the scene of lawlessness, and excitement is at fever heat. Last night a band of about 100 strikers assaulted the Leisenring No. 2 plant of the Frick Coke Company. Shots were exchanged, and for a time the fight was waged furiously. The guards held their ground and finally compelled the mob to beat a retreat, but not until one of the deputies was dangerously injured, and it is thought he cannot recover.

Reports have just been received here that the strikers blew up the water tanks at the Kyle works of the Frick Company early this morning.

Throughout the region all Friday night the earth fairly trembled with a succession of shocks following the explosion of dynamite bombs at Leisenring No. 3 of the Frick Brothers' works. The crowd of strikers gathered on the hill, and at one time 30 bombs were exploded simultaneously, tearing great holes in the earth, breaking windows in many houses and frightening the people for miles around by the terrific roar.

At Leisenring yesterday morning Deputy Sheriff Crawford and a posse were serving writs of ejectment, when they were captured by an angry mob and harshly treated. Deputy Sanner was knocked senseless. It is feared he will die.

An effort will be made this week with a large force to evict the strikers and trouble will follow, as hundreds are to be turned out. Secretary Parker of the labor organization has ordered 1000 tents, which will be used for sheltering evicted persons.

HARRISBURG, Pa., April 19.—Sheriff McCormick of Fayette county last evening wired Governor Pattison of the troubles in the coke region and declared he is unable to maintain order without aid of militia. He asked the governor to order out soldiers to his support.

STRUCK BY LIGHTNING.

Startling Experience of Three Young Women in Strathroy.

STRATHROY, April 19.—As the Misses Moore and Miss Rason of North-street, accompanied by Miss Waite, were leaving the Frank-street church door a ball of lightning burst just before them, and the quartet were thrown to the ground by the shock. One of the Misses Moore was burned on the left shoulder and arm and on the right foot, and Miss Waite on one of her feet, while the other two, as well as Mrs. Bowley, were prostrated for a short time. Medical aid was at once summoned and the injured ladies removed to their homes.

An Alleged Murderer "Vagged."

TILSONBURG, April 19.—Corydon Smith, who was released from Simcoe jail a few ago where he had been awaiting trial for the murder of Maria Colville, was arrested here for vagrancy yesterday and sentenced to six months' imprisonment.

King of Medicines

A Cure "Almost Miraculous."

"When I was 14 years of age I had a severe attack of rheumatism, and after I recovered had to go on crutches. A year later, scrofula, in the form of white swellings, appeared on various parts of my body, and for 11 years I was an invalid, being confined to my bed 6 years. In that time ten or eleven sores appeared and broke, causing me great pain and suffering. I feared I never should get well.

"Early in 1886 I went to Chicago to visit a sister, but was confined to my bed most of the time I was there. In July I read a book, 'A Day with a Circus,' in which were statements of cures by Hood's Sarsaparilla. I was so impressed with the success of this medicine that I decided to try it. To my great gratification the sores soon decreased, and I began to feel better and in a short time I was up and out of doors. I continued to take Hood's Sarsaparilla for about a year, when, having used six bottles, I had become so fully released from the disease that I went to work for the Flint & Walling Mfg. Co., and since then on account of sickness. I believe the disease is expelled from my system, I always feel well, am in good spirits and have a good appetite. I am now 27 years of age and can walk as well as any one, except that one limb is a little shorter than the other, owing to the loss of bone, and the sores formerly on my right leg. To my friends my recovery seems almost miraculous, and I think Hood's Sarsaparilla is the king of medicines." WILLIAM A. LEHR, 9 N. Railroad St., Kendallville, Ind.

HAVE NOT LOST A SINGLE DAY

BELLEVILLE, MONDAY APRIL 20

EAST HASTINGS.

We understand that a protest has been entered against the return of Mr. S. B. Burdett as member of the House of Commons for East Hastings.

AN IMPORTANT DISCOVERY.

"Conservative journals are calling upon the Government to reduce the sugar duties in order to stop smuggling operations. This is a confession that high taxation promotes evasion of the revenue laws."—Montreal Herald.

Comment is unnecessary.

LIBELLING CANADA.

Grip depicts Canada—that is to say, the majority of the people of the Dominion—as an ass, killed by the burden o excessive taxation. That the people of Canada may be regarded as asses by the cartoonist of Grip and the editor of the Montreal Witness, which reproduces the pictorial libel, is quite possible, bearing in mind the story of the lunatic who regarded himself as the only sane person in the world and all the rest as madmen.

COMING HOME TO ROOST.

When Mr. D. R. Leavens, Returning Officer for East Hastings in the election to the Legislature last June, appointed himself his own Deputy for Division No. 1, Thurlow, we condemned the act as being not only improper but illegal. We are pleased, therefore, to have such high authorities as the Attorney-General and the Commissioner of Crown Lands uniting in that condemnation.

Mr. Mowat said (as per the Globe's report) in the debate on Mr. Hudson's motion for the reference of his charges against Leavens and others to the Committee on Privileges and Elections:

> It is pointed out that the returning officer acted as deputy at one of the polls. I have no doubt he was wrong in that.

Mr. Hardy, who presented the case for the defence, is thus reported by the Globe:

> He referred to the fact that Mr. Leavens, the returning officer, had acted as deputy, and said he did not pretend that he was right in law in doing so.

Mr. Leavens thus stands condemned by his friends—by the highest authority in his party. His chickens are coming home to roost.

Gallant Rufus Choate.

On a pretty girl saying to Rufus Choate, "I am very sad-you see," he replied, "O, no; you belong to the old Jewish sect; you are very fair-I-see!"

Nothing adds so much to the beauty of a fair girl, as a clear, bright, healthy complexion, and to secure this pure blood is indispensible. So many of the so-called blood purifiers sold to improve a rough, pimply, muddy skin, only drive the scrofulous humors from the surface to some internal vital organ, and disease and death is the inevitable result. On the contrary, Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery strikes directly at the root of the evil, by driving the impurities entirely out of the system, and with a fresh stream of pure blood flowing through the veins, nothing but the softest and fairest of complexions can result.

When you go to buy Hood's Sarsaparilla be sure to get it. Don't be put off with an inferior substitute. Insistupon Hood's.

Flour in Sweden.

Mr. C. E. Sontum, the Christiana, Sweden, correspondent of the Canadian Grocer, writes: "I would be much obliged to you if you would put us in connection with one of the largest millers in Canada. The mills in Minneapolis, U.S. are represented here and their agents are selling large quantities of wheat flour. If a Canadian miller would send us samples we could soon inform them if they could compete." C. E. Sontum & Co. now represent the Canada Meat Packing Co., Johnston's Fluid Beef and Walker & Co.'s whiskeys, all Canadian firms.

Ask Your Friends About It.

Your distressing cough can be cured. We know it because Kemp's Balsam within the past few years has cured so many coughs and colds in this community. Its remarkable sale has been won entirely by its genuine merit. Ask some friend who has used it what he thinks of Kemp's Balsam. There is no medicine so pure, none so effective. Large bottles 50c and $1 at all druggists.

A Memorable Journey.

The Australian Drought.

Gilbert Parker, in Harper's Weekly.

A long day over an agonized plain have we travelled. "We" are the driver, my friend Hanna, the superintendent, a woman with a patient baby at the breast, a police-man, and two prisoners. Through two hundred miles of desert, without sleep, this mother held with weary arms the child—no, not all the time, for the superintendent had a heart and gentle arms. But at midnight we are come to Burke's Cave, a historic spot, sadly historic. For here began the bitter fate which dragged the valiant Burke and the faithful Wills to lonely graves, and gathered down a fruitful expedition to a tragic end.

And there nears us from the line of gray willows by a waterless river-bed a train of camels from some great company's station, driven by Arabs, and making for the entrepot far to the south. Our horses—warrigals they are called—scent the camels afar off, and they are wild; but we are nearing our breakfast station, and even the warrigals are affected by that satisfying proximity. Yet how can one eat? See, as the coach passes into a paddock, these panting, stricken, eyeless lambs! Fallen through starvation and weakness, the ravenous crows have picked out their eyes. They strew our path, and far to where the plain becomes one leaden gray are white spots innumerable—dead and dying sheep. It is numb despondency over which the carrion-crow croaks a hateful requiem. This is not the crow of the northern hemisphere. However it chances, this knave has caught from the sheep a cry like its own, only it is harsh and desolating. It is not the hearty "caw, caw," of the meadows under the Great Bear. Yesterday we saw scenes of misery, but we had grown into them gradually, and their horror did not touch us so. This morning it bursts upon us. We are in a great charnel house. Upon this barren land a plague of rabbits has descended, has spread, has swarmed ahead of the sheep, taken the place of the kangaroo and eaten clean the land of grass and salt-bush and edible scrub. Dire are the straits of this people, dire the needs of its enemies. Four, five, seven feet up the boles of the little trees have the rabbits climbed and eaten the bark. Here's food for a Darwin! and he chanced to know it: that rabbits should climb trees! How might not this faculty from necessity grow until it had all the capacities of the monkey!

High noon on the plains and a cloudy sky, and days after. Is it so that rain is coming? The darkness gathers in the horizon, grows, spreads, thickens. And now crack down the sky great wheels of thunder. What, Quin of Tarella, no joy at this! Here's plenty overhanging for your empty wells. You will not need to send your sheep travelling into No Man's Land if haply they may find food and water. But Quin of Tarella has no joy in his countenance. It is a bitter kind of irony that says "Wait." Turbulent, angry, ponderous grows the sky. There bursts a volcano of thunder like a crack in the universe, and then the storm falls on the world—a storm of wind!—only wind. It catches the earth, worries it, and shakes it, but that is all. Not a drop of rain! And for many and many a day the station hand will still chop down the limbs of the mulga-tree, that of its tonic leaves the sheep may eat and live. And for many a day the clouds will roll up and threaten, and then march in sardonic procession away, leaving not a track of moisture behind. And all the while the sheep have gone from grass to salt bush (in appearance like the alkali bush of the Arizona plains), and from salt-bush to the puntie, and peppermint and turpentine, the hop, the cotton, the gidja, and the dead-finish bushes, for their food. And these now are swaying in the wind, overswept by the withered grass, and bending to the sterile plain. And then suddenly the hot blast passes, the sky is clear again, and one looks through a palpable and palpitating area of heat, the fiery waves rolling in billows backward and forward. And now blessed relief! is a mountain afar, in a blue buoyancy! What sweet expanse may lie at its feet! But that is the mountain that the valiant Sturt saw as he fought his way into the heart of the continent in search of great inland seas. And he hurried to it—to look down upon not a river, not a sea, but a white quartz desolation. And from this mountain, at whose base we stand, we turn our eyes further westward, and we know that there is the Great Stony Desert, and there at Milparinka still lies a boat in which Sturt hoped to sail on his to-be-discovered seas. Amiable and indomitable soul! You sought refuge in a land of living death. For then it was that the tubes of the thermometer burst, that the soles were scorched from your shoes, that your finger nails broke like glass, that your hair ceased to grow, and the ink dried in the pen. Yet in that region where you wasted and despaired, men are living, working now—brave, defiant, conquering—and at what cost! "See here," said Quin of Tarella to me, "we are gambling with God." Ay, even that. For in the hope of one or two good years of flood in six or seven, those pioneers live there, and as far west as Mount Brown and Tibbooburra and Mount Poole, playing a desperate game with nature. Between rabbits and drought this western Land of the Golden Fleece fights a bitter fight.

It is a white dreary plain. There is a line of gums beside a feeble watercourse. Six wild horses—warrigals, or brombies, as they are called—have been driven down, corralled, and caught. They have fed on the leaves of the myall and stray bits of salt-bush. After a time they are got within the traces. They are all young, and they look not so bad. We start. They can scarcely be held in the first few miles. Then they begin to soak in perspiration. Another five miles, and they look drawn about the flanks, and what we thought was flesh is dripping from them. Another five, and the flesh is gone. The ribs show, the shoulders protude. Look! A poler's heels are knocking against the whiffle-trees. It is twenty miles now. There is a gulp in your throat as you see a wreck stagger out of the traces and stumble over the plain, head near the ground, and Death upon its back. There's no water in that direction, worn out creature! It comes upon you like a sudden blow—these horses are being driven to death. And why? Because it is cheaper to kill them on this stage of thirty miles than to feed them chaff at £30 a ton.

And now another sways. Look at the throbbing sides, the quivering limbs! He falls.

"Driver, for Heaven's sake, can't you see?"

"I do; so help my God I do! But we've go to get there. I'll let them out at another mile."

And you are an Anglo Saxon, and this is a christian land!

BETRAYED A GOVERNESS.

A BRITISH MEMBER OF PARLIAMENT ON TRIAL.

Miss Beckett Testifies As To the Circumstances of the Attempted Crime Which the Accused Vehemently Denies—Arranged in Bow-street Police Court.

LONDON, April 18.—Capt. Edmund H. Verney, Liberal member of Parliament, against whom a warrant was issued on the charge of having procured a girl for immoral purposes, was arrested to-day. At the time the charge was made against Verney he was traveling on the Continent. When he heard that the English court had issued a warrant for his arrest he telegraphed to the Home Secretary stating he would return to England as quickly as possible to meet the accusation. He reached London this morning and was immediately taken into custody by the police. Capt. Verney was taken to the Bow-street Police Court, where he was formally charged with attempting to procure Nellie Beckett, a governess, for immoral purposes. The prisoner looked pale and careworn and his appearance was so changed that it was impossible for friends to recognize him. Miss Beckett was present and detailed at length the tactics that had been adopted to inveigle her into wrongdoing. She said she was seeking a position to instruct children; that she watched the advertisements in the papers of people who wanted the services of a governess. She finally saw one which offered a position she thought would suit her, and she answered it. She received a reply with instructions to call at a certain house. She went to the place and saw the woman who had inserted the advertisement. After several interviews with this woman, who wanted her to go to Paris Miss Beckett finally consented to go to that city as a governess. When she reached Paris she was introduced to a man who went under the name of Wilson. At this point Capt. Verney was requested to stand up, and Miss Beckett formally identified him as the man who had been introduced to her as Wilson. Miss Beckett then described in detail the attempts that this man had made to ruin her. Miss Beckett said that when she refused to accede to Capt. Verney's solicitations the woman who had prevailed upon her to go to Paris, and who turned out to be a procuress named Madame Floreat, who had accompanied her to Paris, gave her $10 and her fare back from Paris to London. Miss Beckett then returned to London and shortly after her arrival she informed a doctor with whom she was acquainted of all the circumstances in the case. Miss Beckett afterwards, at the instance of her friends, entered into correspondence with Madame Floreat, and was readily able to bring about her arrest and conviction on the charge of procuring women for immoral purposes. The hearing of the case was adjourned until Friday next. Capt. Verney's bail was fixed at $5000, with two sureties in that amount, and the further bond of $2500 to be furnished by himself. The bail was furnished and the captain left court with his counsel and a number of friends.

PRIESTS MAY MARRY THERE.

But in Escaping Celibacy They Suffer Many Other Ills.

BERLIN, April 19.—Advices from Poland state that the Russian authorities are prosecuting with great bitterness the priesthood and members of the Greek united branch of the Roman Catholic Church. The priests of this branch are the only ecclesiastics in the Roman Catholic Church who are allowed to marry, this being a special privilege granted to them by the Pope. The Russian church is endeavoring to drive them into the Russian orthodox church, and many of the priests and their flocks have been exiled to Siberia, while others have been forcibly converted.

A NEW DIVORCE BILL.

To Be Modeled in Future After the Law in Vogue in Scotland.

LONDON, April 19.—Dr. Hunter's bill in the House of Commons to assimilate the law of England to the law of Scotland on the subject of divorce is generally approved and likely to pass the House. The bill provides that a wife may obtain divorce on the ground of her husband's infidelity, and that either husband or wife may obtain divorce after desertion for a period of four years. This removes the discrimination which has so long existed whereby a wife could not obtain a divorce for infidelity unless accompanied by cruelty, and it also gives the deserted husband or wife a chance to be free.

The struggle on the bill will come in the House of Lords, where the prelates have their seats as representatives of the Church of England, which grants divorce for but one cause.

Murder and Suicide in a Church.

VIENNA, April 18.—While services were being conducted in the cathedral at Vaisen yesterday a shoemaker in the congregation suddenly drew a revolver and shot the priest, who fell dead before the altar. The man next fired at an acolyte, but failed to wound him. He then shot himself dead. The motive assigned for the double crime is a desire for revenge owing to overpowering jealousy.

Raikes on the Defensive.

LONDON, April 19.—The House of Commons by a majority of 70 rejected the proposal to inquire into the working of the post-office. The motion was practically one of censure, and Postmaster-General Raikes defended the administration in a spirited manner.

Parnell on the Land Bill.

DUBLIN, April 19.—Mr. Parnell delivered a speech in Athlone on Saturday. He denounced Mr. McCarthy's opposition to the Land bill, which measure he asserted conferred great benefits on Irish farmers, and he expressed his pleasure at the defeat of the Opposition in the vote on the bill.

A Proposed Imperial Zollverein.

LONDON, April 19.—Sir John Macdonald and Minister Tupper of Canada have become vice-presidents of the United Empire Trade League, which proposes to establish an Imperial Zollverein.

King Leopold to Visit Canada.

QUEBEC, April 18.—In a letter to Hon. Charles Langelier, Provincial Secretary, Hon. Mr. Mercier says King Leopold declared himself delighted with the Premier's visit, and hoped that he would prolong his stay, as he wished to speak to him regarding Canada, for which he felt great admiration. The King said further that he hoped soon to visit the country.

Destructive Fire in Montreal.

MONTREAL, April 20.—The Canadian Pacific Railway cabinet shops in connection with their works in Delorimier-avenue are now burning and likely to be totally destroyed.

Arsenic in the Coffee.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., April 18.—From the effects of poison, taken at the Snooks-Herr wedding at Lyndon Wednesday evening, B. Frank Guthrie, one of the wealthiest and best known residents of Louisville, died this morning. Mrs. Guthrie and her sister, Mrs. Robert Gray, are down as victims of the same poison. The victims are suffering from arsenic poisoning and it is thought the drug was put in the coffee at the wedding dinner for the purpose of killing some one.

Suicide in a Cell.

BUFFALO, April 19.—Nellie Spaulding alias Jessie Gilman, who had been arrested for drunkenness, committed suicide in her cell Saturday. The dead woman was born at Watertown, Jefferson County, N.Y., March 17, 1869. She was a widow, and leaves a beautiful little daughter about 5 years of age.

A RIOT IN THE RING.

A Circus and Wild West Show Wrecked by a Mob at Knoxville, Tenn.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., April 19.—A circus and wild west show which came to this city last Monday has gone, and in future will leave this city off its route. Thursday night the large audience which was presen began to jeer some of the performers. Finally a clown mounted a block and began singing a song. He had sung one verse when some one hit him square in the face with a brickbat. He fell senseless to the ground and was dragged away by his companions. By this time everything was in an uproar, women screamed and a mad rush for the exits was made. The police were powerless. Scores were knocked down and trampled on. Everything in sight was seized and wrecked. The band instruments were smashed flat. The seats were torn down and broken. Some one cut the ropes and the big tent came down with a rush, burying 200 or more people in its folds. A rush was then made for the dressing rooms, which were also torn down, leaving the actors and actresses half dressed in the open air. The side shows were next attacked and wrecked. After wrecking everything in sight the crowd went away. Some 20 people were hurt.

One of the Same Kind.

BUFFALO, April 19.—In the first part of last June the Scandia Bank of Minneapolis, Minn., was robbed of $4500 by one of its trusted employes and yesterday morning Detective Donovan arrested the thief, a man named Charles Benson. Benson was a bookkeeper for the Scandia Bank and was obliged to work late at night. One night as he was putting his books into the vault he came across a large roll of greenbacks. The temptation was too strong for him to resist and he shoved the money into his pocket. He then left the bank and the day after he disappeared. He came to Buffalo soon afterwards and opened a department store in Niagara-street.

Found Dead by the Roadside.

BOBCAYGEON, April 19.—The corpse of Elijah Brock, an old man belonging to Harvey, was found on the roadside near here. He had been deranged for some time. Brock had apparently been walking along near the fence, and coming on to a piece of ice that had been undermined, it broke with him, throwing him on his face, and being in an exhausted condition he dropped off into his final sleep.

An Awful Crime Charged to a Father.

TILSONBURG, April 19.—Solomon Parker has been committed for trial on the awful charge of having committed rape on the person of his own daughter, Victoria Parker. The offence is alleged to have been committed in May, 1886, and it is alleged that he has maintained an improper and unnatural relationship with her since. The daughter, who is the chief witness, was also sent to jail, not being able to furnish security for her appearance when called on.

"An Old Maid" Hangs Herself.

HAMILTON, April 19.—Fanny Robb, an old maid, who lives with her brother and sister a mile from Ancaster village, committed suicide by hanging at 12 o'clock to-day. She was found hanging in the barn by her sister. No cause is assigned for the rash act.

Found His Dead Body.

MONTREAL, April 19.—The body of Swenson, the Swedish watchmaker, who so mysteriously disappeared last winter, was found to-day in the bush. All his jewelry was found upon him and he is supposed to have perished with cold.

A Female Clergyman.

PROVIDENCE, R.I., April 19.—In Bell-street chapel to-day Mrs. Anna Garlan Specer was ordained to the ministry and installed over the society worshipping there. The ordination ceremony was in accordance with a vote of the society.

His Exit Like Shamus O'Brien's.

BALTIMORE, April 19.—William Blaney, convicted of the murder of his grandmother and aunt, escaped from jail Friday. Gov. Jackson the previous day appointed the day for his execution and the death watch had not yet been set. He was recaptured yesterday.

Killed By a Spider's Bite.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., April 19.—A 6-year-old boy named McKinney Alexander has died in Sebastian county from the bite of a spider. The lad was bitten on the arm and lingered three or four days in great suffering.

Sold for $92,000.

HAMILTON, April 19.—The premises and plant of the Hamilton Electric Light Company have passed into the hands of the syndicate composed of Hamilton, Toronto and Montreal capitalists. It is understood that the price agreed upon is $92,000.

Choked to Death by a Pencil.

WARWICK, Ont., April 19.—Allen, the 3-year old son of John Williamson, fourth-line west, was choked to death by swallowing a clay pencil.

Escape of a Smallpox Patient.

WINDSOR, April 19.—On Wednesday Shelson, the smallpox patient at Blythewood, escaped from quarantine and next day a telegram was received from the health officer at Sarnia stating that Shelson was under arrest there and that his face was covered with the marks of the disease. Killed in a Sawmill.

MAXVILLE, Ont., April 19.—John McRae, the 16-year-old son of Peter McRae, entered McDougall's sawmill to get a bag full of saw dust. He carelessly threw the bag down near a part of the revolving machinery, in which it became entangled, and in trying to disengage it he was pulled into the wheel, which was moving with terrific speed. The poor fellow's arm was torn from the body and about half an hour after he was taken out he died.

For Love He Fought; For Love He May Die.

NEW YORK, April 19.—Two Brooklyn young men, Bremar Kriede and George Fliberger, being rivals for the affection in one young lady, agreed to-day to fight it out. Fliberger was knocked out in the first round with such vigor that he is now in the hospital suffering from shock and concussion. Kriede was arrested.

HISTORY REPEATS ITSELF.

in wall paper as in everything else, once in about every ten years.

It is not ten years ago though since the "fad" of papering ceilings was all the rage, nor was it five years ago! Yet this season there is a very strong demand for ceiling papers and decorations, and we firmly believe that papered ceilings will always be fashionable.

* * *

How do we know?

We'll tell you.

Economy and common sense have done it.

The world of fashion produces periodically a "fad" and if it receives "official recognition" from some fashion leader, it is considered "quite the proper thing" by the votaries of fashion and a craze ensues.

* * *

Fashion dictates more severely and draws finer lines in the matter of decoration than in anything else under her sway, and it sometimes happens that some of her "whims" become permanencies or "things of beauty and a joy forever." Economy is the great factor that transforms what was once a "fleeting fancy" into a permanent reality and that's where common sense steps in.

Although the craze of papering ceilings died out for awhile, it has returned again, not as a craze, but as a good big morsel of hard common sense, and it has come to stay. It's admitted superiority over every other style of ceiling decoration, both in attractiveness and ECONOMY has forced "fashion" to the wall for once and in spite of herself she "returns to her first love," thus waiving the formality of waiting the allotted decade for "History to repeat itself."

Try and remember that economy and common sense have done this - for where can you find a better field for decoration in your whole house than a ceiling presents?

Please make a note of this.

The Belleville Hospital

Annual Report of the Institution by Inspector Christie.

From the 21st annual report (being for year ending 30th Sept, 1890) of the Inspector of Prisons, Public Charity Institutions and Hospitals, we gather the following in reference to the Belleville Hospital:

MOVEMENT OF PATIENTS.

No. under treatment 1st Oct.,	6
Admitted during year	131
Died during year	13
Under treatment 30th Sept., 1890	10
Admitted from the city	97
Admitted from the county	34
Admitted from other counties	6
Total for the year	137

Of those admitted 85 were males and 52 females. Of nationalities 55 were Canadians 27 English, 29 Irish, 13 Scotch, 6 United States and 7 other countries; 92 were Protestants and 45 were Roman Catholics. During the year 7 cases of typhoid fever were treated.

REVENUE.

From Province of Ontario	$1 041 12
" City of Belleville	384 00
" County of Hastings	45 25
" Patients, for maintenance and treatment	882 80
Subscriptions, donations and bequests from private individuals	1,455 53
From other sources	122 13
Total	$3,930 83

Supplementary do., 376 days at 10cts.	376 20
Allowance for improper cases for Hospital treatment 130 days at 7 cents	9 10
Total	$1,137 70

The report of Mr. Christie concludes as follows:—"I made an inspection of the Belleville Hospital on the 21st Feb'y, and saw 14 patients there under treatment. The hospital was in excellent order, scrupulously clean and neat, and there was every evidence of strict attendance on the part of the superintendent and her assistants. The books were found to be properly kept, and the routine work of the institution was being carried on most satisfactorily."

Missionaries Needed at Home.

We must not send all our missionaries to China and other far off "heathen lands." There is need of such agencies nearer home. All the farmers and gardeners who sell produce on Belleville market are not christians, in the sense that term is used and respected. Not long ago a lady bought a bag of potatoes from an honest looking specimen of bucolic nobility. She paid the granger the price he asked for the tubers and instructed him to leave them with Mr. Potter. When this honest hayseed emptied the potatoes into a box as directed, he informed Mr. Potter that the lady had not paid for them, and that she would pay him (Potter) when she called for them. The name of the purchaser being given, Mr. Potter had no objection to paying the price, and then the horny-handed son of toil complacently hitched up his nags and started for his home "away back." He no doubt frequently congratulated himself on his smartness, but he may find these congratulations premature. Mr. P. thinks he can identify the rogue, and if he finds him here again he will make him return the money dishonestly obtained, or take the consequences. We have heard of several other cases in which confiding market purchasers have been cheated and deceived. Had we not better concentrate our missionary labors nearer home? Evidently the "golden rule" is not always employed in measuring men's conduct, even in the midst of churches and preachers.

An Unsanitary Spot

The Commons north of the Institution is made a nuisance ground. Is this by the instruction of proper authorities? Not only are loads of night soil deposited there, but all sorts of dead animals, from cats to horses, are carted thither, and left exposed to the hot sun, to putrify and pollute the air for miles around. This ground is only a short distance west of the corporation limits, and such a combination of decaying matter must jeopardise the health of residents of that part of the city. The dead carcasses should be buried, wherever they are deposited. The weather will soon be hot enough to create unsavory odors in that quarter.

Vagrant Cows.

No sooner does the green grass show itself above ground than vagrant bovines begin their diurnal and nocturnal perambulations over the vacant lots and waste places about the city suburbs. This, of itself, is not so objectionable to residents of the localities as the mischievous habits said bovines have of tramping over boulevarded fronts and destroying shade trees. They seem to find much satisfaction in leisurely inspecting the improvements citizens try to make about their premises. At this season of the year, when the ground is soft, they are not long in converting a grass plot into a mud hole.

"Lost in New York."

Manager Tammadge has secured for his patrons a genuine dramatic novelty in "Lost in New York," which will be produced at the opera house next Friday and Saturday, and at a Saturday matinee. A river of real water containing many thousands of gallons, a genuine steamboat that runs at full speed under a full head of steam and a prismatic fountain are among the realistic features of the production. A car load of scenery and the original New York company are promised by the management. Seats are now on sale at Riggs' music store. Prices only 25, 50 and 75c. Remember the family matinee Saturday.

The Str. Hero.

The steamer Hero arrived here on Saturday evening from Kingston, and yesterday a large number of persons visited the wharf for the purpose of viewing her. During the winter she was given a thorough overhauling and improvements were made. Her wheels were enlarged, which is expected to add greatly to her speed. The officers in command are: Capt., W. Bloomfield; mate, Gilbert Johnston; purser, W. B. Thompson; engineer, J. Hickey; steward, Jas. Tilton.

A Cure for Constipation Headache.

Dr. Silas Lane, while in the Rocky Mountains, discovered a root that when combined with other herbs, makes an easy and certain cure for constipation. It is in the form of dry roots and leaves, and is known as Lane's Family Medicine. It will cure sick-headache and is the best spring Medicine. For the blood, liver and kidneys, and for clearing up the complexion it does wonders. Druggists sell it at 50c and $1 a package.

Gorton's Minstrels.

The Gorton minstrel troupe arrived in the city this morning, and at noon paraded to the corner of Bridge and Front street, where they rendered a number of selections to the admiration of the large numbers who assembled to hear them. This evening the band will give a concert in front of the Opera House before the entertainment commences.

Conservatory of Music.

At the quarterly concert, given in Toronto on Saturday evening, Miss Ethelind G. Thomas, A.T.C.M, gave a violin solo, andante from E minor concerto, op 64, by Mendelssohn.

THE COLBORNE SHOOTING CASE.

A Young Farmer arrested on Suspicion of Being the Guilty Party

Annoying a Young Lady.

A Colborne despatch says: Rumors of arrests in connection with the shot fired from the woods into Miss Emily Spilsbury's horse on her way home from this city on Saturday last culminated in the arrest of one James T. Peters, farmer of Cramahe township, and a neighbor of the Spilsburys. Yesterday Miss Spilsbury, who was driving with her nephew when the horse was shot, consulted Mr. W. L. Payne and swore out an information before Henry Hicks, Reeve, charging James T. Peters, and unmarried man of about 32 years of age, with having "feloniously shot one horse, the property of the complainant, with intent thereby to kill said horse, on Saturday, the 11th day of April, at the township of Cramahe." The magistrate issued a warrant for Peters' arrest, which was executed by County Constable Reives, and this morning Peters was brought before H. Hicks, reeve, and the proceedings adjourned until 2 p.m. At 2 o'clock the reeve appeared as sisted by Justices Alger and Winn. Mr. W. L. Payne appeared as counsel for the prosecutrix, and Mr. F. M. Field for Peters. The Council Chamber was crowded with spectators. The prisoner pleaded not guilty, and Miss Spilsbury being sworn deposed to a series of annoyances she had suffered, particularly during the winter, which she sought to attribute to Peters, who was employed by her father during December and January. One letter signed by Peters was put in, and a letter in which the characters were printed, and having no signature, was also put in, subject to objections by Peters' counsel. The last letter contained some peculiar threats and advice, but it did not appear to have been written by Peters. It was found in the keyhole of the door, and was dated February 2nd, 1891. Miss Spilsbury saw no one when the shot was fired, but heard a loud report from the woods to the right side of the road, and the horse jumped and then went on all right across the G. T. R. track, but on examining it at home she found it in pain and wounded with shot in the head, neck, shoulder and forelegs. Mrs. Hinds, a sister of the complainant, who is visiting at Mr. Spilsbury's place, was also sworn, but gave no evidence of any importance. The counsel for the prosecution not being ready with any further evidence, an adjournment was had till to-morrow morning at 10 o'clock.

So far there has not been the slightest evidence to substantiate the charge against Mr. Peters. He is the son of Wm. Peters, a highly respected farmer, and has always been known as a sober and industrious young man.

COLBORNE, Ont., April 19.—The trial of Joseph T. Peters in connection with the Spilsbury horse shooting case was concluded on Saturday and resulted in his being committed to stand his trial at the Cobourg Assizes. Bail was accepted.

To the Editor of the Intelligencer.

MR. EDITOR,—There is a subject, which is of the greatest importance to wage earners, that has not been written up in the newspapers as much as its importance demands. I refer to the subject of saving small amounts of money and making these amounts earn more money.

Perhaps the system that is most easily accessible to all who have a knowledge of its working, is that system of co-operation called Building and Loan Associations.

The attention of the writer was called to an article upon this subject in Scribner's Magazine for June, 1889, and being greatly interested, he has taken particular pains to acquaint himself with the methods of these associations.

This system originated in Birmingham, Eng., in 1781, and its complete success as a means of saving is demonstrated by the fact that there are at present between 3,000 and 5,000 of these co-operative organizations in the United States, with a constant investment of $300,000,000, while the accumulation under this plan of saving during the last forty years has amounted to from $500,000,000 to $750,000,000.

Their plan of operations is as follows:

A number of persons who can pay a small amount per month, ranging from 60 cents upwards to a certain limit, agree to pool their funds every month and lend the amount thus raised to any one of their number, who wishes to either build a house, pay off a mortgage on any property he already owns, or pay any other obligation on the very easy condition, that security be given for the amount advanced to him. The great secret of the success of this system is that the funds are all compounded monthly. Money compounded, even at as long intervals as yearly, earns amounts incredible to all but mathematicians, but to compound monthly 12 times a year, produces results quite startling to the novice.

The value of the shares of an association is usually $100, and a member will pay monthly 60 cents per share until the profits mature his shares, which in an association loaning its funds at once, occurs in about seven years.

Most associations charge for entrance fee $1 per share to pay expenses, which are small, and are limited by Act of Parliament and thus render the shares non-assessable.

The funds accumulated are loaned to members only, at usually 5 or 6 per cent. interest and a premium for the use of the money.

To give an example of the profit of ten shares to a non borrowing member the matured value of which is $1,000: I can save easily $6 per month, which is the amount required to pay monthly for 10 shares at 60 cents per share My entrance fee is $1 per share, making my payments to an Association maturing in 7 years or 84 months $514, yielding me in 7 years $1,000, or the handsome profit of $486. This, under any other system but compounding my $6 monthly, would be impossible, and is only made possible by the union of many small amounts with mine, which can be invested at once; and it has been proved by experience that the applications for loans in these Associations are nearly always in excess of the funds to be loaned. Suppose, on the other hand, that I am a borrowing member. I have a lot of land valued at $200, upon which I wish to build a house costing say $1,000. I pay my entrance fee of $1 each on ten shares, $10, and receive $1,000 to build my house and repay $6 per month for 84 months, $504; interest at 6% on $1,000 for 7 years or 84 months, that is to say, $5 per month, $420; premium 40c. per share per month, or in 7 years $336; making my total payments $1,270, or $270 more than the amount I borrowed, being $38.58 per annum on a loan of $1,000, or $3,85 per cent. per annum on my loan.

This money I never could have borrowed from any other than my Association, as they have inquired into my circumstances and ability to pay and my moral character, and have only paid over the money as the work progresses, that is to say one-third of the $1,000 when the walls are up, one-third when the roof is on and one-third when finished, being thus enabled to lend close to the value of the finished house. I can now move into my house and make myself my own landlord, as what I formerly paid in rent, with a small addisional sum, pays my dues to the Association of which I am a member, and in seven years my dues are all paid and my house is my own.

Whereas had I borrowed the $1,000 from any other source, payable in seven years with interest at the same rate of 3.85 per cent, which is about half of what I could borrow $1,000 for, after seven years I would only have paid interest, with the principal sum of $1,000 yet to pay.

Now, Mr. Editor, I hope your readers have gone over these figures and proved them to their own satifaction, and they will admit with me that this $6 per month which I feel obliged to pay every month and have thereby saved and not thrown away, as would have been the case in all probability without this incentive to save, has been a most profitable investment.

Yours, &c.,
MATHEMATICIAN.

Hops.

There has been a little more enquiry from brewers and several sales have been made in the country at equal to 30c, 33c and 34c, laid down here. For choice Canadian the market is somewhat firmer in tone in sympathy with outside advices. One lot said to be of very good quality sold at equal to 31½c laid down here. The volume of business however is small, brewers running chiefly on foreign qualities which they bought last fall. We quote 32c to 35c for choice, 20c to 23c for 1889, and 7c to 10c for old.—Montreal Trade Bulletin.

The Empress of India.

PICTON, April 19.—The steamer Empress of India was launched from A. W. Hepburn's shipyard to-day. Her hull has been rebuilt, and everything that first class mechanical skill could suggest has been done to make her staunch and seaworthy. Her saloons, cabins, etc. have been thoroughly overhauled. The comfort of the travelling public has been uppermost in the mind of the management, leaving nothing to be desired by the most fastidious. She will resume her regular trips about the first of May.

"I Have Had

Rheumatism for years, and Nerviline is the only remedy that has done me any good." So writes Thomas McGlashan, North Pelham, July 24, 1890, and his testimony is supported by thousands of others who have experienced the wonderful penetrating and pain subduing power of Nerviline—the great nerve pain cure. Nerviline is just as good to take as to rub on, and is the best family remedy in the world. Nerviline is sold by dealers everywhere.

Fire at Campbellford

CAMPBELLFORD, April 20.—A fire occurred here this morning in J. Sullivan's house on Rear street. Damage about six hundred dollars. Insured in Agricultural Co. for one thousand dollars. If it had not been for the water works and the firemen this, as well as the adjoining ones, would have been destroyed.

A FRIGHTFUL WRECK.

MANY KILLED IN A LAKE SHORE COLLISION.

Six Postal Clerks and Two Engineers Among the Dead—The Passengers all Received a Shaking up but Escaped Serious Injury.

CLEVELAND, O., April 18.—A frightful wreck occurred on the Lake Shore Railroad at Kipton Station, 40 miles west of Cleveland, early this evening, in which six postal clerks and two engineers were killed. Fast mail No. 14 bound east collided with No. 21, the Toledo express, just as the latter train was about to pull on the siding to let the fast mail pass. The fast mail was running at full speed and the force of the collision was so great that both engines, three mail cars and one baggage car were completely wrecked.

List of the Killed.

EDWARD BROWN, engineer of No. 21, Toledo.
CHARLES TOPLIFF, engineer of No. 14, Toledo.
F. J. NUGENT, postal clerk, Toledo.
CHARLES HAMMILL, postal clerk, Elyria.
F. F. CLEMENS, postal clerk, Cleveland.
JOHN F. BOWERFINE, postal clerk, Elyria.
JAMES McKINLEY, postal clerk, Conneaut, O.
C. H. McDOWELL, postal clerk, Elyria.

The injured include Staley, fireman of No. 14, shoulder dislocated and leg broken, and Danzig, son of section foreman, struck by wreckage and badly hurt. None of the passenger cars left the track and none of the passengers received serious injuries. The scene at the wreck is indescribable. Iron rods, splintered fragments of lumber and debris of mail are scattered in all directions.

The accident was due to a conflict of orders. A despatch was sent that the trains should meet at Oberlin, seven miles east, and almost immediately it was followed by another announcing Kipton as the meeting place, but the latter was too late. No. 21 had come almost to a standstill when the collision occurred, while the other train was running at the rate of 40 miles an hour. The track was cleared some two hours after and the passengers on train 14 brought to this city.

The bodies of the dead were horribly mangled. Limbs were torn off and the bodies crushed out of almost all semblance to human beings. The accident is the most frightful that ever happened on the division of the Lake Shore road and the first serious disaster to the fast mail.

Remained At His Post.

Charles Topliff, the engineer of the fast mail, remained bravely at his post and was found with his hand on the throttle, dead. His hands and face were so badly scalded that the blackened flesh dropped from the bones when his body was taken out. Fireman Staley of the fast mail jumped from the train and escaped with a broken leg and dislocated shoulder. The doctors said he would recover. The poor postal clerks had not a chance to escape. They were caged like rats, and the telescoping of the cars crushed the life out of them without a moment's warning.

It is difficult to locate the blame for the accident, as both the engineers are dead. It is said, however, that No. 21 was ordered to stop at Oberlin but went on to Kipton and had not sufficient time to make the side track.

A Tramp Killed.

VICENNES, Ind., April 19.—A wreck occurred on the Ohio & Mississippi Railroad last night, when Nos. 1 and 2 lightning express trains collided. The passengers of both trains were badly shaken up, but none were seriously injured. A tramp who was stealing a ride on No. 2 was killed. Two mail clerks were injured.

TORONTO TOPICS.

Election Petitions—Absconding Boodlers Caught—A Contractor's Death.

TORONTO, April 20.—John Elliott, the senior member in the firm of Elliott & Neelon, who have the contract for the masonry work on the new civic buildings, died at his residence in Spadina-avenue on Saturday morning. Mr. Elliott was born in Yorkshire in 1822, and came to this country in 1843. He was one of the best known and most extensive contractors in Canada, and among other contracts he erected the post-office, Lieutenant-Governor's residence, custom house and central prison in this city, the county buildings at Brantford, and the Parliament buildings at Quebec.

Three election protests were filed this morning against the return of Conservatives. The members protested are W. F. Roome, West Middlesex; J. H. Marshall, East Middlesex, and Col. Tisdale, South Norfolk.

There are two very mad women in the Albion Hotel and two very disconsolate Yankee sports behind the bars at Police Headquarters. This is how it came about. On Saturday evening at 7.30 Detective Inspector Stark received a telegram from the chief of police of Cleveland asking him to locate and arrest if possible two men named Joseph H. Du Broy and Louis M. O'Dell of that city, wanted on a charge of grand larceny. Detectives McGrath and John Cuddy were detailed to get on the trail, and it was not long before the men were traced to the Albion. There it was found that they had registed as L. M. Howard and J. H. Driggs, and were accompanied by their wives.

The hunt was kept up until 12 o'clock when the officers discovered that Du Broy and O'Dell had spent Saturday night in one of the leading hotels up town, and after breakfast had hired a cab and driven east. They were followed step by step along Queen-street east until the officers sighted the cab and their men near Greenwood's side line. They were in a cab as well as the strangers, and by putting on a spurt soon came alongside. With their hands on their revolvers Cuddy and Porter stopped the other carriage, and scrambling in made prisoners of the two occupants before they had time to recover

On Du Broy was found $1000 in American bills, a receipt for $500 paid to Charles Korman for his tobacco store, 386½ Yonge-street, four gold watches and two diamond rings. O'Dell had a few dollars on him, but to all appearance it seemed Du Broy was cashier. The story of the crime for which the men were arrested has some peculiar features. Du Broy was a clerk in the Euclid-avenue National Bank of Cleveland. On Tuesday of last week he was given $2000 to express to a western firm. Instead of doing so he kept the package, and with O'Dell, O'Dell's wife and O'Dell's wife's sister skipped for Canada. Miss McNera, the sister-in-law, was engaged to be married to Du Broy's brother, but she forsook him for Du Broy, whom she married in Windsor on the Wednesday succeeding the theft. This little bit of business accomplished, the party came on to Toronto, arriving here on Thursday and putting up at the Albion.

ALGOMA NOMINATIONS.

Both Parties Nominate Residents of Port Arthur—Carling Not to Run.

SAULT STE. MARIE, April 19.—The nomination of candidates to contest Algoma for a seat in the House of Commons took place yesterday. George H. Macdonell of Port Arthur was nominated by the Conservatives and D. F. Burke of the same place by the Liberals. There was a large attendance of electors from all parts of Eastern Algoma.

The Riots at Bradford.

BRADFORD, Eng., April 18.—The striking weavers held an immense mass meeting to-day. It had been previously announced. The speakers addressed the crowd from three platforms, which had been erected in different parts of the Town Hall Square. Resolutions were adopted protesting against the action of the municipal authorities in forbidding meetings of the strikers. The assembly was quite orderly.

Piano Sharps.

An Old Acquaintance in a New Role.

The London correspondent of the Empire telegraphed on the 18th: "Piano sharpers are believed to be operating in this neighborhood. They call themselves the Dominion Piano Company, of Peterboro'. Enquiries at Peterboro' elicit the information that no such company exists. A Middlesex farmer named Dicey is one of the latest alleged victims. The agents stated that they were about to commence a personal canvass of the neighborhood and would like to have a sample piano placed in the farmer's house. This piano would be the farmer's property as soon as four instruments were sold in the neighborhood. This was agreed to and the farmer was asked to sign his name and address to a form presented by the agent. A short time afterwards two other men left the piano and demanded $480 in payment, showing the farmer's signature to an order for the instrument. The chief agent, who does the talking, gave his name as Charles Butler, and is about 33 years old. Reports of their operations in several places between this city and Windsor have been received. It is believed they are the same people who so successfully worked the farmers in Eastern Ontario near Belleville last spring."

SUPPOSED MURDER.

Two Men Quarrel in Hamilton and One of Them is Found Dead in Bed at Winona.

HAMILTON, April 19.—T. J. Woods and William Foster, two young men from Winona, came to Hamilton on Saturday morning, and after drinking considerable got into a quarrel in Roache's Hotel, near the station. The quarrel started over paying a boy for carrying a valise. After the fight Foster went back to Winona on the 5 o'clock train and Woods returned on a later one. This morning Foster was found dead in his bed. He has a nasty bruise on the side of his head and suspicion points strongly to Woods, with whom he had the quarrel. Woods is a farm hand and has lived in Winona for a long time, while Foster, known as "Yankee Foster," has been in Winona only a few days, coming, it is said, from the States. Woods has been arrested and an inquest will be held to-morrow.

TORONTO TRUTH'S New Spring Bible Competition

NO. 22.

In these latter days there have arisen many false schemes and many scores of imitations of TRUTH'S Competitions, but one after another have failed and utterly perished, yet TRUTH remains, and makes good all its promises. Its reputation is now too well established to risk damaging it, and as it has cost a very large amount of money and many years of care and labor to build up, the publisher could not afford to fail in carrying out all his agreements to the letter. There are twenty-one divisions of the largest list of bona fide prizes ever offered and ever actually given away by any publisher in the world. The total value of prizes in this Spring list is about $10,000,00. The lists are so large it would cost altogether too much to give them in detail here. There are pianoes, gold and silver watches, china tea and dinner sets, ladies' and gentlemen's bicycles, silver tea-sets, silk dresses, books, money, and hundreds of other valuable rewards. You pay nothing for these prizes, as everyone concedes that full value is received for the dollar in securing TRUTH every week for three months. Send one dollar and answers to the five following questions: Where in the Bible are these words found? 1, GRAIN; 2, CORN; 3, WHEAT; 4, BARLEY; 5, RYE. If your answers are correct and your letters arrive in time you are almost sure to get a reward, as there are so many and every one cannot always find correct answers to all these questions. All the five answers must be correct to get any prize, but you will get full value for the dollar in TRUTH if you don't get anything else. If you want to see the list of rewards before sending in your dollar, mail TRUTH ten cents and a copy will be sent you containing the list of prizes. But there have been very few dissatisfied prize-winners in previous competitions, considering that he has given away durin the past eight years scores of thousands of prizes. Some people expect a piano for every dollar sent, and are mad if they don't get it. He wishes it were possible to give every subscriber a gold watch or a piano or both, but says it can't be done. Some publishers intimate they will, but nobody can do it for any length of time. Send one dollar and correct answers and you won't repent it; and bear in mind that it is not guaranteed that every body whose answers are correct will get a prize, but that all the prizes in the twenty-one different lists will be given away. The competition remains open only till the last day of June next, inclusive, after which the prizes will be immediately distributed to the successful ones. Ten days will be allowed for letters to reach TRUTH from distant points after the 30th of June. All, however, must be postmarked where mailed not later than the 30th June, or any time between now and that date. Address S. Frank Wilson, "Truth" Office, Toronto, Ont., Canada.

This matter is changed daily.

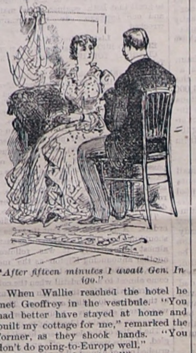
CHAPTER XIII.

HOW HER BROTHER WAS PUNISHED.



"After fifteen minutes I await Gen. Inigo."

When Wallie reached the hotel he met Geoffrey in the vestibule. "You had better have stayed at home and built my cottage for me," remarked the former, as they shook hands. "You don't do going-to-Europe well."

"I have something to tell"—

"I know all about it. I've been chatting with the lady the last hour. I'm disappointed in you. You should have married her first, and she would have left the stage of her own accord afterward."

"That was not the question. But how did you know"—

"That you wanted to marry her? I am only mad north-northeast. When the wind is in the south * * * But she's too good for you."

"The point is, that she is the daughter"—

"Great Scott! Do you mean to say you didn't know who she is?"

"Did you?"

"I? Of course. I knew the other one, in the first place. But didn't she tell you?"

"Do you suppose," said Geoffrey gravely, "that I would have gone to Europe if I had known that the man whom I saw * * * that there was all that mystery about, was her own father?"

Wallie stared at his friend a moment and then laughed. "This is very sad," said he. "And, if I am not mistaken, you were with me that day when Randolph came in and gave himself away—However! What are you going to do?"

"The real Marana is here, or rather, at the Albemarle. I want to know what she is going to do. She may decide to make trouble."

"There is one obstacle in her way, fortunately."

"What?"

"Well, it would be awkward for her to prosecute the sister of her lover."

"He is her lover only in the sense that he wants to marry her."

"What about that hundred thousand dollars he got rid of?"

"It is as I say, nevertheless." And Geoffrey gave his friend a synopsis of what Helwise had told him on the subject.

"In that case there is all the more reason for her to keep quiet," said Wallie.

"Then why did she come to America?" Geoffrey inquired.

"Have you seen her on the subject?"

"I have had no opportunity yet."

"Well, leave it to me. You are not a diplomatist. This young Randolph has got himself in a nice position! If Miss Beatrix was not his sister, or if Marana were not his lady love, he could take a hand on one side or the other; but as it is he's helpless both ways. I should think he would feel tired. What sort of a fellow is he?"

"He seemed well enough the little I've seen of him."

"I see; you think of him as your future brother-in-law," said Wallie smiling, "But don't be too comfortable. That young lady is not to be played fast and loose with."

"Oh, I'm not comfortable!" said Geoffrey gloomily.

"Well, I won't hit you while you're down, but if you get up again, look out! Where is this young scamp?"

"Up stairs, I believe, with his father."

"I'll have a hack at him, to begin with. You may as well keep yourself to yourself until you hear from me again. We can't afford any more blunders."

He sent up his card, and was conducted to the room where the Randolphs, father and son, were. The latter was walking up and down the floor, while the former stood with his back to the fire, looking as high shouldered and dignified as possible.

"I am here," said Wallie pleasantly, after the formalities were over, "unofficially, on behalf of the lady who has been singing the past season under the name of Mlle. Marana."

"Mr. Dinsmore," said Randolph, Sr., twisting his eyebrow sternly, "you are perhaps not aware that the lady is under my especial charge."

"I have known for some months that she is your daugnter, Mr. Randolph, but no one is aware that she is under your especial charge."

"I do not understand you, sir!" said Mr. Randolph fiercely.

"You told me several weeks ago, in the presence of my friend Bellingham, who remembers it, that you had but the slightest acquaintance with her. And your charge of her has amounted to so little that she has today come to me, who had no right to expect such an honor, for counsel and protection."

This was said quietly, but with a certain warmth and emphasis that abashed Mr. Randolph a good deal He turned red, and opened his mouth once or twice, as though to speak, but no words came.

Hereupon Edward Randolph put in his oar. "Whatever may have been my sister's position before my arrival, sir," said he, "it's another thing now. I'll look out for her."

"If you do it will be but a tardy return for the services she has rendered you during the last few months," returned Wallie, with a peculiar brightness in his gray eyes.

"I don't recognize your right to meddle in our family affairs," cried Ed angrily.

"Your family affairs are liable to be public property before long. I intend for the sake of Miss Randolph to prevent it if possible," said Wallie composedly.

"Perhaps Mr. Dinsmore will explain himself," suggested Randolph, senior, in a less defiant tone.

"I wish to find out from you, before resorting to other means, whether Mlle. Marana means to take measures to assert any rights she may believe herself to have in this matter," answered Wallie, fixing his eyes on Ed.

Ed looked at his father, but made no reply.

"And in case she does," Wallie resumed, "I wish to know whether you, Mr. Edward, intend to act with her or against her?"

"He will act against her; I will answer for that!" put in Randolph, senior, with decision.

"I prefer to answer for myself, sir!" retorted Ed, frowning upon his parent.

"Answer for yourself, sir?" repeated the older gentleman excitedly. "You'll have enough to answer for then, I can assure you! You will have to answer for the fortune that you have dissipated, sir—a fortune which belonged to you no more than it does to this gentleman here present. Where would you be, I should like to know, if your sister—your sister, who had never before been out of her father's house—had not paid your dissolute debts with the money which she earned with her own hands—voice, I mean—sir? How is a good for nothing fellow who robs his father of money to spend on a loose woman, and lets himself be supported by his sister"—

Spring Cleaning.

Be particular every Spring to clean the house, but never mind cleansing the blood, until some troublesome disease takes hold of you. This is poor policy when by using Burdock Blood Bitters the blood will be thoroughly cleansed, the body strengthened, and future suffering prevented,

Now Free From Pain.

DEAR SIRS—I have been troubled with Lame Back for six months, and thought I would try Hagyard's Yellow Oil, which cured me. Am now free am all pains, and recommend Yellow Oil very highly.

AS PARMELEE'S VEGETABLE PILLS contain Mandrake and Dandelion, they cure Kidney and Liver complaints with unerring certainty. They also contain Roots and Herbs which have specific virtues truly wonderful in their action on the stomach and bowels. Mr. E. A. Cairncross Shakespeare, writes : "I consider Parmelee's Pills are an excellent remedy for Biliousness and Derangement of the Liver, having used them myself for some time."

—Pertman—What's the trouble in your church? Van Leer—Why, its all due to Miss Filkins being cross-eyed. She undertook to throw sheep's eyes at the young minister and they focussed on the tenor. He swears he'll resign unless she's put out of the church.

A lady writes : "I was able to remove the the corns, root and branch, by the use of Holloway's Corn Cure." Others who have tried it have the same experience.

—Be content with your lot. The chances are nine to one that the fellow who owns the next lot to you has a bigger mortgage on it.

BRITISH AND AMERICAN.

PORTUGAL CREATING TROUBLE IN SOUTH AFRICA AGAIN.

Additional News from Manipur—Justin McCarthy's Sunday Theatre—Starvation in Ireland Owing to the Failure to Grow of the Potatoes Recently Planted.

LONDON, April 20.—Despatches from Durban, South Africa, show that the Portuguese are taking a high hand in Mashonaland. The latest instance of their hostility to British interests in that district is likely to cause a further tension in the relations between the governments of Great Britain and Portugal. There are a number of British colonists who have settled in Mashonaland, and mails are carried via Biera, a Portuguese settlement. A short time ago, upon the arrival of the British mail sacks at Biera, the Portuguese authorities held them and refused to allow them to be carried to their destination. Great indignation on the part of the British colonists has been aroused by the high-handed proceeding.

Col. Willoughby has reached Delagoa Bay. He reports that on arrival at Beira he applied for permission to proceed to the Pungive River and offered to pay the prescribed duties, but as he received no answer after 48 hours he started without permission, when the Portuguese opened fire upon him, seized his two steamers with mails and provisions, and imprisoned 16 of the crew. Willoughby says the lives of the British at Beira are in great danger.

The Portuguese declare that the British are excluded from the Pengive River, which the boats were navigating when seized, and which is the chief water route about Mashonaland, and several of the British colonists have been imprisoned and most of the British employes have returned from Mashonaland on account of the arbitrary action of the Portuguese. There is every evidence that a serious rupture is impending between the Portuguese and the British authorities.

The Situation in Manipur.

SIMLA, April 20.—A despatch from Rangoon says the Jobray, the younger brother and heir of the Maharajah of Manipur, who deposed the latter in September last and who has been proclaimed regent, has with 2000 Manipuris occupied the strongly entrenched position held by Lieut. Grant until the latter was ordered to evacuate it. It is presumed this position is Fort Alongtaing near Thobal (previously referred to in despatches as Fort Thobal), where on April 4 Lieut. Grant repulsed 4000 Manipuris, killing the commander-in-chief of the Manipuris, who was the third brother of the Maharajah, and also two Manipuri generals and a number of soldiers.

To Satisfy the Croakers.

LONDON, April 20.—Owing to the persistent agitation of the question of military defences it has been decided to strengthen the fortifications of the Thames and to erect a new heavy battery at Sheerness. All the river forts are to be supplied with new guns of late and approved patterns. It is hoped that these precautions will silence the "croakers" who do not believe in the ability of England's floating "wooden walls" to protect the country from invasion.

A City to be Fortified.

BERLIN, April 20.—The Government has determined to strongly fortify the important commercial city of Osnabruck, Hanover. Besides the defences of the city itself, three forts will be erected outside the lines.

A NOVEL ELOPEMENT.

The Prospective Bride was a Clever Schemer but the Groom was Not.

LONDON, April 20.—An elopement with some novel and exciting features has just occurred at Alfreton. Pretty Annie Gough, daughter of the coachman of Judge Morewood at that place, dressed herself in her brother's clothes, stole the judge's horse, rode to the neighboring city of Nottingham and there joined her lover. The cupidity of the prospective bridegroom, however, proved stronger than either his honesty or his discretion. He attempted to dispose of the horse by selling it and the delay thus incurred enabled the emissaries of the angry father to overtake the fugitives. The girl was arrested and taken back home, but her lover managed to escape.

Newfoundland Delegates Satisfied.

LONDON, April 20.—The Newfoundland delegates express themselves as well satisfied with the result of their conference yesterday with Lord Salisbury. The particulars of the interview, however, have not transpired. Mr. Emerson, speaking for the delegation, says that Lord Salisbury requested that the negotiations be kept secret until a decision shall have been arrived at in the matter. He received the delegates graciously and all the phases of the question at issue were talked over. It has been decided by the Government to allow the delegates to present before the House of Lords on Thursday the address adopted by the Newfoundland Legislature. Mr. Emerson will be the spokesman of the delegates on that occasion.

How the Queen's Housemaid Died.

LONDON, April 20.—A singular death from blood poisoning occurred at Grasse recently. One of the Queen of England's housemaids was sewing and accidentally pricked her finger with a needle and inflammation set in. Two doctors were called and her arm was lanced. Matters seemed to be going better for a time, but fever set in and she died almost immediately. Queen Victoria selected the site and she will be buried in a lot that is portioned off from the Catholic cemetery for the burial of those of other faiths who may die at Grasse.

McCarthy's Sunday Theatre Project.

LONDON, April 20.—The scheme for the Sunday theatre, which is the pet project of Justin Huntley McCarthy, M.P., is assuming a more definite shape. It has been proposed that in order to start it the use of the theatre of the Lyric Club should be obtained. The performances will in no wise interfere with church-going, because it is not intended that they shall commence earlier than 9 o'clock, and it is very likely that it will be even later before the curtain is rung up.

A Moslem Marriage in England.

LONDON, April 20.—The first marriage with Moslem rites ever known to have taken place in England has just been recorded. The bride is the daughter of the late Judge Fitch of Liverpool and the groom is a barrister practising in London, who is a full-fledged Mohammedan.

From Stage to Cloister.

PARIS, April 19.—A good deal of stir has been caused in artistic circles by the news that Mlle. Donadio, the well-known prima donna, had left the world and has begun her novitiate in a convent.

A Winnipegger's Opinion.

The following is taken from a letter from Mr. D. Davis, Winnipeg, Man.: "Being persuaded to use Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam for a troublesome cold, I was entirely cured by the use of two bottles."

Dangerous Counterfeits.

Counterfeits are always dangerous, more so that they always closely IMITATE THE ORIGINAL IN APPEARANCE AND NAME. The remarkable success achieved by Nasal Balm as a positive cure for Catarrh and Cold in the Head has induced unprincipled parties to imitate it. The public are cautioned not to be deceived by nostrums imitating Nasal Balm in name and appearance, bearing such names as Nasal Cream, Nasal Balsam, etc. Ask for Nasal Balm and do not take any imitation dealers may urge upon you. For sale by all druggists or sent post-paid on receipt of price (50c and $1.) by addressing Fulford & Co. Brockville, Ont.

Why Not Treat.

WHY not treat such troubles as boils, pimples, blotches, sores, humors, eruptions, rashes, skin irritations, etc., with Burdock Blood Bitters. It is filled with virtue as a blood purifier and goes right to the right spot. It makes the skin bright and clear, while also invigorating the entire system.

Dangers of Delay

If we were allowed to look into the future and see the fatal consequences that follow a neglected cold, how different would our course be; could we realize our danger, how speedily we would seek a cure; but with many it is only when the monster disease has fastened its fangs upon our lungs that we awaken to our folly. What follows a neglected cold? Is it not diseases of the throat and lungs, bronchitis, asthma, consumption, and many other diseases of like nature. It is worse than madness to neglect a cold, and it is folly not to have some good remedy available for this complaint. One of the most efficacious medicines for all diseases of the throat and lungs, is Bickle's Anti-Consumptive Syrup. This medicine is composed of several medicinal herbs, which exert a most wonderful influence in curing consumption and other diseases of the lungs and chest. It promotes a free and easy expectoration, soothes irritation and drives the disease from the system.

Chronic Derangements of the Stomach, Liver and Blood, are speedily removed by the active principle of the ingredients entering into the composition of Parmelee's Vegetable Pills. These Pills act specifically on the deranged organs, stimulating to action the dormant energies of the system, thereby removing disease and renewing life and vitality to the afflicted. In this lies the great secret of the popularity of Parmelee's Vegetable Pills.

Inflammation of the Eyes Cured.

Mr. Jacob D. Miller, Newburg, writes,— I was troubled with inflammation in one of my eyes, so that during nearly the whole of the summer of 1882 I could not work; I took several bottles of Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery and it gives me great pleasure to inform you that it cured me of my affliction. It is an excellent remedy for Costiveness."

ADVICE TO MOTHERS

MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP has been used by millions of mothers for children teething for over fifty years with perfect success. It relieves the little sufferer at once, produces natural, quiet sleep by freeing the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste, soothes the child, softens the gums, allays pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. Twenty five cents a bottle

MANSLAUGHTER

Returned Against Timothy Wood of Winona Yesterday.

HAMILTON, April 20.—An inquest on the body of William Foster, who was found dead in his bed at his residence in Winona yesterday morning, was commenced this afternoon in Winona village before Coroner Wolverton of Hamilton. The jury brought in a verdict of manslaughter against Timothy Wood. Wood has been arrested and his case will come off at the assizes, which opened here before Judge Armour this morning.

The Strike in the Coke Regions.

MT. PLEASANT, Pa., April 20.—At 2 o'clock this afternoon the coroner's jury announced its verdict in the Morewood riot case as follows: "That the deceased came to his death at Morewood on Thursday morning, April 2, 1891, about 3 o'clock by a bullet discharged from a gun or revolver in the hands of the deputies of the sheriff of Westmoreland County." This applies to each man killed in the riot.

Labor Troubles.

Three hundred coalheavers at the Cleveland docks have struck for an increase of wages.

Six hundred of the 950 laborers engaged in grading Jackson Park for the World's Fair at Chicago yesterday struck for an increase in wages from $1.50 to $1.75 per day.

The trainmen on the Indiana Midland at Lebanon, Ind., who went out on strike Saturday on account of non-payment of wages overdue, have induced every man on the road to join them and not a wheel is being turned except an engine and mail car. No passengers or freight are allowed to be carried.

Protests Against Cabinet Ministers.

HALIFAX, April 20.—To-day F. T. Congdon, representing the petitioners against the return of Nathaniel White for Shelburne, Sir John Thompson for Antigonish and Hon. C. H. Tupper for Pictou, filed petitions. In the petition against the return of Hon. C. H. Tupper it is charged that for the purpose of procuring the election of defendant the railway service of Canada was made use of; also that Government officials were influenced. Similar grounds are given in the petition against Sir John Thompson, including the use of the Intercolonial Railway, and it is alleged that the defendant and agents directly and indirectly were guilty of practising intimidation by spiritual and temporal threats upon certain voters to compel such and against others to compel them to refrain from voting.

TENDERS.

SEALED TENDERS addressed to the undersigned and endorsed "Tender for Indian Supplies," will be received at this office up to noon of SATURDAY, 9th May, 1891, for the delivery of Indian supplies, during the fiscal year ending 30th June, 1892, consisting of Flour, Beef, Bacon, Groceries, Ammunition, Twine, Agricultural Implements, Tools, &c., duty paid, at various points in Manitoba and the North-West Territories.

Forms of tender, containing full particulars relative to the Supplies required, dates of delivery, &c., may be had by applying to the undersigned, or to the Indian Commissioner at Regina, or to the Indian Office, Winnipeg.

Parties may tender for each description of goods (or for any portion of each description of goods) separately or for all the goods called for in the Schedules, and the Department reserves to itself the right to reject the whole or any part of a tender.

Each tender must be accompanied by an accepted Cheque in favor of the Superintendent General of Indian Affairs, on a Canadian Bank, for at least five per cent. of the amount of the tender, which will be forfeited if the party tendering declines to enter into a contract based on such tender when called upon to do so, or if he fails to complete the work contracted for. If the tender be not accepted, the cheque will be returned, and if a contract be entered into for a part only of the supplies tendered for, an accepted cheque for five per cent. of the amount of the contract may be substituted for that which accompanied the tender; the contract security cheque will be retained by the Department until the end of the fiscal year.

Each tender must, in addition to the signature of the tenderer, be signed by two sureties acceptable to the Department for the proper performance of the contract based on his tender.

This advertisement is not to be inserted by any newspaper without the authority of the Queen's Printer, and no claim for payment by any newspaper not having had such authority will be admitted.

Dyspepsia

Intense Suffering for 8 years—Restored to Perfect Health.

Few people have suffered more severely from dyspepsia than Mr. E. A. McMahon, a well known grocer of Staunton, Va. He says: "Before 1878 I was in excellent health, weighing over 200 pounds. In that year an ailment developed into acute dyspepsia, and soon I was reduced to 162 pounds, suffering burning sensations in the stomach, palpitation of the heart, nausea, and indigestion. I could not sleep, lost all heart in my work, had fits of melancholia, and for days at a time I would have welcomed death. I became morose, sullen and irritable, and for eight years life was a burden. I tried many physicians and many remedies. One day a workman employed by me suggested that I take Hood's Sarsaparilla, as it had cured his wife of dyspepsia. I did so, and before taking the whole of a bottle I began to feel like a new man. The terrible pains to which I had been subjected, ceased, the palpitation of the heart subsided, my stomach became easier, nausea disappeared, and my entire system began to tone up. With returning strength came activity of mind and body. Before the fifth bottle was taken I had regained my former weight and natural condition. I am today well and I ascribe it to taking Hood's Sarsaparilla."

N. B. If you decide to take Hood's Sarsaparilla do not be induced to buy any other.

BELLEVILLE, TUESDAY, APRIL 21

ELECTORAL PURITY.

What with prosecutions and persecutions of Conservatives who had violated or were alleged to have violated the law in the recent election of a member to represent West Hastings in the House of Commons, certain members of the Grit party have been of late making themselves conspicuous as upholders of purity of election. We have no excuse for those who knowingly offended against the law; but we do protest against the rancor with which certain of them were prosecuted and against the outrage which was perpetrated upon innocent persons who were dragged before the grand jury on suspicion and subjected to annoyance and humiliation without cause.

Were these persecutors actuated by a sincere regard for electoral purity, they would not have shut their eyes to the corruption of members of their own party, of which they cannot be in ignorance, and would have dealt with all alike. But it was not the punishment of offences that these men were seeking, it was a vent for their political hatred. They have sown the wind. The resultant crop will in due time be reaped by them.

PURIFYING THE RACE TRACK.

Mr. Solomon White has placed before the Legislature the following measure for the suppression of rascality on the trotting tracks of the Province:

1. No person shall enter or cause to be entered for competition for any purse, prize, premium, stake or sweepstake, offered or given by any agricultural or other society, or association where the contest is to be decided by speed, any horse, colt or filly, under a false or assumed name or pedigree, or in a class different to which such horse, colt or filly, properly belongs by the rules of the society or association in which such contest is to take place.

2. The name of a horse, colt or filly, for the purpose of entry for such competition in any contest of speed, shall not be changed, after having once being entered in any such contest, except as provided by the code of rules of the society or association under which the contest is conducted.

3. The class to which a horse, colt or filly properly belongs, for the purpose of, entry in any such contest of speed shall be determined by the public performance of such horse, colt or filly in some former, if any, contest or trial of speed, as provided by the rules of the society or association, under which the proposed contest is to be conducted.

4. Any person violating any of the provisions contained in this Act, shall be guilty of an offence thereunder and shall, on conviction before any justice of the peace, forfeit and pay a sum not less than $100 nor more than $1,000 for each offence, together with costs, and in case of non-payment shall be liable to imprisonment for a term not exceeding six months.

Mr. White's bill is well designed to effect a highly desirable object, and we trust that it will become law. The rascals have too long "ruled the roost" on the trotting courses of Canada. They have been strong enough to make the Canadian Trotting Association a failure, and to prevent Canadian tracks from affiliating with the National or the American Trotting Association as a preventitive of dishonesty. Mr. White's bill, if passed into law, will reform all that. It will prevent the debasement of a popular sport by fraud and will be of great advantage to the horse breeding interest of the province, an interest which is destined to assume vast proportions. Therefore, we repeat, the Legislature ought to pass Mr. White's bill.

So to Speak.

Woman is wonderfully made! Such beauty, grace, delicacy and purity are alone her possessions. So has she weaknesses, irregularities, functional derangement, peculiar only to herself. To correct these and restore to health, her wonderful organism requires a restorative especially adapted to that purpose. Such an one is Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription—possessing curative and regulating properties to a remarkable degree. Made for this purpose alone—recommended far no other! Continually growing in favor, and numbering as its staunch friends thousands of the most intelligent and refined ladies of the land. A positive guarantee accompanies each bottle—at your druggist's. Sold on trial!

Piles! Piles! Itching Piles.

SYMPTOMS—Moisture; intense itching and stinging; most at night; worse by scratching if allowed to continue tumors form, which often bleed and ulcerate, becoming very sore. SWAYNE'S OINTMENT stops the itching and bleeding, heals ulceration, and in most cases removes the tumors. At druggists, or by mail, for 50 cents. Dr. Swayne & Son, Philadelphia.

The Loon as a Swimmer.

It has been said that one of the strong works of nature was when she made the "loon"—a bird which represents the wildness and solitariness of the wildest and most solitary spots. It dives with such marvellous quickness that the shot of the gunner gets there just in time "to cut across a circle of descending tail feathers and a couple of little j ts of water flung upward by the web feet of the loon." Speaking of this bird, Burroughs says that in the water its wings are more than wings. It plunges into the denser air and flies with incredible speed. Its head and beak form a sharp point to its tapering neck. Its wings are far in front and its legs equally far in the rear, and its course through the crystal depths is like the speed of an arrow. In the northern lakes it has been taken 40 feet under water upon hooks baited for the large lake trout. I had never seen one till last fall, when one appeared on the river in front of my house. I knew instantly it was the loon. Who could not tell a loon a half mile or more away, though he had never seen one before? The river was like glass, and every movement of the bird as it sported about broke the surface into ripples that revealed it far and wide. Presently a boat shot out from shore, and went rippling up the surface toward the loon. The creature at once seemed to divine the intentions of the boatman, and sided off obliquely, keeping a sharp lookout as if to make sure it was pursued. A steamer came down and passed between them, and when the way was again clear the loon was still swimming on the surface. Presently it disappeared under the water, and the boatman pulled sharp and hard. In a few moments the bird reappeared some rods further on, as if to make an observation; seeing it was being pursued and no mistake, it dived quickly, and when it came up again, had gone many times as far as the boat in the same space of time. Then it dived again and distanced its pursuer so easily that he gave over the chase, and rested upon his oars. But the bird made a final plunge, and when it emerged upon the surface again it was over a mile away. Its course must have been, and doubtless was, an actual flight under the water, and half as fast as the crow flies in the air.—Cornhill Magazine.

The Ethics of Opposition.

From the Week.

A contributor, in commenting upon Mr. Blake's letter, recites the clearly defined views of Sir Robert Peel, a famous English statesman of great ability and noble character, upon the true function of parliamentary opposition. At this juncture these views are well worthy of earnest consideration by the Canadian people. It may well be questioned whether an opposition which aims by ridicule, invective and obstruction to defeat the purpose of a Government which is endeavoring to carry out its pledge made to the people before election, and on which it was sustained by the people at the polls, can be deemed either dignified or worthy of the traditions of the English speaking race. Honest opposition in a just cause from a party standpoint, cannot reasonably be objected to; nor can it be expected that the Canadian Reformers would be fully contented with a measure of reciprocity with the United States if obtained by Sir John Macdonald's Government—when they demand Unrestricted Reciprocity. But is the good of the country to be deemed inferior to the success of a party? Surely not. The serious consideration for Canadians is this: Is it dignified, is it fair to the honor and character of the Canadian people, that a government which represents in its negotiation for a reciprocity treaty not merely a party, but the Canadian people, who have made it their authoritative agent to secure a favorable measure of reciprocity with the United States government, should by the opposition journals be persistently hindered and obstructed, and treated with ridicule and contempt, in its effect to do its duty to the electorate of Canada?

We mistake the temper of the Canadian people if we think that such a course of opposition can have any other effect than that of causing them to disapprove of such conduct on the part of the opposition press. Would not the fair, the dignified, the patriotic course, be like that of the great British statesman referred to by our contributor—to place no obstacle in the way of the Government in its effort from its own standpoint to negotiate an advantageous trade treaty for Canada, and then, when the government has either failed through its own inability to obtain such a treaty, or has obtained one that is objectionable and defective, to visit it with the criticism which it is an opposition's function to provide? We think the latter course is far better adapted than the former to make a government out of an opposition and to maintain the dignity and advance the true interests of our common country.

Export Duty on Fish.

It is reported that the Minister of Marine and Fisheries has in contemplation the introduction of a bill into Parliament, at the coming session, imposing an export duty upon fish caught in the inland waters of Canada, in boats or with tackle owned by others than British subjects. Under the McKinley bill Canadian fish dealers have to pay three quarters of a cent per pound upon fresh fish shipped to the United States, while American fish companies can ship fish caught in Canadian waters to the United States without any exaction of this kind. This means a heavy discrimination against Canadian fish dealers. It makes it impossible for them to compete against American fish companies and must eventually lead, as it has to a large extent already, to the fish industry of the great lakes getting entirely into the hands of Americans, except so far as the immediate requirements of our own country are concerned. Licenses to fish are secured by Canadian fishermen, and then these men have been known to lease their boats, tackle and appliances to the American companies, and in this way assist in creating an American fishing monopoly in Canadian waters. The situation is anything but an inviting one for the Canadian consumer, and the impression is deepening that the department should take prompt action in the matter. One method suggested for overcoming the difficulty of leasing or mortgaging Canadian boats to United States fishing companies is to make it a misdemeanor for a fisherman to practically transfer his license to a third party—and he a foreigner—as stated, and confiscate boats and catch as a penalty for any infraction of the law.—Ottawa Corr., Empire.

A Pleasant Herb Drink—A Spring Medicine.

The druggists tell us that people call daily for the new cure for constipation and sick-headache discovered by Dr. Silas Lane. It is said to be Oregon grape root (a great remedy in the far west for those complaints) combined with simple herbs, and is made ready for use by pouring on boiling water to draw out the strength. It sells at 50c and $1 a package and is called Lane's Family Medicine.

Nothing Strange About It.

"No, Miss Arm," remarked young Dr Paresis, "as a physician I cannot accept the Biblical account of such longevity as Methuselah's."

"Oh, I can," replied Miss Arm, sweetly, "there were no doctors in those days."

A HOBOKEN TRAGEDY.

AN ITALIAN USES A STILLETO WITH DEADLY EFFECT.

He Carves up All His Relatives and is in Turn Shot Dead by His Brother-in-law—A Sanguinary Scene of Bloodshed—The Assassin a Lawless Loafer.

HOBOKEN, April 20.—This morning Angelo Gaboths, an Italian, murdered his mother-in-law, stabbed his father-in-law almost to death and was slain by his brother-in-law. Gaboths slept in his father-in-law's house with his father-in-law last night. In early morning he arose and going to the bed in which his mother-in-law and wife were sleeping drove his stiletto into the older woman's abdomen, killing her instantly. He then went back to his father-in-law's room and stabbed the old man in the neck. His aim was bad and the victim shrieked. Thereupon Coquilo Coniquito, the old man's son, awoke and a desperate fight with knives ensued. It was finally ended by Coniquito stabbing Gaboths to the brain through the eye. There have been no arrests.

Another account states that the tragedy was the result of insane jealousy on Gaboths' part. He was 30 years old and his wife 17 when they were married two years ago. Eight months afterwards Gaboths drew a knife across his wife's abdomen, making a horrible wound, because he imagined she was unfaithful. It is not now known what became of Gaboths at the time, but after she recovered his wife lived with him again, he having promised to behave himself. But he became a lazy, shiftless loafer, depending on his wife for support. He believed his wife was untrue to him, that she was the mistress of a man she had met at her mother's house and that her mother shielded her in her wrong-doing. He went to the house last night with a stiletto and revolver prepared to do mischief. After killing his mother-in-law he stabbed his wife three times and left her as he thought dead. Covered with blood the murderer entered Coniquito's room and fired at Coniquito, who returned the fire. Although wounded in the breast several shots were exchanged. Gaboths then tried to leave the house, but was intercepted by his father-in-law, who struck him with a chair. Gaboths thrust his stiletto several times into the old man's body, but did not touch a vital part.

Coniquito here appeared again on the scene and fired the last shot in his revolver, striking Gaboths in the forehead and killing him. Coniquito and Mrs. Gaboths will recover. Their father may die.

VERY LIKE A MIRACLE.

An Essex Man's Lightning Cure by Faith in God.

WINDSOR, April 20.—About a year ago Francis Sweet, jr., a farmer at Gesto, was thrown from a rig by a runaway team and sustained serious internal injuries. Latterly he was taken to his bed suffering terribly from his injuries. The attendant physician told him plainly that if his spine became affected there would be no hope for him. Last week the suffering man was so bad that his friends and family gave up all hope. His will was made and his brother James of Kingsville sent for. On Wednesday he was converted. That night and all Thursday he suffered terribly. On Thursday evening his friends and the poor man himself had given up all hopes. All thought he could not live till morning. The disease had reached his spine. His family had gathered around his bed to bid a last farewell. His wife and his brother were kneeling at the bedside praying. He was also praying. It was just 7 o'clock. Mr. Sweet says the thought struck him that surely if the Lord is able to save me He is also able to heal me. He at once put the eleventh-hour thought into practice. He prayed to God to heal him and quick as a flash he felt he was well, and he dumfounded those present by raising himself up in bed. Five minutes before he could not raise head or limb. More surprising still, next afternoon he got up, dressed himself, washed and combed unassisted and went about his regular labors around the farm, apparently as well as ever.

BAYHAM'S COUNTERFEITERS.

Another Arrest Effected—Bogus 25 and 10 Cent Pieces.

ST. THOMAS, April 20.—Sanford Long of Bayham, arrested on the charge of uttering counterfeit money, was arraigned before Judge Ermatinger and elected to be tried by jury, and his trial will therefore take place at the June Sessions. The counterfeit money passed was 25 cent and 10 cent pieces, and the district between Aylmer and Tilsonburg is said to be flooded with the coins. The 25 cent pieces are a good imitation of the genuine and would be readily accepted if one were not suspicious. They are a counterfeit of Canadian coinage of 1881.

Another man, named Crane, has been arrested for the same offence and will have a preliminary hearing before P. M. Glover at Aylmer to-morrow.

DIED IN EACH OTHER'S ARMS.

Tragic Suicide of Two Lovers in a New York Hotel.

NEW YORK, April 20.—A young couple registered at the Grand Union Hotel Sunday morning as P. Behrand and wife, and were assigned to room D 8 on the third floor. To-night at 8.30 they were found dead in the room from gas asphyxiation. They were in bed wrapped in each other's arms. They had inhaled the gas through rubber tubes held in their mouths. On the woman's breast was a large and beautiful bouquet, evidently purchased for this very occasion. The man was about 25 years old and the woman 22. They left four letters, two of which were to a Mrs. Miller of 210 East Ninth-street. Mrs. Miller was seen late to-night; she admitted virtually that she was acquainted with the couple, but gave the impression that the name given by the young man was correct, but that the young woman was not his wife.

Perished on the Prairie.

WINNIPEG, April 20.—The son and daughter, aged 8 and 6, of Mr. Reimann, who went about 10 days ago from Winnipeg to a new settlement north of Calgary, were lost on the prairie. Having gone out one evening to hunt for cattle they didn't return, and though thorough search was made next day they could not be found. As a prairie fire was raging it is feared they perished.

Stanley's Successor.

OTTAWA, April 20.—Lord Kilcoursie, a son of the Earl of Cavan, will probably succeed the Hon. E. Stanley on the Viceregal staff. He is a subaltern in the 2nd Battalion of the Grenadier Guards and has had six years' service.

Touched a Live Wire and Died.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., April 20.—A horrible accident occurred in this city to-night in the presence of several thousand persons who had gathered at Ninth-street and Georgia-avenue to witness the Fire Department put out a small blaze in the European Hotel. Charles Werner, head boseman of the Lookout Fire Department, was at the top of the long ladder playing a hose in the third story window, when he got a shock from a live electric wire and dropped dead to the ground before the thousands who were looking on at the fire.

A Naturalist's Fall to Death.

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld., April 20.—P. J. Cahoon, a naturalist, lowered himself by means of a rope from Shag Rock, Cape Shore, in order to obtain a crow's nest. He found it impossible to regain the surface of the cliff and fell 80 feet, being killed instantly.

ONTARIO LEGISLATURE.

The Country Not Yet Prepared for the Single Tax Idea.

TORONTO, April 21.—Yesterday Mr. Tait moved the second reading of his bill involving an approach to single tax. The bill provides that any municipality may declare that improvements upon real property shall not be estimated for the purpose of assessment in excess of 50 per cent. of their actual cash value.

Mr. Hardy said the country was not prepared for the single tax idea, or even to go half way. If the country were ready, such a measure would be entitled to more explanation than was given. If such buildings as the Canada Life, Bank of Commerce, Rossin House were assessed at half their value while a poor man was assessed at the full value of the land on which his cottage was built, it would be a very serious thing. In bringing the question before the House, the promoter of the bill had accomplished all he desired or wanted to accomplish—[laughter]—this session. Many of the single tax ideas were not tolerated a few years ago, but are now adopted. Their popularity was increasing. But he doubted whether at this late period in the session the bill could receive the consideration and attention which it demands, and he therefore asked Mr. Tait to withdraw it, which was done.

In moving the second reading of his bill to amend the Election Act Mr. Whitney explained that one clause provided that the county attorney shall attend election trials and institute proceedings for violations of the law. This was simply following the law elsewhere. In England there is a director of prosecutions, and the Dominion Election Act provides that the Attorney-General shall instruct counsel to commence proceedings. Another clause provides that the penalty for bribery shall include a term of imprisonment as well as a fine. Mr. Whitney said Sir Richard Webster wrote that he was surprised that the penalty in Ontario did not include imprisonment and that the penalty of imprisonment had exercised in England a beneficial and a deterrent effect. This amendment was demanded by the best interests of the province, and if the Government did not favor the bill he would reintroduce it next session. The Attorney-General might at least assent to the principle of the bill, that imprisonment as well as a fine should be the penalty for bribery, and allow the bill to go to committee.

Mr. Mowat said he was afraid the result of the bill would be injurious rather than beneficial. The great difficulty is to prove acts of bribery and corruption. Not one case out of a thousand corrupt practices is proved. It is well known that the severity of a punishment often prevents a conviction. The Government was afraid that if the law was made more severe there would be fewer convictions. In spite of the provisions of the Dominion Election Act there is ten times over the amount of corruption in Dominion elections that there is in the Ontario elections, showing that Mr. Whitney is entirely mistaken in the effects of the change he proposes. It is the duty now of the county attorney to institute criminal proceedings whenever his attention is called to it and therefore that clause is unnecessary. Mr. Mowat said he proposed to consolidate the election laws before the next general elections and he would endeavor to do something to lessen corruption.

After some further discussion the bill was defeated by a vote of 32 nays to 25 yeas. The division was on party lines except that Mr. Balfour supported the bill. Mr. Campbell, the Equal Right er, also supported it. Mr. Conmee spoke in favor of the principle of the bill but voted against it.

The motion of Mr. Campbell (East Durham), respecting separate schools, was reached, but it was allowed to stand. He stated that he was not prepared to go on yesterday and that certain members whom he expected to support it were not present. It will probably be reached again Wednesday.

Once More Postponed.

WASHINGTON, April 20.—Owing to the illness of Attorney-General Bradley the Sayward case was again postponed for a week to-day. Argument will be proceeded with next Monday, however.

UNDERNEATH THE GROUND.

A Coal Mine Cage Was Suspended While 200 Miners Buried Alive Below Momentarily Expected Death.

LONDON, April 20.—Two large cages or cars used for hoisting and lowering men and material in a colliery in the Longton (Staffordshire) coal district, while one of them was being hoisted and the other was being lowered, came into violent collision and were smashed to pieces. The result was that the shaft was badly damaged and choked up with debris, thus cutting off communication with 200 miners whom the accident imprisoned in the mine below. For 14 hours the miners were shut up in the mine, practically buried alive. This was a period of terrible suspense for their families and friends, who crowded about the pit in a state of great agitation and distress. Eventually a small hole was pierced through the mass of wreckage and earth clogging the shaft, and it was found possible to lower food by means of a rope to the imprisoned miners. Further work upon the passage enabled the men engaged in the work of rescue to haul the 200 miners one by one out of the mine by using buckets, to which ropes were fastened.

Miners Killed and Injured.

BERLIN, April 20.—The walls of the Germania pit near Gelsenkirchen collapsed yesterday, burying a large number of miners in the ruins. Four men were killed outright and several injured. Many of the men are entombed in the mine and their fate is uncertain, though it is thought they will be rescued.

Heavy Glasgow Failure.

GLASGOW, April 22.—Arrol Bros. of this city have suspended payment. Their liabilities are heavy; assets not known. The Arrol Bros. are not connected with Sir William Arrol, the builder of the Forth bridge. The firm was concerned in the Buenos Ayres transactions. The failure is attributed to non-receipt of remittances from Buenos Ayres and to the suspension of the Renfrew Forge and Steel Company.

Why Davitt Was Ineligible.

LONDON, April 20.—William Henry Smith in the House of Commons to-day, replying to a question in regard to Michael Davitt not being made a member of the Royal Labor Commission, said Davitt's evidence before the Parnell special commission, with the fact that he had been convicted of treason and felony, unfitted him to sit on the commission.

Watched Fields Fail to Sprout.

CORK, April 20.—Considerable alarm prevails among the small farmers and poor people of the Skibbereen district on account of the discovery that the seed potatoes recently distributed as one of the relief measures of the Government have practically proved a failure. Many lots of these potatoes planted weeks ago have as yet shown no signs of life.

Death After a Lifetime in Bed.

MOUNT HOLLY, N.J., April 20.—Mrs. Mary White died here yesterday after an illness of more than 30 years, during which long period she never arose from her bed. A physician administered to her every day during her illness.

Will Continue to Sell Bait.

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld., April 20.—It is reported the fishermen at Bay de Este are determined to sell bait to the French from St. Pierre and have resisted the government officers. Reinforcements have been sent to assist the authorities.

Prehistoric Man.

Prof. George Frederick Wright, in an article in the April Atlantic upon "Prehistoric Man on the Pacific Coast," says:

"It cannot be denied that the character of man's remains found beneath the lava beds of the Pacific slope is such as to indicate a being of no insignificant capacity, even though, so far as we can see, his actual development was but moderate. It is for this reason that so great hesitation has been manifested in giving credit to the evidence adduced. It is said that these remains are out of harmony with the other evidence we possess concerning the early condition of the human race. The mortars and pestles, which are the principle utensils found beneath Table Mountain, would be classed among the so called smoothstone, or heolithic implement—such as in Europe are said to belong to a comparatively late period in the human occupation of that country—while the Nampa image shows a high degree of skill in representing the human form. The Calaveras skull, too, is by no means of inferior type, but is capacious enough to have held the brain of a philosopher.

"Our only answer to these general considerations is, that it is unsafe to apply a classification of facts relating to the human race in Europe to a region so distant and so peculiarly situated as the western coast of our own continent. As to the mortars, also, it is proper to observe that they are the most natural things in the world for rude people to invent. Even a savage would not be long in discovering that it is easier to pound his acorns in a hollow in the rock rather than on a flat surface, and it would be no great stroke of genius to discover that a portable stone with a hollow in it would often be of great convenience; and when once introduced, the smoothing off of the corners and the making of it into a comely shape would be almost a mattter of course. As Prof. Putnam has suggested, also, some considerable skill in representing the human form is, both with children and with infant races, in the line of their earliest impulses and efforts. Consequently, we see no reason, in the nature of the case, why the evidence of man's early occupation of the Pacific coast should be regarded with incredulity."

HISTORY REPEATS ITSELF.

in wall paper as in everything else, once in about every ten years.

It is not ten years ago though since the "fad" of papering ceilings was all the rage, nor was it five years ago! Yet this season there is a very strong demand for ceiling papers and decorations, and we firmly believe that papered ceilings will always be fashionable.

How do we know?

We'll tell you.

Economy and common sense have done it.

The world of fashion produces periodically a "fad" and if it receives "official recognition" from some fashion leader, it is considered "quite the proper thing" by the votaries of fashion and a craze ensues.

Fashion dictates more severely and draws finer lines in the matter of decoration than in anything else under her sway, and it sometimes happens that some of her "whims" become permanencies or "things of beauty and a joy forever." Economy is the great factor that transforms what was once a "fleeting fancy" into a permanent reality and that's where common sense steps in.

Although the craze of papering ceilings died out for awhile, it has returned again, not as a craze, but as a good big morsel of hard common sense, and it has come to stay. It's admitted superiority over every other style of ceiling decoration, both in attractiveness and ECONOMY has forced "fashion" to the wall for once and in spite of herself she "returns to her first love," thus waiving the formality of waiting the allotted decade for "History to repeat itself."

Try and remember that economy and common sense have done this - for where can you find a better field for decoration in your whole house than a ceiling presents?

Please make a note of this.

A Fine Store.

Vast Improvements Made to Mr. S. A. Hyman's Place of Business.

For some time past improvements of an extensive character have been going on upon the premises occupied by Mr. S. A. Hyman, hatter and furrier, until to-day that gentleman is in possession of one of the finest stores to be found in Central Ontario. The front of this business house now stands out prominently among the emporiums of our main thoroughfare in a shining new coat of paint, which gives it an attractive appearance. The interior of the store has undergone a most complete transformation. The walls and ceiling have been inlaid with wood, which, with the process of brightening has worked marvels. The store is now 100 feet in length and some 30 feet in width. At the south side, extending half the length of the store, has been erected a glass case for exhibiting fine furs; this case is 25 inches in depth and 6 feet high. On either side of the store in the centre two large mirrors have been placed in position. The accommodation for goods is complete, there being some 60 large drawers for packing furs. At the rear of the store a new office has been built, which is light and airy. In the front of the store at the north side a stairway has been placed, leading to the large show room above. This room is a large one, and has been greatly improved by the erection of a bay window, which is lighted by two plate glass windows. In rear of this room are two rooms which are used for work rooms and fitting room, being large and convenient for all purposes. The third floor will be used for storing purposes. The change and renovation has been complete and thorough, under the supervision of Mr. S. T. Harris. The building is owned by Mr. John Bell, Q.C., who has expended $2,000 on the premises. For a period of nearly twenty years Mr. Hyman has conducted a successful business at this stand and the improvements made will no doubt tend much to increase the same.

New Premises.

Messrs. Reid & Co. are now carrying on business in their new premises in the Coleman block, opposite Campbell street. This fine store was fitted up with the latest improvemets for their trade, and is now one of the best business places in the city. In the rear of the main store are situated the millinery rooms, which are in charge of Miss Mills. These rooms are also provided with everything that is required to make them complete for this branch of the business. The tailoring department, under the management of Mr. Jas. O'Brien, is also upon the ground floor, the work rooms being on the second floor. On the north sides of the store, at the end, a commodious office has been placed in position. The whole premises are well lighted and ventilated, being admirably adapted for the business which is being conducted by this firm. A vast improvement has been made and other improvements are also contemplated.

New Livery Business.

After having for many years carried on a successful business in the hack, 'bus and livery line, Messrs. Lake & Jenkins have dissolved partnership. Mr. Jenkins will hereafter run a livery stable in the premises to the south of the old stand on Pinnacle street, which has been fitted up for his business. He has a good stable of horses and a large number of rigs, many of them new and stylish. Vehicles can be furnished on the shortest notice for transportation to or from the cars or steamboats, for weddings or funerals, or for ordinary use. Careful drivers provided. Mr. Jenkins has had a long experience in the trade, he is well and favorably known, and it is safe to predict for him success.

"Lost in New York."

The successful aquatic drama, "Lost in New York," with its wealth of scenery and river of real water, real steam boat and other marine craft will be presented at the Opera House next Friday and Saturday nights and Saturday matinee. The Columbus, O., Post says: "In this play we have a drama that is to America what the "Lights of London" was to England. It portrays a phase of New York Life as accurately as did that famous melodrama. "Lost in New York" is not a comedy drama, as has been said by a local paper. It is in every sense of the word a melodrama, and the entire play is alive with melodramatic effects."

Seats are now on sale at Riggs' music store.

Five Hundred Dollars

Will be given for a case of Catarrh which cannot be permanently cured by Clark's Catarrh Cure. Step right up to the office and prove your case and get the reward. Thousands have used this remedy but no one has claimed the reward, because it cures in every case. If you have a cold or a troubled with Catarrh, ask your druggist for Clark's Catarrh Cure, price 50 cents and see what a pleasant relief it will be instantly. If you are asked to take something else send to us direct, and we will send you a bottle by mail on receipt of price. Clark Chemical Co., Toronto, New York.

Belleville Gas Works.

The Belleville Gas Works has changed hands for the present. Mr. Pierson, of the Toronto Gas Company, has leased the works for a period of ten years. He will take charge at once and will also run the incandescent light in connection with the works. It is understood that the consideration paid was 6 per cent. on the $80,000 worth of stock and 6½ per cent. on the mortgages, amounting to $40,000. It is to be hoped that satisfactory arrangements will at once be entered into between the new proprietor and the city.

Personal.

Mr. A. C. Miller, M. P. for Prince Edward was in the city to day.

The Revs. Crossley and Hunter are now in Victoria, B.C. The daily press devotes much space to their meetings and publishes verbatim their denunciations of prevalent vices, especially the social evil and drinking.

Mr. Wm. Dafoe is able to be out again, after being confined to his house for some weeks.

Mr. Geo. A. Browne, Manager of the Deseronto Navigation Company, was in the city to-day.

The Best Result.

Every ingredient employed in producing Hood's Sarasparilla is strictly pure, and is the best of its kind it is possible to buy. All the roots and herbs are carefully selected, personally examined, and only the best retained. So that from the time of purchase until Hood's Sarsaparilla is prepared, everything is carefully watched with a view to attaining the best result. Why don't you try it?

An Aged Tramp.

The police last night, between the hours of 12 and 1 o'clock, were called to arrest a man who was roaming about near the Agricultural grounds. He went to two houses after midnight and rang the door bells and asked for assistance. He was arrested and gave his name as John Jackson, aged 74 years. This morning, on promising to leave the city, he was allowed his liberty.

The Murder Case.

The Minister of Justice has received the report of Judge Rose in the case of Kane, the wife murderer, now under sentence of death here.

To the Editor of the Intelligencer,

BELLEVILLE, April 17, 1891.

DEAR SIR,—I ask permission to enclose you for the INTELLIGENCER some lines to the memory of J. K. L., (James of Kildare and Leighlin) written by my father many years since. They are prefaced by one or two extracts of interest bearing on the subject. Very sincerely yours,

JOHN IVERS.

In Dr. Doyle's pastoral (June 1823) he said: "We are no hirelings, &c.; we have at an early period of our life fled even from the smiles of a court, that we might, in our native land, from which we had become an exile to procure an education, labor in the most humble department of our sacred ministry."

His allegiance to the crown was shown when Napoleon invaded Portugal and Spain. "Dr. Doyle, then in the college of Coimbra, changed his cap and gown for the helmet and sword and was prepared to sacrifice life, as he had suffered incarceration for the cause of national peace and religious security against foreign violence and irreligious warfare."

This great bishop was only forty-eight years of age when he died at Braganza House, Carlow, on the 15th of June, 1834.

J. I.

To the memory of the late Right Rev. Doctor Doyle Bishop of Kildare and Leighlin, Ireland.

The cedar's fall'n! for mourning now prepare,
He's gone! the patriot Prelate of Kildare.
Though short his course, the lights he left behind
Proclaim the effulgence of his mighty mind;
The Church's ornament, his country's pride,
The moving pillar sent to be our guide.
In him the true philanthropist we trace,
His fold the globe, his flock the human race;
Frugal yet hospitable, dignified yet mild,
Refined his wit, yet playful as a child.
His pure humanity gave all access,
His door, his purse, were open to distress.
A very pelican, the poor to feed,
*They reap'd no harvest, tho' he sow'd the seed.
†One luckless cloud between two planets came,
Obscur'd awhile but cooled not friend hip's flame;
Each kept its course, to its own orbit true,
The brighter's set, but shines in mem'ry's view).
He saw the locusts eat the growing crops,
With Samson's strength he shook the massy props
Of mammon's temple—tottering now it stands,
Its final fate is left to other hands.
Meek, but when rous'd he rose in conscious might,
Astonish'd churchmen wither'd in his sight.
His eagle genius pierc'd the latest thought,
Dissolv'd their captious questions into nought.
Nor store of gold, nor palaces had h',
Nor friend at court, nor at the grand levee;
Incessant study, preaching, mental toil,
Sapp'd the weak fabric of the saintly Doyle.
Renown'd Braganza, long shall history tell
Thy master's name, the powerful J K L

Dogs Famous in History.

Canines Whose Virtues and Acts Have Given them the Fame of Heroes.

The Greeks raised statues to their dogs. Socrates swore by his dog, and Alexander the Great honored his by building a city with magnificent temples, which he dedicated to its memory.

Plutarch mentions a sagacious dog that King Pyrrhus found beside the murdered body of his master. Afterward it sprung fiercely upon two of the King's soldiers, thus pointing them out as the murderers.

The memory of "the dog of Marathon" lives with the memory of the Grecian heroes who fell with it in that famous battle against the Persian hosts.

A monument was built over the remains of the dog owned by Xantippus, the father of Pericles. Denied admission upon his master's ship, he swam alongside of it from Athens to Salamis and fell dead from exhaustion at the feet of Xantippus the moment he stepped upon the shore.

Homer erected a beautiful memorial to Arges, the dog owned by Ulysses—not out of marble, but in fervent verse that is far more enduring. When Ulysses, after his long wanderings, returned to his home, disguised as a beggar, his dog, then 20 years old, blind and feeble, was the first to recognize him.

There was a dog named Soter, so noted among the Corinthians for his fidelity and watchfulness that he was voted a silver collar, on which the inscripton, "Corinth's Defender and Deliverer."

Another dog famous in history is "the dog of Aubry," that belonged to De Montdidier, a brave officer under Charles V. of France. He saved his master from drowning, and, finding his body some time afterward in the forest, watched beside it for days until reduced almost to a skeleton from hunger. During a game of tennis, Montdidier had a dispute with a brother officer named Macaire, and the latter waylaid and murdered him in the forest. One day the dog met Macaire in the streets of Paris, and, actuated by some rare instinct, sprang upon him and would have killed him had not the people interfered.

Macaire was suspected of being the assassin, and Charles the Wise ordered the issue to be decided by a battle between the dog and Macaire on the Island of Notre Dame. The man was allowed a club and a shield, and the dog a cask to which he might retreat when hard beset. The dog scorned the place of refuge, and in the second encounter fastened his teeth in his antagonist's throat. Macaire confessed his guilt and was afterward executed.—Goodson Gazette.

The Life of Christ.

This was the theme of the Young People's Christian Association, of Bridge St. Church, at the meeting yesterday evening. "Christ's private life," "Christ's public life," "Christ's teachings," were the topics of Miss Nettie Yeomans', Miss Bertha Sills' and Miss Minnie Gardner's addresses. The beauty and attractiveness of the evening in no way detracted from the large attendance.

East Hastings Frauds.

The Governments' Shameless Quibbles and Evasions

The decision of the Government yesterday in the Hastings election frauds case—stripped of legal quibbling, evasions and empty excuses—is a blank and positive refusal to investigate the serious and explicit charges made by Mr. Hudson impugning the integrity of the election machinery. Mr. Hudson is a man whose sterling honesty and straightforward simplicity are proverbial; he staked his honor as a man, and his credit as a member of the House, upon the bona fides of the accusation; the charges gave names and details; they constituted a powerful arraignment of the Government's officials in that riding; no one doubts the substantial correctness of Mr. Hudson's assertions. But Mr. Mowat, in the face of all this, moved an amendment which was designed to cover his discreditable retreat, to misrepresent the actual state of the case to the public, and to hamper the exposure and punishment of a glaring fraud.

Mr. Meredith dissected the Premier's fallacies and showed up completely the inherent weakness and inconclusive character of the Government's defence. If the committee on Privileges and Elections is so little to be depended upon to act fairly, as Mr. Mowat contends, the willingness of Mr. Hudson to submit his case to it, composed as it is of a majority of political opponents, is the strongest evidence of his faith in the charges. It is equally clear that the committee is competent to deal with the matter. The charges could not have been investigated in the election court which took up the East Hastings protests last year, and Mr. Hudson's motion was, therefore, reasonable and necessary.

There is precedent for sending an allegation of stuffed ballot boxes and similar gross irregularities to the committee, and the country will understand the refusal of the Government to investigate to be a flagrant wrongdoing, utterly without justification. The name of every member who voted for such a patent outrage should be kept in mind by the fair minded electors, who know that the Hudson charges should certainly have been probed to the bottom. —Empire.

NOTES FROM THE GALLERY.

(From our own Correspondent.)

TORONTO, April 19.

I was in the House since my last and found them in Committee of Supply, Mr. Awrey, of Wentworth, in the chair. He makes a good chairman. The members who do take an interest in such matters were busy at the Minister of Agriculture's Dept. Mr. Dryden is the successor of Mr. Drury, who was very much a failure, and it was believe that Mr. Dryden would be a great improvement. Judging from what took place in committee, I was far from being favorably impressed. He really seemed to know nothing about the details of the items asked for. He has been about nine months in harness and should know. He was badly roasted by the Opposition; question upon question was poured in upon the unfortunate Minister until he seemed to lose his head altogether. As I was leaving the House I came across one of the Government supporters. To my query, "what did he think of the new Minister?" he replied, I am terribly disappointed; he deserved all he got.—Why didn't he post himself? He is worse than Drury." Mr. Dryden is a very respectable farmer in the county of Ontario; owns a large farm that is well and systematically cultivated. He has also a considerable notoriety as a stock breeder. He has been in the House a number of years, but has never been noted for the part he took in legislation. It is said that Awrey—a farmer—is jealous of Dryden's selection and rather enjoyed the state of things. Whatever the future may develop, one thing is certain—the Dept. of Agriculture estimates were severely criticised and a poor, very poor defence was made. This reminds me to take a look at the Ministers. Mr. Mowat appears to be in his usual form, now over 71 years; Fraser, Minister of Public Works, appears to be suffering from ill-health, a trouble of the throat and lungs; he is often out of the House this session. Hardy, Commissioner of Crown Lands, is still the "little thunder," when occasions require and sits always watchful of the tactics of the Opposition. His natty red tie seems a favorite of his, for he has worn one for years. He does not get the credit for the judicial fairness of his decisions as did his predecessor the late T. B. Pardee. The late Commissioner's death was a loss to the House. Next comes the Minister of Education, G. W. Ross, an able man, no doubt, but a wily, cunning politician. His ability is acknowledged, but he is entirely distrusted by the Opposition. As Meredith said the other night in discussing the School Bill, "I distrust the minister. He never goes straight at what he wants to accomplish. He is a still hunter and goes up the concession and down the side line, when he might better, if he is honest, go straight to the mark." He is a hard worked man, and gives great attention to all educational matters. Gibson, of Hamilton, Provincial Secretary, is the popular man of the Cabinet. Fair in his rulings as chairman of the Private Bill Committee, genial and always gentlemanly, he is liked by both sides of the House. He is a good administrator. His hard fight for a seat was somewhat compensated for by the bye election. We have one more paid member, Mr. Harcourt, Provincial Treasurer, from Monck, who took the place of A. M. Ross, pensioned off with a Toronto office with routine duties worth between $5,000 and $6,000, I am told. He was master of the situation. He was unpopular with his own party, and there was danger if he ran of defeat, and he would run, so he was "bought off," so the story goes. The plea was "failing health." His successor is a genial, pleasant man, made a very good speech in bringing down his budget, and so far is liked all around. Time will tell of his ability. And now comes the member "without portfolio," Hon. Mr. Bronson, of Ottawa. He is the head of the firm of Bronson & Weston, who operate largely in the northern part of the County of Hastings. He is said to have wealth—which came to him as the son of his father. He is a plain, unassuming man of quiet habits, with nothing in his appearance to indicate special ability; but his character, no doubt, and being a lumberman representing the Ottawa lumber interest, are the reasons for his seat in the Cabinet. He is looked upon as a strong party man, but desiring to be fair. I am told he believes in Mowat personally.

Of the eight members of the Cabinet, 5 are Presbyterians, 1 Catholic, 1 Baptist, 1 Church of England; Mowat, Ross, Bronson, Gibson, and Harcourt Presbyterians—Fraser Catholic, Dryden Baptist, Hardy Church of England.

21 PROTESTS FILED.

THIS NUMBER OF ONTARIO SEATS TO BE CONTESTED.

Sir John Macdonald's Among the Protested Seats—Only Thirty Conservative and Seven Reformers Escape—Still Another Batch Confidently Looked For.

TORONTO, April 21.—Yesterday was a big day in the matter of filling election petitions against the return of members in the recent Dominion elections.

Each petition requires $1000 in cold cash to be deposited with the officers of the courts and apparently no trouble seems to have been found on either side to raise the money.

A few minutes after the petition was put in against Sir John Macdonald the petition against Hon. Alexander Mackenzie in East York was filed in the Court of Queen's Bench.

There is practically no difference as to what court the petitions are filed in as the different chief justices meet and assign certain of their colleagues to try the election appeals irrespective of the courts they are entered in. It is not likely that any of the cases will be tried before the fall.

THE TOTTEN PREDICTION.

How He Made His Calculations as to the Second Coming of Christ.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., April 20.—Prof. C. A. L. Totten of the Sheffield Scientific School of Yale, who has made a mathematical calculation, founded on Biblical truths, which he says proves beyond peradventure that the Messiah will come again in 1899, said to-day:

"Some newspapers have published that I predict the end of the world within this century. That is their error, not mine. I don't think that the end will come for a million years, and I haven't made my prophecy about it at all. My remarks were neither comprehended nor even apprehended. But here is what I do declare—not prophecy, for the prophecy is already told in the Bible in the parables of the laborers in the vineyard and the virgins with their lamps.

"A generation, in its true Biblical sense, is three score and ten years—70 years—and so the 57 generations, traced through the genealogies in the Old Testament, equal 3990 years, and hence the 58th generation began with 3991 (year of the world). The hours mentioned in the vineyard are each 153 years. So, multiplying these by the 12 hours, we have 1836, which, added to 3991, equals 5827 years of the world and the completion of the vineyard parable. Then, as the work naturally concluded at sundown, the parable of the virgins and their lamps properly follows. And this parable, according to the text, represents one generation—70 years—which, added to the 5827, makes 5897.

"Now, this 5897 A.M. (year of the world) corresponds to March, 1899. Why? For these reasons: Cæsar pushed the beginning of the old Hebrew year from the autumnal equinox (in September) ahead to March. England pushed the year ahead from March to January, and Pope Exignus mistook the beginning of 4001 for 4000 in computing the birth of Christ. We thus gained six months plus three months plus one year, which equals one and three-quarter years. Deduct from 5897 thus and we have 5895¼, the time at which the bridegroom will come and will find some of the virgins with their lamps untrimmed.

"The 5895¼ year since the birth of Adam will see the bridegroom, who of course is none other than Christ himself. Now, what is 5895¼ A.M. in our A.D. years? Herod ordered all the innocents of two years and younger to be put to death, and in a very short time after that the eclipse of the moon took place. It took place in the year 3998, according to Josephus, and Herod died in that year, too. Now Herod limited his order to children of two years, because about two years before the magi informed him of the birth of the Saviour. So Christ was born two years before the eclipse and the death of Herod took place two years before 3998, that is, 3996. So now subtract 3996 birth of Christ) from 5895¼ A.M. to find the A.D. year, and you leave 1899¼ A. D., or in March, 1899, the bridegroom will come and awaken the foolish virgins.

"When you see the buds bursting you know that harvest will follow in time as a natural consequence, and he who notes the signs of the times will see that the appearance of the bridegroom is not far off. He will come again to correct the abuses of nations and individuals. He will cast out customs that conflict with his teachings. He will expurgate the nations and will establish a better order in the temporal and spiritual concerns of this world. I don't mean by this that I believe the millennium will begin in 1899. I think that is a thousand years away. I say simply that at His second coming Christ will make the world better, as He did at His first."

Arrested on a Capias.

GUELPH, April 20.—George Hutchinson, a moulder, was arrested on Saturday on a capias. It is alleged that the defendant seduced the daughter of William Gauban of Milton and intended to leave for the United States. The capias was therefore issued in order to compel the young man to remain here and stand his trial.

Suicide At Port Colborne.

ST. CATHARINES, April 20.—Dolly Zavitz, 20 years old, son of a farmer living a few miles from Port Colborne, placed the butt of a rifle against the wall in his room and the muzzle to his face and touching it off with a stick, blew his brains out. Illness had effected his brain.

Where is Mr. Larmour?

PRINCETON, April 20.—The people of this village and surrounding country are much exercised over the continued absence of our G.T.R. Agent Frank Larmour, who left here some two months since with a well-filled purse for a two weeks' holidays in Uncle Sam's domains, and to his most intimate friends his long absence is wrapt in mystery.

Accidentally Shot.

Accidentally Shot.

Jacob Brant, an Indian, Shot by a Companion.

Jacob Brant and Isaac Powles, two Indians from the Mohawk Reserve, in company with others have for some time been hunting out at Silver Lake. On Wednesday last Brant was the victim of a painful accident. One of the party was shooting at a porcupine, when Brant, who was near by and unobserved, received one of the shot in his leg, inflicting an ugly wound. It was necessary to travel nearly 40 miles before the injured man could be treated by a medical man; he in the meantime enduring untold agony. After his wound had been dressed he was sent home, arriving in the city last evening and immediately leaving for his home. The wounded member is, however, improving.

"I Have Had

Rheumatism for years, and Nerviline is the only remedy that has done me any good." So writes Thomas McGlashan, North Pelham, July 24, 1890, and his testimony is supported by thousands of others who have experienced the wonderful penetrating and pain subduing power of Nerviline—the great nerve pain cure. Nerviline is just as good to take as to rub on, and is the best family remedy in the world. Nerviline is sold by dealers everywhere.

TORONTO TRUTH'S
New Spring Bible Competitio
NO. 22.

In these latter days there have arisen many false schemes and many scores of imitations of TRUTH's Competitions, but one after another have failed and utterly perished, yet TRUTH remains, and makes good all its promises. It reputation is now too well established to risk damaging it, and as it has cost a very large amount of money and many years of care labor to build up, the publisher could not affo to fail in carrying out all his agreements to th letter. There are twenty-one divisions of the largest list of bona fide prizes ever offered and ever actually given away by any publisher in the world. The total value of prizes in this Spring list is about $10,000,00. The lists ar so large it would cost altogether too much t give them in detail here. There are pianos gold and silver watches, china tea and dinne sets, ladies' and gentlemen's bicycles, silver tea sets, silk dresses, books, money, and hundreds of other valuable rewards. You pay nothing for these prizes, as everyone concedes that full value is received for the dollar in securing TRUTH every week for three months. Send one dollar and answers to the five following questions: Where in the Bible are these words found? 1, GRAIN; 2, CORN; 3, WHEAT; 4, BARLEY; 5, RYE. If your answers are correct and your letters arrive in time you are almost sure to get a reward, as there are so many and eve one cannot always find correct answers to these questions. All the five answers must b correct to get any prize. but you will get fu value for the dollar in TRUTH if you don't ge anything else. If you want to see the list o rewards before sending in your dollar, mai TRUTH ten cents and a copy will be sent you containing the list of prizes. But there have been very few dissatisfied prize-winners in previous competitions, considering that he has given away during the past eight years scores of thousands of prizes. Some people expect a piano for every dollar sent, and are mad if they don't get it. He wishes it were possible to give every subscriber a gold watch or a piano or both, but says it can't be done Some publishers intimate they wil', but nobody can do it for a length of time. Send one dollar and corre answers and you won't repent it; and bea mind that it is not guaranteed that every b whose answers are correct will get a prize, that all the prizes in the twenty-one diffe lists will be given away. The competitio mains open only till the last day of June ne inclusive, after which the prizes will be immed ately distributed to the successful ones. Ten days will be allowed for letters to reach TR from distant points after the 30th of June. however, must be postmarked where mailed n later than the 30th June, or any time betwe now and that date. Prof. H. A. Brown—Your book-keeping is a nearer approach to real business than any other I have seen.

Principal J. W. Graham—It is the only satisfactory work I have ever used or examined.

Hundreds of testimonials such as the above have been given by experienced accountants and principals and proprietors of colleges.

The present edition is the Two Hundredth Thousand.

CHICAGO, 6th April, 1891.

Robert Bogle, Esq., Belleville Business College, Belleville, Ont.:

DEAR FRIEND,—Your very welcome letter of the 13th ult. was duly received.

You asked in your letter if I had any difficulty in performing my work as stenographer. I am glad to tell you that I have not had any difficulty in the least, as you assured me I would not, before leaving your college. I have to write from 30 to 40 letters a day, and there is enough other office work to keep me busy, but it is not hard.

Tell the students never to be afraid, after they have received as careful training as I got.

In conclusion I have to say that any young gentleman or young lady wishing to improve his or her time, may rest assured that they will never regret the time and money spent while attending the above named institution.

Yours very truly,
J. W. ANDERSON,
Stenographer for Messrs. W. H. McNaughton & Co., Real Estate and Investments.

GENTLEMEN—Your Hagyard's Yellow Oil is worth its weight in gold for both internal and external use. During the late La Grippe epidemic we found it a most excellent preventive, and for sprained limbs, etc., there is nothing to equal it.

Mr. Joab Scales, of Toronto, writes:— "A short time ago I was suffering from Kidney Complaint and Dyspepsia, sour stomach and lame back; in fact I was completely prostrated and suffering intense pain. While in this state a friend recommended me to try a bottle of Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery. I used one bottle, and the permanent manner in which it has cured and made a new man of me is such that I cannot withhold from the proprietors this expression of my gratitude."

BEATRIX RANDOLPH

BY

JULIAN HAWTHORNE.

COPYRIGHT BY AMERICAN PRESS ASSOCIATION.

Father, Mlle. Marana is not——

"Hold your tongue, sir! Never mind what Mlle. Marana is not; I and everybody else know what she is! And you stand there before me a beggar, without a cent in your pocket, except what your mistress may have had the compassion to give you, and tell me you will do as you please! By the Lord, sir"——

"I will not permit any man alive to slander that lady," called out young Mr. Randolph, in a white heat of wrath. "She is a lady, every inch of her. Whoever says the contrary lies! You may revile me all you like—I'll not say a word; though, as Mr. Dinsmore here told you, you abandoned my sister to the insults of all the blackguards in town, for the sake of the money she was putting into your pocket. Mr. Dinsmore," he added, turning to that personage, "you are a gentleman and I'll speak to you. You see how I stand, and you can't wish me to feel more humiliated than I do. I love my sister—God knows it—in spite of all the trouble I've brought on her. She has replaced the money I spent, and not a cent of it will I ever touch, if I have to starve in the streets. But when I found on landing in New York today that it was my sister who had been taking Mlle. Marana's place, I knew I was done for. The two women in this world whom I love and honor, by George! are set against each other, and I who would defend either of 'em with my life, can do nothing. After punishment like that, it's not your shrieking and stamping that can make me feel any worse," he said, looking his father in the face.

At this point Wallie thought the time was come to interpose. He had less sympathy with the father than with the son, whose chief crime, after all, seemed to be that he had lost his head and his sense of personal responsibility for love's sake. It was no more than justice that both of them should be arraigned for their behavior, and it was poetical justice that the arraignment of each should come from the other. But it had gone far enough, and was not in itself agreeable for a third person to listen to.

"I think the best thing to do," he said, "is to go to Mlle. Marana at once and learn how she feels about it. The matter may perhaps be arranged quietly. If you'll come with me, Mr. Edward, we'll do what we can."

"All right," returned Ed, whose fit of rage had left him in a very depressed and tractable state. "I'll do whatever you advise."

"And I wash my hands of you, sir!" exclaimed Randolph, Sr., to his son, as the latter moved toward the door. But Ed took no notice of this farewell shot, and he remained pretty much silent all the way down to the Albemarle, where they presently found themselves in the private sitting room of Mrs. Peters, as she still preferred to call herself.

She had been sitting at the piano, but as the gentlemen entered she rose and came to meet them.

"I have the memory of meeting you before," she said to Wallie, as she gave him her hand, whose softness contrasted with the bright hardness of the jeweled rings she wore. She looked at Ed, but made no remark to him.

"I had given up the hope of seeing you this season, Diva," observed Wallie, with a smile. "You drove Gen. Inigo to his wit's end."

"That would be farther than I would like to go myself," she replied quietly. "I think he did not stay long there himself." Her beautiful face was calm and quite impenetrable. If she meant mischief, she meant it very deep down. She did not smile, but neither was there any sign of suppressed anger in her tranquil bearing.

"It is my fortune to be well acquainted with the lady who has been singing here in your stead," said Wallie, who perceived that it would be useless to beat about the bush with a woman of her caliber and temperament. "As she is the sister of your friend Mr. Randolph, I hope to see you friends with her also."

"It is my way to keep the things of business apart from the things of friendship," returned Marana with the slow distinctness that marked her utterance of English. "Edward," she continued, turning to that unhappy young man, "M. Dinsmore has your confidence? He knows of your—foolishness, yes?"

"He's all right," asserted the youth, with a heavy sigh.

"Be so good, then, mon cher, to go down stairs a little and smoke your cigar. It is not three who are company," said she, with a certain aroma of tenderness in her tone, which (Wallie fancied) was more involuntary than conscious.

"Now, monsieur," she continued when they were alone, "after fifteen minutes I await Gen. Inigo. Up till that I am all yours." And she leaned back in her chair and rested one hand within the other in her lap.

"The general will no doubt answer for himself—that is not my affair," said Wallie. "But I should like to know whether you perceive any distinction between his accountability and that of this young lady?"

"You would say it is his fault, but only her misfortune."

"To tell you the truth, Diva, the fault seems to me to lie between all three of you, but less belongs to her than to either Inigo or you."

"It is not I who apportion the fault, monsieur; but if I say the truth shall be known then the affair must turn out as it will."

"But you know that the only one to suffer would be the sister of Mr. Randolph."

A slight movement of the under lids of Marana's eyes showed that she appreciated the significance of Wallie's paraphrase for her rival. "In our profession, monsieur," she said, shrugging one shoulder and looking aside, "we have the necessity to each defend himself without regard of person."

"There are two reasons why people fight—one to inflict injury, and the other to get some advantage for themselves. Is yours the first?"

"Why should you assume it, monsieur?" inquired the Russian.

"Because in this case there is no advantage to be derived. And, besides, though I can imagine Mlle. Marana wishing to crush a rival, I cannot imagine her condescending to make a question [illegible]."

"I had begun to think that M. Dinsmore was too truthful to make any compliments," said Marana with a leisurely smile that enhanced the beauty of her face.

"There may be more respect in what one leaves unsaid than"——

"Ah! I comprehend that also. But—consider it; if I have spent all my life in trying to sing well, and then I find that some one has borrowed my name, so that her singing is thought to be mine—then all that I have done in my life is for nothing. We singers, monsieur, have only our voice; when that is still there is no more of us. If it is taken from us we have nothing left. We put into it all our souls and our hearts, and we work many years—it is work and not play, monsieur—and we have many hard things, many struggles, sometimes we lose everything that other persons love, even love itself. Well, you see, I would more gladly give to some lady all the money that I have earned in my life, and my jewels, and my dresses, than I would permit that, when she sings, the audience should say, 'That is Marana!'"

AS PARMELEE'S VEGETABLE PILLS contain Mandrake and Dandelion, they cure Kidney and Liver complaints with unerring certainty. They also contain Roots and Herbs which have specific virtues truly wonderful in their action on the stomach and bowels. Mr. E. A. Cairncross, Shakespeare, writes: "I consider Parmelee's Pills are an excellent remedy for Biliousness and Derangement of the Liver, having used them myself for some time."

—Pertman—What's the trouble in your church? Van Leer—Why, its all due to Miss Filkins being cross-eyed. She undertook to throw sheep's eyes at the young minister and they focussed on the tenor. He swears he'll resign unless she's put out of the church.

A lady writes: "I was able to remove the corns, root and branch, by the use of Holloway's Corn Cure." Others who have tried it have the same experience.

A GIGANTIC STRIKE.

HUNDREDS OF THOUSANDS OF MEN TO GO OUT MAY 1.

Labor Day Will Be a Remarkable Occasion—France, Austria, Spain and the United States to Witness a Fierce Conflict of Capital and Labor.

London, April 21.—Anarchists are busy throughout Europe organizing for a general strike. In Paris, Vienna and Madrid they are distributing fiery circulars. Fifty thousand of these circulars are said to have been distributed in the barracks of Paris surreptitiously during the past week.

Meetings of workingmen were held on Sunday throughout Austria and Hungary to arrange for demonstrations. In Spain the workingmen are agitating in Barcelona, Valencia, Cadiz, Valladalid, Saragossa and other places, but the trades unions deprecate a strike on the ground that the men are unorganized and lack funds, and that by striking they will only play into the hands of the employers, besides creating a hostile feeling in the Cortes after the Government has projected important remedial measures.

All the European governments have decided to prohibit outdoor demonstrations. The employers are combining to refuse a holiday in Spain, and insist that every indoor meeting must be attended by a Government delegate.

On This Continent.

New York, April 21.—In the United States the situation is just as deplorable. The bituminous coal trade has suffered a terrible blow from the coke strike and will suffer a greater one on May 1. As far as is known up to this time the eight-hour strike of May 1 will be joined in by the 15,000 bituminous miners of the Clearfield, Huntingdon and Broad Top region and the 10,000 men in what is known as the Pittsburg district of railroad miners. The latter are distributed along the Baltimore and Ohio, Pennsylvania and Pan Handle lines within a radius of 75 miles of Pittsburg. The 50,000 coal miners of Ohio, West Virginia, Indiana and Illinois are also in the movement, and most of them will make a stand for the eight-hour day.

In New York the situation is alarming, and half-a-dozen trades unions will go out of work on the refusal of an eight-hour day. At St. Louis the outlook is black. Carpenters, marblecutters, carriagemakers and others are in line with the army of strikers, and will listen to no compromise. In Baltimore the stonecutters have set their teeth in the face of employers, and unless their requisition is heard before May 1 they will, to a man, march in the fight of the idle. The situation in New England is far more bright. Boston workmen want a nine-hour day and more pay, and the smaller cities are in sympathy with the Hub. Excepting the miners the trouble does not appear to be dangerous in the cities of Ohio, Cincinnati and Cleveland.

Where the Strikers are Located.

The following table shows in figures the workmen in leading cities who will go out May 1:

Western Coal Mines:
Estimated in Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois and West Virginia	75,000
New York:
Bricklayers' helpers	20,000
Bricklayers	5,000
Housesmiths	3,000
Marble polishers and stone sawyers	1,200
Furniture workers	3,000
Varnishers	2,000
Machine woodworkers	400
Baltimore:
Stonecutters	2,000
Pittsburg:
Carpenters	5,000
St. Louis:
All trades (estimated)	15,000

Street Railway Employes' Strike.

Detroit, April 21.—Conductors and drivers on some of the lines of the city street railway company struck early this morning, refusing to take out their cars. The service has been considerably crippled during the day, but little violence has been used so far and only two arrests made. Cars are running under police protection. The men hope to be able to induce those who have not yet left their cars to do so.

DIED FROM EXCITEMENT.

The Sight of His Buildings Burning Was Too Much for a Campbellford Farmer.

Campbellford, April 21.—Fire destroyed the barns and outbuildings of John Snarr, lot 23, concession 7, township of Rawdon, yesterday afternoon. Origin unknown. In addition to the buildings there were burnt three horses, six head of cattle and six hundred bushels of grain and hay, etc. The shock proved too much for Mr. Snarr, who was aged 71, and he dropped dead between the house and barns.

P.E.I. GOVERNMENT RESIGNS.

Will Its Successor be a Liberal or a Coalition Government?

Halifax, April 21.—The Local Government of Prince Edward Island has resigned, but the Lieut.-Governor declined a dissolution on the advice of Premier Yeo, and sent for Frederick Peters, one of the Liberal members, for a consultation. Mr. Peters has called a meeting of the Liberal members of both Houses of the Legislature to discuss the situation.

A Sheltered Water Route from Georgian Bay to Lake Ontario.

Ottawa, April 21.—A Trenton deputation to-day asked the Minister of Public Works to deepen Trenton harbor. The Minister of Marine was also asked to establish a lighthouse to Giant's Tomb, near Midland harbor. The deputation waited on Sir John Macdonald at 4 o'clock this afternoon. The advantages of a sheltered water route from Georgian Bay to Lake Ontario were pointed out by the various speakers, who included D. R. Murphy, Trenton; W. H. Bennett, Midland; Major Rippler, Barrie; John Carnegie, Peterboro, and D'Alton McCarthy, M.P., of Toronto. Sir John replied at considerable length. He said in effect that the canal must and will be built.

A Blind Editor Charged with Libel.

Brampton, April 21.—Editor Mungovan of The Orangeville Post was before the magistrate here yesterday, charged with criminal libel preferred by John Willoughby of Charleston. Mr. Mungovan was committed for trial. The case will likely be tried at the spring assizes here. Bail was accepted. Mr. Mungovan is stone blind.

Collapse of the Plan of Campaign.

Dublin, April 21.—At a meeting of the Tenants' Defence League here to-day Mr. Redmond stated that a continuance of the Plan of Campaign was impossible in view of the fact that with the exception of the fund now held in Paris there was no money with which to continue the warfare against the landlords.

A Winnipegger's Opinion.

The following is taken from a letter from Mr. D. Davis, Winnipeg, Man.: "Being persuaded to use Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam for a troublesome cold, I was entirely cured by the use of two bottles."

Dangerous Counterfeits.

Counterfeits are always dangerous, more so that they always closely IMITATE THE ORIGINAL IN APPEARANCE AND NAME. The remarkable success achieved by Nasal Balm as a positive cure for Catarrh and Cold in the Head has induced unprincipled parties to imitate it. The public are cautioned not to be deceived by nostrums imitating Nasal Balm in name and appearance, bearing such names as Nasal Cream, Nasal Balsam, etc. Ask for Nasal Balm and do not take any imitation dealers may urge upon you. For sale by all druggists or sent post-paid on receipt of price (50c and $1.) by addressing Fulford & Co. Brockville, Ont.

Why Not Treat.

WHY not treat such troubles as boils, pimples, blotches, sores, humors, eruptions, rashes, skin irritations, etc., with Burdock Blood Bitters. It is filled with virtue as a blood purifier and goes right to the right spot. It makes the skin bright and clear, while also invigorating the entire system.

Dangers of Delay.

If we were allowed to look into the future and see the fatal consequences that follow a neglected cold, how different would our course be; could we realize our danger, how speedily we would seek a cure; but with many it is only when the monster disease has fastened its fangs upon our lungs that we awaken to our folly. What follows a neglected cold? Is it not diseases of the throat and lungs, bronchitis, asthma, consumption, and many other diseases of like nature. It is worse than madness to neglect a cold, and it is folly not to have some good remedy available for this complaint. One of the most efficacious medicines for all diseases of the throat and lungs, is Bickle's Anti-Consumptive Syrup. This medicine is composed of several medicinal herbs, which exert a most wonderful influence in curing consumption and other diseases of the lungs and chest. It promotes a free and easy expectoration, soothes irritation and drives the disease from the system.

—It is suspected that some of the spring lamb is really of winter lineage.

Chronic Derangements of the Stomach, Liver and Blood, are speedily removed by the active principle of the ingredients entering into the composition of Parmelee's Vegetable Pills. These Pills act specifically on the deranged organs, stimulating to action the dormant energies of the system, thereby removing disease and renewing life and vitality to the afflicted. In this lies the great secret of the popularity of Parmelee's Vegetable Pills.

—The dentist may not be a man of ancestry, but he is one of prominent extractions.

Inflammation of the Eyes Cured.

Mr Jacob D. Miller, Newburg, writes,—"I was troubled with inflammation in one of my eyes, so that during nearly the whole of the summer of 1882 I could not work; I took several bottles of Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery and it gives me great pleasure to inform you that it cured me of my affliction. It is an excellent remedy for Costiveness."

—The Better Way—She—Please hold my wrap. He—Certainly. Shall I put it around you first?

M. Sheeyan, of Cscoda, Mich, writes: I have used Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil for horses for different diseases and found it just as you recommended. It has done justice to me every time, and is the best oil for horses I ever used.

—The young man who can write "a good hand" hasn't half a chance in life with the youth who can hold one.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup has been used by millions of mothers for children teething for over fifty years with perfect success. It relieves the little sufferer at once, produces natural, quiet sleep by freeing the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste, soothes the child, softens the gums, allays pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. Twenty five cents a bottle

Belleville Business College.

Prof. H. A. Brown—Your book-keeping is a nearer approach to real business than any other I have seen.

Principal J. W. Graham—It is the only satisfactory work I have ever used or examined.

Hundreds of testimonials such as the above have been given by experienced accountants and principals and proprietors of colleges.

The present edition is the Two Hundredth Thousand.

Chicago, 6th April, 1891.

Robert Bogle, Esq., Belleville Business College, Belleville, Ont.:

Dear Friend,—Your very welcome letter of the 13th ult. was duly received.

You asked in your letter if I had any difficulty in performing my work as stenographer. I am glad to tell you that I have not had any difficulty in the least, as you assured me I would not, before leaving your college. I have to write from 30 to 40 letters a day, and there is enough other office work to keep me busy, but it is not hard.

Tell the students never to be afraid, after they have received as careful training as I got.

In conclusion I have to say that any young gentleman or young lady wishing to improve his or her time, may rest assured that they will never regret the time and money spent while attending the above named institution.

Yours very truly,
J. W. ANDERSON,
Stenographer for Messrs. W. H. McNaughton & Co., Real Estate and Investments.

NEWFOUNDLAND QUESTION.

The Delegates Arrive at an Amicable Understanding With Salisbury.

London, April 21.—It is reported that the conferences between the Newfoundland delegates and Lords Salisbury and Knutsford have been satisfactory to all concerned and are leading the way to an agreement. It is added that Lord Salisbury has been as conciliatory towards the delegates as Great Britain's engagements with France permitted him to be. Lord Knutsford is also said to have received the delegates' suggestions in a liberal spirit.

The Newfoundland delegates are understood to have submitted proposals which have tended to greatly diminish the tension in the relations between the colony and the British Government. These proposals, it is said, while demanding the abandonment of the Knutsford Coercive Bill, show that the delegates realize this could only be done in the event of the adoption of an alternative means of insuring the faithful performance of the obligations existing between France and England.

It was also found impossible to accede to the delegates' demand for abandonment of the arbitration proposals. The ground for this refusal was that Great Britain was unable to do so on account of the definite engagements she had already entered into with France. But it is added suggestions are under consideration which it is hoped may have the effect of modifying Newfoundland's objections to the action of the British Government.

It is believed the differences between Canada and Newfoundland have been also adjusted and that Canada is supporting the policy of Newfoundland in connection with the bait question.

TORONTO TOPICS.

Toronto, April 21.—Seven toll-gates in York Township were closed yesterday, the municipality having purchased the roads.

Chief Justice Galt yesterday set aside a bylaw passed by the municipality of London West under the recent Local Option Liquor Act. The ground of his decision is that the Dominion, and not the Ontario Government, have the power to pass such a bylaw.

Yesterday morning on the C.P. express from the east Major-General Herbert, accompanied by his aide-de-camp, Capt. Streatfeild, arrived in the city. After registering at the Queen's and breakfasting they were joined by Col. Otter, D.A.G., and Col. Dawson. The quartet visited the Drill Shed, and in the evening attended the reunion of army veterans.

One of the prisoners at the assizes yesterday was Maggie Mullin for forgery. After the jury had retired to consider their verdict the young woman was seized with pains of approaching maternity and by order of the judge was sent to the hospital, where she gave birth to a babe a few hours later. She will have to be again tried on the forgery charge.

Murdered the Whole Family.

Leipsic, April 21.—A gardener named Damm, living in the village of Albrechtshain, murdered his wife and 4 children with a hatchet to-day and then hanged himself. He is supposed to have been made insane by financial troubles.

A Steamship Company's Collapse.

Bordeaux, April 21.—The steam navigation company whose vessels ply between this port and New York is going into liquidation because of loss of money due to reduction of traffic, resulting from the duties imposed upon French articles of export by the McKinley Tariff Act, the French Government's virtual prohibition of American products and the increased duties placed upon American grain.

Failed for $2,500,000.

London, April 22.—B. & A. Homarje, Parsee bankers and merchants of Bombay, have failed, with liabilities of nearly half a million pounds. The failure is due to wild speculation in exchanges.

AWFUL SKIN DISEASE

Child a Mass of Raw, Bleeding Sores. Miraculous Cure by the Cuticura Remedies.

A face, from the hair to the neck on both sides, a raw mass of bleeding sores; two little hands and arms in the same condition; a body around the waist of which was a broad band of bleeding eruptions, and from the hips to the tips of her toes the skin was so raw as to be absolutely sickening to the sight. Said Mrs. H. A. Stout to me: "I have tried everything suggested to me on my little daughter, who has been so afflicted almost from birth. I have had three doctors experiment on her, but she seemed to be getting worse every day. I was almost distracted. Every night I had to bandage her all over, and tie mittens on her hands to prevent her from digging the raw flesh with her fingers. Mr. Faulkner said he believed that Cuticura Remedies would cure her. He offered to bear the expense. At that time she was worse than I had ever seen her, and there seemed no prospect of recovery. Cuticura, Cuticura Resolvent, and Cuticura Soap have wrought a miracle. To-day her skin is smooth and fair, and I believe she has entirely recovered." The above is true in every particular, and I refer to Mr. C. W. Woolever, druggist.

BELLEVILLE, WEDNESDAY APRIL 22

IS GAME OF ANY VALUE TO THE FARMER?

This question is discussed in a pamphlet written by Mr. Edward Harris, Toronto, and published by Messrs. Hunter, Rose & Co. Mr. Harris argues strongly on the affirmative side of the question. After commenting on the virtual extermination of game in the greater portion of the United States and of our older provinces, Mr. Harris starts with the proposition that there is money for farmers in the preservation of game as a business. Our laws however, he contends, leave it "with camping-out parties, professional sports and a few people in the back woods" to continue the extermination of the game. Our author's suggestion involves the making of the law of trespass more stringent, the combination of farmers to preserve the game on large tracts of their lands, and the sale of game and the right to kill it on such lands. We cannot afford space for a full statement of Mr. Harris' opinions and arguments, but advise the reader to purchase and peruse his pamphlet, copies of which can be had for 10c. each from the publishers, Hunter, Rose & Co., Toronto.

DIVORCES IN PHILADELPHIA.

We clip the following from the Philadelphia Press of the 16th March. It portrays a state of society not at all commendable, yet it is the country to which our unrestricted Grits desire to annex us. The Press says:

"The remarkable increase in divorces in this city, an increase from 1880 to 1890 nearly twice as fast as that in population, which will shock many and nearly all not already familiar with the facts.

"But this increase is not one-half so remarkable as the change in the past decade in the sentiments of society and the community at large upon the position and reception of divorced couples and those who marry one or the other parties to a divorce. The divorce law of this state has been unchanged for years. The increase in the number of divorces has gone on with tolerable regularity for thirty or forty years past. Each decade has seen more divorces than the preceding, and each has also seen increasing attention in press and pulpit to the evils of divorce.

"This increase has been gradual. The change in the attitude of the community to the social position of men and women who have gone through a divorce court has been radical, sudden, and overwhelming. It has nearly all taken place in ten, certainly in twenty years, and it has affected all classes, the rich and the poor, the religious and the irreligious, city and country. Divorce, if no special disgrace or scandal attends the separation, can scarcely be said longer to carry a stigma or in the community at large a serious condemnation, and in all grades of society it has become if a bar, if bar it is, which only tact and time are needed to surmount in the return to full social acceptance.

"This change, which must be apparent to everyone, is a far more serious one than any increase in the number of divorces, and it has had thus far but little attention."

The following is an extract from the article alluded to:

"Applications for divorce in this city and final decrees breaking the marital tie have in ten years increased beyond all proportion to the increase in population."

"A comparison of the figures representing the number of divorces applied for and granted in 1880 and in 1890, with the figures representing the population of Philadelphia in 1880 and in 1890, show that applications for divorce have increased almost twice as fast as the population, and that the number of divorces granted have increased more than three times as fast as the population.

"It is shown in the dockets of the office of the Prothonotary of the Common Pleas Courts that in 1880 there were 332 applications for divorce. The dockets for 1890 show that during that year there were 483 applications. In 1890 the population of the city was, by the census returns, 847,170. In 1890, it was 1,045,396. Approximately the increase, according to these figures, is 45 5 27 per cent. in the applications for divorce and 23 2 5 in population.

"A greater discrepancy even than this is seen in the number of divorces granted. While 332 divorces were applied for in 1880, the record for that year show that only 194 were granted. In 1890 there were 483 applied for, and 849 granted. These figures indicate that while in later years a larger proportion of applications are granted, the number of divorces granted in 1890 was 79 9-10 per cent. greater than the number granted in 1880."

Canadians, how do you like it? It looks very much like unrestricted licentiousness.

Men That Jump

at conclusions, are generally "off their base." Because there are numberless patent medicines of questionable value, it doesn't follow that all are worthless. Don't class Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy with the usual run of such remedies. It is way above and beyond them! It is doing what others fail to do! It is curing the worst cases of Chronic Nasal Catarrh. If you doubt it, try it. If you make a thorough trial, you'll be cured. $500 forfeit for an incurable case. This offer, by World's Dispensary Medical Association, Buffalo, N.Y. A Story and its Sequel

(Ottawa Citizen.)

The local organ of Sir Richard Cartwright finds great pleasure in gloating over what it is pleased to call "the exodus from the Ottawa Valley," and points with a touch of pride, as much as to say, "there, I did that!" to the statement that "Emigrants' effects formed the second largest item in the exports from the Ottawa consular district to the United States in the first quarter of 1890." The organ says, "The $4,625 worth of emigrants' effects shipped from Ottawa to the United States during the past three months indicates a pretty large exodus of people during that time;" but neglects to state that almost the whole of that amount represented the effects of a party which recently left here for Seattle, one of the "boom" towns on the Pacific coast. And how has that party fared? By a curious coincidence last night's Journal contains the sequel to the exodus story of the Free Press. Here it is:

"Apropos of the recent exodus to Seattle, Washington, a letter was received a few days back from one of the Ottawa families who formed part of the exodus, saying they were starving and begging for money to help them to return home. Their friends are now trying to raise money enough to bring them back, but owing to the slack times in Lower Town, have not yet been able to make up the sum required. A small sum to purchase food was sent them. The head of the family had a small but thriving little business in Ottawa, and was earning enough to bring up his family in respectability. He had put away $500 when the Liberal blue ruin cry and the Seattle craze together reached him, and he joined the exodus. Part of his $500 went in fares and the rest in buying food, while he vainly sought for work. He writes that the country is overrun with people out of work who scramble like desperadoes for every little chance to make a few cents. Not until his money had entirely disappeared and his wife and little ones were actually without food and shelter did he appeal to his Ottawa relatives and disclose the truth. They had supposed he was making a fortune and many of his Lower Town friends were preparing to sell off and follow him. Fortunately for them, times were slow and it proved hard work the past winter to dispose of anything, otherwise probably twenty more families would have gone to Seattle to share the sufferings of those already there."

Comment on the above is unnecessary. While one cannot but feel pity for the poor misguided people who have been fooled by sharp Yankee agents, and designing Canadian tricksters, still we must confess that our sympathy is not very deep for those who allow themselves to be gulled by the Grit cries of blue ruin on one hand, and glowing tales of the agents of the "boom" town on the other. If people will be fools, they must bear the penalty of their folly. No amount of good advice will save them. There are thousands of starving Canadians in the United States at this moment, who curse the day on which they left their native land, and are trying their utmost to get back to it, and who have learnt by bitter experience the folly of listening to the wailings of Sir Richard Cartwright and his fellow-plotters, that Canada was going to the dogs, and the sooner everybody got out of it the better.

Montreal Cattle Market.

The general position of the live stock markets remains about as it was last week. The Morris Goldsmith combination have stopped buying for future delivery, after having secured 12,000 head of cattle. A western man who has a controlling interest in about 1,200 cattle was in town last week, and had all but closed out the entire lot, when instructions were received to stop buying. Whether the combine have secured all they require or not remains to be seen. Their buyer here is still picking up odd lots to be shipped via Boston, a train of eleven cars being sent forward on Friday night for the steamer Bostonian, and a few small lots being picked up for shipment on Wednesday of next week. Advices from the country are that the farmers are still holding for high prices—much higher than they should expect in the natural course of events.

The local cattle market shows considerable improvement, prices being fully ½c higher than they were a week ago; but cattle can still be bought here cheaper than in the country. Good butchers' cattle sold from 4¾@5½c, medium from 4c@4½c, and rough oxen, large bulls and half-fat beasts at 3¼c@4c. There was a good demand for all small stock. Good calves sold readily at $6@$11 a piece, and inferior animals at $3@$6. Lambs brought from $3@$5.50 a piece, the ruling price being about $5, and sheep sold from $3.50@$7.—Gazette, April 21.

IN A HEAP OF TROUBLE.

PORTUGAL HAS A SERIOUS REVOLT ON HER HANDS.

The Officers of a Garrison on the West African Coast Murdered—King Carlos Must Also Answer to England for Firing Upon British Steamers.

LONDON, April 21.—The annual meeting of grand habitation of Primrose League (organized in honor of Lord Beaconsfield and with the purpose of propagating Conservative doctrines) was held at Covent Garden Theatre this city to-day. An immense assemblage of Conservatives, which included many of the best known men and women in England, was present. All the leaguers and their friends wore badges of primroses. Lord Salisbury, who presided, was greeted with loud and enthusiastic cheers.

The Countess of Radnor opened the meeting with singing "God Save the Queen," the audience joining in the refrain.

Lord Salisbury then addressed the meeting. He sketched the origin and growth of the Primrose League, saying it now numbered 1,000,000 members, a statement which was warmly applauded.

Referring to the political situation Lord Salisbury said that though the present aspect of affairs was encouraging the Conservatives must not doff their armor. The Irish question was one which this generation must solve. He, however, did not believe the coming general election would solve the question. Whichever way the elections went he could promise that the other party would have no rest so far as the Irish question was concerned. [Great cheers.] Lord Salisbury said that, thanks to Mr. Balfour, there had been five years of resolute government in Ireland, which country was now enjoying a state of peace and prosperity which it had not known for years. The speaker declared that he would regard Parnell's success as one of the greatest blows which the Empire could receive and the success of the anti-Parnellites would be not less injurious. They knew, said Lord Salisbury, that Parnell had the sympathy and received the support of American conspirators, while Mr. McCarthy, they were also aware, represented the secular efforts of some people who had high spiritual rank in the Romish Church. [Applause.] He thought the reverence and respect due to the bishop would disappear when they had behind them the familiar features of Mr. Schnadhorst (the organizing chief of the Central Liberal Association). Could they imagine, continued Lord Salisbury, the Archbishop of Canterbury summoning the Protestant clergy to resolve upon a change in the leadership of the Conservative party? [Laughter.] He would certainly demur at such an exercise of influence, and he would not be alone in demurring. Imagine an English clergyman denouncing from the altar every Liberal in his parish, and the London clergy leading their submissive flocks to the polls under threats of spiritual consequences in case they refused. In Great Britain this was impossible, yet the English electorate were asked to place Ireland under this hybrid secular-ecclesiastical power. In so doing they would place their brethren of the north of Ireland under a novel monstrous power from which they would receive no mercy. [Cheers.]

Lord Salisbury advised a courageous, unflagging pursuit of the objects and aims of the Primrose League. He said there were times of great danger before them. The society had a great cause to maintain. It had been raised up at a critical period of England's necessities to defend principles having the sanction of centuries and thus defeat the wild, fantastic imaginations which were leading astray many communities in many parts of the world.

THE FRENCH FLAG.

Serious Revolt in a Portuguese Dependency on the West Coast of Africa.

LONDON, April 21.—The Press Association announces that Lord Salisbury has directed the British Minister at Lisbon to demand from the Portuguese Government an immediate explanation of the seizure of British vessels at Beira, and that if the response is not satisfactory Lord Salisbury will insist upon reparation.

LONDON, April 21.—The natives of Portuguese Guinea, west coast of Africa, have revolted and have hoisted the French flag. The garrison on the island of Bissao has been overpowered and all the Portuguese officers and soldiers massacred.

The rebels on the Island of Bissao number 6000. They have had two battles with the Portuguese and have completely routed them, 400 native levies and four Portuguese officers being killed and 21 men wounded. In addition 71 men are reported missing. Reinforcements will be sent from Lisbon to the scene of the revolt.

Grave Fears of the Result.

LONDON, April 22.—A correspondent at Madrid says grave anxiety is felt there over the state of affairs in Portugal. He expresses fears that a revolution is about to break out, in which event, he says, the lives of foreign subjects will be endangered.

MORE FIGHTING IN ASSAM.

British Forces Continue to Punish the Manipuris.

SIMLA, April 21.—On Sunday the Manipuris approached near to camp and throughout that night kept up a desultory fire upon the British force without, however, doing much harm. The next morning the British force made a rapid, skilful advance upon them. The engagement was short, sharp and decisive, and the enemy was completely routed. The Manipuris had 150 killed and a number wounded; only one Englishman was killed and four were wounded. All the villages in the vicinity of the camp were burned.

A Minister Injured.

WALKERTON, April 21.—The Rev. Mr. Fatt, rector of St. Thomas Church, was thrown out of his gig, and becoming entangled in the lines was dragged some distance through the street. One of his legs was broken below the knee, other injuries being also sustained.

Defective Braces Cost a Life.

LONDON, April 21.—Owing to defective bracing an old building which was being removed at the Imperial Oil Works collapsed to-day, and a man named Nugent was struck on the head by the falling timber and probably fatally injured.

It Went Off.

SPARTA, Ont., April 21.—While Charles Minor, son of Jordan Minor, was examining a revolver yesterday it discharged, the ball striking Herman Douglas, aged 17, in the ribs, 1½ inches above the heart. He will die.

A FLINT MINE.

Important Discovery on Pilgrim Island, Province of Quebec.

MONTREAL, April 21.—What is claimed to be an important discovery in the mining world has been made on Pilgrim Island, seven miles from Riviere Du Loup, in the shape of a silex mine which is the first of the kind found in Canada. A delegation of leading citizens from that place passed through the city yesterday on their return from New York, where they succeeded in interesting a number of capitalists with the object of exploring this mine, which is said to be most valuable. Factories for manufacturing glassware will, if certain concessions are made, be established at Riviere du Loup, where there is magnificent water power. It is claimed that the Local Government will grant a liberal subsidy.

A MUTINY IN THE GUARDS.

The Grenadiers Refuse to Obey Their Officers When Ordered Out On Parade—Complaints of Tyranny.

LONDON, April 21.—There is renewed and great excitement in military circles caused by a mutinous demonstration in the 3rd Battalion Grenadier Guards, in almost every particular similar to that which caused the second battalion of Grenadier Guards to be sent to Bermuda in disgrace. The Guards, who are at present at Chelsea barracks in this city, were ordered to parade in full marching order at 8 o'clock this morning. The men, who have been in a sullen frame of mind for some time, refused to obey. Then the officers consulted with the non-coms. and the latter appealed with some effect to the men, for a little later four companies formed up on the parade ground. The remaining companies, however, remained in their barrack rooms. The War Office officials were communicated with and the oldest members of the more discontented portion of the battalion, the men having the longest terms of service, were placed under arrest and an investigation into the cause of the mutiny was commenced, in order that a preliminary report upon the subject might be placed before the Duke of Cambridge, the commander-in-chief of the forces. The discontent has been growing for a long time. The men declare that they have been long subjected to a series of excessive and annoying drills for which there was no cause or reason. They assert that these alleged excessive drills were not ordered with the view of perfecting the battalion in military manœuvres or in the manual of arms, but the men say that these drills were ordered solely for the convenience of their officers. In addition the Grenadiers say that owing to the absence of their second battalion in Bermuda all the recruits of the Grenadier Guards are sent to the first and second battalions, thus necessitating continued extra drill and consequent hard work for large numbers of well-trained experienced soldiers, who might be spared the extra trouble and annoyance if their officers exercised a little more judgment and a little more feeling for the men under their command.

The Outbreak Premeditated.

The outbreak appears to have been a premeditated affair. It was at first supposed the trouble was confined to the Guards quartered at Chelsea Barracks. It is now announced that there was also a serious display of bad feeling upon the part of a detachment of Grenadier Guards quartered at St. George's Barracks. This morning, as usual, they were ordered to parade, and after some delay did turn out, but when they appeared on the parade ground it was evident they were depressed and discontented. Three Guardsmen, however, refused to parade in spite of all arguments and were placed under arrest.

$300 DAMAGES.

Emily Jane Secures a Verdict Against an Adelaide Farmer.

SARNIA, April 21. — At the Lambton Assizes to-day a jury returned a verdict of $300 for Emily Jane Hendrick in her suit against William S. Chesney for breach of promise and maintenance of child. The parties reside in the township of Adelaide, county of Middlesex. Plaintiff is a handsome, attractive young lady and the defendant is a well-to-do farmer. The plaintiff in her evidence stated the defendant had asked her to marry him two or three times before she consented. Defendant pictured to her a brilliant future and told her about the nice home they were going to have, and she commenced to prepare her trousseau. On cross-examination Mr. Lester asked the plaintiff why it was she jilted her first lover, G. Munro, who was a very handsome, affable fellow, and why she took to the defendant. After some hesitation plaintiff admitted that part of the reason was that defendant had more money, and, she added, "He told me he liked me so much."

Secured $50 Damages.

HAMILTON, April 21.—At the assizes today A. D. Gough of Toronto sued Smith, the clothing man here, for damages for advertising a stock purchased from him as a bankrupt stock, when in reality he was quite solvent, though he disposed of his stock to Smith at 70 cents on the dollar. Plaintiff secured a verdict of $50 and costs.

LACROSSE MEN IN SESSION.

Annual Meeting of the Canadian Lacrosse Association in Toronto.

TORONTO, April 20.—Probably the largest meeting of lacrosse delegates ever held in Canada took place in the reading room of the Rossin House yesterday. Representatives were present from all sections of Ontario.

A. H. Baird, Paris; George Thompson, Orillia, and W. C. Kennedy, Toronto, the Nominating Committee, reported that new clubs, as follows, had applied for admission, recommending their election: Junior Hurons of Goderich, Gravenhurst, Puzzlers of Simcoe, Ætnas of Georgetown, Walkertons, Mechanics of Toronto Junction, Mildmays, Dauntless Juniors of Clinton, Junior Beavers of Seaforth, Kingstons.

The election of officers resulted:

Hon.-President—H. J. P. Good.
President—James Vance, Ingersoll.
First Vice-President—F. W. Garvin, Toronto.
Second Vice-President—M. E. Mitchell, Milton.
Secretary-Treasurer—Harry O'Loughlin, St. Catharines.
Council—C. A. Kendall, Toronto Athletics; W. Baikie, Barrie; J. A. McFadden, Stratford; G. Thompson, Orillia; A. H. Baird, Paris; W. Cross, Madoc; W. C. Kennedy, Capitals; F. Glanville, Lornes; W. Coulter, Mechanics; A. J. Bampfield, Niagara Falls.

There are now 13 championships in connection with the C. L. A. as follows:

(a) Senior, (b) Intermediate, consisting of 11 districts, all, except two, of which were contested last year, the Excelsiors being in the Niagara and Gerry districts, where there are no district clubs at present in affiliation with this association. The council expects to witness a revival of the game there during the season.

The championships are held as follows:

Senior—Athletics of St. Kitts.
Intermediate—Excelsiors of Brampton.

District champions:

Southern—Lisgars of Tilsonburg.
Southwestern—Kents of Blenheim.
Saugeen—Walkertons.
Western—Stratfords.
Southern Junior—Stratford Juniors.
Central—Excelsiors of Brampton.
Northeastern—Orillias.
Northwestern—Lornes of Mount Forest.
Eastern—Checkers of Beaverton.

Stratford was admitted to the senior series after considerable discussion. Seaforth, also of the Western district, vigorously opposed the admission, but strong speeches by Messrs. Hunter, Rose, Ballantyne and Baird with Stratford's good record caused that club's election.

Very little alteration was made to the constitution. Senior clubs must put up $100 security, while intermediate and junior teams go untaxed.

The most important change made to the playing rules was the one giving the referee the same control over field captains as players. Their removal from the field for a sufficent offence may therefore be looked for this season.

Cherish the Living.

Regard for the living is far more helpful to the world than regret for the dead. The truest life companion is he or she who would prefer to have the one left behind make another happy, rather than spend the time in enervating memories of an unrecallable past.

A chap in New Orleans advertised that he would give instructions in the "art of assassination," and he had to skip the town to avoid arrest. He said he did it as a joke, but New Orleans are not joking very much nowadays.

TORONTO TRUTH'S New Spring Bible Competition

NO. 22.

In these latter days there have arisen many false schemes and many scores of imitations of TRUTH'S Competitions, but one after another have failed and utterly perished, yet TRUTH remains, and makes good all its promises. It reputation is now too well established to risk damaging it, and as it has cost a very large amount of money and many years of care and labor to build up, the publisher could not afford to fail in carrying out all his agreements to the letter. There are twenty-one divisions of the largest list of bona fide prizes ever offered and ever actually given away by any publisher in the world. The total value of prizes in this Spring list is about $10,000,00. The lists are so large it would cost altogether too much to give them in detail here. There are pianos, gold and silver watches, china tea and dinner sets, ladies' and gentlemen's bicycles, silver teasets, silk dresses, books, money, and hundreds of other valuable rewards. You pay nothing for these prizes, as everyone concedes that full value is received for the dollar in securing TRUTH every week for three months. Send one dollar and answers to the five following questions: Where in the Bible are these words found? 1, GRAIN; 2, CORN; 3, WHEAT; 4, BARLEY; 5, RYE. If your answers are correct and your letters arrive in time you are almost sure to get a reward, as there are so many and every one cannot always find correct answers to all these questions. All the five answers must be correct to get any prize, but you will get full value for the dollar in TRUTH if you don't get anything else. If you want to see the list of rewards before sending in your dollar, mail TRUTH ten cents and a copy will be sent you containing the list of prizes. But there have been very few dissatisfied prize winners in previous competitions, considering that he has given away during the past eight years scores of thousands of prizes. Some people expect a piano for every dollar sent, and are mad if they don't get it. He wishes it were possible to give every subscriber a gold watch or a piano or both, but says it can't be done. Some publishers intimate they will, but nobody can do it for any length of time. Send one dollar and correct answers and you won't repent it; and bear in mind that it is not guaranteed that every body whose answers are correct will get a prize, but that all the prizes in the twenty-one different lists will be given away. The competition remains open only till the last day of June next, inclusive, after which the prizes will be immediately distributed to the successful ones. Ten days will be allowed for letters to reach TRUTH from distant points after the 30th of June. All, however, must be postmarked where mailed not later than the 30th June, or any time between now and that date. Address S. Frank Wilson, "Truth" Office, Toronto, Ont., Canada.

HISTORY REPEATS ITSELF.

in wall paper as in everything else, once in about every ten years.

It is not ten years ago though since the "fad" of papering ceilings was all the rage, nor was it five years ago! Yet this season there is a very strong demand for ceiling papers and decorations, and we firmly believe that papered ceilings will always be fashionable.

* * *

How do we know?

We'll tell you.

Economy and common sense have done it.

The world of fashion produces periodically a "fad" and if it receives "official recognition" from some fashion leader, it is considered "quite the proper thing" by the votaries of fashion and a craze ensues.

* * *

Fashion dictates more severely and draws finer lines in the matter of decoration than in anything else under her sway, and it sometimes happens that some of her "whims" become permanencies or "things of beauty and a joy forever." Economy is the great factor that transforms what was once a "fleeting fancy" into a permanent reality and that's where common sense steps in.

Although the craze of papering ceilings died out for awhile, it has returned again, not as a craze, but as a good big morsel of hard common sense, and it has come to stay. It's admitted superiority over every other style of ceiling decoration, both in attractiveness and ECONOMY has forced "fashion" to the wall for once and in spite of herself she "returns to her first love," thus waiving the formality of waiting the allotted decade for "History to repeat itself."

Try and remember that economy and common sense have done this - for where can you find a better field for decoration in your whole house than a ceiling presents?

Please make a note of this.

Catapults and Air Guns.

If there is not already a city ordinance prohibiting the use of catapults and air guns by boys, then some city councillor will confer a favor by getting one passed. We have numerous complaints of the damage done by their use.

The Salvation Army.

To-morrow night Brigadier Glover and Staff Capt. McIntyre, with about forty officers from all over the Dominion, will visit this town. Some wonderful facts will given concerning the advancement of the war. All are invited. Annie M. Golden, C. O.

The Condemned.

Jas. Kane, the condemned murderer, causes no trouble whatever to the gaol officials, in fact he endeavors to make it as pleasant as possible to everyone with whom he comes in contact. He is perfectly resigned to the fate which awaits him on the 21st of May.

Conspiring to Assault.

Argument was heard this morning in the case of Samuel Dunning against Joseph, Wm., Anson, and Miles Latta, who were charged with conspiracy to assault. Mr. F. E. O'Flynn appeared for the plaintiff, and Mr. W. J. Diamond for the defendants. Judgment reserved until Saturday.

The Double Track.

The contractors yesterday commenced at the east end of the viaduct at Port Hope to build the double track on the G.T.R. The whole line between Toronto and Montreal it is said, will be completed by the first of January 1892. This will give such an impetus to traffic on the main line as it has never had before.

The Point Ann Quarries.

A very large amount of work is being done at the Point Ann quarries, where over 150 men are employed. Murray & Cleveland are getting out stone there for the two canal locks now building at Morrisburg, and Messrs. Sinclair and Doheny have a large force of men getting out stone for the Grand Trunk. The pay roll is about $10,000 per month.

The Tramp Nuisance.

A number of these worthless beings have appeared in the city the past few days, the majority of whom are young men capable of performing a day's work. Yesterday the police drove a number out of the city, they having congregated near the railway bridge on North Front street. If an example were made of some, by placing them at hard labor, the city would be passed by.

What it Costs.

Must be carefully considered by the great majority of people, in buying every necessities of life. Hood's Sarsaparilla commends itself with special force to the great middle classes, because it combines positive economy with great medicinal power. It is the only medicine of which can truly be said "100 Doses One Dollar," and a bottle taken according to directions will average to last a month.

He Got "Immersed."

A Methodist, "immersed" in a Presbyterian Church, is what actually occurred in this city yesterday. The Baptist Church, it is generally supposed, is the only one in the city supplied with a "baptistry." A Methodist who plunged into, "went under" and then swam round, in a Presbyterian church yesterday afternoon, can testify to the contrary. The gentleman who got in would not have cared if the water had been that supplied by the Water Works Co., for he can vouch for its purity.

Five Hundred Dollars

If you are asked to take something else send to us direct, and we will send you a bottle by mail on receipt of price. Clark Chemical Co., Toronto, New York.

Getting Warm.—An ice cream will go very nicely. We will have it to-morrow (Thursday). Also, Soda water and Ginger Ale on draft.

"Lost in New York."

General Wm. B. Barton's great aquatic comedy drama, "Lost in New York," will be presented for the first time in this city on Friday and Saturday evenings and at a Saturday matinee at the opera house. The play and company come highly recommended by the press of the entire country. A river of real water, a genuine steamboat that runs at full speed crossing to and fro upon the stage carrying a score of passengers, a prismatic fountain and several novelties in calcium and electric light effects are features of the production. "Lost in New York" is the original tank drama in America and is undoubtedly the most successful. The drama is from the pen of the brilliant playwright, Leonard Grover.

Deserved Retaliation.

Over-shrewd lawyers often furnish their adversaries with weapons. Even the cleverest of them have been put down in open court by equally ready witnesses. "Did you see this tree that has been mentioned, by the roadside?" an advocate inquired.

"Yes, sir; I saw it very plainly."

"It was conspicuous, then?"

The witness seemed puzzled by the new word. He repeated his former assertion.

"What is the difference," sneered the lawyer, "between plain and conspicuous?"

But he was hoist with his own petard—the witness innocently answered:

"I can see you plainly, sir, amongst the other lawyers, though you are not a bit conspicuous."

In another instance, a blow directed against the character of a witness forcibly recoiled.

"You were in the company of these people?" he was asked.

"O two friends, sir."

"Friends! Two thieves; I suppose you mean."

"That may be so," was the dry retort; "they were both lawyers."

The blow that destroys the effect of an adverse examination is occasionally more the result of an accident than of conscious effort. In a trial, not long ago, a very simple witness was in the box, and after going through his ordeal was ready to retire. One question remained:

"Now, Mr. ——, has not an attempt been made to induce you to tell the court a different story?"

"A different story to what I have told, sir?"

"Yes; is it not so?"

"Yes, sir."

"Upon your oath, I demand to know who the persons are who have attempted this."

"Well, sir, you've tried as hard as any of em," was the unexpected answer.

It ended the examination.

"How to Cure All Skin Diseases."

Simply apply "Swayne's Ointment." No internal medicine required. Cures tetter, eczema, itch, all eruptions on the face, hands, nose, &c., leaving the skin clear, white and healthy. Its great healing and curative powers are possessed by no other remedy. Ask your druggist for Swayne's Ointment.

The Jewish Passover.

The Manner of its Observance.

The celebration of the feast of the Passover will be commenced this evening at sunset. It extends over a period of eight days, of which the first, second, seventh and eighth are observed as sacred days, upon which it is unlawful to perform labor or transact business. During the Passover week the consumption of leaven is strictly prohibited; and so scrupulously is this injunction obeyed that any person who violates it is considered to have almost renounced his allegiance to Judaism. Under the heading of leaven are comprised all liquors in whose manufacture grain has been utilized. On the first two evenings of the festival, after the synagogue service, a ceremony termed the "Seder" is celebrated in the homes of the people, at which the master of the house officiates. Around this board are gathered not merely every member of his immediate family, but also those whom he knows to have no regular home. If he has a Jewish servant in his household, the servant sits with the other members of the family for Israelites are required to remember that they were all slaves in the land of Egypt. On the table is placed a large dish in which there are various symbols to commemorate the Egyptian bondage. Among them are horse radish, the roasted shank bone of a lamb, and a mixture of apples and cinnamon, which commemorate respectively the embittered condition of the lives of the Israelites in Egypt, the paschal lamb, and the bricks and mortar which Pharaoh required his Hebrew slaves to make. The blessing of sanctification having been pronounced, the youngest child present asks: "Why do we distinguish this night from all other nights?" and enquires the reason of the distinctive features in its celebration. The master of the house then narrates the sufferings and deliverance of the Israelites, and explains the meaning of the various symbols employed. After the evening meal had been disposed of, the "Seder" is continued and the second portion of it consists of the singing of psalms and hymns in which the Almighty is praised for the blessings which He has showered upon his people.

Cool Drinks and Ice Cream.—Dickens & Son will have the greatest variety of summer drinks and ice cream, this season, ever introduced into Belleville. d1t

Suppression of Religious Orders in Italy.

The Italian laws for the suppression of religious guilds and fraternities, and for the abolition of chaplains in hospitals, asylums, and prisons, began to go into effect in February last. The result is extraordinary. Until a few Sundays ago, there were 5,300 masses celebrated in Rome every Sunday. The number is now reduced to 800. One hundred and fifty-two churches are to be closed at once, and their altars demolished. The pictures and statues, except such as the State thinks proper to reserve for public galleries, are to be sold by public auction. In the rest of Italy they will be destroyed, and not even remote villages will be exempt from this stern decree.

Steps are also to be taken to prevent officers and soldiers from attending mass Sundays, military duties being imposed on them during church hours. All sacred names are being erased from the school books, and sacred emblems are removed from the school-rooms. These laws have created the utmost bitterness among the clergy. The Pope is resolved to spare no efforts to assist emigration to America and Africa. An enormous number of ecclesiastics, who have been receiving salaries from religious institutions, are now without a means of support.

Insurance Business.

The abstract of business done by the Insurance companies of Canada last year, has been issued by the Department of Finance. The fire premiums received totalled $5,841,628—an increase of a quarter of a million over 1889. The Royal leads with $552,723, followed by the Western with $335,190; the Liverpool, London & Globe with $279,594; Commercial Union, $318,697; North British, $313,247; the Queen, $262,485; and the Lancashire, $253,229. Of the total of $5,841,628, the British companies received $4,071,452; the Canadian companies, $1,249,884; and the American companies $520,292. The losses paid by fire companies reached $3,205,376, which was 54.84 per cent of the premiums received against 51.47 in 1889. The gross amount of fire risks taken during the year was $607,688,511.

The premium income of the life companies during the year was $8,167,473, a slight decrease from the previous year. The amount of life insurance in force in Canada is $248,327,052, of which $40,789,971 was effected in 1890. This is a decrease of four millions since 1889. There was a combined excess of income over expendi- of $3,590,000.

The Ladies' Home Journal.

Even that annual bugaboo, house-cleaning, looses its terror before The Ladies' Home Journal's happy faculty for turning things bright side out. It must be a dull housewife indeed who cannot find encouragement and substantial help in the cheery words of Maria Parloa, Christine T. Herrick, Helen Jay and Isabel A. Mallon in the May number, every corner of which is prevaded with the breeze and sunshine of spring, from the dainty verses of Clinton Scollard, Annie Isabel Willis, Mary L. Storer and Madeline S. Bridges, to Eben E. Rexford's flower talks and Mrs. Mallon's page for "The Girls Who Graduate." Issued at One Dollar a year, or Ten Cents a copy, by the Curtis Publishing Company, 433—435 Arch street, Philadelphia, Pa.

Honors to a Canadian Explorer.

Ottawa, April 21.—The Murchison premium for 1891 is to be awarded to Mr. William Ogilvie, D. L. S., of the Department of the Interior. This is the highest award which the Geographical society of Great Britain makes, and is granted for distinguished service to geographical science. Mr. Ogilvie's venturesome trip through the Yukon, Peace and Mackenzie River districts three years ago equalled anything that the most distinguished explorer ever did in equatorial Africa, nearly a thousand miles of this journey being through territory which a white man had never seen before.

A Cure for Constipation Headache.

Dr. Silas Lane, while in the Rocky Mountains, discovered a root that when combined with other herbs, makes an easy and certain cure for constipation. It is in the form of dry roots and leaves, and is known as Lane's Family Medicine. It will cure sick-headache and is the best spring Medicine. For the blood, liver and kidneys, and for clearing up the complexion it does wonders. Druggists sell it at 50c and $1 a package.

District Intelligence.

The bridge crossing the north channel of the Trent river at the Narrows, 100 feet in length, was struck by a large cake of ice on Sunday, 19th, and swept down the stream.

Peterborough has granted $500 to assist the promoters of the Peterborough, Sudbury & Sault Ste. Marie Railway Co. in extending railway connection to the north.

PROBABILITIES

Toronto, April 22.—Southeast to southwest winds; fair to cloudy weather; some local showers; stationary or a little higher temperature.

Rare Absorption in Work.

The late chief justice of Maine, John Appleton, who has just died at a great age, had the literary as well as the legal instinct. He was born to read and love books as well as to be a judge. There was a literary flavor in his written opinions. He knew what was fresh in literature, here and abroad. He found time to read novels—good ones. As a trustee of Bowdoin College, where he graduated just before the golden age of the college, when Hawthorne, Longfellow and other men afterward famous were students, he kept touch with college men. His power of abstraction was great. He lost himself in a case. Absorbed in the details of a procedure, he he would go about in an absent-minded way, almost oblivious of sights and sounds. One day he met his own son, stopped him, and said cordially, "When do you expect your father home?" Life to-day seems so much on the surface, there is so little time to think, so much to do, that this picture of a great lawyer and judge absorbed in his work is particularly attractive.

Decay in the States.

What we have already said about the retrograde condition of Agriculture in Vermont New Hampshire, Massachusetts and portions of New York appears, if we may judge by recent disclosures, to have fallen short of the reality. The State of Vermont has been the worst sufferer, more than a thousand farms therein having been abandoned, while 101 schools in 29 townships have had to be closed for lack of pupils. This statement is contained in a report compiled by Mr. Valentine, commissioner of agriculture and industrial interests. In Massachusetts and New Hamspapire the record is not much more favorable, while in New York a great many farms have diminished in value and a large proportion of them are burdened with mortgages. This showing is certainly worse than anything of which this province or any portion of Canada towards either the Atlantic or the interior has as yet had to complain. The situation across the line has been greatly aggravated by the operation of the McKinley act.

Strange Nomenclature.

There is an old man in Manchester, Eng., who goes by the name of Gagadig Gigadab. His original name was John Smith, but many years ago he began to brood over the possibilities of a mistaken identity involved in such a common name. The name figured frequently in the criminal records, and he became abnormally apprehensive lest he might be confused with some of these bad John Smiths. At last what he feared so much actually happened. One day the papers recorded the capture of an accountant in a bank for embezzlement, and through some blunder of the reporter the identity of the embezzler was confused with the subject of this paragraph, who was also a bank accountant. Then and there he determined to assume a name like unto no other ever borne by mortal man; and in Gagadig Gigadab most people will agree that he has done so. Dickens, in his most erratic flights of nomenclature, never invented anything like it.

Home Comforts.

Mrs. Mary Lowell is a woman of many resources, and has ingeniously perfected an arrangement which serves as an automatic domestic much more easily managed than the genuine articles. The bane of housekeeping to a woman is the lighting of the kitchen fire in the chilly, dismal dawn. Mrs. Lowell is a scientific electrician, and has fitted up wires in the kitchen which communicate with her bedstead in such a way that she has but to touch a knob, and a little shock is given to the fire, which is carefully laid every night. When the lady deliberately dresses and goes down to her kitchen the fire is cheerfully burning, the kettle is merrily boiling, and the oatmeal is nearly cooked. When a process is perfected by which a lady can attach an electric button to her rocking chair which will wash the dishes while she reads or embroiders, the great servant problem will cease troubling.

Furs at Auction.

"People who have never attended the big midwinter fur auction in London," says a fur dealer, "can have no idea of its magnitude. Buyers from all parts of the world—America, China, Australia, Russia, everywhere—come there to bid for furs and stay there until they have secured their stock in trade. The winter just past has been the coldest on the Continent of Europe for fifty years, and furs of all sorts have consequently been higher in prices than for many a season. For instance, silver fox, were sold at $100 a first class pelt last year, now brings $147. In this sale 900 silver fox skins were sold, 2,700 cross fox, 3,400 blue fox, 1,600 white fox, and 56,000 from the common red fox. That will give you an idea of the mighty work done by the trappers."

Aid For a New Railway.

Hon. Messrs. Mowat and Hardy were yesterday waited upon by a deputation composed of Messrs. J. T. Sill, New York; T. D. Ledyard, Douglas Armour and E. Bristol. They asked the Government for aid to the extent of $25,000 for a railway nine miles in length, from Lot 19 in the Township of Belmont, to a point on the Central Ontario railway near Marmora. Addresses in support of the request were delivered by Mr. Bristol and Mr. Ledyard. Hon. Mr. Mowat promised to consider the matter.

"I Have Had

Rheumatism for years, and Nerviline is the only remedy that has done me any good." So writes Thomas McGlashan, North Pelham, July 24, 1890, and his testimony is supported by thousands of others who have experienced the wonderful penetrating and pain subduing power of Nerviline—the great nerve pain cure. Nerviline is just as good to take as to rub on, and is the best family remedy in the world. Nerviline is sold by dealers everywhere.

Clark's Lightning

Liniment will relieve the painful torture of rheumatism in the joints or muscles. It should be well rubbed in with the hand, and the part covered with a piece of flannel. The pain will cease with the first application, and its continued use will effect a marvellous cure. This remedy needs but a trial to convince the most skeptical that it is a wonderful preparation. Sold by all druggists: price fifty cents. Clark Chemical Co., Toronto, New York.

Oh, What a Cough

Will you heed the warning. The signal perhaps of the sure approach of that more terrible disease Consumption. Ask yourselves if you can afford for the sake of saving 50c., to run the risk and do nothing for it. We know from experience that Shiloh's Cure will cure your cough. It never fails.

Not Necessarily for Publication.

Litewayte—"Know thyself," as the old Greek proverb said.

Bronson—But don't tell anybody, unless you want to ruin your reputation.

—Quericus—How are you this morning, old man? Cynicus—I have the grip frightfully; but that is the least of my troubles. Quericus—What is your principal agony? Cynicus—I've taken all the remedies proposed by my friends.

—Englishman—In your country the minority is supposed to give in? American—Yes; providing it can't sell out.

ONTARIO LEGISLATURE.

AMENDMENTS TO THE MINING LEGISLATION PROMISED.

The Ontario Insurance Act and "the Jack"—Courts to Sit on Holidays—Grants to Protestant and Catholic Schools.

Toronto, April 22.—A deputation of parties interested in mining waited upon the Government yesterday to protest against the proposed Mining Act, and laid before the Government the grievances complained of at a recent convention held in Toronto. They submitted this memorandum as expressing the opinion of the meeting:

1. It was inexpedient and would injure the country and the mining industries of the province in their present condition to subject the products of any of the mines, whether located on sold or unsold lands within the province, to any royalty or special tax.

2. The patent should carry to the grantee, subject to such conditions for development as may be imposed, the absolute unlimited fee without reservation, except as to merchantable pine.

3. The price of mining locations in surveyed territory within five miles of any constructed line of railway or graveled road should not exceed $4 per acre, and outside of such belt should not exceed $3 per acre, and in unsurveyed territory within five miles of such railway or road as aforesaid the price should not exceed $3 per acre, and outside of such belt should not exceed $2 per acre.

4. That the laws applicable to mining should, as far as possible, be general and that the laws of the province relating to mines and mining should as soon as possible be simplified and consolidated.

Mr. Mowat said the matter had already received serious consideration and would continue to do so. The deputation then withdrew.

Mr. Gibson's bill to amend the Ontario Insurance Act by providing that a company shall not be liable for any loss occasioned by the use on the insured premises of a steam engine within 100 feet of a barn or stack met with strong opposition from representatives of rural constituencies in the Assembly yesterday. The bill was introduced at the instance of the Fire Underwriters' Association Mr. Gibson said that in cases where the engine could not be placed at a distance of 100 feet straightaway the farmer could use an instrument called a "jack," by which power can be transmitted round a corner. Mr. Awrey said the bill had a wider scope than the promoter dreamed—[laughter],—that a "jack" costs about $75, and as it was estimated that there were over 2000 engines in use the bill would involve an expenditure of $150,000 on "jacks"—a very good thing for the "jack" company. Mr. Bishop showed that of 1100 fires in 1888 5 were caused by such engines and of 1000 in 1889 6 were caused by them, while each year more fires were caused by tobacco pipes. [Laughter.] "Mr. Speaker, I think there is something behind this bill which is not on the face of it." [Laughter.] That settled it. The debate was adjourned on the motion of Mr. Fraser.

Mr. Meredith, in moving the second reading of his bill to provide that courts shall not sit on Christmas, New Year's and other holidays, and that the business of courts shall not be continued after 6 p.m., said he would be satisfied if the House assented to the principle of the bill, and would not press it any further this session.

Mr. Mowat, however, was opposed to the bill and refused to allow it to be read a second time. The vote for the second reading resulted 35 yeas, 49 nays. The division was on party lines, except that Messrs. Biggar, Guthrie and Paton supported the bill.

In committee of supply the item of $132,557 for hospitals and charities, an increase of $5579 over last year, raised a discussion upon the grants made to Roman Catholic and Protestant institutions respectively. Mr. H. E. Clarke pointed out that 29 Protestant charitable institutions received $17,014, having 1761 Protestant inmates and 88 Catholic inmates. Nineteen Roman Catholic charitable institutions received $28,160, having 94 Protestant inmates and 3263 Roman Catholic inmates. The total grant to 17 general hospitals was $67,008, with 5208 Protestant inmates and 2999 Roman Catholic inmates. The Roman Catholic population of the Province is about 380,000 and the Protestant population about 1,900,000. It might be expected that the grant to Protestant charitable institutions would be five times that to Roman Catholic ones, but instead it was $11,000 less. There were 1855 Protestants and 8351 Roman Catholic inmates. The only explanation could be that there was a different system of enumeration in the two classes of institutions. The inspector should make some inquiry into the mode of enumeration.

Mr. Fraser said the discussion was sprung upon them without notice and therefore an absolute answer could not be given at once. But the grants were given under the statute and the machinery for calculating the grants was the same in all institutions. He did not know whether the attention of the inspector had been called, to these figures but he was satisfied the details would bear the closest scrutiny. The reason of the apparent disparity in the number of inmates was that the religious minority of the Province was not so well off, especially in the large centres of population. The institutions were called sectarian, but anyone could obtain admission. There was not one institution that was exclusively religious in that sense. Whatever the reason for the difference might be, it could not be charged that the returns were improperly made.

The special committee on the bill respecting undertaking, embalming and organic chemistry struck out all clauses of a compulsory character. As the bill will go to the House it will provide simply for the establishment of the college with powers to grant diplomas and registration certificates. The penalty for the unauthorized use of the title of fellow of the college is fixed at $20 for a first offence and $50 for a second, half of the fines to go to the prosecutor and half to the college. The right of registration is extended to all undertakers and embalmers at present practising in Ontario.

The directors of the Ontario, Belmont & Northern Railway Co. waited upon the Government and asked for a grant of $25,000, or $3000 per mile for their road, which will connect with the existing lines and run to the northern portion of Belmont Township, Peterboro County.

Bought 'Em Too Late.

London, April 21.—Philip Levi, the insolvent Dundas-street clothier, was arrested here last night by Detective Carpenter of Montreal on a warrant charging him with obtaining goods under false pretences from the firm of Horsefell & Co., wholesale dealers of Montreal. The goods are valued at $2900 and were obtained a few months since. The detective and the accused left for Montreal last night.

Attributed to Bismarck.

Berlin, April 21.—An anonymous pamphlet, of which Prince Bismarck is supposed to be the author, has been published in Dresden. The pamphlet is entitled "The Ruin of Austria," and among other things it suggests that Germany's truest policy is an alliance with Russia and Italy. Prince Bismarck, this publication adds, would unhesitatingly allow Russia to pursue her historically mapped-out route to Constantinople through Bulgaria if that would avert a crisis.

A Poll Tax Riot.

Palermo, April 21.—There was a serious riot at Cerda yesterday growing out of the opposition to the poll tax. Two thousand peasants protested against the tax and, invading the prison, released a comrade confined there. Then they marched to the communal offices, where they destroyed the records. Many rioters were arrested. Troops have been despatched to the scene.

SMELLING AT THE CORK.

The smell of the cork won't cure you. Rest assured of that, Madam. That's common sense in a nutshell. Do not take a dose or so of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and expect to feel well immediately. You may find marvelously speedy effects from its use, but chronic, or lingering, diseases, which have had possession of the system for years, can't be cured in a day. Such maladies are generally slow in their inception, slow in their progress, and must be cured, if at all, by slow degrees and regular stages.

Perseverance in the use of the "Favorite Prescription" for a reasonable length of time will cure all those chronic weaknesses, irregularities and derangements with which so many females are afflicted. But the use of this world-famed medicine must be persisted in for a considerable time in long standing, complicated and obstinate cases.

Go to your drug store, pay a dollar, get a bottle and try it—try a second, a third if necessary. Before the third one's been taken you'll know there's a remedy to help you. Then you'll keep on taking it and a cure 'll come.

But if you shouldn't feel the help, should be disappointed in the results—you'll find a guarantee printed on the bottle-wrapper that'll get your money back for you.

How many women are there who'd rather have the money than health? And "Favorite Prescription" produces health. Wonder is that there's a woman willing to suffer when there's a guaranteed remedy in the nearest drug store.

Where proof's so easy, can you afford to doubt?

Threatening to Kill.

This serious offence might well be charged against that prevalent disease Constipation, which threatens to destroy many valuable lives if not stopped. It arises from wrong action of the Stomach, Liver and Bowels, and causes Dyspepsia, Biliousness, Bad Blood, Boils, Pimples, Rashes, Eruptions, Sores and Foul Tumors. It can only be cured by the prompt use of the right remedy, Burdock Blood Bitters, which never fails to cure even the most obstinate cases and is a specific for all diseases of the Stomach, Liver, Bowels and Blood. Thousands testify. Read and learn.

Mr. Joab Scales, of Toronto, writes:— "A short time ago I was suffering from Kidney Complaint and Dyspepsia, sour stomach and lame back; in fact I was completely prostrated and suffering intense pain. While in this state a friend recommended me to try a bottle of Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery. I used one bottle, and the permanent manner in which it has cured and made a new man of me is such that I cannot withhold from the proprietors this expression of my gratitude."

BEATRIX RANDOLPH

BY JULIAN HAWTHORNE.

COPYRIGHT BY AMERICAN PRESS ASSOCIATION.

Wallie looked down, and made no answer.

"You have reminded me," she went on after a few moments, "that this lady is the sister of Edward. Yes, he has very often told me of her; and that we were a little alike—poor boy, he means of one aspect, one presentment; as for the rest, he knows of me only what I have been to him. My other history was not of interest to him; perhaps he would not believe it, even if I told it to him; but, at least, he asked me to be his wife, and though I said no it was not because I feared that he might cease to love me because of what he might afterward come to know. You may laugh at it, monsieur, but I think he would still love me, notwithstanding all of it."

There was something noble and touching in the way Marana said this. Wallie did not feel at all inclined to laugh, and his face perhaps showed it.

"I said no," she resumed; "but later, when I found what he had done, I said yes, so that I might help to make right, and also because it is pleasant for a singer like me to think she can give something to her husband in return for being his wife. But then he would not; in that he was like other men who wish in every way to be the master. But yet, monsieur, there is time to think again," she added, suddenly altering her tone, and looking at him keenly; "a woman has much power over the man who loves her, if she will use it!"

"I do not doubt it at all," said Wallie, meeting her look.

"Do you think I would have power to make him say, 'Well, she is my sister. but she has done what was not just? You shall treat her as if she were any other woman, and I will say nothing; I will help you?'" continued the Russian, with a subtle smile.

"I really believe you might," Wallie answered. "But I can't conceive that you would care to have him do it, or care for him if he did do it."

"Ah! but with us singers it can be different," rejoined Marana, bending upon him a gaze of dark, ambiguous brilliancy. "It is much for us to know, and to prove it to the world, that we are loved beyond measure; yes, beyond honor. It is a triumph, and we love triumphs—ah! who knows how dearly? Men do all they can to ruin us, monsieur, and the world laughs and gives us no mercy. Do you not think it might be sweet to make one man your slave, so that he would do your bidding in all things and worship you?"

"Are you so much in need of a triumph of that kind?" demanded Wallie. Now, whether he so intended it or not, Marana evidently interpreted the question as a covert but bitter satire. She gave a little soft laugh and arose.

"At last, then, we understand each other!" she said. "It is much easier so, is it not? You are too clever for me, M. Dinsmore; you are not a man to be deceived. Yes, in this world, as the French say, il faut accepter les hommes pour ce qu'ils sont—des moyens! We singers especially must use all things for our protection or profit. Tiens * * * drole! Did you think, for your part, you should persuade me to forgive Ma'm'selle Randolph because I make a fool of her brother? Bah! I am a business woman. Business is not sentiment, I think! Enfin, m'sieu', I have enjoyed very much the honor of your visit; foi de Marana, vous etes ambassadeur parfaitement accompli! But your little Ma'm'selle Randolph has a future already happy in the protection of a man like you; she will not grudge me the little that belongs to the true Marana! Au revoir, cher ami!"

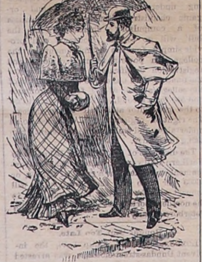
And, laughing once more, she gave him her hand with a free gesture, and Wallie bowed over it with a mingling of admiration and vexation such as he was seldom kindled to. He had recognized his mistake the moment after it was irrevocable.

"Well?" said Ed, getting up with a haggard face from his chair in the smoking room as Wallie entered.

"Well," responded Wallie, "there is no doubt about one thing—she is the great Marana! I think you may as well come with me and see your sister."

CHAPTER XIV.

HOW THEY WERE LOST IN THE STORM.



"So you have returned, Mr. Bellingham!"

From the Albemarle to Wallie's house was not a long distance, but it had begun to snow, and the keen northerly wind drove the flakes straight into the faces of the pedestrians and afforded Wallie a good excuse for keeping his mouth shut, or opening it only for monosyllabic answers to the questions which Ed from time to time addressed to him. With all his pains he had undoubtedly bungled the interview with the Russian star—just at the juncture, too, when he was beginning to entertain the best hopes of success. How swiftly and effectively she had turned the tables upon him! What terrible versatility and self command she had! With what a wicked roguishness had she fired that parting taunt at him about his motive in espousing her rival's cause! "At any rate I'm glad I let her have the last word!" said Wallie to himself; but that was somewhat cold comfort.

He left Ed in the drawing room and went to find Mrs. Cadwalader and Beatrix. He sent the latter to her brother and remained in conference with the former.

Beatrix came softly into the drawing room and saw Edward standing near the farther end of it with his back toward her. She paused, and remained motionless, gazing at him. Her heart went out toward him, and yet she shrank from him. She wished to be in full sympathy with him, but Marana seemed to stand between them. For when she had learned from Geoffrey's letter to Wallie that Marana was Ed's companion she had been forced to the conclusion that the relation between them must be an unlawful one, and the circumstance that Marana, rather than any other woman, should be the person holding this position had affected her with a peculiar horror. There seemed to be something wantonly repugnant in it. She might have prevented herself from definitely realizing the fact had a stranger to herself been involved; but Marana!—she had lived under her name and occupied her place so long as to make her feel that she was in some way personally mixed up in the catastrophe.

AS PARMELEE'S VEGETABLE PILLS contain Mandrake and Danhelion, they cure Kidney and Liver complaints with unerring certainty. They also contain Roots and Herbs which have specific virtues truly wonderful in their action on the stomach and bowels. Mr. E. A. Cairncross Shakespeare, writes: "I consider Parmelee's Pills are an excellent remedy for Biliousness and Derangement of the Liver, having used them myself for some time."

—Pertman—What's the trouble in your church? Van Leer—Why, its all due to Miss Filkins being cross-eyed. She undertook to throw sheep's eyes at the young minister and they focussed on the tenor. He swears he'll resign unless she's put out of the church.

A lady writes: "I was able to remove the the corns, root and branch, by the use of Holloway's Corn Cure." Others who have tried it have the same experience.

ENGLAND'S ULTIMATUM.

PORTUGAL TO BE BROUGHT TO TIME WITHOUT DELAY.

Three British Warships Sent to the Mouth of the Punjwe—Dom Carlos Can't Play Fast and Loose Any Longer—Salisbury's Announcement in the House of Lords.

London, April 23.—Lord Salisbury in the House of Lords to-day, in answer to an interpellation regarding the action of the Portuguese authorities in interfering with Sir John Willoughby's expedition on the Pungwe River, said the members of the English expedition had been treated in a manner not consistent with the engagements of the Portuguese Government. Lord Salisbury added that the demeanor of the Portuguese officials in Africa corresponded so little with the assurances given by the Lisbon Government that it had been decided to send three British war ships to the mouth of the Pungwe River. [Cries of "Hear, hear."]

Lord Salisbury said the men-of-war sent to the Pungwe River would not be large but they would be sufficient for the purpose, the Portuguese minister having intimated that his Government had ordered the removal of the obstacles to free passage into the interior by the river. Lord Salisbury proposed that Great Britain appoint a consul to see that the modus vivendi was observed and said the Government would send a naval officer to act in that capacity. [Hear, hear.]

Boers Threaten a New Complication.

Cape Town, April 23.—A telegram received here from Pretoria, capital of the Transvaal, or South African Republic on April 19, announced that a Boer "trek," or expedition, with the consent of Portugal, was upon the point of leaving the Transvaal with the object of establishing a republic in either Mashonaland or Manicaland, territories in connection with which the British and Portuguese authorities are now engaged in several disputes. This project, the telegram added, if carried out, would affect Manica territory claimed by England, and might result in further trouble between England and Portugal.

Since that time the Lisbon Government has received the intimation, through the public press and through official channels, that the Portuguese Government was apparently courting the visit of a British fleet to Lisbon. Lord Salisbury is understood to have instructed Sir George Glynn Petre, the British Ambassador at Lisbon, to call the attention of the Lisbon Government to the reported Boer expedition, to the detention of the Sir John Willoughby expedition and to other and similar matters which have caused the relations between Great Britain and Portugal to resume a dangerously strained aspect.

Cape Colony Instructed.

Lord Salisbury was not contented with entering a protest against the reported expedition of the Boers. The British Premier, through the Foreign Office, promptly communicated with Sir Henry Brougham Loch, the Governor, British High Commissioner and Commander-in-Chief of Cape Colony, with the result that the latter, with equal promptness, placed himself in communication with the President of the Transvaal, Paul Kruger. The substance of the British Governor's communication to the President of the Boers was that the projected Boer "trek" into Mashonaland with the view of establishing a new republic would be treated as an act of hostility to Her Majesty the Queen of England.

To this distinct declaration President Kruger has just replied. He says that he has damped the projected "trek," and that in addition he has sent messages to the prominent Boers who are suspected of being the leaders of the movement, with the determination to still more clearly impress upon them the necessity of not taking any action which might lead to complications between the Government of the Transvaal and the Government of Great Britain.

Portugal Not in It.

On the other hand, it is understood that the Portuguese Government has assured the British Government that Portugal has not in any way countenanced the Boers' projected raid, and should the Boers obey the injunctions of their President this incident, which threatened to have serious consequences, may be said to have blown over. The Boers, however, are a very crafty race, and their proximity to and meddling with the territory about which Portugal and Great Britain are disputing may yet lead to dangerous complications.

ENGLAND'S REVENUE.

An Excess of Over $7,000,000 in the Estimated Surplus—Beer and Tobacco

London, April 23.—The Budget was submitted to the House of Commons this afternoon by Mr. Goschen, Chancellor of the Exchequer. Mr. Goschen said there was an excess of £1,750,000 over the surplus which he suggested in 1889, but there was no certainty that a progressive increase would be maintained, as the needs of Ireland had increased the expenditure by £200,000. Mr. Goschen estimated the revenue for the coming year would amount to £90,480,000, and the expenditures to £88,440,000.

The expenditures of the postoffice exceeded the estimates by £200,000, of which sum the most was due to increase in wages paid to postoffice employes. The Government did not believe the cheapest labor was the best. [Cheers.]

Mr. Goschen said £900,000 of the surplus arose from the internal revenue duty on alcoholic spirits. There was an increase in consumption during the year of 18,000,000 gallons of home made spirits. Tobacco had given an increase of £456,000 and beer an increase of £875,000.

The net reduction of the public debt during the year was £6,512,000, making a total reduction of over £30,000,000 during the time the present administration had been in office. [Cheers.]

THE PORTE MUST CAPITULATE.

Otherwise Bulgaria Will Proclaim Her Independence—Ferdinand's Ultimatum.

London, April 23.—Bulgaria will shortly request the Porte to recognize Prince Ferdinand as ruler of Bulgaria. In the event of the Porte's refusal Bulgaria will proclaim her independence.

English Alliance With Italy.

St. Petersburg, April 23.—The Novosti says it is certain Lord Salisbury has concluded a treaty of alliance with Italy.

Knighthood for Chapleau.

Ottawa, April 23.—Hon. J. A. Chapleau's name is now connected with the report that Canadians are to come in for a share of Queen's Birthday honors. It is said that he is to be knighted along with Mr. Laurier.

A Winnipegger's Opinion.

The following is taken from a letter from Mr. D. Davis, Winnipeg, Man.: "Being persuaded to use Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam for a troublesome cold, I was entirely cured by the use of two bottles."

Dangerous Counterfeits.

Counterfeits are always dangerous, more so that they always closely imitate the original in appearance and name. The remarkable success achieved by Nasal Balm as a positive cure for Catarrh and Cold in the Head has induced unprincipled parties to imitate it. The public are cautioned not to be deceived by nostrums imitating Nasal Balm in name and appearance, bearing such names as Nasal Cream, Nasal Balsam, etc. Ask for Nasal Balm and do not take any imitation dealers may urge upon you. For sale by all druggists or sent post-paid on receipt of price (50c and $1,) by addressing Fulford & Co. Brockville, Ont.

Why Not Treat.

WHY not treat such troubles as boils, pimples, blotches, sores, humors, eruptions, rashes, skin irritations, etc., with Burdock Blood Bitters. It is filled with virtue as a blood purifier and goes right to the right spot. It makes the skin bright and clear, while also invigorating the entire system.

Dangers of Delay

If we were allowed to look into the future and see the fatal consequences that follow a neglected cold, how different would our course be; could we realize our danger, how speedily we would seek a cure; but with many it is only when the monster disease has fastened its fangs upon our lungs that we awaken to our folly. What follows a neglected cold? Is it not diseases of the throat and lungs, bronchitis, asthma, consumption, and many other diseases of like nature. It is worse than madness to neglect a cold, and it is folly not to have some good remedy available for this complaint. One of the most efficacious medicines for all diseases of the throat and lungs, is Bickle's Anti-Consumptive Syrup. This medicine is composed of several medicinal herbs, which exert a most wonderful influence in curing consumption and other diseases of the lungs and chest. It promotes a free and easy expectoration, soothes irritation and drives the disease from the system.

—It is suspected that some of the spring lamb is really of winter lineage.

Chronic Derangements of the Stomach, Liver and Blood, are speedily removed by the active principle of the ingredients entering into the composition of Parmelee's Vegetable Pills. These Pills act specifically on the deranged organs, stimulating to action the dormant energies of the system, thereby removing disease and renewing life and vitality to the afflicted. In this lies the great secret of the popularity of Parmelee's Vegetable Pills.

—The dentist may not be a man of ancestry, but he is one of prominent extractions.

Inflammation of the Eyes Cured.

Mr Jacob D. Miller, Newburg, writes,— I was troubled with inflammation in one of my eyes, so that during nearly the whole of the summer of 1882 I could not work; I took several bottles of Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery and it gives me great pleasure to inform you that it cured me of my affliction. It is an excellent remedy for Costiveness."

—The Better Way—She—Please hold my wrap. He—Certainly. Shall I put it around you first?

M. Sheeyan, of Oscoda, Mich, writes: I have used Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil for horses for different diseases and found it just as you recommended. It has done justice to me every time, and is the best oil for horses I ever used.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup has been used by millions of mothers for children teething for over fifty years with perfect success. It relieves the little sufferer at once, produces natural, quiet sleep by freeing the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste, soothes the child, softens the gums, allays pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. Belleville Business College.

Prof. H. A. Brown—Your book-keeping is a nearer approach to real business than any other I have seen.

Principal J. W. Graham—It is the only satisfactory work I have ever used or examined.

Hundreds of testimonials such as the above have been given by experienced accountants and principals and proprietors of colleges.

The present edition is the Two Hundredth Thousand.

Chicago, 6th April, 1891.

Robert Bogle, Esq., Belleville Business College, Belleville, Ont.

Dear Friend,—Your very welcome letter of the 13th ult. was duly received.

You asked in your letter if I had any difficulty in performing my work as stenographer. I am glad to tell you that I have not had any difficulty in the least, as you assured me I would not, before leaving your college. I have to write from 30 to 40 letters a day, and there is enough other office work to keep me busy, but it is not hard.

Tell the students never to be afraid, after they have received as careful training as I got.

In conclusion I have to say that any young gentleman or young lady wishing to improve his or her time, may rest assured that they will never regret the time and money spent while attending the above named institution.

Yours very truly,
J. W. ANDERSON,
Stenographer for Messrs. W. H. McNaughton & Co., Real Estate and Investments.

ELOPED WITH AN M.D.

A Traveling Doctor Alleged to Have Eloped With Another Man's Wife.

Guelph, April 23.—Harrison Lyon, who works for Mr. M. O'Connor, Elora-road, was in the city to-day and stated his belief that his wife has eloped with a Dr. McKenzie, who has been staying at the Commercial Hotel since last October. Mr. Lyon's story is that his wife and he lived together for six years until she went to be treated by this Dr. McKenzie, who seems to have won away his wife's affections. Three times she left him, and three times he received her back again. Mrs. Lyon has been working at service in the city for some weeks, and at the last place was visited by her husband and by the doctor, who, she represented, was dogging her. On Tuesday evening of last week she left her place, and has not been seen there since. The same day Dr. McKenzie left the Commercial, saying he would be back in a day or two, but he has not yet turned up. Mr. Lyon is firmly convinced that they have gone off together. The woman is about 25 years old, while the traveling doctor is a middle-aged man and leaves a child in this city.

BLOODSHED IN COKE REGIONS.

Trouble Attending the Eviction of Strikers' Families in Pennsylvania—The Sheriff Furiously Attacked By Women.

Scottdale, Pa., April 23.—Shortly after noon to-day Sheriff McCormick with deputies began making evictions at Leisenring No. 3. A Hungarian woman named Glashko shot at McCormick, the ball inflicting a painful flesh wound in the hand. The sheriff grappled with the woman and wrested the revolver from her. She then secured an ax and attacked the sheriff with the weapon, cutting his foot. McCormick then drew a revolver and shot the woman, fatally injuring her. By this time a great crowd of strikers had gathered and one Hungarian made for the sheriff. McCormick shot the man in the mouth. The deputies were gathered in a knot by this time and the evictions were carried through, but not until the deputies fired into the Hungarians again.

Not a Street Car Running in Detroit—Further Trouble Feared.

Detroit, April 23.—The street car service on all lines of the City Railroad Company is completely paralyzed to-day. A few stray cars were started this morning, but the attempt to run them was soon abandoned by the company and scarcely a wheel is moving. Trouble is anticipated.

Wages Down.

London, April 23.—The wages of the miners in the Cleveland iron mining district of Yorkshire have been reduced five per cent. At a meeting to-day of Welsh tin plate manufacturers, at which four-fifths of the manufacturers were present, a proposition to close the works controlled by them for a month was adopted.

Flour Up.

Leeds, April 23.—The Millers' Association has again raised the price of flour. This time the price of flour is increased 1s 6d per bag, which makes a total increase since February last of 8s 6d per bag.

Makes the Weak Strong

The marked benefit which people in run down or weakened state of health derive from Hood's Sarsaparilla, conclusively proves the claim that this medicine "makes the weak strong." It does not act like a stimulant, imparting fictitious strength from which there must follow a reaction of greater weakness than before, but in the most natural way Hood's Sarsaparilla overcomes

That Tired Feeling

creates an appetite, purifies the blood, and, in short, gives great bodily, nerve, mental and digestive strength.

"I derived very much benefit from Hood's Sarsaparilla, which I took for general debility. It built me right up, and gave me an excellent appetite." ED. JENKINS, Mt. Savage, Md.

Fagged Out

"Last spring I was completely fagged out. My strength left me and I felt sick and miserable all the time, so that I could hardly attend to my business. I took one bottle of Hood's Sarsaparilla, and it cured me. There is nothing like it." R. C. BEGOLE, Editor Enterprise, Belleville, Mich.

Worn Out

"Hood's Sarsaparilla restored me to good health. Indeed, I might say truthfully it saved my life. To one feeling tired and worn out I would earnestly recommend a trial of Hood's Sarsaparilla." MRS. PHEBE MOSHER, 90 Brooks Street, East Boston, Mass.

BELLEVILLE, FRIDAY, APRIL 24

A PATRIOTIC REFORMER.

The Hon. James Young, of Galt, is a Reformer who stands high as a journalist and as a public man. As editor of the Galt Reformer, as a member of the House of Commons, as a representative in the Ontario Legislature, and for a short time a member of Mr. Mowat's Cabinet, Mr. Young has shown a great deal of ability, and has not only been known as a useful legislator, but has made for himself a national reputation as an authority on matters of trade and commerce.

Mr. Young is, as we have said, a Reformer, but he is, first and foremost, a Canadian. He has from the first opposed the policy of tariff discrimination against Great Britain advocated by his party. He does not accept the dictum of Prof. Goldwin Smith, that annexation is our "manifest destiny." He does not approve the tactics of Traitor Farrer and his friends in coaching Yankee "tail twisters," by means of articles in the Globe, how best to legislate so as to injure Canada and force her, if possible, into political union with the United States. In a lecture before the National Club at Toronto a few nights ago, Mr. Young expressed opinions and stated facts which it will be well for his party to study. We give herewith a condensation of the lecture:

Mr. Young divided his address into four sections, viz.: (1) Natural resources, (2) development of these resources up to date, (3) political and mental outfit and social condition, (4) future of Canada.

The total value of farms, with buildings, stock, etc., in Ontario alone is $981,389,094. The total value of agricultural produce in the Dominion is $500,000,000 annually. Mines were touched upon—shown to be of bewildering wealth, as are also our forests, fisheries and ocean marine, in which latter Canada stands fourth, or ahead of the United States. The vast increase in canals and railways was noted.

Our foreign trade is about $42 per head, while that of the United States is only $22. Our interprovincial trade was estimated in 1889 to be $80,000,000. The figures following show that trade with our eastern provinces continues to increase. They represent the traffic returns of the Intercolonial Railway for 1878 and 1889: Carried in 1878, flour (barrels), 637,778, in 1889 927,014; grain (bushels), 331,170 and 1,519,862; lumber (feet), 56,626,547 and 197,545,777; live stock (dead), 46,498 and 77,661; other goods (tons), 375,025 and 814,993. Owing to defective statistics it is impossible to correctly estimate this interprovincial trade. Mr. Mulhall, the English statistician, puts the wealth per head of England at $1,250, United States $790 and Canada $650.

The secretary of the Manufacturers' Association rates the annual value of Canadian manufactures at $500,000,000.

Passing to the third portion of his position Mr. Young showed the superiority our constitution as compared with that of the United States.

It was his opinion that as Canada mainly relied on the British and American markets, it would benefit nothing to cultivate one market at the expense of the other. Her policy was to remove all restrictions on trade consistent with the conservation of her own industries. Necessary as it was to increase our trade with Great Britain and the United States, it must be remembered that still more importance was due to the enlargement of inter provincial trade. After giving a number of statistics to show how Canada was progressing, the lecturer entered into a comparison of the constitution of this country with that of the United States, showing that the will of the people was more speedily put into effect under the constitution which we enjoy. He had no hesitation in saying that, while we had made some serious mistakes, the system of representative government had been worked out in a fairly successful manner. The Governors-General had acted with due regard to the constitutional law, and the Lieut. Governors, considering their party lines, had done remarkably well. The men who took the leading part in the Parliament of Canada would have taken high rank at Washington or London, and our judiciary stood in high repute.

The great evil was patronage. Mr. Young suggested the adoption of the plan of placing patronage in the hands of expert commissioners. It has been tried with great success in Australia. Our educational system, the pulpit and press, our literature, statesmanship and scenery were successively passed in review.

Mr. Young is a pronounced Canadian Independent, considering Imperial Federation impracticable, the status quo likely to lead to annexation, which he thinks highly undesirable.

"There is some danger, I admit," says he, "in the agitation of Mr. Goldwin Smith and other advocates of absorption, but I do not fear our fellow-countrymen's decision. I believe the vast majority of them are unalterably opposed to political union."

Mr. Young closed his paper as follows: "I will only add in conclusion, gentlemen, that when the day does come that our present connection with Great Britain can no longer be satisfactorily maintained—as come some day it inevitably must—and circumstances may force it faster than we desire or imagine, I would be untrue to my own feelings, I would be false to my highest aspirations as a Canadian 'to the manner born,' if I did not assert my unfaltering belief that on that selfsame day a new nation and nationality will be born and Canada take its place peacefully among the nations of the earth."

We thus prominently present the opinions of a political opponent in our columns because they are the utterances of an able and loyal man, and loyal in their character. We cannot agree with Mr. Young in all his conclusions, but welcome his address as a pleasing contrast to the "veiled treason" of Laurier, Cartwright, Smith and the other faddists who, whilst indignantly repudiating the charge that their policy is disloyal, are yet playing the game of their literary exponent and counsellor, the unveiled traitor Farrer, which is, as he publicly confessed over his own signature, the annexation of the Dominion to the neighboring Republic.

We have never doubted the loyalty of the great mass of the Reform party. They have been deceived into supporting a policy of disloyalty by the false pretences of their leaders and their journals; but Mr. Blake's famous manifesto must have opened their eyes to the truth. In Mr. Young and others who hold the same views they have leading men of unquestionable loyalty and moderation of view around whom they may rally with the assurance that, whilst their opinions on party questions will be faithfully advocated, they will not again be led into a position involving disloyalty to our country.

So to Speak.

Woman is wonderfully made! Such beauty, grace, delicacy and purity are alone her possessions. So has she weaknesses, irregularities, functional derangement, peculiar only to herself. To correct these and restore to health, her wonderful organism requires a restorative especially adapted to that purpose. Such an one is Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription—possessing curative and regulating properties to a remarkable degree. Made for this purpose alone—recommended far no other! Continually growing in favor, and numbering as its staunch friends thousands of the most intelligent and refined ladies of the land. A positive guarantee accompanies each bottle—at your druggist's. Sold on trial!

HOOD'S Sarsaparilla is on the flood tide of popularity, which position it has reached by its own intrinsic, undoubted merit.

"It is a Whole Drug Store."

Is what a lady said of Clark's Lightning Liniment. The previous night she had an attack of neuralgia in the face, and sent to the drug store for relief. The night clerk sent a bottle of Clark's Lightning Liniment, which dispelled the pain at once. In the night baby awoke with colic. She gave him three drops of the Liniment on a lump of sugar, and he went to sleep again. In the morning her husband complained of Rheumatism in the shoulder. She rubbed it with the Liniment until he said the pain was gone. Is it any wonder the lady called Clark's Lightning Liniment "a whole drug store?" Sold by all druggists; price fifty cents. HEARD THE COLONY'S CASE

THE NEWFOUNDLAND DELEGATES IN ENGLAND.

They Lay Their Grievance Before Britain at the Bar of the House—Premier Whiteway Makes a Great Speech—Lord Knutsford's Reply.

LONDON, April 23.—The expectation of so rare and important an event as the representatives of a colony being heard at the Bar of the House attracted an unusually large number of spectators to the House of Lords to-day. The seats in the side galleries were filled with peeresses, and the galleries assigned to the members of the House of Commons were largely occupied. Behind and around the bar groups of favored ladies gave an unusual aspect of liveliness to the customary dulness of the chamber.

There was a full attendance of peers, and the Prince of Wales and Prince Albert Victor sat together on a cross bench. On the steps of the throne were seated Lord Lorne, Sir John Gorst, Political Secretary of the India Office; Baron Henry DeWorms, Political Secretary of the Colonial Office; Henry Cecil Raikes, the Postmaster-General, and other leading members of the House of Commons.

After Lord Salisbury had announced that the Government had decided to send war ships to Pungwe River, Lord Dunraven moved that the Newfoundland delegates be heard at the bar of the House. Lord Dunraven quoted precedents sustaining their claim to appear at the bar. Lord Knutsford, Secretary of State for the Colonial Department, assented to Dunraven's motion, and the Speaker of the House of Lords, Lord Halsbury, Lord High Chancellor of England, gave orders that the delegates from the people of Newfoundland were to be admitted.

The five Newfoundland delegates, headed by Sir William Whiteway, thereupon made their appearance. Sir William delivered his statement in a clear, well-pitched voice, every syllable being distinctly audible.

The Delegates' Petition.

A statement was then read by Sir William Whiteway, Premier and Attorney-General of Newfoundland. Sir William detailed the objections of the Newfoundlanders to Lord Knutsford's coercive bill and concluded with the following proposals, which he said ought, in the opinion of the delegates, and the people of Newfoundland to be accepted by the Imperial Government as a solution of the existing difficulties.

That the Newfoundland Legislature pass immediately an act authorizing the execution for this year of the modus vivendi and of the award of the arbitration commission, together with all treaties and declarations under instructions from the Queen in Council. That further progress of the Knutsford bill be deferred until the passage of the above act and that the present arbitration agreement shall not be allowed to operate beyond the lobster question without obtaining the prior consent of Newfoundland, in which case the colony shall be represented on the commission. That Newfoundland desires that the agreement be for unconditional arbitration on all points that either party can raise under the treaties. If this can be arranged between Great Britain and France Newfoundland will ask to be represented upon the arbitration commission and will pass an act to enforce the execution of the awards of the commission.

Sir William Whiteway added that the Newfoundland delegates regret that up to the present moment these proposals have not only not been accepted but that no hope has been held out that they ever will be accepted. Their adoption, he said, would immediately cause excitement in Newfoundland to subside and would induce peace under conditions which would make coercion by warship extremely difficult. The Newfoundland premier added that if the Knutsford bill became law it would have been forced upon a resentful people, but if proposals of the Newfoundland delegates were adopted every good object of the bill would be pleasantly attained. The enactment of the bill would leave a rankling wound in the hearts of the colonists and would establish a precedent which would ever give a feeling of insecurity to every self-governing colony. "In offering on behalf of the Colonial Legislature of Newfoundland," continued the Premier," to enact laws providing for the honorable fulfilment of obligatons of an exceedingly arduous kind, we are animated by a spirit of patriotism and devotion to the Empire. Persistence in passage of the bill, therefore, will be a poor return for the faith in Parliament which animated the Newfoundland Legislature in sending us to the bar of the House of Lords."

Praise from a Peer.

Lord Knutsford at the conclusion of the Newfoundland Premier's remarks, in moving to adjourn the second reading of the Newfoundland coercive bill until Monday, referred in terms of warm praise to the very able speech made by Sir William Whiteway.

This adjournment of the second reading of Knutsford's bill was in order to give the Government time to fully consider the representations made by the delegates. Should the delegates be unsuccessful in their appeal to the House of Lords they intend to apply for a hearing before the House of Commons.

A MANIAC'S SUICIDE.

An Insane Inmate of Walkerton Jail Commits Suicide.

WALKERTON, Ont., April 23.—Levi Krupp of Formosa, an insane inmate of the county jail awaiting transference to an asylum, died in his cell from starvation. Application had been made for his admission to the asylum, but he died pending the completion of arrangements. Everything possible had been done for his comfort and all his wants supplied, but he steadfastly refused to either eat or drink. He would allow nothing, not even wine or milk, to pass his lips. The verdict of the jury was that death was caused by lack of nourishment.

Lost Both Husband and Cash.

BARRIE, April 23.—At the Chancery sittings, the case of McDonald v. Nesbitt was heard. The action arose out of a breach of promise suit which was tried at Barrie last year. Wellington Nesbitt, brother of the defendant made a deed of part of the property to his sisters, as Miss McDonald, the plaintiff, contends to beat her out of $1100 damages, which the jury gave her against Wellington Nesbitt for breach of promise of marriage. Action dismissed.

An Old Superstition Revived.

ATHENS, April 23.—Great excitement exists in Corfu because of the murder of a Christian boy in the Jewish quarter. The populace believe that the child was killed by the Hebrews as a Passover sacrifice. The Hebrews are terrified at the threatening attitude assumed by the Christians, and have barricaded their houses, in which they have taken refuge, and are calling upon the Government for protection.

Not Guilty of Manslaughter.

HAMILTON, April 23.—At the Wentworth Assizes to-day Timothy Wood was placed on trial charged with manslaughter, in having caused the death of George Foster of Winona, who was found dead in bed after a quarrel with prisoner. The bruises found on the body of deceased were accounted for in a measure by the testimony of witnesses who saw him fall from a train, and the jury acquitted the prisoner.

ROME TREMBLED.

THE VENERABLE CITY SHAKEN TO ITS FOUNDATIONS.

Lives Lost and Property Damaged—An Early Morning Powder Explosion—The Vatican Suffers—Historical Palaces and Churches Damaged.

ROME, April 23.—At about 7 o'clock this morning a tremendous explosion shook this city to its foundations, spreading horror and dismay on all sides. The people rushed affrighted from their homes into the streets, houses rocked, pictures fell from the walls, thousands of panes of glass were broken, crockery was shattered, furniture was overturned, chimneys crashed down on the roofs and in some instances toppled over into the streets. The cupola of the House of Parliament immediately after the explosion shook violently and then collapsed with a crash, which added still further to the feeling of horror which had spread throughout Rome. All the thoroughfares were strewn with bricks, stones, splinters and other debris, hurled there by the force of the powerful concussion which had caused Rome to totter on its foundations. People of all ages and conditions were rushing, pale with fear, about the streets. Rents and cracks appeared in the walls of houses, the plaster fell from the ceilings and general desolation prevailed. In many instances people were thrown from their beds by the shock. It was discovered that the immense powder magazine at Pozzeno Pantaleo, four kilometres (2½ miles) from Rome, had exploded, and that it had caused enormous damage to the neighboring fort.

Signor Nicotera, Minister of the Interior, stated in the Chamber of Deputies this afternoon that 7 were killed and 48 persons were injured at the scene of the explosion and that about 200 persons in this city were slightly hurt. The Minister of War said there were 265 tons of powder in the magazine, but none of the new explosive balestite was stored there. It is surmised that the explosion resulted from slow combustion of the powder.

King Humbert, accompanied by Premier Rudini and other Cabinet officers, visited the scene of the disaster and received an ovation on visiting the hospital where the injured are being cared for.

The rumors that the explosion was of Anarchistic origin are without foundation. The official reports are that inquiries made on the spot tend to show that the explosion was purely accidental.

The races, including the Italy Derby, which were to have been run this afternoon, have been postponed on account of the explosion.

The shock which caused Rome to tremble did not spare the Vatican. That venerated place shook with the rest of the buildings when the force of the explosion was felt, and several of the famous historical stained glass windows of the old buildings were shattered. The windows in the ancient Raphael chambers and the stained glass in the royal staircase, presented to Pope Pius IX. by the King of Bavaria, were also seriously injured.

GLADSTONE CRITICIZED.

Balfour Stirring Up Gladstone with a Letter Filled with Gibes at the Liberals.

LONDON, April 23.—Mr. Balfour has written a letter in which he comments at length upon Mr. Gladstone's recent criticisms on the Irish Land Bill. Mr. Balfour says: "The Liberals oppose, line by line, a measure which is accepted in its main principles by every section of the Irish party and eagerly desired by the bulk of the Irish agricultural community, involving no risk, theoretical or practical, to the British taxpayer. Mr. Gladstone does not even pretend to hold out any prospect of a settlement of the question except by occupying the time of Parliament, if he gets a majority, with a fruitless discussion of absurd and impossible schemes of Home Rule.

"While he has been voting on abstract resolutions about self-government, rural parishes and registration, the Government has done more to advance the principle of local self-government in every part of the kingdom, to lighten the cost of education of the working classes, to strengthen the defences of the Empire and to deal with social questions than an administration pledged to Home Rule would be likely to do in a generation. The Government, though not following Mr. Gladstone's example in confining its attention to Ireland, has effected and is effecting more for the material welfare of the country than any of its predecessors."

A Little "Pipe Clay," But Efficient.

PARIS, April 23.—General Sassier yesterday reviewed the Paris garrison, numbering 10,000 men, in order to test its readiness for a campaign. Some rawness was observed among the cavalry, which is attributed to recent recruiting, but the general promptitude of the men was such that a German officer who witnessed the review remarked that even if there was a little "pipe clay" among them they showed striking efficiency.

Mansel Emulates Dunlo.

LONDON, April 23.—Sir Richard Mansel, a Welsh baronet of long pedigree but short purse, has married a dashing music-hall dancer and singer named Lily Earnest, who will remain on the boards and with her earnings help clear the baronet's encumbered estates. Previous to her marriage she commanded a salary of only £5 a week, but will probably soon be worth £100 as a rival to Lady Dunlo.

Sir Richard Mansel, Bart,, is the 10th holder of the baronetcy, which was created in 1621. Lily Earnest is his second wife.

Fractured His Spinal Column.

MONTREAL, April 23.—To-day a man named Julien, employed in Sabiston's lithographic works, fell from a ladder across a pair of pulleys and fractured his spinal column. He was taken to the hospital, but his recovery is doubtful.

Goodwin's Trial Postponed.

OTTAWA, April 23.—It is reported on good authority that the trial of Goodwin, for the alleged murder of Richard Langford, a Huntley farmer, in December last, will not take place until the next assizes owing to the absence of witnesses.

Rioting Stonemasons.

NEW YORK, April 23.—The police reserves were called out up town this afternoon. One hundred Italian stonemasons who had struck for higher wages attempted to drive the men from work on buildings. Fifteen rioters were arrested.

HISTORY REPEATS ITSELF.

in wall paper as in everything else, once in about every ten years.

It is not ten years ago though since the "fad" of papering ceilings was all the rage, nor was it five years ago! Yet this season there is a very strong demand for ceiling papers and decorations, and we firmly believe that papered ceilings will always be fashionable.

* * *

How do we know?

We'll tell you.

Economy and common sense have done it.

The world of fashion produces periodically a "fad" and if it receives "official recognition" from some fashion leader, it is considered "quite the proper thing" by the votaries of fashion and a craze ensues.

* * *

Fashion dictates more severely and draws finer lines in the matter of decoration than in anything else under her sway, and it sometimes happens that some of her "whims" become permanencies or "things of beauty and a joy forever." Economy is the great factor that transforms what was once a "fleeting fancy" into a permanent reality and that's where common sense steps in.

Although the craze of papering ceilings died out for awhile, it has returned again, not as a craze, but as a good big morsel of hard common sense, and it has come to stay. It's admitted superiority over every other style of ceiling decoration, both in attractiveness and ECONOMY has forced "fashion" to the wall for once and in spite of herself she "returns to her first love," thus waiving the formality of waiting the allotted decade for "History to repeat itself."

Try and remember that economy and common sense have done this—for where can you find a better field for decoration in your whole house than a ceiling presents?

Please make a note of this.

Still Improving.

The reports from Mrs. D. Price, during the past two days, are hopeful. She recognized Miss Price when she spoke to her. The nine stitches she had in her head have been removed, and the wounds are healing quickly. Her temperature, pulse and respiration all indicate improvement.

Coal Oil Lamps.

In all probability coal oil lamps, which have been used for years to light various portions of the city, will be dispensed with this year. It is proposed to place 12 additional electric lights upon the circuit, which will tend much to improve the lighting of the city. The cost for coal oil lamps was last year $326.84.

The Midland Central Fair.

The City and County Councils of Kingston and Frontenac will be asked to be very generous in grants to the Midland Central Fair Association, if it wishes the exhibitions to be continued. Shareholders do not think they should bear all the responsibilities and outsiders get all the benefits. There will be no show this year without substantial aid. The Fair company is in debt to the extent of $8,000.

Committee Work.

Several of the civic committees met last evening and transacted business, preparatory to the meeting of the Council, to be held on Monday evening next.

WATER AND GAS.

A number of accounts were passed by this committee.

The committee also recommended that the tender of the Belleville Gas Company, to supply 50 electric lights at 38 cents per lamp per night be accepted. The contract to be for a period of 10 years, from May 1st, 1891.

Last year the price paid for electric light was 45 per lamp for one night. The reduction in price this year is thus 7 cents per lamp.

FIRE.

A number of accounts were passed.

It was also recommended that a shed be erected at No 1 fire station for the use of the horses.

The Public Works and Market and City Property Committees recommended the payments of a number of accounts.

Punishment for Trotting "Sharps."

Mr. Sol White sat yesterday as chairman of the Special Committee appointed to deal with his bill to encourage the breeding of trotting and pacing horses, and to prevent fraudulent practices in contests of speed. The bill, as amended and reported by the committee, provides against fraudulent entries for races by "ringers," and declares that any person violating any of the provisions of the Act shall be guilty of an offence thereunder, and shall, on conviction before a justice of the peace, prosecution to be begun within two years from the commission of the offence, pay a penalty of not less than $50 or more than $200 for each offence, with costs, and in default shall be liable to imprisonment for a term not exceeding six months.

The Booming North

Mr. James McCaw, who is a member of of the Council of Bangor, Wicklow and McClure, returned this week from a trip to the north end of the County. He reports everything booming in that section, with the probability of Bird's Creek becoming the capital of the district. The roads from Ormsby northward are pretty "tough," he said, but money is plentiful, as the lumbermen have been settling up lately. At Bird's Creek the new saw mill of Messrs. Best and Golding will have an out-put of from 10 000 to 15,000 feet of lumber daily, and a boom in mining is looked for the coming season, prospectors arriving nearly every day. It is expected a large number of men will thus find employment, as well as minerals.—Madoc Review.

"Lost in New York."

The Kingston News speaks highly of this drama, which is to be presented at the Opera House to-night. It says, in its issue of yesterday:—The exciting drama, "Lost in New York," was presented before a large audience last evening at the opera house. The individual acting was good, and the scenic effects were ahead of anything that has appeared here for some time past. Miss Lottie Altar, as Jennie, was the principal character, and won the sympathy of the audience by her efforts to save her blind mother from the hands of enemies. Gus Pixley exhibited some surprising acrobatic contortions when he appeared as the tramp. On the whole, "Lost in New York" deserves good patronage wherever presented.

The Deaf and Dumb.

Mr. Mathison, Superintendent of the Institition for the Deaf and Dumb, has favored us with a copy of the proceedings of the twelfth convention of American Instructors of the Deaf and the first international convention in America, which was held at the New York Institution for the Instruction of the Deaf and Dumb on August 23rd, 24th, 25th, 26th and 27th, 1890. It is a large volume of 352 pages, and contains much matter of interest. It was printed at the New York Institution and is a highly creditable piece of work.

The Str. Alexandria.

The steamer Alexandria will on Monday next, 27th inst., commence her weekly trips to Montreal. During the winter this famous boat has undergone extensive improvements, in the direction for accommodating both passengers and freight, making her now rank among the best boats which sail in these waters. Capt. Smith, who has navigated the bay for upwards of 30 years, will again be in command this season. The merchants of this city and other places will find it to their interest to patronize this steamer.

"I Have Had

Rheumatism for years, and Nerviline is the only remedy that has done me any good." So writes Thomas McGlashan, North Pelham, July 24, 1890, and his testimony is supported by thousands of others who have experienced the wonderful penetrating and pain subduing power of Nerviline—the great nerve pain cure. Nerviline is just as good to take as to rub on, and is the best family remedy in the world. Nerviline is sold by dealers everywhere.

Traganzie Again in Trouble.

Henry Treganzie was arrested yesterday afternoon by High County Constable Johnston, on the charge of feloniously breaking into and entering the house of Mr. Robert Paul, of the township of Sidney. The case will be disposed of on Tuesday next, the accused in the meantime being out on bail.

Treganzie was, immediately upon being released, arrested by officer Stoneberg on a warrant which charged him with obtaining $2 from Mrs. J. Gordon by false pretences. This case will be tried on Monday.

or Delicate, Sickly Children

Scott's Emulsion is unequalled. See what Dr. C. A. Black, of Amherst, N. S., says: "I have been acquainted with Scott's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil, with Hypophosphites, for years, and consider it one of the finest preparations now before the public. Its pleasant flavor makes it the great favorite for children, and I do highly recommend it for all wasting diseases of children and adults. Sold by Druggists, 50c, and $1.00.

Everybody Knows

That at this season the blood is filled with impurities, the accumulating of months of close confinement in poorly ventilated stores, workshops and tenements. All these impurities and every trace of scrofula, salt rheum, or other diseases may be expelled by taking Hood's Sarsaparilla, the best blood purifier ever produced. It is the only medicine of which "100 doses one dollar" is true.

A Disturbance.

At a few minutes after 8 o'clock last evening, the police were informed that a disturbance was in progress near Mr. Lazier's mill on the Canifton Road, and that assistance was required. County Constables Garratt and Cowie went to the place, but all was quiet when they arrived and no arrests were made.

Indian Lands.

Chief Solomon Loft and Chief Isaac Powlis, of the Tyendinaga Reserve, are at Ottawa. They were to confer to-day with the Government, in connection with representatives of the town of Deseronto, regarding the purchase by that municipality of a portion of the Indian Reserve adjacent to Deseronto.

Canadian Mining.

Mr. Charles Taylor Talks From the Standpoint of a Long Experience.

Mr. Charles Taylor, who has had a wide experience in mining and minerals in different parts of Canada, has decided to take up his residence in Montreal, and is now living at 132 Peel street. He is just now most deeply interested in some gold mines at Flinton, Kaladar township, Addington Co., in which he has strong faith. He is now using two processes to abstract the metal from the refractory quartz with which it is combined—that with chlorine and that with amalgam. The former is, in his opinion, the better method, bringing out $80 to the ton. A large share of mining operations in the neighborhood of Flinton is controlled by a syndicate, of which Colonel Rhodes is the head. Mr. Taylor has too vast hope in the phosphate deposits that are yet to be well developed in the north of Hastings. He says that our phosphates run from 80 to 90 per cent., while the American phosphates only give 36 to 40 per cent., and hence ours sell at a much higher rate in Britain. He thinks, however, that they should be used much more generally in Canada. The two ways in which he has the most hope of seeing Canadian iron ore made valuable is by the production of charcoal iron, or the discovery of natural gas near the mines. Pine charcoal is the best in the world, and he points out that we have lots of pine. This is what gives the Three Rivers iron its great strength.—Montreal Star, April 23.

A Five-day Atlantic Passage.

A recent cable despatch from London stated that the Cunard Steamship Company had made a contract for the construction of two steamships, each of 14,000 tons, designed to cross the ocean in five days. Mr. A. Carnegie, who lately returned from Europe, discussing the subject of fast ocean steamships, declared his belief that these steamships, as projected, would "cross in five days, most decidedly," and that they would do this within two years. From Queenstown to New York in five days means 560 miles a day—23½ miles an hour averaged from beginning to end of the trip. The greatest run ever reached during an even 24 hours was just under 500 miles, or less than 21 knots an hour, and during that memorable performance the City of Paris's horsepower, it is said, was maintained at but little under her maximum of 20,000, or nearly 10,000 upon each screw. If the judgment of one of the most experienced and philosophic engineers on the Atlantic is corrects the Etruria, whose engines have developed nearly 15,000, is already driven by as much power as can well be applied to a single shaft. But by increasing the horsepower upon each shaft of the City of Paris to this theoretical maximum, or giving her 30,000 in all, would her speed be raised through all increasing difficultis, to the astounding mark of 24 knots an hour, which the five-day ship must be capable of at least? This is the question suggested to doubters. Less than six months ago a distinguished English expert, Mr. J. R. Ruthven, in an address before a society of engineers, expressed the opinion that the "screw has reached its limit of perfection." He expected the jet of water to effect the next great improvement in ocean steamers. It looks rather a third screw must be added, or the two now doing such splendid service taken away and the ship be driven by some other system, perhaps a jet, before the five day ship can be hoped for. But no doubt all this has been taken due account of in the negotiations to which Mr. Carnegie had reference, and which have led to an actual contract to produce two ships of such surpassing power as to measure the great transatlantic race track in five days.

This and That.

Of 20,000 bills introduced into the last U.S. Congress only 2186 became law. A Boston exchange says had they been referred to the people directly probably not over 200 of them would have passed, and thinks the country is becoming top-heavy with laws at a dangerous rate.

The Homestake mine in the Black Hills is generally supposed to be the richest gold mine in the world. For 14 years the company has never missed paying a dividend, and each month from $150,000 to $200,000 in gold is taken out. The vein is 300 feet wide and about two miles in length, and there is enough ore in sight to keep all the mills busy for the next 20 years.

Statistics show that every building of six stories and over erected in the big cities calls for the death of one workman to every two stories. In ninety-seven cases out of every hundred the killed and injured have only their own carelessness to blame, and have no recourse in the law.

It is natural to suppose that when you stroke a cat's back the wrong way the poor animal doesn't feel fur straight.

A Michigan man tumbled into a hole four feet deep one evening, and supposing himself at the bottom of a mine shaft forty feet deep, he put in the night praying and halloing. When morning came he climbed out and gave a teamster a dollar to boot him for forty rods down the road.

The Drummers Go to Church.

"I have known commercial travellers," says a hotel clerk, "to stay out until the early hours of Sunday morning and yet they would get up and go to church Sunday no matter how severe the weather was. They said they were not particularly religious, but that they made it an invariable rule to go to church on Sunday, or they would have no success during the week. I remember a case of a young fellow who came in from the train late on Saturday afternoon. 'I never had a worse week in my life,' he said. 'Why, I haven't taken one decent order. And the reason is that I neglected to go to church last Sunday, as is my usual custom. I am going out to-night and may be out late, but I want to be called in time for church to-morrow forenoon.' He did not come in until 4 o'clock in the morning, but he insisted on being called at 9 o'clock, and, though it was raining pitchforks, went to church after a hearty breakfast. I joked him when he returned, and declared he had not been to church. But he told me the minister's text and several good points of the sermon. Well, he declared that he had good luck all that week, and booked several of the largest orders ever taken in this city."—New York Tribune.

Mortuary Statistics.

The mortuary statistics for the month of March have been issued. Toronto's figures were 1.25 per 1,000 for the month; Montreal, 1.96; Hamilton, 1.51; London, 1.30; Kingston, 1.87; St. Thomas, 1.60; Windsor, 1.83; Woodstock, .97; Brockville, 1.35; Galt, 1 64; Ottawa, 1.95; Winnipeg, 1.01; Brantford, .77; Belleville, .89; Stratford, 1.0; Peterborough, 2.18; Chatham, 1.03; Guelph has the honor of the lowest death rate, namely, .18, while two Quebec cities, Sherbrooke and Quebec, have the highest rates, Sherbrooke being 3 63 and Quebec 3.19. Out of 147 deaths in Quebec city 111 are children under 5 years of age.

Protestants Again.

Roman Catholic Converts Who Have Returned to the Church of their Fathers.

The London Church Review says: "Many of the young Oxford men who became Roman Catholics and priests have returned to the church of their fathers, embittered more or less against the Roman enchantress that had lured them only to deceive them. Among these may be mentioned Lord Robert Montague, brother of the Duke of Manchester, who since his return to Protestantism, has written most scathing denunciations of the Church of Rome as a religious and political power. His latest and most important work, "The Sower and the Virgin," is a refutation of the doctrines of Mariolatry and Papal Infallibility that has had a marked effect upon the higher classes in England, by deterring many from the consideration of Rome's pretensions and leading others to renounce the false teachings of that church.

"Among the clergymen who have returned to pure Catholicism within the last few years may be mentioned Canon Ffoulkes, Father Roberts (Cardinal Manning's nephew), Hutton, Galton, Law (Chaplain to the Duke of Norfolk), Whitehead, Addis, etc. Father Addis was one of the leading scholars in Oxford, and when he became a Roman Catholic was accounted a great prize to Rome. As a priest he labored for ten years at Sydenham, and in conjunction with Mr. Thomas Arnold, brother of Matthew Arnold, compiled the Catholic Dictionary, a standard authority on orthodox Romanism, and the only work of the kind in the English language. It is a significant sign of the times that the editor of such an important publication should abandon the Church of Rome a few years after it was issued.

"Father Addis withdrew only last September; Father Whitehead, who had been a member of the Dominican Order, renounced the Roman Church in November, and every week some priest is following their example. Some of the former priests have returned to the Ministry of the Anglican branch of the Church Catholic. Father Addis is now ministering in Melbourne, Australia, and others have entered upon secular pursuits. This is also the case with more than twenty priests who, in our day, have withdrawn from the Roman Catholic Church in Scotland. Thomas Arnold, it is said, has also abandoned the Church of Rome."

The London Boy.

What are these creatures shambling up the crescent? These are two message boys. And who is that troglodyte roosting on the railing? That is Drake's boy waiting on Peel's boy and Smellie's boy. Why does he wait? Firstly, because he never travels alone; secondly, because he has infinite time. Do they shake hands when they meet? No. Drake's boy puts out his foot and trips up Peel's boy. What does Peel's boy do? He rises in haste and smites him with a leg of mutton. Are they now enemies? No, these are proofs of attachment. After burnishing the leg of mutton they sit down to discuss the universe—i. e., the street, the pantomime, and one Kidd, a pirate. Why does Smellie's boy go off by himself and yell? If he did not do that he would burst. He does not know he is yelling. Why does he lay down his basket and dance? Hush; do not betray him. All boys do that when they are alone. Does he look ashamed if you see him? No; boys never look anything. Will he come to if you leave him? Yes; he will whistle presently and calm down. How much does he get for this? Four-and-sixpence a week. This boy is accounted for by the Evolution Theory. His father was Primitive Man. It is only being in a town and his mispronunciation that makes you think he is not a savage. What he represents is Capacity; he is clay, dough, putty. This boy cannot as yet walk straight, or dress better, or brush his hair. He is not good. He is not bad. He has no soul. He has not even soap. He is simply Boy, pure unwashed, unregenerate Boy.—Good Words.

Parr's Epitaph.

Thomas Parr, who was buried in Westminster Abbey in 1635, is thus described: The "Old, Old, very Old Man, Thomas Parr, was born at the Glyn, within This Chapelry of Great Willaston, and Parish of Alberbury, in the County of Salop. In the year of our Lord 1483. He lived in the reigns of Ten Kings and Queens of England (viz.) K. Edw. 4. K. Edw. 5, K. Rich. 3, K. Hen. 7th, K. Hen. 8th, K. Edw. 6, Q. Mary, Q. Eliz., K. James 1st, and K. Charles 1st: died the 13th and was buried in Westminster Abbey on the 15th of November 1635, aged 152 years and 9 months."—Cornhill Magazine.

Keeping Track of Wires.

The manner in which the electric light companies keep track of the wires they string over a city is curious and very simple. A board about three feet long and two feet wide is secured and a heavy piece of cardboard is tacked on it. Then a diagram of the city is drawn, showing all the streets. Now comes the laying out of the wires. Pins are then stuck into the cardboard on each street, on which wires are strung, and around each pin twine is placed. The twine starts from the central electric station, and following it up any wire can be traced. When there are more than one line of wires on a street the number is represented by strings on the chart.

One Dozen Bottles,

Of the best known Blood Remedy will not work such a change in a case of Catarrh as one package of Clark's Catarrh Cure. All the wise talk about Catarrh being a constitutional or blood disease depends entirely on what the advertiser has to sell. If you have Catarrh in any form, try Clark's Catarrh Cure, and you need not take a carload of it before any benefit is derived. Druggists keep it and recommend it. Price 50 cents. Sent to any address by the Clark Chemical Co., Toronto, New York.

Ask Your Friends About It.

Your distressing cough can be cured. We know it because Kemp's Balsam within the past few years has cured so many coughs and colds in this community. Its remarkable sale has been won entirely by its genuine merit. Ask some friend who has used it what he thinks of Kemp's Balsam. There is no medicine so pure, none so effective. Large bottles 50c and $1, at all druggists.

A FORTUNE IN A BUSTLE.

It Contained $9000 and Will Hereafter Have a Place of Honor.

GREENSBURG, Pa., April 23.—Miss Maggie Schutt of Derry, this county, died last week. Miss Schutt's relatives have been puzzled to know what she did with her money. She lived like a perverse old maid and indulged in no luxuries or frivolities. Three days after her funeral two of the young women of the house concluded to clean up the room occupied by Miss Schutt. Mrs. Jennie Bennett unearthed a large, well-made, heavy bustle. With the remark, "Well, here it goes, Kate," Jennie threw it into the flames. Taking a second thought she pulled it out again. "It seems awful heavy for a bustle," said she, "let's rip it open." When turning it over to insert the scissors a piece of green paper was seen sticking out of a hole in the seam. The green paper was a bright $20 bill. Scissors were thrown aside and deft fingers took their place. The whole thing was ripped open. There was a feminine scream. There lay tens, twenties, fifties and nestling in the bed of greenbacks were shining gold eagles and double eagles and some small silver coin. The find netted $9000.

The money will be divided between her two sisters, with a neat reward to the girls who discovered it. The old bustle will be covered with tinted satin, decked with ribbons and handed down to generations.

ONTARIO LEGISLATURE.

The Mining Regulations Engage the Attention of the House.

TORONTO, April 23.—In the Ontario Legislature yesterday Mr. Hardy, in moving the second reading of the bill to amend the General Mining Act took up the objections which have been made by mining men to the bill and justified the policy of the Government. He devoted himself for some time to the opposition raised to the royaly clauses and showed by reference to other countries that the royalties proposed were not excessive. South Carolina imposed a royalty of 25 per cent. on phosphate, obtaining last year $256,800. Nova Scotia collected last year royalties amounting to $130,000. In Michigan, although the mines were purchased from the Government in fee simple, the great bulk of them were worked on payment of a royalty of about 50 per cent to the owners. The Government believed that a royalty of 3 per cent. on silver, nickel or nickel and copper was a very moderate one. It had been urged that a royalty of 2 per cent. on iron was unfair because of the duty collected by the United States and because there was no development of that industry. Instead of imposing a royalty of 2 per cent. absolutely, he thought that iron might be placed on the permissive list embraced in the clause. "All other ores shall be subject to such royalty as shall be from time to time imposed by order-in-council not exceeding 3 per cent."

The nickel belt near Sudbury embraced about two and a quarter million acres, of which only 135,000 acres were sold. New discoveries of nickel were made near Georgian Bay and Lake Wahnapitae, which were as rich as those of the Sudbury district. Therefore the belt of nickel was not limited to two and a quarter million acres. There was an impression that millions of acres of mining lands had been sold, but as a matter of fact only 800,000 acres had been sold since Confederation. A royalty of 3 per cent. would ward off direct taxation for many years and had the advantage that a miner pays only in proportion to what he himself obtains. He had returns from three silver mines of their product last year. One mine produced 2000 tons valued at $100,000, a second 8000 tons valued at $91,000, a third 1800 tons valued at $145,000. The total production was worth $336,000, on which the royalty would have amounted to $10,000. In reply to the objection that an increase of price to $5 an acre would prevent the land from being sold, Mr. Hardy said that if the lands were not sold now they would be valuable as assets hereafter. It had been said that in Michigan lands were sold at $1.25 an acre. On the contrary, his information was that they were sold at from $3.50 to $30 and $40 an acre. The fact was that $5 an acre was much below the average price in Michigan.

The second reading of the bill was then carried, only those who spoke against it crying "nay."

WASHINGTON COMMISSIONERS.

Patterson of Essex to Be a Commissioner —Revising the Sugar Duties.

OTTAWA, April 23.—It is reported here that Mr. J. C. Patterson of Essex has been appointed one of the special commissioners to represent Canada in the forthcoming negotiations at Washington. It is also stated Hon. Edward Blake has been invited to act as a commissioner.

The Cabinet to Meet Daily.

OTTAWA, April 23.—The Cabinet will meet daily from this on till Parliament meets, settling the policy of the Government and preparing the speech from the throne and the work of the session.

Found Guilty.

TORONTO, April 24.—At the York assizes yesterday Sarah Fox was found guilty of manslaughter for killing of her babe. The body was found about Feb. 27 last within the walls of Dr. Richardson's residence, where it had been apparently thrown by the prisoner.

The Mail-Empire libel-suit which has been so long pending has at length been dropped. It was the old suit arising out of The Empire's charge that Ned Farrer, when connected with The Mail, had conspired to betray Canada with the Washington authorities Upon The Empire's withdrawing the plea of justification The Mail abandoned the suit.

A cable despatch just received from Rev. Dr. Mackay, Canadian missionary at Tamsui, Formosa, China, announces the death of the Rev. John Jamieson, M.A., who for the past seven years has been laboring in that field with him. No particulars are given. At the time when the letters last received from Formosa by the Foreign Mission Committee of the church were written Mr. Jamieson was enjoying his usual health, but about two years ago he suffered from a severe attack of phthisis, and it is supposed that a recurrence of this has now proved fatal.

Fire at Blenheim.

BLENHEIM, Ont., April 23.—Early this morning the residence of James Dexter was totally destroyed by fire. Most of the contents were saved. The house was valued at $600. Insured in the Western for $400.

Valued His Life at $2.

OTTAWA, April 23.—A harness maker at Hull attempted suicide by hanging yesterday. He was discovered by a boy and cut down, but not a moment too soon. Out of gratitude he gave his rescuer $2.

Killed by the Cars.

KINGSTON, April 23.—This morning about 9 o'clock S. Hornibrook, aged 22, a brakeman on the suburban train, was found lying mangled near the overhead bridge at the cotton mill. He had been struck by the bridge while standing on the top of the train. He was taken to the hospital, where both legs were amputated, but he only lived a few hours. A few years ago a brother, a tinsmith, fell off a house and was instantly killed. Another relative had his head cut off some years ago near the K. & P. roundhouse by a train.

Revision of the Sugar Duties.

OTTAWA, April 23.—It is likely that there will be a revision of the sugar duties this session. Hon. George E. Foster, Minister of Finance, stated to-day that he is studying the question. The officials of the Custom Department discredit the reports about extensive smuggling of American sugar across the frontier into the Eastern Townships.

Barefoot Time.

The robins are searching among the weeds,
And yonder the garrulous crows
Are fishing for frogs amid the reeds
Where the struggling cat-tail grows.
The south wind comes from the inland sea,
Warming the yearning year,
And the boys and girls they are filled with glee,
For the barefoot time is near.

The sunny sides of the hills are green,
And the buds of the lilacs swell,
The hen-hawk high in the sky is seen
And the water is soft in the well.
The catkins cling to the willow slim,
On shadowy marsh and mere,
Of joy the children chant a hymn,
For barefoot time is near.

The blackbird follows the ploughman's track,
The foxes skulk in the bush,
The bugs and the birds they are coming back.
With a swift and noiseless rush.
There is no ice in the old mill dam,
Its waters are limpid and clear,
Of triumph the children chant a psalm,
For barefoot time is near.

So Tommy takes off his boots and shoes,
And soft with his naked toes
He touches the water, then carries the news
"Its warm," wherever he goes.
"Who cares for a stone bruise on his heel
The size of a duchess plum?
Nobody knows how good we feel,
For barefoot time has come."

A Python Hunt.

Killing One of the Great Snakes of India in the Himalayas.

(New York Ledger.)

Before closing, we must allude to still another species of "ground game," if we may apply so homely a designation to the huge pythons, or rock snakes, of the East Indies. It was during the cold weather, when snakes are partially or wholly torpid, that this adventure happened; had it been in the hot weather, when snakes are lively, the story might have had a different ending.

A party went one day to examine a hole or crevice under a rock where it was suspected a python lay hidden, and sure enough it was there, for they could see a bit of the tail-end protruding from the hole. They let it alone at first, thinking that when the sun shone it might come forth to bask in its warmth. In this, however, they were disappointed, for on the following day the snake was not to be seen; but on closer examination the tail was found sticking out as before. Various efforts were made to dislodge it. A fire was lit in front, and the smoke fanned inward, but this had no effect. The earth was even scraped away, and the hole widened, when they could see the coils of the monster as thick as a man's thigh; but except that their operations were occasionally interrupted by the startling presence of the creature's head, which it occasionally poked toward the entrance, darting out its little forked tongue, gave small signs of animation. They had even determined to try to draw it. We all three, therefore, proceeded—somewhat nervously, I must own,—to lay hold of its tail. To this familiarity it showed its objection by a decided inclination to wag its caudal extremity, which had such an electrical effect on our nerves that we dropped it like a hot potato, and—what shall I call it?—retired? A shot would have in all probability induced the snake to quit its refuge; but then the shot must have torn and disfigured its beautiful skin, which the general wished to secure uninjured as a specimen. In the meantime, more efficient tools for digging had been sent for, and these now arrived, borne upon an elephant. A bright idea now struck the party—they might draw the snake out with the elephant! Sufficient rope for the purpose was loosened from the elephant's pad, and this rope, about the thickness of a man's thumb, was hitched around the python's tail, its remaining length brought up again to the pad and fastened there, thus doubling its strength.

"Now came the tug of war! A sudden jerk might have torn the skin; the mahout was, therefore, warned to put on the strain gradually. Little did we know what a tough and obstinate customer we had to deal with. Tighter and tighter grew the ropes, when 'crack' went one of them. Still the strain was increasing, when 'crack'—the other had snapped also, leaving the snake in statu quo."

The snake was finally dislodged by countermining, and killed by a charge of buckshot. When measured it was found to be twenty one feet in length and about two feet in girth.

TORONTO TRUTH'S New Spring Bible Competition

NO. 22.

In these latter days there have arisen many false schemes and many scores of imitations of TRUTH'S Competitions, but one after another have failed and utterly perished, yet TRUTH remains, and makes good all its promises. Its reputation is now too well established to risk damaging it, and as it has cost a very large amount of money and many years of care and labor to build up, the publisher could not afford to fail in carrying out all his agreements to the letter. There are twenty-one divisions of the largest list of bona fide prizes ever offered and ever actually given away by any publisher in the world. The total value of prizes in the Spring list is about $10,000,00. The lists are so large it would cost altogether too much to give them in detail here. There are pianoes gold and silver watches, china tea and dinner sets, ladies' and gentlemen's bicycles, silver tea-sets, silk dresses, books, money, and hundreds of other valuable rewards. You pay nothing for these prizes, as everyone concedes that full value is received for the dollar in securing TRUTH every week for three months. Send one dollar and answers to the five following questions: Where in the Bible are these words found? 1, GRAIN; 2, CORN; 3, WHEAT; 4, BARLEY; 5, RYE. If your answers are correct and your letters arrive in time you are almost sure to get a reword, as there are so many and every one cannot always find correct answers to all these questions. All the five answers must be correct to get any prize, but you will get full value for the dollar in TRUTH if you don't get anything else. If you want to see the list of rewards before sending in your dollar, mail TRUTH ten cents and a copy will be sent you containing the list of prizes. But there have been very few dissatisfied prize-winners in previous competitions, considering that he has given away duridg the past eight years scores of thousands of prizes. Some people expect a piano for every dollar sent, and are mad if they don't get it. He wishes it were possible to give every subscriber a gold watch or a piano or both, but says it can't be done. Some publishers intimate they will, but nobody can do it for any length of time. Send one dollar and correct answers and you won't repent it; and bear in mind that it is not guaranteed that every body whose answers are correct will get a prize, but that all the prizes in the twenty-one different lists will be given away. The competition remains open only till the last day of June next, inclusive, after which the prizes will be immediately distributed to the successful ones. Ten days will be allowed for letters to reach TRUTH from distant points after the 30th of June. All, however, must be postmarked where mailed not later than the 30th June, or any time between now and that date. Address S. Frank Wilson, "Truth" Office, Toronto, Ont., Canada.

Beatrix paused, thinking intently, and with increasing agitation.

"I believe I know what you mean," she said at last, with a deep undertone of sad affection in her voice. "You think you ought not to marry her because I am your sister—that is, because I have wronged her. Oh, Ed, that is it! You can't deny it, dear. You would sacrifice all your happiness so as not to seem to take her part against me. I might have known that it could be nothing less noble than that; but it shall not be—you must not dream of it! When she knows how sorry I am—and she shall know—everybody shall know it! I'll tell you how it shall be," she continued, springing up from the sofa on which they were sitting together, and pacing up and down, passing the fingers of one hand at intervals over her forehead and hair. At length she stopped in front of him.

"To-morrow evening is my last performance," she said. "After it is over I will ask Gen. Inigo to tell the audience, or perhaps it would be better if I went out and told them myself, all the whole story, how I came to take her place, and who I really am, and all! After that she will forgive me; I'll make her forgive me for your sake; and then, Ed, dear," she concluded with a misty smile and a tremor of the lip, "you need not be afraid to make her my sister!"

"It's splendid of you to think of such a thing, dear little sis!" exclaimed her brother, drawing her down to him and kissing her. "But it would never do to go to work in that way; in the first place it might knock all your popularity on the head. The public doesn't understand generous and elevated conduct as I do."

"No matter if they don't understand it. I have already made up my mind to one thing, I shall never sing on the stage after to-morrow."

"What a notion! See if you don't."

"No, indeed. I had decided on that before—before I knew anything about your affairs, you dear boy! The debts are paid, and papa and I can live in the old house again, and that is all I ever meant to do. Being on the stage is not pleasant in some ways, and besides—well, at any rate I'm determined, and when I am determined I never change; and I will tell the audience so to-morrow night."

"No, no! I tell you," cried Ed, becoming lively again, "if singing won't do for you on the stage speechifying's out of the question. You'd be like these women's rights geese. There's no necessity for it, either. If Vera knew that you wouldn't feel hurt at my marrying her I dare say she'd come round all right. The only difficulty then would be that I should seem to be, in a certain way, dependent on her. But I have been thinking the last few days that I'd go into some profession—engineering, or architecture, or something of that kind—and then I guess I could be making money enough in a year or two to take the edge off the thing. I'm not a fool, sis, though maybe I have acted rather like one."

"You are the dearest and best brother in the world," said Beatrix, with the gentleness of profound conviction; and on the heels of this moderate statement Wallie Dinsmore came into the room and invited Edward to sit down to a cold lunch with him. "The ladies would not wait for us," he observed, "and it would be foolhardy for us to wait for dinner. Of course Miss Randolph and Mrs. Dinsmore will pour out our beer for us."

Edward assented; but Beatrix, after a moment's hesitation, excused herself on some feminine plea, and, refusing any escort or offer of a carriage, set out on foot toward her home, as she had accustomed herself to call it. The evening was now at hand, though it lacked something of 4 o'clock. The sidewalks were covered with a drifting layer of white, and the flakes still swirled and dangled downward from the obscure blankness overhead. As Beatrix, walking briskly, approached Madison square the frigid glare of the electric lamp, from the summit of its immense mast, marked itself out on the storm like a gigantic tent of light.

Warmly wrapped in her fur lined cloak Beatrix did not mind the snow and wind; they gave her a kind of pleasure; she felt strengthened and heartened by the robust pungency of the atmosphere. It reminded her of her winters in the old place far up the Hudson—the days of frozen forests and gigantic snowballs, and the long icicles hanging from the eaves on the southwest corner. Well, her work was all but done, and she might begin that life again as soon as she pleased. But could that life ever begin again for her? After all the events and experiences of this season could she, in a moment, become Beatrix Randolph once more? Had not the name of Marana carried some spell with it, whose effects would never leave her? As she speculated thus, and her heart began to sink again, she turned the corner of Fifth avenue and came into collision with a gentleman who was proceeding swiftly in the opposite direction.

Her head was bent, her veil was over her eyes, the air was full of snow and the confusing dazzle of street lights; it was impossible that she should know who this man was, and yet she did know at once, and she even fancied that she had anticipated the meeting a moment before it occurred. And, first, a great wave of joy seemed to swell and murmur in her heart, and then she called to mind all manner of unwelcome and crippling considerations, and drew herself together in a defensive attitude. Physically she stopped, breathing quickly, and removing one hand from her muff to keep down her veil. She thought he would perhaps not recognize her. But a man can recognize the woman he loves by a glimpse of the movement of her shoulder far off in a crowd—nay, by the toss of the feather in her hat. The magic of love consists mainly in its stimulating us to use our senses; and then we are surprised to discover what a marvelous capacity and keenness those senses have. The heavenly intelligence of angels can only be the result of the depth and ardor of their power to love.

"Mademoiselle"—he began, and stopped, for he had never called her by her real name, and though he knew now what it was it had no personal association with her in his mind. "I was going to find you," he continued.

"I was not lost. So you have returned, Mr. Bellingham?"

"I must speak to you, Miss Randolph!"

"Is it necessary on this corner? A singer must be careful of her throat, you know."

"Take my arm. I'll get a hack for you."

"Thank you; I am doing very well."

She walked on and he walked beside her. The facilities for conversation were certainly not good, even had the readiness been there. He was six or seven inches taller than she, and he was obliged to stoop and speak loud in order to insure her hearing him, while he was in danger of missing or misinterpreting the muffled murmur of her replies. But there was in Bellingham a great deal of constancy and concentration of purpose.

"I don't expect you to forgive me," he said. "Only understand that I can never forgive myself. Such a blunder should have been impossible to a man who felt toward you as I did. If I had been worth your caring for I should not have made it."

"It was natural; you could not have done anything else; I do not blame you," said Beatrix through her veil. Geoffrey did not wholly catch her words; he understood her to say that such a mistake was only to be expected of him, and his face fell. She perceived the change in him, and faltered out, "I mean that I do forgive you!" But a Fifth avenue stage, rattling by just then, drowned this sentence altogether.

Spring Cleaning.

Be particular every Spring to clean the house, but never mind cleansing the blood, until some troublesome disease takes hold of you. This is poor policy when by using Burdock Blood Bitters the blood will be thoroughly cleansed, the body strengthened, and future suffering prevented,

Now Free From Pain.

DEAR SIRS—I have been troubled with Lame Back for six months, and thought I would try Hagyard's Yellow Oil, which cured me. Am now free am all pains, and recommend Yellow Oil very highly.

AS PARMELEE'S VEGETABLE PILLS contain Mandrake and Dandelion, they cure Kidney and Liver complaints with unerring certainty. They also contain Roots and Herbs which have specific virtues truly wonderful in their action on the stomach and bowels. Mr. E. A. Cairncross, Shakespeare, writes: "I consider Parmelee's Pills are an excellent remedy for Billiousness and Derangement of the Liver, having used them myself for some time."

—Pertman—What's the trouble in your church? Van Leer—Why, its all due to Miss Filkins being cross-eyed. She undertook to throw sheep's eyes at the young minister and they focussed on the tenor. He swears he'll resign unless she's put out of the church.

A lady writes: "I was able to remove the corns, root and branch, by the use of Holloway's Corn Cure." Others who have tried it have the same experience.

CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS.

CURE

Sick Headache and relieve all the troubles incident to a bilious state of the system, such as Dizziness, Nausea, Drowsiness, Distress after eating, Pain in the Side, &c. While their most remarkable success has been shown in curing

SICK

Headache, yet CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS are equally valuable in Constipation, curing and preventing this annoying complaint, while they also correct all disorders of the stomach, stimulate the liver and regulate the bowels. Even if they only cured

HEAD

Ache they would be almost priceless to those who suffer from this distressing complaint; but fortunately their goodness does not end here, and those who once try them will find these little pills valuable in so many ways that they will not be willing to do without them. But after all sick head is the bane of so many lives that here is where we make our great boast. Our pills cure it while others do not.

CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS are very small and very easy to take. One or two pills make a dose. They are strictly vegetable and do not gripe or purge, but by their gentle action please all who use them. In vials at 25 cents; five for $1. Sold everywhere, or sent by mail.

DR. WILLIAMS' PINK PILLS FOR PALE PEOPLE

ARE NOT a Purgative Medicine. They are a BLOOD BUILDER, TONIC and RECONSTRUCTOR, as they supply in a condensed form the substances actually needed to enrich the Blood, curing all diseases coming from POOR and WATERY BLOOD, or from VITIATED HUMORS in the BLOOD, and also invigorate and BUILD UP the BLOOD and SYSTEM, when broken down by overwork, mental worry, disease, excesses and indiscretions. They have a SPECIFIC ACTION on the SEXUAL SYSTEM of both men and women, restoring LOST VIGOR and correcting all IRREGULARITIES and SUPPRESSIONS.

EVERY MAN Who finds his mental faculties dull or failing, or his physical powers flagging, should take these PILLS. They will restore his lost energies, both physical and mental.

EVERY WOMAN should take them. They cure all suppressions and irregularities, which inevitably entail sickness when neglected.

YOUNG MEN should take these PILLS. They will cure the results of youthful bad habits, and strengthen the system.

YOUNG WOMEN should take them. These PILLS will make them regular.

A Winnipegger's Opinion.

The following is taken from a letter from Mr. D. Davis, Winnipeg, Man.: "Being persuaded to use Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam for a troublesome cold, I was entirely cured by the use of two bottles."

Dangerous Counterfeits.

Counterfeits are always dangerous, more so that they always closely IMITATE THE ORIGINAL IN APPEARANCE AND NAME. The remarkable success achieved by Nasal Balm as a positive cure for Catarrh and Cold in the Head has induced unprincipled parties to imitate it. The public are cautioned not to be deceived by nostrums imitating Nasal Balm in name and appearance, bearing such names as Nasal Cream, Nasal Balsam, etc. Ask for Nasal Balm and do not take any imitation dealers may urge upon you. For sale by all druggists or sent post-paid on receipt of price (50c and $1,) by addressing [illegible] & Co. Brockville, Ont.

Why Not Treat.

WHY not treat such troubles as boils, pimples, blotches, sores, humors, eruptions, rashes, skin irritations, etc., with Burdock Blood Bitters. It is filled with virtue as a blood purifier and goes right to the right spot. It makes the skin bright and clear, while also invigorating the entire system.

Dangers of Delay.

If we were allowed to look into the future and see the fatal consequences that follow a neglected cold, how different would our course be; could we realize our danger, how speedily we would seek a cure; but with many it is only when the monster disease has fastened its fangs upon our lungs that we awaken to our folly. What follows a neglected cold? Is it not diseases of the throat and lungs, bronchitis, asthma, consumption, and many other diseases of like nature. It is worse than madness to neglect a cold, and it is folly not to have some good remedy available for this complaint. One of the most efficacious medicines for all diseases of the throat and lungs, is Bickle's Anti-Consumptive Syrup. This medicine is composed of several medicinal herbs, which exert a most wonderful influence in curing consumption and other diseases of the lungs and chest. It promotes a free and easy expectoration, soothes irritation and drives the disease from the system.

—It is suspected that some of the spring lamb is really of winter lineage.

Chronic Derangements of the Stomach, Liver and Blood, are speedily removed by the active principle of the ingredients entering into the composition of Parmelee's Vegetable Pills. These Pills act specifically on the deranged organs, stimulating to action the dormant energies of the system, thereby removing disease and renewing life and vitality to the afflicted. In this lies the great secret of the popularity of Parmelee's Vegetable Pills.

—The dentist may not be a man of ancestry, but he is one of prominent extractions.

Inflammation of the Eyes Cured.

Mr Jacob D. Miller, Newburg, writes,— I was troubled with inflammation in one of my eyes, so that during nearly the whole of the summer of 1882 I could not work; I took several bottles of Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery and it gives me great pleasure to inform you that it cured me of my affliction. It is an excellent remedy for Costiveness."

—The Better Way—She—Please hold my wrap. He—Certainly. Shall I put it around you first?

M. Sheeyan, of Oscoda, Mich, writes: I have used Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil for horses for different diseases and found it just as you recommended. It has done justice to me every time, and is the best oil for horses I ever used.

A BRIGHT RELIGION.

TALMAGE'S TEXT: "THE CRYSTAL CANNOT EQUAL IT."

The Religion of Christ Greater in Exactness, Greater in Transparency, Superior in Transformation to the Crystal, and Beautiful in its Symmetry.

New York, April 19, 1891.—Dr. Talmage preached to an immense audience in the morning in the Brooklyn Academy of Music. His text was: "The crystal cannot equal it." —Job 28:7.

Many of the precious stones of the Bible have come to prompt recognition. But for the present I take up the less valuable crystal. Job, in my text, compares saving wisdom with a specimen of topaz. An infidel chemist or a mineralogist would pronounce the latter worth more than the former, but Job makes an intelligent comparison, looks at religion and then looks at the crystal and pronounces the former as of far superior value to the latter, exclaiming in the words of my text, "the crystal cannot equal it."

Now, it is not a part of my sermonic design to depreciate the crystal, whether it be found in Cornish mine or Hartz mountain or Mammoth Cave or tinkling among the pendants of the chandeliers of a palace. The crystal is the star of the mountain; it is the queen of the cave; it is the ear-drop of the hills; it finds its heaven in the diamond. Among all the pages of natural history there is no page more interesting to me than the page crystallographic. But I want to show you that Job was right when taking religion in one hand and the crystal in the other, he declared that the former was of far more value and beauty than the latter, recommending it to all the people and to all the ages, declaring: "The crystal cannot equal it." In the first place I remark that religion is superior to the crystal in exactness. That shapeless mass of crystal against which you accidentally dashed your foot is laid out with more exactness than any earthly city. There are six styles of crystallization and all of them divinely ordained. Every crystal has mathematical precision. God's geometry reaches through it, and it is a square or it is a rectangle or it is a rhomboid or in some way it hath a mathematical figure. Now religion beats that in the simple fact that spiritual accuracy is more beautiful than material accuracy. God's attributes are exact. God's law exact. God's decrees exact. God's management of the world exact. Never counting wrong, though he counts the grass-blades and the sands and the cycles. His providences never dealing with us perpendicularly when those providences ought to be oblique, nor lateral when they ought to be vertical. Everything in our life arranged without any possibility of mistake. Each life a six-sided prism. Born at the right time, dying at the right time. There are no "happen-so's" in our theology. If I thought this was a slipshod universe I would go crazy. God is not an anarchist. Law, order, symmetery, precision, a perfect square, a perfect rectangle, a perfect rhomboid, a perfect circle. The edge of God's robe of government never frays out. There are no loose screws in the world's machinery. It did not just happen that Napoleon was attacked with indigestion at Borodino so that he became incompetent for the day. It did not just happen that John Thomas, the missionary, on a heathen island, waiting for an outfit and orders for another missionary tour, received that outfit and those orders in a box that floated ashore, while the ship and the crew that carried the box, were never heard of. The barking of F. W. Robertson's dog, he tells us, led to a line of events which brought him from the army into the Christian ministry, where he served God with world-renowned usefulness. It did not merely happen so. I believe in a particular providence. I believe God's geometry may be seen in all our life more beautifully than in crystallography. Job was right. "The crystal cannot equal it."

Again I remark that religion is superior to the crystal in transparency. We know not when or by whom glass was first discovered. Beads of it have been found in the tomb of Alexander Severus. Vases of it are brought up from the ruins of Herculaneum. There were female adornments made out of it 3,000 years ago—those adornments found now attached to the mummies of Egypt. A great many commentators believe that my text means glass. What would you do without the crystal? The crystal in the window to keep out the storm and let in the day—the crystal over the watch defending its delicate machinery, yet all allowing us to see the hour—the crystal of the telescope by which the astronomer brings distant worlds so near he can inspect them. Oh, the triumphs of the crystals in the celebrated windows of Rouen and Salisbury! But there is nothing so transparent in a crystal as in our holy religion. It is a transparent religion. You put it to your eye and you see man—his sin, his soul, his destiny. You look at God and you see something of the grandeur of his character. It is a transparent religion.

It is a transparent Bible. All the mountains of the Bible come out: Sinai, the mountain of the law; Pisgah, the mountain of prospect; Olivet, the mountain of instruction; Calvary, the mountain of sacrifice. All the rivers of the Bible come out: Hidekel, or the river of paradisaical beauty; Jordan, or the river of holy chrism; Cherith or the river of prophetic supply; Nile, or the river of palaces; and the pure river of life from under the throne, clear as crystal. While reading this Bible after our eyes have been touched by grace, we find it all transparent, and the earth rocks, now with crucifixion agony and now with judgment terror, and Christ appears in some of his two hundred and fifty-six titles, as far as I can count them—the bread, the rock, the captain, the commander, the conqueror, the star, and on and beyond any capacity of mine to rehearse them. Transparent religion!

The providence that seemed dark before becomes pellucid. Now you find God is not trying to put you down. Now you understand why you lost that child and why you lost your property; it was to prepare you for eternal treasures. And why sickness came; it being the precursor of immortal juvenescence. And now you understand why they lied about you and tried to drive you hither and thither. It was to put you in the glorious company of such men as Ignatius, who, when he went out to be destroyed by the lions, said;—"I am the wheat and the teeth of the wild beasts must first grind me before I can become pure bread for Jesus Christ;" or the company of such men as Polycarp, who when standing in the midst of the amphitheatre waiting for the lions to come out of their cave and destroy him, the people in the galleries jeering and shouting. "The lions of Polycarp," replied: "Let them come on," and then stooping down towards the cave where the wild beasts were roaming to get out, "Let them come on." Ah, yes, it is persecution to put you in glorious company; and while there are many things that you will have to postpone to the future world for explanation, I tell you that it is the whole tendency of your religion to unravel and explain and interpret and illumine and irradiate. Job is right. It is a glorious transparency. "The crystal cannot equal it."

People talk too much about their cross and not enough about their crown. Do you know the Bible mentions a cross but twenty-seven times while it mentions a crown eighty times! Ask that old man what he thinks of religion. He has been a close observer. He has been culturing an æsthetic taste. He has seen the sunrises of a half century. He has been an early riser. He has been an admirer of cameos and corals and all kinds of beautiful things. Ask him what he thinks of religion and he will tell you, "It is the most beautiful thing I ever saw." "The crystal cannot equal it."

Beautiful in its symmetry. When it presents God's character it does not present Him as having love like a great protuberance on one side of his nature, but makes that love in harmony with his justice—a love that will accept all those who come to him, and a justice that will by no means clear the guilty. Beautiful religion in the sentiment it implants! Beautiful religion in the hope it kindles! Beautiful religion in the fact that it proposes to garland and enthrone and emparadise an immortal spirit. Solomon says it is a lily. Paul says it is a crown. The Apocalypse says it is a fountain kissed of the sun. Ezekiel says it is a foliaged cedar. Christ says it is a bridegroom come to fetch home a bride. While Job in the text takes up a whole vase of precious stones—the topaz and the sapphire and the chrysoprasus—and he takes out of this beautiful vase just one crystal and holds it up until it gleams in the warm light of the eastern sky, and he exclaims, "The crystal cannot equal it!"

Again, religion is superior to the crystal in its transformations. The diamond is only a crystalization of coal. Carbonate of lime rises till it becomes calcite of aragonite. Red oxide of copper crystalizes into cubes and octachedrons. Those crystals which adorn our persons and our homes and our museums have only been resurrected from forms that were far from lustrous. Scientists for ages have been examining these wonderful transformations. But I tell you in the Gospel of the Son of God there is a more wonderful transformation. Over souls by reason of sin black as coal and hard as iron. God by his comforting grace stoops and says. "They shall be mine in the day when I make up my jewels."

"What," say you, "will God wear jewelry?" If He wanted it He could make the stars of heaven His belt and have the evening cloud for the sandals of His feet; but He does not want that adornment. He will not have that jewelry. When God wants jewelry He comes down and digs it out of the depths and darkness of sin. These souls are all crystallizations of mercy. He puts them on and He wears them in the presence of the whole universe. He wears them on the hand that was nailed, over the heart that was pierced, on the temples that were stung. "They shall be Mine," saith the Lord, "in the day when I make up My jewels." Wonderful transformation! "The crystal cannot equal it." There she is, a waif of the street; but she shall be a sister of charity. There he is, a sot in the ditch, but he shall preach the Gospel. There, behind the bars of a prison, but he shall reign with Christ forever. Where sin abounded grace shall much more abound. The carbon becomes the solitaire. "The crystal cannot equal it."

Now, I have no liking for those people who are always enlarging in Christian meetings about their early dissipation. Do not go into the particulars, my brothers. Simply say you were sick, but make no display of your ulcers. The chief stock in trade of some ministers and Christian workers seems to be their early crimes and dissipations. The number of pockets you picked and the number of chickens you stole make very poor prayer-meeting rhetoric. Besides that, it discourages other Christian people who never got drunk or stole anything. But it is pleasant to know that those who were farthest down have been brought highest up. Out of infernal serfdom into eternal liberty. Out of darkness into light. From coal to the solitaire. "The crystal cannot equal it."

But, my friends, the chief transforming power of the Gospel will not be seen in this world and not until heaven breaks upon the soul. When that light falls upon the soul then you will see the crystals. Oh, what a magnificent sorting for these jewels of eternity! I sometimes hear people representing Heaven in a way that is far from attractive to me. It seems almost a vulgar vulgar Heaven as they represent it with great blotches of color and bands of music making a deafening racket. John represents Heaven as exquisitely beautiful. Three crystals. In one place he says: —"Her light was like a precious stone, clear as crystal." In another place he says:—"I saw a pure river from under the throne, clear as crystal." In another place he says: —"Before the throne there was a sea of glass clear as crystal." Three crystals! John says crystal atmosphere. That means health. Balm of eternal June. What weather after the world's east wind! No rack of storm clouds. One breath of that air will cure the worst tubercle. Crystal light on all the leaves. Crystal light shimmering on the topaz of the temples. Crystal light tossing in the plumes of the equestrians of Heaven on white horses. But "the crystal cannot equal it." John says crystal river. That means joy. Deep and ever rolling. Not one drop of the Thames or the Hudson or the Rhine to soil it. Not one tear of human sorrow to embitter it. Crystal, the rain out of which it was made. Crystal, the bed over which it shall roll and ripple. Crystal, its infinite surface. But "the crystal cannot equal it." John says crystal sea. That means multitudinously vast. Vast in rapture. Rapture vast as the sea, deep as the sea, strong as the sea, ever changing as the sea. Billows of light. Billows of beauty, blue with skies that were never clouded, and green with depths that were never fathomed. Arctics and Atlantics and Mediterraneans and Atlantics and Pacifics in crystalline magnificence. Three crystals. Crystal light falling on a crystal river. Crystal river rolling into a crystal sea. But "the crystal cannot equal it."

A BOODLER CAUGHT.

Toronto Was Too Dangerous for the Texan and He Left for the East.

HALIFAX, N.S., April 24.—L. Piggott, the Texan who stole 15,000 sheep and 30 horses some time ago, sold them for $39,000 and skipped from San Antonio, was arrested here to-night. The woman with whom he fled and with whom he lived in Toronto for some days was arrested in Montreal this afternoon. Prisoner acknowledged his identity and said he was only waiting the arrival of the woman, when they intended to take the first steamer for England. Only $408 was found in his possession.

THE SILENT ONE SLEEPS.

COUNT MOLTKE DIES SUDDENLY FROM HEART FAILURE.

He Had Attended the Reichstag in the Afternoon and the News of His Death Came Upon Berlin Like a Thunderbolt —The Child of Fortune's History.

BERLIN, April 24.—Field Marshal Count Helmut Von Moltke, the man who has so often led the Prussian eagle to victory, the man whose praises all Germany has universally sung, whose name has been on every tongue for half a century, and upon whom honors unique in the history of the Fatherland were showered on the occasion of the 90th anniversary of his birth, on October 26 last, died to-day in his castle at Kreisau, near the beautiful promenades of the Thiergarten, clad in the uniform which he always wore, and with the iron cross pinned on his breast. To the end he was the simple soldier—as modest and unassuming as when, an unknown lieutenant 70 years ago, he proffered his sword to Prussia's King.

Count Von Moltke attended the session of the Reichstag this afternoon. His death was very sudden and the physicians who were summoned announced that it was caused by failure of the heart. He died at 9.45 p.m., passing away quietly and painlessly. The news of the Count's death has caused great sorrow here.

Helmut Karl Bernhard Von Moltke was essentially a child of the century. Born in the village of Parchim, in Mecklenburg, on Sunday, Oct. 26, 1800, the son of Baron Fritz Von Moltke, he belonged, on his father's side, to one of the oldest families in the Empire. The Baron resigned his place in the army and took up his abode in Luebeck. In that historical city young Helmut made his first acquaintance with the "hereditary enemy" of Germany, the soldiers of France. Napoleon had made himself Emperor, had conquered Austria and Russia at Austerlitz, had dismembered the holy Roman Kingdom and by the battle of Jena had humbled and crushed poor Prussia. On Nov. 6 the city was besieged and the French soldiers soon sacked the place. Baron Moltke's home suffered among the rest. The insult left a lasting impression upon the mind of the boy, who was destined, years later, to have such terrible revenge. By the war and the humbled condition of Prussia Baron Moltke lost his fortune and was obliged again to take up his sword in the service of Denmark. Young Moltke then entered the military academy at Copenhagen. His resignation was accepted in 1822, and after a creditable examination he was appointed a second lieutenant in the 8th Prussian Regiment of Infantry.

In 1835 he set out for Turkey and was for four years in the service of Turkey. His life in the far East was full of adventure. He traveled through Asia Minor and camped at the sources of the Euphrates and Tigris; he took part in the memorable and cruel campaign against Mehemed Ali, and acted as an escort to the Sultan in his journey through Rumelia and Bulgaria. He prepared an elaborate work on the condition of the Turkish army; he drew plans of the Dardanelles and surveyed both banks of the Bosphorus; he drew a map of Constantinople, inspected armies and built bridges, palaces and aqueducts.

In 1845 he was appointed adjutant of Prince Henry of Prussia, who was then living in Rome. He spent almost a year in Italy, when the death of the Prince brought him again to Prussia. He was again placed in the general staff, being assigned to duty at Coblenz. During the following seven years, he advanced rapidly up the military ladder until 1855, when he was appointed adjutant of the Crown Prince. At 56 years of age, he succeeded to a place in which he was destined to win immortal fame. King Frederick William IV., on account of sickness, was obliged to give up the reins of government in favor of his brother, Prince William, in 1857. General von Manteuffel had been summoned to the Cabinet and Moltke succeeded him as chief of the general staff.

Moltke's first duty in his new office was a reorganization of the army. This he completed in 1860, as well as plans for a war against France, which was then believed imminent. The war with Denmark, however, came first. Although his name was not heralded at its close Moltke was the real conqueror of the heights of Dueppel, and added to Germany the proud provinces of Schleswig-Holstein and Lauenburg. The sound of cannon had hardly ceased to reverberate when Prussia began preparations for another war. Moltke, Bismarck, Roon and the King foresaw trouble from the common occupation of Schleswig-Holstein by Prussia and Austria. On June 8, 1866, the tocsin of war was again sounded. Moltke's towering and prophetic genius asserted itself again. True to his great strategic principle, "March separately, attack in union," he sent the three army corps of Prussia toward Koeniggraetz. The brilliant victory laid the foundation for the union of the German States. In one night he was famous. His return home was a triumphal march, of which a Cæsar might have been proud. Villages were decorated in his honor, deputations were sent to meet him, cities gave him their freedom. "Prussia knows itself now," he said. "That is the greatest result of the war. Now Germany may say that it is Germany." The Prussian Landtag voted Moltke a donation of 200,000 thalers for his services.

But new, harder and grander duties fell to his lot.

Before the year 1870 had opened the plans for the mobilization and transportation of the troops and for operations on the field of battle were in the hands of King William. Every emergency was provided for, and Moltke fought over and over again the great battles of the Franco-Prussian war before a cannon had been fired. To his masterful foresight was due the wonderful success of the German arms. Seven days after the declaration of war, on July 19, the mobilization of the troops was complete. Eight days later the armies were drawn up between the Rhine and Saar. All are familiar with the history of that war. Its great victories —Mars-la-Tour, Gravelotte, Sedan and Metz—were, in a great measure, his victories. Metz, too, capitulated on his birthday, when King William conferred upon him the title and dignity of count. Upon his return home, the Reichstag voted him a donation of 300,000 thalers; Emperor William appointed him field-marshal general, a life member of the Herren-Haus and knight of the order Pour le Merite; universities conferred degrees upon him; cities gave him diplomas of citizenship; forts and men-of-war were christened with his name. He left Berlin on July 31, 1870, the subject of a king; he entered Berlin on March 16, 1871, the citizen of an empire.

At Lexington, Va., James Crane, colored, was hanged for the murder of Charles Oliver at Brownsburg.

SHELLED WITH SHRAPNELL.

Manipur Villages Burned and the Rebels Shot Down.

SIMLA, April 24.—The British column advancing on the Manipuris under Gen. Lockhardt reached a large native settlement in the Bshagri Valley. The British force halted when within sight of the settlement, and sent scouts forward to inform the Manipuris that the British general was awaiting proposals of peace from the insurgent tribes. The rebels refused to answer, and the British troops were ordered to advance. The column pushed forward and burned twelve villages which had been occupied by the rebels. The latter in great force retreated to the hills. The British force then shelled the hills with shrapnel, killing and wounding large numbers of the enemy. The latter are now believed to be completely cowed.

Portugal Finds That Discretion is the Better Part of Valor.

LONDON, April 24.—As a result of the action of the Portuguese officials in firing on the steamer Agnes, which was conveying the expedition of Sir John Willoughby up the Pungwe, the British Prime Minister forwarded an ultimatum to the Portuguese Government declaring unless facilities were afforded to British subjects to open the Pungwe in accordance with the provisions of the modus vivendi now existing between Great Britain and Portugal, the British Government would resort to force to ensure respect on the part of Portugal to her treaty engagement, and the result would be disastrous to Portugal in that part of the world.

The Portuguese Cabinet to-day, under pressure of Lord Salisbury's ultimatum, gave consent to the free passage of the Pungwe River.

The King of Portugal signed six decrees yesterday, all aiming at economy in the different branches of the public service.

Another Liberal-Unionist Victory.

LONDON, April 24.—An election was held in White Haven to-day for a member of Parliament to succeed the late Right Hon. George A. F. Cavendish-Bentinck (Con.). Sir James Bain (Liberal-Unionist and Conservative) received 1338 votes to 1105 cast for H. G. Shee (Gladstonian). At the previous election Cavendish-Bentinck received 1216 and Shee 1110.

Farm Notes.

It is time that hotbed plants were started.

Onions, lettuce, peas, beets, radish, and spinach can be sown as soon as the soil can be worked.

In the garden the best plan of applying commercial fertilizers is broadcasting. In the garden especially it is difficult to get the soil too rich.

Is "sneak thief" too hard a name for the patron who skims his milk before it is delivered at the cheese factory, or for the cheese-maker who skims it afterward?

Color your butter through feed and breed.

No manure, no salt, no combination of salts, gives full vigor of vegetation while nitrogen is absent. Nitrogen not only measures but gives the value to manures.

Lice may not appear in great numbers this month, but they will be along in due time if let alone. It is just as well to saturate the perches with kerosene, burn up old filthy nests, and put dry lime in the bottom of new nests, and to whitewash all coops inside and out with hot lime wash.

As early in spring as the ground can be worked, cultivate the currant patch and clean out all grass from around the roots. If coal ashes in sufficient quantity can be obtained, cover the ground around every bush with a thick coat. The ashes act as a mulch to keep the soil moist and loose, and discourage the currant worm.

Suddenly Summoned.

PRESTON, Ont., April 24.—Henry Hagey, ex-reeve of the village, returned from a walk yesterday apparently as well as usual. He entered an adjoining room to prepare for dinner. Shortly after Mr. Maurice Hagey, hearing a noise, entered Mr. Hagey's room, when he was shocked to find his grandfather lying on the floor quite dead. Mr. Hagey was born in Preston in 1822.

AWFUL SKIN DISEASE

Child a Mass of Raw, Bleeding Sores. Miraculous Cure by the Cuticura Remedies.

A face, from the hair to the neck on both sides, a raw mass of bleeding sores; two little hands and arms in the same condition; a body around the waist of which was a broad band of bleeding eruptions, and from the hips to the tips of her toes the skin was so raw as to be absolutely sickening to the sight. Said Mrs. H. A. Stout to me: "I have tried everything suggested to me on my little daughter, who has been so afflicted almost from birth. I have had three doctors experiment on her, but she seemed to be getting worse every day. I was almost distracted. Every night I had to bandage her all over, and tie mittens on her hands to prevent her from digging the raw flesh with her fingers. Mr. Faulkner said he believed that CUTICURA REMEDIES would cure her. He offered to bear the expense. At that time she was worse than I had ever seen her, and there seemed no prospect of recovery. CUTICURA, CUTICURA RESOLVENT, and CUTICURA SOAP have wrought a miracle. To-day her skin is smooth and fair, and I believe she has entirely recovered." The above is true in every particular, and I refer to Mr. C. W. Woolever, druggist.

CHICAGO, 6th April, 1891.

Robert Bogle, Esq., Belleville Business College, Belleville, Ont.:

DEAR FRIEND,—Your very welcome letter of the 13th ult. was duly received.

You asked in your letter if I had any difficulty in performing my work as stenographer. I am glad to tell you that I have not had any difficulty in the least, as you assured me I would not, before leaving your college. I have to write from 30 to 40 letters a day, and there is enough other office work to keep me busy, but it is not hard.

Tell the students never to be afraid, after they have received as careful training as I got.

In conclusion I have to say that any young gentleman or young lady wishing to improve his or her time, may rest assured that they will never regret the time and money spent while attending the above named institution.

Yours very truly,
J. W. ANDERSON,
Stenographer for Messrs W. H. McNaughton & Co., Real Estate and Investments.

King of Medicines

A Cure "Almost Miraculous."

"When I was 14 years of age I had a severe attack of rheumatism, and after I recovered had to go on crutches. A year later, scrofula, in the form of white swellings, appeared on various parts of my body, and for 11 years I was an invalid, being confined to my bed 6 years. In that time ten or eleven sores appeared and broke, causing me great pain and suffering. I feared I never should get well.

"Early in 1886 I went to Chicago to visit a sister, but was confined to my bed most of the time I was there. In July I read a book, 'A Day with a Circus,' in which were statements of cures by Hood's Sarsaparilla. I was so impressed with the success of this medicine that I decided to try it. To my great gratification the sores soon decreased, and I began to feel better and in a short time I was up and out of doors. I continued to take Hood's Sarsaparilla for about a year, when, having used six bottles, I had become so fully released from the disease that I went to work for the Flint & Walling Mfg. Co., and since then on account of sickness. I believe the disease is expelled from my system, I always feel well, am in good spirits and have a good appetite. I am now 27 years of age and can walk as well as any one, except that one limb is a little shorter than the other, owing to the loss of bone, and the sores formerly on my right leg. To my friends my recovery seems almost miraculous, and I think Hood's Sarsaparilla is the king of medicines." WILLIAM A. LEHR, 9 N. Railroad St., Kendallville, Ind.

HAVE NOT LOST A SINGLE DAY

INFORMATION GRATIS.

Dr. Willoughby wants the Ontario Government to pension the volunteers. He should know that the province has no control over the military or the militia. Anything to blame Mowat.—Trenton Grit paper.

On this, as on many other subjects, the "editor" of the paper in question is sadly in need of information. Sir John and Mr. Laurier, in letters addressed to Mr. George Merrill, of this city, and published several months ago, concurred in the opinion that the Provincial Legislatures of Ontario and Quebec are the proper sources to which to apply for pensions or other remuneration for the volunteers of 1837 8.

Copies of the letters can be obtained from Mr. Merrill. We make no charge for the information.

"A NOD IS AS GOOD AS A WINK."

"There is in some quarters a belief that, owing to the export of saw logs to the United States, the Dominion Goverement will, at the coming session, reimpose the export duty. But is that not a game that could be worked both ways? There are points in Canada where the logs can be more profitably made into lumber than they could be exported, but if Canada goes into the business of trying to compel the sawing of all logs on this side of the line, what is there to hinder the United States from putting a tax on our lumber that would practically prohibit its importation into that country?"—Montreal Herald.

Another hint to our American friends how they may injure and annoy Canada—not that they need any such suggestions, but it serves to expose the utter hollowness of the pharisaical pretences of loyalty with which the Herald is wont to interlard its malevolent diatribes.

VITAL STATISTICS OF ONTARIO.

The annual report of the registration of births, marriages, and deaths in the Province of Ontario for the year ending December 31, 1889, has been issued.

It shows that during the year 1889 there were registered 48,538 births, 14,880 marriages, and 23,329 deaths. Compared with the registrations made during 1888 the births show an increase of 1,585, the marriages an increase of 329, and the deaths a decrease of 405.

The male births in the province numbered 24,787, the females 23,801, an excess of 936 males, showing a proportion of 103.5 males to 100 females. There was a small increase in the number of twin births registered. Three cases of triplets, the same number as in 1888, were registered, one each in the counties of Haldimand, Peterborough and York respectively.

The report says:—"Of the 48,639 children whose births were registered during the year 1889, 47,581 or 98 per cent. were legitimate and 958 or 2 per cent. illegitimate. In 1885 there were 46,953 births registered. Of these 46,335 or 98.7 per cent. were legitimate, and 918 or 1.3 per cent. illegitimate, showing a large increase in the number of illegitimate births registered in 1889."

The marriages of the four principal denominations were as follows:—Methodists 9,920, Presbyterians 6,022, Episcopalians 5,041, and Roman Catholics 4,816. Little change took place in the months chosen for marrying. October, December and January are still the favourite months, especially December, which heads the list with 1,753 weddings, nearly twelve per cent. of the whole number celebrated during the year. Comparatively few marriages took place in August, only 913, or 6 per cent. of the whole number returned during the year.

The returns show that 42 persons were married at the age of 70 years and over; forty bridegrooms and two brides. Only two brides were older than their bridegrooms; one was 82 years old and the bridegroom 62 years, the other was 70 years and the bridegroom 61 years. The united ages of the oldest couple married in 1889 was 148 years. The bridegroom was 81 years and and the bride 67. Four persons were married at 80 years of age and over, three males and one female. In contrast to these marriages of persons advanced in years the following youthful marriages were recorded, viz.:—Nine girls of 14 years of age united themselves to youths under nineteen years, and thirty girls were married at 16 years of age. The youngest couple married was a girl of 14 years of age to a youth of 18 years. The greatest disparity of age exhibited in any marriage was that of a man aged 79 years, who married a maiden of the age of 15 years.

The ten highest causes of death were consumption, to which 2,417 deaths were due; pneumonia, 2,286; nervous diseases, 2,268; general debility, 1,996; heart diseases 1,639; darrhœal diseases, 1,192; fevers, 953; enteritis and gastritis, 831; diphtheria, 801; and kidney diseases, 592.

Men That Jump

at conclusions, are generally "off their base." Because there are numberless patent medicines of questionable value, it doesn't follow that all are worthless. Don't class Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy with the usual run of such remedies. It is way above and beyond them! It is doing what others fail to do! It is curing the worst cases of Chronic Nasal Catarrh. If you doubt it, try it. If you make a thorough trial, you'll be cured. $500 forfeit for an incurable case. This offer, by World's Dispensary Medical Association, Buffalo, N.Y. "It is a Whole Drug Store."

Is what a lady said of Clark's Lightning Liniment. The previous night she had an attack of neuralgia in the face, and sent to the drug store for relief. The night clerk sent a bottle of Clark's Lightning Liniment, which dispelled the pain at once. In the night baby awoke with colic. She gave him three drops of the Liniment on a lump of sugar, and he went to sleep again. In the morning her husband complained of Rheumatism in the shoulder. She rubbed it with the Liniment until he said the pain was gone. Is it any wonder the lady called Clark's Lightning Liniment "a whole drug store?" Sold by all druggists; price fifty cents. ONTARIO LEGISLATURE.

THE HOUSE TO PROROGUE END OF NEXT WEEK.

Morning Sessions to be Held Until Dissolution—The New Parliament Buildings—A Bust of Robert Baldwin—Assignments and Preferences.

TORONTO, April 25.—The House yesterday decided to meet on Tuesday next at 11 a.m. Morning sessions will be held for the balance of the term and a vigorous effort will be made to finish the work next week.

Mr. Gibson (Hamilton) found the opposition to his amendments to the Insurance Act so strong that he consented to drop the clause which provides that companies shall not be liable for loss occasioned by steam engines within 100 feet of a barn or stack.

The House resolved, on motion of Mr. Fraser, to add an additional sum of $150,000 to the money set apart for the new Parliament buildings, making the total sum appropriated for that purpose $1,200,000.

The legal committee amended G. B. Smith's bill respecting assignments and preferences by insolvents so as to make void any conveyance or assignment by a person within three months of insolvency. Mr. Meredith's bill to amend the Judicature Act to compel the examination by a medical man of any person on whose behalf compensation for personal injuries might be claimed was so amended as to make the examining physician an impartial witness.

The Municipal Committee dealt with Mr. Tait's bill to amend the Municipal Act in different respects. The clause permitting the expenditure of money on the celebration of national and other holidays and the reception of guests was amended so that cities of over 100,000 may spend $5000, cities between 20,000 and 100,000 may spend $1000, and cities and towns less than 20,000 $500. The clause giving police commissioners power to regulate and prohibit the playing of musical instruments in streets, parks or public places was adopted. It does not apply to military bands on duty. Mayor Clarke moved that police commissioners be given power to regulate and prohibit public speaking in streets, parks, etc. The committee was equally divided on this subject and it was defeated by the casting vote of the chairman. The clause providing for the proper erection and the inspection of builders' scaffolds was adopted.

Letters patent have been issued incorporating H. H. Sypps, Essex, G. J. Leggatt, J. A. Smith and A. H. Clarke, Windsor, and C. H. Delisle, Walkerville, as the Farmers' Natural Gas and Oil Company with a capital of $100,000 to carry on a general gas and oil business in the county of Essex.

Mr. Meredith introduced a bill at the instance of the city of Toronto to amend the act relating to public highways, so that the clause prohibiting traffic over bridges at a faster rate than a walk shall not apply to iron or steel bridges except at the option of the municipality.

There is on exhibition in the library a plaster cast of Robert Baldwin, executed by F. H. T. Dunbar. Those who remember the features and the attitude of the great Reformer when speaking say that the sculptor has done his work well.

THE DEATH-CLUTCH VISIBLE.

Strangled on a Train and Tossed Out of the Window.

GRAND VALLEY, Ont., April 23.—At the coroner's inquest on the child which was found on the C. P. R. track, Dr. Phillips testified that the babe had been murdered, as there were four finger marks, apparently made by the right hand of some person, on the throat and neck of the child and also other proofs of the child being violently dealt with. The jury decided that the child came to its death through the violence of some person or persons unknown, and that the box was dropped off the train.

KILLED AT PLAY.

Fatal Bout With Foils in the London Military School.

LONDON, April 24.—It now transpires that Sergeant John Nelson of Chatham, who died at the Military School here Wednesday, was not a victim of grip, as reported. It has since transpired that the young man was the victim of an accident, having been stabbed accidentally in a fencing bout with a fellow pupil, the button having, it is said, come off the foil.

HIS HEART WAS BROKEN.

A Son's Disgrace Causes His Aged Father's Demise from Grief.

KINCARDINE, April 24.—William Remington, father of the young man now in jail on the charge of murdering Agent Flett at Arthur, died at his farm near Hunter. Ever since the arrest of his son Mr. Remington has been in a very depressed state, and latterly has been confined to his bed, being much weakened by fits of weeping which overwhelmed him at the thought of the disgrace brought upon his honorable name. He has never seen his son since his arrest, and it is said that his family were afraid to let him visit Joe as he had threatened to shoot him.

LIGHT CUT INTO CLOSED EYES.

Rare Optical Surgery to Give Sight to a Little Girl.

COLORADO SPRINGS, April 24.—Born with her eyelids firmly closed, 6-year-old Myrtle Higbee of Denver yesterday underwent a marvelous operation in optical surgery at State School for the Deaf and Blind here. After administering an anæsthetic the surgeons carefully dissected her eyelids, parting them with a scalpel and forceps until the eyeball was reached. It was found then that the eye was turned very much inward. The cornea was slightly opaque and flattened. The eyelid was firmly adhered to the surface of the eyeball by fibres of connective tissue, and these had to be cut one at a time until the eyelid could be turned back. If further adhesion can be prevented the child has a very favorable chance of getting much more light, probably enough so that she will be able to distinguish the larger objects and can avoid running into them.

THE VATICAN SHATTERED.

Precious Relics and Valuable Historical Windows Destroyed.

ROME, April 24.—The explosion of 265 tons of gunpowder yesterday in the magazine created great damage at the Vatican. All the windows of the Pope's library were broken and a number of precious relics were destroyed. In addition many valuable panes of colored glass in the principal windows of St. Peter's Basilica were smashed to pieces. The handsome stained glass window over the chair of St. Peter was also broken. At St. Paul's Church all the stained glass windows were damaged. In fact the damage done at this church was so great that the building has been closed to the public while the debris is being cleared away and the work of temporary repair inaugurated. Much of the destruction wrought by the explosion is irreparable, as the valuable works of art which have been destroyed cannot be replaced. Many of the stained glass windows shattered were the works of celebrated artists who flourished hundreds of years ago.

The Pope had just concluded the celebration of a low mass and was engaged in prayer when the explosion shook the Vatican building.

The investigation made by the military authorities into the origin of the explosion shows that it was caused by the accidental explosion of some shrapnell shell. A few of the people who were injured at the time of the explosion, who were taken to the hospitals, have died from the effects of the injuries they received.

BUSINESS IMPROVING.

As the Result of Good Weather and Promising Crop Reports.

NEW YORK, April 24.—Special telegrams to Bradstreet's very generally refer to more settled weather and good crop prospects as causes of increased activity in general trade. Improved weather has not aided the general demand for drygoods materially, trade as a whole being quiet and unsatisfactory. Gingham and woolen dress goods are most active. A drive in prints this week was at lowest prices on record. Low grade cottons are weak. Cotton speculation is active, but irregular. Actual cotton is 1-16c lower.

The industrial situation becomes more disturbed as May 1 approaches, that being the date set for a general demand for fewer hours of work daily by 175,000 bitumious coal miners. It is doubtful, however, whether that number will strike. No trouble is anticipated in the anthracite region. Steel rails have been very quiet this week.

Wheat has been excited and 6c higher during the week, chiefly on speculative operations, heavily backed for the time by cables from England, France and Portugal. Later a disposition to realize, together with rather more favorable crop reports from the continent of Europe, caused a reaction which swallowed up all the advance. More than 120,000,000 bushels were traded in at New York, against 45,000,000 bushels in the preceding week.

General trade throughout Ontario is rather better than in the province of Quebec. Sugars are said to be unsettled owing to expected tariff changes and "smuggling across the border." The Dominion reports 33 business failures this week against 39 last week and 38 this week last year. The total number January 1 to date is 705 against 675 last year.

EVERY MAN FOR HIMSELF.

From the Giddy Dance to the Eddy of Death.

ST. JOHN, N.B., April 24.—At low tide the water in St. John harbor runs out like a mill race, and just at Reed's point peer where the steamer Dominion lies are the swiftest eddies. A boatload of men and girls upset at this place this morning about 3 o'clock and two were drowned, the others being rescued with great difficulty. The young people had been attending a dance in Carleton. The gunwale of the boat struck the bow of the steamer and in a moment capsized. Lines were thrown from the steamer and the most terrible confusion ensued. The men fought amongst themselves for ropes and while the girls, seated in the stern, were shrieking for help, a couple of these stalwart cowards fastened lines to themselves and were hoisted up. Two of the girls, Ethel Allen and Nellie McAllister, were drowned

The Calcutta Englishman says the suppression of the opium trade in India will provoke a revolt among the Sikhs and other warlike races, and suggests the restoration of the cotton duties, doubling the income tax, absorbing the famine fund and adding 8 annas (one shilling) to the salt tax, otherwise England will have to pay India £6,000,000 annually.

The miners' strike at Dortmund, Germany, is assuming alarming proportions. Ten thousand men are out and it is expected they will be joined by large numbers to-morrow. The strikers are greatly excited and beyond the control of their leaders. The men are encouraged by the result of the Paris congress and the action of the Belgian miners regarding a general strike. The employers are making tremendous efforts to stack coal in anticipation of the prolonged struggle.

Mt. Pleasant, Pa., strikers are drilling every night and have arms secreted, and trouble is feared at evictions next week.

Exports and Imports.

The exports from the Dominion for the nine months ended March 31st amounted to $73,734,003, an increase of $525,282 over the same nine months in 1889 90. The imports for March were $8,419,895, and the duty collected $1,939,573. The imports for the nine months ending March 31 were $81,829,943, a decrease of $722,944 below last year.

G. S. TICKELL & SONS

HISTORY REPEATS ITSELF.

in wall paper as in everything else, once in about every ten years.

It is not ten years ago though since the "fad" of papering ceilings was all the rage, nor was it five years ago! Yet this season there is a very strong demand for ceiling papers and decorations, and we firmly believe that papered ceilings will always be fashionable.

* * *

How do we know?

We'll tell you.

Economy and common sense have done it.

The world of fashion produces periodically a "fad" and if it receives "official recognition" from some fashion leader, it is considered "quite the proper thing" by the votaries of fashion and a craze ensues.

* * *

Fashion dictates more severely and draws finer lines in the matter of decoration than in anything else under her sway, and it sometimes happens that some of her "whims" become permanencies or "things of beauty and a joy forever." Economy is the great factor that transforms what was once a "fleeting fancy" into a permanent reality and that's where common sense steps in.

Although the craze of papering ceilings died out for awhile, it has returned again, not as a craze, but as a good big morsel of hard common sense, and it has come to stay. It's admitted superiority over every other style of ceiling decoration, both in attractiveness and ECONOMY has forced 'fashion" to the wall for once and in spite of herself she "returns to her first love," thus waiving the formality of waiting the allotted decade for "History to repeat itself."

Try and remember that economy and common sense have done this—for where can you find a better field for decoration in your whole house than a ceiling presents?

Please make a note of this.

Flew From Toronto.

Master John Breault found a carrier pigeon at the Big Stables, Deseronto, on Wednesday morning. The bird bore the name of the owner, J. Gairdner, Toronto. How the bird came to light at Deseronto is not known. The owner has been communicated with. A reward was held out to the finder, the fact being inscribed on one wing.

A Handsome Souvenir.

The Montreal Pharmaceutical Journal for April contains beautifully printed photogravures of Messrs. Henry Lyman & Sons, Montreal, (proprietors of the pioneer drug house of Canada, established 1800) and their travelling staff, numbering twelve. The whole forms a handsome souvenir which will be appreciated by the friends of the house, and the trade generally.

Stand Your Ground.

When you make up your mind to take Hood's Sarsaparilla, do not be induced to buy some other preparation instead. Clerks may claim that "ours is as goods as Hood's" and all that, but the peculiar merit of Hood's Sarsaparilla cannot be equalled. Therefore have nothing to do with substitutes and insist upon having Hood's Sarsaparilla, the best blood purifier and building up medicine.

Emmanuel Reformed Episcopal Church.

The work of alteration has proceeded sufficiently far for the church to occupy its new place of worship on Hotel street, in the church building recently purchased from the Congregationalists. When all the arrangements are completed there will be special conveniences for the Infant class, Rector's Bible class, and the Young People's Institute.

They are Going Fast.

We received our bats and balls last Saturday evening. We cannot say what has drawn us the great trade in children's and boys clothing this week. Some may say it is the presents we are giving the boys, but we claim it is the value we are giving. At any rate the bats and balls are going very fast, and as each represents the sale of a suit we are perfectly satisfied.

Worth Trying For!

It is not yet too late to take a hand in the great Dominion Illustrated Prize Competition, and try for one of the hundred prizes which will be distributed among the subscribers to that splendid journal. The first prize is $750 in Gold, and the list includes a Heintzman Piano, Bell, Karn and Cornwall Organs, Gold watches, etc., the lowest prize being valued at $5. On receipt of 12 cents in stamps, the publishers, The Sabiston Litho & Pub Co., Montreal, will send to any address a sample copy of the journal and full particulars.

Belleville Illustrated.

The Dominion Illustrated gives in its issue for the present week, a view of the Bay bridge; the point of view is the south end. The picture, which was taken previous to the finishing of the work, gives a good idea of the structure as seen from that point, but in order to obtain a proper idea of the magnitude of the steel bond which unites Hastings and Prince Edward, a side view of the bridge is necessary.

The Illustrated has also two small but well printed reproductions of photographs of scenes on James St. (not Everett St., as our contemporary has it), and on Coleman St., from the lower bridge (not upper bridge, as stated in our contemporary.)

A Nuisance Which Ought to be Abated.

Many citizens are complaining of the damage done by boys armed with catapults and air guns. The "young ideas," who are learning to shoot, roam the street in pursuit of sparrows and other birds, and frequent the margins of ponds in search of frogs on which to exercise their skill; but their favorite targets are the windows of vacant houses, and not very infrequently they vary the programme by a shot through the window of an occupied dwelling. The citizens who are complaining of this nuisance can aid materially in suppressing it by giving to the police the names of boys whom they detect in such mischief, and Council should pass a by law prohibiting the use of air guns, catapults and other mischievous engines on the streets.

THE BAY BRIDGE.

A Fitting Commemoration of its Opening.

The proprietors of The Intelligencer will publish, in connection with the formal opening of the Bay Bridge, a handsomely illustrated edition, containing views of that great structure and many other local illustrations of interest, together with literary matter fully descriptive of the work and the locality. The preparation of the engravings for this illustrated Intelligencer, has already been commenced by well-known engravers in Toronto, and no pains will be spared in seeking to render it worthy of the occasion and a credit to Belleville.

The circulation of this special edition, which will be published as a supplement to our Daily and Weekly issues, will be very large. A limited amount of advertising will be inserted at reasonable rates.

"Lost in New York."

There was an enthusiastic audience at the opera house last night to see the first production in this city of the above named drama. The play is of the sensational order, but differs widely from others of its class, inasmuch as it has a well sustained plot, the characters in which are interpreted by an admirably well-balanced company. Winsome Lottie Altar as Jennie Wilson, a New York waif, was a favorite from the moment she bounded on the stage in rags, until she appeared in the last act attired in silks and satins. Miss Henrietta Scott and Miss Florence Stover were very acceptable, the latter especially showing herself to be an exceptionally talented actress. George Salvator, as that much abused individual—the villain, is a talented actor who deserves special praise for his intelligent work. Messrs. Ryno, Jackson and the remainder of the cast acted their parts in a satisfactory manner, and as for Gus Pixley—the audience forced him to respond to numerous encores in his broad comedy portraiture of the tramp. The scenery and mechanical effects are magnificent, the third act including the water scene with a full sized steam launch loading and unloading passengers, was the most realistic effect ever seen in the city. The company make their last appearance to night.

Unhappy Married Life.

In Thursday's issue we gave an account of the burning of a barn in the township of Madoc, belonging to Mr. Christmas Plane, and for which he had his wife arrested. On this charge she was acquitted when brought before Mr. E. D. O'Flynn, J.P., of Madoc. Mr. Plane, who was a widower of 57 years of age, married his present wife about two years since, when she was 27 years of age. For a time their domestic relations were pleasant until, Mr Plane alleges, his wife wanted to go to the village and work in a hotel for a day—which he forbade, as he did upon another occasion. The "green eyed" monster put in an appearance, when happiness ceased for the couple, which state of affairs culminated in the wife being arrested on the charge of burning the barn. Notwithstanding the decision of the Magistrate in Madoc, Mr. Plane, who was in the city to-day, so far convinced the Crown Attorney and Police Magistrate of the truth of his story that his wife induced one of his children to set fire to the barn, that a warrant was issued for her re-arrest, as an accessory before the fact.

Personal.

Mr. W. L. Hamilton, Inspector of Inland, Revenue, is in town.

Mr. George S. Sterling and Mrs. Sterling will on Monday take possession of Massassaga Park Hotel, and commence preparations for the opening, which will be about May 20th.

Mr. W. J. Magrath, of Deseronto, who has just completed the course at Ontario Business College, is now book-keeper with Messrs. Hodgson Bro's, cheese exporters, of this city. Mr. Wm. Forster, another graduate of the college, who was with Messrs. Hodgson Bro's last year has a fine position in the office of Messrs. McArthur Bro's, Belleville, the contractors for the double tracking of the Grand Trunk.

The Mining Outlook.

The Madoc Review says: "Mineral prospectors are unusually active all over North Hastings and in portions of the adjoining counties this spring. Some rich 'finds' have already been reported, not only in gold and iron ore but mica, asbestos phosphates and other valuable underground deposits have rewarded the searchers. We believe this section will experience a boom this coming season such as it has not been favored with for many years. The gold mining at Malone will be extensively prosecuted and so far is giving every satisfaction to the owners."

"I Have Had

Rheumatism for years, and Nerviline is the only remedy that has done me any good." So writes Thomas McGlashan, North Pelham, July 24, 1890, and his testimony is supported by thousands of others who have experienced the wonderful penetrating and pain subduing power of Nerviline—the great nerve pain cure. Nerviline is just as good to take as to rub on, and is the best family remedy in the world. Nerviline is sold by dealers everywhere.

NATURAL GAS AND OIL.

A Field Undoubtedly Exists in Central Ontario.

The Uses and Value of Natural Gas—The Origin and Accumulation of both Gas and Oil—Application of Natural Gas to Iron Furnaces—Use in Heating and Cooking Stoves and Conditions under Which it may be Advantageously Employed.

Natural gas and petroleum are both bitumens and the products of the crust of the earth. They are technically known as hydrocarbons, carbon and hydrogen constituting almost their entire substance. The discovery of petroleum on a large scale is included within the last thirty years, and all the really important applications of natural gas have been made within the past ten years, and are yet only in their initial stages.

In 1886 the distinguished French chemist, M. Berthelot, propounded the theory that clearly accounts for all the natural hydrocarbons. He says the alkali metals potassium and sodium exist in the interior of the earth in a free and uncombined state, and necessarily at a high temperature. Now when water carrying in solution carbonic acid — and the crust of the earth abounds in both—finds access to these metals by percolation, a chemical action must take place, and the results will be the production of a series of hydrocarbon compounds. This establishes the fact that there is a continuous production of oil and gas going on in the bowels of the earth. The specific gravity of both oil and gas being much lighter than water, they are bound to seek a higher level, which they do by permeating the porous rocks which form the various strata of the earth's surface and escaping wherever there is an outlet. In their upward course they frequently meet with a fold or undulation, technically called on "anticlinal." These folds or undulations usually take the form of a ridge or tableland, and when covered in on both top and sides with a close stratum of shale they form a reservoir for gas and oil, and when discovered and developed by the drill are called gas and oil fields. The extent and value of these fields depend entirely on the geological surroundings of each, and only a very few general rules can be laid down for the discovery of these folds, a heavy shale covering being one of the most important requisites. Dr. Selwyn, director of the Geological Survey of Canada, says in his report to the Royal Commission:—"In all probability there is a very large area of petroleum-bearing strata under Central Ontario which has yet never been reached, and which corresponds with the Ohio petroleum-bearing strata."

The value and uses of petroleum are well known, but natural gas has not been with us long enough to be entirely familiar. The application of natural gas to economic uses is only in its infancy. It can be used for melting steel, heating, welding, and puddling iron, for use in the manufacture of of glass, for raising steam, and for warming residences, business houses, hotels, and factories, for burning lime, bricks, and all classes of pottery ware. And for almost every purpose for which fuel is ever used it has been eminently successful. For all the purposes mentioned it is economical, cleanly, and desirable from every standpoint. In the gas regions in North-western Ohio, Western Pennsylvania, and West Virginia manufacturers have established industries of all kinds. In that class of manufactures whose productions are of such a nature that fuel is a very material part of the cost of the article produced they have been so successful that their competitors outside of these regions and beyond piping distance from the gas fields have been quite unable to hold their own. The former have very rapidly accumulated enormous wealth, while the latter have only made but slow progress.

In the cities of Pittsburg, Allegheny, Buffalo, Erie, Cleveland and Detroit—the gas being conveyed to Detroit from Findlay, Ohio, a distance of over 100 miles—there are thousands of residences heated by natural gas and in which the cooking is done by the aid of this fuel.

In this direction it is perhaps doing more to cultivate a desire for gaseous fuel than any of the numerous other uses to which it has been applied. Aside from its great convenience, gas is superior to solid fuel for cooking. There is an erroneous impression prevailing with many who have not had experience in the use of gas for cooking, that food, and especially meat, cooked with this fuel tastes of the gas. This is impossible unless there be carelessness in its use and imperfect combustion occurs. Natural gas does not contain any element or compound that is not contained in coal, but is usually free from some obnoxious compounds found in coal or generated in its combustion, such as phosphoric acid and sulphydric acid. The waste products of the combustion of gas, however, should not be permitted to escape into the room. A hood placed over the gas stove and attached to a flue or chimney with a fairly good draught will not only carry off the burnt gas but also the odors rising from the food being cooked. Gas is an economical fuel with which to cook for two reasons. First, it is sold to the consumers at about 25cts. per 1,000 cubic feet. All expense for fuel will cease, the instant the cooking is completed; and second, in the matter of roasting. There is a much smaller percentage of waste in meat roasted in a properly constructed gas stove than occurs in the best stoves using solid fuel. A great number of experiments made a few years ago in London by a committee of experts, demonstrated that meat roasted by the best gas roasters lost but 10 to 11 per cent., that is, the cooked meat weighed 10 to 11 per cent. less than did the raw meat, while with the coal heated stoves the loss in meat ranged from 20 to 25 per cent.

For domestic heating there are devices now in use that automatically turn on and off the gas, so as to maintain the temperature at any desired degree. These devices are so sensitive that a change of one degree in temperature will be sufficient to cause them to turn off or put on more gas, as may be required to maintain an equable temperature, and when set to maintain the temperature of a room at 70 degrees, will prevent the temperature of that room falling below 69 or rising above 71 degrees.—Mail.

A Pleasant Herb Drink—A Spring Medicine.

The druggists tell us that people call daily for the new cure for constipation and sick-headache discovered by Dr. Silas Lane. It is said to be Oregon grape root (a great remedy in the far west for those complaints) combined with simple herbs, and is made ready for use by pouring on boiling water to draw out the strength. It sells at 50c and $1 a package and is called Lane's Family Medicine.

THE RIPPER IN NEW YORK

A MURDERER SIMILAR TO THE WHITECHAPEL BUTCHERIES.

A Disreputable Woman of Gotham Cut to Pieces and Shockingly Mutilated in One of the Worst Districts—Her Suspected Murderer in Custody.

New York, April 24.—About 10.45 last night a man and woman entered East River Hotel, Catherine and Water-streets. The man's entry in the register reads "Knickloe and wife." The man was a stranger, while the woman was a dissolute character who frequented the neighborhood. They were assigned to a room on the top floor. This morning a servant endeavored to awaken the couple, but did not succeed. The door of the room was forced and on the bed was found the woman dead and disembowelled. The man had disappeared. The murderer was a man 32 years old and shabbily dressed. It is believed he is "Jack the Ripper." The woman was cut in pieces in the same manner as the Whitechapel victims. She was lying naked on the bed, the sheet and her underclothing were tied tightly about the throat and head, and the abdomen was cut and slashed in a horrible manner by a dull, broken table knife which lay on the floor near the bed. The viscera had been cut and from appearances a part was missing. The woman had evidently been strangled.

The victim has been recognized as Carrie Brown, aged 60. Nearly all the detectives in the city are engaged on the case and every effort is being made to find a man known as "Frenchy," an acquaintance of the woman. The district where the murder was committed is similar to the Whitechapel district of London. The house where the murder was committed is known as "The House of All Drinks," from the big sign of the many kinds of vile beverages that are on draught there. The place is perhaps one of the worst of its class. In the very room in which this murder was committed another low woman was found dead one morning. The bartender has also been arrested for killing a man with a sabre.

Up to midnight four men and seven women had been arrested, who are expected to throw light on the case. At 1 a.m. Adolph Kaltenberg, whose description answers to that of the murderer, was taken into custody.

CUT HIS THROAT AT 19.

Tragic Suicide of a Young Lad in Dundas County.

Morrisburg, Ont., April 24.—Herman Serviss, aged 19, only son of Mrs. William Serviss of Iroquois, committed suicide at his sister's. For some time past the young man has been working on a farm across the river and had been in low spirits. He retired to his room and shortly after was found with his throat cut.

CANADIAN LACROSSE LEAGUE.

Montreal, April 24.—The adjourned meeting of the Canadian Lacrosse League was held here to-day. The representatives were Messrs. Garvin, Toronto; Hughes, Cornwall; Kent, Ottawa; Cleghorn, Montreal; McKenna, Shamrocks.

The result of the deliberations was that Montreal and Toronto withdrew from the league. The whole affair did not take long, as both parties had their minds made up. The two big clubs refused to admit the Capitals and announced their secession when they were outvoted by Hughes, Dowling and Kent. After the Montreal and Toronto delegates withdrew those remaining, J. Kent, Ottawa, W. J. Hughes, Cornwall, J.K. Dowling, Capitals, and W. J. McKenna, Shamrock, proceeded to work. Mr. Hughes moved, seconded by Mr. Dowling, that Shamrocks, Cornwalls, Capitals and Ottawas play a series of matches and that these clubs refuse to play exhibition games with Toronto and Montreal. The motion was not pressed as some of the delegates wished to obtain instructions from their clubs.

In the evening the delegates met again and arranged a schedule, the season opening June 6 and ending Oct. 3,

THE CHILIAN BUTCHERIES.

Over 500 Government Troops and 800 Revolutionists Killed.

Panama, April 24.—Advices from Chili say 500 Government troops and 800 revolutionists were killed in the battle of Pozo Almonte, in which the Government forces were defeated. Five thousand men were engaged.

Provisions were recently so scarce in Iquique that $20 was paid for a can of preserved milk, and beef sold at $10 per pound.

It is reported that Government troops fired into 900 defenceless workmen, women and children at Negroyros and shot down all the men.

London financiers have declined to grant a loan of £1,500,000 to President Balmaceda of Chili. The president's envoy is confident that the latter will yet defeat the insurgents.

SNOW HER WINDING SHEET.

What the Melting of the Snow Revealed in Grey County.

Markdale, Ont., April 23.—While searching for a lost sheep yesterday, John Allan came across the dead body of a woman in a recumbent position, apparently in a peaceful slumber, the left hand partially thrust into the bosom of her dress and the right hand extended outward. The remains were those of Catharine Kennedy, aged 60, who lived on the Garafraxa-road, Glenelg, one mile north of the Rocky Saugeen. She had been missing since Feb. 5, and no doubt perished in the snowstorm which raged on that day.

Decker Discharged.

Philadelphia, April 24.—Harry Decker, the baseball player, who was arrested in New Haven, Conn., some time ago and brought here on a requisition issued by the Governor of Connecticut, was brought into Criminal Court yesterday to answer to a multiplicity of charges of a more or less serious nature, and to all of which he pleaded guilty. Sentence was suspended and Decker discharged, having made restitution to all parties concerned. He has been in bail since March 31.

Died in the Night.

Bradford, Ont., April 24.—Miss Ina Henderson was as well as usual on retiring for the night. Next morning she was found dead in bed.

Drowned in the Gatineau.

Ottawa, April 24.—An eight-year-old child named Dickson, while playing on the banks of the Gatineau River at Chelsea this morning, fell into the water and was drowned.

Switchman Fatally Hurt.

Niagara Falls, Ont., April 24.—William Martin, aged 24, switchman in the M.C.R. yards at Montrose, fell from a flat car and the train passed over him. Both legs were so badly mangled that they had to be amputated. Martin, who belongs to St. Thomas, will probably die.

Mutinous Batterymen Sentenced.

Portsmouth, April 24.—Four artillerymen of the battery which on Monday last mutinied in order to call attention to the grievances and excessive drills from which the men claimed to be suffering have been tried by courtmartial and sentenced to two years' imprisonment each.

Killed By a Cherry Stone.

Lindsay, April 24.—The 10-year-old daughter of John Fowler of the 14th concession, near Janetville, died under very distressing circumstances. She swallowed a cherry stone, which lodged somewhere in the bowels. An operation was performed to relieve her pain and the stone taken out, but death put a stop to her sufferings.

Coming Back to Canada

And Bringing Many of Their American Cousins With Them.

To the Editor of the Intelligencer.

Dear Sir,—The readers of the Intelligencer will be pleased to know that we are sending a large number of farmer emigrants and their families from here to Manitoba and the Canadian Northwest. Over 100 have left this one point, mostly ex-Canadians, but several real Americans, the writer of the accompanying letter being one of them. Let him speak through the Intelligencer:—

"W. A. Webster and A. F. Holmes, agents."

"Yorkton, Assa., Northwest Territory, Canada, April 9, 1891.

"Dear Sir,—Yours of the 6th inst., came to hand to-day, and as I shall go out tomorrow, to a tract of land located near Mr. Holmes', 45 miles northwest of Yorktown, I will write you to-night. This is my second trip out to the land above referred to; there is plenty of timber for building, fencing and fuel, for all time to come; soil splendid for growing crops, good water, plenty of lakes, hay splendid, would cut two or three tons per acre; a noble country for people who wish to engage in mixed farming. Tell all the people of the Dakotas to come; I believe if all the people of South Dakota thoroughly understood the advantages this country possesses there would be a grand emigration from South Dakota to this place. I wish I had time to go down to Edmunds County and enlighten my old neighbors there, as to the advantages of this country, for I assure you that of their experience in South Dakota I have had quite enough—on that great American desert! The average crop here the past season was—Wheat 35, and oats 70 bushels per acre, other things in proportion.

"The weather here now is beautiful; farmers are now seeding, weather very warm, soil in fine condition, fine and moist.

"Yours very truly, Rodney Button."

Mr. Button was originally from the State of Illinois, and settled in Edmunds county, South Dakota, where he has held prominent public positions for the past nine years, during which time he raised but one crop which paid him to harvest. The last two years his crop did not average over two bushels per acre, and after making inquiries in regard to where to go to make a living, he decided to try the Canadian Northwest. The foregoing shows how he is suited. Wm. A. Webster.

TORONTO TRUTH'S
New Spring Bible Competition
NO. 22.

In these latter days there have arisen many false schemes and many scores of imitations of Truth's Competitions, but one after another have failed and utterly perished, yet Truth remains, and makes good all its promises. Its reputation is now too well established to risk damaging it, and as it has cost a very large amount of money and many years of care and labor to build up, the publisher could not afford to fail in carrying out all his agreements to the letter. There are twenty-one divisions of the largest list of bona fide prizes ever offered and ever actually given away by any publisher in the world. The total value of prizes in the Spring list is about $10,000,00. The lists are so large it would cost altogether too much to give them in detail here. There are pianoes gold and silver watches, china tea and dinner sets, ladies' and gentlemen's bicycles, silver teasets, silk dresses, books, money, and hundreds of other valuable rewards. You pay nothing for these prizes, as everyone concedes that full value is received for the dollar in securing Truth every week for three months. Send one dollar and answers to the five following questions: Where in the Bible are these words found? 1, Grain; 2, Corn; 3, Wheat; 4, Barley; 5, Rye. If your answers are correct and your letters arrive in time you are almost sure to get a reword, as there are so many and every one cannot always find correct answers to all these questions. All the five answers must be correct to get any prize. but you will get full value for the dollar in Truth if you don't get anything else. If you want to see the list of rewards before sending in your dollar, mail Truth ten cents and a copy will be sent you containing the list of prizes. But there have been very few dissatisfied prize-winners in previous competitions, considering that he has given away duridg the past eight years scores of thousands of prizes. Some people expect a piano for every dallar sent, and are mad if they don't get it. He wishes it were possible to give every subscriber a gold watch or a piano or both, but says it can't be done Some publishers intimate they will, but nobody can do it for any length of time. Send one dollar and correct answers and you won't repent it; and bear in mind that it is not guaranteed that every body whose answers are correct will get a prize, but that all the prizes in the twenty-one different lists will be given away. The competition remains open only till the last day of June next, inclusive, after which the prizes will be immediately distributed to the successful ones. Ten days will be allowed for letters to reach Truth from distant points after the 30th of June. All, however, must be postmarked where mailed not later than the 30th June, or any time between now and that date. Address S. Frank Wilson, "Truth" Office, Toronto, Ont., Canada.

Threatening to Kill.

This serious offence might well be charged against that prevalent disease Constipation, which threatens to destroy many valuable lives if not stopped. It arises from wrong action of the Stomach, Liver and Bowels, and causes Dyspepsia, Biliousness, Bad Blood, Boils, Pimples, Rashes, Eruptions, Sores and Foul Tumors. It can only be cured by the prompt use of the right remedy, Burdock Blood Bitters, which never fails to cure even the most obstinate cases and is a specific for all diseases of the Stomach, Liver, Bowels and Blood. Thousands testify. Read and learn.

Mr. Joab Scales, of Toronto, writes:— "A short time ago I was suffering from Kidney Complaint and Dyspepsia, sour stomach and lame back; in fact I was completely prostrated and suffering intense pain. While in this state a friend recommended me to try a bottle of Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery. I used one bottle, and the permanent manner in which it has cured and made a new man of me is such that I cannot withhold from the proprietors this expression of my gratitude."

MARRIAGEABLE AGE.

IT VARIES MUCH IN THE WORLD'S DIFFERENT COUNTRIES.

Statistics Showing the Marriageable Age the World Over—The Average Seems to be Sixteen Years for Women and Eighteen Years for Men.

The ages at which the sexes are permitted to marry varies greatly in all parts of the world. In Arabia, British India, Persia, Siam and Burmah, girls are allowed to wed at the age of 10 or even 9 years, and in many instances their husbands are not many months older.

When a Bavarian female is between the ages of 12 and 15 she can marry, but the males cannot legally do so until they are from 14 to 18 years old, the variation depending upon the districts in which they live.

At the age of 15 the girls of Belgium may take unto themselves husbands, while those of the opposite sex transgress the law if they marry prior to reaching their 18th year.

In Saxe Coburg-Gotha the marriageable age for men is 21 years, but if female residents of that duchy have been confirmed they are permitted to wed at the early age of 14. Comparatively few, however, avail themselves of this privilege, 17 years being the general average.

An Austrian bride and groom must each have reached the age of 14, but the parents' consent is absolutely necessary until they have attained their 21st year.

The laws of Baden allow a male to marry at 18 and a female at 15, but up to the time the former becomes 25 and the latter 21 the consent of the parents or guardians is required. Then again if either of the parties is of bad moral character or is afflicted with any mental or bodily ailment, or is financially crippled, the union is not allowed to be consummated.

Danish males and females must be, respectively, 20 and 16 before they can become man and wife, while in France the minimum age for the former is 18 and 14 for the latter.

In chilly Finland, if a couple desires to be married before the man has reached 21 and the woman 15, they must obtain an imperial decree. The only exception is made in the case of peasants engaged in service by the year, or those who have a regular trade or business. These can wed if the prospective groom is 18 and the bride 14.

Russia has a law making 18 and 16 the legal ages at which the sexes may be joined in wedlock, and in some special cases the bishop of the diocese in which the couple resides may permit their marriage six months prior to the limits quoted. The natives of the Caucasus are also exempted from the provisions of this law, 15 for the males and 13 for the females, being the ages fixed for their benefit.

Lapland's marriage code makes mention only of the age limit for the masculine gender, which must be 17, while in Norway and Turkey there is no fixed period for either sex.

Swedish youths aged 21 may take as life-partners maidens of 15, and in the Netherlands they must be 18 and 16 respectively.

According to Roumanian laws, the ages are 18 for males and 15 for females, but a guardian looks after the affairs of the husband until he has reached his 21st year.

In Hungary there are canonical and civil marriages, but the legal limits of age are the same in both cases, the male being permitted to assume the weighty responsibilities of marriage when 14, while his bride may be two years younger. The father's consent is absolutely necessary, without which the union is considered null and void. At the age of 24 Hungarian youths cease to be minors, while the girls attain their majority at 16.

One would naturally imagine that in Italy, where females develop very rapidly, the legal marriagable age would be much earlier than in colder climes. Nevertheless it is above the usual standard in that respect, being 18 for men and 16 for women.

In Spain, Portugal and Greece, the limits are the same—14 and 12—and in Switzerland cantonal laws are such that the ages vary from 14 to 20 for males, and 12 to 18 for the gentle sex.

England's laws provide that no female can marry who has not passed her 12th year, and the male must be at least 14. Marriages in that country are governed by many restrictions too lengthy to be quoted here.

State laws regulate marriage in the United States, and nearly all of them require the consent of the parent when the man is less than 21 and the woman under 18 years of age. In several states strict laws regarding marriage licenses are enforced even after both parties have passed the twenty-first milestone in their life journey.—Condensed from the New York Sun.

THE BANK OF VENICE.

It Disappeared in the Wreck Caused by the French Revolution.

To Venice, the "Queen of the Adriatic," belongs the honor of having established the first public bank of which any record can be found such an institution being unknown to the ancients.

In 1711 the Republic of Venice was very hard pressed for funds to carry on the wars in which it was continually engaged in order to uphold its supremacy. As a consequence a tax was levied on its moneyed men, who were promised a perpetual annuity of 4 per cent. on the loan thus contributed, the borrowers never dreaming of the possibility of returning the principal.

The lenders immediately instituted a bureau for carrying out the proposed plan of receiving and paying out the interest, and in a comparatively short time it was erected into the Bank of Venice. The exact date of its founding is not known with any degree of certainty.

Interest on the loan was promptly paid and the creditors of the republic were subsequently paid in full the sums they had advanced. Consequently, so popular did it become that it was found absolutely necessary to transform the private bank into one of deposit, that all classes might take advantage of the accommodation thus afforded.

In 1723 the interest paid by the Government alone amounted to upward of $1,000,000 a year, and the shares and credits of the bank were so well supported that at all times its bills were quoted and held at a premium above the current money of the republic.

After many years of prosperity the bank was given its death blow by the French invasion of 1797. The freedom of the city and the independence of the Republic vanished like a dream before the invaders, and as a natural consequence the bank, having thus lost its credit and support, also disappeared in the general wreck.—Detroit Free Press.

How to Tame a Rat.

Five large gray rats are the peculiar pets of Charles Perkins, who lives on Noble street, near Eighth. The rodents evince great affection for him, following him about the house like dogs, run up his sleeve and come out at the breast, nestle round the rim of his hat, and perform a variety of tricks, such as leaping through a wire hoop and drawing a coach, four of them acting as horses and one as driver.

Asked how he had tamed the rats, Perkins answered:

"It is very easy when you know how."

"Well, what is the how?"

"Simply, I trap a rat in a cage, and then examine him carefully to see if he is young and not too vicious. Having selected a proper specimen, I take him to the yard and drop him in a barrel half filled with water.

"If he tries to clamber up the sides I throw him back and keep him in the water until he is completely exhausted. When he is just about to go under I take him out, pour a little brandy down his throat with a syringe, and take him to the stove, where I wrap him in a piece of blanket, coddle him, and nurse him back to life.

"So grateful is he that he remains my slave forever after, fawns on me, and becomes [illegible] a pet."—Philadelphia Press.

Character in Horses.

Horse faces are as full of character as are men's faces. It is easier, perhaps, to read a horse's character in its face than it is to sum up the hidden traits of a man or woman by this facial expression. The horse's head is a correct indication of the character, the human expression ofttimes is wholly counterfeit.

"I never ask about a horse's trait," said a horse buyer the other day. "All I want is a good, square look at him in the face. Once in 100 times I may mistake the head, but not oftener than that I believe."

It doesn't require an expert to read horses faces either. A person who has never handled a horse can saunter down street any afternoon and point out the good docile family carriage horse, the biting horse, the treacherous animal, the one that is likely to kick, or run at any moment, or the proud, high spirited horse, that may be dangerous and yet not vicious in the least. The most interesting horse is the good natured family horse. He bears ill will toward no one and has the good will of all who look upon him.

He has but to be seen to become a favorite. There are thousands of families who would as soon part forever with an immediate relative as to the loss of the good natured old family horse—the one that lived with all the children, and often times it seems, showed as much care and affection for them as their parents. The children or women of the family were always safe when out with him. If some other horse run away he was always sure to get out of the way of all danger, and he never allowed the carriage he hauled to collide with an obstacle.

The biting horse always reminds one of the dyspeptic man—he is always mad, always irritated. Pedestrians frown at this horse as they pass along the street, and the horse, it may be remarked never fails to frown back, and if opportunity affords, snap his enemy—and everything alive is his enemy—on the back with his big broad teeth. It must be said for the biting horse, however, that he is not always of a disposition wholly bad. He may show bad temper when approached by a man, woman or child, and still be one of the gentlest and most reliable while doing his daily work.

The kicking horse can nearly always be singled out by the vicious gleam in his eyes, which stamps him a born kicker. And too, the kicker is nearly always a restless, impatient animal, who seems to imagine that his born right to freedom is being interfered with.

Of all horses, though, the miserable looking horse attracts much attention. This is the horse that is persecuted by the use of the check rein. Like women and men who wear shoes a size too small, he shows the outward misery. Many goodnatured horses, horsemen say, have been made fretful and vicious by being enslaved by the infamous and cruel check rein.

If there are men and women who are overburdened with struggles for life, have lost all spirit, have agreed to take things as they come, so there are horses down and continuous service for a man, which show by the facial expression that they are not caring whether this old world continues to go or not. These sad faced animals may be found hitched to the drays around town, to the rickety wagons of the peddlers and the rag pickers, and occasionally to the wagons of the contractors and teamsters. Once, perhaps, they were full of the buoyancy of youth, but constant drugery has made them only tools, barely animals.

The Preacher's Wife.

Did you ever see anybody who envied the preacher's wife? I never did. Yet why should she be the object of general commiseration? Is she not the partner and better half of one who is the spiritual leader of a large number of people? He is looked up to, or expects to be, as the wisest and best of his sex. He tells people how to act in order to go to heaven, and what to do in order to escape the other place. He tells us how to live on earth so as to produce the best fruits of righteousness, and admonishes us on the evils of those dissipations which are supposed to be the torments of a wife and the ruin of a home. Knowing these things so well and being forced to at least seem to practice what he preaches, why should not the preacher's wife have the most desirable situation in the whole domain of matrimony? Yet everybody knows she hasn't. Her chief mission seems to be to have babies and trouble, donation parties and seedy gowns, a headache, a heartache, and an old-fashioned bonnet. Why is it? Are people so good to their pastor that they must take revenge on his wife? If she laughs too frequently or too loud she is frivolous, and scandalizes the church. If she doesn't laugh at all she is sour, and to use a phrase I have often heard quoted, "counteracts the beautiful influence of her husband." If she dresses poorly the wives of the elect allege that her attire is a continual reproach because of the smallness of her husband's salary. If she wears anything new they shake their heads and say that his reverence is getting too much or his wife wouldn't try to lead the fashions in the church. If her husband is friendly with his lady parishioners they wonder how she likes it, and remark that she hasn't spirit enough to resent anything. If he is distant it is generally remarked that she is jealous and he is afraid to look at any other woman. Taken altogether, she suffers through the poverty of his early circuits, endures the reproach of the days when he hasn't to go hungry, and is made to feel most keenly the years of prosperity when he gets enough to live upon. Altogether it is probably the most disagreeable position a woman could occupy, and is a frightful rebuke to religious people everywhere and in every denomination. The general idea that the meek wife isn't cared for half so much as some woman in the congregation who demands a great deal of attention, suggests what I believe in nine hundred and ninety-nine cases in a thousand is absolutely false, that the preacher is not thoroughly a gentleman. That she is considered unhappy under any and every circumstance, suggests the idea that the preacher reserves his religion for his pulpit and parish, and is forgetful of his home. I don't know what it is, I can't pretend to explain it, yet the fact remains that the world is sorry for the preacher's wife, and individuals are not very apt to try to make it any more pleasant.—Don, in Saturday Night.

DR. WILLIAMS' PINK PILLS FOR PALE PEOPLE

ARE NOT a Purgative Medicine. They are a BLOOD BUILDER, TONIC and RECONSTRUCTOR, as they supply in a condensed form the substances actually needed to enrich the Blood, curing all diseases coming from POOR and WATERY BLOOD, or from VITIATED HUMORS in the BLOOD, and also invigorate and BUILD UP the BLOOD and SYSTEM, when broken down by overwork, mental worry, disease, excesses and indiscretions. They have a SPECIFIC ACTION on the SEXUAL SYSTEM of both men and women, restoring LOST VIGOR and correcting all IRREGULARITIES and SUPPRESSIONS.

EVERY MAN Who finds his mental faculties dull or failing, or his physical powers flagging, should take these PILLS. They will restore his lost energies, both physical and mental.

EVERY WOMAN should take them. They cure all suppressions and irregularities, which inevitably entail sickness when neglected.

YOUNG MEN should take these PILLS. They will cure the results of youthful bad habits, and strengthen the system.

YOUNG WOMEN should take them. These PILLS will make them regular.

Prof. H. A. Brown—Your book keeping is a nearer approach to real business than any other I have seen.

Principal J. W. Graham—It is the only satisfactory work I have ever used or examined.

Hundreds of testimonials such as the above have been given by experienced accountants and principals and proprietors of colleges.

The present edition is the Two Hundredth Thousand.

CHICAGO, 6th April, 1891.

Robert Bogle, Esq., Belleville Business College, Belleville, Ont.:

DEAR FRIEND,—Your very welcome letter of the 13th ult. was duly received.

You asked in your letter if I had any difficulty in performing my work as stenographer. I am glad to tell you that I have not had any difficulty in the least, as you assured me I would not, before leaving your college. I have to write from 30 to 40 letters a day, and there is enough other office work to keep me busy, but it is not hard.

Tell the students never to be afraid, after they have received as careful training as I got.

In conclusion I have to say that any young gentleman or young lady wishing to improve his or her time, may rest assured that they will never regret the time and money spent while attending the above named institution.

Yours very truly,

ALL GERMANY MOURNS.

THE DEATH OF COUNT VON MOLTKE A NATIONAL AFFLICTION.

Sincere Expressions of Regret Throughout the Empire—Further Details of the Demise of the Great Field Marshal—Arrangements For the Funeral Thursday.

BERLIN, April 26.—Count von Moltke intended to leave this city this week for the baths at Kudowa, where he expected to recruit his health. The Count was working daily on the plans for the fortifications of the Island of Heligoland, all the most intricate of these plans being drafted by the field marshal himself. The Empress visited the death chamber at 10 o'clock this morning and laid a magnificent wreath of roses upon the bier on which the great general rested. The Empress spent a quarter of an hour in trying to console the family for the loss which they have so unexpectedly suffered. Splendid floral offerings are arriving at the dead field marshal's official residence from all parts of Germany.

Still further details in regard to the Count's death show that after enjoying his supper in his official residence on the Konigsplatz he sat down and listened to musical selections which were played on a piano. He then took a hand in a game of whist, but during the course of the game he complained of feeling unwell, and placing his hand of cards upon the table he left the room.

The Count was immediately put to bed, but in spite of the efforts made to relieve him of what was considered for some time to be nothing more than a severe indisposition he soon expired.

Great crowds of people, respectful and sympathetic, surround the Count's residence and throng the streets. Many of the stores in the leading thoroughfares are closed and the city throughout is commencing to display emblems of mourning for the death of Germany's favorite soldier.

In the Lower House of the Prussian Diet today the President of that body, in communicating Count von Moltke's death to the representatives, said that the high value of the deceased's services to the Fatherland would cause universal sorrow and mourning to be felt throughout Germany at the loss that the Empire had sustained. "This," added the President, "convinces me that the House does not desire to proceed with to-day's business. Therefore, I propose that we adjourn until Monday, as a mark of respect to the dead." The President's proposition was unanimously adopted.

In the Upper House a laurel wreath twined with black and white satin ribbons hung over Count von Moltke's seat.

The Emperor telegraphed his sympathetic condolence to Count von Moltke's family, saying the Field Marshal's death was a greater loss to Germany than the loss of an army corps would have been. The Emperor has summoned all the princes and the crowned heads of the different German states to attend the funeral, which will take place Thursday next and will be attended by imposing military ceremonies. The body will be escorted in state from the Moltke residence to the railroad station, whence it will be taken to Creisau for interment. The ceremonies at Creisau will be quiet and without display, in accordance with the late count's wishes.

The remains will lie in state in the apartment in which the Count died until Thursday morning. The coffin will be surrounded with battle flags and will be in charge of a guard of honor. During the morning, by the Emperor's orders, the imperial standard was conveyed from the ante-chamber in the palace adjoining the Emperor's apartments to the room in which the remains of the dead soldier will lie in state. This was done as a special mark of the Emperor's favor and as showing how deeply he feels the loss which Germany has sustained in the death of the Field Marshal.

Count von Moltke died without showing the slightest sign of pain, a death which he had often wished for, remarking: "How beautifully men die that die in a syncope!"

The body of the late Count was viewed by the public to-day from noon until 5. The bier is of yelllow oak and draped with white silk, embroidered with silver, and a coverlet designed by deceased for the purpose covers the body as far as the breast. The Emperor has ordered the army to go into mourning for eight days.

TORONTO TOPICS.

TORONTO, April 27.—It is reported that the Meteorological Office, together with the Observtory, will shortly be removed to Ottawa.

A man named N. M. Anderson, residing at 229 Beverley-street, died at the supper table Saturday night.

Saturday at the Criminal Assizes was a day of sentences. All the prisoners convicted during the week were brought before Mr. Justice Street and sentenced to various terms of imprisonment. William McMillan, convicted on one charge of forgery, in view of the fact that it was his first offence got off with a year in the Central Prison. George McPhaden, convicted on his own confession of stealing a watch, was allowed to go on his own recognizances to appear when called upon.

The heaviest sentence was passed upon William Hayes, the man convicted of a criminal assault on Minnie McKenna, the full particulars of which have been published. Hayes was sentenced to the highest penalty permissible by law, namely, seven years in the Kingston Penitentiary.

The Ontario Rugby Union held its adjourned annual meeting Saturday afternoon in the Rossin, President Ed. Bayly in the chair. There were present these delegates:

Sarnia, S. F. Houston; London, A. H. Campbell, Stratford, A. W. Ballantyne; 'Varsity, H. Pope, W. Bunting; Ontario, W. Carleton, J. Pottinger; Osgoode Hall, G. E. Biggar; Ottawa, W. McKay; Queen's College, D. Robertson; Trinity College, H. H. Bedford-Jones; Toronto, A. H. Marsh.

Notices of motion to have the number of players reduced from 15 to 12 a side, and to have an umpire and referee in all matches, were withdrawn.

Mysterious Attempt at Suicide.

ST. CATHARINES, April 26.—An unknown man, aged 60, registered at the American Hotel Wednesday and was assigned a room. Friday night his room door was forced and he was found lying across the bed, apparently dying, with an empty bottle labeled laudanum beside him. Physicians succeeded in reviving him somewhat, but at latest accounts he was unable to tell his name.

Killed By Handling Coin.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., April 26.—Miss Clara Meredith, until lately cashier and bookkeeper of the Bates House, has just died from blood poisoning, the result of handling coin.

A Winnipegger's Opinion.

The following is taken from a letter from Mr. D. Davis, Winnipeg, Man.: "Being persuaded to use Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam for a troublesome cold, I was entirely cured by the use of two bottles."

Dangerous Counterfeits.

Counterfeits are always dangerous, more so that they always closely IMITATE THE ORIGINAL IN APPEARANCE AND NAME. The remarkable success achieved by Nasal Balm as a positive cure for Catarrh and Cold in the Head has induced unprincipled parties to imitate it. The public are cautioned not to be deceived by nostrums imitating Nasal Balm in name and appearance, bearing such names as Nasal Cream, Nasal Balsam, etc. Ask for Nasal Balm and do not take any imitation dealers may urge upon you. For sale by all druggists or sent post-paid on receipt of price (50c and $1,) by addressing Fulford & Co. Brockville, Ont.

Why Not Treat.

WHY not treat such troubles as boils, pimples, blotches, sores, humors, eruptions, rashes, skin irritations, etc., with Burdock Blood Bitters. It is filled with virtue as a blood purifier and goes right to the right spot. It makes the skin bright and clear, while also invigorating the entire system.

Dangers of Delay.

If we were allowed to look into the future and see the fatal consequences that follow a neglected cold, how different would our course be; could we realize our danger, how speedily we would seek a cure; but with many it is only when the monster disease has fastened its fangs upon our lungs that we awaken to our folly. What follows a neglected cold? Is it not diseases of the throat and lungs, bronchitis, asthma, consumption, and many other diseases of like nature. It is worse than madness to neglect a cold, and it is folly not to have some good remedy available for this complaint. One of the most efficacious medicines for all diseases of the throat and lungs, is Bickle's Anti-Consumptive Syrup. This medicine is composed of several medicinal herbs, which exert a most wonderful influence in curing consumption and other diseases of the lungs and chest. It promotes a free and easy expectoration, soothes irritation and drives the disease from the system.

—It is suspected that some of the spring lamb is really of winter lineage.

Chronic Derangements of the Stomach, Liver and Blood, are speedily removed by the active principle of the ingredients entering into the composition of Parmelee's Vegetable Pills. These Pills act specifically on the deranged organs, stimulating to action the dormant energies of the system, thereby removing disease and renewing life and vitality to the afflicted. In this lies the great secret of the popularity of Parmelee's Vegetable Pills.

—The dentist may not be a man of ancestry, but he is one of prominent extractions.

Inflammation of the Eyes Cured.

Mr. Jacob D. Miller, Newburg. writes,—"I was troubled with inflammation in one of my eyes, so that during nearly the whole of the summer of 1882 I could not work; I took several bottles of Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery and it gives me great pleasure to inform you that it cured me of my affliction. It is an excellent remedy for Costiveness."

—The Better Way—She—Please hold my wrap. He—Certainly. Shall I put it around you first?

M. Sheeyan, of Cscoda, Mich, writes: I have used Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil for horses for different diseases and found it just as you recommended. It has done justice to me every time, and is the best oil for horses I ever used.

—The young man who can write "a good hand" hasn't half a chance in life with the youth who can hold one.

Worms cause feverishness, moaning and restlessness during sleep. Mother Graves' Worm Exterminator is pleasant, sure and effectual. If your druggist has none in stock, get him to procure it for you.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS

MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP has been used by millions of mothers for children teething for over fifty years with perfect success. It relieves the little sufferer at once, produces natural, quiet sleep by freeing the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste, soothes the child, softens the gums, allays pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. Twenty-five cents a bottle

Temperance in the Army.

It is of excellent omen that our foremost military men are very decidedly in favor of Total Abstinence from ardent spirits. Lord Wolseley and Sir F. Roberts are equally pronounced in the matter. Recently Sir F. Roberts made a speech to his soldiers at Meerut, India, in which he said: "To promote temperance in the army and induce soldiers to lead sober and rational lives, the Government of India have recently sanctioned the establishment of an Institute for every British regiment and battery. Where new lines have to be constructed the Institute will be built in the most convenient form. In existing lines endeavors will be made to arrange for the required accommodation, either by some reallotment of the barracks or by adding such buildings as may be found necessary. The Institute will consist of a series of well-lighted rooms, and a part of it will be devoted to a coffee shop from which total abstainers and temperance men will be able to have a comfortable meal in a separate room. The coffee shop will no longer be an unrecognized institution, depending for its very existence on the energies and esprit de corps of the regimental officers, but will, I hope, become (as it is already in some corps) the mainstay of the regiment in the matter of funds. With good management the profits from the coffee-shop and the soda-water manufactory will not only take the place, but far exceed the profits, of what has hitherto been the principal source of income—viz., the canteen fund. Depend upon it, men, when the hour of trial comes, he who will do best for his Queen and country is not the soldier who goes into action with his mind weakened and constitution impaired by drunkenness and other bad habits, but he who has been temperate in all things, and whose nerves and muscles are such that they will enable him to face the stoutest foe and carry him through the severest trial. An army composed of men of this class, who can use their weapons with deadly effect, would be irresistible, and would ensure victory to any commander who had the honor of leading them. May I be that commander!"

Dyspepsia

Intense Suffering for 8 years—Restored to Perfect Health.

Few people have suffered more severely from dyspepsia than Mr. E. A. McMahon, a well known grocer of Staunton, Va. He says: "Before 1878 I was in excellent health, weighing over 200 pounds. In that year an ailment developed into acute dyspepsia, and soon I was reduced to 162 pounds, suffering burning sensations in the stomach, palpitation of the heart, nausea, and indigestion. I could not sleep, lost all heart in my work, had fits of melancholia, and for days at a time I would have welcomed death. I became morose, sullen and irritable, and for eight years life was a burden. I tried many physicians and many remedies. One day a workman employed by me suggested that I take Hood's Sarsaparilla, as it had cured his wife of dyspepsia. I did so, and before taking the whole of a bottle I began to feel like a new man. The terrible pains to which I had been subjected, ceased, the palpitation of the heart subsided, my stomach became easier, nausea disappeared, and my entire system began to tone up. With returning strength came activity of mind and body. Before the fifth bottle was taken I had regained my former weight and natural condition. I am today well and I ascribe it to taking Hood's Sarsaparilla."

GOOD ADVICE.

The New York Sun, which has no love for Canada under British rule, remarks: "There is no doubt that Canadians ought to 'think twice' before leaving their country. There are many opportunities of success for industrious people in the British American provinces. There are hundreds of millions of fertile land awaiting cultivation; there are vast forests awaiting the axe; there are cattle ranges in the western region; there are fisheries on the sea. board; there are commercial fleets at the ports; there are business and mechanical industries and manufactories in the cities; there are natural resources too numerous to think of. There is room in the provinces for a population vastly greater than that which they now have. True, the winter season is long and cold, especially in Lower Canada, which the people are leaving, but it is not intolerable. True, there are other disadvantages in many parts of Canada, but they can all be overcome or endured. Moreover, among the Canadians who have crossed the line and come to this country, there must be some who have regretted that they did so."

Most true it is that many Canadians who have crossed the line, thinking to better themselves, would fain return to their former homes. Many of them cannot do so, but others are returning and bringing Americans with them. The tide of migration on this continent has its ebbs and flows, just like the tides of ocean.

THE INDIANS.

The report of the Indian Department for the year ended Dec. 31st, 1890, records a material improvement in the condition of the Indians throughout the Dominion. The nation's wards are described as being, as a rule, self-supporting, excepting those that bad health renders incapable of earning their own subsistence. It appears that during the fiscal year the members of the various tribes in the North-West earned in all $24,055. Of this sum $3,224 was realized by the sale of cattle and sheep, $1,990 by furs, $4,054 by the sale of hay, and $11,945 by labor. The report shows that this sum was expended in the purchase of articles with which the Government would otherwise have had to supply the Indians.

Reference is made to the laxity with which the law prohibiting the sale of liquor to Indians is prohibited. La grippe prevails generally among the Indians, the epidemic affecting bands as far north as the Department has had advices from. Mr. Dewdney recommends a law rendering the education of Indian children compulsory.

The Indians of this province are spoken of as showing encouraging indications of ability to support themselves.

A very good showing is made in educational progress. There are estimated to be 14,963 Indian children of school age in the Dominion. Of these there are 5649 enrolled in the two hundred and sixteen day schools, 920 in the nineteen industrial schools, and 102 in the boarding schools.

The total Indian population of Canada is given at 122,585, including the following: Labrador, 1000; Quebec, 13,599; Ontario, 17,776; Manitoba and Northwest, 25,743; and British Columbia 35,416.

The following report of Mr. M. Hill, the agent on the Tyendinaga Reserve, is interesting and encouraging:

COUNTY OF HASTINGS, TYENDINAGA AGENCY, SHANNONVILLE, Ont., 2nd September, 1890.

The Honorable the Superintendent General of Indian Affairs, Ottawa.

SIR,—I have the honor to submit my annual report and tabular statement for the year ended 30th June, 1890. This band now numbers one thousand and fifty-six, being an increase of seven during the year, the result of fourteen births and seven deaths. The health of the band, with a few exceptions, has been good.

A number who give their attention to farming are fairly prosperous: others have moved to Deseronto, where they find ready employment in the mills of the Rathbun Company, and thereby obtain a comfortable living. The crop recently harvested was good. The four schools on the reserve are in operation, and are progressing favorably. A number of children from this reserve are attending the Mohawk Institution at Brantford or the Shingwauk Home at Sault Ste. Marie. The substantial wire fences erected on the reserve have proved a great boon to the farming community.

The interest money distributed during the year amounted to $2 165.74; and the usual supply of blankets has been distributed among the aged and infirm Indians.

I have the honor to be, Sir, your obedient servant,

MATTHEW HILL,
Indian Agent.

"It is a Whole Drug Store.'

Is what a lady said of Clark's Lightning Liniment. The previous night she had an attack of neuralgia in the face, and sent to the drug store for relief. The night clerk sent a bottle of Clark's Lightning Liniment, which dispelled the pain at once. In the night baby awoke with colic. She gave him three drops of the Liniment on a lump of sugar, and he went to sleep again. In the morning her husband complained of Rheumatism in the shoulder. She rubbed it with the Liniment until he said the pain was gone. Is it any wonder the lady called Clark's Lightning Liniment "a whole drug store?" Sold by all druggists; price fifty cents. LIKE LONDON'S FIEND.

THIS MURDER AND MUTILATION SUGGEST THE "RIPPER'S" WORK.

The Victim Old Enough to be Her Bloody Assassin's Mother—Strangled to Death and Then Horribly Hacked—The Knife Left in the Apartment of Death.

NEW YORK, April 26.—Police detectives, working under the personal supervision of Chief Inspector Byrnes, were straining every nerve yesterday in a search for the human butcher who murdered old Carrie Brown in the lodging house at Catharine and Water-streets, and mutilated her corpse as "Jack the Ripper" mutilated the bodies of his victims in the Whitechapel district of London. When asked if he thought that the murderer of Carrie Brown was the real "Jack the Ripper," he replied: "I can't say."

The murderer is believed to be a madman, with the cunning and nerve which often accompany insane delusions. There are now about 18 men and women in custody detained as witnesses, but the actual murderer is still at large.

Deputy Coroner Jenkins performed an autopsy upon the body of Carrie Brown at the Morgue yesterday morning. He found that the woman's death had been caused by strangulation. Her body had been mutilated immediately after death and the murderer evidently had carried away a portion of the viscera.

The dead woman was known among those of her class as Carrie Brown, alias Jeff Davis, alias Shakespeare. She first came to New York 15 years ago, taking up her residence in the Fourth Ward. She was a hard drinker, but was well liked by her associates because of her free-handed liberality and her superior intelligence. Her maiden name was Caroline Montgomery, and she married when quite young a sea captain named James Brown and lived in Salem, Mass., where Brown died, leaving his wife in comfortable circumstances. Two of her daughters, Ellen and Annie Brown, live there still. It has not been learned why Mrs. Brown left her home to take up a degraded life. When Mrs. Brown was not on the Island she was an inmate of an institution in the city where she sometimes went to recuperate from the effects of her sprees, and her expenses here were paid by a relative named Lawson, who resides in Salem. She returned from her last trip to the Island only a few days before her death.

Inspector Byrnes at 3 o'clock this afternoon arrested the second engineer of the Red "D" Line steamer Philadelphia lying at her pier on the East River at the foot of Market street. The description of the man corresponds almost identically with the murderer of Carrie Brown.

Detailed Story of the Murder.

The scene is laid in a squalid, foul little room on the topmost floor of a vile resort known as the East River Hotel, on the southeast corner of Catharine Slip and Water-street. The entrance to the place is through a narrow hallway on the Water-street side. It was through this that a man and woman passed at 10.30 Thursday night. The woman was slight, with gray hair and small irregular features, appearing to be considerably past 50. Over her head was thrown a shawl and and an old black skirt and waist completed her attire. She was a typical specimen of the poor creatures that frequent the lower East side slums.

Her male companion looked not over 35. In build he was slight, about 5 feet 8, with light complexion, sandy mustache, sharp features and a prominent nose. He wore a high crown black derby hat with its top slightly crushed in, and was attired in a brown cutaway coat and trousers of some dark material. The couple were met at the door by the housekeeper, Mary Minter, who declares the man had a German accent. The old woman asked for a room, at the same time handing the housekeeper a dollar, receiving fifty cents in change.

"What if your name?" enquired the girl, addressing the man.

"Knicle," he answered, without looking up, and this was the only word he was heard to utter. Mary Minter then passed into the adjoining barroom, where Clerk Sam Stine entered the names on the register and assigned the couple to room 31.

"Go and get us a pint of beer," said the old woman.

"Wouldn't you prefer ale?" asked the housekeeper.

"Yes, mixed ale—ale is the proper drink for ladies and gentlemen," she replied. The ale was procured, which the old woman carried, preceded by her companion, who held aloft a sputtering candle as they stumbled up the rickety stairs to room No. 31. It is a corner room, with a window facing Water-street and another looking out on Catharine-slip. Like the other forty apartments in the house, it is black with filth. In the southwest corner stood a narrow wooden bedstead, on which was a greasy mattress, a pillow and a torn coverlet. Near the bed stood a rickety little washstand. It was into this hovel of filth and wretchedness, that was soon to be turned into a slaughter pen, that the woman and her companion passed, and not a sound was heard there or a person seen to emerge from the room during the night.

At 9.30 Friday morning James Fitzgerald, the day clerk, pushed open the door of No. 31 to rouse the occupants. A sight met his horrified gaze that will not be effaced from his memory for many days. Lying on her right side, naked from the shoulder down, lay the old woman, dead. Her body, the quilts and mattress were soaked in blood, while a crimson stream had trickled down the side of the bed forming a dark pool that spread for some distance over the floor. The head and neck were wrapped in fold after fold of the woman's undergarments and apron. She had been completely disemboweled, the cut extending from the middle of the abdomen down through the length of the abdominal cavity, ending at the back. On the left hip the fiend, by a dexterous stroke of the knife, had carved a cross. The right arm doubled under the body, the hand standing out as if held there by the murderer while doing his brutal work. There was still another cut on the right breast, and from the discoloration of the face and bandages tightly bound round the neck it was plain that the victim had been strangled to death.

A messenger was dispatched to the Oak-street station and Captain O'Connor with two officers repaired to the scene. A careful search of the room disclosed the knife with which the crime was committed. It was an ordinary steel table knife, with the blade cut diagonally in the shape of those used by shoemakers. This with a small reticule made of cretonne and two pairs of spectacles, was taken to the station house. An officer was left on guard. Mary Minter was sent to the House of Detention as a witness. Mary Healy, a companion of the dead woman, who occupied room 12 during the night of the murder, was found there in a beastly state of intoxication and locked up at the station house, but was too drunk to talk late last evening.

Coroner Schultz, with his assistant, viewed the remains early in the afternoon. In removing the bandages from the woman's face and neck he was obliged to cut them, the knots being so firmly tied as to make it impossible to loosen them. The expression of the face was one of great agony and the knees were drawn up, while the gray hair was in tangles about the ghastly face.

The assassin must have done his work quietly, as the slightest noise can be heard through the thin partition that divides the room from the adjoining one.

It was noon before Police Headquarters appreciated the gravity of the situation. Inspector Williams then went direct to the scene of the murder, and the machinery of the Police Department began to move. The inspector characterized it as a crime without a motive. Captain O'Connor said it was a crime with a motive. He claimed to know the woman, saying that she had two daughters, one of whom was about 35. The dead woman was known among her associates as "Shakespeare," but had never been seen at the East River hotel until the night of the murder.

Detective McCloskey, who is detailed on the case, was in London at the time "Jack the Ripper" was terrifying that city, and went minutely into the details of the crimes committed, so that his work in the present case is expected to prove particularly valuable. Late in the afternoon the body was placed in a pine box, together with the clothing, which is said to be such as is worn by women on the Island, and removed to the morgue.

A doctor who viewed the corpse said some parts of the body were missing, which makes the resemblance to the Whitechapel crimes even stronger. The location, too, could not have been more aptly chosen. Within sight are the very worst dives to be found in the city. Outside of the house where the deed was done are the rickety buildings, the narrow alleys, the crowd of filthy men and women that characterized the Whitechapel district. A short distance away are the noted Cherry-street, Mullin's-alley and Blind Man's alley dives. In the hotel where the crime was committed murder was done some years ago, when a bartender named Thompson shot a man there. Since that time another man has been stabbed in the hotel, and minor crimes, almost without end, have been perpetrated behind its door. James Jennings is said to be proprietor of the bar and John Thompson of the lodgings.

The murdered woman was called "Shakespeare" because of her habit of correcting those who spoke ungrammatically. A reporter learned that she had been living at No. 49 Oliver-street with Mamie Harrington and two men, one of whom, a Greek, was known as "Frenchy." Mrs. Harrington said: "I have no doubt the murdered woman was the one who lived with me. Her name is Carrie Brown. She was born at sea and is 60 years o'd, and came from the Island three weeks ago."

The scenes in the streets on Cherry Hill last night very closely resembled those of the Whitechapel district when London was scared by the "Ripper." All night long crowds gathered in front of the East River Hotel, and the police were kept busily engaged in preventing them from taking possession of the place. Women of all grades in the quarter between Cherry Hill and Water-street, and of all ages, were in the streets curiously scanning everybody that passed, and particularly the detectives, who simply swarmed in the district.

In Bleeker-street, Little Twelfth-street and other notorious haunts of unfortunate women patrolmen were plentifully distributed. There was in some places a great falling off in the number of strollers, but whether or not the absent ones had been drawn away to Water-street by curiosity could only be conjectured. In the slums generally one heard at every step that one name of terror, "Jack the Ripper," and fears are entertained that if Inspector Byrnes does not accomplish a crowning work by effecting the capture of the assassin he will have still other victims in New York.

BEHRING SEA DISPUTE.

Hearing in the Supreme Court Postponed Until October.

WASHINGTON, April 26.—The case of the schooner Sayward, involving the question of the jurisdiction of the United States over the seal fisheries in Behring Sea, set for hearing in the United States Supreme Court on Monday, has been postponed until Oct. 19 next. Counsel for both sides were ready to proceed Monday, but the court desired that both cases be heard by a full bench, which the illness of Justice Bradley at present renders impossible. The briefs of both sides have been made public. They are documents of nearly 200 pages each and there are also copious appendices. The argument on each side may be divided into two parts, viz.: First, legal argument involving the right to bring the case before the court in the rather unusual form of a writ of prohibition; and second, a politico-legal argument involving the relations between the legislative, executive and judicial departments of the Government and the binding force upon the judiciary of a decision by the Executive as to the jurisdiction appertaining to the United States.

STRANGLED AT PLAY.

Peculiar Death of a Young Lad at Shelburne.

SHELBURNE, Ont., April 25.—Yesterday the 16-year-old son of Mr. R. J. Whittan found a small piece of plow-line. The boy had read or heard of a 13 year-old boy hanging himself. He was apparently trying to explain to his younger brother how it was done. He fastened the plow-line to a beam and made a noose of the rope in which he placed his head. The ground being slanting and slippery he seems to have lost his footing and was strangled to death. His father drove into the yard shortly afterwards and immediately cut him down but life was extinct. Coroner Norton held an inquest at the home last night where a verdict was returned that deceased accidentally came to his death while at play.

HISTORY REPEATS ITSELF.

in wall paper as in everything else, once in about every ten years.

It is not ten years ago though since the "fad" of papering ceilings was all the rage, nor was it five years ago! Yet this season there is a very strong demand for ceiling papers and decorations, and we firmly believe that papered ceilings will always be fashionable.

* * *

How do we know?

We'll tell you.

Economy and common sense have done it.

The world of fashion produces periodically a "fad" and if it receives "official recognition" from some fashion leader, it is considered "quite the proper thing" by the votaries of fashion and a craze ensues.

* * *

Fashion dictates more severely and draws finer lines in the matter of decoration than in anything else under her sway, and it sometimes happens that some of her "whims" become permanencies or "things of beauty and a joy forever." Economy is the great factor that transforms what was once a "fleeting fancy" into a permanent reality and that's where common sense steps in.

Although the craze of papering ceilings died out for awhile, it has returned again, not as a craze, but as a good big morsel of hard common sense, and it has come to stay. It's admitted superiority over every other style of ceiling decoration, both in attractiveness and ECONOMY has forced 'fashion" to the wall for once and in spite of herself she "returns to her first love," thus waiving the formality of waiting the allotted decade for "History to repeat itself."

Try and remember that economy and common sense have done this—for where can you find a better field for decoration in your whole house than a ceiling presents?

Please make a note of this.

VAGRANCY.

Minnie Burke was charged under the Vagrancy Act with being a vagrant and also a prostitute. Sentenced to the Mercer Reformatory for one year.

Willie Cole, a lad about 10 years of age, was charged with being a vagrant, he having been caught soliciting alms. He was allowed to go, as he wished to go into the country and work.

LARCENY.

Jas. Ashbury was charged with entering a vacant house belonging to Mrs. Duggan, and taking therefrom a number of bottles, a logging chain and other small articles. The Magistrate ordered the accused to pay $3 damages and $1.50 costs, which was paid. His Honor also gave him two months suspended sentence.

ILLEGAL FISHING.

Jas. McGuire, jr., was charged that he did unlawfully, on the 18th, 19th and 20th of April, fish for pickerel with a hoop or scoop net in the waters of the river Moira, within the limits of the city of Belleville, during the close season.

The two charges against the accused for illegal fishing on the nights of the 18th and 19th were dismissed. The third charge for fishing on the night of the 20th was enlarged until to-morrow.

Emmanuel R. E. Church.

The congregation of the Reformed English Church held services in their new place of worship yesterday, the edifice being filled at both services. This congregation has now been in existance about two and a half years, the opera house being used for the first services, then the premises on Campbell street were obtained. The congregation continued there, but it was felt that the premises were unsuitable and altogether too small for the growing congregation and Sunday School work. The Rev. Mr. Barnes, in addressing a few words to the people yesterday morning, said it was evident that the Lord was blessing the work of the church, for although they had been laboring under adverse conditions, they had now, through the liberality of some members of the congregation, the new church given to them free from all financial responsibility.

ODDFELLOWS' ANNIVERSARY.

Celebration of the Institution of the Order.

Parade to Christ Church.—An Able Address by Rev. S. Daw.

The members of Mizpah Lodge No. 127, I.O.O.F., Belleville Lodge No. 81, Canton Belleville Patriarchs Militant, the Patriarchs of Quinte and Moira Encampments, and some visiting brethren, attended service yesterday afternoon at Christ Church in celebration of the anniversary of the order. There was a large turn-out of the brethren, and the procession presented a fine appearance, particularly the Patriarchs Militant, whose beautiful uniform and military precision of movement elicited much favorable comment. At a few minutes before 3 o'clock the procession started from Pinnacle Street, being headed by the I.O.O.F. band. The streets were lined with spectators, and the church was filled to the door. Rev. Bro. S. Daw preached an able and instructive sermon, of which the following is a synopsis:

St. Luke, 10th Chap., 23rd and 34th verses:

But a certain Samaritan, as he journeyed, came where he was, and when he saw him he had compassion on him.

And went to him and bound up his wounds, pouring in oil and wine, and set him on his own breast and brought him to an inn and took care of him.

This is a portion of scripture known to every Oddfellow. It is used to show the brotherly love which exists between them. It is used to show that every man, no matter what his condition may be, is nevertheless our brother. It shows that there is no difference between man and man. A traveller is on his way from Jerusalem the city of peace, to Jericho, the accursed city, the city that was given up as a curse to God because of its sins. The traveller was a Jew, and whilst journeying was waylaid, robbed, beaten and left lying beside the road. A priest come that way, and the poor man claimed affection but he passed by on the other side. A Levite also come by that way, but as the priest had passed by, he also passed him by, but not before he had stopped and looked upon him. The good Samaritan came along. The Samaritans were a class of people who were despised by the Jews, and called by them dogs. They were considered by the Jews a class of people unfit for office; yet when this Samaritan saw the man he had compassion upon him. He went to him and poured oil and wine upon his wounds and took him to an inn and provided for his wants. This is a parable to teach the gospel truths. We see in the priest no sympathy. It represents the patriarchical dispensation. We see in the Levite the Levitical dispensation, the Levitical law, the infraction of which law meant death. The law looked upon a man and killed him, it showed him no sympathy. Jesus Christ, the good Samaritan, however, came to our necessities. He comes humanly. He felt all the pangs and sorrows of man. He was the great and mighty Saviour. He had true love and sympathy. He was a true representative of humanity. He was a good Samaritan. He showed the pre-eminence of the gospel over all other doctrines. Christianity has revolutionized the whole world. Christianity makes brotherly love. It is the ground work of all societies which endeavor to do good. Oddfellowship is a Christian institution. It is as the good Samaritan. Before Christianity there were no institutions for the poor, the sick and the dying. Christianity binds itself to humanity. As a band of brothers, the Oddfellows have the privilege of aiding suffering humanity and do so extensively. The Rev. gentleman then gave the amounts which had been expended for the relief of the sick, and for the care of the widows and orphans. This was practical sympathy. In conclusion he appealed to them to break every prejudice and unite together in one holy bond of love and peace.

At the conclusion of the services the procession re-formed and marched up Coleman street over the upper bridge, down Front street to the lodge rooms and dispersed.

Phenomena.

To the Editor of the Intelligencer:

DEAR SIR,—It is indeed a passing strange world we live in. Material necessities and the great struggle for the 'survival of the fittest' occupy our minds to the exclusion of much thought upon this world and our future destiny. To be or not to be, that is the great question asked to-day by the scientific world, and how answered?

Christians and theologians point to the Bible and say that the New Testament, at any rate, tells us that there is a future world. But many of giant intellect, with keen incisive logic argue against the great truth and, denying it, also deny the divine authenticity of the Bible.

Leading scientists flippantly dismiss it as not worthy of consideration.

Up to the present time, aside from revelation, it has been held as not susceptible of proof or disproof. No traveller has ever returned. The prayer of the bereaved husband for one glance at the face of his dead wife—of the mother for the little bud nipped by the wind's untimely blast—of the philosopher, that divine light might irradiate his mind—all remain unanswered. Our loved ones are with us a little space and fade from our view, and all that remains is a tender memory, a tress of hair, and the little grass-grown hillock.

Has every effort been made—every opportunity been seized—to discover whether this great problem could not be solved?

Every convolution of the brain has been studied and searched. Every part of the human anatomy has been dissected by the scalpel of the surgeon in order to discover the soul. Descartes fixed the residence of the soul in the pineal gland, but later anatomists have discovered it to be the remains of one of our verterbrate ancestors. All search has been in vain. The belief now is that man is possessed of both soul and spirit. In vain has one philosopher after another attempted to define the line of demarcation between instinct and reason, the shading is so fine—the one melting so imperceptibly in the other that some great men have been generous enough to assign souls to animals. Others point out the physical perfection of animals equalling that of man, and claim that man is simply a link in the chain from the cell upwards. A leading scientist claims that sufficient attention has not been paid to the observation of phenomena and occultism—that from the investigations of the physical society enough evidence has been gleaned upon which to declare there is a future life.

Hypnotism, mesmerism, clairvoyance, mind reading, all are attended with phenomena which puzzle the understanding, which have not been explained, and which invite the closest attention. I think an association might be formed in the city which would have as its end and object discussion and experiment upon all classes of phenomena. If ladies and gentlemen of the city desire to form an association, I should be very glad to assist in its formation, believing that much pleasure and profit might result. I am, very truly,

J. J. B. FLINT.

Cure of Catarrh.

Prof. Wilcox, of St. Thomas, will be at the Anglo American hotel, Belleville, from Monday, April 27th, till Saturday, May 2nd. The professor is well recommended, and under good report of being the catarrh specialist of America. Read his advertisement in another column.

—It is rumored that the Speakership of the Dominion Senate will go to Senator Gerard, one of the Manitoba representatives.

The Mother.

The following poem, by William Wilfrid Campbell, a new Canadian poet, which appears in Harper's Magazine, is declared by the Chicago Interocean to be "the nearest approach to a great poem which has cropped out in current literature for many a long day." Our contemporary classes it among such works as Milton's "Hymn Upon the Nativity," Longfellow's "Psalm of Life" and Shelley's "Skylark."

I.

It was April, blossoming spring,
They buried me, when the birds did sing.

Earth, in clammy wedging earth,
They banked my bed with a black, damp girth.

Under the damp and under the mould,
I kenned my breasts were clammy and cold.

Out from the red beams, slanting and bright,
I kenned my cheeks were sunken and white.

I was a dream, and the world was a dream,
And yet I kenned all things that seem.

I was a dream, and the world was a dream,
But you cannot bury a red sunbeam.

For though in the under-grave's doom-night
I lay all silent and stark and white,

Yet over my head I seemed to know
The murmurous moods of wind and snow,

The snows that wasted, the winds that blew,
The rays that slanted, the clouds that drew

The water ghosts up from lakes below,
And the little flower-souls in earth that grow.

Under earth, in the grave's stark night,
I felt the stars and the moon's pale light.

I felt the winds of ocean and land
That whispered the blossoms soft and bland.

Though they had buried me dark and low
My soul with the seasons seemed to grow.

II.

I was a bride in my sickness sore,
I was a bride nine months and more.

From throes of pain they buried me low,
For death had finished a mother's woe.

But under the sod, in the grave's dread doom,
I dreamed of my baby in glimmer and gloom.

I dreamed of my babe, and I kenned that his rest
Was broken in wailings on my dead breast.

I dreamed that a rose leaf hand did cling;
Oh, you cannot bury a mother in spring.

When the winds are soft and the blossoms are red
She could not sleep in her cold earth-bed.

I dreamed of my babe for a day and a night,
And then I rose in my grave clothes white.

I rose like a flower from my damp earth-bed
To the world of sorrowing overhead.

Men would have called me a thing of harm,
But dreams of my babe made me rosy and warm.

I felt my breasts swell under my shroud;
No stars shone white, no winds were loud;

But I stole me past the graveyard wall,
For the voice of my baby seemed to call;

And I kenned me a voice, though my lips were dumb;
Hush, baby, hush, for mother is come.

I passed the streets to my husband's home;
The chamber stairs in a dream I clomb;

I heard the sound of each sleeper's breath,
Light waves that broke on the shores of death.

I listened a space at my chamber door,
Then stole like a moon-ray over its floor.

My babe was asleep on a stranger's arm,
"Oh baby, my baby, the grave is so warm,

"Though dark and so deep, for mother is there!
O come with me from the pain and care!

"O come with me from the anguish of earth,
Where the bed is banked with a blossoming girth.

"Where the pillow is soft and the rest is long,
And mother will croon you a slumber song,

"A slumber song that will charm your eyes
To a sleep that never in earth-song lies!

"The loves of earth your being can spare,
But never the grave, for mother is there."

I nestled him soft to my throbbing breast,
And stole me back to my long, long rest.

And here I lie with him under the stars,
Dead to earth, its peace and its wars

And Heaven may open its shimmering doors,
And saints make music on pearly floors,

And hell may yawn to its infinite sea,
But they never can take my baby from me.

For so much a part of my soul he hath grown
That God doth know of it high on His throne.

And here I lie with him under the flowers
That sun-winds rock through the billowy hours,

With the night airs that steal from the murmuring sea,
Bringing sweet peace to my baby and me.

The Acme and Pik-Ron Boom.

The firm of A. L. Anderson & Co. Toronto, having something like a year ago thoroughly satisfied themselves of the surpassing excellence of Acme blacking, Pik-Ron paint, etc., and the consequence extraordinary popularity of these and Messrs. Wolff & Randolph's (Phila.) other specialties throughout the United States, Great Britain, and, in fact, the entire world, promptly secured the agency for Canada, and forthwith, and at an enormous cost, contracted for yearly advertising space in 60 of the selected best circulating newspapers of the Dominion. With the matter and get up of these advertisements all readers of THE INTELLIGENCER are by this time quite familiar.

The result has been that which invariably follows the judicious, liberal advertising of a really meritorious article, and to-day the praise of Acme and Pik-Ron constitutes an unbroken and cumulative chorus of praise extending from Newfoundland to Vancouver.

To the susceptible soul moderately open to conviction a single trial of the articles referred to invariably settles the matter offhand and for good.

"All men have not faith," however, and if, from inherent incredulity, habitual prejudice or the misrepresentations of interested would-be rivals, anyone has hitherto failed to test the "perservative," absolutely "waterproof," brilliant ("once a week for men's and once a month for woman's" shoes) shine, etc., Acme, or the really splendid results from the home use of Pik-Ron paint, all the vendors ask for is the opportunity to substantiate these and the other good features claimed on their behalf.

The sale of these goods has this season already been very large throughout all the Provinces, and the aggregate output such as to tax the manufacturing capabilities of Messrs. Wolff & Randolph to the utmost.

or Delicate, Sickly Children

Scott's Emulsion is unequalled. See what Dr. C. A. Black, of Amherst, N. S., says: "I have been acquainted with Scott's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil, with Hypophosphites, for years, and consider it one of the finest preparations now before the public. Its pleasant flavor makes it the great favorite for children, and I do highly recommend it for all wasting diseases of children and adults. Sold by Druggists, 50c, and $1.00.

Ask Your Friends About It.

Your distressing cough can be cured. We know it because Kemp's Balsam within the past few years has cured so many coughs and colds in this community. Its remarkable sale has been won entirely by its genuine merit. Ask some friend who has used it what he thinks of Kemp's Balsam. There is no medicine so pure, none so effective. Large bottles 50c and $1 at all druggists.

—One of the largest American sewing machine companies, the Singer, has decided that the necessities of their trade demand the manufacture of the cabinet work in their wares in Canada. In pursuance of this policy they have awarded a five years' contract for the work to Messrs. Hay & Co., of Woodstock. This means the expenditure of $50,000 yearly in Canada for woods, glue, varnish, labor, etc.

THE NEWS OF EUROPE.

REBELLIOUS MANIPURIS NOW SUING FOR PEACE.

A French Duel—One of the Combatants Shot in the Chest—The Queen at Grasse—Died of Starvation Although Worth Half a Million Dollars.

SIMLA, April 26.—British forces advancing on Manipur met and engaged a force of about 1000 Manipuris on the 23rd instant. The latter commenced hostilities by opening fire upon the British column. The latter replied with the fire of their field artillery and the enemy fled in disorder. Several messengers from the tribesmen have arrived in the British camp suing for peace for the insurgents.

The British forces continue their advance unchecked upon Manipur. As the British troops advance the rebels abandon their villages and retreat upon the first volley of the advancing columns.

PARIS, April 26.—Queen Victoria is one person in England, another person abroad. She keeps her pleasant manners for the foreigners. At Grasse she is the sweetest, kindliest and most unaffected of old ladies. Her sunshade is never before her face when she takes carriage airings. She often steps out on the balcony of her sitting-room windows, which look upon the high street, and she shows herself to the infantry band, which up to the day on which she received the intelligence of the massacre at Manipur came daily to play for her in the garden of the hotel where she is staying. The royal carriage is stopped when children on the roadside offer flowers for sale or country women for kindness. Little tea parties are given, to which the local officials, the officers of the regiment in attendance as a guard of honor and their wives are invited. Since the news of the Manipur affair the Queen's spirits are not so good. Her heart is in India. This is shown by the extraordinary favor enjoyed by her Indian servants, of whom she now has three. They attend her in the grounds of the hotel and wait in the anteroom when she is indoors. They are also constantly in attendance in the sitting-room.

A STRANGE CASE.

A Woman's Mind Turned by Her Great Good Fortune.

LONDON, April 26.—Driven insane by the joy that followed her knowledge of having fallen heiress to $600,000 left by a wealthy relative who had died inestate, poor Martha Spencer of East London, an indigent laborer's wife, was debarred by her mania from taking the fortune. Thus, while a lunatic, she actually died of starvation because her condition kept the wealth away from her.

Frightful Tragedy at Pressburg.

LONDON, April 26.—A Berlin dispatch tells of a horrible tragedy at Pressburg. The wife of Herr Kutzkar, a member of the council of that city, became widly insane, and having cut the throat of her daughter, she burned her body on the hearth of their dwelling, and then proceeded to set fire to herself with a view of destroying herself with her daughter. The neighbors were attracted to the scene by the shrieks of pain which the woman could not suppress, and they promptly extinguished the flames and handed her over to the police.

Sugar Poisoning Affair in Scotland.

GLASGOW, April 26.—A woman named Cramb died on Saturday at Crieff, Perthshire, from arsenic contained in sugar. How the poison got into the sugar is still a mystery. The woman's husband died on Friday night from the same cause. Fifty people are suffering.

"CHUB" COLLINS A DECEIVER.

A Well-Known Baseball Man Sued for Breach of Promise of Marriage.

DUNDAS, April 26.—Charles Collins, hotel-keeper, better known as "Chub" Collins, baseball player and umpire, is being sued by Miss Phœbe Smith, who was employed for some time in the Dundas Cotton Mills, but who is now a resident of Hamilton, for breach of promise. Everybody who has ever taken an interest in baseball knows "Chub" Collins. For many years he was a member of the Hamilton team, and since he retired from active part in the game as a player he has acted as umpire in the International as well as in some of the larger leagues.

Blown Up by a Torpedo.

IQUIQUE, Chili, April 26.—The warship Blanco Encalada, which was one of the vessels seized by the rebels at the breaking out of the insurrection, was sunk on April 23 in Caldera Bay by a torpedo fired by the new gunboat Almirante Lynch. The destruction of the ironclad was attended by great loss of life, 200 persons, comprising half of her crew, being killed by the explosion of the torpedo. The Congress party are now in possession of Caldera and Carrizal.

Big Price For a Trotter.

DUBUQUE, Ia., April 25.—High and Stock Farm to-day sold to ex-United States Senator Angus Cameron of Lacrosse, Wis., the two-year-old colt Oh So, for $12,000. Oh So is a son of Nutwood (2.18¾), out of So So (2.17¼); by George Wilkes; second dam Little Ida, by Edwin Forrest. He will head the stud at the Cameron Farm, near Lacrosse.

Died at the Breakfast Table.

KINGSTON, April 26.—George Fry, aged 68 years, died very suddenly Saturday at Deseronto. On his way to the breakfast room he complained of being ill and in an hour he was dead from heart failure.

Fire in Welland.

WELLAND, April 26.—About 11 o'clock yesterday fire destroyed a large brick dwelling in Welland, owned by David Bald. The house was valued at $5000 and insured for $1600 in the Waterloo.

The Babe and the Bottle.

SARNIA, April 26.—Florence, the 3-year-old daughter of Frank Smith, obtained possession of a bottle of ammonia and drank the contents. There is a possibility of her recovery.

Death Due to a Wrestling Bout.

PRESTON, April 26.—Albert Rhode, aged 17, died Thursday from the effects of a blow received in the abdomen in a friendly wrestle some weeks ago.

The First Sod Will be Turned on Thursday Next.

WINDSOR, April 26.—At a meeting held in the parlors of the Crawford House yesterday, the Michigan & Canada Tunnel Company was organized and directors elected, and it was decided to at once proceed with the construction of a tunnel under the Detroit River from Windsor to Detroit. Among the shareholders present were James Ross of Montreal, D. O. Bliss of New York and A. Onderdonk. The Michigan Central and Canada Southern roads were represented by their solicitors. The only information they would give to the public was that they had decided to begin work on the tunnel at once, and that many American and Canadian capitalists are interested in the success of the project. Chief Engineer Hawks of the Michigan Central announces that the first sod of the tunnel will be turned on Thursday next at 11 a.m. on the Canadian side of the river.

Life in Northern Australia.

(Gilbert Parker, in Harper's Weekly)

The most delightful thing in the life of northern Australia is its sans souci appearance. Existence is literally out doors, and people live as if burglars were unknown. I have ridden past houses in the early morning, and have seen the verandas littered with books, bric-a-brac, walking-sticks, hats, lamps and other articles, and the doors wide open. Night after night things are left so, and they are not stolen.

Stealing is punished in Queensland with the greatest rigor. A man might be guilty of manslaughter, and stand in better odor with the authorities than the thief. I have ridden to a plantation late at night, turned my horse into a horse paddock, entered the house, struck a match, found a sofa, lay down and awoke in the morning to find life bustling about me, my breakfast ready, and I an utter stranger!

Such is the freedom of the life. I was a traveller. I suppose I did not look like a vagabond; they appreciated the desire on my part to not disturb their rest, and they apologized for the hardness of the sofa!

Every planter has not merely one room in his house which is called the stranger's room, but several, and they are seldom empty. In the days that I visited Pride, the planter, there were six guests besides myself there. Imagine a house through which the warm air will blow from side to side and from end to end, with a group of buildings as dormitories at the left, and another group as kitchens and stores at the right; and graced with all the comforts and with little of the conventional stiffness of metropolian life; which has dignity without show, and elegance without heaviness—and you have the planter's home.

Put roses and bamboos, oleanders and camellias, limes and oranges, laurestinus and jasmine, pineapple and bougainvillia, the glorious pawpaw and granadilla, a tennis court, and perhaps an observation, and you have a planter's garden. Then put inside the house and garden a healthy generosity, a great self-reliance, a mind given to insisting bluntly on the wisdom of its connections, a hand ready to pour you out a glass of sherry or indite a philippic against a government or Sir Samuel Griffith, who has opposed Polynesian labor, and that is Pride, the planter.

What you find of lightness and comfort in the house of Pride, the planter, you find in degree in all the north. Order and cleanliness reign. You may miss at times verdure and foliage, but never that. Villages and towns are swept and garnished and the people love flowers. And go straight across the continent to Perth, Albany, York, or Geraldton, and the same thing may be found.

You will also find coupled with this energy self-confidence, freshness, aggressive assertion, and generous warmth. Because these have always been difficult questions to face, because unexpected circumstances have called for immediate action, because development has come by leaps and bounds, and because there have been struggles between class and class, there has been produced an upstanding race of men, irascible, yet hospitable; strenuous and stalwart, yet not robustious; explosive, yet not troublesome; uncompromising, yet generous. That is the true Australian. The rough persistency and selfishness of the trades unions are not Australian; it is English, with a sense of freedom borrowed from easier conditions of life, and a knowledge of power gained from the most perilous forms of American and English existence. It is engrafted Australia—Australia in the cities—that is ultra-democratic. Australia itself moves in ample assertion, but it has also sound sentiment or patriotism. Its natural tendency is toward hero-worship, but the faculty has not scope for want of heroes. No great crisis has drawn the colonies together, and of late years but few of the best men have gone into public life.

Oh, What a Cough

Will you heed the warning. The signal perhaps of the sure approach of that more terrible disease Consumption. Ask yourselves if you can afford for the sake of saving 50c., to run the risk and do nothing for it. We know from experience that Shiloh's Cure will cure your cough. It never fails.

—Tommy: Can we play at keeping a store in here, mamma? Mamma (who has a headache) Certainly; but you must be very, very quiet. Tommy: Well, we'll pretend we don't advertise.

TORONTO TRUTH'S
New Spring Bible Competition
NO. 22.

In these latter days there have arisen many false schemes and many scores of imitations of TRUTH's Competitions, but one after another have failed and utterly perished, yet TRUTH remains, and makes good all its promises. Its reputation is now too well established to risk damaging it, and as it has cost a very large amount of money and many years of care and labor to build up, the publisher could not afford to fail in carrying out all his agreements to the letter. There are twenty-one divisions of the largest list of bona fide prizes ever offered and ever actually given away by any publisher in the world. The total value of prizes in the Spring list is about $10,000,00. The lists are so large it would cost altogether too much to give them in detail here. There are pianos gold and silver watches, china tea and dinner sets, ladies' and gentlemen's bicycles, silver tea-sets, silk dresses, books, money, hundreds of other valuable rewards. You pay nothing for these prizes, as everyone concedes that full value is received for the dollar in securing TRUTH every week for three months. Send one dollar and answers to the five following questions: Where in the Bible are these words found? 1, GRAIN; 2, CORN; 3, WHEAT; 4, BARLEY; 5, RYE. If your answers are correct and your letters arrive in time you are almost sure to get a reward, as there are so many and every one cannot always find correct answers to all these questions. All the five answers must be correct to get any prize, but you will get full value for the dollar in TRUTH if you don't get anything else. If you want to see the list of rewards before sending in your dollar, mail TRUTH ten cents and a copy will be sent you containing the list of prizes. But there have been very few dissatisfied prize-winners in previous competitions, considering that he has given away during the past eight years scores of thousands of prizes. Some people expect a piano for every dollar sent, and are mad if they don't get it. He wishes it were possible to give every subscriber a gold watch or a piano or both, but says it can't be done. Some publishers intimate they will, but nobody can do it for any length of time. Send one dollar and correct answers and you won't repent it; and bear in mind that it is not guaranteed that every body whose answers are correct will get a prize, but that all the prizes in the twenty-one different lists will be given away. The competition remains open only till the last day of June next, inclusive, after which the prizes will be immediately distributed to the successful ones. Ten days will be allowed for letters to reach TRUTH from distant points after the 30th of June. All, however, must be postmarked where mailed not later than the 30th June, or any time between now and that date. Address S. Frank Wilson, "Truth" Office, Toronto, Ont., Canada.

"I don't mean to persecute you," he remarked, speaking in a monotonous tone, as they walked onward side by side. "I didn't return from Europe for that; I merely wanted you to know. I used to think that, whatever happened, I could always think and act like a man who believed in goodness and—purity. But I failed at the important moment, and you may be right—it was only natural in me. For a long time—many years—before I met you I had nothing to do with women, and thought as little as possible about them. You seemed to me, when I first saw you, everything that I most wanted, and, at the same time, everything that I most disliked. It was the contradiction between what I felt you were and what I thought you were. That began with our first evening and went on exaggerating itself until the end. That's my story, Miss Randolph. After all it's only a long way of saying, 'I made a mistake and beg your pardon.'"

Beatrix heard all this, and the more she heard the more tormented she felt and the faster she tried to walk; but the sidewalks were slippery, and at last in crossing the street her foot slipped, and she would have fallen if Geoffrey had not caught her arm. She stopped, pressing her hands, which were clasped inside her muff, against her heart, and glancing this way and that, like a bird that knows not which way to fly. She was in just such a half frantic, half hopeless mood as often prompts women to acts which appear—and perhaps really are—insane. She knew that on the passing moment depended probably the failure or success, the happiness or misery, of her whole future life. She knew that everything was going topsy-turvy, absurdly and gratuitously wrong. And she felt paralyzed—wholly unable to utter a word to set everything right. A word would have done it. What prevented her? In part, perhaps, the very urgency of her desire, which tripped up its performance.

But what appeared to be the real obstacles were utterly trivial material accidents, such as being in the open street, being buffeted by the wind, being obstructed by her veil, being unable to see the expression of Bellingham's face, because it was in shadow. The more despicably small the hindrances were, and the more out of proportion with the thing they were hindering, the less could Beatrix prevail against them. So it often seems to be in this world; it is not only that the mountain in labor brings forth a mouse, but that a mouse prevents the bringing forth of a mountain.

Bellingham also was wretchedly aware that he had ruined whatever little chance he may have had; that he had spoken boldly and perfunctorily, with a frozen tongue, although his heart was on fire. He could not help it; he could have died for her on the spot, but he could not put into his voice or face as much life as would have kept a gnat in motion. It was all over.

"Will you stop this stage for me, please?" Beatrix had said as another of those gorgeous vehicles came swinging and lumbering along.

"With pleasure!" Bellingham replied, not ironically, but mechanically. The stage pulled up; he handed all he loved in the world up the step; he saw her fall into a seat, and then, with a jerk and a hoof clatter, stage and all disappeared in the gloom and snow. Bellingham remained for a few moments in the middle of the road like a policeman till, recollecting himself, he saw before him the hospitable entrance of Delmonico's, and went in there.

CHAPTER XV.

THE GREAT MARANA.

The next night was the last of the opera season, and the prima donna who had attained such unexampled popularity with the New York public was to bid them farewell in the same character in which she had made their acquaintance—the Gretchen of "Faust." She had intended to spend the day as much as possible in solitude; she wished to think—to work into her mind and arrange the throng of ideas that were crowding one another there; to review what was past, to contemplate what might be to come. But it all turned out differently. She was allowed no repose from morning till night.

There was a multitude of petty matters to attend to, many people to see; at another time much of this might have seemed to her of no little importance; but now all passed before her like a troublesome dream, and when night came she could not have given a clear account of anything that had happened. There had been an unexpected and painful scene with Madame Bemax, who had fallen into a sort of frenzy, and grasped the skirts of Beatrix's dress, and poured forth a long and revolting story about the wrongs she had endured from Hamilton Jocelyn; had ended by calling herself a wretch, and declaring that unless Beatrix pardoned her she would kill herself.

Beatrix pardoned her immediately, with only a confused understanding of what she was pardoning her for; but she could see that the woman was in great distress of mind, and that was something she could sympathize with. She had seen Ed and her father and Wallie Dinsmore; there had been a great deal of discussion and some disputing, ending apparently in a sort of conditional reconciliation; but she had been unable to keep her attention fixed on the subject long enough at a time to comprehend the bearings of it. She had also seen Inigo, who was in an agitated frame of mind, jumping up from his chair and sitting down again twenty times, asking questions which he tried to answer himself, talking about his reputation, about his fidelity to his contracts, about his financial liberality and about Mlle. Marana, whom he alternately abused and praised, and between whom and Beatrix he seemed anxious to bring about an interview. Beatrix was willing, even desirous, that the interview should take place; but nothing of the sort happened, and the inference was that Mlle. Marana must have declined.

Altogether the evening fell ominously. But as Beatrix drove to the theatre in a covered sleigh a kind of calmness, almost happiness, came over her. These regular meetings with her audiences had grown to be an indescribable resource and sup- [illegible] aside herself and her affairs; to appeal from the narrow and interested circle of her private friends and enemies to the vast, impersonal, careless, good humored world of the public, who loved and applauded her artistic self, and knew and cared nothing about her real thoughts and existence. How would it be when this resource no longer remained to her? She put that question aside, and the porter at the stage entrance, who attached great importance to the smile of greeting he received each evening from the diva, reported on this occasion that the dear lady had seemed to be in especially good spirits. Moreover she had slipped into his hand a snuff box (he was a Hanoverian and took snuff) containing, not snuff, but a $50 bank note.

Supposing.

Supposing you suffer from some disease. Suppose it is dyspepsia or billiousness or constipation or bad blood. Suppose you learn that Burdock Blood Bitters has cured thousands of cases of these and similar complaints. Don't you suppose you ought to try it? It cannot harm you and in nine cases out of ten it cures.

Editorial Evidence.

GENTLEMEN—Your Hagyard's Yellow Oil is worth its weight in gold for both internal and external use. During the late La Grippe epidemic we found it a most excellent preventive, and for sprained limbs, etc., there is nothing to equal it.

Mr. Joab Scales, of Toronto, writes:— "A short time ago I was suffering from Kidney Complaint and Dyspepsia, sour stomach and lame back; in fact I was completely prostrated and suffering intense pain. While in this state a friend recommended me to try a bottle of Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery. I used one bottle, and the permanent manner in which it has cured and made a new man of me is such that I cannot withhold from the proprietors this expression of my gratitude."

The brightest flowers must fade, but young lives endangered by severe coughs and colds may be preserved by Dr. Thomas Eclectric' Oil. Croup, whooping cough, bronchitis, in short all affections of the throat and lungs, are relieved by this sterling preparation, which also remedies rheumatic pains, sores, bruises' piles, kidney difficulty, and is most economic.

—She—Will you always love me, dear, just the same as you do now? He—Always. She—You wretched thing! Why didn't you protest that every year you would love me more.

Principal J. W. Graham—It is the only satisfactory work I have ever used or examined.

Hundreds of testimonials such as the above have been given by experienced accountants and principals and proprietors of colleges.

The present edition is the Two Hundredth Thousand.

CHICAGO, 6th April, 1891.

Robert Bogle, Esq., Belleville Business College, Belleville, Ont.:

DEAR FRIEND,—Your very welcome letter of the 13th ult. was duly received.

You asked in your letter if I had any difficulty in performing my work as stenographer. I am glad to tell you that I have not had any difficulty in the least, as you assured me I would not, before leaving your college. I have to write from 30 to 40 letters a day, and there is enough other office work to keep me busy, but it is not hard.

Tell the students never to be afraid, after they have received as careful training as I got.

In conclusion I have to say that any young gentleman or young lady wishing to improve his or her time, may rest assured that they will never regret the time and money spent while attending the above named institution.

Yours very truly,

BRITISH AND FOREIGN.

ANOTHER BRITISH VICTORY REPORTED FROM MANIPUR.

Preferring Death to Dishonor, a Noted Historian Cuts His Throat—Another Jack the Ripper Unearthed—General News of a Day from All Lands.

LONDON, April 28.—The hearing of the charge preferred against C. A. Fyffe, the well-known historian of modern Europe, was to have been held to-day but owing to the critical condition of the accused, who, overwhelmed by the charge, cut his throat yesterday, the court granted an adjournment. Mr. Fyffe is the candidate of the Liberal party for the vacant seat in the House of Commons for the Eastern or Devizes division of Wiltshire and his character has always been above suspicion. The charge against him, that of committing an indecent assault upon a boy while traveling in a train, has created considerable discussion and many people believe it to be unfounded.

A large number of persons holding high positions in the church and others eminent in literary circles were in court to-day for the purpose of testifying to the blameless character of the accused. The Election Committee having Mr. Fyffe's political interests in charge has adopted a vote of confidence in him.

PRACTICAL CHARITY.

The Charity of the Queen of Portugal Makes a Good Impression.

LONDON, April 28.—Amid the excitement in Portugal an act of charity by Queen Amelia is favorably commented on. Having heard that the wife and children of Capt. Leitao, the Republican leader of the Oporto insurrection, were in absolute want, the father and husband being under sentence of imprisonment, the Queen herself has taken them under her protection and is supporting them, as well as other destitute families of the insurgents, out of her own private fortune.

As the success of the insurrection would have deprived the King and Queen of their throne and perhaps their lives, this is regarded as a remarkable example of magnanimity and charity.

RUSSIA MEANS WAR.

Everything Ready for the Immediate Transport of Troops.

LONDON, April 28.—A Vienna correspondent gives certain details in answer to the denial of warlike preparations by Russia. Several first-class fortresses including Warsaw and Kovno, also second and several third-class fortresses, are being reinforced for the reception of increased quantities of ammunition, provisions, field stores, etc. The network of railways leading up to Galicia and Bukovina is being extended. All these lines are under military supervision and the stations are supplied with military commanders. Everything has been made ready for the immediate transport of troops. All provincial and municipal officials stand under the direction of a committee at St. Petersburg, whose duty it is to prepare for the transformation of the army from a peace to a war footing in the shortest possible time in case of emergency. A new army corps, the 20th, is being formed near the Galician frontier. Altogether the conduct of Russia is said to be that of a nation getting ready for war.

THE "RIPPER" EVERYWHERE.

This Time He Appears in a Town on the Polish Frontier.

BERLIN, April 28.—Another frightful atrocity, similar to those committed by Jack the Ripper, is reported from Beuthen on the Polish frontier. The body of a woman was found this morning behind the military hospital in that town. It was mutilated in the usual manner, the abdomen having been cut open and other injuries inflicted too horrible to describe. The victim has been identified as the wife of a tailor named Imielau. The husband has been arrested, but gives an account of himself which frees him from suspicion of the crime. He said his wife had been criminally intimate with Dr. Kudelko of the army, who is now under arrest on suspicion of having committed the murder. He is highly connected.

The Rebel Rout in India.

SIMLA, April 28.—Gen. Graham's column on Saturday last surprised a force of 1000 Manipuris, who were entrenched behind earthworks. The British first cut off the retreat of the Manipuris and then charged upon the entrenched position. A severe hand-to-hand fight followed. The enemy was completely routed, losing 200 men. One British officer was killed and four officers were wounded.

SIMLA, April 28.—Further dispatches from the British columns advancing on Manipur confirm the report that the Regent of Manipur has fled to the hills with the prominent chiefs who assisted him in the revolt. A great fire has been seen in the direction of the capital, and a loud explosion which took place during the conflagration seems to indicate that the capital has been destroyed.

The British column which was recently at Silacar has utterly routed the enemy at Bissenpur. It is not expected there will be any further opposition of a serious nature offered to the advance of the British.

GRASS-WIDOWS GOOD TIME.

Hungarians' Money Squandered When It Reached Home.

BERLIN, April 28.—Three-fourths of the male inhabitants of Hassuret, Sars county, Hungary, having emigrated to America, they sent back enough money to take their wives over. The wives instead of going to join their husbands with the money have begun a disgraceful drunken carousal, which the authorities are unable to stop.

No Arrangements Perfected.

NEW YORK, April 28.—A Washington special says: Secretary Foster denied to-day that there had been any conclusion of negotiations between the United States and Great Britain with regard to the sealing operations in Behring Sea during the coming season. "I do not say," he added, "that an arrangement of some sort may not be reached between the two Governments, but that I can take no cognizance till it comes Our vessels are under orders to sail May 15, so that any change in the program must be made soon or it will be too late."

Married By Typewriter.

MARION, Ind., April 28.—Albert Barney and Jennie Karns, deaf mutes, were married at the Spencer House parlors by Rev. W. D. Weaver, who pronounced the important questions with the aid of a typewriter. The novelty of the affair attracted a large attendance.

A Winnipegger's Opinion.

The following is taken from a letter from Mr. D. Davis, Winnipeg, Man.: "Being persuaded to use Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam for a troublesome cold, I was entirely cured by the use of two bottles."

Dangerous Counterfeits.

Counterfeits are always dangerous, more so that they always closely IMITATE THE ORIGINAL IN APPEARANCE AND NAME. The remarkable success achieved by Nasal Balm as a positive cure for Catarrh and Cold in the Head has induced unprincipled parties to imitate it. The public are cautioned not to be deceived by nostrums imitating Nasal Balm in name and appearance, bearing such names as Nasal Cream, Nasal Balsam, etc. Ask for Nasal Balm and do not take any imitation dealers may urge upon you. For sale by all druggists or sent post-paid on receipt of price (50c and $1,) by addressing Fulford & Co. Brockville, Ont.

Why Not Treat.

WHY not treat such troubles as boils, pimples, blotches, sores, humors, eruptions, rashes, skin irritations, etc., with Burdock Blood Bitters. It is filled with virtue as a blood purifier and goes right to the right spot. It makes the skin bright and clear, while also invigorating the entire system.

Dangers of Delay.

If we were allowed to look into the future and see the fatal consequences that follow a neglected cold, how different would our course be; could we realize our danger, how speedily we would seek a cure; but with many it is only when the monster disease has fastened its fangs upon our lungs that we awaken to our folly. What follows a neglected cold? Is it not diseases of the throat and lungs, bronchitis, asthma, consumption, and many other diseases of like nature. It is worse than madness to neglect a cold, and it is folly not to have some good remedy available for this complaint. One of the most efficacious medicines for all diseases of the throat and lungs, is Bickle's Anti-Consumptive Syrup. This medicine is composed of several medicinal herbs, which exert a most wonderful influence in curing consumption and other diseases of the lungs and chest. It promotes a free and easy expectoration, soothes irritation and drives the disease from the system.

Chronic Derangements of the Stomach, Liver and Blood, are speedily removed by the active principle of the ingredients entering into the composition of Parmelee's Vegetable Pills. These Pills act specifically on the deranged organs, stimulating to action the dormant energies of the system, thereby removing disease and renewing life and vitality to the afflicted. In this lies the great secret of the popularity of Parmelee's Vegetable Pills.

Inflammation of the Eyes Cured.

Mr. Jacob D. Miller, Newburg, writes,—"I was troubled with inflammation in one of my eyes, so that during nearly the whole of the summer of 1882 I could not work; I took several bottles of Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery and it gives me great pleasure to inform you that it cured me of my affliction. It is an excellent remedy for Costiveness."

—The Better Way—She—Please hold my wrap. He—Certainly. Shall I put it around you first?

M. Sheeyan, of Oscoda, Mich, writes: I have used Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil for horses for different diseases and found it just as you recommended. It has done justice to me every time, and is the best oil for horses I ever used.

ROUND THE GLOBE.

The C.P.R. Steamer Empress of India Arrives at Victoria, B.C.

VICTORIA, B.C., April 28.—The steamship Empress of India arrived off Victoria this morning at 6.30 o'clock. She encountered strong gales on the 20th inst., and a cyclone on the 25th, which reduced her speed somewhat. The steamship China, which arrived at San Francisco on Saturday, left Yokohama six days before the Empress of India, and not two as reported. She has 131 first class passengers and 355 Chinese. Among the passengers are Sir John Gladstone, Mr. and Mrs. Power of Dublin and others.

Upon the steamer's arrival here she was met by the mayor and council, and on behalf of the city of Victoria Mayor Grant presented the captain and officers with a handsome silver punch bowl.

The Empress of India's time is 10 days 14 hours and 34 minutes from Yokohama to Victoria. The quickest trip ever made from Yokohama to San Francisco was made by the s.s. China, December, 1889, in 12 day 20 hours and 54 minutes.

LAID AT REST.

Von Moltke's Funeral Yesterday was Attended by Kings, and Emperors.

BERLIN, April 28.—The funeral services over the remains of Field Marshal Count von Moltke took place to-day in the ballroom of the general staff building, in which building the veteran died and where his body has been lying in state. Emperor William, the King of Saxony, the Grand Dukes of Baden, Saxe-Weimar and Hesse, the principal members of the royal families of Germany, with the leading German generals, were present. The casket containing the field marshal's remains was then carried with much ceremony to the hearse, which was drawn by six of the Emperor's horses. After passing through streets lined with troops and packed with spectators the remains arrived at the Chrte Station at 1 o'clock in the afternoon and were placed upon a railroad car draped in black, which was there in waiting. Along the route of the procession to the railroad station the hearse was preceded by Col. Gossler, carrying Count von Moltke's field marshal's baton, and by all the officers of the general staff, carrying the insignia and orders conferred on Count von Moltke during the course of his distinguished career. The casket was covered with large numbers of floral wreaths sent from all parts of Germany and from many parts of Europe. Emperor William, the members of the royal families of Germany and the German generals followed the hearse to the railroad station.

During the ceremony in the general staff building the Emperor was moved to tears. Prince Bismarck sent an immense wreath and the following telegram:

> With profound sorrow received the telegram announcing the irreparable loss sustained by the Fatherland. I feel the loss more acutely owing to the fact that it had been vouchsafed to me to enjoy for several decades Von Moltke's glorious co-operation and the invariable amiability he displayed in our close friendly relations.

AWFUL SKIN DISEASE

Child a Mass of Raw, Bleeding Sores. Miraculous Cure by the Cuticura Remedies.

A face, from the hair to the neck on both sides, a raw mass of bleeding sores; two little hands and arms in the same condition; a body around the waist of which was a broad band of bleeding eruptions, and from the hips to the tips of her toes the skin was so raw as to be absolutely sickening to the sight. Said Mrs. H. A. Stout to me: "I have tried everything suggested to me on my little daughter, who has been so afflicted almost from birth. I have had three doctors experiment on her, but she seemed to be getting worse every day. I was almost distracted. Every night I had to bandage her all over, and tie mittens on her hands to prevent her from digging the raw flesh with her fingers. Mr. Faulkner said he believed that CUTICURA REMEDIES would cure her. He offered to bear the expense. At that time she was worse than I had ever seen her, and there seemed no prospect of recovery. CUTICURA, CUTICURA RESOLVENT, and CUTICURA SOAP have wrought a miracle. To-day her skin is smooth and fair, and I believe she has entirely recovered." The above is true in every particular, and I refer to Mr. C. W. Woolever, druggist.

Purify Your Blood

The importance of keeping the blood in a pure condition is universally known, and yet there are very few people who have perfectly pure blood. The taint of scrofula, salt rheum, or other foul humor is heredited and transmitted for generations, causing untold suffering, and we also accumulate poison and germs of disease from the air we breathe, the food we eat, or the water we drink. There is nothing more conclusively proven than the positive power of Hood's Sarsaparilla over all diseases of the blood. This medicine, when fairly tried, does expel every trace of scrofula or salt rheum, removes the taint which causes catarrh, neutralizes the acidity and cures rheumatism, drives out the germs of malaria, blood poisoning, etc. It also vitalizes and enriches the blood, thus overcoming that tired feeling, and building up the whole system. In its preparation, its medicinal merit, and the wonderful cures it accomplishes Hood's Sarsaparilla is Peculiar to Itself. Thousands testify to its success, and the best advertising Hood's Sarsaparilla receives is the hearty endorsement of its army of friends. Every testimonial we publish, and every statement we make on behalf of Hood's Sarsaparilla may be relied upon as strictly true in every respect.

If you need a good blood purifier or building up medicine, be sure to take Hood's Sarsaparilla. Further information and statements of cures sent free to all who address us as below.

THE LIGHTING QUESTION.

The Council are to be congratulated upon their action with regard to the lighting question. It certainly does seem that ten years is too long a term for a contract for the supply of gas and electric light, in view of the progress which is being made in the production of those illuminants and of the probable growth of the city. The objections as to the creation of a long-enduring monopoly and the creation of an increase in the annual expenditure by adding as proposed, to the number of lights, are also not only valid but forcible, whilst the proposal to embrace in the contract provisions, as set forth, in the interest of the City, appears to be reasonable and just.

The subject will be further maturely considered, and we have hopes that a satisfactory arrangement will be arrived at.

THE SALARY QUESTION.

The course pursued by the City Council at their meeting on Monday night was, if not a deliberate shirking of the question, at least inconsequential. It was inconsequential in that no action was taken towards carrying out a proposal of which approval was expressed. The logical outcome of this approval would have been the carrying into effect, at a date within the municipal year, of the proposal; but that conclusion was avoided by the determination to do nothing unless and until the Police Commissioners and the Board of Education—whose actions the Council cannot control—have taken action in the same direction. We have no wish to appear captious or to be unduly censorious in the matter, but the course taken by the majority appears to us to have placed them in the position of saying: "Because others are doing wrong we won't do right." Or, "We will not do what we believe to be right until after others have redressed the wrongs of which we consider they have been guilty."

Now, we submit, this is not a reasonable or proper way in which to deal with public business. "Let every tub stand upon its own bottom." Let the Council confine themselves to dealing with such matters as are within their powers, leaving the Board of Education and the Police Commissioners to do likewise. The former body are just as responsible to the ratepayers as are the Council, and the Police Commissioners, if urged by a resolution of the Council, backed by a strong petition from the ratepayers, would no doubt effect the desired economies—and more particularly so if the Council had previously shown their good faith by taking the action which they profess to desire.

We trust, then, that the Council will recede from their present position and take action in a straightforward manner, namely by either rejecting or giving effect to the proposal for reducing the salaries of officials, as approved by them.

ELECTION PROTESTS.

A week ago some of the Grit journals were chuckling over the allegation that a larger number of protests had been entered against Conservatives returned as elected to the House of Commons than against members of their own party. This, they argued, showed that their friends were in better fighting trim than the Conservatives—that "the old man" was losing his grip—and sundry other conclusions equally flattering to their party and unfavorable to the Ministerialists were complacently given utterance to. The passage of one short week has sufficed to show the instability of such a conclusion, as the filing of petitions during that period has inclined the balance to the other side. The petitions against Grits now number 34, and against Conservatives 32, with 7 cross petitions against the former and 4 against the latter. The full list is as follows:

Very modest expense. Mild in action, yet powerful in cleansing, regulating the stomach, liver and bowels, curing constipation, headache and kindred ailments.

Immigration From Dakota.

The Department of Agriculture was notified yesterday of the arrival at Winnipeg on Monday of a car load of settlers from South Dakota. They had with them seven cars of stock and effects. Twenty five more arrivals from Dakota were expected last night, with more to follow. Twenty car loads of effects have already arrived.

A news item in the Globe of the 28th reads: People still continue to flock into Manitoba from South Dakota with stock and effects. A large contingent arrived this morning, their train being decorated with legends as follows: "No more 2 per cent. a month," "No more five miles water haul," "No more two bushels to the acre," "No more oxaline fuel," "No more grinding machine agents," "Good-bye, South Dakota," "Bound for the Canadian Northwest," "Free land, plenty of timber, plenty of water, interest 8 per cent. per annum," "Hurrah for Yorkton."

"It is a Whole Drug Store.'

Is what a lady said of Clark's Lightning Liniment. The previous night she had an attack of neuralgia in the face, and sent to the drug store for relief. The night clerk sent a bottle of Clark's Lightning Liniment, which dispelled the pain at once. In the night baby awoke with colic. She gave him three drops of the Liniment on a lump of sugar, and he went to sleep again. In the morning her husband complained of Rheumatism in the shoulder. She rubbed it with the Liniment until he said the pain was gone. Is it any wonder the lady called Clark's Lightning Liniment "a whole drug store?" Sold by all druggists; price fifty cents. Clark Chemical Co., Toronto, New York.

Hood's Sarsaparilla has the largest sale of any medicine before the public. And honest druggists will confirm this statement.

THE TWO PARLIAMENTS.

OPENING OF THE ONE, CLOSING OF THE OTHER.

Little Business Transacted at the Legislature Yesterday—The Consolidation and Revision of the Laws Respecting the Education Department.

TORONTO, April 29.—In the Ontario Legislature, yesterday, Mr. Meredith called attention to the fact in the bill consolidating and revising the laws respecting the Education Department, the minister proposed to give up the authority of the department over separate schools which was given by the organic law of those schools. He insisted that the educational institutions which were supported by public taxation should be controlled by the state.

Mr. Ross, in reply, said that there was surrender of the statutory control of separate schools. The power of the department over separate schools is set forth in the act relating to those schools. This bill simply sets forth the powers which the department exercises over such schools, as it has unlimited control over and was drawn deliberately with the intention of indicating plainly the extent of those powers. The bill does not give up any of the powers the Government now has over separate schools.

Upon Mr. Hardy's motion to go into committee to consider the bill respecting the new mining regulations, Mr. Conmee moved in amendment that the House had not sufficient information to form an opinion upon the effect of the imposition of a royalty, that the bill be not now considered and that a commission of practical men be appointed to of enquire into and report upon the best mode dealing with the mining lands. After a brief explanation from Mr. Hardy the amendment was withdrawn for the present. Several important changes were made in the bill. The price of mining lands in Algoma, Thunder Bay, Rainy River and Nipissing, north of French River, Lake Nipissing and River Mattawa was placed, when in a surveyed township within 12 miles of a railway, at $4.50 per acre, when in unsurveyed territory within 15 miles of a railway at $4 per acre, and all other mining lands in that district at $3 per acre. The price of all other mining lands south of the aforesaid lakes and rivers, when in a surveyed township within 12 miles of a railway, was placed at $3 per acre; when situated elsewhere, at $2 per acre. Under certain conditions grants may be made of mining lands at the price heretofore applicable for which bona fide applications were made prior to April 24, 1891. The royalty of 3 per cent. on silver, nickel or nickel copper remained, but the proposed royalty of 2 per cent. on iron was dropped. Iron was placed on the list of ores which "shall be subject to such royalty as shall from time to time be imposed by order in council," not to exceed 2 per cent. "Nevertheless, and to assume speedy development, it is provided that the royalty hereby reserved shall not be imposed or collected on any ores mined, wrought or taken until seven years from the date of the patent of the lease."

Mr. Mowat introduced a bill respecting local option in liquor selling. The decision of Chief Justice Galt quashed a number of local option bylaws. The Attorney-General's bill is for the purpose of taking a test case to the Court of Appeal. In the meantime the License Commissioners will be given power to issue temporary licenses.

DOMINION PARLIAMENT.

The Speech from the Throne Will Be Delivered To-Morrow.

OTTAWA, April 28.—Ottawa is shaking off its lethargy to-night and once more assuming a busy aspect. The members are coming in fast, over one-fourth being here to-night, and in the morning trains will probably bring in twice as many more as are here now.

To-morrow's proceedings are not expected to be anything more than pro forma. The swearing-in of members will commence at 12 and, to use a phrase which has become historic, they will be "mesmerized in batches," until they have all taken the oath. The usual form is to swear in as many at once, four, six or eight, as can get their hands on the Bible. After that each member signs the roll of the House, and then, and only then, becomes a full-fledged member of Parliament. The swearing-in and signing being over, the disorganized body will be summoned to the Red Chamber, where they will be informed that His Excellency does not please to disclose the reason of his summoning Parliament until they have elected a Speaker, and the House will be dismissed until 3 o'clock on Thursday, when the formal opening will take place and the Speech from the Throne be delivered. No intimation can of course be got to-night as to what the speech is likely to contain, but it is not anticipated that the Government will announce any startling change of policy or pre-shadow any legislation of a nature likely to provoke determined opposition. It has already been announced that no great or general change in the tariff will be made, and the legislation members are said to be good speakers and some of them are practised Parliamentarians, but the familiar slouch hat and sonorous-rounded paragraphs of Mr. Blake will be sadly missed from the Opposition benches, while the Government will mourn the loss of argumentative strength occasioned by the enforced absence of Mr. Colby. Apropos of this gentleman, I understand that his resignation has been accepted and that he does not anticipate a very early return to public life, as his business in England will probably occupy him for some time. The House will also miss the portly presence of Mr. Carling which will add somewhat to the appearance of the Senate. It is very freely stated that he will not remain in the Senate very long after the close of the session, but transfer his sphere of usefulness to Government House, Toronto, Sir Alexander returning to the Senate.

Invitations have been issued for the usual state dinner on Thursday night and the drawing room will be held in the Senate Chamber on Saturday.

G. T. R. SHAREHOLDERS.

Sir Henry Tyler's Policy Sustained—The Election Yesterday.

LONDON, April 28.—The meeting of the Grand Trunk Railway shareholders, which was adjourned from April 14, was held here to-day, when the policy of the president, Sir Henry Tyler, was confirmed and the retiring directors, Lord Claude Hamilton and Messrs. Gillespie, Heygate and Lethbridge, were re-elected by a vote of 47,230 to 20,799.

Sir Charles Tupper was not present, his challenge not having been accepted and no invitation to attend having been extended to him.

THE DIURNAL WRECK.

Collision Between Freight and Passenger Trains on the Baltimore & Ohio

WASHINGTON, April 28.—An accident by which four persons were killed and several were injured, occurred at 4.10 p.m. on the Metropolitan branch of the B. & O. Railroad, one mile this side of Gaithersburg. The Cincinnati express ran into a freight, which was at a standstill at a small station called Warings.

The Killed.

ENGINEER C. ELLIOTT of the express.
ENGINEER GROFF of the freight.
FIREMAN MURPHY of the freight.
POSTAL CLERK BURDETT.

Postal Clerk Peacock and Fireman Miller of the express were seriously hurt. None of the passengers were dangerously hurt. The western mails were partially destroyed. All the killed and injured resided in Baltimore.

MALTREATED BY GREEKS.

Attempted Massacre as the Result of a Rumor Respecting the Revival of an Old Superstition.

LONDON, April 29.—Despatches from Corfu report an outbreak of the Greeks against the Jews. The Greeks recently spread a report that the Jews murdered a Christian girl for the feast of the Passover, a child's body being found in the Jewish quarter, though the body was identified as that of a daughter of a leading Jew. The Jews declared the Greeks murdered the child as an excuse for rioting and plunder. The excitement became so great that 6000 Jews were compelled to close their shops and the Government put a military cordon around the Jewish quarter. In spite of this a crowd of Greeks broke into the Jewish quarter and built a bonfire in the square, in which they declared the Jews should be burned. Before the rioters could carry out their intentions they were dispersed by the troops, although not before many Jews had been terribly beaten and injured.

FEET-WASHING AT A FEAST.

The Dunkards Perform a Peculiar Ceremony.

LANCASTER, Pa., April 28.—The Dunkard Brethren, or German Baptists, held the first of their annual series of love-feasts on Friday and the ceremonies concluded to-night. The leading feature of this service is the concluding one, which is the washing of each other's feet. The men sat on one side of the meeting house and the women on the other. Then each man washed the feet of four or five of his brethren and wiped them dry with a towel, and kissed them twice. The women go through the same performance among themselves. Not a pair of corsets could be found in the entire assemblage, the Dunkards frowning down such earthly appliances.

DIVORCED, HE SOUGHT DEATH.

A New York Commission Merchant Fatally Shoots Himself.

NEW YORK, April 28.—Leopold Landaur, the Wall-street commission merchant, whose wife was granted a divorce to-day on the ground of his illicit intimacy with servants, shot himself to-night at the Cooper Union Hotel, inflicting wounds in the neck and breast which are likely to prove fatal. He was removed to the hospital.

ATTEMPTED SUICIDE.

17-Year-Old Mary Morehouse Sought to End Her Troubles.

MERRITTON, April 28.—A young lady named Mary Morehouse, aged about 17 years living with her parents in Merritton and employed in the cotton mills, attempted suicide by swallowing a quantity of laudanum. Medical aid was summoned as soon as the condition of the girl was discovered and she will recover. It is understood the mad act was prompted by despondency arising from domestic troubles and a love affair.

LYNCHED BY SOLDIERS.

A Former Windsorite Shot to Death by Soldiers—Particulars of the Walla Walla Lynching Affair.

WINDSOR, April 28.—J. D. Hunt, the notorious crook, who formerly made his home in Windsor, is no more. He was lynched in Walla Walla, Wash., by American soldiers. Hunt was one of the most noted and desperate thieves and lawless people that ever lived in this place and his "sudden" death is not very much regretted. The particulars of his death are as follows: "On Wednesday night J. D. Hunt, a gambler, whose reputation was bad even among his companions, became engaged in an altercation with Private Miller, and struck him in the face. Miller returned the blow, and was getting the best of the fight, when Hunt drew a revolver from his hip pocket and shot Miller dead. A mob at once collected, and an attempt was made to lynch the murderer, but he was hurried to the jail by the authorities, who determined that the law should take its course. Talk of lynching has been heard of on the streets ever since the murder, and the sheriff, fearing an attempt would be made to take the prisoner out and lynch him, swore in a number of citizens as special deputies, armed them, with instructions to guard the prisoner at all hazards. Last night the jail, a strong structure, was surrounded by fully 150 soldiers, who demanded the surrender of Hunt. The sheriff refused, hot words were exchanged, and several of the more impetuous deputies fired upon the soldiers, who answered with a volley. The despatches say half a dozen persons were killed and many wounded, but whether they were citizens or soldiers is not known. After the shooting the soldiers are reported to have battered down the door of the jail and riddled Hunt with bullets."

Terribly Burned with Matches.

HAMILTON, April 28.—Frank Raynor, the 4-year-old son of G. J. Raynor, Steven-street, got hold of some matches and in playing with them his clothes caught fire. His grandfather threw a mat around him, but did not succeed in quenching the flames until the little fellow's body was badly burned. His face, nose and arms, the left arm being the worst, and his side were terribly burned.

BOTH DROWNED.

A Craft Overturns Near Terrebonne—The Director of the College and a Scholar Perish.

TERREBONNE, Que., April 28.—Rev. M. C. Lacasse, director of the college, left in a boat with two scholars to cross the river. The boat was carried over the dam by the swift current and the director and one of the scholars named Courtemanche were drowned. The other scholar named Bastien managed to hang on to the boat and was rescued by people who witnessed the accident from the shore. Rev. Father Lacasse has been director of the college here for over five years and is a son of N. Lacasse, notary, of Ste. Elizabeth, county of Berthier, and brother of Auguste Lacasse, parish priest of St. Henri of Montreal. Young Courtemanche belonged to Worcester, Mass., and was 17 years old.

One of the results of the German coal miners' strike is that a coal famine is impending. The iron foundries in the Seig valley have been compelled to withdraw their fires in consequence of the scarcity of coal and most of the steel works along the Rhine have been forced to stop operations for the same reason.

Louis Jennings, freight clerk of the steamship Vigilancia, which arrived at New York yesterday, was found to be suffering from variola and the vessel was quarantined.

The Care of Books.

Children should early be taught care of a book. A very little child can understand that a book must not be thrown on the floor, or torn, or bent backward, or maltreated in the fifty small ways in which children are permitted to abuse books, such habits in children are due quite as much to ignorance as carelessness on the part of the parents. Those who have no interest or affection for books themselves are not likely to expect it from their children. A reverence for books is part of the love one bears them, and people who have been brought up in an atmosphere of books or who spend much time in reading or study will naturally handle a book respectfully themselves, and insist that their children should do likewise.

There is much negligence shown in the matter of returning borrowed books, and this often by persons of whom one would expect better things. For months after a book is read it is allowed to lie about the house, and no especial effort is made to return it to its owner. That a book should be returned as soon as read, just as particularly as one would return a tool after using it, or a garment after wearing it, would appear to go without saying. Yet it is not always the case.

And it is right to insist that our children shall be as exact in this respect. That they shall, after borrowing a book, cover it neatly—if it be a nicely bound one—treat it carefully while in their possession, and return it promptly when finished. this is not only simple justice to the owner, but such teaching will go far toward making a child particular about the property of others.

DESERONTO.

(From our own Correspondent.)

DESERONTO, April, 28th '91

There are a great many strangers in town.—The Citizen's Band gave an open air concert last Friday evening.—The Oddfellows had a very successful entertainment in Union hall last Thursday evening. Our local talent was assisted by Miss Robertson of Belleville, and Mr. Telgmann Miss Orser and Miss Ethel Armstrong of Kingston.—The Cosgrove family had a good house on Saturday evening last.—The Young People's Union of St. Mark's Church will give a concert to-morrow evening, 29th.—Friday evening, May 1st Mr. C. O. Johnson of Napanee will lecture on "Home Life," in the Methodist Church.—The Methodist Church held its annual Missionary services last Sunday. A. L. Morden, Q.C., of Napanee, gave an address. About $175 was raised.—The factories and mills are all running full blast.—Mrs Eli St. Louis expired very suddenly on Wednesday last. She was afflicted with cancer.

Knights of Honor.

Mr. J. J. Fultz, the Supreme Dictator, visited Belleville yesterday to organize a Lodge of the "Knights of Honor," a Society somewhat on the lines of the Foresters. Some 30 or 40 gentlemen, composing some of our best citizens, entered last night as charter members. Geo. A. Skinner, Past Dictator; P.J.M. Anderson, Dictator; Curtis Bogart, Vice-Dictator; F. E. Redick, Ass't Dictator; C. M. Stork, Reporter; J.W. Butterfield, Fin'l Reporter; W. N. Ponton, Treas.; Rev. S. Daw, Chaplain; W. L. Hogg, Guide; J. W. Walker, Guardian; A. E. Fish, Sentinel; Trustees, R. J. Bell, C. W. Pole, G. F. Hope; Physicians, Drs. Gibson and Cook—are the officers; and among the members who entered are Messrs. Geo. Valr, Jos. Caldwell, Jno. Williams, S. A. Hyman, L. Appleby, H. A. Dean, S. A. Spangenberg, Geo. Minaker, W. E. Foster, A. L. Geen, W. W. Pope, E. Donald, S. R. Gorman, Rulif Grass and R. Weddell, of Trenton, A. I. Bird, Stewart Masson, W. H. Campbell, J. F. Wills, W. Sutherland, Jr. The insurance is for either $500, $1,000, or $2,000. Under such able officers we bespeak success to the Society, which, we are informed, has a membership of some 140,000, and has been in existence about 18 years. Like the Oddfellows, it pays great attention to the fraternal side, which is not the case in some of the Societies, which aim more at the insurance given.

MOUNT BRYDGES, April 25th '91.

To Geo. Merrill, Esq.
Solicitor for Vets of 1837-38.

DEAR SIR,—I am in receipt of your letter of 23rd inst., which is quite satisfactory to me. I herewith enclose the sum of $1 and trust you will be successful in your efforts in behalf of the veterans of 1837-38.

Trust you will be so good as to have my name entered on the list.

I am yours truly,
WILLIAM OLLETT.

To the Editor of the Intelligencer:

SIR,—The above is a sample of the letters I am receiving from the Veterans of 1837 38, all over the Dominion and the border States.

The old veterans are determined to assist me in pressing their claims for a settlement, before the Gov'ts of Great Britain and Canada.

I am in possession of very encouraging letters from many leading men in Canada.

Yours, &c.,
GEO. MERRILL.

Obituary.

THOMAS BROADWORTH.

The subject of this brief notice was born in the township of Marmora in the year 1831, and died on the 25th day of March, 1891. In the year 1855 he was united in marriage to Mary Bronson, who lives to mourn his loss; three sons and three daughters share with her the sorrow of bereavement.

Thomas Broadworth was one of the best respected of Marmora's older citizens. By many years of honest industry, he secured a competency of this world's wealth, and at the same time earned for himself a good name, which "is rather to be chosen than great riches."

The funeral service was conducted by Rev. J. A. McCamus in the Marmora Methodist Church. Many who attended the funeral were not able to gain admission. A large number of the Orange fraternity manifested their respect for their deceased brother by engaging in their usual formalities at his grave.

He died in peace.

Uncle Tom's Cabin.

It is strange yet true that Uncle Tom's Cabin will draw a house if it is present ever so often at the same place. The audience which greeted the Haverly company at the opera house last evening was a very good sized one considering the weather. They were repaid amply by a very creditable presentation of the ever popular play. Each member of the company is a good actor and their combined efforts reproduced the old story with dramatic distinctness. Little Eva's acting also won admiration, and on the whole it was an entirely satisfactory presentation of Uncle Tom's Cabin. —Boone, (Iowa,) Daily News, Feb. 20, 1891.

On Saturday evening next, May 2nd, this company will be at the opera house here, and produce "Uncle Tom's Cabin."

Personal.

Mr. S. D. Price, representing R. Wilson Smith, broker, of Montreal, is in town.

Mr. J. D. McFarlane, of Granby, Que., is in the city.

Mr. S. B. Burdett, M.P., left yesterday for Ottawa.

Mayor E. G. Porter is able to be out again, after a short illness.

Judge Fraleck and Mr. H.B. Rathbun, of Deseronto, were yesterday installed as members of the University Council of Queen's.

What it Costs,

Must be carefully considered by the great majority of people, in buying every necessities of life. Hood's Sarsaparilla commends itself with special force to the great middle classes, because it combines positive economy with great medicinal power. It is the only medicine of which can truly be said "100 Doses One Dollar," and a bottle taken according to directions will average to last a month.

Remember It is This.

Uncle Tom's Cabin Co., which plays in Belleville on the Hospital lot, under a cloud of canvas, on Thursday, May 7th. Do not confound this show with the company billed here under the name of Haverly. Remember the big show, using 38 people and 20 horses, comes on Thursday, May 7. Admission 25 cts., children 15 cts. Reserve seats 10cts extra. 306d3t

Parlor Social.

A successful parlor social was held last evening at the residence of Prof. Swayze, in the interest of the trust fund of the Holloway street church. The residence was filled with members of the church and other friends. An excellent literary programme was furnished, consisting of solos, duets, readings and recitations. A most enjoyable evening was spent by all present.

The Public School Bill.

Important Speech by Mr. Wood in the Legislature.

Following is a full report of Mr. Wood's speech in the committee of the whole on the Public School Bill, section 107, which provided that each Township Council shall levy and collect in each year the sum of $100 for each section kept open the whole year, and in proportion for a shorter time:

Mr. Wood called attention to the fact that this legislation was in the right direction, but was of such a limited character that it almost defeated itself. The real merit consisted in this feature, that it recognized the need of a better system than the present. Townships had arbitrary boundary lines without reference to the convenience or geographical character of the country. School sections were constructed within those boundaries by the township Councils and only varied by joining with a neighboring township in a union school section. As a rule the convenience of residents and attendance regulated the school section boundary. Often great disparity in financial strength was the result, hence section No. 107 would do a little towards equalizing the individual cost—but a very little—as it took the place of the municipal grant of the old law. He said what we wanted was a broader constituency and moral courage to take the principle involved and work it out to its legitimate conclusion. For years, he said, he had entertained the opinion that the constituency should be as broad as the province, for the purpose of raising the financial means for a large share of the necessary expenditure, and the balance and management confined to no narrower boundaries than the limits of the township. This would equalize the cost and localize sufficiently the management. But, the speaker said, it cannot be hoped for a time at least this desirable object will be reached. Old customs, old habits and a sort of popular idea that we had reached the proper theory now, stood in the way, and the governing powers, afraid to act for fear of these prejudices and notions, were moving so slowly to remedy a great evil that the progress was scarcely perceptible. The first move to remedy the inequality was the "poor school fund," and their very granting of this annually is the strongest argument that the old system needed changing. If the province gives $10,000 annually to poor schools now (though they commenced with $2,000) on what other principle can it be done, than that the State should see that the children of the people had a common school education, and where there were irregularities in localities, the provincial or state funds, the general funds should level them up. He said was it not the principle that the State had a right—nay more, that it was its duty—to see to this education that a Government grant to schools was made at all? It was well known that Dr. Ryerson was strongly impressed with this principle—much further carried out than we do—in the German schools that caused him to urge a large provincial grant and give as one of the grounds of his argument, its successful application in the German school system. There was another strong reason for thus broadening out this principle. The grant to the public schools and the extra grant to the poor schools being based on the principle that there should be a levelling up by the State, or in other words that the general strength should be applied to sectional weakness, involved a great principle, so strongly urged in these days by social reformers. There is a restless feeling pervading the masses of the civilized world that the good things of this life are not equally distributed—nay more—that by the luxuries of one class are absorbed the means by which the necessities of another class are supplied. This may be called socialism or any name you please, but it exists, and one is sorry to be compelled to say that it is true. Kind and philanthropic hearts may seek by individual effort to remedy or lessen the evil, but they can do but little. The real remedy must come from another direction, and the sooner the better. One way we can do something, and that is by seeing to it that the facilities of the poor man's son to an education shall be equal to the rich man's. Light and air are a common heritage, and should be no more so than that the children of the State—that is, all the children—should at least start the race of life equally in having a good common school education. But, he said, we were met at the very threshold by a feeling and practice that each locality should regulate this matter, and that arbitrary boundaries of townships and convenient boundaries of school sections, were limits to which all legislation in this matter should adapt itself. No thoughtful man believes this; and yet, as remarked before, there was a lack of moral courage to meet the case. He said, to meet this popular prejudice for the time he would earnestly urge upon the Minister of Education to apply this to the County boundary, or in other words, broaden out from the narrow constituency of the Township to the broader one of the County—and bye and-bye we may hope to go farther. Why, he asked, should one man pay two cents on the dollar assessment on his property per annum, for the means of educating his children, this positively necessary education that they should not be handicapped in the struggle of life, when another man only paid two mills on the dollar for the same purpose? He said he would not weary the House by calculations and comparisons, that he had called attention to before in previous parliaments, but would urge that this be extended to counties, and by so doing do a great deal more for the object than was embodied in the provisions of this section. The county, in which is the electoral division he represented, had by its council made liberal grants to the newer districts to relieve the pressure upon them; but he was sure that the proposal he made would be more satisfactory. He said it had been suggested to him that one half should be raised by the County. Failing the first, he would urge this upon the Minister's attention. One thing was certain, relief must come from some quarter if anything like even handed justice was to be done to weaker sections.

Mr. Wood's proposal was supported by several members on both sides, but the Minister, while acknowledging the principle that he (Mr. Wood) had laid down was the correct one, did not see his way to proceed farther just now than he had done.

A Cure for Constipation Headache.

Dr. Silas Lane, while in the Rocky Mountains, discovered a root that when combined with other herbs, makes an easy and certain cure for constipation. It is in the form of dry roots and leaves, and is known as Lane's Family Medicine. It will cure sick-headache and is the best spring Medicine. For the blood, liver and kidneys, and for clearing up the complexion it does wonders. Druggists sell it at 50c and $1 a package.

NOTES FROM THE GALLERY.

(From our own Correspondent.)

April 23.

This was rather a field day on the new Mining Law or Bill, brought in by the Government. The Commissioner of Crown Lands introduced the measure in a speech of about an hour and a half—a temperate speech asking for calm and fair criticism and assistance from all parts of the House to perfect the regulations. He went into mining statistics pretty fully. He was followed by Conmee, of West Algoma, an out and out supporter of the Government, but bitterly opposed to these regulations. He is more forcible as a speaker than polished. He expressed unmeasured dissatisfaction with the terms and provisions of the proposed Mining Act,—condemned royalties—found fault with the terms of sale, and said to enforce its provisions meant to drive out prospectors, operators and capitalists. In fact "blue ruin" generally was predicted. It must not be overlooked that Mr. Conmee resides in the district where the discoveries of silver, nickel and other ores have been made in large quantities. He is said to be personally interested. He was followed by Mr. Meredith in a very able and patriotic speech. He said he recognized the importance of the measure, and proposed to treat it as one which should be removed from mere political criticism. He stated his views, which were generally in accord with the provisions of the Bill, and promised his aid in perfecting them. Messrs. Caldwell, Rayside, Campbell (Algoma) followed.

One thing impressed me—the great mineral wealth of the Algoma district, and another was—how different the tone of the Opposition at Toronto under such circumstances, than one is likely to expect at Ottawa. Meredith was applauded by both sides heartily at the close of his speech. He is looking well. There has been a rumor that he could get the Chief Justiceship when Hagarty retires, which is said to be close by. This he denies positively. It is said he leaves in June with his family for Europe, he returning in the fall, his family remaining at Dresden for a year.

Looking down from the gallery it is is always interesting to note the varied occupations of the House, even during the most interesting debates; writing letters, reading papers, chatting with brother members, and so on. But there are some members who listen eagerly to all that takes place and if necessary take part. These are the "working" members, and they are not too many.

Probably the keenest intellects in debate are Meredith and Fraser. Both have the advantage of legal training and the practice that perfects in such matters. The Attorney General is a good debater, but not equal to either of the two mentioned. He is, however, a hard working man, none more so, and none more ready to defend any attack on the Government policy.

Grip has immortalized his defence of the "fee system" in a cartoon, in which he is represented as holding the axe that Wood of Hastings is attempting to use in cutting down the tree marked "fee system" and among the boughs of which are ensconced several monkeys representing Registrars and Sheriffs, and shouting "Wood, Man! Spare that tree."

It is said the Legislature will prorogue about Friday, the 1st of May. They have notices on the paper setting forth that there will be two sessions of the House from this time out, meeting at 10 a.m. and 3 p.m. To those who always attend Committees this will be no hardship, but to the member who "takes things easy," it will be a disturbing element.

Montreal Cattle Market.

The prospects for a successful opening of the live stock trade for 1891 have brightened up somewhat since our last review, and shippers now expect that the first shipments will make them some money if the exports from the States do not run too heavy in they meantime. Cables to-day are strong, quotations showing another ¼d advance, with hopes of a still further gain.

The news comes from the West that all the cattle in Ontario have been picked up, and the question naturally arises, are these cattle purchased to be shipped by the purchasers, or were they bought to be resold to the American syndicate? The indications are that the purchasers intend them for the Americans, and also that their intentions will not be fulfilled, as Messrs. Goldsmith & Morris appear to have all the cattle they want. This same game is being played by one or two parties in the townships, and while the farmers reap the benefit the speculators may come out on the wrong side. Of course they may sell out at a profit, but unless they do they will have to ship, and cattle costing 4¾@5¼ in the country will hardly let out on a 6½d market on the other side.

At the East End abattoir there were 350 cattle, 300 calves and 75 sheep and lambs. There was a good attendance of butchers, but trade was slow and the offerings of cattle inferior. A few sales were made at 5½c, but 5c@5¼c was about the figure paid for the best cattle, prices being fully ¼c below those of last week. Rough oxen sold at 4½c@4¾c and lean steers and inferior cattle from 3¾c@4c. Some choice bulls, weighing about 1,400 pounds, were held over for $70 a piece. Milkmen's strippers brought from $30@$45 each. Good calves sold well at $5@$8 and common at $2@$5. Sheep and lambs sold well at $4@$8 and $3.50@$6 a piece—Gazette, April 28.

There are so many things that appear unnecessary, and which for the life of us we can see neither purpose nor end. It may be corns are just one of those thorns in the flesh the why and the wherefore of which we cannot see. Nevertheless they are of the kind that are easily removed. Putnam's Painless Corn Extractor makes short work of them. Try it and see how nicely it coaxes them out. Use none other than Putnam's Corn Extractor. Sold by druggists.

THE MURDERED BABES.

TRIAL OF THE ALLEGED BUTCHER OF THE M'GONIGLE GIRLS.

Intense Interest Taken in His Trial at L'Original—Only Two Frenchman on the Jury, Which Was Empanneled With Great Difficulty.

L'ORIGNAL, April 28.—Narcisse Larocque was placed on trial to-day for the murder of Mary and Eliza McGonigle in the woods near Cumberland on the afternoon of October 7, of last year. The murder was one of the most shocking in the records of crime. The victims were two school girls, daughters of James McGonigle, a farm laborer living about two miles from Cumberland, a village some eighteen miles below this city. The girls were 14 and 12 years respectively, and attended the village school. On the afternoon of Oct. 7, they left the school-house at the usual hour for home. At a certain point in the road they were in the habit of parting from their young companions and taking a short cut to their home through the bush. The first part of their way lay over a steep road cut through Mr. Gamble's farm, ending in a more car track through a dense plantation of second-growth trees. At the top of the hill they met a son of Mr. Gamble's driving a wagon, and they were likewise seen by one of Mr. Gamble's men, who was looking after cattle in an adjoining field. Their murderer is the only other person who is known to have seen them again in life. They did not get to their home that night, but as it was raining their parents concluded that they had remained at a friend's in the village, a course they had adopted on stormy nights more than once before. When, however, they did not reach home after school hours on the following day their mother became seriously alarmed. After supper the father started in to the village to make some inquiry. After diligent search he ascertained that the girls had started for home. The matter was canvassed among the simple villagers, and late at night it was determined to institute a search for them. Torches were procured, and the path along which they usually went through the bush examined. A little way off the regular way home the bodies of the two girls were found, lying almost side by side. It was easy to see that a considerable struggle had taken place before the murderous brute who encompassed their death had finished his work. The leaves all about the spot were tossed, and the surrounding shrubbery had been beaten down and broken. The most unpractised eye could guess the means of death. The protruding eyeballs and bruised throats showed that both had been strangled by the compression of strong and ruthless hands. The elder girl had also been struck over the head so that her scalp was laid bare, and her face and hands bore other contusions and evidences of the brutality of the monster who had slain her. The bodies were tenderly put on a vehicle and conveyed to the house. It would be useless to attempt to portray what a terrible home-coming this was to the distracted mother. The medical autopsy showed the motive for the fiend's deed. The bodies of both children had been violated.

The prisoner is defended by Neil McCrimmon of Macdonald, Macintosh & McCrimmon, Toronto, associated with A. Constantineau of L'Orignal. It took four hours to empanel the jury, the Crown objecting to all but two Frenchmen and the defence objecting to all jurymen from the district in which the murder was committed. Some 60 names were called and finally the court had to wait till the jury in another case was through in order to obtain fresh material. The jury when finally selected had only two Frenchmen.

"EARNEST WORKERS" ARRESTED.

An Alleged Swindling Scheme Exposed in Philadelphia.

PHILADELPHIA, April 28.—Edwin W. Harris, Supreme President of the Beneficial Order of Earnest Workers, and Henry C. Gurk, Supreme Treasurer, were arrested today on a charge of conspiracy and obtaining money under false pretences. A warrant has also been issued for A. Judson Harris, the Supreme Secretary. The "Earnest Workers" was one of many short term and quick profit institutions with which that city has been flooded the last few months, and by which thousands of people have been duped. The circular of the Earnest Workers promised $100 to all who paid $10 initiation fee and $2 per month for three months. An application was made to-day for the appointment of a receiver for the Beneficial Order of Earnest Workers. A hearing will take place Friday.

FELL TO HER DEATH.

Shocking Tragedy at St. Thomas Yesterday Morning.

ST. THOMAS, April 28.—A shocking fatality happened at the residence of Mrs. Jane Dickson, corner King and Walnut streets, this morning, whereby her daughter, Mrs. Elizabeth Jones, met her death by falling downstairs and breaking her neck. The deceased, who has been visiting at her mother's for some weeks, has been ill with la grippe for about a fortnight past. About a quarter to four o'clock this morning her brother, Arthur, heard her get up and start to go down stairs. He says he heard her go down two or three steps when he heard her fall. He jumped out of bed, hastily lighted a lamp and found his sister lying, attired only in her night dress, at the bottom of the stairs.

An examination showed that the victim's neck had been broken by the fall. It is supposed that she got out of bed to go down stairs for a drink or medicine, and that being dizzy from the effects of the grip or suddenly fainting, she fell head first to the landing below. The deceased was a daughter of the late John Dickson and was in the 31st year of her age. She was married some years ago to Mr. W. H. Jones of Grand Rapids, Mich

USED THEM IN HIS BLOW-GUN.

Doctor—"Well, my fine little fellow, you have got quite well again. I was sure the pills I left for you would cure you. How did you take them, in water or in cake?"

Boy—"Oh, I used them in my blow-gun."

The little fellow put the nasty, great, griping, old-fashioned pills to a good use. At most, all his internal economy needed was a dose of Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. They are tiny, sugar-coated granules, easy to take, and are gently aperient, or actively cathartic, according to size of dose. As a laxative, only one tiny Pellet is required.

The "Pellets" cure Sick Headache, Bilious Headache, Constipation, Indigestion, Bilious Attacks, and all derangements of the Liver, Stomach and Bowels. In explanation of their remedial power over so great a variety of diseases, it may truthfully be said that their action upon the system is universal, not a gland or tissue escaping their sanative influence.

The "Pellets" are put up in vials, hermetically sealed, therefore always fresh and reliable, which is not the case with pills put up in wooden or pasteboard boxes.

The "Pellets" are purely vegetable, and operate without disturbance to the system, diet, or occupation.

They are a convenient vest-pocket remedy.

Dr. Pierce's Pellets are the cheapest pill, sold by druggists, because they are guaranteed to give satisfaction in every case, or their price (25 cents a vial) is refunded. You only pay for the good you get.

TORONTO TRUTH'S
New Spring Bible Competition
NO. 22.

In these latter days there have arisen many false schemes and many scores of imitations of TRUTH'S Competitions, but one after another have failed and utterly perished, yet TRUTH remains, and makes good all its promises. Its reputation is now too well established to risk damaging it, and as it has cost a very large amount of money and many years of care and labor to build up, the publisher could not afford to fail in carrying out all his agreements to the letter. There are twenty-one divisions of the largest list of bona fide prizes ever offered and ever actually given away by any publisher in the world. The total value of prizes in the Spring list is about $10,000,00. The lists are so large it would cost altogether too much to give them in detail here. There are pianoes gold and silver watches, china tea and dinner sets, ladies' and gentlemen's bicycles, silver tea-sets, silk dresses, books, money, and hundreds of other valuable rewards. You pay nothing for these prizes, as everyone concedes that full value is received for the dollar in securing TRUTH every week for three months. Send one dollar and answers to the five following questions: Where in the Bible are these words found? 1, GRAIN; 2, CORN; 3, WHEAT; 4, BARLEY; 5, RYE. If your answers are correct and your letters arrive in time you are almost sure to get a reword, as there are so many and every one cannot always find correct answers to all these questions. All the five answers must be correct to get any prize, but you will get full value for the dollar in TRUTH if you don't get anything else. If you want to see the list of rewards before sending in your dollar, mail TRUTH ten cents and a copy will be sent you containing the list of prizes. But there have been very few dissatisfied prize-winners in previous competitions, considering that he has given away durirg the past eight years scores of thousands of prizes. Some people expect a piano for every dallar sent, and are mad if they don't get it. He wishes it were possible to give every subscriber a gold watch or a piano or both, but says it can't be done. Some publishers intimate they will, but nobody can do it for any length of time. Send one dollar and correct answers and you won't repent it; and bear in mind that it is not guaranteed that every body whose answers are correct will get a prize, but that all the prizes in the twenty-one different lists will be given away. The competition remains open only till the last day of June next, inclusive, after which the prizes will be immediately distributed to the successful ones. Ten days will be allowed for letters to reach TRUTH from distant points after the 30th of June. All, however, must be postmarked where mailed not later than the 30th June, or any time between now and that date. Address S. Frank Wilson, "Truth" Office, Toronto, Ont., Canada.

Spring Cleaning.

Be particular every Spring to clean the house, but never mind cleansing the blood, until some troublesome disease takes hold of you. This is poor policy when by using Burdock Blood Bitters the blood will be thoroughly cleansed, the body strengthened, and future suffering prevented,

Now Free From Pain.

DEAR SIRS—I have been troubled with Lame Back for six months, and thought I would try Hagyard's Yellow Oil, which cured me. Am now free am all pains, and recommend Yellow Oil very highly.

FRANK PALMER,
Winona, Ont.

AS PARMELEE'S VEGETABLE PILLS contain Mandrake and Danhelion, they cure Kidney and Liver complaints with unerring certainty. They also contain Roots and Herbs which have specific virtues truly wonderful in their action on the stomach and bowels. Mr. E. A. Cairncross, Shakespeare, writes: "I consider Parmelee's Pills are an excellent remedy for Biliousness and Derangement of the Liver, having used them myself for some time."

—Pertman—What's the trouble in your church? Van Leer—Why, its all due to Miss Filkins being cross-eyed. She undertook to throw sheep's eyes at the young minister and they focussed on the tenor. He swears he'll resign unless she's put out of the church.

A lady writes: "I was able to remove the corns, root and branch, by the use of Holloway's Corn Cure." Others who have tried it have the same experience.

—Be content with your lot. The chances are nine to one that the fellow who owns the next lot to you has a bigger mortgage on it.

BEATRIX RANDOLPH
BY
JULIAN HAWTHORNE.

COPYRIGHT BY AMERICAN PRESS ASSOCIATION.

"Now, what the blazes can she be up to, eh?" he frequently asked himself and the elder Randolph, as the hours passed away. He seemed to think she was quite capable of coming into the house with a Nihilist bomb, by way of expressing her dissatisfaction. As for Ed he knew as little about her as any one else, though he had learned, before coming down to the theatre, that she was not in her rooms at the hotel. She had gone out, but had not left word where she was going.

The audience seemed determined on this night to surpass all previous demonstrations of enthusiasm. A cynic might have said that they had set their hearts on reading in the next morning's papers that the applause and floral tributes which greeted the great singer on the eve of her departure from our shores were such as to outdo anything hitherto experienced. The popular favorite was summoned innumerable times before the curtain, and at the conclusion of the performance— But before the conclusion of the performance some events happened which did not appear in the papers, but which it will be necessary to relate.

As the curtain descended upon the last act but one Gen. Inigo, who was in the side scenes, received a card, which seemed to have upon him an effect as of a strong charge of electricity. He ran precipitately to the private door communicating between the house and the stage, where a lady was standing much muffled up. She wore a black dress and cloak, and her head and shoulders were enveloped in a white lace shawl. She let this fall open as Inigo approached, and disclosed the features of Vera Marana. She laughed good naturedly, and gave him her hand, which he covered with kisses, while his eyes devoured her with astonishment and interrogation.

"Well, M. Moses," said she, "what are you so affectionate for? Have you pardoned me?"

"Pardoned! Ah! diva! By Jupiter! Did you just come?"

"I was here from the first, but not in the box—no; one cannot hear there. I was away among the common ones. It was necessary I should know what she could do—this young lady—this other self! Well, mon ami, you may compose yourself. I have heard her, now I wish to see her—speak to her. Conduct me where she is and then leave us. Is any one with her?"

"Only her brother. Shall I"——

"Bien, bien! Lead on, mon vieux, I am in a hurry."

When he had brought her to the door of Beatrix's room she made him depart, and then knocked at the door. It was opened by Ed. She made him a gesture at once of greeting and of silence, and advanced into the room, which was filled with flowers. Beatrix was reclining on her sofa with a sad and abstracted expression; but as she raised her eyes and met those of her visitor she sat erect, and the next moment rose to her feet. "You are—Marana!" she said in an inward tone. The two women gazed intently at each other, and there was silence for several seconds. At last the visitor said: "I had thought I was Marana until now. But now, mademoiselle, the name is yours by the right that you have made it more honorable."

"Oh, no—no!" the other murmured.

"Yes, yes, yes!" said Marana, with a smile, which, however, was quickly lost in the gravity of her reigning expression. "You have surprised me," she continued, after a pause; "I did not mean to forgive you! I was angry. But your voice has called my heart out of my bosom. There is no one who can sing like you—no one—not even I!"

The tone in which these words were uttered—dignified, but profoundly pathetic, as of a great queen discrowning herself—touched Beatrix to the soul and her eyes filled with tears. She shook her head, but she could not speak. After all there was a ravishing sweetness in this praise, coming from the one source in the world which there could be no gainsaying.

"You two ought to pull in a team," put in Ed. "No theatre standing would hold the audiences that would come to hear you sing together!"

Marana made a gesture of negation with her head. "There shall never be but one Marana," she said proudly, "and she shall be the greatest singer in the world! Behold her!" she added, with a movement of her eyes toward Beatrix. "As for me, I sing no more! I have been your audience, mademoiselle; I will never again have an audience of my own!"

"Do not say it—you break my heart!" cried Beatrix; and she glided forward, and took the Russian impetuously in her arms. "Tell her, Ed," she said, half turning to appeal to him, but not letting Marana go. "It is I who shall sing no more; I did it only to help my father and him. This is the last night. If you care for him do not punish his sister. Be yourself again, and be my sister, too!"

Marana drew her head back, and gazed for a moment into the other's eyes. Then she kissed her gravely on both cheeks, and disengaged herself. "You believe, then, that I really love your brother?" she said.

"Yes, indeed! How could you help it?" exclaimed Beatrix warmly.

"And you, monsieur, what have you to say?" continued the other, letting her eyes rest upon him with a certain veiled intensity, the lids half drooped. "Are you also of opinion that you are not indifferent to me?"

"It would take a cleverer man than I am to see through you, Vera," returned the young gentleman naively; "but I don't believe that I could be loving you so much as I do if you didn't love me back."

"But would you marry me, even?"

"Ed's face flushed and his eyes sparkled. "Haven't I shown that I would?" he demanded between his teeth. "Don't make game of me, Vera, unless you mean to be kind afterward!"

She stood looking at him, her head a little bent to the left, her arms hanging down on both sides of her graceful figure. "I mean to be kind to you, my dear," she said finally in a low tone; "more kind than you would think if you knew what I have sometimes been in my life."

"Ed, I am so glad," whispered Beatrix to him in the little pause that followed, but the whisper was tremulous, for a sense of her own forlorness must needs insinuate itself. "You won't forget me, will you?—because I love you, too," she added.

But Ed, who was familiar with the expressions on Marana's face, wore an anxious contraction on his forehead; he drew in his lips and held his breath.

"I had given up expecting love when I met you," she continued, her bosom visibly rising and falling. "I am not going to spoil it, now that it has come. For that, also, you may partly thank your sister. She has made me feel that it is good to be generous. You have never known me. I showed you only the best; it was true, but it was not all. If I were your wife you would have to know all. I should not mind for myself, but I should not like you to learn that love is less lovely than it seems now—at least not from me. Yesterday you might have married me, but today—no! My memory will be pleasanter to you than I should be after a while. We will say good-by." She put out her left hand toward him and smiled. "Good-by!"

Supposing.

Supposing you suffer from some disease. Suppose it is dyspepsia or billiousness or constipation or bad blood. Suppose you learn that Burdock Blood Bitters has cured thousands of cases of these and similar complaints. Don't you suppose you ought to try it? It cannot harm you and in nine cases out of ten it cures.

Editorial Evidence.

GENTLEMEN—Your Hagyard's Yellow Oil is worth its weight in gold for both internal and external use. During the late La Grippe epidemic we found it a most excellent preventive, and for sprained limbs, etc., there is nothing to equal it.

WM. PEMBERTON,
Editor Reporter,

Mr. Joab Scales, of Toronto, writes:— "A short time ago I was suffering from Kidney Complaint and Dyspepsia, sour stomach and lame back; in fact I was completely prostrated and suffering intense pain. While in this state a friend recommended me to try a bottle of Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery. I used one bottle, and the permanent manner in which it has cured and made a new man of me is such that I cannot withhold from the proprietors this expression of my gratitude."

Burdock Blood Bitters

BANISHES BAD BLOOD.

Bad Blood is responsible for all the Boils, Blotches, Pimples, Eruptions, Skin Diseases, Humors and Disfiguring Rashes that are so prevalent, especially in spring. There is a NATURAL FOE TO BAD BLOOD called Burdock Blood Bitters which always conquers, never fails and is recommended by thousands. It searches out and removes all impurities from the smallest pimple to the worst scrofulous sore. In Scrofula, Erysipelas, Salt Rheum, Shingles, Tetter, etc., its effects are wonderful.

WHAT THEY SAY.

Two of my children had large sores on their bodies caused by poorness of the blood. They were completely cured by one bottle of B. B. B. MRS. J. PINEL, London East, Ont.

About a year ago I got a running abscess on my neck which made me very weak. B. B. B. cured it and I am strong again. MRS. GEO. LEDINGHAM, Montefiore, Man.

A Faithful Friend.

B B B

SIRS,—I have great faith in your Burdock Blood Bitters, and can recommend it for most anything. Two years ago I was troubled with an ulcer on my ankle; having used B. B. B. for bad blood I procured a bottle, and a box of Burdock Healing Ointment; after using three bottles and three boxes I was completely cured and can recommend it everywhere. Yours truly, MRS. WM. V. BOYD, Brantford, Ont.

The Indian who put a single feather on the ground and laid down on it, to get an idea of what a feather bed would feel like might have felt pretty well satisfied in his own mind, but he knew very little about the subject after all. And so it is with the person who thinks he has a good idea of our stock without ever coming inside the store. This stock must be seen and prices asked.

CHICAGO, 6th April, 1891.

Robert Bogle, Esq., Belleville Business College, Belleville, Ont.:

DEAR FRIEND,—Your very welcome letter of the 13th ult. was duly received.

You asked in your letter if I had any difficulty in performing my work as stenographer. I am glad to tell you that I have not had any difficulty in the least, as you assured me I would not, before leaving your college. I have to write from 30 to 40 letters a day, and there is enough other office work to keep me busy, but it is not hard.

Tell the students never to be afraid, after they have received as careful training as I got.

In conclusion I have to say that any young gentleman or young lady wishing to improve his or her time, may rest assured that they will never regret the time and money spent while attending the above named institution.

Yours very truly,

Grave Charges in the Italian Chamber of Deputies Against Army Officers—A Resident of Pesth Kills His Entire Family and Himself.

ROME, April 29.—Sig. Imbriani in the Chamber of Deputies to-day, speaking on the African question, charged the Italian Government with permitting the slave trade to be carried on openly. Imbriani also asserted that 35 young girls who had been taken from their former owners under the the pretext of rescuing them from slavery had been distributed among a number of Italian officers serving with the Italian army in Africa.

The Marquis di Rudini, replying for the Government, protested against such accusations being made without absolute proof of their truth being first obtained.

Amidst cries of "It's a lie," "Withdraw," the Minister of War declared he would not remain in the House unless the charge was withdrawn. A prolonged uproar, during which several violent scenes were witnessed, followed the announcement of the determination of the Minister of War. The President of the Chamber was utterly unable to control excited deputies and consequently he was compelled to suspend the sitting.

CHOKED TO ORDER.

A Woman Pays a Lover to Strangle Her and He Does So.

BUDA PESTH, April 29.—A farm hand by name of Maresin Gilezan has been arrested for killing a rich female, the keeper of a well-known inn at the village of Detta, near here, and by name of Josepha Kirsch. The woman was found dead in her bed yesterday morning, and the only evidence of violence which might have led to her death were blue marks about her throat indicative of strangulation. Gilezan finally confessed that he had killed the woman, but claimed that he had to do so in accordance with her positive instructions, and produced the following letter which has been identified by those familiar with Mrs. Kirsch's handwriting, as having been written by that woman:

"As I have told you before upon several occasions, my life is no longer bearable and I have decided that the only rest for me will come by taking my life.

"I have decided to ask you to kill me, and if you do it you may have two florins and a quart of whisky, both of these I have provided. I presume you will require something to give you courage to do this deed, and for that reason I have got the quart of whisky, and I will give it to you just as soon as you say that you will kill me, and the two florins will be where you can get them as soon as you satisfy yourself that I am dead.

"At 7 o'clock this evening I shall be entirely finished with my day's work and will await you in my room. I want you to tie my hands and feet together securely. Then I want you to clasp your hands around my throat for five minutes, which will be sufficient time to kill me; then sprinkle my body with holy water and take the two florins which you will find in the pocket of my dress."

The cowardly fellow considered for several hours and finally decided to undertake the job. He tied her as directed, took the whisky, sat in a chair facing her for two hours, during which time he drank all the liquor and became so intoxicated that he had no remembrance of what he did. He supposed he must have killed her in the way proposed. He did not fail to take the two florins.

The Persecution of the Jews.

ST. PETERSBURG, April 29.—A decree has been issued ordering the enforcement in St. Petersburg of the same measures against the Jews as were recently decreed against the Hebrews of Moscow. The decree assigns certain places where Jews will be permitted to reside in St. Petersburg.

The priests and pastors of Moscow are overwhelmed with requests from Jews for baptism in order to avoid expulsion. The law prevents such conversions except in the case of Lutherans and Catholics, and then permits conversions only in limited numbers. The flight of Jews continues. The expelled Jews are cruelly treated, being marched out of the city afoot, chained in bands by the wrists.

Widowed Mrs. Grimwood's Story.

CALCUTTA, April 29.—Mrs. Grimwood, wife of Mr. Grimwood, late British political agent at Manipur, who was murdered when Chief Commissioner Quinton and other British officials lost their lives, has arrived here. She says the Manipur disaster was entirely due to the rashness of Quinton in refusing to listen to sensible advice which was given him in regard to the negotiations being conducted with the native chiefs concerning the deposition of the maharajah.

Was He the Ripper?

LONDON, April 29.—It is reported that Jack the Ripper has been identified as being the unknown man who committed suicide at Wimbledon some three weeks ago by shooting himself with a revolver. One of the marks of identification was the fact that in the pockets paper was found identical with that on which "Ripper" warnings have been written.

A Tragedy of the Blue Danube.

PESTH, April 29.—A man employed in the postoffice here was to-day seized with a homicidal frenzy and murdered his wife, mother-in-law and three children. The man then drowned himself in the Danube.

For Inciting to Mutiny.

ROME, April 29.—In Turin and Milan the police have arrested many Anarchists on the charge of inciting the military to mutiny.

Chat from Over the Sea.

A despatch from Iquique says: The Parliamentary forces have occupied Copiapo. Five hundred of Balmaceda's friends, who were defending the town, fled.

A fire at a village near Swindon, Wiltshire, yesterday rendered 500 people homeless.

A despatch from Chili says a dynamite bomb was thrown at President Balmaceda's palace yesterday. The bomb exploded without doing any damage. There is no clue to the perpetrator of the outrage.

A most serious feeling of alarm prevails in official circles in Paris at the possibility of an Anarchist outbreak on May 1. The military and police authorities are taking the most extreme precautions, and are making every preparation to, if possible, effectually meet and promptly suppress any disorder on the part of the Anarchists or others. From today until the May Day excitement is over no soldiers will be allowed to leave their baracks, except on guard duty, to bring in supplies of provisions, etc. Even the officers are confined to the barracks. To each soldier of the garrison 100 rounds of ball cartridge have been distributed.

A Winnipegger's Opinion.

The following is taken from a letter from Mr. D. Davis, Winnipeg, Man.: "Being persuaded to use Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam for a troublesome cold, I was entirely cured by the use of two bottles."

Dangerous Counterfeits.

Counterfeits are always dangerous, more so that they always closely IMITATE THE ORIGINAL IN APPEARANCE AND NAME. The remarkable success achieved by Nasal Balm as a positive cure for Catarrh and Cold in the Head has induced unprincipled parties to imitate it. The public are cautioned not to be deceived by nostrums imitating Nasal Balm in name and appearance, bearing such names as Nasal Cream, Nasal Balsam, etc. Ask for Nasal Balm and do not take any imitation dealers may urge upon you. For sale by all druggists or sent post-paid on receipt of price (50c and $1.) by addressing Fulford & Co. Brockville. Ont.

Why Not Treat.

WHY not treat such troubles as boils, pimples, blotches, sores, humors, eruptions, rashes, skin irritations, etc., with Burdock Blood Bitters. It is filled with virtue as a blood purifier and goes right to the right spot. It makes the skin bright and clear, while also invigorating the entire system.

Dangers of Delay.

If we were allowed to look into the future and see the fatal consequences that follow a neglected cold, how different would our course be; could we realize our danger, how speedily we would seek a cure; but with many it is only when the monster disease has fastened its fangs upon our lungs that we awaken to our folly. What follows a neglected cold? Is it not diseases of the throat and lungs, bronchitis, asthma, consumption, and many other diseases of like nature. It is worse than madness to neglect a cold, and it is folly not to have some good remedy available for this complaint. One of the most efficacious medicines for all diseases of the throat and lungs, is Bickle's Anti-Consumptive Syrup. This medicine is composed of several medicinal herbs, which exert a most wonderful influence in curing consumption and other diseases of the lungs and chest. It promotes a free and easy expectoration, soothes irritation and drives the disease from the system.

Chronic Derangements of the Stomach, Liver and Blood, are speedily removed by the active principle of the ingredients entering into the composition of Parmelee's Vegetable Pills. These Pills act specifically on the deranged organs, stimulating to action the dormant energies of the system, thereby removing disease and renewing life and vitality to the afflicted. In this lies the great secret of the popularity of Parmelee's Vegetable Pills.

Inflammation of the Eyes Cured.

Mr. Jacob D. Miller, Newburg, writes,— I was troubled with inflammation in one of my eyes, so that during nearly the whole of the summer of 1882 I could not work; I took several bottles of Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery and it gives me great pleasure to inform you that it cured me of my affliction. It is an excellent remedy for Costiveness."

ONTARIO LEGISLATURE.

The Undertakers' Bill Shelved—A 10-Year-Old Inmate.

TORONTO, April 30.—The bill to amend the Medical Act passed through Committee of the Whole House yesterday with but one amendment. Strong opposition was expressed to the clause to provide that a doctor giving evidence in his professional capacity in any court shall be paid $4 a day in addition to traveling expenses. It was defeated by a large majority. Incidentally, Mr. McCleary read a letter from a medical man in his constituency saying, "The Medical Council is no good any way. The profession don't want it. It is a parasitic fungus which should be annihilated." As a result of the discussion on the rejected clause of this bill, Mr. Whitney introduced a bill to provide that artisans and mechanics giving expert testimony in a law court shall be paid in addition to the traveling expenses a per diem allowance equal to their daily pay.

Joe Tait's bill respecting undertaking, embalming and organic chemistry was virtually killed. The House went into committee on it, but after a brief discussion Mr. Balfour moved that the committee rise, report progress and ask leave to sit again. This motion was carried by a vote of 43 to 30. As there probably will not be another opportunity to go into committee again on the bill this session, the motion really disposed of the bill without eliciting from the members an expression of opinion upon the merits of it.

Mr. Gibson (Hamilton) said, in reply to Mr. Monk, that a boy 9 or 10 years of age was confined in the Central Prison, having been committed by the Police Magistrate of Hamilton for 18 months on a charge of larceny. The Government was not informed why the boy was not sent to some house of refuge. He could not be sent to Penetanguishene Reformatory because of a law of last year, that no boy under 13 should be sent there. Further inquiry would be made and the boy transferred to some other institution if possible.

In reply to Mr. Snider, Mr. Dryden said sugar beet seed had been distributed in several sections of the province. Samples of the beet produced were analyzed and found of a fair quality. It was found that a slightly larger yield per acre might be obtained in Europe. The Government did have under consideration a request for assistance towards establishing a beet root sugar factory but did not see its way clear to granting the assistance asked.

When Mr. Campbell, the Equal Righter, was called on to move his resolution, respecting separate schools, that the B.N.A. Act should be amended so as to place education completely under the jurisdiction of the Ontario Legislature, he stated that, as the members seemed anxious to get through the work of the session, he would withdraw the resolution, but would press it to a vote next session.

Dr. McKay (Oxford) and Mr. W. M. Dack, the Government whips, presented Patrick O'Brien, the housekeeper of the Legislative buildings, yesterday with a well-filled purse in recognition of the efficient manner in which he performed his duties during the session.

Mr. Sol. White, member for North Essex, has in his possession, among other interesting and valuable historical relics, the original parchment of the treaty between the crown and the Wyandotte tribe of Indians, made in 1764. He has also the "wampum" in connection with it, a belt conveying to the Indians the intention of the treaty. The method of interpreting the "wampum" was lost long ago. These articles have always been in the possession of Mr. White's family, handed down from father to son, Mr. White being the lineal descendant of the chief who signed the treaty and his father being the last chief of the tribe.

Makes the Weak Strong

The marked benefit which people in run down or weakened state of health derive from Hood's Sarsaparilla, conclusively proves the claim that this medicine "makes the weak strong." It does not act like a stimulant, imparting fictitious strength from which there must follow a reaction of greater weakness than before, but in the most natural way Hood's Sarsaparilla overcomes

That Tired Feeling

creates an appetite, purifies the blood, and, in short, gives great bodily, nerve, mental and digestive strength.

"I derived very much benefit from Hood's Sarsaparilla, which I took for general debility. It built me right up, and gave me an excellent appetite." Ed. Jenkins, Mt. Savage, Md.

Fagged Out

"Last spring I was completely fagged out. My strength left me and I felt sick and miserable all the time, so that I could hardly attend to my business. I took one bottle of Hood's Sarsaparilla, and it cured me. There is nothing like it." R. C. Begole, Editor Enterprise, Belleville, Mich.

Worn Out

"Hood's Sarsaparilla restored me to good health. Indeed, I might say truthfully it saved my life. To one feeling tired and worn out I would earnestly recommend a trial of Hood's Sarsaparilla." Mrs. Phebe Mosher, 90 Brooks Street, East Boston, Mass.

BELLEVILLE, THURSDAY APRIL 30

A MISREPRESENTATION.

The Globe remarks that "the moral effect "of its (the Government's) defeat in the "two principal provinces will be felt in the "debates."

To which of the provinces does the Globe refer? Ontario and Quebec, we suppose.

But the Government has a majority in Ontario. Quebec is the only "principal province" in which the Opposition can claim a majority.

Therefore the Globe's statement is a misepresentation—or worse.

DENSE IGNORANCE.

The Montreal Herald notes, under the heading "Fish must not be exported," the seizure, by Fishery Overseer Clarke, of two barrels of pickerel, at Northport, consigned to dealers in the United States.

The Herald is evidently unaware that the export of fish is not prohibited by our laws—that the seizure was made because the fish in question had been caught during close season. The Herald's lack of knowledge is as apparent in the above as in many of its venomous attacks on the Government.

THE AGRICULTURAL PROBLEM.

The most serious problem which has been presented in connection with the business interests of this continent during the past ten years has been over-production of bread grains, particularly wheat. The results of this over supply of breadstuffs in the markets of the world have been, as every reader knows, disastrous to the farmers of the United States, and a material lessening of the prosperity of the tillers of the soil on this side of the line.

No relief for this state of affairs having been perceptible to the ordinary observer, it is therefore all the more encouraging to have it intimated, on apparently good authority, that the disease has run its course and that recovery will be rapid, and sure as rapid; and that agriculture will henceforth be a highly prosperous industry. The basis of this conclusion is that population has increased more rapidly than production—that, in a word, the demand has outgrown the supply.

This view, which has been mooted by various writers in the Country Gentleman, is fully argued in the May number of the Arena by Mr. C. Wood Davis, of Boston, who has contributed to that magazine a lengthy and able paper in which a mass of statistics are quoted, from which the writer has deduced the conclusion above stated.

Of Mr. Davis, and his qualifications for the task to which he has devoted himself, the Toronto World remarks that "he has made for himself a reputation as a statistician and a writer on political and economic subjects equal to that of Edward Atkinson."

In order to place before the readers an intelligible idea of the means by which Mr. Davis has reached his conclusion, we avail ourselves of a condensation of his article given by the Toronto World :

The article in question is headed, "The wheat supply of Europe and America," and the burden of it is to show that the amount of wheat in America for export is yearly falling, while the increase in population on this continent is such that before 1895 America will not have one bushel of grain or one pound of meat for sale abroad. In other words, she will consume everything she grows, and as far as the United States is concerned that country must in a very few years, not more than four, perhaps less, become an importer of wheat and meat.

If this be true Canadians will see what an important bearing the situation has on the products of this country, and therefore the problem put forward by Mr. Davis is one worthy of the attention of every Canadian politician, of every farmer, of every man who has an interest in the country.

Mr. Davis sets out by showing that "The productive power of the wheat fields of Europe has during the past twenty years increased from 1,176,000,000 to 1,200,000,000 bushels per annum, or two per cent.; population in the meantime having increased nearly 20 per cent. In the same period the rye fields of Europe have shrunken more than 2 per cent., and more rye than wheat being grown, it follows that the European supply of home grown breadstuffs is now less than in 1870."

HOW EUROPE IS FED.

At the present time Europe requires, Mr. Davis says, 1,400,000,000 bushels, and the sources of supply are as follows :

Average European crop....	1,200,000,000 bush.
Imports from the United States and Canada......	70,000,000 "
Imports from India........	30,000,000 "
Imports from all other countries.........	30,000,000 "
Deficit	70,000,000 "
	1,400,000,000 "

"With an average yield the United States and Canada can now spare some 88,000,000 bushels per annum, but of this 17,000,000 to 20,000,000 bushels are annually required by the tropical islands, Central America and Eastern Asia, and our own needs augment by more than 8,000,000 bushels annually, while the area in wheat is no greater in 1890 than in 1880.

"Of the wheat exported from India, averaging 33,000,000 bushels per annum, 10 to 12 per cent. goes to countries outside of Europe.

"The output of the wheat fields of the world in years of average yield is now clearly insufficient to meet current requirements, and the growing deficit has heretofore been met by drawing upon reserves accumulated during the earlier part of the ninth decade and from the exceedingly large crop of 1887-8, and the time when the current deficit shall make itself apparent in a painful and startling manner depends upon the degree to which such reserves have been exhausted. There can be no question that with average crops throughout the world present supplies are insufficient, and yet prices continue below the cost of production and the agricultural populations are in an impoverished condition, from which they will emerge as soon as the consumers awaken to the fact that the over-bundant supply to which they have so long been accustomed has ceased to exist."

The author then takes a review of the future supply of wheat and the countries from which it may be drawn. Chili is an important wheat exporting country, yet the production increases slightly and by 1895 she will not have more than 5,000,000 bushels to send to Europe. The Argentine republic at the same date will not have more than 10,000,000 for export. At most at the same date Australasia will not be able to contribute more than 12,000,000 bushels towards the European supply. At one time it was thought that India would be a great source of wheat supply, but there is now a noticeable decrease in the wheat acreage of that country, and the probability is, according to Mr. Davis, a further decrease and that she will not have more than 30,000,000 bushels for export in 1895.

The subject will be continued in tomorrow's issue.

"Praise be to him, whose wondrous skill
Has conquered every human ill—
And now alone, as victor, stands
The 'Golden' compound of his hands."

So spake a man, with tribute crowned,
Of Dr. Pierce, the "world-renowned,"
Whose "Medical Discovery"
Has vanquished pain and set him free

One can but speak in praise of a remedy so effectual and unfailing as Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. Acting promptly and thoroughly, it produces permanent cures. Consumption, in its early stages, scrofula, liver and kidney disorders, and all blood diseases, are within the field of its unbounded success.

An American Philanthropist (?)

Mr. S. J. Ritchie, an Akron, Ohio philanthropist, who is anxious to erect smelting works at Sudbury and thus develop Canadian mineral resources, providing the government will give him the necessary encouragement, is anxious to explain that he does not want the earth. All he wants is $1,700,000. If the government will pay interest at 3 per cent. for 10 years on $2,000,000 and give a subsidy of $5,000 a mile to a railway 220 miles long, he thinks he knows some friends who might be induced to invest $1,000,000 in a smelting plant. But he wants the Canadian money first, just to show his American friends what confidence we have in him. He says he has no doubt the scheme will prove profitable. Neither have we. But the question is, to whom would the profit go? To an unprejudiced observer it looks as if it would slide into the pocket of S. J. Ritchie, Esq., while the $1,700,000 with which that profit is to be made would come out of those of the Canadian taxpayer. This looks a little too one-sided a bargain to be popular in commercial circles. In fact it is hinted that many Canadians would be glad to erect a $1,000,000 smelting plant if the Government would give them $1,700,000 to do it with.—Journal of Commerce.

Death and Burial of a Bank Note.

There is a certain ceremony which attends the death and burial of a Bank of England note. It is only three days after its cancelling that it is carried to its last home in the Bank-note Library. Its first dark day of nothingness is spent in the inspector's office, where severe judges sit in judgment on its virtue. During its second day it and its thirty or forty thousand fellows, done up into parcels, are counted and sorted; that is to say, each parcel is dealt out like a pack of cards, according to dates and denominations of value. The third day they are posted in ledgers, which are kept as indexes to the paid notes; and then, on the evening of their last day in the upper regions of light and air, they are carried down with scant ceremony in huge bags to the Bank-note Library.—Falkirk Herald.

Export Logs.

The reduction of the export duty on sawlogs has given a new impetus to the business of rafting along Lake Huron. Thirty million feet will be taken across for N. Holland, of the Saginaw Lumber and Salt Company. J. W. Hory & Sons, of Saginaw, will take over 20,000,000, and Silbey & Bearinger as many more. About 35,000,000 feet will go from Lake Superior to Saginaw during the season. A few years ago the project of rafting logs across the lake, would have been scoffed at. In addition to logs to be rafted from lake points, Alger, Smith & Co. will raft about 80,000,000 feet to Detroit and Lake Erie points.

A Pleasant Herb Drink—A Spring Medicine.

The druggists tell us that people call daily for the new cure for constipation and sick-headache discovered by Dr. Silas Lane. It is said to be Oregon grape root (a great remedy in the far west for those complaints) combined with simple herbs, and is made ready for use by pouring on boiling water to draw out the strength. It sells at 50c and $1 a package and is called Lane's Family Medicine.

Piles! Piles! Itching Piles.

SYMPTOMS—Moisture; intense itching and stinging; most at night; worse by scratching if allowed to continue tumors form, which often bleed and ulcerate, becoming very sore. SWAYNE'S OINTMENT stops the itching and bleeding, heals ulceration, and in most cases removes the tumors. At druggists, or by mail, for 50 cents. Dr. Swayne & Son, Philadelphia.

DOMINION PARLIAMENT.

MR. PETER WHITE ELECTED SPEAKER BY ACCLAMATION.

Sir John Macdonald and His Son Take the Oath of Office Together—The Leader of the Opposition Twits the Conservative Party on the Loyalty Cry.

OTTAWA, April 29.—The proceedings in the House and Senate to-day were of the usual personal character and not characterized by any special feature except the swearing in of Sir John and his son together, this being, so far as the writer is aware, the first time such an event has occurred in Canada. Sharp on midday the Clerk of the Commons and his assistants appeared in the Chamber and the swearing in of members was commenced, the first three to take the oath being Robillard, Dr. Landerkin and McMullen, who signed the roll of the new House in the order named. The junior member for Ottawa was therefore the first to attach his signature to the new roll. The swearing in proceeded rapidly and by 2 o'clock nearly the whole of the members had taken the prescribed oath and inscribed their names in the roll.

The Commoners then retired to their own chamber and Sir John Macdonald, addressing the Clerk, moved, seconded by Sir Hector Langevin, that Peter White, member for North Renfrew, do take the chair as Speaker of the House. He remarked that to the old members of the House it was unnecessary for him to say anything about Mr. White, who, he was sure, would impart dignity to the important position he was to fill. He had been for 14 or 15 years in the House, and from his first entrance had always shown ability and assiduity in the discharge of his duties. No matter on which side of the House he had been, whether on the right of the Speaker or the left, he had always comported himself in a manner which justified the wisdom of those who sent him to the House. He thought that Mr. White would prove perfectly acceptable to both sides of the House.

Mr. Laurier twitted the Government on having suffered a reduction in its ranks in the elections, and also on the fact that they did not propose to follow the British precedent of re-electing the old Speaker. In a good-natured sort of way he touched on the loyalty cry and said that Conservative loyalty shines brightest at election times, but after the election it was put under a bushel. He had thought that Mr. Wood of Brockville, who had made an excellent deputy-speaker, would have been the choice of the Government, but he had no special fault to find with Mr. White. He complimented that gentleman on the possession of sound judgment although he had supported the National Policy, and felt sure that on assuming the position of Speaker he would leave party feeling behind him, and act fairly and justly to both sides of the House.

Mr. White was then declared elected unanimously and conducted to the Speaker's chair by Sir John Macdonald and Sir Hector Langevin, where he made the customary short address declaring his intention to maintain the honor and dignity of the House and to do his duty impartially to the best of his ability.

The House adjourned at 3.35.

The Speech from the Throne.

It is not expected that the Speech from the Throne to-morrow will likely be very long or contain any intimation of any extraordinary legislation, in view of the season of the year at which the House meets.

It may be expected that the usual allusion to the harvest of last year will be varied by some reference to the advanced condition of the crops for the early period of the season and hopeful anticipations that under such auspicious circumstances the industry of the people will be rewarded by good returns for their labor.

The recent negotiations with a view to the enlargement of our trade relations with the United States will no doubt be alluded to and reference made to the fact that Oct. 12 has been fixed as the date for the consideration of a number of questions of great interest to both countries.

As closely connected with this question it is but reasonable to suppose that His Excellency will intimate that Parliament will be asked to continue for the present season the modus vivendi provided for by the treaty of 1888, which the United States Senate failed to ratify.

The attack of Mr. Plimsoll on the Atlantic cattle trade and the charge of the improper treatment of cattle in transit will doubtless cause a reference to the fact that the investigation held by the Dominion Government showed that the charge of cruelty was unfounded, and the statement that the report on the investigation will be laid before Parliament and a measure submitted for the purpose of avoiding all reasonable apprehension of abuse in future and to protect the interests of this imporant branch of commerce.

Last winter the Minister of Justice addressed a circular to judges asking for suggestions as to changes in the criminal law, including the question of the abolition of grand juries, which some eminent judges had declared themselves in favor of. It is most probable, therefore, that there will be some intimation of submission of a measure codifying the criminal law, in order that that branch of our jurisprudence may be simplified and improved. It will be remembered that an act was introduced at the last session of parliament with reference to the transference to the different provinces in the interest of the Dominion Government foreshores and with reference to obstruction in navigable waters. The act only reached its second reading, but it will be pretty certain to be re-introduced this session.

There has rarely been a session of Parliament in recent years in which it has not been found necessary in view of the growth and development of our Northwest Territories to introduce some legislation with respect to that large and important section of the Dominion, and as several questions of importance have been attracting attention in that section, it is but reasonable to anticipate that the speech will intimate that Parliament will be asked to consider amendments to the acts relating to the Northwest Territories.

It is also probable that the speech will indicate that amendments will be proposed to one or two other acts, and no doubt there will be a reference to the satisfactory condition of the revenue, as evidenced by the surplus last year, and the estimates will be promised at any early period of the session.

If the above proves to be a correct anticipation of the business to be submitted to parliament, it will be seen that while not indicating any measures of a radical or a startling nature calculated to provoke a long and acrimonious session, there will still be a sufficiency of useful legislation proposed.

Stole a Quarter of a Million.

NEW YORK, April 29.—A suit brought by Charles S. Holmes shows that Arthur C. Gilman, a member of the firm of J. H. Larabee & Co., tea merchants, who died suddenly at Flushing, L.I., last December, was a defaulter to the firm in the sum of $222,934. Gilman was taken in at a salary of $8 a week in 1879 and became a partner without putting in any capital in 1880. As he kept stealing the money he deposited it with the Seventh National Bank, the Flushing Bank and the Queen's County Bank. What he did with the money does not appear.

TORONTO TOPICS

A Boy Killed by a Street Car—A Mysterious Death.

TORONTO, April 30.—James Macdonald, the 8-year-old son of David Macdonald, 548 King-street east, met with a terribly sudden death at noon yesterday. The little fellow was returning home from the Sackville-street school, and while crossing King-street, near St. Lawrence-street, was knocked down and run over by a Danforth-avenue car. His skull was crushed and death ensued in a few minutes. The car was driven by James Hepborn.

No. 17 Soho-street has a rather unlucky record. It was in that house that the young Salvation Army private, Van Brunt—afterwards hanged in New York State for the murder of his sweetheart's brother—attempted suicide by shooting himself. The building again sprang into unenviable notoriety yesterday morning, when an old man named Thomas Mills, 62 years of age, died somewhat suddenly in one of its rooms, under circumstances which led to the belief that he had taken poison, willingly or unwillingly so far has not been proven. Mills did the chores around the house for the landlady, a Miss Annie Fisher, who had succeeded Marion Mills, his daugher, as keeper of the place. Marion had written Miss Fisher on Tuesday telling her to tell her father that she was not coming back from Montreal where she had gone on a visit, and telling her to make the old man get out and hustle for himself.

Mills took the letter very much to heart and wept a good deal. Later in the day, however, he seemed to have recovered his usual spirits and went to bed with a fairly good load of whisky in him. He awoke the people in the house with his groans about 2 in the morning. Doctors were sent for, but they could do nothing, and he died at 5 yesterday morning. The autopsy failed to indicate any poisonous presence, and it was the more fully to ascertain the cause of death that Coroner Johnson last night empanelled a jury in No. 3 Police Station. The medical testimony was uncertain as to the cause of death, and an adjournment was made until to-morrow evening for further evidence.

"OLD HUTCH" MISSING.

CHICAGO, April 29.—The break in the prices of grain on the Board of Trade this morning was caused by rumors that B. P. Hutchinson, the veteran speculator, was in financial trouble. No facts in evidence were given by those who talked of the matter, though it was common report that he lately lost heavily in wheat and corn, both on the recent heavy advance and subsequent break in prices. Mr. Hutchinson was not to be found upon the floor and later it became known that Mr. Hutchinson was mysteriously missing. None of Mr. Hutchinson's family have seen him since yesterday afternoon when the board closed. His people were of course very anxious in regard to him. The supposition among Mr. Hutchinson's friends is that he has wandered away in a fit of temporary despondency. The actual condition of his affairs is not known, though it is understood all of his trades on the board have been closed out, and a private despatch from Milwaukee says all his deals there have been closed. Whatever may be his financial condition, it is not believed anyone will lose anything through him, as his family, it is confidently expected, will see them paid, if necessary. Hutchinson's checks have gone through the clearing house so far without question. Present interest centres in the whereabouts of the Board of Trade King who for years ruled the market, putting prices up and down at will by the sheer force of the millions with which he was able to back his opinions. His sudden and mysterious disappearance recalls the fate of the late millionaire B. H. Campbell, who disappeared last December, and whose body was found in the river afterwards.

It is now learned that Hutchinson started for Florida last night. One of Hutchinson's brokers estimates his liabilities at $350,000 and his assets at $250,000. He says Hutchinson lost $2,000,000 during the past 14 months.

NO HELP FOR POOR JACK.

Sad Fate of the Crew of a Wrecked Schooner.

BALTIMORE, Md., April 29.—Capt. J. W. Bennett of the schooner Addie Manderson, from Salem, brings a story of the sea. When off York Spit in the Chesapeake Bay, Sunday, a capsized vessel was discovered with men in the rigging. Mate Aberg of the Manderson with a crew was sent to the rescue. In the main mast head was a man alive, but unconscious. A rope was fastened about him, but every effort to free him failed as his legs were tangled in the rigging. Mate Aberg hastened back for a hatchet, but when he reached the vessel the second time the man was dead. Another man was found lying on his stomach on the mast and his head and feet in the water. He had been dead for some time. A third man was found in the shrouds dead. The wrecked vessel was the schooner R. B. Leeds of Somers Point, N.J. She was commanded by Capt. John Hammel of Absecon, N.J.

SETTLING WITH THE SURVIVORS.

Harrison Sends a Delegate to Palermo to Settle up.

ROME, April 29.—L'Opinione publishes a despatch from Palermo stating that an American journalist named Engelmann who has arrived there has been delegated by the Government of the United States to render assistance to the families of the Italian subjects lynched in New Orleans. It is stated that Engelmann visited the village of Caccamo to give help to the family of Monasterio, one of the lynched men who reside at that place.

Interred in the Mausoleum.

KREISAU, April 29.—The remains of Count von Moltke reached here to-day and were conveyed to the mausoleum by officers of cuirassiers, the procession being headed by Gen. Levinsk, Bishop Kopp and the civil authorities of Kreisau. The route of the procession was lined with members of the different veteran soldiers' associations. Pastor Grueditz delivered an oration at the graveside and the ceremonies concluded with an anthem.

A Chess Player's Medals Missing.

NEW YORK, April 29.—The disappearance of the valuables of the late Capt. Mackenzie is the subject of speculation and indignant comment among the great chess player's friends. Even the championship medals won in many contests of absorbing interest on both sides of the Atlantic have disappeared. Undertaker Kipp, who had charge of the remains of Mr. Mackenzie from the time of the discovery of the dead body until the burial, was summoned before Coroner Levy this afternoon and questioned in regard to the missing valuables, but knew nothing of them.

Crushed by Wheels.

KINGSTON, April 29.—One of the heavy waggons of the Sheddon Company was being driven along Earl-street, loaded with furniture, when several little fellows ran towards it. One of them named Powers, about 7 years old, jumped on the rear axle and falling off, was drawn under the wheel, which passed over his hips, crushing him severely. The little fellow was picked up and sent to the Hotel Dieu in the ambulance.

A Clergyman's Death.

The Kingston News says: "Rev. Charles Lavell, brother of Warden Lavell, of the penitentiary, died at Drummondville, Que., on April 29. The Rev. Mr. Lavell was born in the town of Niagara in 1822. While still a youth he came to Kingston and served his apprenticeship as a printer in the old Chronicle (now the News) office. Always of a studious and serious turn of mind, he decided to devote himself to the cause of religion, and in 1839 went to Toronto and entered Upper Canada College. In 1842 he entered the ministry of the Methodist Church, and for 49 years devoted himself zealously to the cause of humanity. He was married in 1846, but his married life lasted only two years, his wife dying in 1848, since which Mr. Lavell has remained a widower. During his long period of ministerial work, the Rev'd Mr. Lavell had been stationed in Montreal, Toronto, Kingston, Hamilton, London, and all the important parishes of his Church in Canada. Despite his early difficulties he was a man of many mental accomplishments, a powerful preacher, and of irreproachable life and character.

Mr. Lavell was stationed here as assistant to Rev'd E. B. Harper, in the old Pinnacle St. church, in 1858 9.

Uncle Tom.

The Alton, Ill., Democrat says of Haverly's Uncle Tom's Cabin company, which will appear here on Saturday evening: Haverly's Uncle Tom's Cabin Company drew a crowded house last night, and the audience was not disappointed. The plot was well supported throughout, every player being master of his role and carrying it out with the reality of life. Uncle Tom is a true negro who seemed to feel every act which he played. Little Eva was perfect in the performance of her parts. The flight of Harris and pursuit by the blood hounds was thrillingly rendered, and the cruelties of Legree aroused sympathetic indignation in the heart of every auditor. Topsy was famous in her role, and she led the comedy, which ran like a silver thread through the plot of the drama and kept the audience in an uproar when its sympathies were not enlisted in some sadder scene.

Married at Cobourg

Mr. David Callahan, of this city, an engineer of the G.T.R., and Miss Lawler, of Cobourg, were married on Tuesday evening at the residence of the bride's parents. Last evening the happy couple came to the city and were welcomed to their new home by about 150 of the friends. A pleasant evening was spent by all present, an excellent dejeuear being laid shortly after midnight. The bride received a large number of handsome and valuable presents. With their many friends we join in wishing them every happiness.

Very Hard Indeed.

There are so many things that appear unnecessary, and which for the life of us we can see neither purpose nor end. It may be corns are just one of those thorns in the flesh the why and the wherefore of which we cannot see. Nevertheless they are of the kind that are easily removed. Putnam's Painless Corn Extractor makes short work of them. Try it and see how nicely it coaxes them out. Use none other than Putnam's Corn Extractor. Sold by druggists.

A Sneak Thief.

Last evening two men, one of whom was Jean Baptiste Desjardines, called at the St. George's restaurant and called for a lunch, which was furnished them. When they left a silver fork was missed. The police were informed of the affair and in a short time the men were found and the missing article was also found upon Desjardines. This morning the Magistrate sent the thief up for two months. He was only liberated from the gaol last week after serving a sentence for stealing a pair of scissors.

Where they Sit.

The members in the Commons for this county are placed in the Chamber as follows: Hon. Mr. Bowell occupies seat No. 7, front row, to the right of the Speaker, next to Hon. Mr. Foster and second from Sir John. Mr. Dalton McCarthy is on his right. Mr. Corby occupies No. 50, in the fourth row, his "desk-mate" being Mr. Denison of Toronto. Mr. Burdett sits in No. 146, fourth row on the left of the Speaker, Mr. Barron sits with him.

A High Testimonial.

The Woodstock Sentinel Review of Tuesday says: W. J. Butler, of Woodstock, the inventor of the butler Automatic Railway Crossing Signal Bell, has received advice that after an examination of the invention the Parisian Inventor's Academy has conferred upon him the title of Honorary Member, with attribution of the first class Diploma and the gilded medal. Mr. Butler was for some time a resident of this city.

Remember It is This.

Uncle Tom's Cabin Co., which plays in Belleville on the Hospital lot, under a cloud of canvas, on Thursday, May 7th. Do not confound this show with the company billed here under the name of Haverly. Remember the big show, using 38 people and 20 horses, comes on Thursday, May 7. Admission 25 cts., children 15 cts. Reserve seats 10cts extra. 306d3t

Don't Feel Well,

And yet you are not sick enough to consult a doctor, or you refrain from so doing for fear you will alarm yourself and friends—we will tell you just what you need. It is Hood's Sarsaparilla, which will lift you out of that uncertain, uncomfortable, dangerous condition, into a state of good health, confidence and cheerfulness. You've no idea how potent this peculiar medicine is in cases like yours.

The Lake Traffic.

The steamer Eurydice will arrive at Port Hope on Monday next, 4th of May, and will make daily trips to Rochester until the new steamer "North King" is ready for the lake. The Eurydice is a fine boat and will be commanded by Capt. Nicholson and an efficient staff of officers.

Personal.

Mr. C. H. Hatch has retired from the Kingston agency of the Richelieu and Ontario Navigation Company, which he had filled for thirty years. Mr. Thos. Hanley, G.T.R. agent, will be his successor.

Notes from the Capital.

Mr. Corby to be a Party Whip—Occupations of the Members.

The Empire's correspondent writes: Mr. George Taylor, M.P., issued notices to day for a Ministerial caucus to be held to-morrow morning. The principal object of the meeting is to elect Government whips for the session. Mr. Taylor will be promoted to the position of chief Ministerial whip in place of Mr. John Small. The promotion is thoroughly deserved. His Ontario colleagues will probably be Mr. Alex. McKay and Mr. Henry Corby. Both these gentleman are personally popular among their confreres in the House, and with Mr. Taylor would constitute a grand team. Quebec will likely be represented by Messrs. Bergeron and Frechette; New Brunswick by Mr. Joseph Wood, and Nova Scotia by Mr. John Macdonald. It is also likely that the members from the far west—Manitoba and the territories and British Columbia—will be asked to select a whip, and the names of Mr. Ross, M.P., and Mr. Daly, M.P., are mentioned in that capacity.

An analysis of the professions or callings of the members of the Commons gives the following results: Lawyers, 58; farmers, 37; merchants, 34; doctors, 21; gentlemen, 13; journalists, 9; millers, 2; coal mine managers, 2; machinist, 1; distiller, 1; manufacturers 7; lumbermen, 6; railway employe, 1; contractors, 2; banker, 1; shipowner, 1; provincial land surveyor, 1, notaries, 4.

Why the Caspian Changes its Level.

The Caspian Sea lies 85 feet below the level of the Black Sea, and is the greatest body of water in the world lying below the sea level. It is remarkable, not only for this fact, but for the changes that have occurred in its level. About the first century of our era there is no doubt that the level of the sea stood 85 feet above its present horizon, and, of course, spread over a vastly more extensive area than the present. The Russian Geographical Society has printed a treatise, written by N. M. Philipof, on these remarkable changes of level. Since the early part of the Christian era, a general and gradual decline of the level of the sea has taken place. In the eighteenth century, however, there appear to have been a few periods when the level rose. From the beginning of the present century there has been a fall, but since 1865, judging from recent observations, the level has been higher. Lieut. Sokolof, a naval officer, while working in the Caspian region, from 1843 to 1848, collected much information. He found that in the present century the level had steadily fallen, just as in the last century it had risen, causing great apprehension among the inhabitants of an inundation and giving rise to the belief in periodical variations every thirteen years. Lerch, while in Baku, in 1734 and 1747, found submerged buildings which had stood on dry land thirty years before, and he mentions a saying of the Persians that the sea rose and fell alternately every thirty years. Mr. Philipof has made a special study of the whole question. Inquiring into the cause of these changes of level, he finds a variety of influences at work, such as wind driving the water towards certain coasts, temperature of the air causing in summer evaporation and consequent fall in level, and in winter cold producing a rise in level. Rivers, rain and earthquakes are also among the active agencies, causing fluctuations from month to month and from day to day.—Goldwaiter's Geographical Magazine.

Harper's for May.

Harper's Magazine for May opens with the first of a series of attractive papers on "The Warwickshire Avon," by A. T. Quiller Couch, superbly illustrated by Alfred Parsons. The Venerable F. W. Farrar, Archdeacon of Westminster, contributes an impartial and appreciative sketch of the origin and work of "The Salvation Army." "Roman London" is the subject of an extremely interesting paper, written by Eugene Lawrence and illustrated by H. D. Nichols, describing the Roman remains recently discovered beneath the London pavements. Col. T. A. Dodge writes the first of a series of entertaining articles about "Some American Riders," his paper being beautifully illustrated from paintings by Frederic Remington. The other contents are attractive as usual.

Delicate, Sickly Children

Scott's Emulsion is unequalled. See what Dr. C. A. Black, of Amherst, N. S., says: "I have been acquainted with Scott's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil, with Hypophosphites, for years, and consider it one of the finest preparations now before the public. Its pleasant flavor makes it the great favorite for children, and I do highly recommend it for all wasting diseases of children and adults. Sold by Druggists, 50c, and $1.00.

Finishing the Plans.

The New Thousand Island Park Hotel Already in "Blue Prints."

The plans for the new Thousand Island Park hotel are completed and the work of figuring the cost of construction has begun. Architect Archimedes Russell prepared the plans and was busy Saturday putting them into blue prints.

The new hotel will be in the form of a Greek cross, three stories high, and will contain 140 rooms for the accommodation of guests. The highest point to which guests will be able to climb for observation in the tower pavilion is to be seventy-six feet from the ground. The work will be rushed to accomodate guests at the Thousand Island Park as soon as possible. The directors were in this city yesterday and they have formally accepted Mr. Russell's plans. The principal story will be surrounded with piazzas, except in the northeast angle, which will be occupied by the kitchen department. The main entrance leading to the piazzas and office will be in the southwest angle and approached directly from St. Lawrence avenue from the main landing.—Syracuse Evening Herald.

Lord Lorne Voices Canadian Sentiment.

(From the Empire.)

The North American Review for May contains an important article from the pen of one of the most enthusiastic friends of Canada, the Marquis of Lorne. We are told that our "string of settlements has widened out into a splendid zone of prosperous provinces, steadily increasing in wealth, in population, in power of inter-communication, and in the development of undreamed-of mineral and agricultural wealth," and that "in every department of national prosperity, in settlement, good agriculture, enterprise in mining and lumbering industry, in the fisheries everywhere, from east to west, definite and steady progress of the best type, not spasmodic, but sure and lasting, is visible to the stranger, if certain natives shut their eyes to it."

If the "certain natives" referred to, and upon whom most people can very easily fit the cap of pessimistic doubt and lack of faith in their country, will only listen to the patriotic perception of our expanding prosperity which Lord Lorne so well voices and which has always been the firmest plank in the platform of the Conservative party of Canada, they will, indeed, confer a blessing upon this Dominion which will go far to counteract the evil caused by their doleful wailings, of the (to them) weary past.

"Everywhere," we are told, "the conviction is growing that along those grand parallels of latitude can be built up a nation worthy to find its place in the world, worthy to stand near its great neighbor to the south, able to achieve what it designs." Lord Lorne defines Canadian patriotism in most true, eloquent and ringing words:

"It is the love of their own; the love of that land their fathers went to and believed in when no one else believed in her; the love of fulfilling the hopes of their fathers; the love of freedom, which is assured to them by the rule they themselves have fashioned as they chose; the proud affection of manly hearts for the promise of a great future to be greatly earned."

Mr. Goldwin Smith receives a slight instalment of the castigation he so well deserves, though we should judge that the sentiment which inspires the mind of our former Governor General is one more of contempt than fear. Referring to Mr. Smith's persistent attacks upon certain leaders in the politics of the Empire, certain positions held and honors accepted, the Marquis of Lorne says that he "must be conscious that these trivial personalities must be taken for the crotchets they represent by their utterance, and that a system which is alive because it suits a free people cannot be hindered by the few bacilli who do not find their surroundings suited to the further propagation of their little crooked species."

A most valuable paper upon an important subject, written in a fair and patriotic spirit, is the article we have been dealing with, and we cannot close our extracts better than by quoting Lord Lorne's description of Unrestricted Reciprocity as now advocated: Patriotism, loyalty, pride in country, and in the continuity of its history, in its institutions, in its freedom, that gives to its people a sovereign power, all—all must go before a little more—if only a percentage, of increased trade connection."

A Modern Sodom.

There is a remarkable difference in the observance of Sunday in Chicago and Toronto, not to the credit of the Western Metropolis. There the street cars run from early morn till early next morn; the saloons throw their doors wide open to their thirsty patrons; the second hand shops, pawn shops and cigar stores are in full blast; suburban trains rush in all directions, carrying thousands to outlying parks and suburbs, where German bands discourse sweet music and where the followers of Terpischore trip the light fantastic to their heart's content; and drink lager and Rhine wine as fast as it can be handed out to them by the active waiters. The theatres too, almost without exception, look forward to bigger business at their Sunday matinees than at those of even Saturday, and almost the entire population seem to give themselves up to a day of pleasure, if not dissipation. True, the Sabbath was not intended as a day in which to do penance, or as a day in which one should shut himself up and mope indoors, but we draw the line at spending a Sunday afternoon in witnessing the gyrations of a female Spanish dancer in a variety theatre. In all, some twelve theatres, variety halls and museums, gives matinees each Sunday afternoon during the season and they are exceedingly well patronized. If Chicago keeps on it will soon earn the title of the Modern Sodom.—Orange Sentinel.

TO BE HANGED JUNE 4.

THE CUMBERLAND MONSTER SENTENCED TO DEATH.

The Judge's Severe Arraignment—The Jury Only Required Half-an-Hour to Arrive At a Verdict of Guilty—The Prisoner Appears Unconcerned.

L'ORIGNAL, Ont., April 29.—The awful murder of the little McGonigle girls at Cumberland on Oct. 7 last will be avenged. Narcisse Larocque was to-day found guilty and will be hanged Thursday, June 4, at this place. The prisoner's lawyers, Messrs. McCrimmon and Constantine, made a brilliant defence considering the material they had to work on, but the crown case was so strong that the jury only remained out 35 minutes. The verdict was unanimous. The judge's sentence was extremely solemn and his censure of the crime terribly severe.

In addressing prisoner, before passing sentence, His Lordship said: "Perhaps in the annals of crime in this country no more diabolical offence has been committed than that which you have perpetrated and of which the jury have very properly, I think, convicted you. The circumstances all pointed to you as being the guilty party. You were last seen in the company of these two little girls, who were unable to protect themselves, and you being a friend of the family your duty ought to have been to have protected them against the hand of anyone. Instead of that, as the evidence must satisfy everyone, you first, in order to satisfy your lustful passion, outraged them both and then you committed this offence for the purpose of covering up the guilt of the first crime."

Prisoner after the verdict was announced, turned deadly pale, his lips quivered and it was thought he would break down, but near the close of the sentence he braced up and finally left the court room with a firm step though with a bowed head.

The Evidence that Convicted.

The evidence was purely circumstantial. James McGonigle, the father of the murdered children, a laborer, testified to their ages, namely, that of Mary about 14 years and that of Eliza about 12. They were at school at Cumberland on Oct. 7 last; they did not come home that night; the next night, Wednesday, Oct. 8, about 10 o'clock, the two girls were found dead by him and some others in a bush just out of a lane, which the children traversed on their way to and from the village.

George Brown, the school teacher, and Cozy McCollum, a little girl who was a schoolmate of the murdered girls, testified to the latter having been at school on Oct. 7 and leaving left it for home about 4 o'clock.

Margaret Cochrane deposed that she saw the prisoner running towards the lane on the afternoon of the murder, as did also her son.

William Gamble testified that he had met and spoken to the prisoner, who was following the girls towards the bush on the afternoon in question. Prisoner was walking at a brisk pace.

Benjamin Bernard gave the most incriminating testimony. He swore positively that while in a field getting his cows he saw prisoner walking with the two girls in the lane leading up to the bush. One girl was walking alongside him, while the other was walking just behind.

The evidence of Robert Dalrymple corroborated that of the two preceding witnesses as to the time at which they returned from the field. He also heard screaming at intervals of 15 minutes from the direction of the woods.

Considerable evidence was given as to the tracks made by the murderer, which exactly corresponded in size with those made by boots belonging to the prisoner. It was also shown that trees on the route prisoner admitted he took in going to his brother's house were covered with blood marks, as if a bloody hand had been wiped thereon.

Edward Larocque, a cousin of the prisoner, swore that prisoner arrived at his house at 6 o'clock on the evening of the murder and remained all night.

Ghastly Relics in Evidence.

The medical testimony was very conclusive. Drs. Marks, Janson and Ferguson, who made the post mortem, testified that there was every evidence that the children had been horribly outraged. The immediate cause of death was strangulation, the finger-marks of the assassin being plainly discernible on the neck, while the windpipe bore evidence of great pressure. There were also numerous marks on the hands showing that fingermarks had dug into them. Dr. Marks produced in court the hands and other injured parts of the children preserved in spirits, together with photographs of the hands and impressions of the fingers of the prisoner and the jury compared them. A shudder of horror ran through the audience during the course of the evidence of Coroner Marks. The younger girl had evidently been the first victim of the fiendish monster, as the marks of violence in her case were the most pronounced, and in strangling the child the murderer had used such force that he had broken a bone in the throat.

There was no evidence for the defence. Prisoner's counsel did not think it advisable to call witnesses as to character, and the attempt to show that other girls had previously been chased in the same woods was abandoned.

Locchia Liberated.

CAYUGA, April 29.—Locchia, the Italian who was accused of murder and arson in connection with the burning of a farmer's residence in North Cayuga, whereby two children were burned to death, has been released from jail on his own recognizance, the Crown Attorney believing that the evidence against him was not sufficient to justify his further detention.

Will Row O'Connor on Any Suitable Course in America.

NEW YORK, April 29.—A cablegram to The Police Gazette from Sydney, N.S.W., says Stanbury, who yesterday defeated McLean for the sculling championship of the world, accepts O'Connor's challenge and will row on any suitable course in the United States.

Death from Heart Disease.

KINGSTON, April 29.—Last evening Mr. Gallivan, engineer, returned from his work to his home in Alfred-street feeling in good health. About 9 o'clock he took sick and before a physician or a priest could be got to the house he passed away. Heart failure is supposed to have been the cause of death.

Councillors of McGill.

MONTREAL, April 29.—At a meeting of the McGill University Graduates' Society held to-night Mr. J. J. McLaren, Toronto, and Sir James Grant, Ottawa, were appointed non-resident councillors, and the president and secretary of the Ottawa Valley Graduates' Society were named members and officers.

Perforated by a Pick.

NIAGARA, April 29.—A serious accident occurred here about 4 o'clock this afternoon. It seems that George Goard, who with a number of others are engaged in making excavations for the laying of waterworks pipes, was accidentally struck in the back with a pick-ax by a man working behind him, injuring the spine. He was taken to St. Catharines Hospital.

The Government's Free Education Plan.

LIVERPOOL, April 29.—Arthur Bower Forwood, Conservative member of Parliament, in an address here to-day, said he believed upon good authority that it had been officially declared that the Government would dissolve Parliament if the Government's free education plans were obstructed. Mr. Forwood's statement has attracted considerable attention.

Fastidious Speech

Harper's Bazaar.

How many people are there who pronounce any proportion of their words correctly, not merely by reason of clipping and mouthing, but by ignorance of good usage! We find them everywhere, and they lay the accent on the first instead of on the second syllable of acclimate, for example: They pronounce the second syllable of acoustics coo, instead of cow; they do not put the accent on the last syllable of adept, as they should do; they leave the u sound out of buoy; they pronounce duke with the sound of oo instead of with the simple long u; emphasize the first instead of second syllable of enervate, and sound the t in often. They are astonished to know that precedence has the the accent on the second syllable, and placard on the last; that quay is called key; that sough is suf; that the z instead of the s sound is to be given in sacrifice, and the reverse in rise; that subtile and subtle are two different words; that the last syllable of tortoise is pronounced "tis" instead of "tus"; that it should be used and not ust; and that is not the "zoo," but the zo ological gardens where you go to see the chimpanzee, accent on the "pan." It is quite time, we think, when we hear one of these talkers, for some of the fancy-work and fancy studies of the day to be dropped, and a little hard hard work on the dictionary put in their place.

"It is a Whole Drug Store.'

Is what a lady said of Clark's Lightning Liniment. The previous night she had an attack of neuralgia in the face, and sent to the drug store for relief. The night clerk sent a bottle of Clark's Lightning Liniment, which dispelled the pain at once. In the night baby awoke with colic. She gave him three drops of the Liniment on a lump of sugar, and he went to sleep again. In the morning her husband complained of Rheumatism in the shoulder. She rubbed it with the Liniment until he said the pain was gone. Is it any wonder the lady called Clark's Lightning Liniment "a whole drug store?" Sold by all druggists; price fifty cents. TORONTO TRUTH'S

New Spring Bible Competition

NO. 22.

In these latter days there have arisen many false schemes and many scores of imitations of TRUTH'S Competitions, but one after another have failed and utterly perished, yet TRUTH remains, and makes good all its promises. Its reputation is now too well established to risk damaging it, and as it has cost a very large amount of money and many years of care and labor to build up, the publisher could not afford to fail in carrying out all his agreements to the letter. There are twenty-one divisions of the largest list of bona fide prizes ever offered and ever actually given away by any publisher in the world. The total value of prizes in the Spring list is about $10,000,00. The lists are so large it would cost altogether too much to give them in detail here. There are pianos, gold and silver watches, china tea and dinner sets, ladies' and gentlemen's bicycles, silver tea-sets, silk dresses, books, money, hundreds of other valuable rewards. You pay nothing for these prizes, as everyone concedes that full value is received for the dollar in securing TRUTH every week for three months. Send one dollar and answers to the five following questions: Where in the Bible are these words found? 1, GRAIN; 2, CORN; 3, WHEAT; 4, BARLEY; 5, RYE. If your answers are correct and your letters arrive in time you are almost sure to get a reward, as there are so many and every one cannot always find correct answers to all these questions. All the five answers must be correct to get any prize, but you will get full value for the dollar in TRUTH if you don't get anything else. If you want to see the list of rewards before sending in your dollar, mail TRUTH ten cents and a copy will be sent you containing the list of prizes. But there have been very few dissatisfied prize-winners in previous competitions, considering that he has given away during the past eight years scores of thousands of prizes. Some people expect a piano for every dollar sent, and are mad if they don't get it. He wishes it were possible to give every subscriber a gold watch or a piano or both, but says it can't be done. Some publishers intimate they will, but nobody can do it for any length of time. Send one dollar and correct answers and you won't repent it; and bear in mind that it is not guaranteed that everybody whose answers are correct will get a prize, but that all the prizes in the twenty-one different lists will be given away. The competition remains open only till the last day of June next, inclusive, after which the prizes will be immediately distributed to the successful ones. Ten days will be allowed for letters to reach TRUTH from distant points after the 30th of June. All, however, must be postmarked where mailed not later than the 30th June, or any time between now and that date. Address S. Frank Wilson, "Truth" Office, Toronto, Ont., Canada.

AS PARMELEE'S VEGETABLE PILLS contain Mandrake and Dandelion, they cure Kidney and Liver complaints with unerring certainty. They also contain Roots and Herbs which have specific virtues truly wonderful in their action on the stomach and bowels. Mr. E. A. Cairncross, Shakespeare, writes: "I consider Parmelee's Pills are an excellent remedy for Biliousness and Derangement of the Liver, having used them myself for some time."

—Pertman—What's the trouble in your church? Van Leer—Why, its all due to Miss Filkins being cross-eyed. She undertook to throw sheep's eyes at the young minister and they focussed on the tenor. He swears he'll resign unless she's put out of the church.

A lady writes: "I was able to remove the corns, root and branch, by the use of Holloway's Corn Cure." Others who have tried it have the same experience.

BEATRIX RANDOLPH

BY

JULIAN HAWTHORNE.

COPYRIGHT BY AMERICAN PRESS ASSOCIATION.

He covered his eyes with the back of his hand. "I can't bear it!" he said in a broken voice.

Marana's inscrutable face quivered for a moment: she seemed to waver: she swayed slightly toward him as she stood; her lips parted and her eyes shone. But then, with a deep breath, she regained her self command. She looked at Beatrix, as much as to say, "You must comfort him." Then she turned, with a sweep of her black dress, moved to the door and opened it. Bellingham and Wallie Dinsmore were just approaching.

"You are late, messieurs," exclaimed Marana in a gay tone. "I have been offering my homage!"

Wallie looked from one to the other of the three, quietly observant. Ed, with his face averted, was putting on his overcoat and hat; he then pulled the brim of the latter over his eyes and went hastily out, looking neither to the right nor left. Beatrix, with one hand resting on the marble dressing table, and her eyes wide open, stood in a sort of trance. She had not yet seen Bellingham. Wallie offered Marana his arm.

"Since you are going, diva," he said, "permit me to escort you. You misunderstood me yesterday morning. Whatever homage I have to offer shall be paid to you."

Bellingham, thus abandoned to his own guidance, strode up to Beatrix, who uttered a cry; it seemed to her as if he had suddenly started up out of the floor. It had been his purpose to make a final appeal to her, and no doubt his words would have been eloquent and moving, and possibly they might have gained him his object, though he would have had to contend against the incomprehensible doubts, hesitations, perversity and pride of a woman who loves, and knows that she is loved, and yet draws back for the sake of something—heaven knows what. But, as it happened, not a syllable of Bellingham's appeal was ever uttered, for before he could open his lips to begin the bell rang which conveyed the order for the curtain to rise on the last act. So he, perceiving that there was no time to lose, simply caught Beatrix in his arms, met her eyes for an instant, and kissed her. After that it was too late for her to draw back, even had she wished to. She went to take her part on the stage, but she left a marguerite in Bellingham's hand.

Such is the private history of that memorable last night, the other details of which have been sufficiently described in the journals of the period. Mrs. Peters is understood to have sailed for Europe a day or two later. Jocelyn disappeared, leaving unsavory traces behind him. Mr. Randolph, senior, returned to his place up the Hudson, where he is occasionally visited by his married daughter. Ed entered the office of the latter's husband in the capacity of clerk, and is doing well. As for Mlle. Marana, the famous prima donna, she has vanished as utterly as if she had never had any existence.

There are two or three persons in New York who are believed to know something about her; there are perhaps a dozen who know enough to look wise when the matter is broached in their presence; there are a hundred or two who have heard a report to the effect that there were some facts connected with her engagement in this city which have never been fully explained, but the great mass of the public have never been at the pains to entertain any misgivings on the subject. They content themselves with looking forward to the time when that most faithful and enterprising of impresarios Gen. Inigo shall once more bring out at his new opera house the great Marana.

THE END.

English Coinage.

When England was being made into mincemeat and blocks of real estate by the Saxons and Danes silver and brass were in use as currency, but the Normans subsequently installed the aristocratic metal and left the democratic brass to take care of itself. Gold was first coined by Henry III., and copper was made into coins in 1672. Tin was used for coinage in 1680, and the National farthing was made of this Cambrian product with a stud of copper set in the centre. In 1690 and 1691 tin half-pence were issued in considerable quantities. The only pure gold coins issued in English history were those of Henry III.

In the reign of Edward I the pound in tale of silver coins was equal to the pound in weight of standard silver. The pound in tale was divided into twenty shillings, the shillings in twelve pence, and each penny piece weighed a penny-weight or twenty-four grains. Before the mintage of gold coins in England the byzant, valued at ten shillings, was imported from Constantinople, and florences of the same value from Florence. Edward III subsequently minted the noble, Edward IV the rial, Henry VII the double rial, James I the laurel, and Charles II revived the old laurel coin under the name of the guinea.

The guinea in the reign of Queen Anne, originally issued as a 20-shilling piece, rose in value to 30 shillings, and was acrobatic in values till Sir Isaac Newton secured authority ordering the guinea to pass for 21 shillings sterling. The present English sovereign was issued in 1817, and weighed 20-21 parts of a guinea. The present standard of fineness for silver coins is 11 ounces or two pennyweight silver and 18 pennyweight alloy.

Bronze coins were introduced in 1860, replacing the old copper coins first legalized by the fiat of Charles II. and afterward made by James II. from old guns, copper vessels, pewter pots and a general assemblage of comparatively worthless metal.—Age of Steel.

Curious Marriage Customs.

The marriage customs in some parts of Brittany are very curious. In Cornouaille, for instance, the village tailor is the important personage to whom the candidate for matrimony applies for a list of eligible girls. Having selected one, the tailor at once proceeds to the maiden's father, carrying a wand of broom, (which gives him the title of Bazvalan, the name of the plant.) He is dressed for the occasion in official stockings, one of which is of violet color, and the other red, and with him is the suitor and his nearest relative.

Whilst the family chiefs are making their arrangements, the lovers retire to the other end of the house, and discourse their own "sweet music;" it is necessary that the engaged pair should put an end themselves to the term of the negotiation. They approach, holding each other by the hand, to the table where their mutual parents or relatives are seated, when bread, wine and brandy are brought in. The young man and the maiden eat with the same knife, and drink out of the same cup; and the day for union is then agreed upon.

Newspaper Ethics.

A newspaper gains neither character nor influence by abandoning good manners. It may indeed make itself disagreeable and annoying, and so silence opposition, as a polecat may effectually close the wood path which you had designed to take. It may be feared, and in the same way as that animal—feared and despised. But this effect must not be confounded with newspaper power and influence. It is exceedingly annoying, undoubtedly, to be placarded all over town as a liar or a donkey, a hypocrite or a sneak-thief. But although the effect is most unpleasant, very little ability is required to produce it. A little paper and printing, a little paste, a great deal of malice, and a host of bill-stickers are all that are needed, and even the pecuniary cost is not large. The effect is produced, but it does not show ability or force or influence upon the part of its producer.—From the Editor's Easy Chair by George William Curtis in Harper's Magazine for April.

Do Not Undertake too Much.

It pays to undertake only so much work on the farm as can be thoroughly attended to. The most successful professional men are specialists and, as a rule, one or two branches of farming conducted in the best way will pay better both in money and satisfaction than half completed work on six or eight. [illegible] undertaking impossibilities.

Supposing.

Supposing you suffer from some disease. Suppose it is dyspepsia or billiousness or constipation or bad blood. Suppose you learn that Burdock Blood Bitters has cured thousands of cases of these and similar complaints. Don't you suppose you ought to try it? It cannot harm you and in nine cases out of ten it cures.

Editorial Evidence.

GENTLEMEN—Your Hagyard's Yellow Oil is worth its weight in gold for both internal and external use. During the late La Grippe epidemic we found it a most excellent preventive, and for sprained limbs, etc., there is nothing to equal it.

WM. PEMBERTON,
Editor Reporter,
Delhi, Ont.

Mr. Joab Scales, of Toronto, writes:— "A short time ago I was suffering from Kidney Complaint and Dyspepsia, sour stomach and lame back; in fact I was completely prostrated and suffering intense pain. While in this state a friend recommended me to try a bottle of Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery. I used one bottle, and the permanent manner in which it has cured and made a new man of me is such that I cannot withhold from the proprietors this expression of my gratitude."

—The only office that seeks the man nowadays is on the top floor of a seven-story building with no elevator.

The brightest flowers must fade, but young lives endangered by severe coughs and colds may be preserved by Dr. Thomas Eclectric Oil. Croup, whooping cough, bronchitis, in short all affections of the throat and lungs, are relieved by this sterling preparation, which also remedies rheumatic pains, sores, bruises, piles, kidney difficulty, and is most economic.

—She—Will you always love me, dear, just the same as you do now? He—Always. She—You wretched thing! Why didn't you protest that every year you would love me more.
